RAWDON NOW ORGANIZED BY GUSS PORTER

Enthusiastic Meeting Is held At Harold Last Night

IVANHOE TO-NIGHT

Hungerford Township Will Be Organized This Evening

Enthusiasm was the keynote of the organization meeting held by E. Guss Porter, K.C., in Harold last night, when the township of Rawdon was thoroughly organized for the coming bye-election.

To-night, Mr. Porter will hold an organization meeting at Huntingdon town hall, Ivanhoe, when Hungerford township will be organized.

There was a splendid attendance at Harold last night where Hon. J. R. Cooke, Reeve Walter Dracup of the township, executive officers of the Association for the township and Mr. Porter himself addressed the meeting.

Y.M.C.A. Had Many Guests Last Night

Prizes Awarded for Costumes; Booths Were Kept Busy

Enjoyment reigned supreme at the Y.M.C.A. building last night when an open house to commemorate Hallowe'en was kept. There was a large attendance and many were costumed. In various parts of the building booths were established and were appropriately decorated with Hallowe'en decorations. All were well patronized. Later in the evening, those in costume paraded before the judges in the gymnasium and prizes were awarded. The judges were Mrs. Wm. Yerex, Miss Beatrice Jones and Miss Ethel Morden. Their awards were as follows:

Boys under 12—Raymond C. Harris 1st prize, a knife donated by Walker Hardware.

2nd prize—"Wolf" Harry McGuire, a stick pin.

Worthy of mention—Jack Andrews, Mae Moorman and R. F. Sidenius.

Girls under 12—Miss Audrey License, 1st prize, a box of candy by Dickens & Son.

2nd prize—A tie between Margaret Young and Helen Wallace, a string of beads donated by J. A. Borbridge.

Worthy of mention—Rosie Summers and Ebron Youker.

Boys 12 to 17 years—1st, "Girl"—George Rowbotham. 2nd—"Spanish Dancer"—Clement Allan.

Girls 12 to 17 years—1st Miss Margaret Chant. 2nd—Miss Eleanor Goa

In adults—Mr. and Mrs. A. Barker were worthy of mention in Chinese costumes.

The booths and those in charge were as follows:

PRONOUNCED DEAD, HE CAME TO LIFE

Two hours after he had been pronounced dead by 12 physicians, a patient in a Philadelphia hospital devoted to the poor was brought back to life. The patient, a man, lived for perhaps half an hour and then died a second time, according to the physicians. Adrenalin, a powerful heart stimulant, was responsible for this medical wonder.

All signs of death were evident and all known tests of life were tried without success before the doctors made their experiment upon the dead man. They injected a powerful dose of the drug directly into his heart and then waited with bated breath.

In ten minutes breathing was resumed, and the man opened his eyes. Questioned, he said he had fallen asleep and had no dreams or sensations. Finally, weakly asking for a drink of water he lay back on his pillow and died. The doctors did not make a second attempt to revive him.

This incident is only one of many similar ones recorded each day on the pages of science's progress. In all parts of the world scientists are experimenting with adrenalin.

Adrenalin, some of the experimenters believe, makes unnatural death, such as that resulting from accidents, combatable. Injected in the human heart, it will sustain life until the heart is again able to take up its important work, the savants believe.

The case of the patient in the Philadelphia hospital is the first of its kind to be made public.

BLAME GULF STREAM?

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 1.—Englishmen of scientific turn of mind, seeking an explanation for the progressively worse climate of the last few years, are wondering if they can blame it on the shift of the Gulf Stream, following disclosures that the water of the English Channel has fallen steadily in temperature since 1921. Charts made from observations taken at Plymouth Station of the Marine Biological Association show that the waters of the Channel reached their highest average temperature in 1921 and that the average has since fallen a few degrees each year.

Believe They Have Alleged Murderer

Frank Barned of London Held Down in New Orleans

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 1.—Frank Barned of London, Ont., wanted on a charge of slaying Smylie Muirhead with automobile some weeks ago has been arrested in New Orleans, Police Chief Welch was informed this morning by telegram. Local officer will go south to bring Barned back. The murder charge will be laid against him. It is understood he will fight extradition.

It is alleged that when Muirhead and his wife and Mrs. Barned, who was separated from her husband, were walking along the street here, Barned drove up in a car and asked his wife to accompany him. On her refusal, it is alleged Barned drove up on the ridewalk, striking down and killing Muirhead and injuring Mrs. Barned.

Coroner's jury held Barned, who disappeared immediately, criminally responsible for the unfortunate man's death.

Never in Canada?

New Orleans, Nov. 1.—Frank Barned, alias Frank Von Stone, 29 years of age, said to answer description of slayer of Smylie Muirhead at Niagara Falls, Ont., was arrested here last night. He declared he had never been in Canada, but was held until Niagara Falls police could be notified.

DRANK POISON IN MISTAKE FOR ALCOHOL

Jack Fleming Faces Trial On Theft Charge To-day

CHLOROFORM CASE

Details of Near Fatal Drinking Party Adduced

Jack Fleming, charged with theft of a bottle of chloroform and a bottle of alcohol from Dr. Stobie's dispensary, appeared this morning before Magistrate Masson.

Dr. Stobie and Dr. J. A. Faulkner who treated accused after he had been carried to his office in an unconscious condition after he had drunk a quantity of the chloroform mixed with near beer testified.

A. Draycott who appeared pale and admitted feeling ill from the effects of a similar drink, told of going with Fleming to Dr. Stobie's office to get a "script."

Draycott waited outside and when Fleming returned he said he had everything alright. The two men then walked to a hotel.

In cross examination by E. D'O'Flynn, witness told of Fleming being intoxicated before going to Dr Stobie's office. Witness was unconscious for seven hours.

Lawrence Burke told of Fleming pouring the stuff into the ginger beer in the four glasses. Burke drank some of the chloroform and when it burned his throat he asked for the bottle which he examined and saw the mistake. Fleming had previously accused the bar tender of etherizing the ginger beer. Burke drank more ginger beer, went outside and then home where while changing his clothes he fell over on the bed and did not awaken until 3 a.m. Sunday. When Burke discovered that the bottle contained chloroform, he grabbed the glass containing the drink from the fourth man in the party, and prevented him from drinking it.

Roy Naylor who was passing the hotel at the time, saw Fleming fall out of the door and after looking into the bar saw Draycott collapse. He helped carry the men to a taxi and to their homes, Fleming later going to the hospital.

Fleming took the stand and told of drinking nine ounces of alcohol on Saturday, and later when he went to a hotel for a drink of ginger beer, his memory failed him until he became conscious after having consumed the chloroform.

The case was dismissed and Fleming was allowed to go after the evidence was heard.

Port Hope Times Adds Two More

To List of Questions Put to Charles E. Hanna

The Port Hope Times has taken up the moral issue of the bye-election in West Hastings on behalf of E. Guss Porter K. C. Space for two stories about the issue was found on the front page of Thursday's paper.

Under the heading, "SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS"—Belleville Intelligencer asks Liberal candidate, the Times prints the eleven queries submitted by the Intelligencer but that is not all. The Times adds two additional questions. Here they are.

(12) Does he know the history of Mr. Murdock, whom he is advocating in this Election, in connection with the men in the Grand Trunk Railway strike in 1910, and does he approve of it?

(13) Does he know Mr. Murdock's connection with the men in the Postal Strike last Spring, and does he approve of Murdock telling these men that they could stay out till "Hell froze over" if they went out?

It would appear that Hanna has been a Conservative, a U. F. O. and now a straight Liberal. How does he explain being everything, and how long does he intend to remain a Liberal?

GO NORTH, YOUNG MAN

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

If the St. Lawrence is dammed and its canals deepened, Toronto is likely to overtake and surpass Montreal and become the Metropolis of Canada. Northern Ontario may yet surpass Old Ontario in wealth and population. In any case, more openings and better prospects for those not afraid of work and willing to begin at the bottom and work up, lie in that direction than in any other. So, 'Go North, Young Man'

May Go to Russia to Secure New Leader For Doukhobors in Canada

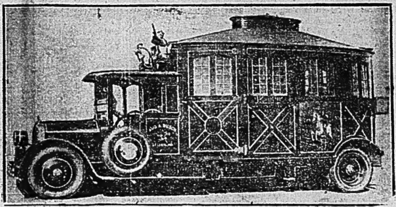
Grand Forks, B.C., Nov. 1.—Who will succeed Peter Veregin, head of the Doukhobors in Canada, or chief of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood?

This is the question being discussed by followers of the Russian leader who was killed on Wednesday in an explosion on the Kettle Valley train. Some of the young generation speak of a possible break-up of the community and are quite taken with the idea of greater freedom. Older members of the community, however, recognize the gravity of the situation, the need of some outstanding person to keep their people together.

Urged to suggest a possible person on whom the mantle of leadership might fall one of the principals of the community said:

"There is only one man. He is Mr Veregin's son, now living in Russia."

The speaker explained that the Doukhobors believe their leaders possess divine right and that when they die this right is vested in their eldest son. Some of the older people are already looking to the coming of the deceased leader's son as a natural sequence.



This illustration, reproductd from Popular Science Monthly, shows an artist's conception of the motor car of the future. People will ride in machines like this when our present day models will seem antiquated as wheelbarrows. Its design is based on the interesting forecasts of Leslie V. Spencer, M.E. It is a three-wheeled cross between the automobile and motorcycle, combining economy, comfort and ease of operation, with a light, smooth-running engine of many cylinders, requiring no gearshifts. Important improvements are indicated.

TO APPLY FOR INCORPORATION

Municipalities of District Lose no Time in Acting

Two important resolutions affecting the welfare of municipalities bordering on the Bay of Quinte and adjacent to the River Moira were adopted at a meeting held in the Council Chamber in this city yesterday afternoon. The resolutions were to effect the deeping of portions of the Bay of Quinte and Murray Canal, also improving the water powers of the River Moira.

Among those present were Messrs. Sexsmith, M.P.P. for Lennox and Addington, M. E. Maybee, M.P. for East Northumberland, J. F. Hill, M.P.P. for East Hastings, Mayor Mikel of Belleville, Mayor A. McGregor of Napanee, G. Graham, Reeve of Napanee, J. G. Campbell Reeve of Tyendinaga, E. W. Brown, Deputy Reeve of Thurlow, G. L. Sills, Reeve of Thurlow, S. B. Rollins, Reeve of Tweed, J. L. Newton, Reeve of Hungerford, Aldermen W. R. McCreary, H. W. Greenleaf, A. Robinson and Gardiner, and ex-Mayor Hanna.

Mayor Mikel was voted to the chair and stated the object of the meeting. It was proposed to form a company from municipalities, without shares for the improvement of the River Moira. The municipalities interested and the object of incorporation are as follows:

Municipalities Interested

The Corporation of the County of Hastings, the City of Belleville, the Village of Madoc, the Village of Tweed, Township of Madoc, the United Townships of Elzivir and Grimsthorpe the Township of Thurlow, Township of Hungerford the Township of Huntington, the United Townships of Marmora and Lake, and of the United Townships of Tudor and Cashel all in the County of Hastings in the Province of Ontario.

Object of Incorporation

The object for which incorporation is sought is to exercise the supervision over the River Moira and the various tributaries, streams, creeks, watersheds and waters flowing into the River Moira to clean and improve the appearance of the River Moira to increase and make more constant the flow of the water of the river and to improve the river for the general benefit of the municipalities through which it flows and to acquire lands, dam sites and other properties rights and privileges required for the carrying out of the objects of the company and to erect and construct all buildings and works necessary for the objects of the company.

Bay Improvements

The same corporations with the addition of Murray township, the town of Picton, North Marysburg, South Marysburg, Sophiasburg, Ameliasburg, town of Trenton, township of Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga and the town of Napanee and the township of Ernesttown are included in the company to be formed and to be called "The Bay of Quinte Improvement Company."

The objects for which incorporation is sought is to have the Bay of Quinte and the Murray Canal included in the scheme for the improvement of the waterways of the country by which ocean going vessels will be enabled to sail to the head of navigation in Canada so that the Bay of Quinte district may enjoy the benefits of this water traffic, and for that purpose to bring to the attention of the proper authorities, the deepening of the Bay of Quinte and the deepening and widening of the Murray Canal, to encourage improvement in the scenic attractions of the Bay of Quinte District, to improve the industrial conditions of the district, to encourage the development of the natural resources of the district and to advertise and develop the tourist business of the Bay of Quinte district, and to acquire real and personal property and do all other things necessary to accomplish the above mentioned object and the general improvement of the Bay of Quinte.

Letters of incorporation for the above companies will be applied for immediately.

Interests All

Every section of the country is developing its opportunities and the Bay of Quinte district should be more thoroughly developed, Mayor Mikel stated in his remarks upon the subject. We should do all in our power to make this section of the community more attractive to tourists. If the Government proceeds with the project of deepening the St. Lawrence river, and

MONTH FOR DE VALERA

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Belfast, Nov. 1.—Eamon De Valera, Republican Leader, was sentenced to one month's imprisonment in court of second division to-day. He declined to recognize the court which he called "a creature of a foreign power.", adding "it is all a farce."

De Valera was arrested at Londonderry Sunday night when he appeared to address a meeting in defiance of a warning ordering him not to re-enter Ulster territory.

He May Explain Store Robberies

Youth Wears Boots Alleged To Have Been Stolen

City police are confident to-day that seventeen-year-old Frank Stapley, arrested yesterday by P.C. William Evans, may be able to throw some light on minor burglaries at a local livery barn where a lap rug and scarf were stolen and at Ed Thomas' confectionery store, and Brown's shoe store.

Stapley, when arrested yesterday for bicycle theft, was wearing a pair of heavy boots, across the toe of one being a heavy seam where an incision made by an axe had been sewed up. The boots were stolen from Brown's Shoe store, officers believe, and they say that they will be able to identify the boot by the cut.

Stapley's arrest occurred when he traded the bicycle for a suit of clothes at a second hand store, registering in the required book under an alias. When the proprietor left the store for a minute, he is alleged to have taken a five dollar bill from her purse which lay on the counter, and was caught in the act. The woman called the police. The wheel stolen is valued at $45

Stapley is in the county jail here now on remand.

GRAPES POPULAR ON MARKET TO-DAY

Price Change Little; Eggs Go at 45 Cents a Dozen

Ideal weather today induced many to attend the market which was one of the best of the season. Large quantities of farm and garden products were offered for sale and the greater portion of it was disposed of. There were but slight changes to note in prices.

Fresh dairy butter sold at 43c and 45c per pound. Fresh eggs commanded a good figure, namely 45c a dozen. Cream sold at 30c a pint.

Dressed fowl, especially chickens were numerous, and sold from $1.25 to $1.75 a pair; ducks $1.50 and $1.75 each. A few turkeys were offered for sale, prices ranging from $3.50 to $4 each, or about 35c a pound.

Grapes was the principal fruit offered for sale and sold at 45c and 50c a basket. Apples ranged from 25c to 75c a peck, according to quality and pears 50c a peck.

Vegetables showed a change in price. Potatoes sold at 90c to $1.00 per bag. Onions 60c a peck, beets 40c peck, carrots 40c peck turnips 30c peck, cauliflowers 10c to 20c each and cabbage 5c to 10c each.

David Sharkey Sentenced To Not Less Than Three Months

David Sharkey, of Madoc, was found guilty on a charge of theft of $21 from his employer's wife's pocket, before County Judge G. E. Deroche in County Criminal Court Friday afternoon and was sentenced to serve not less than three months and not more than two years less one day at the Reformatory for Ontario.

County Attorney B. C. Donnan conducted the prosecution and E. J. Butler ably defended accused.

HARD TO PUNISH NEGRO AT PARIS

Paris, Nov. 1.—The color problem, always regarded as a peculiarly American institution, has suddenly loomed large in Paris, and the government has created a special department to supervise the African natives, blacks and Moroccans, who number 200,000 in the capital.

The great concern is not over the criminal element among the negroes and yellow tribesmen, but with the ignorant desert-raised natives, who have been attracted to Paris by tales of pleasures and who frequently run wild. They are without money and uneducated.

The police are baffled because the transplanted natives accept punishment as a matter of course and start over again, not realizing they have not a perfect right to fight with knives or to steal when hungry.

Much of the difficulty is said by those with experience in the colonies the police and others of the psychology to be due to lack of understanding of the African natives.

Four Blind Men Have Been Elected To House of Commons in Old Country

Four blind men contested seats in the British election. Three met defeat.

Captain Ian Fraser, chairman of St. Dunstan's has been elected as Conservative in North St. Pancras in succession to Mr. J. W. Lorden, the former member.

Mr. Fred Martin who is defeated as a Liberal for East Aberdeen is a journalist who was blinded in the war. He had been a member of parliament since 1922. His sense of direction and location in the house is wonderful.

Another blind candidate is Mr. G. F. Mowatt, who is the defeated Liberal in East Grinstead. He succeeded Sir Arthur Pearson as treasurer of the National Institute for the Blind. Mr. Mowatt is a justice of the peace, and recently organized Sussex season ticket holders to fight the Southern Railway for an efficient service.

The fourth blind candidate was Mr. D. B. Lawley, the Laborite defeated in Shrewsbury. He was at one time a miner in Blackburn. He was blinded by a dynamite explosion in British Columbia. He carries with him a typewriter of his own design which he uses for the preparation of his speeches. He is editor of The Horizon, an international magazine for blind people which he founded.

ODESSA YOUTH SHOT IN LUNG ON HALLOWE'EN

With Others He Was Masquerading in Streets of Village

CRITICALLY INJURED

Resident Alleged to Have Fired When They Approached

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Kingston, Nov. 1.—Fifteen-year-old Percy Clark of Odessa Ont., is in hospital this morning with a bullet wound in his lung and U. V. Snider, also of Odessa is under arrest charged with shooting, following a Hallowe'en prank last night. The boy is stated by doctors to be in a very critical condition.

Several boys, companions of Clark's in a Hallowe'en Masquerade, testify that when they approached Snider's residence last night, costumed and intent on usual pranks, Snider fired a shot with a revolver. The result was wounding of Clark who was brought to the Kingston hospital last night.

Snider was charged before Magistrate Ruttan of Napanee this morning with "shooting with intent to do bodily harm." He was remanded.

ENTERTAIN FRIENDS OF PICTON CHURCH

Members of Christ Church A.Y.P.A. last evening entertained members from the A.Y.P.A. of Picton Anglican church. The event took place in the Parish Hall, which was appropriately decorated with Hallowe'en mottoes. Many present were in costume adding amusement to the jolly crowd present. During the evening the Picton visitors were presented a varied and interesting program. Mr. Jack White, president of Christ Church A.Y.P.A. presided with marked ability. Miss Brown was awarded the prize for the best costume "An Old-Fashioned Lady", while Mr. James Alexander as "Ross Hamilton" secured the gents. prize. Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies of Christ Church, also candies and apples. It was in many respects one of the most pleasant evenings ever spent in the Hall, by the two hundred who were present.

Nineteen crippled children from Hazleton Pa., and vicinity were operated upon as a result of a clinic held by the Rotary Club.

FARMERS AND BOOKS

If farmers kept books carefully and ran their farms more as business institutions are run they would be much better off financially, thinks the Wall Street News. The conclusion is based on what one Iowa farmer has done, as reported to the United States department of agriculture.

This Iowa farmer has kept accounts for more than two years. At the end of the first year he found that crops which he fed to live stock brought him more money than when sold outright, and that his methods of handling his hogs were efficient. His figures showed him, however, that his cows were poor, averaging only $34 per cow for dairy products. Comparing his figures with those of other farms in the state he also found the number of acres cultivated per man on his farm, as well as the number of acres per horse, were below average. The farmer, acting on the information his account book gave him, rented more land and replanned his twelve small, irregular fields, making them into nine fields of proper proportion, so that the crop area per man was increased twenty-six acres and the area per horse increased increased thirteen acres. He sold his poor cattle and bought others with good dairy records. When he figured his account for the second year and compared the two years he found that the income from the farm, after paying all expenses and interest on the money invested, had been increased more than $350.

What this farmer did, we are told "should be done by the rank and file of our agriculturists. Systematic farming, which includes accurate keeping of accounts, will do more to bring about permanent agricultural prosperity than any other procedure."

THE CONSEQUENCES

There is a disposition on the part of the great mass of the people to assume that punishment seldom fits the crime and that people who have enough money can snap their fingers at the law. The sentencing of Peter Smith, former provincial treasurer of Ontario and Aemilius Jarvis, well-known financier, to serve prison terms and pay a joint fine of $600,00 should go far to destroy this idea.

As a matter of simple fact the great majority of rich men, like the great majority of men with smaller incomes, are honest, and are playing their part in the upholding of law and order, and in helping to better the condition of their fellows, and big business, like small businesses, must be on a sound economic basis and conform to the inexorable economic laws if they are to continue. If it were not so our whole system of civilization would disintegrate. And, despite the agitations of the Bolshevists, Communists, and other trouble makers, we believe that system is serving the community better than anything which is being offered, particularly by propagandists who are obviously more interested in tearing down what is, than trying to build something better.

Is the lesson then, not that all rich men and big corporations are dishonest, and that some of them are found out, but that, because of the consequences which have followed the mishandling of Ontario's funds and such unsound financing as revealed in connection with the Home Bank, public men and financiers generally, must be honest and financial institutions must be soundly conducted if they are to avoid a similar fate?—Financial Post.

MONKEYING WOTH THE TARIFF Means
MONKEYING WITH BUSINESS

Business men with large interests at stake should think a long time before casting a vote for a Liberal candidate these days. They know that business is not good; they also know that it is not gettting better. They know it has been getting worse since the King Government began to monkey with the tariff.

Liberal business men cannot endorse the Government's present tariff policy, for it is contrary to that followed by the sanest of the old Liberals. Men like Honorable W. S. Fielding and Sir Lomer Gouin, eminently sane, believed in tariff stability, rather than in tariff changes. Two years ago Mr. Fielding boldly proclaimed this doctrine in the face of the Progressives who were hounding him to wipe out the element of protection from the tariff. After Mr. Fielding made this declaration in the House of Commons he was boldly backed up by Sir Lomer Gouin.

With Sir Lomer Gouin out of the Cabinet and Mr. Fielding silenced through illness, the Government's policy has undergone a decided change. This is because it is dominated by the Progressives. The purpose of the change has been to win over the Progressives; to incorporate them within the Liberal party.

Just to show how far the Liberal party has departed from its old policy of reasonable protection, it will be recalled that during the Budget debate of last session Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior declared that the tariff sounded the "death knell of protection". Others in the Government's following said that it was but the first step in the direction of lower duties generally. These men are entitled to consideration. They know what they are talking about. Those who think they don't are greatly mistaken.

When staunch Liberals such as W. D. Euler, M.P. for North Waterloo, H. M. Marler, M.P., Montreal, and W. G. Raymond, M.P. for Brantford, speak and vote in the House of Commons against the Government's tariff policy, business men had better pause before giving such a policy their support. To do so would be to take a chance quite unwarranted by the facts of the situation. The man who takes a chance after he has been warned can have no complaint over the consequences.

If the Government's policy means anything, it means that there will be further reductions in the tariff. The Progressives say that such must be made, and they are the price that the Government must pay for their continued support. Let no one deceive himself, the Government has entered on a course from which it dare not turn back.

This is quite evident from Mackenzie King's speeches in the West, which have been made for the special purpose of winning over the Progressives. What is his chief plea? Merely this: "There is no essential difference between Liberal and Progressive policy. What do you want a Progressive party for? Don't you see that our platforms are so much alike that there is no need of you maintaining a separate existence?"

The only policy for the safe and sane business man to pursue is to follow a safe and sane party, especially in these uncertain times. This means the supporting of E. Guss Porter, the Liberal-Conservative candidate.

OUR HARDWOODS

In Canada in 1922 there were nearly three million broom and mop handles made. These are practically all made of maple, as this wood provides a handle of sufficient strength for even the most energetic sweeper. This is but one of the uses for which hardwood is adaptable.

Canada has large areas of hardwood forest, and even of mixed forest in which hardwoods predominate, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior. One of the problems of forestry is what use to make of the hardwoods. If the trees could be taken out and utilized at the same time as the coniferous timber is being cut it would materially lessen the difficulties of lumbering and reduce the expense of taking out the wood. The limited markets, however, restrict the development of the hardwood industry, with the consequence that much of the wood is wasted. Hardwoods as a whole are more defective than softwoods, and, in order to cover the cost of taking out the material, the closest utilization of every log, not of maple only, but of all the species, for the apricular product for which it is best suited, is necessary to secure satisfactory returns in the hardwood industry. The local manufacturing of small wares of hardwood is one not yet undertaken to any large extent in Canada, although in some European countries it is of considerable importance.

"Over what weight?" asked Pat.

"It's too heavy," replied the clerk. "You'll have to put another stamp on it."

"Yerra get out wid your foolin'," said the Irishman with a broad grin. "Sure, if I put another stamp on it, won't it be heavier still?"

PUT NON-VOTERS ON SLACKER LIST

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 1—Names of all legal voters of Aurora, Ill., who fail to go to the polls in November will be published. A. W. Shipton, president of the Kiwan's Club, has warned.

"Every man and woman who is entitled to vote but stays away from the polls on election day is a slacker," Shipton declared. "We are going to have the non-voters' names published, as the names of slackers were published during the World War."

Guard The Children From Autumn Colds

The Fall is the most severe season of the year for colds—one day is warm, the next cold and wet, and unless the mother is on her guard, the little ones are seized with cold thtat may hang on all winter. Baby's Own Tablets are mothers' best friend in preventing or banishing colds. They act as a gentle laxative, keeping the bowels and stomach free and sweet. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent colds, or if it does come on suddenly their prompt use will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OVER HEATED STOVE CAUSED BLAZE

Campbelford, Nov. 1—Fire caused by an overheated coal oil stove did considerable damage to a frame building owned by A. L. Riendeau, Front street Thursday evening. The brigade responded promptly and soon had the flames under control. Fireman J. M. smoke and had to be carried from the building. The lower floor was used as a piano show room and the upper occupied as living quarters by Alf. Cook. Loss is fully covered by insurance.

Break all the Lenses, destroy all the Mountings, and the pace of the world would slow up by seventy-five per cent.

The little lens in front of the eye is, for millions the Mridge, between misery and happiness, danger and safety, pain and pleasure, sorrow and joy.

There are thousands of people who should wear glasses, who do not, an equal army should change the lenses it has and does not, why not? Because they have not often or strongly enough been told the necessity for it, if they had, they would change more frequently, and have more than one pair.

ASSISTS AT SERVICE

Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson of this city went to Peterboro today and tomorrow will assist in Jubilee services at George Street Methodist Church in that city.

PICKS BERRIES

Mr. E. T. Austin manager of the water works department, whose home is 81 Cedar street, yesterday picked a few ripe raspberries from bushes growing in his garden. The berries were fully grown and delicious in flavor.

49TH ANNIVERSARY

The 49th anniversary of Holloway Street Methodist Church will be commemorated tomorrow with special services. Rev. W. R. Tanton of Napanee will occupy the pulpit at both services.

NO DOUBLE PARKING

Double parking and the parking of motor vehicles too close to hydrants is due for a checking up, as constables have taken many numbers recently and summonses will be issued to the owners.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

The W. M. S. of St. Andrews Church celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of the Canadian Missionary Society, on Wednesday evening in the lecture room of the church. There was a good attendance and the President Mrs. Dr. Moore gave a very interesting address, outlining the early history of Missionary Auxiliaries and their subsequent development, Mrs. W. J. Campbell told of the formation of the first auxiliary in St. Andrew's church and its growth up to the present day. Delightful solos were given by Mrs. Bumpstead and Mrs. Bell. A dainty lunch was served and a very sociable hour followed.

THE UNDERSIGNED will receive sealed tenders, marked on outside of envelope, "Tenders for Supplies," up to noon of Friday, the 10th of November, 1824, for butchers' meat creamery or dairy butter, flour, meal etc. etc., required for the School for the Deaf, Belleville, and the School for the Blind, Brantford, for the year from November 1st, 1924 to October 31st, 1925. All Supplies must be of first class quality or they will be rejected.

A marked cheque for 5 per cent. of the estimated amount of the contract payable to the order of the Minister of Education must be furnished by each tenderer as a guarantee of his bona fides. Two sufficient sureties will be required for the due fulfillment of each contract, and should any tender be withdrawn before the contract is awarded or should the tenderer fail to furnish security, the amount of the deposit will be forfeited.

Specifications and forms of tender may be had on application to the Bursers of the respective Schools.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Toronto Mother Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ontario.—"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a splendid medicine to take before and after confinement. A small book was put in my door one day advertising Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines, and as I did not feel at all well at the time I went and got a bottle of Vegetable Compound right away. I soon began to notice a difference in my general health. I was full of aches and pains at the time and thought I had every complaint going, but I can truthfully say your medicine certainly did me good. I can and will speak highly of it, and I know it will do other women good who are sick and ailing if they will only give it a fair trial. Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills are splendid for constipation. You are welcome to use my letter if you think it will help any one."—Mrs. HARRY WESTWOOD, 543 Quebec Street, Toronto, Ontario.

The expectant mother is wise if she considers carefully this statement of Mrs. Westwood. It is but one of a great many, all telling the same story—beneficial results.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for use during this period. The experience of other women who have found this medicine a blessing is proof of its great merit. Why not try it now yourself? C

Calomel is Greatest Medicine in the World

CLEANS AND TONES UP THE WHOLE SYSTEM

To wake up without that tired feeling, without headaches, backaches, coated tongue, nasty breath no more gas on stomach and feel your best day in and day out. What a glorious feeling to know that you can always keep yourself 100 per cent. efficient by taking one Tanol Calomel Tablet before meals or two at bed time to stimulate your liver, clean your kidneys and stomach and a cup of hot water first thing in the morning to wash all the previous days' wastes, poison and undigestible matter from the bowels, before more food is taken in. Tanol Calomel is harmless, no Salts or Seidlitz are necessary to remove it from the system. Get a few of these tablets from your druggist, and I am sure they will make you eat better and sleep better digest better, work better and feel much improved in every way. You can get a few of these tablets from McKeown's Drug Store.

Social Items

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Francis of Hamilton are spending a few days at Mr. Mac Spencer's, 123 West Moira street.

Quite a number from Belleville attended an enjoyable Hallowe'en dance in Picton Armouries last night, where Ben Hokea's good orchestra dispersed the music for dacing.

Major P. Menzies of Ottawa is in the city visiting Rev. D. C. Ramsay.

Rev. J. D. McCrae and Mrs. McCrae and family of Shantung, China are expected in the city to-day

Mr. I. F. Anderson, who is here from Detroit, is visiting his mother on Hillside street.

The Nurses' Hallowe'en party which was given at their home last night was a very successful social event. The rooms were tastefully and appropriately decorated in black and orange, and black cats, bats, witches and pumpkins decorated the room. Miss Mabel Mott supplied the music at the piano. Dainty refreshments were served and the nurses and their guests spent a very enjoyable evening.

Last night at the Nurses' Hallowe'en party, Miss Hamilton, assistant supervisor, was made the recipient of a lovely dinner waggon and a tray from the nurses and the staff. Miss Tait called on "the Minister of Mines and Forests or something, who had been sent down by Premier Ferguson to talk on the O. T. A." which proved to be Dr. Stobie, who started out on the liquor question causing much hilarity and then "changing from the ridiculous to the sublime" he spoke of Miss Hamilton's faithful work, of the trust which all reposed in her, and of her tact and great executive ability. Dr. Towers spoke also in high terms of Miss Hamilton's services to the hospital, and Miss Wallace made the presentation. Miss Tait was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses from the nurses. Then they sang with real feeling "For she's a jolly good fellow."

The Rebekah Quintena Lodge entertained well yesterday afternoon and evening in the Oddfellow's Temple. In the afternoon a successful tea and sale of home-made cooking was conducted and in the evening many attended an enjoyable dance. There were good crowds on hand throughout. The committee chairman was Mrs. E. Rowsome with Mrs. Jack Carter: tea convenor, Mrs. Arthur Cole with Mrs. Ashley, Mrs. Arthur Young, Mrs. Charlie Frost, Mrs. William Young, Miss S. Johnston, Mrs. Fred Vandervoort and Mrs. H. Naylor; home-cooking, Mrs. George Cornish, Mrs. Ormand, Mrs. E. Sprague, Mrs. H. Ransom, Mrs. E. Rutherford, Mrs. P. Ranson, Mrs. R. H Ketcheson; program committee, Mrs. George Naylor. Tea was poured by Mrs. E. Aselstine and Mrs. G. Sharpe The music for dancing was acceptably offered by Messrs Aselstine and Sprague

Thibet Falling To Army's Lot

Forbidden Country Calls Salvationists, General Booth Says

HE NEEDS REPORTERS

And Scribes Are Given Gen the Hint During Interview

Montreal, Nov. 1—Thibet, the forbidden, has just sent the Salvation Army an urgent invitation to establish itself there, said General W. Branwell Booth, the venerable head of the Army, in the course of an interview at the Windsor Hotel before he left for New York. Accompanying him were Commissioner Henry Mapp international secretary for Canada, Adjutant W. ooth, and the General's private secretary.

Thibet is not the only country of the East which is welcoming the Salvationists, the General said. "The Army of Blood and Fire" has been hard hit the past ten years owing to the death of its founder a short time before and to post-war conditions. Yet it has been more prosperous and has made greater progress than ever before. The Army has entered seven or eight additional countries and has been obliged to relinquish its work in only one, Russia. It will be in Russia again as soon as conditions permit. And it is not only new ground that has been won; the old has been consolidated, the speaker declared.

Everywhere, apparently, the Army is making its presence felt, in India, Korea, Japan, Burma, Ceylon, China Africa and other parts of the globe. Persia is another country which has heard of the Army and desires its ministrations, the General said.

As he went on to talk of his plans for extension of the work in Central Africa and the Gold Coast, for the evangelization of absolute barbarians somewhere in the African jungle, for the buildings of three new genral hospitals in India and one in China, for further succoring of the lepers in Java and the building of another institute for the blind of that country, the romance of the great enterprise upon which the Army is embarked came home.

Wants Medical Help

"Yes, the progress made has been wonderful, but I want more helpers of every kind," General Booth declared "Just now I am in particular need of nurses and doctors. It is difficult to get doctors. Our salaries are good, but (smiling) a considerable portion are deferrd. Then the work lies among the very lowest and poorest of the people."

"I want newspaper people badly, reporters and editors. I have one hundred papers. "Then with an amused twinkle in his eye the General looked at the three reporters who were his temporary inquisitors and added. "And editors are not easy to manage when you have found them." Which struck a responsive chord.

No Internal Trouble

"Strange things are evolved in newspaper offices," remarked the General when he was asked whether or not certain recent press despatches regarding the future administration of the Army were true. "There is absolutely nothing in the stories about internal difficulties in the Salvation Army. Yes, it is quite possible we will have our international headquarters on this side. Headquarters would be put where the needs of our international work would best be met.

"This present visit has been the happiest I have made here," General Booth said. "More Salvationists have greeted me than ever before and the general public has manifested its sympathy to a greater extent than on any previous occasion. Then I see greater results in the work. I am very much pleased with the progress being made in Canada."

He had just completed a journey of 600,000 miles, the speaker added. And last year had marked the completion of 50 years' service with the Army, which he had entered as a youth of 18.

"We are going ahead and God will prosper us," the General declared in conclusion. "For the world needs us; it needs love and help."

General Booth also referred briefly to the Army's immigration activities in Canada. He spoke particularly of the immigration of young boys. Half a million boys were leaving school in England and Scotland each year, and at the outside approximately only one-fifth could hope to obtain employment there.

The Army desired to bring considerable numbers of them to Canada to be trained as agricultural workers. Six hundred, aged from 18 to 22, had been brought out recently and were proving satisfactory. The Army hoped to establish a training farm in Nova Scotia as well as in Ontario and the West. Asked about the girls, the General smiled and said, "They will follow the boys."

Easily Fatigued And Despondent

General debility is a term used to describe a weak and run down condition of the system. Debility may come from a number of causes. The after effects of acute illness, lack of nourishment due to poor digestion, overwork or worry, or anything that makes the blood thin, thereby preventing it from carrying nourishment and health to the tissues of the body. The symptoms of debility vary, but weakness is always present, often a tendency to be easily fatigued, spots passing before the eyes, weak back, dizziness, wakefulness caused by inability to stop thinking, and unrefreshing sleep.

Mr. Lorenza L. Gamache, Rockland, Ont., was a severe sufferer fom this trouble and tells how he found release. He says:—"Two years ago I was in that condition which medical men call general debility. I made periodical visits to Montreal for fourteen months to undergo electric treatment. At the end of this time I was feeling well and thought with proper care I would continue in good health. But in the course of a month or so the symptoms came back more acute than ever. I lost appetite and could hardly sleep during the night, and what sleep I had was disturbed with nightmares. I had headaches and the least effect was telling on my nerves. I always felt pains somewhere, and had to lose much time. After suffering for three months, trying various things without good results, I was terribly depressed and disheartened. One day I met a friend who noted how pale and thin I was and he so strongly recommeneded Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, that I determined to give them a fair trial. I got six boxes and began the treatment at once. After I had taken four boxes I began to notice an improvement in my health. I could sleep better, and I scarcely had a headache. Since that time my health has been steadily improving and now I feel just as well as ever. I have gained twenty pounds since I began the treatment. Now I would not be without Dr Williams' Pink Pills in the home, and strongly recommend them to all who suffer from a depressed system and the aches that follow."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cts. a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Loot Home Of Col. John Lash

Thieves Must Have Used Truck For Toronto Job

Toronto, Nov. 1—Household goods, trophies, medals, clothing, fire arms, money and a quantity of liquor, with a total vale in the neighborhood of $5,000 have been stolen from the home of Col. John F. Lash, corner of Prince Arthur Avenue and Bedford road, it became known in police circles yesterday afternoon.

he ransacking of the home is one of the worst cases of house robbery in the recent outbreak. It is said to have occurred during the absence of the family at their summer home at West Hill. Returning home found the house in a state of disorder and large quantities of various goods stolen. The thieves had broken their way into the house through a window, and must have used a truck to cart the stuff away.

The list includes valuable trophies, silverware, coins, clothing, firearms, linen, ornaments, sums of Canadian and English money, and a number of bottles of spirits.

The robbery of the Lash home is one of a series of probably fifteen robberies that have occurred in one of Toronto's finest residential districts, between Spadina road on the west, Bloor on the south, and Avenue road on the east and St. Clair avenue on the north.

PICTURE PUZZLE GAME

Elsewhere in today's issue will be found a large advertisement announcing a Picture Puzzle Game arranged by the Mail and Empire which will no doubt prove very interesting to our readers and especially for little folk. The Contest consists of ascertaining how many objects start with the letter "B" and cash prizes are awarded to those finding the largest number. Our readers have already won liberal prizes as a result of competing in similar Contests and there is no reason why some of the awards should not come to residents of this vicinity. Anyhow, there is nothing like trying.

Toronto, Nov. 1—The price of "a bit of fun" for four —$20 and costs each—$101.75, was contributed to the treasurer of the court by Dan McMullen, James Barthorpe, Earl Jones and Joe Jones.

The men wired up a gate and piled boxes in the road to await the return of a man and girl, then threw apples at them.

"We'll teach you to inject a little common sense into your fun," explained the magistrate.

When Winter Comes

with Howling Blizzards, Zero Weather and Drifting Snow

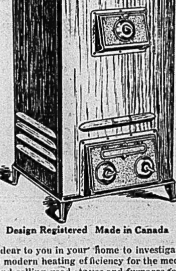
WILL YOUR HOUSE BE WARM AND COMFORTABLE?

THE SOUVENIR SUPERHEATER

Will give you all the joys of tropical warmth no matter how low the mercury goes out of doors. It will keep your rooms at an even healthy temperature all winter and make your house a comfortable place to live.

THE SOUVENIR SUPERHEATER is a Furnace—one of the long and successful Souvenir line. It is scientifically designed on the principles of the pipeless furnace and if placed in a living room will heat four to six connecting rooms better than the ordinary stove heats one.

The Superheater heats your house with the absolute minimum of inconvenience and dust. It is so designed that it will give more heat than the average small furnace on far less fuel. IT WILL BURN EITHER HARD COAL, SOFT COAL OR WOOD, WITH PERFECT RESULTS.



Design Registered Made in Canada

THE SOUVENIR SUPERHEATER is, as you see from the cut, a most attractive addition to the living-room. It is finished in enamel of mahog any colour, hard and smooth as glass, that can be rubbed and dusted with a cloth. This beautiful finish is practically everlasting.

SPECIFICATIONS

Made in one size only.

Height over all, 48".

Size of body, 23" square.

Inside diam. of firepot, 11¾"

Depth of firepot, 15".

Size of feed-door opening, 6½" x 8½".

You owe it to yourself and to those dear to you in your home to investigate this new furnace. Remember, the Souvenir Superheater is the last word in modern heating efficiency for the medium-sized house. It is placed on the market by a firm which has been building and selling good stoves and furnaces for more than seventy-five years.

Scott Joins Up With New Club

Reported Butch Kelterbourne Will Play With Canadiens

Montreal, Nov. 1.—Danton Scott, former youthful pro-hockey player of the Toronto St. Patricks, has been signed for the new Montreal club to play in the National Hockey League this winter. Scott's signed contract arrived in Montreal yesterday.

The latest addition to the new club, which Cecil Hart is rapidly rounding out, was a promising young junior player in Toronto back in 1922. He, along with Deniord, at that time another smart junior star, was signed by the St. Pats toward the end of the 1922-23 season. Scott was given little chance to show his ability with the St. Pats, and his enforced presence on the bench led to the youthful player leaving the club. By the time he was free last season the schedule had gone a considerable way, and there was little chance of fitting himself into the pro hockey scheme. However, this season he will get his big opportunity.

Scott is highly regarded by Club owners around the circuit, and it is well-known that others were after his services. A youth of 21 years of age, he has sturdy ability, being a fast skater and always a keen hockeyist.

National Hockey League magnates are beginning to gather for the annual meeting of the organization, to be held to-morrow, Charles F. Adams, of the newly-admitted Boston Club, being the first of the out-of-town representatives to reach here for the gathering. To-morrow morning the directors of the old four-club N.H.L. wil hold a preliminary meeting, and this will be followed in the afternoon by the conference of the augmented League.

While the statement could not be confirmed here last night, reports from Stratford are to the effect that the Canadiens would get Kelterbourns, star forward of the Stratford Indians, and one time teammate of Howie Morenz, now the brilliant centre of the world's pro hockey champions Kelterbourn has been a much-sought player by the pro clubs this year, and last week was rumored to have been signed by Cecil Hart for the new Montreal club.

VALUE OF FOOTBALL

(Kingston Whig)

It is the fact that the good player must be in good physical condition which has given football the value it has as a game. So long as it clings to the ideal of the physical and mental development of the participants, football is a game deserving of support.

HONOR SOLOMON AT PETERBORO

Peterboro, Nov. 1—A very enjoyable social evening was held at the home of Mr. Eddie Wright, Monaghan Road, Thursday night in honor of Mr. J. J. Solomon, who is leaving shortly for Philadelphia.

A number of Mr. Solomon's baseball friends were the guests of Mr and Mrs. Wright. The early part of the evening was very enjoyably spent in cards, after which a dainty repast was served.

Following this event Mr. Solomon was presented with a fine pipe by Ald. Nagle Phelan, who read the address.

MEUSEL AND GROH TO LEAVE GIANTS

New York, Nov. 1—Irish Meusel and Heinie Groh, veterans of many a hard campaign in the National League, will not be with the Giants next season. It may be said on the best of authority that the pair will be traded at the National League meeting here in December. Just now the outlook is that they will be involved in a deal in which the Giants, Braves and either the Dodgers or Cubs will figure. Brooklyn wants Groh and the Cubs would like to get both Heinie and Irish.

Meusel and Groh are with John McGraw, now on the tour of Europe, and bably both have been informed that they are to be sent amid new scenes They are still very valuable players but they seem to have run their race with the Giants. Without question it would be for the best interests of both men to get a transfer.

Irish still packs a strong punch, but he seems to have got into a rut with the Giants. Last season he fell off in his hitting and had to give way to George Kelly, who was moved in from first base.

Groh still is a strong hitter and a capable infielder, but he is a gamble on account of his bad leg. There is no telling when Heinie will be in and when he will be out. His passing was forecasted by the remarkable showing which Freddy Lindstrom made at third base in the world's series.

A NATIONAL ASSET

As the greatest transportation company in the world, the Canadian Pacific Railway has maintained a national service in the Trans-Canada Limited which is second to none and on the conclusion of the summer schedule of this crack train has transferred the equipment to the Vancouver Express which leaves Toronto every night at 10.10 p.m. on its trip across the continent, via Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, the spiral tunnel, Sicamous and parts of the Canadian Pacific Rockies famous throughout the world, on its way to Vancouver, where the travellers are unanimous in their praise of the service of the Vancouver Hotel. The Canadian Pacific also operates a steamship service to Victoria, the Mecca for winter tourists.

Not only does the Vancouver Express carry tourist and standard sleepers, but it also carries a compartment-observation car complete in itself, while a parlor car is added from Revelstoke to Vancouver.

Added to this national service is a feature service from Toronto to Montreal via the Lake Shore Line, which has been entirely reballastd with crushed rock and relaid with 100 pound rails, insuring a maximum of comfort for travellers at night as well as an absence of dust in daytime. Trains leave Toronto Union Station at 9.00 a.m. daily, 10.00 p.m. daily except Saturday and 11.00 p.m. daily. Arriving at Windsor Station, the traveller has the benefit of immediate facilities in the women's rest room, lunch room and barber shop, which cannot be duplicated in any other station in Montreal. An added convenience is offered those who wish to travel to Montreal from North Toronto in the 9.45 p.m. train, daily except Saturdays from Yonge Street Station.

Canadian Pacific agents will gladly make your reservations and supply you with any information you require They are fully qualified to offer a "second to none" service to the public.

The Guilty One a Mystery Picture

Agnes Ayres Featured in Production Coming to Belle Monday

According to Joseph Henabery, who made the Paramount picture, "The Guilty One," from the play of the same name by Michael Morton and Peter Traill, in the fiction field at the present time mystery novels and short stories are enjoying a tremendous vogue and on the speaking stage such vehicles as "The Bat" "The Cat and the Canary," "Zeno," etc., established records.

"Now this preference is finding its reflection in the silent drama, says Henabery. "The Guilty One" I feel will be a forerunner of many more mystery dramas to come. As a stage play it was warmly received, and the treatment which has been accorded it in transference to the screen has doubled its entertainment values.

"And," he continues, "the field is almost virginal. As long as gruesome episodes are avoided and the mystery element is pervaded by lightening humor I am sure the public will clamor for more and more."

Agnes Ayres is featured in the principal role of "The Guilty One," which opens a run of three days next Monday at the Belle Theatre. Edward Burns is her leading man. Clarence Burton, Cyril Ring, Crauford Kent George Seigman and other prominent players appear in the supporting cast.

Picture Repeats John Lee's Story

Man They Could Not Hang At Griffin's On Monday

Never before has any picture created the vogue attained by the life story of John Lee, known the world over as "The Man They Could Not Hang," which comes to the Griffin for three days commencing next Monday.

Twice had the Toronto run to be extended, while Montreal also needed double time to take care of the crowds The Toronto company comes here intact and includes the famous English soprano, Miss Doreen Thompson, in solos, and as Mrs. Lee in the specially carried musical atmospheric prologue W. Leonard Howe, formerly with Douglas Fairbanks and Viola Dana who will graphically describe Lee's marvelous escape and George Villiers, who portrays Lee himself.

Of the picture, The Toronto Mail and Empire said: "It tells an unique story, combining drama and romantic interest, which is greatly enhanced by the setting it is given," while S. Morgan Powell, in the Montreal Star, writes: "The tale is told naturally, the photography is attractive, there is nothing which strikes a jaring note." At this moment two companies are giving this entertainment in Canada, five in Australasia, seven in England and two in Africa.

Election winds do blow,

And what will poor Charlie do?
Then, poor thing?
He will sit in his store
And with many a roar,
Will hide his head under the till, poor thing.

A youngster one day avoided punishment by creeping under a table where his mother could not reach him. Shortly afterwards his father came in, and when told of the state of affairs crawled on his hands and knees in search of his son and heir, when to his astonishment he was greeted with this enquiry.

"Hullo, father! Is she after you too?"

THE KEY TO HAPPINESS

The master key to the happiness of mankind forms the subject of an interesting article by Professor Alfred E. Zimmern in the "Century Magazine," in which he urges that we must not flee the world but live boldly and freely in it, using our environment rather than allowing it to use us.

"A few years ago two well-known personalities arrived in London from opposite ends of the earth," he says. "The one, Rabindranath Tagore, poet, philosopher, and educator, was the greatest living exponent of the quality and tradition of his own Bengali people and of the India of which they are beginning to form a conscious part. The other, Mary Pickford, needs no introduction. Walking quietly along the Strand shortly after his arrival, the Hindu found his way blocked by a large and tumultuous crowd. It had come to pay homage to the movie star in front of her hotel, while true greatness was being jostled in the gutter.

"There could scarcely be a more striking contrast than that between Mary Pickford in her balcony and the Indian philosopher below. The screen actress represents the uniformities of modern large-scale life in their most insidious and disintegrating form. She is a Martha posturing in the guise of Mary, a cog in the vast mechanism of a business that is usurping and prostituting the name of art. . . .

"How many a potential poet and artist, philosopher, historian, and essayist, endowed with the ability to leave behind him first-rate and enduring work, has been tempted away by the sons of Martha into that modern city labyrinth where high purposes are diluted into trivial achievements, where the daily output of chatter with pen and pencil takes the place of the considered utterance to which men might have listened in after years! . . .

"We are beginning to realize that politics and government are only one side, if an important side, of the work of civilization; that they involve certain qualities and a certain training which are unevenly distributed throughout the world, unevenly distributed even through the civilized countries. . . . What remains—and it is the better half—is of the realm of Mary."

A Woman's Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"Yes," she murmured, falling back and half-closing her eyes. "He is worth winning. There is only one thing I fear." She paused, with a faint sigh. "I am afraid that I shall love him too well!"

Lord Cecil stood with his back to the fire for twenty minutes after Lady Grace had left him. To say that he was amazed would be only inadequately to describe the state of his feelings. At last, as if he were making an effort to cast off the bewilderment which had fallen upon him, he wished the old lady good-night, and went, not to his room, but out on to the terrace, for he felt a kind of craving for the open air, in which he might rid himself of the effects produced by his insight into his uncle's character and the extraordinary candor of Lady Grace.

He drew a long breath as he leaned over the balustrade, and his brain cleared somewhat.

"If Lady Grace is reading my thoughts at this present moment," he murmured, "she'll know I'm thinking of that train still. Yes, I'll be off the first thing to-morrow morning!"

And with this firm resolution he turned to go back to the house. As he did so, something white fluttered past him, blown by the faint night breeze.

He stooped and picked it up, and absently glanced at it by the light from the window. It was a small handbill, having on it in red letters:

Theatre Royal, Barton.
"Romeo and Juliet."

"Romeo and Juliet!" It was that she had been reading by the brook. Instantly her lovely face rose before him and dispelled all memory of the events of the night. He stood, looking down at the paper dreamily, wistfully, —feeling, not it, but the dark hair and blue eyes of the girl who had bent over him, whose hands his lips had touched.

"No!" he said, with a sharp sigh; "no, I can't go, for she is somewhere here, and I must find her!"

CHAPTER V.

AN IDEAL JULIET

The hour was approaching. Doris, still in her hat and jacket, sat in the tiny apartment behind the stage which served as her dressing-room. She was paler than usual, and her eyes looked of a deeper and darker blue than usual; but she was calm, with a calm which Jeffrey could not attain to.

With his hands folded behind him, his head bent upon his breast—his favorite attitude—he paced up and down the narrow limits of the room, like a tiger in its cage, waiting for his supper.

"Will the house be full, Jeffrey?" asked Doris, presently.

"Yes," he replied. "The pit and gallery are full now; they were waiting at the doors as early as six o'clock. They are not fools, the Barton people. In some places you would be sure of playing "Romeo and Juliet" to empty benches, but not here. It is a flourishing place, and they are intelligent and educated. They have a theatre they may be proud of, and they are proud of it. In some towns the theatre is a neglected barn, and when that is so you may take it that the people are uncultivated and barbaric. Yes—you will have a fair and patient hearing; I knew that when I chose Barton for the scene of your great trial. In London there are so many new Juliets that the critics and the audience have got incredulous and suspicious—they have seen so many failures that they go prepared for disappointment; here it will be different. They love Shakespeare, they know you, they will hope for the best, and you will not disappoint them," and his eyes glittered down upon her.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

"Curious"—No, rose water is not as widely used for flavoring food as it was at one time, but the Chinese still have rose-fritters, while the Hindus delight in rose-candy. It is not a popular flavor in this country, certainly not in my own household.

Flower Lover—A group of plants on the deep sill of a window certainly lends beauty to a room, but as you say the pots are not things of beauty. Why not give them all a coat of paint? You can use a stencilled border for decoration if you wish or glue on a cretonne motif and varnish over it all. The former is simpler and very effective.

"Tree Lover"—As yours is the second request for the poem this week I am printing it, although it was published on this Page before. It is by Joyce Kilmer and is as follows:

"I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.

A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed
Against the earth's sweet flowing breath;

A tree that looks at God all day
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that may in summer wear,
A nest of robins in her hair;

Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.

Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

A beautiful thing, is it not?

"Polly"—Yes, there is an old legend that tells of the naming of the flowers by Adam. Going up and down he named them all—the rose, the lily, the violet, the jasmine, the heliotrope and all the other blossoms. As it chanced however, he overlooked one little flower, it was so small and shy. When he had finished he went around again, and as he called the names up rose the flowers, and bowed in acknowledgement of their names. He thought he had completed his work when he heard a faint voice at his feet ask, "What name am I to have, Adam?"

Adam was surprised and looking down he saw a beautiful little blue flower. He was charmed with the lovely little thing and was sorry that he had overlooked it. So to make amends he said, "I forgot you, but I shall now give you a name that will make me remember you forever, for you shall be called, "Forget-me-not."

The little flower was content and well-pleased, and ever since has been known as the forget-me-not.

If your eyes are normal

You are to be congratulated, because not many eyes are. The trouble is there is no way to learn whether you have normal sight or not except by undergoing an examination. Too many people guess about their eyes, or take too much for granted. Learn the truth whatever it is, then act accordingly. A short time spent here would decide the matter for you.

PLANT BULBS NOW

Have you forgotten how you envied your neighbor's bed of tulips last spring And how you vowed you would have some on your lawn next spring?

If you really meant what you said, now is the time to get busy, for spring flowering bulbs must be planted in the fall—any time now, until the ground freezes.

October is an ideal time for planting, for planting at that time allows the bulbs to become established and make some good root growth before sleep.

First thing to consider is drainage. The bed must be a well drained place Fertilizer is another requisite. Put on a good application of bone meal—an inch deep is none too heavy— and spade into the soil. Mix it well with the soil.

Tulips, hyacinths and narcissus should be planted about four inches deep, and from five to seven inches apart. Anemones should be one inch deep and from four to six inches apart

Be sure that bulbs of the same kind are all set at the same depth, so that there will be a uniform development in the spring, thus making sure that they will all flower at the same time It is advisable to mulch the beds with straw, leaves or straw-manure after the ground freezes. This keeps the frost in the ground and prevents the alternate freezing and thawing which causes the soil to heave, thus injuring the roots. This mulch should be removed early in the spring before the bulbs start into growth.

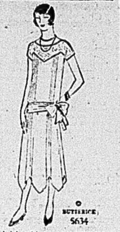
The Darwin tulips are the finest of all tulips. The Cottage, Breeder and Parrot types should be planted more widely.

Dutch hyacinths are the ones to plant out of doors. Roman hyacinths are seldom used except under glass Singles are generally more satisfactory than doubles.

Among the Narcissi there are several types which may be used. The Daffodils with large, medium, and short trumpets, come in the yellows, whites and colors; the singles are better than the doubles, the Jonquils, the Poetaz, and the Poeticus types. The Polyanthus type, which includes the Paper White and the Shineses Sacred Lily is not hardy, and so should not be used out of doors—E.A.K.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



Dull brick-red crepe de Chine with a pointed yoke and tiny sleeves of beige lace makes a useful member of the young girl's wardrobe.

For any afternoon at matinees, bridge parties or teas and for many evenings when the party is small and early a little frock of crepe de Chine is indispensable. Clear, rather dark shades of red, such as cherry brandy, brick, rust and cranberry are charming with beige or ochre colored lace. The lighter shades of green, Lanvin and almond, madonna blue, amber, string color or scarlet can be used for both afternoon and informal evening frocks. Clusters of plaits and the pointed hem are seen on many of the new French frocks and are suited to Georgette as well as crepe de Chine.

THE MAN IN THE MOON

We all feel very wise nowadays about the moon, and smile indulgently as we relate tales of its lonely old male inhabitant to the young. Our wisdom, based as it is upon all these maps and photographs and scientific theories is, however, of very recent origin, points out "John o' London's Weekly." The moon for generations was the greatest mystery of mankind,—greater even than the sun. When Galileo, in 1609, first turned his telescope upon the moon, he created throughout Europe a much greater sensation than did Columbus when he discovered America.

"Till then," continues the writer, "the scientific men had believed in Aristotle's theory, that the moon is a perfectly smooth and round body, its markings being the continents of the world reflected, as in a mirror. Every one else explained away the mysterious marks with myths. There is nothing more remarkable in history than the strange resemblances which exist between the explanations given by different races. Almost all of them interpreted the marks as being a man carrying a bundle of wood. Furthermore, they all seemed to regard him as one who, on account of a crime, was condemned to eternal isolation on the moon. He was indeed, a horrible example to young and old alike.

"In European countries the story generally had a so-called Biblical significance. In England, it was Moses who found a man gathering sticks on the Sabbath, and expelled him to the moon. The reference seems to be to a passage in the fifteenth chapter of Numbers, but the resemblance is only slight. In France, the man in the moon is none other than Judas Iscariot, and the wood a load which he must always carry as a punishment.

The earliest English record appears in writings of a St. Albans monk. It is a slight variation of the usual theme—

'A rustic in the moon;
Whose burden weighs him down,
This changeless truth reveals,
He profits not who steals.'

"The German version dealt with a peasant who was reprimanded by an angel for gathering faggots on a Sunday. He replied 'Sunday on earth, or Monday in heaven, it is all the same to me.' For this, he was sent to an eternal moonday in heaven."

JUST IN PASSING

To Any Dad

There are little eyes upon you, and they're watching night and day;
There are little ears that quickly take in every word you say;
There are little hands all eager to do everything you do,
And a little boy who's dreaming of the day he'll be like you.

The following letter I clipped from an English paper. It was written by a woman who signed her name and speaks volumes for itself.

Is it not time that railway companies, hotel-keepers, and public authorities generally, recognized that smoking is no longer a habit confined to one sex? To-day women smokers must equal men smokers in number and yet no public accommodation is ever provided for them. They are apparently still expected to smoke in secret as though ashamed of their indulgence. It is all very well to say that women are at liberty to enter the public smoking-rooms and compartments, but as a matter of common practice they are not. The smoking compartments of trains women have frequently to use, as in these days of crowded travelling there is often no choice, but even so they are usually received by a hostile glare and regarded as indelicate intruders. But the smoking-rooms in hotels and public buildings are usually looked on by men as reserved for their exclusive occupation where they can discuss topics and indulge in conversation not usually regarded as suitable for feminine ears, and no self-respecting woman cares to intrude upon their privacy. The old provision of a smoking-room for men and a drawing-room for women was a necessary distinction and still is but today if smoking in the drawing-room is still to be objected to, a third apartment is required—a smoking-room for women.

Famous Actor and the Cabman

The late Sir Herbert Tree once told a cabman, after supper, to drive him home.

"Where to?" asked the cabman.

"West," said Tree, wearily, "far away west."

The cabman took him along Piccadilly, through Knightsbridge, down the Brompton Road, and had finally got to the end of the Cromwell Road when he suddenly pulled up, and lifting the trap-door, called down, "Look 'ere, guv'nor, 'ow much further is it yer want me to go? Where do yer live?"

Sir Herbert had quite forgotten, but he was equal to the occasion. With an air of severity, he haughtily replied "Do you think I am going to tell a vulgar, disgusting cabman like you where my beautiful home is?"

NATURE LORE

FEATHERED FRIENDS OF WINTER

When I was a little boy, we used to learn some little jingles, some of them in school and some of them in other ways, but now that I have come to know about the great pleasure adults may derive from birds and the lasting happiness they may give their children just why a little advance though about attracting birds. I wonder and wonder at the fact that we children, when I was little were taught verses about birds but never assisted in looking further.

One of the little verses we learned was this:

"The cold winds do blow
And we shall have snow
And what will poor Robin do then poor thing;
To keep himself warm
He'll hop to the barn
And hide his head under his wing,
poor thing.

Now, in these better times, my own little children sing this and others like it, with a better understanding, for we provide food and shelter for our feathered friends.

Canada, indeed the whole country has what we call Winter birds. These birds may come down from farther north or they may be birds that remain in the same locality all year.

Some of these birds are very clever very amusing and seem to have a sense of humor. There is the Chicadee for instance. On clear days you possibly may hear bird calls that make you wonder if the Phoebe is not about but the Phoebe lives mainly on insects, so you take another look and here it is a cute little Chicadee. If you watch, you may see a tiny indication of his warm breath on the cold air as he calls. He will get so friendly over a few sunflower seeds that he will do acrobatic stunts to your heart's content and will make such coaxing movements with his little head and eyes that you will want to spend most of your time at the feeding station, for such is the name we give places where birds stop for lunch.

Now is the time to place a feeding station. It is best to pick a sheltered spot. Let us suppose that you have selected a corner of the veranda, or a window sill away from sweeping winds or better still, a corner in the garden somewhere sheltered by shrubs or evergreens. You should have a sort of table or flat surface with edges to it, on which to place the bird food and if a cover to keep snow off is provided and wind cannot blow the food off, so much the better.

One year I took two tops from a cheese crate and nailed sticks to them so that one made a floor and the other made a canopy about eight inches above it. This I put on a post and it served pretty well but I had to remove snow from the floor frequently. Two carpenters wooden horses with some slats across and hay or branches on top makes a good shelter and the food may then be put on the ground underneath, but snow must be kept away and the thing open on all sides, so no cats can get near.

Suet tied to a stick and put up so the suet is hanging under side will please the Nuthatches and Chicadees and the sparrows cannot get it. It is not a good thing to put suet behind wire netting because the wire is cold and sometimes a bird's tongue might get nipped. So it will be better to use string to tie the suet to the trees.

What a wealth of pleasure we have had just from watching the winter birds. We put one feeding station, the one I mentioned right outside our kitchen window, in an angle where we could see it from the dining-room, also and all winter long we had saucy fellows coming for food and at last we got them so tame that we could have one hand on the food shelf and birds on the other side of it and I do believe we would have had them on ourselves, for they would call and make a fuss if we were late in putting out the food they liked the best and could hardly wait till we would get away. They even came on the window, looking for us knowing we were inside so we put food there and had Chicadees and other feathered folk entertaining our children on days of bad weather.

There was one fussy Nuthatch that must have been brought up in the Waldorf. He would land on the shelf and proceed to throw overboard all the food he did not like and I could count on him to cull out all the fake sunflower seeds for he would pick these out and drop them over the side before he started to eat. We will continue about these next week under the title "Feeding Winter Birds."

Failing to appear for trial, Thomas Redfern was fined at Chicago, for fast driving. Two hours later his body was found in a pond. He had been dead two days.

Mrs. T. H. Brown is suing a Newark N.J., pastry company for $5,000, claming she lost several teeth as a result of biting a piece of pie which contained an iron bolt.

POEMS Old And NEW

JUST BE GLAD!

Sunbright, is the air, deep blue is the sky.,
Say, folks, just be glad you are living!
Oh, why should we ever waste time on a sigh;
Say, folks, just be glad you are living!
All nature is singing a glad cheery song;
Say, folks, just be glad you are living!
To sweeten your life as you hurry along:
Say folks, just be glad you are living!
The good Lord just seems to be working for you.
And trying His hardest your faith to renew;
Just smile up at Him, and He'll smile down on you—
Say folks just be glad you are living!
Just stop for a moment and breathe God's' pure air;
Sit down for a moment unburden your care;
For life is so sweet and the world is so fair—
Say, folks, just be glad you are living!

A GOSSIP

A gossip is a person,
Whose tonque is never still,
And just keeps running all the time,
Like water down a hill.

With eyes alert and watching,
To point out every flaw,
And if there's none they'll make one,
Then tell you what they saw.

With ears on guard and listening,
For every little word,
Then off they go like lightening,
To broadcast what they heard.

NAUGHTY MARY JANE

What is the matter with Mary Jane?
She's perfectly well, and she hasn't any pain,
But she wont eat her dinner—rice-pudding again!
WHAT is the matter with Mary Jane?

What is the matter with Mary Jane?
The doctor has been, and it isn't her brain.
And it isn't because shes been out in the rain—
WHAT is the matter with Mary Jane?

What is the matter with Mary Jane?
I've promised her dolls and a daisy-chain,
And a book about animals—all in vain.
WHAT is the matter with Mary Jane?

What is the matter with Mary Jane?
Don't think for a moment I'm one to complain;
But look at her; now she's beginning again!
WHA is the matter with Mary Jane?

What is the matter with Mary Jane?
I've promised her sweets and a ride in the train,
And I've begged her to stop for a bit and explain.
WHAT is the matter with Mary Jane?

She's perfectly well, and she hasn't a pain,
What is the matter with Mary Jane?
And it's lovely rice-pudding for dinner again—
THAT is the matter with Mary Jane!

1 can asparagus tips
¼ lb. mushrooms
4 tbspns. butter
4 tbspns. flour
1 tspn. salt
¼ tspn. pepper
¼ tspn. paprika
2 cups milk
Toast triangles.

Turn the asparagus tips into the top of a double boiler and heat. In a saucepan melt the butter, add the flour and seasonings and when bubbling pour in the milk gradually, stirring constantly; cook until smooth and thickened. Add the mushrooms, skinned and cut in thin slices or chopped. Cook slowly about 20 minutes or until mushrooms are done. Place the asparagus tips on the triangles of buttered toast and pour the sauce over all.

possibly it will, the Bay of Quinte should be linked up with it.

While in some parts of the bay there is a depth of 20 to 22 feet of water, the upper part of the bay is comparatively shallow. All municipalities in the district should be interested in this matter and municipalities along the river Moira should be interested in its development, he said. The formation of the Societies proposed, involves no financial obligation.

Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., suggested that he article of incorporation should be ent to various representatives of munipalities for signature.

Mayor Mikel—"That will be done by e Secretary."

Mr. J. L. Newton, Reeve of Hunger rd Township stated that there wer nany in that township, who were in erested in the matter of developin e waters of the river Moira. At Loo ake, a dam was being constructed b he Provincial Government which ha r its object the increasing of th ater powers of the river.

Shipping Facilities

In referring to shipping facilitie ayor Mikel stated that one industr a Belleville was shipping goods vi e Panama Canal to British Columbi nd goods were being shipped throug e same canal to Alberta. His Wor hip also referred to the large produc ion of cheese in this locality an tated that if the proposed improve ent were made to the St. Lawrenc iver and the Bay of Quinte chees ou'd be shipped direct from here t e Old Country. This would aid i e development of the community.

Ald. W. R. McCreary also referre the cheese industry and to the fac at it was all sent to Montreal fo hipment. Many would be helped di ectly if the shipment to the Ol ountry was made direct from here he deepening of the waterways an ower development were matters of vi al importance to this community an e municipalities should do all the ould to have there projects accom lished.

On motion of Ald. Greenleaf, it wa ecided to call another meeting of re resentatives when the articles of in orporation are assented to.

Vote of Thanks

Major A. McGregor of Napanee expressed his thanks also the thanks o epresentatives present, to Mayor Mik l and the City Council of Bellevill or the interest displayed in these ma ers, which was a step in the right di ection. He thought everything shoul e done to beautify and make attract ve municipalities for tourists. His Wo hip moved a vote of thanks to Mayo Mikel and the City Council of Belleille for their kind hospitality.

Mr. J. L. Newton, Reeve of Hunger ord seconded motion which was unnimously adopted.

Mayor Mikel replied in an appropri te manner and the meeting adjourn d.

Her face was wrinkled and her hai was gray—but now you would hardly knew her, I'll swear; for she's got s choolgirl complexion, bo., and she i porting brilliant henna hair.

Father Delorme Is A Free Man

Jury Acquitted Him at Montreal Court Yesterday Afternoon

WAS NOT AFFECTED

Coolest Man in the Room; Judge Gave Strong Charge

Montreal, Nov. 1.—Father Delorme a free man. He was at 5 o'clock esterday afternoon acquitted of the harge of murdering his half-brother, aoul Delorme, the jury returning the erdict as soon as the Court of King's ench was opened.

The coolest man in the packed court oom was Father Delorme. The jurymen sang out "not guilty" in unison, nd there was immediately the beginning of a demonstration. Handclasps ang out, and a big murmur went up rom the spectators, stifled at once, owever, by Lieut. Turner and his en.

Father Delorme did not betray the lightest emotion. He stood gripping he dock rail as the jurors were filing to their seats. His cheeks were flush d, as they were the day of his arrest early three years ago. Only when lban Germain, K.C., his lawyer, ade motion for the liberation of the risoner, did Delorme turn towards he jail guards and smile slightly.

Rosa and Florence Delorme, sisters f the priest, were the first to applaud. hey were sitting in the front row of he partition reserved for women spectators. Farther back, in the same part f the court, was Lily Delorme, the bbe's half-sister. None of them was ble to get near Father Delorme, and eft the court house together without peaking to their brother.

Father Delorme stepped down from he dock and was lost to view after he ad been seen talking with Governor Seguin, of Bordeaux jail. It took some onsiderable time to clear the court of awyers, law students, newspaper men nd spectators. Outside the courthouse t all the entrances were compact rowds, awaiting the priest. Most of hem were dispersed by police.

It was over half an hour later that Father Delorme came out, accompanied by Lucien Gendron, one of his awyers. He was wearing a black ight overcoat, a wide-brimmed black elt hat, an ordinary collar and a blue ilk tie. Under his left arm he carried small brown paper parcel.

The priest and the lawyer walked upstairs. Father Delorme shook hands with an enthusiastic well-wisher who ushed up to him; looked away and ontinued up the stairs. He had received strict instructions to say nothing o anybody—least of all the newspaper epresentatives—and he hurried along s if afraid of being accosted.

Going to the third floor, the lawyer nd the priest continued through the orridors leading to the court house nnex and came down, a little later, y elevator. He was escorted by Messrs. Alban Germain and Lucien Gendon and all three hurried up to a big limousine awaiting them on St. James street, just outside "Devil's Curve."

Address to Jury

Mr. Justice Tessier confined his charge to the jury to a short review of the salient facts of the case. The address was delivered in a low voice, his lordship rarely raising his voice to impress any particular point. Even when the question of religion, a question which has suddenly and with much veiled bitterness come to the fore during the last days of the trial, was brought up, the judge spoke quietly, though precising every word he uttered, thereby probably conveying more force than if he had spoken loudly.

"The accused is a priest," said Mr. Justice Tessier at the close of the address. "I do not know if I should even mention this; but so much has been said that I feel it is my duty to say something. Are we going to say now that there is no equality before our courts of law? Are we going to say that because a man is a priest that he must not be convicted? That would be socal revolution. No, it does not matter whether the accused is a lawyer or a workingman, judge or priest, —the law is alike unto all of them.

"You must not imagine for a moment," continued his lordship, "that my part in this work is agreeable to me. It is a heavy task that I am performing, but I am going through with it because it is my duty. I do my duty without fear or reproach, and now I leave the rest of it to you, and recommend you to regard it as your sacred duty to judge this man according to the evidence, and according to your sincere convictions.

"Do not let pity interfere. Pity can well go with justice. Do not let yourselves be influenced by the fact that the accused is a minister of the church. The defence, through Mr. Germain has declared: 'Above all, agree upon a verdict. I would like to see a conscientious verdict and to see you agreed; but if there are one or two of you who are honestly convinced that your opinions are right; you should not allow yourselves to agree with the rest for the sole purpose of reaching a unanimous agreement. I tell you, do your duty each separately; discuss the case together, by all means, but do not allow your convictions to be over-ridden by any majority opinion. You have not the right to abdicate or to renounce the opinion you have scrupulously formed. I would a hundred times rather have a disagreement, however unfortunate this might be, than a verdict which is not right, and which is obtained by the sacrifice of one or more honest convictions to conform with a majority opinion."

Itchy Eczema Is Healed By This Sulphur

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. HAMILTON MAN DRANK GASOLINE

Hamilton, Nov. 1—John Thompson, drink-crazed gardener, who almost brought the civic probe to a stop Tuesday afternoon when he appeared in the corridor of the city hall brandishing a wicked razor, with which he inflicted serious cuts on a constable's hands before he could be placed under arrest, was sentenced yesterday to 30 days in jail.

Thompson declares the O.T.A. is a "joke" as long as motor car stations exist.

"Gasoline, that's what I drank, and I guess there will always be lots of that," he confided to the court as he was led away.

A dead man was listed as a defendant in a case called in court at May's Landing, N.Y.

Fell From Scaffold

Wolfe Island, Nov 1— Mr. Morey Spear, Rochester, N.Y., a former Islander, met with an accident which might prove fatal. While painting on a scaffold he accidentally slipped and fell a considerable distance which resulted in a broken arm, two ribs and broken jaw. His many friends here were sorry to learn of his sad accident

M. Kennedy Honored

Kingston, Nov. 1—Mr. Michael Kennedy, who recently retired after fifty-two years continuous service on the staff of the Portsmouth Penitentiary, was honored by his associates with a presentation of a beautiful armchair and a pipe and tobacco pouch. Mr. Kennedy, is held in the highest regard by his former fellow employees, was called to the North Gate Thursday afternoon where Warden Ponsford and several of the officers of the institution had gathered.

Assizes Open

Port Hope Nov. 1—The autumn assizes will open in Cobourg on Monday before Hon. Mr. Justice Wright. There is an interesting docket, the most widely know case being the charge of murder brought against William John Crossen, caretaker of the Crossen fishing preserve at Baltimore, in connection with the death of Byron A. McCrodan of Toronto, which occurred last spring.

Young and Old Join in the Fun

The Mail and Empire announces to-day another puzzle game in which all can participate—from the tiniest child to grandfather and grandmother. No object is so small but that the poorest eyesight can see it. It is a test of skill. Your ability to find "B" words determines the prize you win. Right after supper this evening, gather all the members of your family together; give each of them a pencil and a sheet of paper—and see who can find the most "B" Words. You will be surprised to find how large a list of words you can get with a few minutes' study. Sit down NOW and try it—Then, send in your list and try for the big prizes.

THE PRIZES

Winning Answers will receive the fifty cash prizes according to the table below:

OBSERVE THESE RULES

1. Any man, woman or child who lives in Canada, and is not a resident of Toronto, and who is not in the employ of The Mail and Empire, or a member of an employe's family, may submit an answer.

2. All answers must be mailed by November 22nd, 1924, and addressed to C. A. Montgomery, Puzzle Manager, Mail and Empire.

3. All lists of names should be written on one side of the paper only, and numbered consecutively 1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address in the upper right hand corner. If you desire to write anything else, use a separate sheet.

4. Only such words as appear in the English Dictionary will be counted. Do not use obsolete words. Where the plural is used, the singular cannot be counted, and vice versa.

5. Words of the same spelling can be used only once, even though used to designate different objects or articles, or parts of objects or articles. An object or article can be named only once.

6. Do not use hyphenated or compound words, or any words formed by the combination of two or more complete words, where each word in itself is an object.

7. The answer having the largest and nearest correct list of names of visible objects and articles shown in the picture that begin with the letter "B" will be awarded First Prize, etc. Neatness, style or handwriting have no bearing upon deciding the winners.

8. Any number of people may co-operate in answering the Puzzle, but only one prize will be awarded to any one household; nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of any group where two or more have been working together.

9. In the event of a tie for any prize offered, the full amount of such prize will be awarded to each tied participant.

10. Subscriptions (both new and renewal), payable in advance of $5.00 per year by mail or $6.00 per year delivered by carrier boy in Hamilton, will be accepted. However, in qualifying for the $1,000 Bonus Rewards, at least one new subscription must be sent in.

11. A new subscriber is anyone who has not been receiving The Mail and Empire since October 25th.

12. All answers will receive the same consideration regardless of whether or not a subscription to The Mail and Empire is sent in.

13. All new subscriptions will be carefully verified by the Puzzle Manager. Candidates marking old subscriptions as new will positively forfeit the credit of such subscriptions as qualifying for the Maximum Bonus Rewards.

14. Three prominent Toronto citizens having no connection with The Mail and Empire will be selected to act as judges, to decide the winners, and participants agree to accept the decision of the judges as final and conclusive.

15. The judges will meet on December 3rd, and announcement of the Prize Winners and correct list of words will be published in The Mail and Empire as quickly thereafter as it is possible.

EXTRA LARGE PICTURE PUZZLE SENT FREE ON REQUEST.

You Can Win $1,000

THERE ARE THREE $1,000 PRIZES

The "B" Word Picture Puzzle Game is a campaign to increase the popularity of The Mail and Empire. It costs nothing to take part and you do not have to send in a single subscription to win a prize. If your list of "B" Words is awarded FIRST, SECOND OR THIRD PRIZE by the judges you will win $35; but if you would like to get more than $35 we make the following special offer whereby you can win bigger cash prizes by sending in ONE OR TWO subscriptions to The Mail and Empire.

HERE'S HOW: If your answer to the "B" Word Picture Puzzle wins FIRST, SECOND OR THIRD PRIZE and you have sent in one yearly subscription to The Mail and Empire at $5.00 by mail or $6.00 delivered by carrier boy in Hamilton, you will receive $500, instead of $35; fourth prize, $250; fifth prize, $150, and so forth. (See second column of figures in prize list.)

Or if your answer wins FIRST, SECOND OR THIRD PRIZE and you have sent in two yearly subscriptions to The Mail and Empire (one new and one renewal, or two new subscriptions), you will receive $1,000 in place of $35; fourth prize, $500; fifth prize, $300, and so forth. (See third column of figures in prize list.)

How is that for a liberal offer? But LOOK, there are three $1,000 prizes. Therefore, if you stand FIRST, SECOND OR THIRD, and have sent in two yearly subscriptions at $5.00 a year each by mail or $6.00 delivered by carrier boy in Hamilton (one new and one renewal, or two new), you will win $1,000. It takes but two yearly subscriptions at $5.00 a year each (one new and one renewal, or two new) to qualify for the big $1,000 rewards. Absolutely, that is the maximum. You can do this with little effort. Your own subscription can count. We can also take subscriptions to start on any future date. Just mark on your order when you want the paper to start and we will not commence delivery until you say.

Subscription Rates--Payable in advance. THE MAIL and EMPIRE anywhere in Canada by mail $5.00 Per Year. Delivered by carrier boy in Hamilton, $6 per year.

Rural Route Subscribers

This offer applies to Rural Route patrons, as well as subscribers living in cities and towns. If you are already receiving The Mail and Empire, your subscription will be extended from its present expiration. Send a yearly subscription at $5.00 and qualify for the big prizes.

ONE HUNDRED WOMEN RALLIED TO CONSERVATIVE CALL FOR HONOR IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Belleville Ladies Pay Pleasing Tribute to Porter's Stand

MRS. FALLIS HERE

Gives Inspiring Address to Those Who Would Work

Knowing that fifty-one per cent of the vote in the province is made up of the woman vote, and judging by the enthusiastic meeting held on Saturday night by the Ladies Ward Committees organized during last week in the interest of E. G. Porter, K.C., the Liberal-Conservative candidate in the West Hastings bye-election; everything points to success for Mr. Porter in the city and riding.

More than one hundred of the most prominent ladies of this city were present at Oddfellow's Hall, when Mrs. Howard Fallis of Peterboro, clever speaker and equally as clever organiser, carried the most stirring message of the campaign to the ears of her sister electors.

"The bye-election in West Hastings is not for West Hastings alone. It is for the whole of Canada," asserted Mrs. Fallis.

"Mr. Porter will be elected I am sure, but we should make his majority so overwhelming, that the voice of West Hastings will speak out for the whole of Canada," she continued.

Mrs. Fallis told of all eyes of the Dominion being fixed upon the West Hastings issue and bye-election, and the electors should speak in no uncertain voice.

Not For Man Alone

Referring to the fact that it is but a few years since women asked for and received the franchise, Mrs. Fallis requested every woman to live up to the privilege she enjoyed, show a willingness to shoulder responsibilities which accompany the franchise, remembering that any community was not made for man alone. Women particularly should be vitally interested in a good form of government as women suffer most from bad legislation and inefficient laws.

"Keep in touch with all affairs of your own country," strongly advised the speaker, "so that best use of that sacred privilege, the ballot, may be made. Truly the ballot is a sacred trust and a power for good, and where women are banded together for a good cause they usually win."

Mrs. Fallis asked that women be given a chance in public life, and if they were, she predicted less corruption and profiteering in public life.

It could not be but refining and uplifting when women take their place in public life. Mrs. Fallis asked for the co-operation of every woman in this bye-election one which is for the good of the country at large. Faith in the cause and enthusiasm founded on knowledge of that cause would win.

In referring to Imperialism, Mrs. Fallis stated that Canada stood four-square for the Motherland in peace or war, yet Canada was as independent a nation as she could be, for England asked nothing from her. Where would Canada be however in time of trouble if it were not for the long and protecting arm of Britain? asked the speaker.

Defends National Policy

We believe in the National policy as founded by that great statesman Sir John Macdonald for Canada first, and the protection of our industries to build up our country. Mrs. Fallis said Conservatives stand for stability. We have been called non-progressive by some of our opponents but the greater share of legislation placed on the statute books was placed there by Conservative Government.

Women Won't Fail

In concluding her address the speaker asked for the co-operation of the women in this election where a moral issue was involved. Women should support Mr. Porter as Miss MacPhail, the only lady member in the House of Commons did upon this issue.

Mr. W. G. Clyesdale of Toronto, Provincial organizer for the Conservative party, who also addressed the ladies, stated that outside the city of Toronto he had never seen so much enthusiasm displayed by any body of ladies, and that he had never seen such a splendid crowd. There were more than one hundred ladies present.

"I'll tell you, this augurs well for the success in re-electing Mr. Porter," said the speaker with a smile.

Then dropping suddenly to business Mr. Clyesdale in a sentence explained the issue in West Hastings. "Parliament at Ottawa white washed Hon. James Murdock, and E. Guss Porter, K.C., resigned his seat as a result."

FROM STOVE TO PLATFORM

Mrs. Ida Fallis, wife of Howard Fallis, successful farmer living at the edge of the fine city of Peterboro, is a real woman. Mrs. Fallis is the remarkably gifted speaker who spoke in the interest of Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., here Saturday night at Oddfellows' Hall.

She is not only a speaker, but a worker too. Friday she cooked meals for some fifteen men who were hands at a threshing on the Fallis farm. Saturday she journeyed to Belleville to tell the women why they should support Mr. Porter. She knows why, and knows how to impart her knowledge too.

WHOLE FAMILY WAS WIPED OUT

When Train Hit Auto Near Kingston On Sunday Last

Kingston, Nov. 3—Joseph Roberts, well-known farmer of Findlay, Ont., his wife and two children, Lenwood aged 11 years and Lavina aged 10 years were instantly killed yesterday morning when their automobile was struck by a locomotive a short distance from home, about 12 miles east of this city. Roberts and his family were on their way to church, which necessitated their crossing the railway tracks, the occupants meeting instant death.

Mrs. Roberts was carried along on the cow-catcher of the engine until it was brought to a standstill. The train crew picked her up immediately but she had breathed her last. Roberts was found among the wreckage of the car, which was in matchwood. His head was badly crushed. The boy, Lenwood, was found just ahead of the wreckage, and the girl, Lavina, was thrown to the opposite side of the track. They received internal injuries.

The engine which was en route from Brockville to Belleville, was not travelling very fast when it struck the automobile and the engineer stated that he had seen the car at a standstill when he was approaching and did not think Roberts would attempt to cut across ahead of locomotive. Roberts had stopped the car near the tracks to allow his son to close the gate behind him, and immediately the boy re-entered the automobile he proceeded across the tracks and directly into the path of the engine.

An inquest will be held at Kingston tomorrow night.

Mrs. Roberts was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bennett, of Kingston.

Railway's Statement.

Toronto, Nov. 3—G. G. Bowker, general manager of the central region, Canadian National Railways, issued the following statement in connection with the accident near Findlay station

At 10.40 o'clock Sunday morning an extra west train, in charge of Conductor F. G. Miller with Engineer F. McLean, struck a motor car, owned and driven by Joseph Roberts, aged 45 years, at the second farm crossing, one quarter mile east of Findlay station. In the car were Mrs. Joseph Roberts, aged 40 years, Lenwood Roberts, aged 11, and Lavina Roberts, aged 10. All were instantly killed. At the time of the accident the train was running at a speed of about 22 miles an hour. It consisted of the engine and tender and caboose, and was enroute from Brockville to Belleville to take out an east bound train. When the automobile was struck the engine bell was automatically ringing and the usual crossing whistle signals had been sounded for a public crossing located just east of the point of the accident.

According to the train crew, who were eye-witnesses of the accident, the automobile was observed approaching the track, as a splendid view obtains at this crossing of westbound trains. The motor car stopped clear of the tracks, and one of the occupants got out, opened the farm gate and got into the car again. The automobile then moved onto the westbound track and was struck by the engine. The car and occupants were thrown clear of the tracks with the exception of Mrs. Roberts.

The train was stopped at once and remains were carried into the Roberts home, while assistance was secured from a neighboring farmer who identified the remains.

Jack O'Brien, ex-pugilist, was killed in New York in his downtown apartment. Girls on their way to work heard four shots and presently O'Brien stumbled down the stairs and fell in a heap on the sidewalk. Policemen put in a call for an ambulance, but O'Brien died before aid reached him.

TRENTON LAUDS E. GUSS PORTER AND THE ISSUE

Enthusiasm Reigns at Meeting Held on Saturday Night

COL. PONTON SPEAKS

Points Out Hopeless Race Charles Hanna Is Running

If the interest, attendance and enthusiasm of the people of Trenton attending a meeting held there Saturday night is any indication of what the people of Trenton will do for the Liberal-Conservative candidate on the 25th of November, then Mr. Porter may expect the largest majority in his favor that he has ever experienced in that Town.

All classes of business, labor and society men and women of the town were represented in large numbers. In fact the building was inadequate to accommodate the crowd. An inspiring and convincing speech was made by Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C. who, as an old time Conservative, but not a partizan, dwelt upon the moral issue involved in the election and the opportunity afforded West Hastings of deciding it for all Canada in a masterly way. He told how West Hastings could show their appreciation of the courage of Mr. Porter in the stand he took after 22 years of public service and pointed out in a fair and generous spirit the futility of Mr. Hanna, who although a worthy citizen and a good friend, had assumed a hopeless task in defending the conduct of Mr. Murdock, the Minister of Labor, who should be himself in this Conservative constituency defending his conduct as a minister of the Crown.

Buoyant and cogent speeches were made by Major Rev. Belford and Mr. Maybee, M.P. for Northumberland, who spoke more particularly upon the general political policy of the King Government and its disastrous effects upon all Canada.

Thrown By Horse Killed Instantly

Tweed Man Met Death in Strange Way On Saturday

When a horse which always was spirited and regarded as a bad animal, shied on the River road, about two miles west of Tweed Saturday night about 7 o'clock, Louis Chappelle, 62, driver and only occupant of the rubber tired buggy was thrown from the buggy, his head striking a huge granite rock in the ditch. He died almost immediately, his skull being smashed in, and the buggy turned over on him, pinning him between two huge boulders. The horse broke loose from the buggy and galloped to the barn.

One half hour later, Lawrence Chappelle, nephew of the dead man, and Edward O'Coyne happened along in another buggy and on investigation, young Chappelle found his uncle under the buggy dead. The two young men rushed to the farm house of Pierre Rashotte, about ten rods distant, and Dr. Boyle of Tweed was called. Later Coroner Dr. Eagleson of Madoc was called and after invesigating, ordered an inquest to be held at Tweed on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Provincial Police Officers here were then notified and fully investigated the circumstances. Chappelle had been talking to Pierre Rashotte one half hour before he was found dead.

Police officers believe that the horse shied to the left and bolted while Chappelle drove westwards towards his farm home from Tweed. The buggy according to wheel marks ran on two wheels for some thirty feet during which time the horse began to gallop. The left rein was broken showing how hard Chappelle, who was a big powerful man, had hauled on the horse. When the buggy wheel struck a boulder along side the road, the wheel smashed down and the buggy was thrown over into the ditch, between two huge boulders. Chappelle had $131 in his pocket when searched, which was handed over to his son.

BARN IS BURNED OUT IN THURLOW

W. F. Wood Sustains Loss of Four Thousand Dollars

Warner J. Wood farmer residing on the 6th concession of Thurlow township suffered a severe loss on Saturday evening when his barn with its contents was destroyed by fire. The barn, which was one of the best equipped in this section of the country, contained the whole season's crop and farm machinery. In addition a new threshing machine, the property of J. Hannah was destroyed.

They had been threshing at Wood's on Saturday and the machine had not been removed when fire originated in a large straw stack close to the barn. All efforts to save the building were futile the cause being undetermined.

Three men who were in the barn at the time succeeded in liberating horses and cattle which were tied in.

Wood estimates his loss at about four thousand dollars as he had an exceptionally good crop of grain. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Mr. Wood lost a barn the same way last year. The structure burned down Saturday was just a year old.

Holloway Church Is 49 Years Old

Special Services Held Yesterday to Observe Birthday

Forty-nine years ago, Holloway Street Methodist Church was established in West Belleville and yesterday anniversary services were held to commemorate the event. Large congregations were present at both services and the sermons of Rev. W. R. Tanton of Napanee were much appreciated.

In the evening the subject discussed by the preacher was, "The Place of the Church in the Light of the World Today." His text was from Ephesians 5th chapter, 27th verse: "That he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing, but that it should be holy and without blemish.

The text is taken, the preacher said, from one of the finest letters written by the apostle Paul. It was an outstanding letter giving the experience of the writer. In the chapter from whence the text is taken, there is a complete line of the relationship of the church to the world in general. St. Paul had a passionate longing for the church. His desire was that the church should occupy that position he thought it should occupy.

Some say the church is simply a religious necessity but in the future will take a lesser place. The church will occupy a larger place and be a mightier power for civilization in the future than in the past. The church is for the carrying out of the program of Jesus. Societies have high ideals and great objectives, but the church is the one institution that exists solely for the carrying out of the program of Jesus. We live in a day of criticism and a day of great research, the preacher said. The church has not been exempt from criticisms, some of which are just and some unjust. There is no institution that is perfect but the church was never more united than today. We will live to see the day when five great Christian bodies are united and a greater union will take place. The church was never so strongly supported by public men as it is today and by men in high positions in life.

League Needs Christianity

In referring to the League of Nations the divine said that the league would amount to nothing unless the nations follow out the program of Jesus and meet the needs of the day. The one solution of the world's problems is the program of Jesus. Although Germany was considered a great country in which to obtain learning, it threw out the program of Jesus with fatal results. There comes a challenge to all to take his and her share of responsibilities in church work.

What right have we to shirk responsibilities, he asked. There comes a challenge to give the best contribution we can make for the program of Jesus.

During the service, Mr. E. Jones rendered a solo, "Abide With Me," and a duet, "Love Divine All Love Excelling," was given by Miss V. Wrightmeyer and Mr. A. Herity.

CANADA NEEDS PIONEERS MOST, AS VISITING HOLLANDER SEES IT

"THEY WILL WIN"

"Matthew Arnold once said, 'If ever the women of the world band themselves together for a single purpose, there will come into force the greatest power which the world has ever known.' The women of this Riding are banding themselves together to accomplish the election of Mr. Porter and they will win." Mrs. Ida Fallis at organization meeting Saturday night.

Amsterdam Newspapermen In Native Costume Visit City

CAUSED COMMOTION

As They Pattered Through Streets in Giant Wooden Shoes

"It is pioneers you need in this country now. In fifty years time perhaps it will be something different."

In this way did H. Doorenbois Dutch journalist, sum up his impression of Canada, after but a brief visit to Toronto.

When Mr. Doorenbois, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. Roosekrams Jr. arrived in Belleville on Saturday afternoon, city people rubbed their eyes in wonder. Some thought the visitors were celebrating Hallowe'en a day late.

"Clackety clack—clackety clack," sounded the wooden shoes of the Hollanders as they proceeded down the sidewalk on Front street to the Intelligencer office. And above the quaint old shoes of the peasant type [illegible] two pairs of ample trousers and a wide skirt. Then came flowing blouses and round hats, hussar-like. Two good looking faces and one pretty one typically Holland, adorned the costumes.

Are Newspapermen

Introductions followed inside the office. Amiable hoboes, just in from the village of Grafton, they were. Two newspapermen and a newspaperman's wife; young university graduates on a serious mission under the guise of wandering bards. One carried a Spanish guitar. Another sings.

Later, while Mr. and Mrs. Roosekram were resting at a hotel, Mr. Doorenbois told the story.

They are in Canada to learn the ways of the country and its character so they may tell the folk back home in Holland whether they should migrate. The two men members of the staff of the Amsterdam Telegraph, are studying conditions here, first hand to give an unprejudiced account through the columns of the Telegraph and in order to mix with every sort of people and to cover the ground thoroughly, they hit on the happy plan of hiking and making their expenses at the same time.

Started Near Windsor

Mr. and Mrs. Roosekrams landed in New York and Mr. Doorenbois at Montreal five weeks ago. They met at the home of friends in Essex County, Windsor, and started out on foot visiting the farming communities of western Ontario as well as towns and larger cities.

Now they are on their way for Montreal, leaving Belleville for Kingston yesterday morning.

It is their intention to cross Canada to British Columbia. They may buy an automobile in Montreal and finish their investigation that way. They want to see the Canadian West in the winter time and may have to use the railways then.

Questioned as to what impression he had gained thus far, Mr. Doorenbois, who speaks good English and excellent French and German, said he realized even now that there was no room for the "intellectual" of Holland by which he meant bookkeepers, and men accustomed to clerical duties. Only men who were prepared to work hard on farms or in other manual positions, in short "pioneers" were needed.

Want More Leisure

"I have found a different spirit here than we have in Europe," he said. "In Canada a man will work hard all day and get perhaps six dollars a day. Over in Europe, the average man is quite willing to take just three dollars and have more time for other activities."

Speaking of conditions in his own country, he said the dole system was in force in Holland and that it was being abused.

On Saturday night, the two played and sang at the corner of Campbell and Front streets. They collected about five dollars and called it a night and went to bed ready for the trip to Kingston in the morning.

Huntingdon Solid For E. Guss Porter

Largest Political Meeting Ever Held at Invanhoe Saturday

The organization meeting held by Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., at Huntingdon Township Hall, Ivanhoe on Saturday night, is reported by the correspondent of the Intelligencer at Ivanhoe as being the largest political meeting ever held in Huntingdon township.

The municipal council and officers were there en masse, and enthusiastic women and men electors of the district were there to do honor to Mr. Porter by offering their assistance in any capacity whatever. The crowd was of the "election winning element" according to the words of the correspondent.

"The Largest Majority ever for Porter," is the high aim of the electors, and everyone is at the trigger ready to fire the big campaign over to a glorious finish. There is absolutely no dissension in the Liberal Conservative ranks in the district surrounding faithful Ivanhoe.

Reeve James Haggerty of Huntingdon addressed the meeting as well as his brother members of the council, including W. E. Tummon and several other gentlemen. Other speakers were Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.P.P., T. W. Thompson, M.P. and E. Guss Porter, K.C., the candidate.

Many electors from Rawdon Township were present out of sympathy and enthusiasm that Mr. Porter be upheld at the polls on the 25th, so that day by day in every way it appears as though the Porter majority will be greater and greater.

Huntingdon Township is now thoroughly organized for the cause of Mr Porter.

General William B. Haldeman, Commander-in-chief of the Confederate veterans since April, 1923, died at a hospital at Churchill Downs, Ky., where he was taken immediately after being stricken while watching the races. General Haldeman was 78 years old, and at one time was part owner of the Courier Journal and Louisville Times.

LITTLE VILLAGE OF WELLINGTON IS THREATENED

Flames Devoured Three Houses and Telephone Exchange

STARTED AT NOON

Burning Leaves Set Fire to Garage; Picton Brigade Called

Wellington was threatened by complete destruction by fire just before noon to-day, but by dint of the indefatigueable services of the citizen bucket brigade and the Picton fire brigade the fire was confined to four houses which were razed to the ground.

No one was injured, but a sick man in the home of Mrs. Ida Ryan, one of the houses burned, was rescued just in the nick of time by villagers. Half the value of each residence is covered by insurance.

The houses burned are the residence of Mrs. P. A. Pettingill, H. A. Shourds, the telephone exchange and an adjoining house occupied by Mrs. Ida Ryan. The telephone exchange building and the Ryan home is owned by Homer White of Bloomfield. All are valuable frame houses especially the Shourds home. Furniture and other contents was saved by the volunteer fire fighters.

Dearth of water in Wellington, where there is no stream, was a handicap, the Picton fire engine being unable to function.

The fire started at 11.45 o'clock this morning when a bon fire of old leaves started by Mrs. Pettingill was fanned by the breeze and set fire to the garage at the rear of the Shourds' house. Almost immediately the flames were fanned into a terrific blaze which threatened to lick up the whole of West Main Street where all houses were situated in a row.

Nothing but good work on the part of hundreds who were attracted by the fire saved the litite village and at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon the ruins were still dangerously smouldering. The ruins is being watched for later outbreaks, but the fire is well under control.

Peter Smith Appeal is Dismissed Today Will Appeal Sentence This Afternoon

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 3.—The appeal of Peter Smith, former provincial treasurer, from the conviction on a charge of conspiring to defraud the province, was dismissed by the Second Divisional Appellate Court at Osgoode Hall here to-day. The prisoner was not present as an appeal was based upon a point of law only.

Following judgment dismissing the appeal, T. H. Lennox, K.C., representing Smith, stated that he would give notice this afternoon of appeal from the sentence which was three years' imprisonment and joint responsibility with Aemilius Jarvis senior, for six hundred thousand dollar fine.

Settell Complains of Proceedure Following His Sensational Arrest

Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 3.—Statements by E. C. Settell, former private secretary to Sir Adam Beck of the Provincial Hydro Commission, that he had been brought straight from jail without any opportunity to prepare his defence, and his subsequent refusal to answer any questions put to him, on that ground, featured the opening session of the enquiry of Judge C. Snider of Hamilton into charges made by Settell in his letter to the Hydro Chairman after his attempted flight from the country. After an hour of fruitless questioning, Settell was released from the stand, until he had consulted his counsel.

IN DESPERATE STRAITS

Here is how the Liberal newspaper in Trenton holds out the bribe to the electors to vote for the Liberal candidate against Mr. Guss Porter.

"It stands to reason a Government is not going to spend thousands of dollars in a constituency which has ever been in opposition to their cause. But with that electorate won, with a representative sitting on the Government benches it is but reasonable to expect that the same Government will look with favor on the constituency."

The Mackenzie King Government must be in desperate straits when it is necessary to try to win seats in the House of Commons by such tactics. It is not the first time the King Government has tried to win elections by such methods, but surely Canadians, the good people of Trenton, will not be influenced by such "bunkum."

Why should the Government "look with favor on the constituency" only because the "representative is sitting on the Government benches?"—Port Hope Times.

NO SYMPATHY REQUIRED

(Brampton Conservator)

The Government of Hon. Mackenzie King has determined to restore Hon. James Murdock to popular favor by securing the election of a supporter in the historic riding of West Hastings.

After the Government had been made aware of the inevitable collapse of the Home Bank, Mr. Murdock, a minister of the Crown, withdrew $4,000 from the bank in order to protect himself, while thousands of others were forced to suffer because of the failure.

Mr. Porter protested against the action of the minister, charged that he had violated his oath of office and asked for an investigation by the Privileges and Elections Committee. It was granted. Mr. Porter had the support of the Conservative members in the committee and also of Miss McPhail and Rev. Mr. Brown, of the Progressives. The majority of the House upheld Mr. Murdock. Mr. Porter at once tendered his resignation for the purpose of getting the views of the people he represents. The contest is now on. The candidates are Mr. E. Guss Porter (Conservative) who for twenty-two years has represented the riding and Mayor Hanna, of Belleville, Liberal and defender of Hon. James Murdock.

On Tuesday night Hon. Jas. Robb, Hon. T. A. Low and Organizer Marshall addressed the electors in the support of the Murdock candidate. On Wednesday night Hon. G. P. Graham spoke at Belleville.

Hon. Mr. Robb Acting Minister of Finance, referred to the action of Mr. Porter as "an attack upon a poor man merely attempting at his wife's behest to save from the Home Bank wreckage his savings of a lifetime."

Sympathy for Mr. Murdock is to be the plea of the Government. But no sympathy for the thousands of poor men and women who lost their all. Sympathy for Mr. Murdock, who is in receipt of a salary of $14,000 a year, a railway pass, a motor car and chauffeur, and all the other perquisites which go with the office of a cabinet minister.

The issue cannot be made one of sympathy for either Mr. Murdock or Mr. Porter. Murdock's conduct in the whole affair is before the electors. They are asked to pronounce upon the question. That Mr. Porter's action in defending the honor of parliament will be upheld by those who have known him so long there can be little doubt.

WOMEN IN PARLIAMENT

In the last British Parliament there were eight women members of the House of Commons. In that elected on Wednesday there are but four, Lady Astor, the Duchess of Atholl and Mrs. Hilton Philipson—all Conservatives— and Miss E. Wilkinson, a Labor supporter. Miss Margaret Bondfield, and a member of the Labor Government, was among the defeated candidates with nearly forty others. Such a state of affairs is not what was expected by the advocates of woman's complete enfranchisement. That is not unnatural, however, is the opinion of the Montreal Gazette. It says places in Parliament have to be won as a rule by long work in lines of activity that attract favorable public notice. There are exceptions, of course. Sometimes high social position secures for a candidate, man or woman, the attention that attracts the party manager first and then the voter. Sometimes an incident having nothing to do with politics creates a sentiment that catches passing favor, and the fortunate individual floats in to a coveted place. Now and again such accidents afford a start to an able man, or woman, and open the way to careers. Sometimes they only serve to let the voters see they made a mistake. In the fields of service which gain public attention and commendation men have and will have the advantage over women. They in their business transactions meet daily their fellows and when they are good men win the respect or personal regard that is the great stepping-stone to public life. Women's activities do not give them like advantages. If they have homes to keep they have not much leisure to give to public affairs. If they are in professions they have to work, and rarely are they brought into contact wtih the voters or the political workers who pick out candidates. Thus the getting of a start is harder for the woman aspirant for parliamentary honors than for her brother. The novelty of woman representatives in Parliament has passed and hereafter they will have to look forward to harder toil if they would win advancement."

BELLEVILLE IS A PROGRESSIVE CITY

One of the many reasons why Belleville is being "put on the map" was exemplified yesterday when a meeting was held there to develop the Bay of Quinte District as a tourist and summer resort.

The gathering was presided over by Mayor Mikel and included members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, representatives from nearby municipalities, Federal and Provincial Members and many business men interested in the development of the District.

At a meeting there was formed The Bay of Quinte Improvement Company and the Moira River Improvement Company.

Plans were outlined by which it is hoped to make this part of the Province one of the popular summer resorts Belleville is forging to the front because it has a live Chamber of Commerce with a wide-awake progressive secretary and a good live Mayor.—Oshawa Reformer.

SCHOOLMASTER THORNTON

(Financial Post, Toronto)

Sir Henry Thornton is performing definite national services along several lines, even though he is having difficulty in lessening the heavy deficit on the Canadian National Railways. He is teaching Canadians lessons in courtesy by his precepts to the Canadian National staff and is emphasizing the point of service in all his instructions to employes and in speeches to the public. He has instilled a finer esprit de corps into the Canadian National organization that has made the work of the personnel of the Government lines more enthusiastic and, hence, more efficient.

If Sir Henry could be as successful in putting the railway on a paying basis he would go down in the records as a great servant to Canada. Under private ownership he could probably make a success of the Canadian National Railways. His job is harder under government control. It is difficult to keep political interference out, with so many friends of the Government wanting jobs and so many individuals looking for profits at the country's expense.

TO-DAY'S PUZZLE

FIND THE QUESTION

He (Hanna), would answer just one of the questions, since it was representative of the kind of campaign which his political opponents were carrying on. This question was: 'Why Did Hanna go to Ottawa with B. O. Lott and E. D. O'Flynn?' "—Daily Ontario.

The following are questions put to Mr. Charles Hanna, Liberal candidate in the bye-election. With the exception of one point covered imperfectly by Byron O. Lott, none has been answered yet.

1.—When did he become a Liberal, and what for?

2.—Had his visit to Ottawa recently, anything to do with it? If so, what?

3.—Why was he one of the Committee for Mr. McIntosh, U.F.O. candidate against Mr. Porter, in the last Election, and why is he not a U.F.O. yet?

4.—Why was he one of Mr. Porter's Committee in former elections as a CONSERVATIVE?

5.—Whose nomination paper did he sign in the Ireland-O'Flynn Election, or did he sign both? It is on record.

6.—Why was he a supporter of Mr. R. J. Graham as an INDEPENDENT CONSERVATIVE in his contest against Mr. Porter?

7.—Is the notorious Byron O. Lott, of bogus ballot box fame and exiled from Canada for years, on account of a warrant for his arrest by reason thereof, assisting him in his fight against upholding the honor and dignity of Parliament, which Mr. Porter resigned his seat to uphold, and which is the particular issue in this Election?

8.—If Mr. Hanna does not want to uphold the honor, dignity and purity of Ministers of the Crown, what does he want to uphold, and what does he advocate in it's place?

9.—Does he approve of Mr. Murdock whom he is advocating in this Election, accepting an appointment as a Commissioner under a Conservative Government, and then betraying the Government that appointed him to get into the Liberal Government as a Cabinet Minister?

10.—Why did he tell and authorize The Intelligencer to publish as it did, that he would not be a Candidate in this Election against Mr. Porter?

11.—Why has he so suddenly changed his mind, and what was the cause of it?

AUTUMN

She came so gently that we scarcely knew her there:
Her smile was bright as Summer, and her face as fair.
We only noticed her green robe was shot with brown,
Until on certain days her smile became a frown,
And that her robe had changed to one of varied hue,
With all the colors cardinal and some quite new.
Her warm farewell than Summer's was a voice more deep,
Winter is Spring, Summer and Autumn's quiet sleep.

ARBITRATION OF DISPUTES ELIMINATES COST AND DELAY OF COURT FIGHTS

The courts of this country are full to overflowing with cases of every conceivable class of civil litigation, and bitterness and despondency is engendered by the expense and procrastination in receiving the justice which the laws are intended to mete out says Hugh R. Robertson of Minneapolis, in the Kiwanis Magazine.

Many people who have difference with their business associations are compelled to take the matter, whatever it may be, into court for a settlement and after some considerable time their case is set for trial. On the day set the counsel on the opposite side may, for a perfectly good reason, make a motion for adjournment which the Judge may grant. This may even happen several times and the matter drags along perhaps for a year or so.

Because of the delay and unnecessary cost of court litigation, the author says that the movement for arbitration is growing. "Arbitration is the settlement by private persons appointed to decide a matter or matters in controversy, on a reference made to them for the purpose either by agreement or by the order or on the suggestion of a court of Law."

The method of referring a matter to arbitration is simple. An agreement of arbitration is drawn up between the parties which should cover a careful analysis of the controversy and should provide for the following particulars:

1. For the appointment of arbitrators usually each of the parties choose one and these two select a third.
2. A full, clear, and orderly statement of the definite questions in dispute.
3. That two of the arbitrators may decide the matter. Otherwise all must agree.
4. For payment of expenses of arbitration, or that arbitrators may assess them as they see fit.
5. —That the decision of the arbitrators shall be in writing and signed by them.
6. That the award of arbitrators may be enforced as a judgment of any court of record.

"That the agreement shall be signed and acknowledged before a notary public so that it may be entitled to be filed in court in the same way as a judgment.

The advantages of this manner of settling disputed matters are that there is no delay in securing a decision and loss of time incident to prolonged litigation is avoided. The expense is nominal and the heavy costs incident to most legal proceedings are avoided.

Without effective statutes, the difficulty in arbitration is the enforcement of the award. Many of the States have statutes and others are taking the necessary steps to have them, New York and New Jersey at present being the only ones which have passed effective legislation, which is inforceable.

WHENCE CAME THE CORN BORER

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Experts who have examined the situation estimate that the farmers of Western Ontario, as the direct result of the operations of the corn borer, will this year suffer a loss of not less than $1,230,000. This is stated to be a conservaive estimate based on ten per cent. of the value of the crop, and the loss is placed at a considerably higher figure by other authorities that have investigated the damage. The insect reached the province only fourteen or fifteen years ago, having been introduced, so far as can be determined, into Elgin County on broom corn brought from Austria about 1909 or 1910. From the few borers that then arrived have come in this brief interval many billions, already spread over almost all the province.

FOSDICK BLOCKS TRAFFIC

(New York Telegram and Mail)

Whatever the merits of the controversy over Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick between the First Presbyterian Church and the General Assembly of its denomination, there can be no doubt where public sentiment in New York stands. It is with the congregation and with Dr. Fosdick.

The popular demonstration on behalf of the clergyman on Sunday was even more striking than that of the week before. The audience not only jammed the church, but blocked traffic in Fifth Avenue. It was all the more remarkable because it was the kind of Sunday which tempts people to the country and the motor car, rather than to indoor worship.

AN IMPORTANT DIFFEREFICE

(Kincardine Review)

A common objection heard during the recent campaign was that the government did not specify just what Act would succeed the O.T.A. if it was defeated. If the government had done so, it would not be a plebiscite at all—it would be a referendum. The government merely asked the opinion of the public on two questions and now the government can change the Act as changing conditions demand, something no Legislature would do with an Act ratified by the people in a referendum.

AS TO STANLEY BALDWIN

(New York Times)

With a safe working majority in the Commons it will be easy for Mr. Baldwin to form a government. It will not be so easy for him to inspire confidence in the Conservatives that he is the man to hold his majority intact. Last year he threw it away with incredible light-heartedness on the issue of protection. Now there will doubtless be a period of greater caution with possibly a slow movement of concentration against the Labor Party.

To-day's Smile

Johnston went into the local tobaconist's for some cigarets. After paying for them he said to the man behind the counter: "By the way, you gave me a bad shilling in my change yesterday."

"Impossible," said the tobacconist. "I have never taken or given a bad shilling during all the years I have been in the trade."

"You certainly gave me a bad shilling," said Johnston.

"My dear chap," said the man "with twenty years' experience of handling money, I can tell at once by the touch of a coin whether it is good or bad. Instinct my boy. At any rate, I suppose you managed to get rid of it?"

"Oh yes," said Johnston. "I have just given it to you for the cigarets."

Thirty Years Ago

A well-known lawyer give the following as the rights on the public highways in towns and cities. The streets belong to teams and vehicles and pedestrians have no more business upon them than teams would have upon the sidewalk. The crossing at street corners belong to pedestrians who have right of way there by law and against teams. Many drivers ignore the law and dash over the crossing endangering the lives of the pedestrians without thinking they are violating the law. No vehicle or horse can, within the law, be driven rapidly over the crossing nor can the driver obstruct the crossing.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell will leave for Montreal on Tuesday, when he will meet the Board of Trade there and discuss the question of better trade relations between Canada and Australian colonies. He will be accompanied by Commissioner Larkin who will leave for Australia next January.

TOO MUCH "DEAR DR. MOORE"

Toronto Telegram

It is time, and more than time to get back to the idea that public questions should be decided by public men elected to decide the questions. Even prohibition Conservatives were sickened by the news that Hon. Howard Ferguson was holding private conventions with Liberal-first survivors of the Committee of One Hundred and writing letters to "Dear Dr. Moore."

Ontario wants the Premier of this province to have no more truck and trade with the Moderation League, President I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., the Dominion Alliance, "Dear Dr. Moore", or any other outsider. Ontario went to the polls Thursday and gave the leader a mandate to do what is right in the Legislature and take the consequences at the poll.

A STIRRER OF STRIFE

Ottawa Journal

Perhaps Mr. Cosgrave would have been glad if Ulster had kept de Valera in a Belfast jail. It might have done more to settle the boundary question than anything else imaginable.

But may be Ulster's example with de Valera will help the Free State in any case. Cosgrave shot Erskine Childers and Rory O'Connor and some scores of others who were de Valera's followers and dupes. Yet this Spanish-sired agitator continues stirring up strife, and goes unmolested. The noose that would make him swing might bring a lot of blessedness to Ireland.

Booze Provided Police With Work

Belleville Police Court Was Active All The Morning

BOYS IN TROUBLE

Drug Addict Pleads For Another Chance and Is Heard

"Belleville the wet" supplied cases for this morning's police court which lasted well though the lunch hour, and caused a real hum of activity about police headquarters.

One case of keeping for sale, and three drunk charges involved two other youths and an unknown bootlegger. Three boys under sixteen years were arrested last night on Cannifton road by P. C. W. Evans and P. C. David Morris. Officers told of them staggering about, holding one another up, of strong breath, thick speech and other indications of intoxication. One boy pleaded not guilty, the other two guilty, but the evidence as to where and from whom they secured the liquor, was so complicated that there was some of it savored of perjury.

At first one boy told of the bottle of alcohol being presented to them in a cafe by an unknown person. Then a second accused told that they secured it in the quarry where a fourth boy had "planted" it and told them they could have it. This boy was taken to the station for examination immediately. Then the third told of buying a perfume bottle full of whisky from another boy for 25 cents. The alleged seller of the perfume bottle was then taken to the station for examination. Then the oldest boy told of buying a bottle of "Old Kentucky" whiskey from an unknown bootlegger who was of medium height, medium build wearing a grey overcoat and cap. He was taken to the bootlegger by the boy who sold the perfume bottle full of whisky, he said.

The three boys were found guilty and fined $10 and costs of $9. One boy is the son of an invalid father, the other boy's father being dead. The alternative is twenty-one days in the county jail.

Two of the boys were taken very ill in the cell room during the night.

That there was plenty of booze floating around town last night is the statement of one youth. Police were unable to locate the empty bottle, one accused saying that it was thrown away in the weeds along the C.P.R. tracks, another that it was left behind a chair in a cafe.

Captured After Race

Provincial Constable S. Elliott came upon two men on Victoria Avenue Saturday evening about 7.30 o'clock, who were engaged in suspicious conversation. He was in plain clothes, and walking up to the pair, he began to search one of the men. The other man fled, and Elliott then believing there was a note of suspicion in his running, chased him. After a spirited chase, he overhauled Thomas Finnigan who was handicapped by two bottles which he carried and which contained what appeared to be home brew. Finnigan was taken to the station, and later when Provincial officers searched his residence on Victoria avenue, they found five full bottles of Corby liquor. Accused is charged with keeping liquor for sale. The Corby liquor was cached in the divanette where accused sleeps.

Gets Two Weeks

Clarence O'Brien, arrested last Sunday night on a vagrancy charge, was sentenced to serve two weeks in the county jail here to date from the day of his arrest. Though possessing two aliases and a crime record which almost stunned the court, the compassion of Crown and Magistrate was extended to the unfortunate young man who is fighting the drug habit and who has been out of Bordeaux jail but 24 days.

Dating from 1914 until 1923, O'Brien has been convicted in towns and cities from Vancouver to Montreal on charges ranging from vagrancy to robbery with violence, having and using dope.

"For God's sake give me one more chance, Your Worship," he cried out. "I will go to the woods for the winter and fight off this drug habit. It is mighty hard to do, but I am not a dope user now."

"I wan tto see my young brother and sister at Renfrew. They are adopted, my mother having died while I was overseas and my father shortly after I returned."

O'Brien served in France with the 48th Highlanders (15 Battalion and was severely wounded at Hill 70. He bravely admitted his police record.

In the jail here last week O'Brien was desperate. He crawled and writhed on the floor in agony for the drug, and asked to be strapped to his bed. This was early in the week but towards the end of the week he settled down.

Another Bicycle Theft

Taken off the stolen bicycle which he was riding Saturday afternoon by P.S.A. Harman and Sergeant of Detectives Truaisch, fifteen-year-old boy is also charged with the theft of two other bicycles. He was remanded until Friday when he appeared this morning.

HOW SHE STARTED

"Before I left Ontario to live in the west I was not at all interested in the granting of the franchise to women and often wondered why the women of England were making such a fuss about it. The first thing that roused in me the desire for the franchise was an election which was held in Saskatchewan when I saw foreigners by the dozen who could only speak a few words of broken English going up to the polls and realized that these men had a voice in the making of the laws and the governing of our country while the interested native born Canadian women must sit back in silence. I felt that there was something decidedly wrong I said to my husband I think it is high time that the intelligent women of Canada should have at least as much to say as the foreign born who come to our shores. With a superior man-like attitude he said well there is nothing very original in that remark; that it what the suffragettes have always said. But I felt that it was original because it was the first time that the real injustice being done women had ever come home to me. From that time I have been intensely interested in all phases of woman's work and realize the wonderful influence which women could exert upon public opinion."—Mrs. Ida Fallis at Conservative Ladies' meeting Saturday night.

ARRESTED AT ROSSMORE

Orbie Cross, of Rednersville was arrested during the noon hour by Chief Constable A. Kidd and Provincial Constable S. Elliott, in Prince Edward County just across the Bay bridge. Cross is alleged to have been drunk in charge of a horse drawn vehicle and to be carrying liquor in the rig when arrested. The arrest was made in Rossmore village.

One Car Stolen; Tried For Another

Three Men Caught in Act Of Shoving Auto Away

One car theft and an attempted car theft occurred over the week end. Hugh Keon, 266 Coleman street reported the theft of his 1923 model Star touring car to police at 9.15 o'clock Sunday morning. He had left it standing on Coleman street at 12.45 o'clock Saturday night and in the morning it was gone. Police notified Kingston, Cobourg, Trenton, Oshawa, Toronto and Napanee by phone.

The left front fender is dented, there is a motor meter on the radiator, a Royal Oak tire on the left front wheel, and on the right rear wheel. Others are K. and S. tires. A spare tire was carried in the rear seat and one on the carrier behind which is punctured.

William Wheeler, 322 Albert street reported the attempted theft of his car to police at 3.30 o'clock Sunday. P.S. Boyd and P.C. Franks on investigation found the Wheeler car in the middle of the street where it had been shoved by the three tough looking men who were scared away by Thomas Gorman, 317 Albert street, who caught them in the act of shoving the car away. The three men then ran around the corner and up Pine street. Diligent search by the officers failed to locate the trio.

C. R. McKEOWN, Conservative M. P. for Dufferin, who ridicules any local option on government control. "My constituency went 5,000 dry", he says, "but if the province had gone only one hundred wet must have accepted the verdict at large."

Clifford Milburn Holland, chief engineer in charge of the Hudson River tunnel between New York and New Jersey, probably the highest authority in America on the building under water tunnels, died of heart disease in Battle Creek, Michigan. Mr. Holland is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Anna Coolidge Davenport, of Watertown, Mass., and four children.

Name Was Printed Letter By Mistake

George Bailey of Harold Was Not Moderation League Director

When George Bailey's name was printed on the letter head of Hastings County Branch, Moderation League, it was without Mr. Bailey's permission. He was named a director for Harold in North Hastings. In the following letter the County organizer apologizes for the mistake:

"I have been given to understand that you objected to your name having been used on the literature of the Moderation League of Ontario in the late campaign.

"As organizer for the County of Hastings, I beg to say that neither your name nor its publication was given by you or authorized by you. Your name was given me by a person from whom I have just learned it was unauthorized.

"Under the circumstances, I regret exceedingly that it was made use of and sincerely apologize for having done so, and hope that I have not thus innocently caused you any harm although I quite appreciate your annoyance."

Immigration Laws Affected Export

Speaker at Rotary Says Chinese Resent Claim Of Superiority

Some interesting glimpses of China were given at the Rotary luncheon today by Rev. J. D. MacRae Dean of the Faculty of Theology of Shantung University, who has spent 15 years in that country. His talk was on "China and Canada" and he dealt with many sides of the relations of the two Countries.

According to Mr. MacRae the stringent immigration laws of Canada have had a serious effect on our export trade to China, as the Chinese resent the implied claim of superiority. Great Britain has a large and profitable trade with the orient and Canada is favorably situated to get her share if she makes an effort.

The speaker gave a clear impression of the Chinese Civil War which he explained was only a struggle between two military leadres for the control of the Central Government in which the mass of the people took no part.

Mr. MacRae told of the great work being done by Christian schools and universities in China. They are raising the moral and intellectual level of the whole Chinese people and putting new life in that ancient civilization. In the field of sport the universities are fostering a new manhood and new ideals.

Rotarian Doug. Ramsay introduced the speaker and Rotarian Charlie Dolan expressed the club's thanks. It was decided to have a ladies night in the near future.

OBJECT TO JUDGE AT BARNARD TRIAL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 3.—The trial of C. A. Barnard, Montreal Home Bank director on charges of making, using, approving and concurring in false statements of Bank's affairs, was started this morning before Judge Coatsworth in county criminal court. R. S. Robertson, K.C., counsel for Barnard, submitted that Judge Coatsworth should not try the case as he had already tried three men on similar charges, and that therefore it would be humanly impossible to divest himself of impressions already gained. His Honor said he wouldn't mind complying with the request but there was no other judge available and he had to go on with it. Sir Thomas White was Crown witness this morning concerning correspondence and conferences he had with Home Bank directors.

L. C. M. S. AMERY, first lord of the admiralty in Stanley Baldwin's cabinet, who will doubtless be given a portfolio in the new ministry.

Riggs Motor Sales Ten Years of Age

Holding Ten Day Sale; One Day for Each Year

Just ten years ago this week, Riggs' Motor Sales opened for business, having at that time one of the most-up-to-date garages in Eastern Ontario. Year by year they have kept pace with the vast progress being made in motors and garages until now they have every improvement and facility of the most modern garage.

To mark so important an event as their tenth anniversary the Riggs' Motor Sales are holding a ten day celebration (one day for each year of business). The particulars of the celebration are announced in the advertising columns of this issue and will be of great interest to every motor car owner.

SCENES OF GREAT WAR ARE FLOODED NOW

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Nov. 3.—Swollen by incessant rains of the past week, the rivers of Northern France and Belgium are rising with unprecedented rapidity, threatening widespread destruction. The Seine has risen over six feet in two days, the Marne is overflowing at certain points, the Saone is rising two inches hourly and the Doubs even faster. In Argonne the Meuse has turned miles of country into lake and near Nancy a number of factories have been submerged. Floods and gales have ravaged seven thousand acres in the Somme valley. Nearly the whole of Charleroi region of Belgium is under water and boat services are being organized to convey food to flood victims.

BLACK PRECEPTORY ATTENDED CHURCH

Representatives of the Black Preceptory from Belleville Foxboro, Stirling, Marmora, Trenton and Madoc attended divine service which was held Sunday afternoon in the Foxboro Methodist church.

There was a splendid crowd present and Rev. George Marshall, of Emmanuel church here, delivered a very powerful and interesting sermon. Dr. E. N. Baker, also assisted with the service. The Foxboro band headed the procession to the church.

Furnace Worries Are Eliminated

New Oil-o-Matic Assures Freedom From Dust, Dirt and Labor

Many weary housewives, householders and even janitors have longed for a gift from Cinderella's fairy godmother and her fairy wand when faced by the task of attending to the stoves or furnace and the attendant dust and dirt. Pleasant dreams of a system that would give the required heat to home, office, school, church hotel, etc., without the worry and labor common to their care, have filled the minds of many, and human brains have long been busy striving to discover some way in which this happy result could be attained.

At last the persistence of human inventiveness and patience has been rewarded, and a heater has been placed on the market which is giving the desired results. Several thousands of the new machines, known as the OillO-Matic have been placed in buildings in the United States, and have proven their reliability in heating many large institutions. Recently the first few of these machines were placed in Belleville, and a large number of people have witnessed them in operation.

By invitation it was the privilege of the Intelligencer to see working one of the machines recently installed in the home of Mack Robertson, Church street. Mr. Hagerman of the firm of Howe and Hagerman, local representative of the makers explained the operation of the new Oil-O-Matic in detail, and gave a convincing demonstration of the great advantages attributed to the new heater. The makers claim that the machine will operate without attention, so long as it is kept supplied with fuel oil, from the time it is set in operation in the fall until shut off by the arrival of warm days.

Not Cumberstone

Occupying about eight square feet of floor space in the basement the Oil-O-Matic heater may be attached to the furnace which had been placed in the building. Mr. Hagerman pointed out to the Intelligencer at the outset that two thermostats and one hydrostat give three-fold protection against overheating and consequent danger of fire and at the same time restart the machine, if it has been stopped because the temperature has risen too high.

The outstanding feature of the new machine is that the old idea that the use of fuel oil for heating is dependent upon its vaporization has been abandoned, and a method adopted whereby the oil being used for fuel is broken into atoms —or "atomized". This atomized oil is fired by an electric spark as it is driven by air pressure through a fine nozzle into the firebox of the furnace, and the appearance of the burning oil to a spectator watching iti through the open door is similar to a shower of sparks thrown from a blacksmith's anvil, as he strikes a piece of white hot metal, with the exception that the latter is intermittent while the former is continuous.

It was explained that the machine could be installed in any furnace, the only change necessary being the removal of the grates and the bricking up with firebricks of the ash door. It can be installed in furnaces used for hot water, steam or hot air system. No soot or carbon is formed in the burning of the atomized oil, and the whole equipment is so clean that basements in which it is installed can be used as a laundry or as a play-room for children.

Fed Through Strainer

The oil is fed through a strainer to the machine through the main oil valve through the metering pump to an atomizing pump, where it comes under pressure ranging from 1½ to 2¼ pounds, and is forced by a 1200 r. p. m. through a small worm to the burner nozzle, the atomized oil being ignited by an electric spark three-quarter of an inch from the nozzle end. The setting of the point of ignition so far from the nozzle end and inside the furnace prevents the heating of any part of the machine.

The inventor and makers of the Oil-O-Matic claim for it that the cost of operation in practically every instance when it has been installed has shown a saving of from 10 to 30 per cent over hard coal. (One hundred and fifty gallons of fuel oil equal one ton of coal). That it can be used with any type of heating plant in any sized house, will operate continuously, is entirely automatic, is quiet in working, requires oiling only once in a season, and makes no smell.

The Oil-O-Matic has been made since 1919, being first perfected before one was installed, at present many thousands are in operation in the United States, and it is predicted that before long, the new heater will become very popular in this district.

ON LOCAL OPTION

Dear Sir:—The long felt need for greater representation in the legislature for Toronto, Hamilton, London Windsor and Ottawa ought to become an actual reality. The reduction of the rural representation in the Legislature in conformity with Torontos representation is another way to solve the question in order to have equality in electoral representation. If the Conservative Government evens up the representation and enacts Local Option they will have a long tenure of office. Sir James Whitney with his Local Option policy defeated Honorable N. W. Rowell, with his plank for more stringent prohibitory law to regulate the liquor question. Honorable Howard Ferguson can do the same to Honorable Mr. Raney if he attempts to make political capital out of the Temperance question.

The Prohibitionists are taunting the Moderationists with being poor sports. They will not abide by a Provincial wide majority for the O. T. A. that is just about equivalent that Toronto alone gave against the O. T. A. When the shoe used to pinch the Drys they wanted Local Option wherever and whenever they could secure this concession. Now when the shoe pinches the Moderationists they are perfectly within their rights in demanding Local Option in respect to Government Control.

The only portion of the Province to complain would be the rabid Dry. The vast majority of those thinking electors who supported the O. T. A. continuing any longer in those localities, that Government Control is strongly desired. The Dry of a category of Raney and Cochrane will make a frightful noise, but that is all it will amount to. The best thing the O. T. A. supporter can hope for now is to retain the O. T. A. where it is strongly upheld.

The Government Control forces are not trying to diminish the importance of recognizing majority rule—in anything else but the O. T. A. It so happens that the principle of self determination is one that has been established as a solution for the liquor problem. The custom to let local voting determine the issue is well known. The Moderationists only ask that the customary practice apply to them. Any logical thinker would agree that it would be absurd and unsound an argument to make the Government Control forces any exception to the rule, and deny them the rights that the Drys possessed for years.

Yours truly,
BEVERLY McCARGAR.
Toronto, October 31st 1924.

CORRECTS FIGURES

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—Re Plebiscite Vote,—According to the returns published in your paper a few days ago and given as official, the City of Belleville was credited with giving a majority for question No. 2 of 592, whereas, according to the returns furnished me by the D.R.O.'s and scrutineers, the majority for question No. 2 was only 444 as follows:

	No. 1	No. 2
Advance Poll	26	233
No. 1	51	181
No. 2	74	132
No. 3	69	114
No. 4	105	95
No. 5	131	101
No. 6	80	93
No. 7	201	92
No. 8	83	75
No. 9	51	118
No. 10	204	134
No. 11	161	123
No. 12	72	112
No. 13	32	144
No. 14	31	104
No. 15	112	134
No. 16	64	149
No. 17	172	135
No. 18	179	140
No. 19	151	106
No. 20	110	106
No. 21	102	89
No. 22	43	111
No. 23	138	75
	2452	2896

These figures would give West Hastings a majority of 98 for question No. 1 instead of a majority of 50 for question No. 2.

Yours sincerely,
H. W. ACKERMAN.

WANTS ATHLETES

Editor Intelligencer:

Dear Sir:

The Guelph Cross Country Run and Road Race Association is again to the fore with a big program of Road Races to be held on Thanksgiving Day, 10th November, 1924, as set forth in the enclosed bill.

There are four open races and not less than six prizes will be awarded for each race. Over $1000.00 worth of prizes are offered, all of which have been donated by the citizens of Guelph It is not a money making venture but simply an effort to stimulate road racing and to give a day of first-class sport. Last year a large number of officials and others from out of the City were present and were high in their praise and commendation of the clean sport afforded and of the management of the Meet.

We are seeking publicity through the medium of your valuable journal and will be very grateful for any item of news you may feel disposed to publish to bring the Meet to the notice of your athletes. Guelph will gladly welcome them on that day and accord them an enjoyable time.

Thanking you in anticipation of anything you may do to assist us. I am,

Yours faithfully,
Lt.-Col. W. Simpson,
Secretary.

A PLEASANT JOB

Rattlesnakes are plentiful in parts of Ohio and everybody has a favorite "rattler" story to tell. But the best "rattler story" to date comes from a Hartsgrove man named Reed, who asserts that every word of it is true. While he was engaged in "haying" some particularly low land the poisonous reptiles were so thick that he was kept constantly on the jump as they rattled their warnings. He killed them during the day and harvested more snakes than he did hay. As the sun began to set he started home on a load of hay and had gone some distance before he discovered he had been sitting on a particularly large and fierce rattlesnake. There was just enough light for him to see that it was about to strike him. He hit it with his hay fork and killed it. This reptile aroused his ire because it had not "sounded its horn." When he had killed it he pulled it out of the hay to find out why. He discovered that the rattles had been cut off, evidently by the mower.

A two-shilling piece dropped on the footboard of an express train at Perth was still there when found at King's Cross. The owner is reported to have arrived a few minutes later, a little breathless.

The Argylls are having their Annual Clothing Inspection by District Headquarters and all clothing is being called in for Inspection at once. As soon as the Inspection is over same will be reissued to those concerned.

FOREST DESTRUCTION

(Manitoba Free Press)

If the people of Canada allow their forests to be dissipated, not only will the water supply of cities be affected, but many other evil results will also follow. Agriculture will suffer, water power on the rivers will be seriously affected by the less regular flow, and every industry dependent on forest production will be handicapped and have to raise the price to the public of its output. And Canada is heading right for this danger. Cutting is wasteful and destructive of the forests rther than conducive to continued growth. And this increases the fire peril. The general consumption is greater than the new growth, and Canada's forest capital is gradually being eaten away.

APARTMENTS ARE SCARCE IN PARIS

Forty-six thousand persons applied for 300 apartments advertised for rent by the City of Paris, France. The 300 apartments are contained in 15 new tenement buildings which the city recently had constructed.

Most of the applicants were eliminated because they were parents of less than four children. Even families with five children had a hard time getting houses. The city made it a rule to rent the houses to the families having the largest number of children.

The new building which are in the outskirts of the city, are something like the model tenement houses in New York City's better quarters. In each apartment there is plenty of light and air. Eighty per cent of the apartments have three or four rooms, and the other 20 percent are reserved for widows, war wounded, and others to whom the country feels that it owes special consideration. Most of these latter apartments have only one room.

Paris, finding its venture into the real estate business a pronounced success, contemplates building still more of the tenement houses within the next several years. It will be utterly impossible, however, to build enough apartments to accomodate all of homeless families in the city, officials declared after the flood of applications for rooms in the first new buildings.

Since 1901 Nursery Stations Have Been Transforming Waste Lands Into Green Farming Regions

Fifty million trees and shrubs are shading the Canadian prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, where a few years ago there was only cleared land or shrubs. The dominion government, through the co-operation of its citizens, has made possible the replanting of the land.

In 1901 the government established its stations for the free distribution of trees and shrubs to responsible farmers. That distribution now has reached the total of 50,000,000 trees and shrubs, in the care of which the settlers are assisted by a staff of trained forestry workers who travel from the nursery stations throughout the country.

The stations have been instrumental not only in tree planting but also in the transformation of the home environment in the prairie country. Each summer the stations send through the three provinces what is known as the "tree planting car."

A practical nursery man is the lecturer on the car, and with his assistant shows moving pictures to illustrate his speeches. The car is carried free of charge by the railroads. Last summer it covered 10,000 miles, stopping at 257 cities and towns and reaching about 30,000 persons.

About 50,000 Canadian farmers have formed a forestry association, whose members offer their time and services as a patriotic service to the dominion. Railroads also are aiding in the distribution of young trees and shrubs in the dominion.

KING OF HOBOES IS LEAVING THE ROAD

The king of hoboes, Jeff Davis, now in Philadelphia as the guest of the labor unions, is about through with the road. He wishes to go back to his wife and two children and his mother in Cincinnati, O., intending to arrive home October 29, 1925, the silver anniversary of his wedding.

Jeff is the king of hoboes because he has traveled farther than any other, some 850,000 miles. He has been around the world six times. He has proposed some national legislation that is now effective. He has visited all kinds of men, including rulers, and now he has an automobile with balloon tires. But he's going home and stay there.

One of the reasons for his return is the vow of his daughter, Cora, that she never will marry unless her father returns home. But there is another reason. Jeff is tired and eager to spend the rest of his life with his dear ones.

The wanderlust is dead within Jeff, and he desires to tell young boys to stay at home. He believes that a travel bureau should be organized to help lads who get the runaway fever. Jeff thinks this would be cheaper than sending such boys to reformatories to patch up their misdeeds.

When Jeff gets back to Cincinnati he plans to write for the newspapers He will stick to facts in his stories, he says, but some of the facts will be mighty unusual and interesting. Through these stories he also hopes to warn the boys of the nation not to follow in his footsteps he says, for he has found that a hobo's life does not pay well.

WHAT IS MOST WORTH?

(St. John Telegraph-Journal)

It does not seem reasonable that it should be necessary to force people to guard their health, and yet experience has taught us we are most careless of that which is most precious. We neglect the ordinary safeguards so necessary in family health. We need such reminders as are given by our provincial health organization. Hundreds of infants' lives have been saved by milk pasteurization, and yet there are many who will oppose this most necessary measure. Before we had inspection of milk and food, disease lurked in unsuspected forms in the necessaries of life.

Sparrows around the City Hall, Fort William, are again building nests, deceived by the spring-like weather.

Queens Plunged Into 3rd Victory

Defeated McGill at Kingston Easily on Saturday Afternoon

SPLENDID MACHINE

Leadley and Batstone Played Their Usual Brilliant Game

Kingston, November, 3.— Darting thrusts, brilliant kicking and speedy runs by the lightning Queen's backfield were more than the McGill University Rugby squad could stem at the George Richardson Memorial Stadium Saturday, and the tri-color captured their third straight victory of the 1924 Intercollegiate season by a score of 16 to 4.

McGill came out of the east with a record of a fighting game against the Dominion champions the week previous at Montreal, and the visiting collegians showed equally as strong a defensive as in the first meeting between the two squads this season, while their team play was improved.

But McGill had to face a different Queen's machine from that which carried the tri-color one week ago. The Queen's squad was so improved Saturday that they made the light red and white gridmen look weaker than was expected. If Rugby followers have been waiting this season for the Kingston collegians to show real championship form, they saw it in this battle.

It was almost the Queen's squad of the past two seasons. Where in Montreal Queen's lacked their old dash and fight and had no advantage on the line, relying solely on the two star backs—brunt of the battle, Saturday they displayed a fast-charging line, that gave plenty of interference. This allowed the two brilliant back field men their chances to get their famed plays away with speed. It was not necessary for them to cast around looking for openings. Instead the holes were made and they went through them.

Leadley Given Rest

But in the McGill defence they met stubborn opposition. The red and white line battled to the last whistle, while the tackling of their wings was deadly and hard. Batstone and Leadley were closely watched and, though they broke through on occasion for brilliant dashes for the most part they found themselves blocked by fast-sweeping wings. So steady was the tackling against the pair that toward the end of the game they began to show definite signs of the gruelling and finally Leadley had to be retired in the last quarter.

As in the game in Montreal it was not a great Rugby spectacle. The crowd of 6,000 at the stadium watched the squads battle through a struggle that had only occasional thrilling features but which was brimful of hard-fought, gruelling football.

Queens did not have the margin of play that the score would indicate. They fully deserved their win, for they played the smarter football in almost every department. Their lone touchdown of the game, however, was easily gained and proved an unfortunate "break" against McGill. The count came in the second quarter when Queens were trailing 2 to 0, but were in a fair way to gain points, as they were kicking with a strong wind at their backs. McGill was defending on the five-yard line when a penalty for holding was imposed by the officials, which also meant the loss of the ball. Five yards from their goal line, the penalty meant an almost certain touchdown—and it came After being held on the first down, "Red" McKelvey was given the ball and he somersaulted over the red and white defence for the try to which Leadley kicked the major point.

Smart Criss-Cross Play

Undaunted by the terrific penalty they paid for a minor offence, the red and white gridmen battled along grimly until the latter stages of the third quarter, when they had the count to 9 to 4 for Queen's. Just as the period was ending the real break in the game arrived—and it came as the result of a well-executed trick play that fairly demoralized the opposing defence. Leadley started off apparently on a custofary run around the McGill left, but tipped the ball to Gib McKelvey, who criss-crossed and hit the McGill left to smash through the forward bulwark. He raced 20 yards and, when tackled, passed out to Bud Thomas, who carried to McGill's 15 yard line. The teams changed over for the final quarter, and Leadley was left with an easy chance for a drop, of which he took full advantage. With the wind aiding Queen's maintained the punting game in the final period, adding five more singles. It might have been ten more singles but for the brilliant efforts of Eddie Hanna and Joe Cameron, who ran back half a dozen kicks anywhere from 15 to 25 yards to avoid being thrown for a rouge.

McGill suffered a further mishap when they lost Gordie Hughes early in the second period. Hughes had been booting splendidly up to the time he was charged by "Red" McKelvey and received a torn muscle on his left leg, an injury which will likely keep him from the game for the rest of the season. McKelvey was also responsible for a broken nose received by Philpott. Neither offence was of the type that draws penalties, though the sturdy Queens middle wing paid his respects to the penalty bench on another occasion for showing a desire to battle in other than orthodox fashion.

The Montreal collegians' best chances of piling up points were in the first quarter, when they were at full strength and had the advantage of the wind. Fumbles by the Queen's backfield, including both Batstone and Leadley, helped along the red and white cause. But were two excellent chances for field goals, but, lacking a kicker, onside kicks were attempted on both occasions. Neither proved successful, only going for one point each.

Leadley and Batstone were again themselves, Captain Leadley being especially prominent with his punting, drop kicking and running. He had a hard "break" on one attempted drop, when he was crowded by McGill wings and forced to get rid of the ball quickly. It hit the upright post. This pair, along with McKelvey and Reynolds, worked a line smashing game in the early quarters, drawing McGill in close before starting their extended runs in the second half. They showed equal ability both in hitting into the line or going around the ends.

Eddie Hanna and Joe Cameron played a remarkably fine game on the red and white half line, while Captain "Bones" Little, Philpott and Gordon were safe defensively. Blair handled the team smartly from the key position and kept the players fighting to the end, the visiting collegians giving everything they had during the game and being literally out at the end of the hard struggle.

There was an invasion by McGill rooters some 500 strong, who, led by their well-trained college band, served to make the side attractions to the game the most colorful witnessed since the opening of the new stadium. Teams: McGill—Gordon, flying wing; Cameron, Hanna, Hughes, half; Blair Quarter; Moore, Snap; Boucher, J. McCombe, inside; R. McCombe, Manson, middle; Philpott, Little, Outside. Substitutes—Murphy, Mickles, Glassco, Millen, Spears, Wright, Jones, asin.

Queen's—McLead, flying wing; Batstone, G. McKelvey, Leadley, half; Baldwin, Quarter; Lewis, Snap; Muirhead, Brown, inside; J. McKelvey, Reynolds, middle; Wright, Thomas, outside. Substitutes— Airth, Burley, Grondin, Skelton, Hannon, Abernethy and Chantler.

Greyhounds Stop Hardware Men

In Close Game at Recreation; Wanderers Win Five

Without exception, the best Senior game ever played at the Recreation Alleys took place on Saturday night between the Hardware and the Greyhounds and as far as the winners are concerned the question will have to be left with the executive of the league, if it makes any difference in the standing. Several mistakes were found on the score sheet after the game was over

The way the score sheet reads at present the Greyhounds won out by 4 pins, winning the first game by 25 pins and both teams rolling a tie score in the second, 1012 each. In the third, the Hardware were up 21 pins, or giving the game to the Greyhounds by 4 pins but as was stated before the game will be decided by the executive if it makes any difference to the standing.

Through an error of the management of the alleys, it gave the Hardware as winners of the first half, but this is incorrect as the game played Saturday was a postponed game, as it stands now there are three team tied for first place as follows, Hardware, Greyhounds and Wanderers.

In a scheduled ladies game the Wanderers made it five wins in a row and are safely on top of the ladies league winning from the Hikers by over 500 pins. Mrs. Lee and Miss Gartung rolled the highest scores for their respective teams. Players and scores:

Hockey Notes

Varsity has decided not to operate a team in the intermediate series of the O.H.A. this winter, but will have strong representations in the senior and junior series.

Contrary to reports, Bunny Cook, of the Soo Greyhounds has not signed a pro. hockey contract, and will again be with the Allan Cup holders.

Art Duncan has gone back to Vancouver and will captain the team there this year . Duncan has been given a big advance in salary. He is considered one of the best defence players in hockey.

Frank Foyston, Seattle star for several seasons, may not play hockey this winter. He is in business in Seattle.

St. Patricks are said to have offered Harry Watson a record salary and it will occasion no surprise if Watson accepts. St. Patricks, stung by the criticism hurled at them that they are not trying to strengthen the team, have jumped into the battle with determination and are making strong efforts to sign some of the amateur players.

The Eveleth club of the United States Hockey Association may secure two Canadian players to replace Galbraith and Hill the men who jumped to the Boston pros. The U. S. officials have given Eveleth permission to strengthen and will do the same with any other U.S. team which is weakened by the departure of players for pro. ranks.

Billy Boucher, star right winger of the world's champion Canadiens, has signed a contract for another season with his old team.

Norman ("Heck") Fowler, star goaltender of the Victoria hockey team for the past five years, has been sold to the Boston club of the National Hockey League, according to an announcement made by Lester Patrick, manager of the Victoria club. He will report this winter to his new club.

Three persons were badly injured and three were bruised when a two-car accommodation train running from Nelson, Neb., to Horton Kan., on the Rock Island overturned two miles from Pawnee City, Neb.

GRABS OFF FOUR FROM HAMILTON

Art Ross, who is to manage the Boston Club in the National Hockey League, has according to strong coming from Hamilton, the nucleus of a good team for this season's campaign. Ross, it is reported, has signed four of the Hamilton Tigers' amateur team which made such a good showing in the senior series of the Ontario Hockey Association last winter.

The four players reported to have signed are Carson Cooper, who was leading scorer for the O.H.A. for several seasons; Reg. Mitchell, who played on the wing; Redding a defence player, and Schnarr, a centre player.

It was stated that Ross has already in his possession the signed contract of Carson Cooper, notwithstanding reports that Cooper was the property of the Saskatoon Club. These players will report at Boston within a short time.

Argonauts Stop Tigers' Parade

They Beat Hamilton Squad By 10 to 4 On Saturday

Toronto, Nov. 3—Argonauts stopped Hamilton's string of successive victories in the Interprovincial Union here Saturday by slapping them with a 10 to 4 defeat and leaving the result of the championship race problematical. The Argos visit Hamilton Saturday, and the Tigers must win to capture their second straight title, but if the teams play back to their form of the first encounter, Tigers will finish as runners-up in the race with Argos out in front. On the play the scullers deserved the victory, and while it was not secured until full time was perilously near, they deserved a clear lead earlier in the game.

The Bengals defeat was due to the fact that on the day's play they were opposed by a better team. Begos' chance of victory depended on how their line would stand up against the Tigers' line of avoirdupois, whether Thom and Fear could successfully cope with the Hamilton tackling brigade, and whether Joe Breen's leg would stand the gaff. Argos' hopes in these three respects were fulfilled to overflowing. The line outplayed the greatly vaunted stalwarts of Tigers with the exception of about five minutes in the fourth period when th Bengals started a great line smashing onslaught that carried the ball fifty yards and placed them in an ideal position for a drop kick, 25 yards out from the Argos' goal. And Carl Quinn did the needful which gave the visitors a one point lead with less than ten minutes to go. While this looked as big as the mountain which made Hamilton famous, the effort was a costly one for the Jungle Kings and from then on the Scullers were once again the better team.

Breen Outstanding

The question of Breen's knee standing the strain was answered in no uncertain way. Varsity Stadium has witnessed great displays by all the greatest backs of the last fifteen or more years, but it is doubtful if his performance of Saturday has ever been eclipsed.

It was a kick by Breen in the fourth period that proved the turning point of the game. Argos' after leading all the way until the final period, had fallen back before the Tigers' smashing attack and the lead had been wiped out by Quinn's drop kick. Many thought Argos would break under this reverse. Time was drawing to an end; Tigers had the lead and the ball was on the Scullers' 25 yard line. The double blue warriors showed they had the heart by ripping into the Tigers and steadily driving them back and finally the winners secured on Tigers' 5-yard line on a fumble.

On the first down Breen was given the ball for a kick and he hoisted it for over 60 yards, the ball not striking the ground until it was over the dead-line and the score was tied. The Bengals presented a stubborn resistance and Argos failed to gain on two smashes MacKenzie decided to try an onside kick and there was a mass of leaping players after the ball behind Tigers' line and it took the officials some time to uncover the ball, which was found underneath Thom. This sent the oarsmen's total up to ten and Tigers needed a converted touch down to tie the score. Once again Tigers tried an onside, but Dinsmore secured and time was called.

Tiger line up:

Fly. wing, Veal; backs, R. Crocker, Gibb, Rayner; quarter, Evans; centre Cox; insides, Reid, Baker; Middles Timmis Elford; outsides, Weaver, Walker.

Argo line up:

Fly wing, Barrett, backs, Reeves Breen, Dinsmore; quarter, MacKenzie centre, Bradley; insides, Wright, Wilson; middles, Miles, Douglas; outsides Fear Thom.

May Kick Puck Around Centre Ice

New Ruling Is Made for N. H. L. This Season

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Applications for franchises in the National Hockey League, held Saturday at the Windsor Hotel, Colonel John Hammond, of the Madison Square Garden syndicate, presented the case for the proposed New York club, while Richard Caroll, of Pittsburgh, represented the Pittsburgh promoters. It is the intention of these two cities if possible, to enter the N.H.L. with teams next season. No decision was reached in either case the representatives being asked to formally file their applications. Mr. Mastbaume ,a theatrical man, of Philadelphia, also interviewed the N.H.L. directors on the question of a franchise in the circuit, but his case was less definite than that brought forward by the other two club representatives.

Rules and proposed changes were discussed at some length by the delegates, but of the many considered there was but one change. That allows for kicking the puck in the centre ice area, that is kicking the puck in the no-offside area has been legalized. Kicking the puck is allowed under western rules all over the ice, except that it cannot be kicked into the goal.

PRINCE CLOSED UP WEMBLEY

London, Nov. 3.—Rainy weather, which dogged the British Empire Exhibition all Summer persisted Saturday for the official closing ceremony, at which the Prince of Wales was present. Despite the downpour, nearly 50000 persons turned out to get a glimpse of the Prince back from his American tour, but most of those in the stadium were disappointed, as a thick fog settled over the arena, just before the royal car arrived.

PETERBORO CLUB UP AGAINST IT

The treasury of the Peterboro Baseball Club of the Central Ontario League is a vacuum. The Parks committee of the Peterboro city council met A deputation of Peterboro Baseball Association was heard. The city rented the ball field of the Central Ontario League Riverside Park, for one thousand dollars. Of this the club paid two hundred and fifty dollars, and on Thursday the city reported their treasury a vacuum with nothing in sight to fill it and pay the balance of $750. The city was reported as the club's largest creditor. Alderman Phelan an official of the club, showed they had had a good season. The club owes a sporting goods dealer six hundred dollars and has a note due for five hundred in the bank. Mayor Turner wanted some kind of concrete promise on the seven hundred and fifty dollars. The chairman told the deputation that, relying on the thousand the city had spent fourteen hundred on improving Riverside Park The ball club will consider a compromise to be soon submitted.

DODGE BROTHERS TO LOCATE IN TORONTO

Toronto, Nov. 3.—Dodge Bros. Limited (Canada), have completed negotiations for the leasing, with an option of purchasing, of the Dufferin Street property formerly occupied by the Canadian Airplane Factory. They propose to establish an assembly plant that will be one of the largest in Canada, and will be largely devoted to export business. According to their appraisal, the buildings have a value of $627,000 and the land $5,000 an acre.

Doris smiled.

"Perhaps they will hiss me off the stage!" she said, but she did not say it very fearfully.

He shook his head, and went on in his monotonous pacing; and presently a familiar sound struck his ear.

"The curtain is up on the farce," he said; "You had better begin to dress. Is there anything I can do—anything I can suggest—anything you would like to ask me?" he inquired, with his long, thin fingers on the handle of the door.

Doris shook her head.

"No, Jeffrey, dear; I don't know of anything, unless you would get into my skin, and play Juliet instead of me."

"You are not nervous?" he asked.

"Not a bit," she answered; "and that is strange, isn't it? No, I feel as calm and easy as if I were going to play a waiting-maid's part; but I shall be all on the quiver when I am standing at the wings, ready to go on."

He nodded, as if he understood, and went out, sending her dresser to her.

Doris dressed quietly and slowly. Jeffrey had impressed upon her the importance of avoiding all hurry just before her appearance and she had finished, and was sitting before the glass, not looking at herself, but musing, as it seemed, when he came in again.

"Dressed? That is right! The house is crammed! The manager says it is the best house he has had since Mr. Irving was here. The boxes look like London boxes, people in evening dress, and ladies with flowers."

He stood in front of her and scanned her dress and get-up keenly.

The dress was of white satin, made quite plainly, with a long train, its only ornament a row of pearls, which were not stage jewels, but real, and of great value and a present from Jeffrey himself. Her dark hair, looking black by the light, fell round her exquisitely-shaped face like a frame, and, caught up by a white ribbon behind, swept in curving tresses to her shoulders. The faint touch of rouge—every actress must rouge, whether she likes it or not—gave the intense blue eyes an added depth and brilliance, which the long dark lashes veiled now and again but to rise and render the brilliance an color more marked by their temporary concealment.

It was not his way to praise her beauty, but as he turned away he muttered something that sounded like approval.

"Did you see any one you know in front, Jeffrey?" she asked.

"No," he said, almost impatiently. "I know no one! I suppose all the people in the boxes are county people, I do not know! I only care for the pit and gallery; it is from them you must get your verdict, the boxes and stalls will follow suit."

"Poor county people!" she said, with a smile, but absently.

"Of what are you thinking—the third scene?" he asked.

Doris started, and the natural color forced its way through the powder and rouge. She was not thinking of Romeo and Juliet at all, but of the handsome face that lay in her lap yesterday afternoon, of the young fellow whose name was Cecil Neville.

"I—I don't know," she said, faltering a little. "I think I was dreaming, Jeffrey."

"Then you must wake up," he retorted firmly, but not unkindly. "I heard the curtain go down on the farce. Will you have a glass of wine?"

She shook her head, and looked at him with smiling surprise.

"And you, who are always preaching against it!" she said.

"I know," he admitted; "but tonight——"

The manager knocked at the door. He was a keen, business man, just and not ungenerous, and he nodded and smiled at the beautiful vision admiringly and encouragingly.

"Beautiful house, Miss Marlowe," he said, "and in the very best of tempers; a child might play with them tonight."

"Ah, it is only a child who is going to play to them, Mr. Brown!" said Doris.

He laughed approvingly.

"By George, that's good! I must remember that. How do you feel?"

"Frightened out of my life!" said Doris. "Do not be surprised if I forget my part, and am hissed off!" but her smile belied her words.

"If you are I'll close the theatre and take to—market gardening!" retorted the manager.

"Let her alone! I do not want her to talk!" growled Jeffrey, and Mr. Brown, shrugging and making a grimace behind the bent back, glanced at his watch and hurried off, saying——

"Ten minutes, Miss Marlowe!"

"Ten minutes!" said Doris dreamily. "Leave me now, Jeffrey, dear."

He laid his hand on her shoulder and looked down at her with a world of wistful tenderness and pride and loving anxiety.

"Do your best, Doris!" he said.

"I will, for your sake, Jeffrey!" she responded, touching his hand caressingly.

"No, for your art's," he said gravely. "I shall be at the wings."

Now that she was left alone, Doris tried to concentrate her thoughts upon the coming ordeal; but she could not Each time she tried to picture herself upon the stage and speaking the lines set down for Juliet, the voice of Cecil Neville rang in her ears, and with a low cry, almost of alarm, she put her hands to her head.

"Ah, thats stage fright!" said the dresser. "I know what it is miss; I've had it myself, in my old acting days. But it will pass off directly you face the house, depend upon it. Don't be afraid and nervous; for, Miss Marlowe I've heard that the very first actors feel like that, some of them every night, too."

Doris laughed softly.

"Do they Mrs. Parkhouse?" she said. "Then there is hope for me. There is the overture over. Not many minutes now; the curtain is up!"

She bent her head upon her hands and forced herself to think of the scene that was at that moment being played, to think of the good-looking young fellow—a great Barton favorite—who was playing Romeo; but marvel of marvels, instead of his face, which she knew so well, there rose before her, as Romeo, the face over which she had bent yesterday.

"Ah, it is no use, no use!" she cried, springing up.

"Oh, don't say that, miss!" said Mrs. Parkhouse, who had been watching her with respectful anxiety. "I'm sure—we're all of us sure and certain that it will be a success. It will all go right directly you get on to the stage."

"Do you think so?" said Doris with a curious smile. "I hope so—ah, I hope so; if not——"

"Juliet!" shouted the call boy; and leaving her sentence unfinished, Doris caught up her train and went to the wings.

If your eyes are normal

You are to be congratulated, because not many eyes are. The trouble is there is no way to learn whether you have normal sight or not except by undergoing an examination. Too many people guess about their eyes, or take too much for granted. Learn the truth whatever it is, then act accordingly. A short time spent here would decide the matter for you.

THE SOLDIER'S CAT

During the Crimean War a French soldier was leaving his native village with his corps, when a little cat came running after him. It would not go back, so he put in in his knapsack and carried it along. Day by day she was perched up thus, and every night slept by his side. One day a great battle was to be fought, so the soldier left pussy behind with a sick comrade. After he had gone about a mile on the way the cat came running up to him, so he took it on his back again. Musket and cannon balls were now flying around. The soldier fell twice, but at last a dreadful wound laid him bleeding on the field. The cat, instead of running away, jumped to the place where the blood was flowing, and began to lick the wound. The army doctor then came, and the lad was carried to the hospital tent. When he recovered consciousness, he asked whether he would live or not, and the doctor said: "Yes, thanks to your kind pussy; she has used her tongue well and has stopped the flow of blood, otherwise you would have died." Pussy was then much petted, and was allowed to stay with her master.

EGGS IN NESTS

- 2 cups hot mashed potatoes
- 4 tbspns butter
- 4 eggs
- 2 tbspns grated cheese
- 1-2 cup hot milk
- Salt and pepper.

The potatoes should be mashed very carefully or better still, put through the ricer. When smooth add butter, salt and pepper and beat well. Beat in the milk, keeping the potatoes hot. Add cheese and beat well. The mixture should be light and moist. (More milk maybe needed, depending on the potatoes). Butter individual baking dishes and half fill with mixture. Make a depression in the centre of each dish and break an egg into each cavity. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake until whites are set.

Burns Does Some Real Fast Work

In Making 'The Guilty One' Now At Belle Theatre

Fifteen minutes after Edward Burns had been introduced to Agnes Ayres he fought with her and then kissed her. But it was all for motion pictures, occurring at the Paramount West Coast Studios during production of Joseph Henabery's "The Guilty One" in which Miss AyresAyres is featured, with Burns as her leading man.

Burns, who recently appeared in a leading role in "The Humming Bird" in support of Gloria Swanson, was late in arriving from New York. During his absence production was started on episodes in which he was not needed.

The first scene waiting for him was one where he quarrels with Miss Ayres and then embraces her in repentance.

"This," said Burns, "is a real welcome back to California."

"The Guilty Ont," a gripping mystery drama laid in New York City, will be shown at the Belle Theatre to-night to remain until Thursday. Clarence Burton, George Seigman and other big names appear in the strong supporting cast.

Thinks Canada Was Discourteous

In Not Consulting China Before Passing Exclusion Law

The regular meeting of the Ministerial Association was held in the Y.M. C.A. this morning and was addressed by Rev. J. D. McRae and Dr. Laidlaw Mr. McRae spoke on the Chinese Exclusion Act. He considered that the Chinese had received discourteous treatment from Canadians. While he did not claim that Chinese should not be excluded from Canada, still the Ottawa Government should have consulted the Pekin authorities before the passing of the legislation, and this was not done. Mr. McRae also explained the nature of the conflict going on in China now.

Dr. Laidlaw spoke on the resources of the church to meet the demands of the present age.

Rev. N. S. McKechnie presided at the meeting. Dr. W. S. MacTavish moved a vote of thanks to the speakers which was seconded by Dr. F. E. Malott.

GRAY HAIR IS QUICKLY MADE DARK, GLOSSY

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

McFAUL—CURRIE

A very pleasant but quiet event took place on October 17th, at 7.30 p.m. at the Methodist Parsonage, of Rev. Dr. W E Burnett, Grand Rapids Michigan, when Miss May Currie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Currie, of Bedford Park Avenue, Toronto, became the bride of Mr. Harold H. McFaul, only surviving son of Dr. F. H. and Mrs. McFaul, Dovercourt Road, Toronto. The bride was attired in a dress of sand shade brocaded silk with lace yoke and trimmings and looked charming. The young couple were unattended and only immediate relatives were present to witness the marriage. After a short honeymoon trip the happy young couple took up their home on State St., where the groom is engaged as Manager of Joseph P. Lynch Sales Co. Grand Rapids, Michigan, U. S. A.

The bride who is very popular among her associates is a niece of Mrs. John Nicholson, third line of Thurlow, and her many friends in Belleville and vicinity, extend heartiest congratulations and bon voyage on the matromonial sea of life.

For Boys and Girls

THE FROG AND THE TURTLE

Once upon a time the frog and the turtle began to quarrel. The frog said he could hop the fastest, and the turtle said he could run the fastest. So they finally decided that the only thing to do was to have a race.

They told all the stream and wood folk that the next day they would have a race. So the next day all the stream and wood-folk assembled to see them race. Finally all was ready and off they started.

The frog soon got ahead of the turtle and he would have won the race but just as he got near the goal line he stopped. He had been out of the water so long that his skin was cracked. So the turtle won the race after all.

FIRE BUCKETS

Here is a game that is great fun and receives its name from the old way of passing buckets of water from hand to hand in volunteer fire companies. The players form in two lines opposite each other, with captains at their head who have a basket or box filled with various articles such as handkerchiefs, hair ribbons button hooks, shoe horns, pocket knives, etc. These are to be passed on one at a time until the end of the line is reached. The last player deposits the articles on the ground beside him and begins at once to pass them back. The side that first passes all the objects back to the captain wins the game.

RIDDLES

Why is a thump like a hat? Because it is felt.

Why does a pig eat? To make a hog of himself.

Why is a miner like a boatman? He handles the oar (ore).

When is a doctor most annoyed? When he is out of patience (patients).

Why is your eye like a man being flogged? Because it is under the lash.

EARLY RISERS AMONG BIRDS

Most human beings require from seven to eight hours sleep a day, and almost all animals rest from ten to to fourteen hours out of the twenty-four.

ferently. As a rule, they go to roost as soon as it is dark, and wake up

Birds seem to be constituted dif-

as soon as dawn comes. This means than in mid-winter a bird spends two-thirds of its time roosting, but in the summer the proportions are reversed, and the bird is out and about for at least seventeen hours out of the twenty-four.

All birds do not rise at the same time. Indeed there is a difference of an hour and a half between the rising-time of different British birds, as gathered from the exact time at which their first notes are heard.

The lark is the first to wake, and its clear song has been heard as early as two minutes past three. Thrush and blackbird come next, about a quarter of an hour later. The sedge-warbler and the reed-bunting begin to sing a few minutes later, and at half-past three the robin's sweet song may be heard.

The cuckoo also begins to call at half-past three, and a little later the rook's first caw will be heard. The garden warbler begins at twenty to four; then there is a gap of nearly a quarter of an hour before the hedge-sparrow breaks out into song.

Just before four the wren sings—a wonderful volume of sound from such a tiny throat—and at four you may hear the first notes of the great tit.

The chaffinch's metallic call begins at a quarter past four, and a little later the twittering of the house-martin is audible. Next comes the green-finch, and last of all, at about twenty to five, the spotted fly-catcher and the dainty tree-creeper get busy.

NEWS BRIEFS

Arthur Oberg, 16 year old farmer, blamed the ransom letters of Loeb and Leopold for his plight when he appeared in court at Minneapolis and pleaded guilty to attempt to use the mails to defraud.

Times have changed, in the opinion of Mrs. Eliza G. Rhodes, who at 81 years of age enjoyed her first air flight at this year's Iowa State Fair. When she attended the first Iowa fair, held 70 years ago, a ride in an ox cart provided her only thrill.

Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant who established the "Filene Peace Award," in Europe, is for John W. Coolidge, because, he says, the latter never showed any leadership for progressive constructive reforms in his home State of Massachusetts.

Because his conscience has bothered him during the year since he was graduated from Alfred University, near Hornell, N. Y., an alumnus, whose name is withheld, now a prominent and prosperous resident of a Southern city has sent back his college diploma to President Booth C. Davis.

The French Pacifist, Professor Basch delivered his address in Potsdam, as announced before an audience of 500 people. The crowds in the streets in the vicinity were well marshalled by strong bodies of police fully armed. The hall itself was surrounded by other police officers. Stink bombs were thrown in an effort to prevent the Frenchman from speaking, but did not have the desired effect.

Carrying his campaign into the populous sections of New York's east side and the Bronx, John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, predicted a Democratic victory for the national, congressional and New York state ticket headed by Governor Alfred E. Smith. He assailed "scandals and corruption" in government and declared that "the time has come for the American people to face about and get back on sound principles of democracy instead of the quagmire of privilege

Expecting Labor To Resign Soon

Lady Astor May Be Given Place in The Cabinet

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 3.—It is expected in well-informed quarters that the Labor Government will resign to-morrow, and that the King in accordance with custom, will call upon Stanley Baldwin as leader of the victorious Conservative party, to form a new ministry. It is expected that Baldwin will be able to announce chief appointment at end of this week.

There is much speculation over the Cabinet but it is all speculative. It is note worthy however, that virtually all political writers agreed that Lord Curzon will not head the foreign office again. The Daily Express says strong influences are working to have Lady Astor or Duchess of Athol included in the ministry.

FIGHTING PLAGUE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Los Angeles, Nov. 3.—State and Federal health authorities today were rushing to the aid of Los Angeles, in its fight to block spread of pnemonic plague which at latest reports today had claimed 21 victims in city's Mexican quarters. Ten cases under treatment at General Hospital wer esaid to be critical. The State Health Department official announced that prospects for bringing the epidemic under control are good. Squads of policemen guard Mexican quarter. Mortality rate of disease which is allied to Bubonic plague approaches one hundred per cent.

WOULDN'T ABOLISH SENATE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Weyburn, Sask., Nov. 3.—Speaking here Saturday night, Premier King dealt with Senate reform. He said be was not in favor of abolishing the Senate, but he would abolish some of the older members of it. It was very undesirable that the will of the people appointed to office for their natural life, should be thwarted by any body of men he said.

"The funny thing about senate is, that when anyone is appointed to that body, his natural life is almost twice as long as it should otherwise be" the Premier added.

CHICAGO MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 3—Wheat underwent a material sag in price today during early quotations. There was lack of aggressive buying and quotations at Liverpool were lower. Initial prices which varied from unchanged figure to 3-8c lower, were followed by general setback of one cent or more and then by something of rally. Despite bullish new estimates of corn yield corn market was eased by clear, cold weather likely to help enlarge receipts. After opening at 1-8 to 3-4c off, prices recovered somewhat. Oats paralleled action of corn. Starting at 1-4c to 3-8 down, market dropped little further and then rallied. Higher quotations on hogs were accompanied by upturn in provision market.

TORONTO MARKET

Toronto, Nov. 3—Receipts heavy trade slow; heavy beef steers 625 to 75 butcher steers, choice, 525 to 6; butcher cows, medium, 3 to 350; calves 1 to 11; lambs ewes, 12 to 1250; hogs selects, off car 1095.

From Africa to Toronto via Dublin

A lion and a lioness destined for the Toronto Zoo emitted no roars of protest as they were placed with their travelling cases of oak and iron aboard a Dominion Express car at the Canadian Pacific Windsor Station, Montreal, recently. The male of the specie was born in South Africa about three years ago while the lioness first saw the light of day about the same time in the Royal Zoological Gardens, Dublin, Ireland, from whence they have both come, a present to the Toronto Parks commission. The Toronto Parks Commission will shortly send a pair of deer to Dublin in reciprocation.

Betting 11 To 1 On Republicans

United States Candidates to Broadcast Their Last Speeches

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov 3.—Following the Republican forecasts of certain victory at the polls to-morrow, betting odds that Coolidge would win presidential race went to 11 to 1 to-day.

A prominent Wall street firm announced an offer to lay $55,000 against $5,000 on the President. Odds against Senator LaFollette, leader of the independent party were 35 to 1 in Wall street. Odds against John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee were quoted today at 13 to 1. One estimate placed total bets so far in Wall street on various nominees at a million and a half dollars.

The United States' election campaign of 1924 is passing through its final hours in a swirl of activity destined to make political history. For the first time, two presidential candidates, President Coolidge and John W. Davis are preparing to address the election eve message to a radio audience that will extend the country over. The vice-presidential candidates, Governor Bryan and Senator Wheeler, are upsetting precedent, by continuing through the day their speaking campaigns in Nebraska and Maryland respectively.

PARIS WOULD NOT LISTEN TO KREISLER

Paris, Nov. 3.—As a result of the general protest here, Fritz Kreisler, the Austrian violinist, has cancelled his concert tour in the Paris Opera, announced for November 11.

Ardent patriots resented the appearance of a former enemy in Paris on Armistice Day and as soon as he heard of the protests Kreisler called it off.

It was to be his first appearance in Paris since the war.

Senator LaFollette awaits the result of an election at his home in Madison, Wis., and Charles G. Dawes, has returned to his residence in Evanston. Fair weather is the forecast for election day and a record vote is probable.

Re-invest in Values —such as these

Investors who have received cash for their maturing Victory Bonds and wish to reinvest their funds to advantage, will find that the following high-grade bonds offer an opportunity for sound investment with an attractive interest return:

Dominion of Canada
Guaranteed
(Issued by Can. National Rly.)
5% Bonds due 1954

These Bonds are secured by the full credit and taxing power of the Dominion of Canada equally with its Victory Bonds. The Dominion Government guarantees unconditionally payment as to principal and interest. These Bonds show the highest yield, at this time, of any long term Dominion Government obligation.

Price to yield 4.90%

Canadian Pacific Rly.
5% Bonds due 1934

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is generally recognized as one of the world's greatest and most efficiently managed transportation Companies.

The present market value of the Company's securities ranking junior to these Bonds, which are the premier security of the Company, is over $440,000,000.

Price to yield over 5%

Montreal Metropolitan Commission
5% Bonds due 1951

The sixteen municipalities under the control of the Commission, among which is the City of Montreal, are jointly and severally responsible for this issue. The Bonds, therefore, have even greater security behind them than those of the City of Montreal.

Price to yield 5%

Duke-Price Power Co.
6% Bonds due 1949

This power development, one of the most up-to-date on the continent, is almost unique among large hydro-electric situations. The power plant can be operated at high capacity throughout the entire year, and the bonded debt of $33.00 per h.p. is the lowest of any known comparable development.

Price to yield 6.04%

Swedish Government
5½% External Bonds due 1954

Sweden with an area of over 173,000 square miles is one of the largest countries of Europe. It is rich in natural resources which include iron ore, copper, nickel, zinc, gold and silver. Her iron deposits rank among the most important in Europe. Sweden enjoys a very high credit rating, and her per capita debt is one of the lowest of the important nations of the world.

Price to yield over 5.50%

Kingdom of Norway
6% External Bonds due 1944

Norway is one of the richest countries of Northern Europe. Her wealth is estimated at $3,350,000,000 or 9½ times the national debt. Norway has very large water power resources, and her principal industries are shipping, lumbering, fishing, electro-chemical and paper manufacturing. The total debt of the country is low compared with that of other important nations. As in her sister kingdom Sweden, the character of the people inspires the greatest confidence.

Price to yield 6.15%

Hon. Motherwell To Retire Soon

Hinted That Hon. T. A. Crerar May Take His Place

Ottawa, November 3.—It is expected that Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, will resign shortly from the King Cabinet owing to ill health. It is stated here that his physician has advised that to continue to administer such a large department as that of agriculture in his present state of health would be fatal and within a short time he will give up his portfolio.

The resignation of Mr. Motherwell will necessitate further Cabinet reorganization and Mr. King will be forced to make such changes as will help him when he goes to the country in 1925. It would therefore be no surprise if Hon. T. A. Crerar, at present Progressive member for Marquette, should be included in the King Cabinet as Minister of Agriculture, a position which he held in the Union Government under Sir Robert Borden. He resigned from the Union Government in 1919 when the war was over. Mr. King in his present tour of the West has held out the olive branch to the western Progressives, and in his speeches has emphasized the union which ought to exist between the Liberals and Progressives to fight the Conservatives. The inclusion of Mr. Crerar in his Cabinet would mean the realization of a cherished dream of the Prime Minister, who has before made several efforts to get Mr. Crerar and Mr. Hudson into his Cabinet. With Mr. Crerar in his Cabinet he could make a strong appeal to the West for support in the next election, though it is not quite certain yet if Mr. Crerar will accept. Mr. King must consider on his return the whole question of Cabinet reorganization. The recent speech of Sir Henry Thornton regarding immigration has directed attention to the fact that Hon. Mr. Robb, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, is also acting Minister of Finance. He thus holds the two most important portfolios in the Government. There is no question of Mr. Robb's capacity or ability, but it is not fair to him or to the country that he should be compelled to hold two portfolios of such importance. Before next session it is felt Mr. King should strengthen his Cabinet for what will probably be his last session.

In the event of Mr. Motherwell's resignation, he will retire from politics to his farm in Saskatchewan. He has been in politics in that province since 1894 and was provincial Minister of Agriculture in Saskatchewan from 1905 to 1918. During last session he was severely criticized for his treatment of Dr. Torrance, veterinary director-general, by the Opposition and drew down upon his head from Mr. Meighen a strong indictment.

Mr. Motherwell was never regarded as an exceptionally strong member of the Government.

SUMMER RESORT WAS THREATENED

Grand Bend, Ont., Nov. 3.—Fire laid bare about 2,000 acres of land at the north end of the famous Pinery Saturday afternoon and threatened for a time to destroy al lthe cottages owned by London people in the Summer resort here. Only a turn of the wind and very hard work by a number of Londoners and by residents of this community saved the Summer camp.

THOUSANDS ARE GOING HOME FOR THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving this year falling on Monday, November 10th, allows an unusually long week-end, and permits travelling distances which would be impossible in a shorter period. Thousands are arranging to visit the home folks or out-of-town friends.

The passenger Department of the Canadian National Railways are making special arrangements on all routes to provide the public with every travelling comfort. Nevertheless, as it is impossible to estimate the number who will be travelling, it would be wise for all those who anticipate taking advantage of this occasion to make their reservations as soon as possible.

MOTHER AND SON KILLED IN WRECK

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Mrs. E. Dupont, 60 years old, of Farnham, Quebec, and her son, E. Dupont, 30, of Montreal, were instantly killed and two other persons were injured, one of them seriously at a level crossing accident on the Canadian National tracks opposite the St. Hubert station, a village four miles east of St. Lambert, and about three miles from Montreal, yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred when the automobile in which they were driving stalled on the tracks and was crashed into by the train and by another automobile from the rear, simultaneously.

PLUMBING AND SEWAGE

Systems Recommended Suitable for Rural Homes

Hot and Cold Water on Tap Is a Boon—Sewage Disposal—The Septic Tank—Extension Work of Physics Department—Watering the Garden.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Hot and cold water on tap, kitchen sink, laundry tubs, bathtub, shower bath, and water flush closet, and the necessary pipes for carrying away the wastes to some suitable sewage disposal system in the yard outside.

A very good system complete can be put in the average-sized home for $350, and in view of the fact that it will last a lifetime with very little outlay for repairs, it is one of the best investments one can make. It will give you real worth while service every day for a cost of about 3½ cents a day figured on interest and depreciation.

In the Physics Building, O. A. C., there is installed a complete plumbing system for inspection of students and visitors interested in this work. It demonstrates the simplest method possible of putting the various parts together, thereby saving both material and labor to the greatest possible degree. If you are interested drop in and see it, and maybe we can assist you in getting that very necessary equipment in your home—modern plumbing.

Sewage Disposal.

To perfect the plumbing system just referred to it is necessary to build some suitable construction for disposing of the sewage and waste from the home. In the country this must be either a cesspool or septic tank. The cesspool may be all right for a time in porous gravelly well-drained soils, but usually it is a menace to health by contaminating the water supply or becoming a nuisance whenever it overflows. The septic tank is the modern method, and gives good satisfaction as a rule. We have a very fine working or demonstrating model of it installed on a large table in the Physics Building, and it is very useful for showing people just what the system is like and how it operates.

The Septic Tank.

It consists of a large concrete tank divided into two compartments by a vertical partition. The size for a single house is about 4 feet x 8 feet and 3½ feet deep. This tank holds the sewage long enough for a certain kind of bacteria to destroy the solid matter. When the liquid accumulates to a certain amount a non-mechanical affair called a siphon empties one of the chambers into a system of field tile, called the absorption bed, laid shallow under the ground. Any remaining sewage is destroyed in the soil by another kind of bacteria that live near the top of the ground. In this way these friendly bacteria are enabled to do a very valuable work for us. This is science applied to a useful purpose.

We supply bulletin and blue-print to anyone wishing to build a septic tank. All necessary information is given in these, and by their helpful suggestions any handy man can build it. Cost for cement, siphon, fittings and tile amounts to about $52. The tank may be located close to the house and the tile laid under the lawn or garden.

Extension Work of the Department of Physics.

The extension activities of the Department of Physics assist those seeking advice or assistance in connection with the regular branches of the department's extension activities, including: Installation of water and sewage systems, lightning rod installations, drainage surveys, farm cold storage, silo construction, anti-freeze mixtures. Blue prints of septic tank installation, hydraulic rams, protection of wells, small ice cold storages, types of ice houses, water supply systems and farm plumbing have been prepared, and are now obtainable upon request from the Physics Department, Ontario Agricultural College. —R. R. Graham, O. A. College, Guelph.

Watering the Garden.

Remember that a good soaking once a week is more beneficial than light sprinkling daily. Be judicious in your use of the hose. Leafy vegetables do not mind having their tops soaked, as well as the roots. But fruit bearing plants and vines, like tomatoes, eggplant, cucumbers, peppers and melons should not have the tops soaked at all. It washes away the pollen in the blossoms and is apt to cause blight and fungous diseases.

Don't water the garden in the heat of the day. Wait until late in the afternoon, and when it has been given a good soaking it will have time to soak into the soil to enable you to rake up the surface easily next morning, preventing the soil baking and conserving the moisture. Regular soakings for the ever-bearing strawberries and other small fruits, followed by mulching, will prolong the fruit bearing season and improve the quality. Too much watering of grapevines tends to cause an excess of cane growth but a reasonable amount is desirable.

There might be an excuse for using an inferior sow if you already have her on the place, but we can not think of one single excuse for ever using an inferior sire.

Until breeders mate animals whose factors determining producing ability are known to be for high production only, they are going to get many low and medium producers from parents that are from high producing ancestry.

The fool and his motor are useful in locating the dangerous curves and crossings so that the wise may slow down when approaching them.

"Now," he continued, "The electors of West Hastings are a jury which must pronounce upon the issue. Mr. Porter must be elected, so see to it that not one name is left off the voters' list who agree with the stand taken by Mr. Porter. It will be a grand message to send to Hon. Arthur Meighen on the night of November 25th that Mr. Porter has been returned by a handsome majority.

"Poll every vote possible for Mr. Porter on the 25th. It is an important election, which should command the interest of everyone, for the re-election of Mr. Porter will show a vindication of what he has done with regard to the Murdock charges."

Election of officers followed, as well as the appointment of committees for the various wards and polling subdivisions in the city, so that the city is thoroughly organized.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. Dr. J. W. Kinnear.
First vice-president—Miss Jessie McLean.
Second vice-president—Mrs. A. R. White.
Third vice-president, —Mrs. Cotter.
Secretary-treasurer—Mrs. James Hurst

WHEEL FROM AUTO CRASHED IN WINDOW

Tillsonburg, Ont., Nov. 3.—A very peculiar accident occurred on Main Street about 7.45 p.m. Saturday. Mr. Palmer was driving his auto down street when the front right wheel came off, bounded fifty feet away up over an eighteen inch-curb and then smashed into the front window of Mr. Chas. Greaves' store with a crash that could be heard for blocks. The street was crowded with cars and Saturday night shoppers narrowly escaped serious injuries. The wheel was replaced and the car proceeded on its way.

Republican headquarters in Chicago express confidence that the speech of Charles Evans Hughes delivered there had successfully clinched the Republican campaign in Illinois. Hughes centered his address upon a "don't rock the boat" plea, insisting that "the best assurance of prosperity in this country is to secure on November 4 the election of Calvin Coolidge." "It wouldn't take much to destroy our prosperity," the secretary of state declared "All yo uhave to do is to shatter confidence."

Rub Pain Of Rheumatism From Joints

St. Jacob's Oil stops any pain, and rheumatism is pain only.

Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop drugging! Rub soothing, penetrating St. Jacob's Oil right into your sore, stiff, aching joints, and relief comes instantly. St. Jacob's Oil is a harmless rheumatism liniment, which never disappoints, and cannot burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest St. Jacob's Oil at any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness and stiffness. Don't suffer! Relief awaits you. St. Jacob's Oil is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains.

A Burning Skin

At this season is merely Nature's reminder of undue exposure to raw wind. Folks who are wise will forestall this trouble by applying Nyal's Face Cream. PUBLIC HELPS DRIVE YOUNG FROM FARMS

In Its Attitude Toward the Worth of Farmers To-day

SPEAKER AT KIWANIS

Hon. Duncan Marshall Urges Better Education For Agriculture

Hon. Duncan Marshall, Dominion organizer of the Liberal party and ex-minister of agriculture in the province of Saskatchewan, who addressed the Kiwanis Club at noon to-day, laid his finger on a certain attitude of many Canadian people as being responsible for the backwardness of agriculture. Folk who make fun of the farmer, who help create the belief that life on the farm is not all roses, are doing a great deal to drive young people from the farms according to the remarks of the speaker.

After pointing out the manner in which cities and towns were dependent on the prosperity of the farmer for good times, and stating that Canada could never amount to anything until agriculture was fully and completely developed, Mr. Marshall made a strong plea for more and better education for the young farmers of the country.

He called for inspirational education that would induce the sons and daughters of farmers to take a pride in their occupation and which would develop that joy and satisfaction gained from producing crops just a little better than the other person.

The fact that between 80 and 90 per cent. of boys and girls from the farm never saw High School the speaker deplored, and he complimented the objective of Dr. Daudeno of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in seeking a remedy in education circles.

Greet New Members At Y.M.C.A. Meet

Games, Singing, and Lunch Feature Happy Presentation Meeting

At the Y.M.C.A. last night, a reception was held for new members and many attended. Members were cordially welcomed by President G. F. Cole and others. For an hour frolics were enjoyed in the gymnasium after which the party congregated in the Assembly Hall where singing, speaking and eating was enjoyed. Mr. G. H. Holton led the singing, Miss Wilda Palmer presiding at the piano. Mr. R. C. Sidenius, general secretary, presided over the assembly and gave a most cordial greeting to the new members. Bronze, silver and gold emblems were presented to those who were "go-getters" in the membership campaign, which closed recently. Those receiving medals and the number of new members secured were as follows:

50 point pin—S. Nurse, 51.

10 point gold emblem—A. Armstrong 10 and J. Yerex, 10 2-3.

5 point silver emblem—P. F. Brockel 6; R. L. Brown, 6; H. Poste, 7; I. J. Reynolds, 7; R. M. Ross, 7; Lorine Sprague, 6 1-3.

3 point bronze emblem—Percy Cole Farley Faulkner, J. Kerr, C. Hanna, Garnet Ransome 4, Vernon Weir Miss M. Young, C. Facer K. VanAllan Mary Day, Mary Webster, Mary Roberts Shirley Rainbird.

The pins were presented by Mr. S. Nurse.

Last year there were 61 go-getters while this year number was 83. This year 30 procured one new member and 11 procured two.

Mr. J. Yerex had his name enrolled on the honor shield for procuring 10 members. Fifteen have advanced their position on the honor roll since the campaign.

STREET SWEEPER FOUND EFFICIENT

But Ald. Robinson Believes Cost and Maintenance High

Following is the report of his visit to Peterboro submitted by Ald. Robinson to the City Council last night. Ald. Robinson investigated the Dustless street sweeper, made and used in the Electric City.

To the Mayor and Alderman of the Belleville City Council,

Gentlemen:—

The sweeper was working on the streets when I arrived in the City. I followed it in a motor car with Mr. Bishop driving same. We had the sweeper go over some of the worst sections and spots of the paved streets taking in what we thought would be the most difficult to clean. I found that the machine did perfect work with two minor exceptions, namely: It left a space of about four inches next to the curb which the brush could not reach and in spots where the droppings from horses became packed down firmly to the pavement by traffic passing over them the sweeper does not seem to accomplish the feat of making these spots clean, there being a portion of this refuse matter left adhering to the pavement, but I was told that what remains is taken off the next time the sweeper passes over the spot. As to the four inch space next the curb not reached by the broom of the sweeper, it is thought that the business people along the streets can be induced to sweep this space toward the centre of the street when sweeping the sidewalk sufficiently to make it possible for the sweeper to cover it. I may say that at present, men are employed to clean the narrow space next the curb. The sweeper collects the refuse matter, carries it away and dumps it, and when sweeping creates no dust.

The machine seems to be substantially constructed and I carefully investigated its mechanism. I was informed that the brooms cost, if my memory serves me right, $120.00 each and they have to be renewed about once a month and sometimes in a shorter period (20 days or so.)

I may say, moreover, that I interviewed some of the merchants and they all expressed themselves as being greatly pleased with the work of the sweeper and it certainly is very efficient in every respect with the two exceptions mentioned. This sweeper collects the dust so perfectly that it entirely obviates the necessity of watering the streets.

Nevertheless I feel that $15,000 is a very high figure for this machine, in fact I think, more than our corporation can afford with our tax rates totalling 4 cents on the dollar exclusive of frontage taxes.

(Signed) A. ROBINSON.

GOVERNMENT IS HELPING PLANS FOR WORKLESS

Premier Ferguson Tells of Much Construction Being Carried on

ON RESPONSIBILITY

Believes Municipalities Are Primarily Interested in Matter

In an interesting letter written to Mayor Hiltz, of Toronto, Premier G Howard Ferguson declares that the Provincial Government will earnestly support the proposed buy-in-Canada campaign and adds further that he thinks the plan to have employers solve the unemployment problem by providing one extra job a week to be a good one.

The letter which has been received by His Worship Mayor Mikel K.C., is as follows:

"The Government has given the fullest consideration to the representations made by the deputation of Municipal representatives headed by yourself, which conferred with us some two weeks ago in reference to the present unemployment situation.

"I have before me now the resolution passed at your meeting and submitted to the Government. We are extremely anxious to give the people who find themselves out of employment, an opportunity to earn an honest livelihood for their families.

"If the Dominion Government will inaugurate, as your resolution suggests, an intensive campaign to encourage the buying of goods made or produced in Canada this Government will exert every effort to make such a campaign effective. I am firmly convinced that we are all guilty of indifference, or thoughtlessness, in this respect. When we desire to purchase even the daily requirements for our household we usually buy without considering the source of production Either we accept the merchant's recommendation or consider the price only. Dominion wide propaganda supplemented by the Provinces, the Municipalities, Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade and organizations of that type, would bring home to every dealer as well as to every purchaser the importance of increasing the consumption of home products. When one looks at the value of imported goods that come into competition with Canadian products of a similar character there would seem to be no doubt that many of the industries now languishing, or closed down, would be able to operate and give employment to large numbers of men if they were assured of the whole purchasing power of the Canadian public.

Of Splendid Type

"I think a great deal can be done by the adoption of your second suggestion of your Committee namely, that an appeal should be made to all citizens and particularly to employers, to provide at least one extra job per week during the winter. This Government has already in a practical way endeavoured to carry out this idea. A deputation of four men, selected at a meeting of the unemployed, waited on the Government and urged that action be taken along this line to increase the number of jobs. They were all of a splendid type of Canadian workmen, seeking only an opportunity of earning sufficient to keep their homes together until the general conditions improved.

They were at once authorized by the Government to undertake this plan,

Now Someone Claims that Venus De Milo Never Had Such a Thing as an Arm

(Associated Press Despatch)

Paris, Nov. 4.—It may be some consolation to art lovers throughout the world, who have wondered in what position were the missing arms of the famous Venus de Milo statute in the Louvre, to learn that even the ancients themselves were perplexed on this point.

Dr. Edde, a French physician, has just made known that during a recent visit to Egypt he came into possession of a small bronze staucette of the same period as the Venus de Milo. This statuette is an exact copy of the famous Venus, and like the original, it has no arms. Dr. Edde therefore concludes that the Venus de Milo never at any time had arms, and he believes that the sculptor, when he had carved out of the stone such a divine form, gave up all ideal of adding arms.

When the Venus de Milo was discovered on the island of Milo a large reward was offered to anyone who could find the arms, but in spite of extensive search, nothing was discovered.

LORD BYNG COMING

Mayor W. C. Mikel, K.C., has received a letter from Ottawa stating that His Excellency, the Governor-General, Lord Byng of Vimy, will pay an official visit to Belleville on Monday November 24, arriving at 2 p.m. and leaving, at 4 p.m. He will be accompanied by Lady Byng, Miss E. Sandford, Captain C. S. Price-Davies and Captain F. W. Erskine.

BUSY SESSION OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Pass By-Laws, Carry Motions and Hear Complaints

Following city councillors attended a long and busy session of the City Council last night.

Mayor Mikel, Alderman W. R. McCreary, Geo. E. Foster, R. Gardiner, R. J. E. Graham, H. W. Greenleaf, A. H. Ketcheson, A. E. LaRoche, W. H. Patterson, A. Robinson, S. H. Treverton, R. P. White and D. V. Ketcheson.

Tells of Nuisance

John Weir addressed the Council relative to a wall built by James Lynch which overlapped his property and is an obstruction.

Mayor Mikel—The Solicitor was instructed to take proceedings against Mr. Lynch in reference to the matter and to write to Mr. Lynch to remove a portion of the wall

Want Cheaper Pavement

A petition was presented from a member of ratepayers on Pinnacle street between Victoria Avenue and Foundry street requesting the Council to lay a cheaper pavement than concrete or asphalt. This petition was referred to the Municipal and Railway Board.

By-Laws Passed

A by-law to authorize the issue of debentures of the city of Belleville to the amount of $40,142.40 for the purpose of paying the account rendered by the department of public highways for work done on the provincial area of the city of Belleville, was passed, also—

A By-law to authorize the construction of concrete cement sidewalks on certain streets in the city as local improvements under the provisions of the local improvement Act.

A By-law to amend by-law No. 2581.

By-laws were passed through their various stages and numbered. Ald. Treverton was in the chair on By-laws.

Wants Cheaper Gas

Under this head Ald. Robinson asked the chairman of gas when we could expect to get cheaper gas.

Ald. Foster—"in 1930."

Ald. McCreary enquired as to the placing of gas mains on St. Charles St.

Ald. Foster—"The manager has the matter under consideration."

Motions Carried

Moved by Ald. Patterson, seconded by Ald. Graham, that the City Solicitor be instructed to proceed with the necessary proceedings to have Mr. James Lynch remove the portion of the foundation wall which he built on city property on Pinnacle street. Carried.

Thieves Profit By Last Night's "Job"

Steal Meats and Canned Goods From Barber's Butcher Shop

When proprietors of the Edward Barber & Son, butcher shop, 3 Bridge street west, opened shop this morning they found that thieves had entered during the night and had stolen quantities of bacon, butter, lard, other meats and canned goods, as well as a few cents in change which were on the counter.

Entrance was gained by breaking the lock and latch off the back door.

P. S. Arthur Harman visited the store this morning and later Detective J. Trualsch was assigned to the work of investigation. No clues were left.

SMITH PLEADS GUILTY; GETS THREE YEARS

On Charge of Conspiracy; Sentences to Run Concurrently

ADVISED BY COUNSEL

Had in Mind Great Expense Of a New Trial

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 4.—Three years in penitentiary was the sentence imposed by Mr. Justice Mowatt this morning on Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, who pleaded guilty of conspiracy in connection with certain transactions with the defunct Home Bank. The proceedings were brief and no evidence was taken.

Smith is already under sentence of three years on charges of conspiracy to defraud the Province on bond sale transactions. Both sentences will run concurrently.

T. H. Lennox, K.C., appeared for Smith. When the indictment was read Mr. Lennox stated that since the previous trial and the conviction of Smith he had given the matter close consideration, and having in mind the great expense involved in further trial on a new count he had taken responsibility of advising to plead guilty.

The indictment sets forth that Smith conspired with the late Brig. Gen. J. Cooper Mason, former general manager of Home Bank, to "show certain favors" to Mason, in return for commissions paid to him out of the proceeds of the sale of Provincial Bonds. Amounts said to have been paid to Smith in this connection during 1920 and 1921 totalled $72,000.

The indictment was not discussed by counsel in the very brief proceedings and no explicit explanation of the charges against Smith was made in court this morning.

Parking Troubles Aired in Council

Merchants and Express Men Object to Double Parking

Mr. C. Harris who is connected with the Canadian National Express Company, appeared before the City Council last night with regard to the parking trucks on Front street. He said the express trucks were often delayed as they could not get to the edge of the sidewalk in front of business places owing to cars parked. It was necessary to get to stores for merchandise, he explained.

Mayor Mikel—"Would diagonal parking do any good?" There ought to be some remedy.

Ald Foster—"Amend the by-law and not allow so long a time as half an hour for parking."

Ald. McCreary suggested that the Police Commissioners take up the matter. We cannot pass a by-law or regulations that would please everybody.

Mayor Mikel—"The Police Commissioners will consider the matter and see if a solution of the matter can be found."

Ex-Mayor Panter—"This is a serious matter. The merchants will be hampered if double parking is strictly disallowed. A car last Saturday stood in front of my store from 9 o'clock in the morning until after 3 p.m. I was compelled to park my delivery wagon beside the car and was "called" by the police for double parking."

Mayor Mikel promised to bring the matter to the attention of the Police Commissioners.

The man behind the defense of the Home Bank directors in so far as the accounting and statements of the bank are concerned, is Howard Pettit, senior partner of the firm of Oscar Hudson and Company, chartered accountants. The firm was retained by the directors to go through the books and records of the bank and prepare defence material.

LAST CHANCE TO QUALIFY FOR VOTE

Names May Be Entered on Added List This Week

Those whose names have not yet been placed on the voters' list for the West Hastings bye-election are being given a last and final opportunity to qualify to vote, by acting this week.

Commencing today and concluding Monday next, November 10th, anyone who is qualified to vote but who is not already on the list, may appear before County Judge G. E. Deroche and have their name entered on the added lists.

After this week it will be futile to try to get on the list no matter how fully qualified, so a word to the wise should in this case be sufficient. Any one concerned should act at once.

Commencing today, Judge Deroche may be interviewed at the court house any afternoon after two o'clock and any evening after eight o'clock.

Physician Makes His Position Clear

Dr. Stobie Explains Facts Concerning Himself in Chloroform Case

Dr. G. H. Stobie, 20 Campbell street, wishes to make his position known to the public with regard to the recent police court case, where a citizen was charged with having stolen a bottle of chloroform and a bottle of alcohol from his dispensary on Saturday, October 25.

The man accused with the theft was discharged, the case against him being dismissed, and with this sequel, together with the trend of the evidence, Dr. Stobie feels that it might be inferred by those who are not familiar with the facts of the case, that as the man had been in his office alone, had come out with the two bottles; and had been found not guilty of the theft, that probably he had been served by Dr. Stobie.

"I was not in my office between the hours of four and six o'clock that day, and did not give alcohol or chloroform to anyone," explained the physician to the Intelligencer this morning.

"Furthermore, I do not issue prescriptions for alcohol," he explained.

A youth stole an ambulance from in front of a Brooklyn N.Y. hospital and went on a joy ride.

Now Bad Little English Girls are Made Good by Sending Them to the Sea Shore

(Associated Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 4.—The English reformers' idea of making bad girls better is to give them trips to the seaside. Accordingly last year several of the detention institutions for young girls took parties of inmates to various seaside resorts, where they were given a two weeks' vacation with only the supervision of two matrons to each party of 25 girls.

Last year's outings proved so successful that nearly all similar institutions this year took up the idea and allowed their best behaved girls to have a vacation. The expenses for the trip, above what it would have cost to feed and provide for the girls at the institution, were donated by persons interested in progressive and humanizing methods in the correctional institutions of the country.

COUNCIL PLANS TO APPLY FOR CLOSED STREETS

Desire Streets Closed Near New Recreation Grounds

APPLY TO JUDGE

For Hearing of Application in The Matter

At the City Council meeting last night the Parks Board presented a requisition to the Council to apply to a judge to close certain streets adjacent to the new recreation grounds. The requisition is as follows:

WHEREAS, the Board of Parks Management of the City of Belleville has requested the City Council to apply to a Judge of the County to have a part of Town Line Street, or the boundary road between Sidney and Belleville closed; and also Maud Street and a part of Walter street closed, and the boundary line street diverted South from a point west to Catharine street to correspond with Catharine street produced to the said Town Line Street to Yeoman's Street.

AND WHEREAS, by virtue of "The Registry Act," 1924, Section 4, "The Council of any Municipality may apply to a Judge of the County in which are situated the whole or any part, not being less than one-half of the lands included in any plan, and such Judge shall have power to make orders or directions for the purpose of hearing the application, upon such notice as the Judge may direct, and to cancel, in whole or in part, any registered plan, or to close, divert or alter any or all highways, roads, streets or lanes shown on such plan, either temporarily or permanently, or pending suspension of the plan, and otherwise.

AND WHEREAS, the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville deem it advisable to conform to the request of the said Board of Parks Management, and to make the application, as requested by the said Board of Parks Management.

Therefore it is moved by Ald. Greenleaf and seconded by Ald. D. V. Ketcheson, that the Council of the Municipality of the City of Belleville make application to a Judge of the County Court of the County of Hastings, for the purpose of closing the Town Line Street from opposite Lot number Six (6) on the East side of Town Line Street according to registered plan of the City of Belleville, by Henry Carre, O. L. S., southerly to Bridge Street West, and to have the said Town Line Street diverted so as to turn Eastward and meet Catharine Street where it joins Yeomans Street, by a street the same width as Catherine street, namely, fifty feet (50); and also to have Maud Stret closed, and Walter Street from a line opposite the Southern boundary of Lot number fifteen (15) on the West side of Walter Street, southerly to Maud Street, closed, according to said plan, and such other orders as may be necessary in the premises.

PLAN TO AMEND MARKET BY-LAW

It was, at last night's city council meeting desired to revise market by-law No. 778, passed the 16th day of April 1921, making such changes as may be deemed necessary to meet present day conditions and that the various clauses regulating charges or fees be amended to correspond with the amount set for in the Municipal Act, with amendments. A small committee including chairman of market and city property, who shall select his committee was recommended to be appointed to take charge of this work.

Ald. H. Greenleaf moved the motion and Ald. D. V. Ketcheson seconded the motion.

ULSTERMEN AND IRISH

It is reported from Belfast that Ulster still remains steadfast in her attitude toward the Free State and the boundary question. To any proposal for uniting Ireland by joining hands with their southern neighbors the people of Ulster are said to be unalterably opposed.

An attempt is made to explain Ulster's opposition on the grounds of race and religion. The people of Ulster are, it is pointed out, racially more Scottish than Irish. Some of them are, no doubt. They may be also more Protestant than Catholic; but it would be a mistake to assume that even the Protestant Ulsterman, however loyal he may be to British connection, is not essentially an Irish man. He may be fixed in his ways and hard to move, but in his heart he is Irish. Just now he is not for union with the Free State, because he believes he is safer as he is. If he had had his way he would probably not have sought a parliament for Ulster, but would have been content with representation in the British parliament; but Ulster having become a political unit, he wants to preserve it and to keep free politically from the South. When the Free State has had time to show that it is firmly established, that it does not seek either republicanism, or separation, and that there is no intention of coercing Ulster, the Ulsterman may look at things differently. As it is, his interests are Irish and his feelings are Irish. In the past Ulster Irishmen did his full share to preserve the spirit of Irish nationalism.

DEADLY PACIFISM

For upwards of thirty years Peter Veregin was the guide, philosopher and friend of the Doukhobors who had emigrated from Russia to escape military service and persecution and had settled in Canada. Like his comrades, Veregin was a pacifist and something of a communist; but he had what most of them had not—a large fund of common sense and worldly wisdom and business sense. Owing to these qualities he became their leader. He managed the business of the Douk communities, made their purchases, arranged for the marketing of their produce, and looked after their material welfare. Through their industry they became prosperous, but their prosperity was owing in no small degree to the shrewd management and wise counsel of Peter Veregin.

And now Peter is dead, slain by assassins who owed him gratitude, wretches from the ranks of Doukhobors. He had steadfastly refused to countenance certain practices of the more fanatical members of the community, and had thus earned their enmity. They plotted to get rid of him. A valise containing an infernal machine was placed near him in a railway carriage in British Columbia; there was an explosion; the car was wrecked, and Veregin and eight other passengers were killed.

It should be noted that the murderers were professed pacifists. It is against their religious principles to fight; they quitted their native land rather than be forced to bear arms against an enemy; and yet they did not hesitate to murder a friend and to kill several strangers in killing him.

Pacifism is not necessarily a product of humanitarian sentiment, or [illegible] love. Often is springs from mere cowardice and incapacity [illegible] self-sacrifice. Many of the murderous Russian Bolshevists are professed pacifists. It is not safe to judge a man by his creed. Belief and conduct may differ widely. What more horrible specimen of humanity can be conceived than a man with peace and brotherhood on his lips and murder in his heart!

U. S. ELECTIONS

Dread of extreme radicalism was a powerful factor in the British swing back to Conservatism last Wednesday. When the votes pulled to-day in the U.S. presidential election are counted, it will probably be found that the same feeling has had a strong influence on the electorate.

This opinion is held by The Hamilton Herald, which goes on to say, the campaign just closed has not been marked by the advocacy of any large and novel national policies. The Republicans have, as usual, stood by the principle of letting well enough alone, and have advocated the re-election of President Coolidge because he is "safe and sane" and will continue to give the country that sort of government. The Democrats enjoy the advantage of having as their candidate one of the ablest and most engaging men in American public life. Mr. Davis has made a strenuous fight in behalf of his party, and his numerous speeches in many parts of the country have won for him the respect and admiration of the American people without regard to party. But he has put forth no proposals at once new and important. His speeches have been made up chiefly of criticism of Republican policies and administration. Although favorable to th centrance of the United States into the League of Nations, he done until the people have declared dne unti lthe people have declared by popular vote in favor of that course. As for Mr. La Follette, the Progressive candidate, he is a constitutional radical and a bold advocate of radical measures. But it is a mistake to regard him as a revolutionary radical. Bolshevism, Communism, and all their works he repudiates. He believes that reforms should come by way of the ballot box. He proposes several innovations, but the two most important measures which he has been urging are the nationalism of the railways and the curbing of the power of the courts of justice, particularly the Supreme Court. Mr. La Follette is a powerful speaker and a very shrewd politician, and as Governor of Wisconsin he earned a great reputation throughout the Middle West as an able and honest administrator.

If the choice of president is to be made by the Electoral College the members of which are to be chosen to-day, the choice will be between Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Davis. Mr. La Follette's chance is negligible. He will probably carry two States—Wisconsin and North Dakota—and it is possible that he will get the votes of two or three others; but he does not himself hope for enough votes to secure his election. As between Messrs. Coolidge and Davis, the chances are in favor of the former. True, Mr. Davis is almost certain to have the "solid south," still solidly in his favor, and within the last few days the Democrats have been making a desperate fight in New York and New Jersey to put those States in the Democratic column; but the known fact that many of La Follette's followers are deserting to Davis in order to defeat Coolidge will probably tend to cool the ardor of conservative Democrats and perhaps swing their votes to the party which is regarded as the strong bulwork against the oncoming tide of radicalism.

President Coolidge's chances are strengthened, also, by the fear that LaFollette's campaign will draw so many votes from the Republican ranks that none of the candidates will have a majority in the Electoral College. In such an event the election would be thrown into Congress, with the prospect—a dreadful one to all conservative minds that, in case there were to be a deadlock in the House, the Senate might choose Charles W. Bryan, the Democratic candidate for Vice-President and a close personal friend of L. Follette, to be the next President.

And so, as the British electorate last week declared in favor of a period of settled, steady and unsensational government, it is probable that the American electorate will do the same to-day.

A SHAREHOLDER OF TRENTON

"I know as one, and I believe there are electors in this town of Trenton who resent, and who will show that resentment by their vote, that (a foreigner), an outsider, as far as Trenton is concerned, has no right to come into this town and talk to us as an autocrat. E. G. Porter has no right to come into Trenton and interfere in our municipal elections, or in our local affairs. I am only mentioning this instance, as it was one that affected me personally."

Above is quoted from the opening remarks of Mayor Fraser speaking as president of the West Hastings Liberal Association and as chairman at Mr. Charles Hanna's meeting in Trenton on Tuesday night.

Surely Mayor Fraser must have overlooked the fact that Mr. Porter is a large ratepayer of Trenton, paying even more taxes than Mr. Fraser himself, and as a taxpayer he would be quite within his rights if he expressed a preference for a candidate for monicipal honors, and for the Council which would have the spending of the taxes he pays.

But Mr. Porter did not go out of his way to influence anyone not to vote for Mr. Fraser.

Mr. Porter's name as a ratepayer appears in two divisions on the Trenton Voters' list.—Quinte Sun.

WAS HE?

The conductor and a brakeman on a Montana railroad differ as to the pronunciation of the name Eureliar. Passengers are often startled upon arrival at this station to hear the conductor yell:

"You're a liar! You're a liar!

Then the brakesman at the end comes in with the cry: "You really are! You really are!"

WORLD PEACE
(Boston Transcript)

The only means of contributing to world peace which are likely to prove effective are those of arbitration, sincerely engaged in, with a corresponding attention on the part of the nations to the maintenance of their own defence. Abandonment of all armament would never be anything but a pretence, with constant scheming on the part of nations in whom the instinct of aggression is highly developed to catch the rival nation in the worst possible condition of resistance.

RUSSIA'S DILEMMA
(New York Times)

There was never any love lost between MacDonald and the men in power at Moscow. They have reviled the British prime Minister as an individual and have boasted of the treaty as a surrender extorted from British "capitalism". But Russia's need of the loan that has now vanished is bitterly real. Her economic condition would be called desperate in other country but the one that has managed to live somehow in defiance of the laws of economic gravitation, even if at a vast cost in human lives and happiness.

TWO ITALIANS PARLIAMENTS?
(New York Telegram and Mail)

The suggestion by the Italian Communists that a second Parliament, composed of the opposition to Fascism, be assembled at Rome, is just another of the futile gestures which unregulated minorities continuously make when they try to express their opposition to majority government.

One recognizes that in the effort to save the constitutional government of the kingdom of Italy the Fascisti took liberties with the rights of the individual and that their application of the impulses of patriotism and devotion to the integrity of their nation was punctured by drastic and ofttimes cruel actions.

But, on the other hand, the present government of Italy seems pretty strongly intrenched. The Nationalist majority in the Parliament at Rome is of sturdy proportions. The proper place for the expression of opposition to its conduct is the floor of the chambers of that legislative body. To establish an "outside Parliament", a "rump" affair, in which the oratory and the colloquies have no status legally, would make the affair only a propaganda mill, and the whole world is tired of propaganda in all its phases.

To-day's Smile

"When I was working at that big house," said the bricklayer, jerking his thumb sideways, "I saw a round, shallow sort of basin on top of a short post, and I have been wondering ever since what it was?"

"Where was it?" the carpenter asked.

"Right out in the middle of the lawn."

"And don't you know what that was?"

"No."

"Well, I'll tell you. It was a bird bath."

"I don't believe it."

"Why?"

"Because I don't believe there is a bird on earth that can tell Saturday night from any other night."

TOWER ABOUT COMPLETED

Work on the exterior of the massive 1,000,000 gothic tower, a part of the new $12,000,000 Canadian Federal Houses of Parliament in Ottawa, is nearing completion. When finished this tower will be one of the most imposing and beautiful structures in the world.

Construction was stopped on the tower in 1922 owing to further consideration being given to the finished design, but it was resumed last spring. By the end of the year only the finishing work on the interior will remain to be done.

This new tower will be 291 feet high, which is half as high again as the tower that was on the old Houses of Parliament, destroyed by fire in February, 1916. It is built of stone to a height of 221 feet above the ground level on Parliament Hill, which is about 20 feet higher than the level of Wellington street, a short distance below. From this stone understructure which is between 35 and 40 feet square rises a 70 foot reinforced concrete spire covered with copper. Ascending from the top of the spire there will be a bronze flag pole 35 feet high, at the top of which there will be a cluster of electric lamps, that when lighted can be seen far and wide telling all who can see them that Parliament is sitting.

Immediately above the entrance to the tower and approached from the first floor of the main building is the memorial chamber which is to be dedicated to the Canadian soldiers who died in the Great War. It is to be a sacred and hallowed retreat. The chamber will be 40 feet high from floor to ceiling and treated with stone groin vaultings, delicate tracery windows, 30 feet high by 16 feet wide, with symbolical carvings and appropriate decorations in stone and stained glass to enhance the effect and beauty of the chamber.

Flanking the entrance will be two massive stone lions and other decorative motives, which will lend impressiveness as one enters this memorial to the brave.

Above the memorial chamber is the Console chamber, from where a carillon will be played. Above the Console Chamber is the belfry, in which the great striking bells of the clock and the bells forming the carillon will be placed. This belfry is 114 feet high, with lowered windows on all four sides, from which the sound of the bells will peal out.

Above the belfry and directly under the spire, is the clock chamber, in which there will be a four-dial clock with faces 15 feet, nine inches in diameter. The clock is to be fashioned after the famous Big Ben in the tower of the Houses of Parliament at Westminster. The striking chimes of this clock will be five bells, the largest of which will weigh some eight tons. The total weight of the bells will be between 20 to 22 tons.

The tower is ascended by two electric elevators.

At the clock chamber floor there are exterior balconies from which the commanding panorama of the broad Ottawa River, the Laurentian hills to the north, the oldest geological formation in North America and the backbone of the American continent.

The architects of the tower and of the Houses of Parliament are John A. Pearson of Toronto, with an associate, J. O. Marchand of Montreal.

GERMANY IS NOT KEEPING TO 8 HOURS

(Associated Press Despatch)

Hanover, Nov. 4.—The eight-hour day, while theoretically guaranteed by the new German constitution, is by no means generally observed among factory workers, according to an investigation just conducted by the Factory Workers' union. Of the 481 locals of the union, 320 turned in reports covering 1,360 concerns employing 481,442 persons.

The results show that only 54 per cent of the employees in the concerns investigated work up to 48 hours per week, while 3.6 per cent work from 48 to 51 hours, 26 per cent from 51 to 54 hours, and 15.9 per cent over 54 hours per week.

Hotel Assessment Causes Discussion

Council Adopts Recommendation For Increased Assessment

The following recommendation from the Civic Committees relative to the assessment of Hotel Quinte caused considerable discussion at last night's Council meeting.

Recomended that this Council recommend the assessment of Hotel Quinte for 1925 be $25,000 for general purposes and $40,000 for school purposes as at present.

Ex-Mayor W. Panter stated that he had been interviewed by several prominent ratepayers of the city who were opposed to such an assessment. It was a very unpopular move. He thought the Council would do well to defer action in the matter for a couple of weeks.

Ald. White moved an amendment to the recommendation that the matter be deferred for two weks.

Mr. Frank White—"Why should I pay more mills on the dollar of taxation than Mr. Jenkins pays on his property."

There was considerable indignation about the city in regard to the recommendation, he stated.

Mr. E. Fairfield—"It does not look fair to me. We all appreciate the Hotel Quinte, also Mr. Jenkins, but I think that the assessment on the hotel should be at least $40,000."

Mr. S. C. Clapp thought is was unfair assessment. It was not fair to other ratepayers.

Ald. Robinson—"The assessment of Hotel Quinte was on a par with the assessment of other hotels in this city and the Quinte is advertising the city well."

Ald. McCreary coincided with the remarks of Ald. Robinson. He held no brief for Mr. Jenkins or the Hotel Quinte. Last year 54 people were em-[illegible] about the hotel and many were heads of families. A large sum upwards of $80,000 is paid out annually by Mr. Jenkins for labor and supplies the latter of which are bought in Belleville. The hotel is a great asset to the city, the same as an industry and we help to foster industries. He did not think that Hotel Quinte was assessed lower than other hotels. This year Mr. Jenkins is paying a large sum in taxes which amounts to $8.50 per day. The proprietor of the hotel has kept employes when he could have managed with less help.

Ald. Graham—From an advertising point of view, Hotel Quinte was worth thousands of dollars to the city yearly. He thought he was doing his duty in supporting the recommendation.

Ald. McCreary— "The assessment this year on Hotel Quinte was $50,000 including the business tax.

Ex-Mayor Panter explained that the judge of the County had placed the assessment at $40,000. Hotel Quinte was a great asset to the city and Mr. Jenkins, the best hotel proprietor in Canada. Taxes have gone up in bounds of late, owing to the expenditure. One institution should not however be left off at a lower rate of taxation. One man should not be relieved of a burden others will have to carry.

Ald. McCreary—The lowering of the assessment on Hotel Quinte will not affect the taxpayers one cent next year, as there are new industries establishing here and many new residences are going up.

Upon a vote being taken the recommendation was adopted, those voting against it being Aldermen Foster, White, A. H. Ketcheson and Greenleaf.

CROSS TO PICTON FOR TRIAL TO-DAY

Orbie Cross of Rednersville, arrested at noon Monday in Rossmore village was taken to Picton this morning where he will face trial before Magistrate Eli Williams.

Cros is alleged to have been drunk in charge of a horse and buggy when arrested by Chief Constable A. Kidd and Provincial Constable S. Elliott, and in the rig was one gin bottle full of alcohol and another partly filled.

Cross who is believed to be a go-between "the man higher up" and the thirsty consumer, refuses to tell the name of the man who supplied him with the alcohol. He says he does not know who he is. Inspector F. Naphan who is in charge of the case went to Picton with accused and will press the charges for the Crown.

BETTER IN EVERY WAY

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ingomar, N. S.—"I took your medicine for a run-down condition and inward troubles. I had pains in my right side so bad at times that I could not walk any distance. I saw about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and have taken five bottles of it. I am better in every way and you can use my letter to help other women." — Mrs. ALVITA M. PERRY, Ingomar, N. S.

Nervous Breakdown Relieved

Toronto, Ontario.—"It is pretty hard to explain your feelings in nervous troubles. I felt low spirited, had pains in my head and eyes, always crying, and did not want to go anywhere. I do knitting and fancy work, and I would get irritable after a few minutes of work. I have been in Canada five years and have been this way ever since I came. I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I sleep better and it seems to make me eat, and I must say I am feeling more jolly. I have great faith in in your medicine because of what it has done for my husband's sister and she recommended it to me."—Mrs. A. SMITH, 10 Burleigh Avenue, Todmorden, Toronto, Ontario.

All druggists sell this dependable medicine, and women suffering from these troubles so common to their sex should give it a trial now.

FIRM BELIEVER IN THE FRUIT TREATMENT

MRS. LAURA ALFORD

Thousands of people owe the splendid Fruit Medicine—"Fruit-a-tives"—a lasting debt of gratitude, which they gladly pay by testifying to its merits.

Mrs. Laura Alford of 28 Florence St., Ottawa, says: For years, I was a martyr to Constipation and Dyspepsia. I have tried cathartics, salts and so-called vegetable laxatives but all were unpleasant and gave no permanent relief. Finally, I decided to try "Fruit-a-tives". I have been using "Fruit-a-tives" now for seven years; never have Constipation or Stomach Trouble; and have been in the best of health ever since. My husband and children use "Fruit-a-tives" regularly".

"Fruit-a-tives" contain intensified fruit juices combined with tonics.

CYCLISTS COLLIDE BOY UNCONSCIOUS

When two cyclists crashed head-on at the corner of West Bridge and James street last evening about six o'clock, Frank High, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank High, 159 James street was badly injured.

High who was riding home was just turning the corner of James street, when he collided with the other boy. He was thrown to the street, striking the ground with his head and shoulder He was knocked unconscious and carried to the office of Dr. Morgan nearby

Today he is much improved, but his shoulder and head are still giving him pain. The other cyclist was coasting down Murney Hill at the time and the force of impact was great.

Jeweler's Wife Victim of Thugs

Cried Out When Robbers Entered Store; Skull Cracked

New York, Nov. 4.—Three hold-up men descended upon the jewellery store of Abraham Duboff, at 8206 Fifth ave., Brooklyn, at 10 o'clock yesterday. Before robbing the place of $10,000 worth of diamond rings and watches, $500 in Liberty bonds and $225 in currency, they fractured the skull of his wife Anna with the blow of a pistol-butt and tied her and Duboff and their eleven-year-old son with rope and picture wire, and tossed them together on a bed.

Mrs. Duboff received her injury as the price of an outcry as the thugs were leaving the store with their booty.

Duboff was alone in the store when a man entered with a watch to be repaired. The jeweller turned away to look at the works and, as he turned back again to his supposed customer, he was met with a levelled pistol and a command to put up his hands and keep his mouth shut. The instant his hands were raised two other thugs came in each armed, and Duboff was commanded to walk to the rear room, which was the living quarters of the family.

Mrs. Duboff and the son, Isidore were there, and as the door was closed behind the invaders, two of them covered the wife and son with pistols and warned them to make no outcry. Then one by one, they were tightly bound with the wire rope and tossed upon the bed. In the struggle with Duboff, one of the thugs struck him heavily in the face, bringing him to his knees.

While one of the thieves remained on guard over the trio, his pistol ready, and other two looted the shop. At last they called out to the man in the rear room:

"Everything's all right; come on." And he started to join them. It was then that Mrs. Duboff screamed. The two came running from the shop and one of them knocked her unconscious with his pistol. After that pillow cases were tied about the mouths of the three to prevent any further outcry.

After that the thieves hurried to a touring car waiting near the store and drove to Fourth avenue and got away in the heavy traffic. In robbing the place, they overlooked $2600 in bills, which was behind the counter in a shoe box.

Not long after they disappeared, the Duboffs managed to make sufficient noise to attract the attention of persons living upstairs, and thus their plight was discovered. An ambulance was called from United Israel Zion Hospital and Mrs. Duboff was hurried there. It was said her condition was critical. Duboff and his son were treated for minor injuries.

This is the second time Duboff has been victimized. He used to have a jewellery store at number 136 Chrystie street, Manhattan, and on February 21, 1921, five thugs held him up there, and took $15,000 worth of jewellery. This was insured, but the things stolen today were not so covered.

ANARCHIST TOOK POISON IN CHURCH

Paris, Nov. 4.—Mlle. Germaine Berton, France's famous woman anarchist, attempted to commit suicide here in dramatic fashion.

Before hundreds of worshippers gathered in the church of Notre Dame de Lourdes in celebration of All Saints mass, Mlle. Berton took poison and dropped to the floor. Tremendous excitement was caused among the worshippers.

She was taken to a hospital where doctors later said she probably would recover.

Mlle. Berton recently was acquitted of a charge of murder in connection with the assassination of the Royalist editor, Marius Plateau. She walked into his office and calmly shot him.

MILITARY CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY PARTY

(Associated Press Despatch)

Belgrade, Nov. 4—Celebration of the first anniversary of the birth of Prince Peter, heir to the Jugo-Slavian throne was made the occasion of a great military display which has aroused much opposition in several quarters.

All the troops of the Belgrade garrisons were turned out, and the principal streets leading to the cathedral, where the principal ceremonies were held, was lined with infantry, the soldiers wearing steel shell helmets, while the side streets near the edifice were full of small artillery, machine guns and other warlike material.

The country is indeed quite proud of the year-old prince, and his recent pictures, showing clearly that he has the traditional Karageorge nose, have been placed on sale everywhere.

MONKS OBSERVE 700TH ANNIVERSARY

Oxford, Nov. 4—The 700th anniversary of the arrival of the Franciscan Friars in Oxford will be observed by monks here. A pontifical high mass will be celebrated at the Church of St. Maysius, on the site of the ancient friary.

Because of the close connection between the Friars and the University and City of Oxford in medieval days, the Lord Mayor and Vice-Chancellor will take part in the celebrations.

WOULD WIPE OUT WAR GUILT LIE

Berlin, Nov. 4.—"Only straightforward Democratic politics will accomplish the destruction of the war guilt lie and help us achieve our national regeneration," was the substance of telegraphic greetings of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank and German currency commissioner, to a rousing Democratic rally held in Berlin. The rally was attended by 15,000 Liberals. The head of the Reichsbank said he was convinced an overwhelming majority of the German people were prepared to stand by such politics.

SLEEP WAS STRANGER TO E. E BRADSHAW

SLEEP WAS STRANGER ... ... TORONTO MAN WAS NEAR NERVOUS BREAKOWN WHEN HE TOOK TANLAC.

Edison E. Bradshaw, painting and decorating contractor, 159 Bleecker St., Toronto, Ontario, Canada, is another grateful beneficiary of the Tanlac treatment. In telling his experience recently, Mr. Bradshaw says:

"Before I took Tanlac I was suffering seriously from nervous prostration. I was so nervous I could seldom sleep, the slightest exertion made my heart palpitate, and my breathing difficult. Burning pains in my stomach tortured me for hours at a time, dizzy spells disturbed me, and my blood seemed out of order.

"With my second bottle of Tanlac I began to feel relief all round. With the seventh bottle my stomach is all right again, my heart action is normal, my nerves are steady, and, in fact, I feel like a brand new man."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Sailors Say They Were Shanghaid

Taken in With Liquor Boat Captured Near New York

New York, Nov. 4—Four starving sailors who said they had been shanghied into the Rum Row service, compelled a reluctant skipper to surrender to the coastguard cutter Gresham the natty two-master Dorothy M. Smart, of Newfoundland and her cargo of brandy. Michael Gillan, of Halifax, was the skipper's name. His crew was composed of Louis Coccini mate and Albert Edouard Burgomaster, cook both of New York; and Henry A. Gillis, of Perth Amboy, N. J. and Carl Jaeger of Boston, seamen.

Scouting between the rum fleet and shore, the Gresham's searchlights Thursday night picked out the glimmering top-lights of a craft that seemed abandoned. Her decks were deserted; her anchor chain slapped against the pitching bows; her rudder swung at the will of the waves; her masts were bare of sails. A British ensign hung upside down from a lanyard—the sign of distress. Under it were strung corroborative signs— shirts and blankets, shredded and frayed.

The Gresham hailed the little two-master and four despairing sailors answered. They announced that they were prisoners aboard; that they had been without food and water for seven days; that there skipper refused to put them ashore. They pleaded to Capt. Ben. Brockaway of the Gresham to heave them a line, tow them inside the three mile limit, take possession of the Dorothy M. Smart and feed and water her crew.

Capt. Brockaway consented to tow the craft and thus the cutter and its prize arived at the Battery where it was boarded by agents of the Department of Justice, who seized the twenty barrels of brandy in the vessel's hold and began an investigation of the shanghai story.

"We shipped out of New York 23 days ago," was Mate Coccini's tale. "We were told we were signed up for the brick-carrier Enterprise, sailing between New York and Cape May. They took us out at night, in a speed boat, and when we woke up next morning we were on the Dorothy M. Smart, surrounded by casks of rum and in the midst of the rum fleet."

Capt. Gillan declared he knew nothing of the shanghaiing or how his crew got aboard. All he would tell was that he came from Newfoundland, found the two-master on rum row, apparently a derelict and took command of her.

Shock due to fear of an operation caused the death of Matilde Mandel, 13, at Chicago.

Some 2,200 Pigs Burned to Death

Owner of New York Property Estimates Loss at $100,000

New York, Nov. 4.—More than 2,200 pigs were cremated in a fire that destroyed a pig farm in the Eastchester section of the Bronx early yesterday.

The pig farm covered three and a half acres. It consisted of eighteen buildings, eight of which were large barns.

Fire was discovered there shortly before midnight Sunday night by Patrolman Cook of the Wakefield avenue station, who saw the flare from a point a mile distant. By the time the firemen arrived the flames had spread to every building on the farm. The firemen were handicapped by lack of water.

Hundreds of pigs escaped from the burning barns stampeded in all directions. Others were trapped and their frenzied squeals could be heard from afar.

Harry Weisman, owner of the property, said the loss would exceed $100,000 and was not insured. He thought the fire was started by a carelessly thrown cigarette or match dropped by a visitor.

FEW CHILDREN IN VIENNA SCHOOLS

Vienna, Nov. 4—The havoc wrought by the war in the birth rate in Austria is brought out forcible in figures issued by the city school authorities of Vienna, showing 100,000 fewer children inscribed in elementary schools for the autumn term this year than in 1914.

Mothers especially like it for children as it takes the place of internal medicines.

Local Druggists Have Modern Remedy for Colds

A Vaporizing Salve which is Rubbed Over Throat and Chest for Colds.

When Vicks VapoRub, the "external" method of treating sore throat, bronchitis, deep chest colds, or croup, is applied over throat or chest, the ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat.

These vapors, inhaled with each breath carry the medication directly to the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and relieving the congestion.

At the same time Vicks acts as a counter-irritant, stimulating the skin, and thus helps the vapors inhaled to break up the inflammation.

Colds are usually relieved over night.

FIRE IS RAGING IN NEW JERSEY

New York, Nov. 4— Hundreds of homes are jeopardized and millions of dollars worth of valuable timber has been destroyed in the great forest fires raging in the mountainous section of this state and New Jersey.

Thousands of men and women have dropped all other interests in a combined effort to control the flames. Exclusive Tuxedo Park is threatened.

A volunteer brigade has been fighting for twenty-four hours to save the estates at Suffern N.Y.

Bear Mountain is ablaze. More than a hundred different fires are sweeping the Catskills and Adirondacks. The flames have even reached down to the top of the Palisades.

So great has the danger become that orders were dispatched from Albany by Conservation Commissioner MacDonald, late today to fire marshals and game protectors in Orange and Rockland counties to take steps to assist in fighting the fire at Suffern. Senator Copeland sent an urgent call for aid to the commissioner. When the brigade was being taxed to its limit another fire broke out to the south.

An exhausted carrier pigeon alighted on Mrs. James C. Catlin's hat as she was walking on a Chicago street, and she fainted.

Famous Old Cow Is Now Bologna

Was Trained to Take Place Of Dog For Hunt

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 4.—A red-flanked, wall-eyed cow, uglier than most cows, passed through the stock yards here the other day on her way to be made into bologna. It was her only reward for having served her owner, Will Schmeeckle, a farmer near Stockville, Nebraska, for many years as a faithful hunting cow.

When Schmeeckle used to go in quest of wild water fowl—instead of taking his dog—he summoned his trained hunting cow.

Trained to pose as a camouflage on the landscape, she has served him efficiently many years.

When Schmeeckle would see a flock of ducks or wild geese alight on one of the many lakes dotting the country around Stockville, he would crouch low, and, grasping the cow by the ear, deftly manouevre her to within gun-shot range of his game.

Resting the barrel of his blunderbuss on the cow's spinal column, he would shoot. Being able to approach the game unawares, his shot usually found its mark.

The cow was not at all gun shy and stood quietly chewing her cud or munching a choice morsel of swamp grass while her owner bagged his game.

Not realizing, probably that a trained hunting cow was a rare possession and that sportsmen would have paid a nice price for such an animal, Schmeeckle loaded the old bossie into a stock car here recently and shipped her to market along with an entirely undistinguished herd of ordinary stock.

GERMAN EDITOR COULDN'T STAND IT

St. Louis, Nov. 4— Hans Hackel, prominent German editor, and president of the corporation publishing the Westliche Post, was found dead in the kitchen of his home by his wife as she returned from a theatre. According to the police report, his head was resting on an open jet of the gas range.

A note stating "I canot stand the strain any longer' was found, police reported. With this remark his friends believed he referred to the criticism he was said to have incurred for his opposition to the Steuben Society, a national organization of German-Americans, during the political campaign.

Preston Players Stick to Home

Cannot Be Persuaded by Professional Managers to Take Salary

Galt, Nov. 4.—Players of the Preston Riversides of the Big Four senior hockey group have been receiving tempting offers to turn pro. but they have declined all overtures. Those sought were Dad Ashley, Charles Talbot, Quinn Butterfield, Gunner Arnott and Paddy Farrel, Ashley was the first approached. Saskatoon Sheiks wanted him. Talbot and Butterfield also received offers from the west.

Montreal Wanderers and Philadelphia wanted Gunner Arnott, who is noted for his goal-getting, and quite recently Paddy Farrell, goalkeeper, formerly of Kitchener, has been tempted with flattering proposals to go to Philadelphia. The Preston team will be one of the strongest that town has ever turned out. They will commence training next week, with a practice on Wednesday in the London arena.

Nelson, B.C., Daily News published the heading in its Oct. 24 edition—"Ontario Discards Prohibition."

Kitchener Will Stay Out West

Not to Enter Senior Team With Toronto, Hamilton Group

Kitchener, Nov. 4.—Kitchener will not play senior hockey in the Toronto group this year. The local club has decided to confine its efforts to the "Big Four," which plans Western Ontario grouping with London, the new team.

The feeling locally is that, from a competitive and financial point of view the new grouping will be better. The Kitchener teams have played good hockey of late years, but since the breaking up of the famous Hiller-Parkes-Hillman forward line they have failed to get into the finals, and each year they have slipped farther owing to the keen competition in Toronto. In addition the several Toronto trips, with all-night stays, cost the club a great deal and the rink here cannot hold nearly as large a crowd that the Toronto Arena can. The locals get no share of Toronto gates.

Expect Close Games

The Western Ontario grouping is expected to produce keen competition and this will ensure good crowds, and the winner of the group will be able to give the Toronto-Hamilton winners a real battle.

Thus Kitchener will revert to the old system of having a team in every series of the O.H.A., an honor that no other place outside of Toronto held for years.

The proposal of the local club is that the five teams in the Western Ontario grouping play a double schedule, each time thus having 16 games in all and this, with a compact grouping, means that little time will be lost by the players from business.

The seniors will have the choice of "Cuney" woods or "Ferdie" Zuber, both tried goalkeepers, while the defense pair will be Jack Hemphill of last year's senior team, and Dr. Ferguson of University of Toronto.

Hiller Plays Again

At centre will be Lorne Moore, a youngster from Oshawa, who is rated as a star, and George Hiller who is expected to play again. At right wing there will be Jack Krug of the Big Four team, and "Tee" Hillman of last year's seniors. For left wing manager Harry Wismer has Heimbecker of the New Hamburg intermediate finalists last year, and Roy Hinsperger who starred on the Kitchener junior team in 1924.

The intermediate team is being looked after by Irving Erb, while Manager Leo Quinn will again handle the juniors. All the players of the latter team, which went into the finals with Owen Sound last year, are available with the exception of Hinsperger and Ziegler. The former is too old and the latter is in London. Casey of the North Bay juniors; Kuntz who starred on the Assumption College team last year, and Nesbitt of Collingwood are here.

TREATED McGILL TO A REAL FEED

Kingston, Nov. 4—On Saturday night following the Queen's-McGill rugby match at the Richardson Stadium, the visiting footballers were entertained a a dinner held by Queen's Athletic Board of Control in the training quarters at the University. In addition to the players, McGill was represented by Sir Arthur Currie, the Principal, and Col. Bovey, vice-principal, while Principal Taylor, Dr. Austin and Prof. Wilgar were among the members of Queen's staff who were present.

Speakers were President Dr. Bruce Taylor of Queen's, Sir Arthur Currie President of McGill University, "Bones" Little, Captain of McGill "Pep" Leadley, Captain of Queen's, "Flin" Flannigan and coach Billy Hughes.

The much-touted Y Reds, headed by their valiant leader, Jimmie, of the funnies, had a bad case of palpitation last night when Ritchies' trundlers crowded them badly in the last game of a hard-fought battle. The same Y Reds, hand-picked and burnished, have been riding rough-shod over all comers, but in this case they had to go their limit to pull out a win. Hall for the Reds wasted his energy talking and got away with a score of 372. But Ted Austen came through with 583 rolling 234 in the final game with a blow in the last frame. Harley Wray's spare and strike in the last frame helped to save the day. At the same time Ritchie's came through with a spurt, Wilbur and Buchanan rolling a strike in the final frame while Bryant and Thomson put up spares; The only thing that saved the Reds was the end of the game.

GUELPH IS TO HAVE TWO INTERMEDIATES

Guelph, Ont., Nov. 4.—Owing to an excess of hockey talent available in the city, Guelph will be represented by two intermediate teams this winter, and an effort will be made to have both placed in different groups, one along with Stratford, Kitchener and New Hamburg, and the other with Brampton, Georgetown and Elora. All the players who were with the intermediate squad last year, with one exception, will compose the team which is to remain in the old group, while on the new club will be several new men who have located here this year, along with other candidates who have played itermediate hockey before.

Woodstock Worker Made Strange Find

Struck Old Skull With Pick; Mysterious Hole At Back

Woodstock, Nov. 4.—A gruesome sight met the gaze of Thomas Brabyn, laborer, of 446 Spencer street, as his pick turned the earth in a ditch which is being excavated for a drain on Buller street. Instead of the yielding soil a hard object was encountered and a human skull came to light, as the loosened earth rolled to one side. As the pick struck the bottom of the ditch a crunching sound was heard, which was later found to have been caused by the instrument penetrating the human relic.

The excavation is being made on the site of the old Methodist cemetery, and the skull is believed to be that of a Methodist parishioner of Woodstock's early days. Examination of the object tended to show that the skull is that of a woman of mature years, but a jagged hole, distinctly different from the hole made by the laborer's pick, cannot be accounted for. The hole is in the back of the skull, slightly to one side, but whether they had anything to do with the cause of the person's death, or not, cannot be definitely determined.

The old Methodist cemetery was located on Buller street, on the block west thirty-five years ago when the ground was sold for building purposes. The bodies were disinterred at that time and removed to the present Methodist cemetery, but it was later discovered that many graves had been overlooked. As building operations commenced human bones came to light in several sections of the former burial ground, and it is thought that the skull uncovered to-day was originally laid to rest with the usual obsequies in the old Methodist cemetery.

NORTHERN ONTARIO IN GRIP OF SNOW

North Bay, Nov. 4—King Winter laid his white mantle over Northern Ontario yesterday. North Bay and environs had enjoyed nearly a month of almost summer-like weather, but cold winds yesterday and enough frost to cause ice last night, foretold the arrival this afternon of snow, which has been falling steadily for four hours, and at six o'clock it was between two and three inches deep.

The temperature dropped almost to zero at Timmins last night and snow began to all at 11 o'clock this morning, and has continued all afternoon, but a southeast wind has resulted in a welcome rise of temperature.

Other points in the north section report snow, and it is believed to be fairly general.

It will be greatly welcomed by hunters who have been complaining that the dry woods, with crisp leaves and twigs that snap under foot have heralded their approach to the game. Some 400 hunters came north this morning over the Canadian National, possibly two-thirds of them detraining between Gravenhurst and North Bay.

NEWS BRIEFS

Aggressive action towards the continuance of the Presbyterian Church was taken by a meeting of Presbyterians at St. Paul's Church, Hamilton, Saturday.

While digging a ditch on one of the main streets of Windsor, a city contractor drove his pick into a human skull. The scene of the find is said to have been a Methodist Cemetery many years ago.

The annual garrison parade of all military units in Brantford, together with the chapters of the I.O.D.E. was held in that city yesterday, when the new mausoleum at Mount Hope Cemetery was dedicated.

Ratepayers of Windsor at the coming municipal elections wil have submitted to them for approval money bylaws representing a proposed total expenditure of $501,000. The amount is to cover a new park, a school site, Public Library extension, a subway, and the city's share towards the General Hospital.

Ontario Commercial Travelers' Association, meeting at London, decided to ask the Provincial government for an advance poll for the travelers at provincial elections, such as is now provided at municipal and Federal contests.

Fire in a warehouse on the north side of Ontario Street, Stratford, on Sunday evening threatened the entire business section on that street. Damage to several buildings amounting to $8,000 was done.

The Barton Theatre was a properly conducted one, and none but those who had business there were permitted behind the scenes; but Doris had to pass through a small crowd of actors and supernumeraries and carpenters, and she felt rather than saw the curious glances bent upon her.

But instantly Jeffrey was by her side.

"It has gone well, so far," he said. "Mr. Brown was right; the house is in good humor, notwithstanding the heat and that it is packed. You played well, Mr. Garland," he said to the Romeo, who came striding up and bowed to Doris.

"Did I? Thanks. Not nearly so well as I shall do when I have Juliet to play to. May I, without offense, say that you are looking your part most beautifully, Miss Marlowe?"

Doris inclined her head with a smile.

"Romeo should pay compliments, Mr. Garland, and that is a very pretty one. But I want to do more than look my part!"

"Don't be afraid," said the young fellow, gallantly. It will be a big hit; I have said so all along."

"And you should know!" said Doris. "I wish I felt as sure."

"Your cue!" said Jeffrey in a solemn voice, as he touched her arm warningly.

She started slightly, then with the light, careless gait of a light-hearted, careless girl, who has no forecast of the doom hanging over her, she went upon the stage.

A greater part of the audience knew her, but they were astonishd by the sight of her beauty, rendered more beautiful by the exquisite dress, and they led the thunder of welcome which the strangers, who saw her for the first time, followed as heartily.

Doris had been taught by Jeffrey that to stop the business of the scene to acknowledge applause was a cardinal sin, and commenced at once, and the crowded house fell into instant silence, in which her sweet, clear voice rang like a silver bell.

A round of applause marked the close of the scene, but there was not much enthusiasm in it.

She had looked a very typical Juliet had played her part well, but there was nothing extraordinary in her acting.

"That's right, Miss Marlowe!" said Romeo, as she passed him at the wing. "Saving yourself up! Reserve force, and all that! Quite right! You'll let yourself go in the later scenes!"

"Well?" she said to Jeffrey, as he threw a silk shawl over her and drew her into a corner out of the draughts.

"It is for you to answer that," he said, quietly. "It was well done; quietly and with self-possession."

"I see!" she said, growing pale. "I have failed!"

"No!" he almost shouted; then, in a low voice that quavered: "It is not your best scene. It ought to be cut out. It is sometimes. You have nothing to fear. Did you see the house?"

She shook her head.

"No, I did not look."

He nodded approvingly.

"That's right. Take no notice of them! Don't look beyond the footlights, and—and—the next scene is a trying one—but I don't want to make you nervous!"

"You will not make me nervous," she said, almost sadly. "I wish that I could feel it more than I do——"

She turned away, and her lips quivered.

The ballroom was set, crowds of supers were hurrying on to the stage; the orchestra was playing the familiar music; the audience were applauding the really handsome scene Then her time came, and she went on, and the house listened and watched with rapt attention. When she went off, there was a distinct round of applause, but still not enthusiastic; the fire was wanting yet!

There were two London critics in the stalls and they exchanged glances and comments.

"Awfully pretty girl!" said one.

"And a lady. Plays well, too," responded the other.

"Ye-es," assented the first. "Not at all badly, but, somehow, doesn't she strike you as being out of the part, so to speak? Seems as if she were going through it in a dream! But she's as beautiful as a dream too."

The balcony scene came on—the scene in which a Juliet, who is a Juliet can display her powers to the best advantage. In this scene are opportunities for the display of love and tenderness, maidenly fear and modesty, and womanly passion, which no other play can afford.

Jeffrey, pacing to and fro behind the wings, with fingers lacing and unlacing themselves, was devoured by anxiety, mitigated by hope.

"Now or never," he muttered. "This is the scene! Oh! Doris, Doris! Now you raise my heart to the seventh heaven, or break it!—break it!"

"Awfully pretty scene, Miss Marlowe," said Romeo, as they stood together for a moment or two; "you'll let yourself go now, I expect!"

"Shall I?" she said, dreamily, almost absently. "I don't know."

He looked at her curiously.

"Yes, I think I'll put all I know into this," he said, gently and respectfully. "It's a big scene for both of us."

"Yes," she said, in a low voice. Then she glided past him and took her place on the balcony.

The scene began ,the audience was as silent as the grave, as Romeo entered and made his well-known speech.

Then Doris moved forward to the edge of the balcony, and into the glare of limelight that poured down upon her.

And then a strange thing occurred. As she sighed, that well-known sigh, she raised her eyes and all unconsciously looked toward the house.

It was almost darkened; but a single light had been left in the chandelier, and it fell upon the handsome face of a young man sitting in the centre box. He was leaning forward, his eyes fixed upon her face, a strange intent expression in them. His face was pale, his hands clasped tightly on the velvet lining of the box-edge, his whole expression that of one surprised, amazed, bewildered and fascinated.

She saw the face for a moment only but she recognized it.

It was the one over which she had bent on the preceding day; it was Cecil Neville's!

The color rose to her face, and her hands, clasped tightly on the balcony edge, trembled. Then she went pale again, and her eyes were raised to the moon.

Then she spoke, and again, marvel of marvels! the very tones of her voice seemed altered. There was no longer any trace of the cold abstraction which had marred the preceding scenes.

Melting, ravishing, they fell upon the audience like drops of dew upon sun-baked travelers.

A thrill seemed to run through the house. Romeo, experienced actor as he was, felt the change, the difference, and actually almost fainted.

If your eyes are normal

You are to be congratulated, because not many eyes are. The trouble is there is no way to learn whether you have normal sight or not except by undergoing an examination. Too many people guess about their eyes, or take too much for granted. Learn the truth whatever it is, then act accordingly. A short time spent here would decide the matter for you.

Agnes Ayres Well Suited to Part

In Mystery Story "The Guilty One" At Belle Theatre

There are mystery-dramas and mystery-dramas, but, we believe, the Joseph Henaby Paramount production of "The Guilty One," in which Agnes Ayres is featured in the principal role, is about the finest example of this type of picture we have seen to date.

The picture which was shown for the first time in Belleville at the Belle Theatre last night, is by far the best Miss Ayres has ever done. In it she has a great story, a great cast and a role that suits her to perfection. Here's a picture in which Agnes has to act and wear beautiful gowns as well, and there's not a bit of doubt in anyone's mind but that she can do both—and does.

"The Guilty One" is a gripping drama, adapted from the stage play by that name in which Pauline Frederick scored such a hit, and which was unanimously acclaimed by critics as the big daddy of all mystery stories. Agnes Ayres plays the role Miss Frederick created—not only plays the part but handles it admirably. Edward Burns, leading man, is cast as the architect-husband in the production.

If you're looking for mystery, excitement, thrills, with just enough comedy mixed in to flavor it, "The Guilty One" will more than entertain you.

Fashions Cause Strife in Paris

Milliners Want the Directoire Hat; Women Won't Wear It

(Associated Press Despatch)

Paris, Nov. 4—Winter styles are here, and with them has come a bitter fashion controversy. The "hat question" has arisen between the milliners on the one side and their customers on the other. "Is the 1924-25 winter hat to be the tall Directoire crown and upturned brim, or the little cloche with fitted dome-crown?"

The milliners have replied, it shall be the Directoire and refuse to make any other kind. Paris women have vehemently objected and the result has been that a surprisingly large number of straw hats continues to be worn and the time honored custom of donning velvet hats on the first day of September has been broken.

At the opening of the fall racing season at Longchamp it was noticed that women steadfastly retained their summer headwear. Meanwhile the show windows of milliners on the rue de la Paix and the rue Royale are overstocked with velvet hats.

"It makes me look too matronly," one of the most fashionable women at the track replied when asked the reason of her failure to adopt the "Directoire." This probably sums up the case for the customers.

The milliners have come out flatly and decreed that women must wear square crowns or nothing. It has become practically impossible to find a milliner who will make the stubborn little cloche.

"Beware of the wrong hat! The hat you choose can make or mar not only the ensemble of your toilette, but the charm of your face itself Such is the way of a fashion writer in one of the most widely circulated style magazine advises her women readers.

The tendency in hat styles ,apart rom the square crowns, is distinctly to height. Black panne is prevalent in every modiste's window. If there is any trimming at all, it must stand very high. The crown alone carries the height if the hat is not ornamented. The square crowns have their high trimming at the side or directly in front, but the round crowns, what few there are to be seen, carry their ornamentation on top.

The next few weeks will decide whether it is to be "the Directoire" or "the cloche" hat. Some stubborn women say they can wear their straw hats until next spring. It remains to be seen whether the milliners can carry their stocks of velvet hats all through the winter.

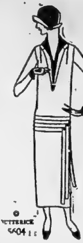
FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



The manipulation of fabric in reversed bands, the flutter of a cascade drapery and the freedom of the straight flounce makes a dancing frock that commends itself to the young girls.

At a season when the night in a young girl's life is much brighter and more important than day, the need of a number of dancing frocks makes itself keenly felt. A dress of the type illustrated here is particularly good for it calls for no trimming except the fabric itself and can be made of materials such as plain soft metallic fabrics crepe faille or satin crepe which will stand a lot of dancing and theater going and the piling of an incredible number of young people into one car. These materials can be trimmed with bands of themselves cut on the reverse grain of metal fabric or faille and on the revrse side of satin crepe.

Unusual Picture Packed House

"The Man They Could Not Hang" Proves to Be Absorbing

We doubt if a more thrilling drama has ever been seen on a Belleville screen than the famous Australian made picture on "The Life Story of John Lee" known the world over as "The Man They Could Not Hang", which was greeted by a splendid house at the Griffin's Theatre last night. Despite its somewhat startling title the picture is in no way gruesome, but tells its absorbing and quite true story in a way which keeps the audience spellbound through its entirety. Based upon the true story of John Lee, the man who walked three times to the gallows only to be saved each time owing to the failure of the apparatus to act at the bidding of the executioner, the audience quickly realize that they are not seeing a scenario writers creation but an episode belonging to real life. The acting and photography throughout are excellent while the special music and scenic prologue, imported from Australia also adds greatly to the success of the evening. Miss Doreen Thompson, last seen here as leading lady with "Ma damoselle from Armentiers" contributes some delightful singing and dancing and also appears as Mrs. Lee in the Prologue, singing with delightful effect "Sweet Spirit Hear My Prayer" and "Coming Home" while W. Leonard Howe delivers a thrilling talk on the salient features of the Lee case as the picture proceeds. Comedies and other interesting films round out a most enjoyable evening.

Social Items

Dr. Morgan, Bridge street, leaves to-day for Chicago, to attend a two weeks' surgical clinic and also expects to visit Mayo Clinic at Rochester, before returning.

The Alert Bible Class of Holloway Street Methodist Church on Sunday presented Mrs. Hay with a leather purse. Mrs. Hay is going to Toronto and the ladies' Bible Class took this opportunity of expressing their appreciation of her past fidelity in the cause of the church.

Mr. John Rogers of Stirling is visiting his daughter, Mrs. C. F. Martin, Cedar Street.

LOT OF CHINESE WOMEN HAPPIER

The annual thank-offering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of John St. church which was held last night was addressed by Rev. J. D. Mac Rae. He spoke on the "Womenhood of China," comparing conditions of fifteen years ago among the women, with their condition to-day. The comparison showed what a striking change had taken place, and how worth while the work there was. Girls' schools have been been established and it has been made a great deal easier for the girls to attend.

Mrs. Hodkinson presided at the meeting. Miss Marjorie Bird, and Mr. J. D. Bankier sang pleasing solos. Mr. Ramsay conducted the devotional exercises. The attendance was large and the collection very satisfactory.

Probitionists of Victoria County met in Lindsay to organize for purpose of assisting the Government in enforcing the O.T.A.

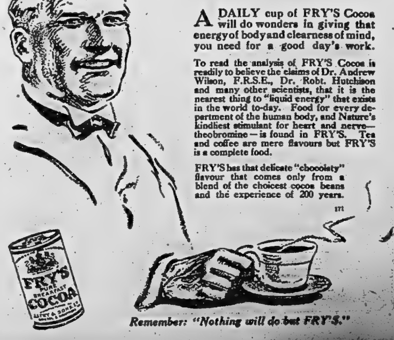
PUMPKIN CHIPS

Pumpkin chips are given as a sort of sweet or relish. Remove the skin and seeds from a pumpkin. If you cut the pumpkin into quarters you will expedite matters. Slice the pieces across, cutting each piece one quarter inch thick. Cook two cups of sugar and one cup of water for five minutes and one-half lemon sliced thin in the hot syrup. Use three-quarters of a pound of pumpkin for the given amount of sugar syrup. Cook until the slices are transparent. If the syrup seems thin, boil down, then pour over the chips which have been packed in sterilized jars. Seal at once.

A few pieces of stick cinnamon and ginger root may be added to the syrup in addition to the lemon. This is good with cold meat or with hot biscuit.

Energy for Men in Fry's



A DAILY cup of FRY'S Cocoa will do wonders in giving that energy of body and clearness of mind, you need for a good day's work.

To read the analysis of FRY'S Cocoa is readily to believe the claims of Dr. Andrew Wilson, F.R.S.E., Dr. Robt. Hutchison and many other scientists, that it is the nearest thing to "liquid energy" that exists in the world to-day. Food for every department of the human body, and Nature's kindliest stimulant for heart and nerve—theobromine—is found in FRY'S. Tea and coffee are mere flavours but FRY'S is a complete food.

FRY'S has that delicate "chocolaty" flavour that comes only from a blend of the choicest cocoa beans and the experience of 200 years.

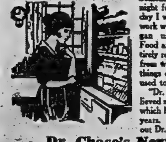
"Tired and Worried Nervous and Despondent"

Mrs. M. Chevalier, Belle River, Ont., writes:

"For eight years I suffered from despondency and nervousness.



Sometimes I could not sleep at night for worrying and the next day I would be so tired that my work was a burden to me. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and can say I am now entirely relieved of the nervousness from which I used to suffer, and things do not worry me as they used to.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment also relieved me of eczema on my arms, which had bothered me for three years. My house is never without Dr. Chase's Medicines."

and they have been for some time now devoting themselves to finding employment and giving most distressing cases first opportunity.

"So far as public undertakings are concerned, the Government has already undertaken substantial works, and hops in the near future to materially increase our programme.

"To cite few of these, we have under contract now two large buildings, and w eare drawing the plans for a third to be erected at Bowmanville in connectio nwith the Boys' Farm.

"Overhauling the public institutions at Queen street, Toronto, at London, and elsowhere.

"The Government some time ago authorized the University to underfake the erection of its new Forestry building.

"We have only recently been able to complete the purchase of one of the properties on the east side of Queen's Park whic hstood in the way of our beginning the erection of the new office building. Plans will very shortly be completed so that the building construction may be advertised. In the meantime, the Government have determined to do the excavation work necessary for the foundation and basement by day labour, and almost immediately this work will be under way.

The Highways Department are extendin gtheir working programme, and will spend a substantial sum at different points in the Province to give opportunity for employment. In Northern Ontario we now have underway a number of public buildings. We have almost complete dthe surveys and will shortly be ready to commence cutting out about 150 miles of roads.

We ma ybe able to supplement this programme to a considerable extent. The Government is looking into some other projects that are not immediately pressing, but will be undertaken t help relieve the situation if the necessary preparation can be made.

The Government has given careful consideration to the suggestion of the municipalities that of all public works undertaken by them as emergency relief half the cost should be contributed by the Dominion and Provincial Governments in equal shares. I intimated to the deputation at the time as my own view and I repeat it now as the view of the Governmen tthat we are unable to acquiesce in this suggestion I feel sure that mature consideration will convince you that such a scheme would be a most improvident one. In fact I can scarcely imagine a municipality who would not be prepared to undertake extravacant public works now that it might not need for years to come, and indeed might not be really essential, if they were to have these works completed at half their cost. The people at large must bear these expenditures, whether they com from the Dominion, Provincial or Municipal treasury and I rather fear that our last condition might be worse than the first.

The last point that you raise, that of immigration, is a matter to be dealt withb y the Dominion Government. I am confident that you will have no trouble convincing them that there should be immediate suspension in immigration activities until the present critical situaton is over. Not only does it aggravate existing conditions, but the experience of those who come now will certainly not help us when our activities are renewed and the day comes that we are prepared to absorb our fellow-citizens from the Old Land.

"Without desiring to be controversial, may I add one further word:

Up To Cities

"You gave expression to the view, which your delegation appeared to approve, that the responsibility for care of the unemployed lies first with the Dominion, second, with the Province and third, with the Municipality rest jointly with the Municipality that view. I think the responsibility rest jointly with the Municipality and the Dominion Government, and primarily with the Municipalities. People are invited to a municipality in times of prosperity by those engaged in industry and other pursuits, to enable them to carry on their undertakings. The people may their rents or taxes, and spend their earnings in the Municipality. This money percolates through all the various commercial channels; and everybody in the municipality reaps a benefit. Having profited by the labor of the workmen, surely your municipality has some direct responsibility when it is found to be no longer profitable for them to carry on these enterprises, and the workmen has no longer an opportunity of earning a livelihood for himself and family. There is the ground, upon which first responsibility rests with the municipality. The Dominion Government are responsible in so far as hey are in a position to control both the number and type of immigrant that is brought to the country.

"Where the Province has any direct responsibility, I confess I am at a loss to understand.

"However, this Government has no desire to assume that attitude, whether responsible or not, we are deeply interested, and we are prepared to co-operate with the Dominion and Municipal Governments in the hope that our joint wisdom and action may find means that will provide bread for many families and bring happiness to many homes.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) G. H. Ferguson.

THREE MEN DEAD; DRINK CANNED HEAT

Brandon, Nov. 4.—Three men, about whose names there is some doubt, died here during the week-end as the result, it is reported, of drinking canned heat and wood alcohol. A fourth man, a negro, giving his name as James White, address unknown, is likely to recover.

One of the trio, who gives his name as Burnside, walked into the General Hospital, and said he was from Hamilton, Ont. Henry Baker is supposed to be the name of the second man, but his address is unknown. The third man had discharge papers from a Quebec battalion on him with the name "Robert Beat," the rest of the name being obliterated.

Martha Lang, seventeen, was seriously burned when she walked close behind an automobile, parked at Detroit, and was enveloped in the flame of a backfire.

Major General J. E. B. Seely, commander o fthe Canadian cavalry in the war, met defeat in the Isle of Wright which he represented as a Liberal in the last parliament.

UNCOVERED PLOT TO KILL PRESIDENT

Mexico City, Nov. 4.—A plot to kill the incoming President of Mexico, Generall Plutarco Calles, has been discovered in Mexico City. Rumors that a plot had been revealed were confirmed by a statement issued of the City Council and prominent Labor leader.

"When the plot was discovered," he said, "we found that more than 1000 were implicated. The plan was to throw dynamite bombs at President Calles when he was taking the oath of office in the Stadium on November 30 at midday."

Eye Defects & Eye Diseases

These are separate and distinct things. Eye defects are irregularities in the shape of the eye. They cause muscular strain in the attempt to focus light for clear vision. The remedy is glasses, not medicine. Eye diseases require medical treatment. The oculist who is a physician specializing in eye diseases, should be consulted in such cases. We are experienced in fitting glasses to correct eye defects, if the services of an oculist are required, you are told so frankly. Many eyes are defective—few are diseased. Consult us about your eyes.

Minister Claims Plot is Started

To Have Been Superceded at His Hamilton Church

Hamilton, Nov. 4.—The Rev. W. A. McIlroy, minister at St. Giles' Presbyterian Church, Sunday night startled his congregation by stating that he had learned of a plot to have him superceded as minister there, because he had advocated church union. He added that a minister had been appointed and asked to take his place. Sixty members who had left were to be brought back to form an organization to defeat church union in St. Giles', and it had formed a slate of elders and managers who were to oust the present board. He had been there eight years and had a strong church and did not believe the people there would permit him to be thrown out. He asked their co-operation to defeat the 60 plotters. A vote of the congregation on union will be taken between December 10 and January 25th.

OSHAWA MEMORIAL READY FOR UNVEILING

Oshawa, Nov. 4.—The Oshawa War Memorial, which has practically been completed, has been viewed by hundreds of interested people during the past week, and all marvelled at the structure. The end pillars have been put in place and the final touches to complete the monument have been applied. The huge bronze figure of the soldier with bared head has been placed in position on the top of the central pillar, and bronze lights erected on each stone. The memorial has been wired for lights and everything is practically in readiness for the unveiling ceremonies on November 10.

DUSTLESS SWEEPER RECEIVES "GO-BY"

Belleville City Council, of 1924 will not purchase a dustless street sweeper. At the meeting last night under the head of motions one was made that the City purchase one from the Dominion Dustless Sweeper's Limited of Peterboro. It requires a two-third vote of the members of the Council to introduce a motion and this was not secured, hence the motion was withdrawn.

LOSE THOUSAND IN GOOD TIMBER

Hull, Que., Nov. 4.—Thousands of dollars worth of valuable hardwood has been burned in the bush fires which have been raging over a wide area east of Low, Que. The fires are nearly under control, according to a message from Low at noon today, and if the wind does not freshen the danger will be passed within a few hours.

The presence of hundreds of hunters may have had something to do with the outbreak it is said. Another fire between Kazubazua and Venosta is now under control. Hunters, instead of following the deer tracks in other areas, are assisting in subduing the flames.

THIRD LINE THURLOW

(By Staff Correspondent)

The members of the Union S. S. gathered at the home of Mr. H. Atkins on Monday evening to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cook. During the evening the company was called to order and Mr. D. Leeming read the following address:

Dear Mrs. Cook and family:

We, the members of the Union S.S. have gathered here to-night to spend a social evening together before your departure to your new home. We regret to lose you out of our Sunday School. You have always been helpful in S.S. work as well as social gatherings also in sickness and we trust that God may be your helpful guidance in your journey through life. You are not going so far away, but that we can meet often and we will be very glad to have you come back as often as possible. We ask you to accept this glass dish and piece of aluminum as a slight token of remembrance and may they recall to your mind the times spent with friends in the Union S. S.

Signed on behalf of U.S.S.,
Mrs. A. Keene,
Mrs. D. Atkins.

Mrs. J. Bunnett made the presentation, to which Mrs. Cook made a very suitable reply. Mrs. Cook was the Bible Class teacher and assistant organist.

The evening was spent very enjoyably with music and singing by Miss J. Browning, social intercourse and games. At midnight, lunch was served and the company dispersed, after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Cook success in their new home in Belleville.

Mr. Thomas Keene who has been very sick for the past six weeks, is slowly improving.

The threshing is nearly completed in this locality.

Mr. A. Keene has the phone in.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Atkins were visiting at Mr. J. Latta's last week.

Mr. J. Carson has rented his house and is going to stay with his son Mr. C. Carson, Toronto, for the winter.

Before the eyes of his wife and six little children, Alex. Herman, a farmer of the Julius, Man., district, was instantly killed when he received a full charge fro ma shotgun in his chest by accident.

Died as Result Of Hallowe'en Joke

Victim Struck Wagon With His Auto Near Streetsville

Streetsville, Nov. 4—Robert Waddell, 23, lost his life as a result of an auto striking a wagon which he and forty other young men were dragging down the street for a Hallowe'en prank. The auto driven by Chas. Harkiss of Erindale, hit the wagon as it was being taken across the corner of Queen street and a side road.

The wagon was smashed and it is not known whether Waddell was run over by the auto or hit by part of the wagon. He was picked up with a nasty gash in one leg and taken to the office of Dr. Bowie. Later he was removed to his home. Saturday morning, when his condition had become much worse he was admitted to the Western Hospital. It was found that gangrene had set in, and he died late Sunday afternoon.

The young men taking part in the escapade had taken two wagons from a coal company's yard and were pulling them down to Queen street. The place was unlighted as the light had been smashed some time before in the evening. One of the other boys was run over by the auto, but escaped serious injury.

Born in Scotland, Robert Waddell came to Streetsville four years ago. He was employed at the Streetsville brick yards. Surviving are his parents, five brothers and one sister.

DEDICATE CHIMES ON SUNDAY NEXT

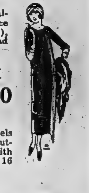
Oshawa, Nov. 4—The new chimes of St. George's Church will be dedicated on Sunday, November 9, by Bishop Edward J. Bidwell, M.A., D.D., D.L.C., of the Diocese of Ontario, Kingston, and he will be assisted by several other clergymen. As the ceremony is to be held on Thanksgiving Sunday the whole service will be of a Thanksgiving nature. The first hymn to be played will be "The Doxology" and following "God Save the King", "The Star Spangled Banner" will be sung in honor of the donor of the chimes, Mr. T. E. Houston, of Cincinatti. City Engineer Smith will operate the bells at the dedicatory service.

HONESTLY REWARDED

Kempten, Bavaria, Nov. 4—A local laborer recently found on the road a purse containing 190,000 gold marks, equal to $45,000. He learned the money had been lost by some American tourists, and returned it. The honest man was honestly rewarded, for the tourists gave him one-tenth, $4,500.

BANDITS SLAY CASHIER

Wrentham, Mass., Nov. 4.—Three armed bandits held up and shot to death the cashier of the Wrentham National Bank.



New Frocks — Specially Priced

Featuring the New Ensemble Frocks

Fashioned from Kasha and Charmeen Fabrics Fur Trimmed 25.00

The much heralded ensemble for Winter is featured in our ready-to-wear section, fashioned from soft nap suede woolens, Kasha Cloth or Charmean. This costume follows the straight tube line, the coat effect more often than not reaching the hem of the skirt. In many instances the lining of the coat matches the tunic.

Sealino and Beaverine Fur trimmings are used at neck, pockets or cuffs as trimmings together with military braid. The shades are New Browns, Black and navy.

These new Ensemble Frocks, challenge every woman's interest, the price makes them irrisistible, (all sizes), Ready- to Wear Section—Ground Floor.

The Beltless Tunic Frock of Zarbar Satin $25.00

These Frocks have caught the spirit of the mode—expressing the very smart tunic in fine Zarbar Satin. How many ingenious touches give the tunic individuality! Some are slashed in front to show panels of metal braid, others have gay embroidery or quaintly painted buttons, others with gold edged tiers, Collars are new too, fastening with links or lengthening into narrow scarves, navy, brown, black, sizes 16 to 42.

"Correctly Gloved"

New Gloves just arrived in Wash Kid, Suede and Glace Kid qualities, in novelty cut effects, very interesting indeed, in "slip on" and one dome style $2.50 to $5.00.

PRETTY NEW HATS For Winter Wear

New Satin and Plush Hats combined with metallics, close fitting styles, to be worn with fur neckpieces or fur coats. Beautiful color-combinations, Fish, Gage, Gainsborough models, together with clever adaptations from our own work rooms. Priced $5.00 to $20.00.

Broadcloth Blouses

Boy Reported Better

Kingston, Nov. 4.—Percy Clarke, the fifteen-year-old Odessa boy who was shot on Friday evening while out with a Hallowe'en party, is reported as resting easily and likely to recover from the effects of his wound. Dr. R. J. Gardiner, who removed the bullet from under the skin of the boy's back after it had passed through his right lung, stated this morning when questioned as to his patient's condition that "no complications have set in, the boy rested easily last night, and his general condition appears to be most favorable for a speedy recovery."

Car Ran Into Cannon

Kingston, Ont., November 4.—A big car came to grief Sunday night at the Wellington and West street entrance to the City Park, when it ran at almost full speed into the cannon that stands at the entrance there. There were two women and several men in the car at the time and they were all badly shaken up and one of the women was severely bruised.

They were first taken to a nearby residence after which one of the women was removed to the hospital.

Foolhardy Boy is Lucky

Port Hope, Nov. 4.—There was excitement caused at the Port Hope pier Sunday afternoon when Donald Wilson sailed out of the harbor in a frail canoe with a sail. A small crowd of spectators watched this venturesome trip and wondered at the foolishness of it. The younth sailed well out into the lake, but the heavy sea proved too much for him and he found himself in a serious predicament. At this point he was seized with a violent attack of sea sickness the canoe was carried a mile or so east, and after much struggling he safely reached the shore.

Shot Timber Wolf

Mr. W. E. Todd, who with Mrs. Todd and Ernie Tompkins of Cambray, near Lindsay, returned on the week-end from a deer hunting expedition at Rutter, seven miles above French River, brought home a timber wolf as a trophy of the chase.

Peterboro Majority

That the O.T.A. was only sustained in the city of Peterborough by a majority of 423 votes is indicated by the official figures compiled by Sheriff F. J. A. Hall. In the West Peterborough riding, the final figures show, the O.T.A. had a majority of 942.

Cream Ends Cold In Head

INSTANTLY OPENS EVERY AIR PASSAGE—CLEARS THROAT

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed because of nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure antiseptic cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage soothing and healing swollen, inflamed membranes and you get instant relief.

Try this. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Your clogged nostrils open right up; your head is clear; no more hawking or snuffling. Count fifty. All the stuffiness, dryness, struggling or breath is gone. You feel fine.

During the past three years U. S. Prohibition Commissioner says 177,000 arrests have been made for violation of the dry laws, 39,000,000 gallons of liquor seized and 11,000 automobiles and 444 ships confiscated.

A Burning Skin

At this season is merely Nature's reminder of undue exposure to raw wind. Folks who are wise will forestall this trouble by applying Nyal's Face Cream. Its healing, soothing influence is particularly grateful to inflamed skin, but when applied before exposure it prevents irritation. You'll like Nyal Face Cream

COOLIDGE WINS APPROVAL OF UNITED STATES

He Secured Sweeping Victory at Polls Yesterday

AWAIT LAST FIGURES

To Show Whether Republicans Will Have Necessary Majority

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 5.—President Coolidge, in expressing his thanks to American Electors said to-day. "I can only express my simple thanks to all who have contributed to this result, and plainly acknowledge that it has been brought to pass throuh work of a divine Providence of which I am but one instrument. Such powers as I have, I dedicate to the services of all my country and of all my countrymen."

After congratulating President Coolidge, John W. Davis, defeated Democratic nominee issued a public statement in which he accepted the outcome of the election "without any vain regret or bitterness."

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 5.—Early this morning President Coolidge was assured of 348 votes in the electoral college with the possibility that this might be increased to 379 when the returns from several doubtful States have been tabulated. John W. Davis, Democratic candidate, was assured of 136 votes and Senator La Follette, third party leader 13 votes.

It still appeared doubtful whether the Republican party would have working a majority of members in Congress 266 votes being necessary for election. States calculated to have gone in favor of Coolidge are: California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming. The votes of these States in the electoral college total 343.

States favoring Davis were, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennesse, Texas and Virginia with voting strength of 136. In the doubtful column are placed Arizona, Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota and South Dakota with a total vote of 39.

Overwhelming Majority

Senator La Follette, although polling a popular vote of about four millions, which approximates Roosevelt's total when he led the third party movement in 1912, was assured the electoral vote of Wisconsin, his own State only. It was estimated that Coolidge polled an 18,000,000 popular vote or two million more than were given to Harding. Davis had eight million against nine million for Cox. In many of the States carried by Coolidge his majority over both opponents was overwhelming. In New York State, being more than eight hundred thousand. In New England States and Ohio and Illinois majorities likewise were tremendous. A number of Democratic state tickets and Democratic members of congress who had been confident of election were defeated, but in New York, Governor Alfred E. Smith withstood the handicap of the sweep for the Republican national ticket and defeated Theodore Roosevelt, Republican candidate by an estimated one hundred thousand plurality.

Driver Goes Back to Kitchener to Face Seduction Charge

Albert Eddes of Kitchener was taken to the city yesterday afternoon on the International Limited by Constable Farrell where he will answer to a charge of seduction. Eddes was arrested Tuesday morning while at work as a truck driver on the paving job on the Trenton highway. He was arrested on a warrant issued by the Chief Constable of Kitchener. Provincial officers effected the arrest here.

NOT MUCH HOPE FOR LOWER TARIFF

As Ottawa Folk View the Elections in U.S.A.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—There is disinclination in official circles here to comment on Republican victories in the United States, at same time, the feeling prevails that as a consequence not much can be expected in the way of tariff reductions south of the boundary. The Republican victories of four years ago were followed by the adoption of a Fordney emergency tariff which imposed heavy duties on produce of Canadian farms. Subsequently the present United States tariff was adopted also with high rates on Agricultural produce. Despite tariffs however, the exports of Canadian farm produce to United States have lattery been increasing and the balance of trade between the two countries is considerably more favorite to Canada than a year ago.

Guy Fawkes Day Comes Once Again

Three Hundred and Twenty Years Since Gun-Powder Plot

Please to remember the fifth of November
The gunpowder treason and plot,
I see no reason why gun powder treason
Should ever be forgot.
Guy! Guy! Guy!
Stick him up high
And there let him die.

This is the anniversary of the discovery of Guy Fawkes' gunpowder plot and this is the chant with which the school-boys of England used to celebrate it. Until quite recently November 5 was a legal holiday in England. The boys used to carry about an effigy of Guy Fawkes which they finaliy burned.

It is almost three hundred and twenty years ago since the plan of blowing up Parliament was devised in revenge for the penal laws against Roman Catholics. The plot was discovered on the fifth of November, 1605. Fawkes although subjected to the rack, would not reveal the names of his associates. He was executed in January 1606.

NEWS BRIEFS

One rather amusing result of the British general election is that it entails an entire change in the chief guests at the annual banquet given by the Lord Mayor of London on Monday night, November 10. The Premier of Great Britain and his cabinet colleagues always sit at the head table as the lord mayor's principal guests, and in accordance with custom Ramsay MacDonald and his ministers had been invited to the banquet, but this was before the electio nwas sprung on the people with its dire result to the MacDonald Government.

Thirteen peple were killed in a smash on an express train between Liverpool and Blackpool on Monday night and several were injured, three of them seriously. The train left the rails at Moss Side, two miles from Lytham and crashed into a signal cabin near the track. One of the passengers who was killed was Charles Graeme, commander of the ocean liner Isardic.

SHE IS REAL COP

Boston, Nov. 5.—When Thomas J. O'Brien struck at Mrs. Margaret McHugh, one of Boston's policewomen, she did not pull her club on him. Instead she moved aside to avoid the blow, then stepped in and with a right-hand swing sent sent him sprawling to the street, opening his left cheek.

At the police station a doctor's services were necessary for O'Brien Police regulations require a detailed report in every case in which an officer has to use force in making an arrest. The facts were told in Mrs. McHugh's report.

CROSSEN GIVES EVIDENCE FOR HIMSELF TODAY

Claims He Fired at the Ground Behind McCrodan

CASE IS CONCLUDED

Canadian Press Despatch)

Cobourg, Nov. 5.—William John Crossen, 55, of Baltimore, went into the witness box this morning to give evidence in his own defence on the charge of murdering Byron A. McCrodan of Toronto on May 18 last.

Crossen declared he fired at the ground behind the fleeing Rowe and then a second shot was discharged when McCrodan rushed against him in an effort to get away. Crossen said the shot was fired at four or five feet, but medical witnesses for the Crown said twenty feet or more. There was no blackening of the wound by powder and the shot had entered in a spread out form.

Evidence closed at noon and argument will be taken up this afternoon.

Will Announce Cabinet Friday

Stanley Baldwin, Agrees to Form New Government

London, Nov. 5—Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader and former premier, agreed to form a new cabinet yesterday when called to Buckingham Palace by King George. The King had previously accepted the resignation of the cabinet of Ramsay Macdonald, the first Labor premier.

Mr. Baldwin, following his appointment as Premier and first Lord of the Treasury, told newspaper men that he hoped to have the list of his new cabinet ready by Friday morning.

In Dominion circles here the return of the Duke of Devonshire to the office of Colonial Secretary under Premier Stanley Baldwin would be warmly welcomed. There seems to be no ground for assuming that the Duke has a real distate to taking the office again and among the recent colonial secretaries none created better relations between the Dominions and the Colonial Dpartment here than the former Governor-General of Canada.

What Mr. Baldwin has in mind with regard to the colonial secretaryship, however, is at present entirely a matter of conjecture. This also aplies to the other cabinet positions, about which there has been considerable speculation.

Premier-elect Baldwin returned to town unexpectedly last night. He has not even met the prominent members of the Conservative party yet.

THINKS CANADA IS MOST ATTRACTIVE

London, Nov. 3.—Canada stands out among the Dominion as the most attractive to the British emmigrant, in the opinion of General Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, who has just returned to London, on the conclusion of a tour of Canada. The change from the miseries of unemployment or precarious employment in this country to a condition of having enough and some to spare, he said, was indeed a happy change. He confirmed the view which he expressed some time ago that of all the parts of the British Empure open to emigrants of the Old Land Canada was the most promising to the newcomer.

The General added that he was quite satisfied with his trip to the Dominion, and that the Salvation Army was forging ahead from coast to coast.

Kitchener, Nov. 5.—Falling from an apple tree on the farm of his father, near Hawkesville. 10 miles from here, Harold Lackner this afternoon broke both his arms. The young man man is 22 years of age. The broken arms were reset at the farm of his father, J. Lackner.

Two Hundred Emigrants, Fed For Year By White Star Line, On Hunger Strike

Cherbourg, France, Nov. 5.—Russian emigrants, to the number of 235 who have been housed and fed at the Atlantic Hotel for nearly a year by the White Star Line which contracted to transport them to the United States, but which cannot get them to that country under the immigration quota declared a hunger-strike, much to the delight of the hotel, because the White Star Line gave them notice to leave.

The company offered to carry the emigrants to South America, or to continue to try to get them work in New York, if they would obligate themselves to pay their year's board bill. The emigrants, however, contend that they were brought from their homes under a promise to be landed in New York, and without being warned of quota difficulties.

HOW COME?

Posters at Trenton advertise Charles E. Hanna, the Liberal candidate as "The People's Candidate." Similar posters have not been seen in Belleville as yet. Probably it is believed that distance lends enchantment. At all events many Bellevillians will be anxious to know the when, why and wherefore of "The People's Candidate" idea—its origin, meaning and significance, if in this case it has any.

Is this a case of taking undue liberty with words or their meaning or both? Charles Hanna is believed to have been at periods of his life, Conservative Labor, Independent and new Liberal, but where does "The People's Candidate" idea come from? Who is the father of this brain child?

Whose hallucination is being chronicled for the approval of our sound minded Trenton neighbors and electors

Anyone who has at different periods of his life represented almost everything, may believe he is "The People's Candidate". All people must needs have followed him—but not all at the one time. You cannot fool all of the people all of the time. In the words of a popular cartoonist. "It doesn't mean anything," and by the way: Question 15—"What will this so-called "People's Candidate" be, lead or champion next?" and might the Liberals, whose unanimity at the Stirling convention set him under the Liberal banner be referred to as THE people, just because they are Liberals?

SNORING RUINED ROMANCE

New York, Nov. 5.—Loud snoring on the honeymoon trip spoiled the romance of Mrs. Matilda Mertis, 43 years old, and her 24-year-old handsome husband.

Mrs. Mertis paid for an operation on her husband's nose, but when that failed and he suddenly showed an inclination to quit working she went to court. The court ordered the bridegroom to pay his wife $6 a week.

ALDERMAN OF MONTREAL IS NOW INVOLVED

Witness at Probe Declares He Gave Himself Away

WIFE OF POLICEMAN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, Nov. 5.—Testifying before the probe being conducted by Mr. Justice Coderre this morning, Mrs. Lariviere, wife of Constable Lariviere, who disappeared mysteriously on March the fourth of this year, said that Alderman Mongeon had stated:

"The Government is no d——d good. Look what they did to poor Morel, (one of the bandits executed for the Hochelaga Bank car hold-up and murder). I have got $6,000 of the Hochelaga bank's money and they will never get a cent of it. Half an hour before the hold-up I was with those men."

Mrs. Lariviere further alleged that Alderman Mongeon said that the bandits would all be out of jail before they were hanged and that Morel would be back on the police force in two years."

Unusual Case in City Police Court

Man Charged With Violating Requirements of Inspector

An unusual case was up for hearing in police court late this morning, and adjourned for one week.

E. Gillmore, of Toronto, representing the Duffie Electrical Manufacturing Company was charged with offering for sale a larger type 1,000 watt heater which did not carry the customary tag which notes that such heaters must not be used on ordinary lamp sockets. Gillmore is alleged to have stated that the heater could be used on the ordinary lamp socket. A heater of this type can only be used from a base plug, otherwise it consumes too much electric current, and creates conditions which might prove hazaradous to life and property, as fire is liable to be started from their use when attached to an ordinary lamp socket. The heater is quite satisfactory, however, when attached to a base plug and smaller type heaters manufactured by the same company, one being the 660 watt heater are also entirely satisfactory.

Gillmore pleaded guilty to the charge as laid by Hydro Inspector Harry Thompson.

W. C. Cale, assistant Laboratory Engineer for the Hydro Electric Power Commission was also present in court this morning in connection with the case.

BLIND MAN RESCUED AT WALLACEBURG

Wallaceburg, Nov. 5.—What might have proved a fatal fire occurred at about 3.30 o'clock yesterday, when the house occupied by two elderly brothers, Duncan and Archie McCallum, who live on the Doyle Survey, just outside the corporation, was found to be in flames. The fire was first noticed by two men returning from work at the Dominion Glass Company plant. They gave the alarm, proceeded to the scene, and aroused the occupants of the house, who were sleeping, and got them out to safety. Archie McCallum is totally blind.

The identity of the two rescuers has not as yet been established. The Fire Department responded to the call, but found themselves unable to assist owing to the long distance from the nearest hydrant.

The house, which was a frame one, was burnt to the ground, with its contents. It is estimated that the damage will amount to approximately $2,000. It is partly covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is a mystery.

JUDGE C. G. SNIDER, commissioner before whom E. C. Settell, former secretary to Sir Adam Beck, has made sensational charges.

CALL TO COURT PROVED PLEASANT

Motorist Turned Visit Into Social Call; Enforce Parking Rules

Today was "Parking Day" at police court, when attentions of the court were directed to that timely and much discussed problem, especially relating to Front street. City councillors and citizens are now discussing the matter, and the police commissioners will presently be asked to formulate laws which will govern the difficult matter as well as please the largest possible number of car owners and citizens.

A number appeared this morning charged with various parking charges. Some had left their car stand longer than the prescribed half hour, others had parked plumb against fire hydrants and others had been guilty of double parking. All were viewed similarly through the eyes of the law and were asked to donate five dollars as a fine. Other cases not disposed of will come up later. All but one paid the "fine", one asking grace until pay day which falls on Thanksgiving Day He was granted the favor.

Most cases were local, but one man drove in from Madoc Junction to answer the charge, to find that he had served in France with Major B. C. Donnan, the Crown Attorney as a [illegible]. Cars and fines were temporarily lost in reminiscence.

Police are going after the parking nuisance as a result of stern necessity and the car owners should beware if they wish to save inconvenience, than a fine. Professional and business men who drive to business and park their machines on a street during the whole day will necessarily have to find another solution, and the same will apply to any car owner city or rural. Double parking and parking against fire hydrants will also be stamped out if the vigilance of police officers will do it.

Find Tweed Man's Death Accidental

Inquest on Late Louis Chappelle Held Yesterday Afternoon

Accidental death was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury empanelled to enquire into the tragic death of Louis Chapelle, farmer living west of Tweed, who was killed Saturday evening last on the River road, two miles west of the village.

The inquest was held Tuesday afternoon at Tweed before Coroner Dr. Eagleson of Madoc. County Attorney B. C. Donnan conducted the examination of the four witnesses, Provincial Constable S. Elliott, Lawrence Chappelle, nephew of deceased who with his companion Edward O'Coyne found the dead man by the roadside, Dr. Doyle of Tweed who was summoned and examined the deceased, and Pierre Lashotte, farmer with whom deceased had chatted but half an hour before he was notified of the tragic death.

Louis Chapelle, sixty-two year old man was killed when a spirited horse which he was driving, shied, swinging the buggy against a rock. The buggy then turned turtle, throwing him out in the ditch, his head striking a huge limestone. His skull was crushed.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 5.—Free power for the illumination of the Falls under the new scheme will be given by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, according to an announcement here to-day. Work on the new project will begin in the near future.

Youth of Britain Have Gone Back to Long Engagements ; Jeweler Reports Slump

(Associated Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 5—"Back to the long engagement" seems to have become a sort of slogan among the lovelorn of Britain.. It would be hard to say how change has come about but evidence accumulates that long engagements are again in fashion.

The wartime habit of the hasty marriage—not seldom followed by repentance at leisure—is surely giving way to the protracted and romantic engagements of prim days when Queen Victoria used to spank one of her grandchildren who afterwards became Emperor of Germany.

"There is a slump in the sale of engagement rings" confided a court jeweler. "Young men nowadays do not rush into three or four engagements before they marry. This, however, is balanced by the number of costliness of presents exchanged in the courtship. The most fashionable marriages are generally the result of a six to twelve month's engagement."

PROBE CHARGES BY SETTELL AT INQUIRY

Investigate Alleged Charging of Account to Railway

AT MORNING MEET

Appoitment of Dr. Gaby by Brother Also Probed

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 5—Claiming that the signature of W. Robertson, Engineer in charge of the Windsor, Sandwich and Amherstburg Railway had been added to the bill approving the charge for detective services to that line which Settell claims were really for the purpose of keeping watch on the home of Home Smith of Toronto, E. C. Settell injected some interest in the comparatively dull session of the inquiry commission just before the noon adjournment. The bill according to Settell for payment for these services was initialled by W. W. Pope, secretary of the Hydro Commission and seconded that subsequent to the opening of investigation the approval of Robertson had been placed on the bill. He urged that the signature should be submitted to an ink expert to prove his contention. No action was taken on the suggestion by the Commission. The session this morning was void of sensational most of the time being taken up by evidence of Sir Adam Beck regarding the use of officials for private purposes and employment of Dr. R. E. Gaby, brother of the Chief Engineer as medical advisor to the Commission.

Believe Hamilton Man Murdered

Blood-Stained Cudgel was Found on Mountain Side Yesterday

Hamilton, Nov. 5.—Believing that Fred Genesee, 136 Balmoral Ave., was murdered, following the finding of a blood stained cudgel on the mountain side yesterday, near the spot where Genesee's car was found a few days ago it was announced at the detective office yesterday that a search would be made along the mountain face for the missing man's body.

Genesee, who was steady in his habits, has been away from home a week and no reason for his disappearance has been given. He was last seen leaving a restaurant with a companion and the police have failed to trace him since then. His car was abandoned in the east end below the mountain and yesterday boy scouts who conducted a search, found a blood-stained weapon, which might have been used in a murderous attack.

The police last night could not confirm the report that Genesee was held responsible for notifying the authorities of liquor movements here. The weapon found yesterday has been turned over to Dr. Deadman who will make an examination of the stains.

CANADIAN WEST IS IN GRIP OF WINTER

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg Nov. 5.—The entire Canadian West today was in the grip of cold bleak winter. Heavy snowfalls have southern portions of the three Prairie Provinces during the past twenty-four hours, while in other districts low temperatures prevail. Predictions are for further snow and continued cold temperatures.

PREMIER KING ON WAY BACK HOME

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 5.—Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King closed last night at Regina his Western official speaking program, which has carried him into all the Western provinces in the past five weeks, and to-day he leaves Winnipeg for Northern Ontario to close his tour.

The Prime Minister and his party arrived in Winnipeg last evening and were guests at a reception tendered by the Winnipeg Press Club. A deputation which souht an appointdeputation which souht an appointfreight rates has been assured that Mr. King is fully advised of the Western sentiment in this connection.

New Yor, Nov. 5.—All forest fires in NNew York State are under control except two,, reports received by the Conservation Committee at Albany indicated. One of these was raging five miles north of Bloomingburg, Sullivan County, and the other was at Robb Creek, Fulton County, which was brought under control Sunday night, but started again yesterday.

Stratford, Nov. 5—The indebtedness of Perth County stands at a little more than $1,000, the exact figure, according to County Treasurer George Hamilton, being $1 009. The retirement of a debenture on Monday brought the figures to above mentioned amount. This figure does not include the current expenses but shows the high financial standing of the county.

A GOOD RECORD

Fifty-three years ago to-day Police court clerk John Newton, J.P., arrived in Belleville from old England. The first winter he spent swinging the axe in the woods, but since that time has faithfully served this city as Chief Constable over a long span of years, and since his retirement, has been Police Court Clerk. Last year he was appointed Justice of the Peace, and whenever he has presided at Police Court has shown wisdom and fairness acquired through his long association with the police business.

ENGLISH MOVIES

Judging on the remarks of Mr. W. Leonard Howe, a number of years shall pass before English made moving pictures will be popular in Canada. Mr. Howe, who is in Belleville with a picture called "The Man They Could not Hang" has brought many English photoplays to Canada and he ought to know.

In about twenty-five films sent from England to this country, in the last year or two, twenty-three failed to appeal to the public. The remaining two, one of which was "Alf's Button" were money makers.

The arresting feature of the situation was that the pictures were England's best. The photography was well nigh perfect. Only stars of the first rank played in them. The plots were excellent.

Why didn't they take with Canadians? Mr. Howe's answer is that Canadians have been educated to the United States' product. The English pictures did not give theatre goers what they expected to see, and they were consequently disappointed.

In one of these pictures, a doctor accuses a nurse of murder. Done the Hollywood way, the nurse likely would have registered consternation, indignation or shown extreme agitation. The patrons of the theatre would have been keyed up to a pitch of excitement. However, the English actress consistent with the character she portrayed, looked the Doctor straight in the eyes and calmly denied the charge. Canadian people were disappointed.

This little incident serves to illustrate the characteristics of the two brands of pictures, and it should be noted that while Canadian folk in general turned their thumbs down and killed, for a time, the showing of English pictures here, Canadian critics were loud in praises.

One of two things will happen. Canadians will seek fewer "Thrills" for realistic acting or England, true to her traditions, will some day adapt her product to meet the wants of Canada.

A DIME NOVELIST

To not one in a thousand readers will the bare statement that Thomas Chalmers Harbaugh is dead convey any message awaking a responsive chord of memory, and so far as the younger generation of readers is concerned, the interest of the announcement is in no way heightened by adding that he was the creator of Nick Carter, a detective of fiction whose adventures were followed with as breathless interest as were those of the great Sherlock Holmes himself, although their respective admirers represented sharply-separated strata of students of literature. For Nick was a hero of the "dime novel," that institution of the latter half of the nineteenth century which had to bear most of the opprobium for the juvenile depravity of the period, just as the films today are blamed for every manifestation of youthful high spirits ranging from mischief to murder. The malign influence of Nick Carter and his like was somewhat over-estimated, and despite the fulminations of the uplifters of the day, and the forebodings of anxious parents, only a comparatively small number of devotees of the cult of the "dime novel" so far succumbed as to adopt lives of crime. Indeed, there could have been little temptation to do so, for with the invariable successes of such infallible and preternaturally gifted detectives as Nick Carter, Old Cap Collier and Old Sleuth before their eyes, few youths could summon the hardihood to oppose their wits to supermen of this type. Considerably more conducive to youthful defiance of law and morality may be the reading of the daily press wherein the sophisticated youngsters of the present day are allowed to learn of the comparative ease with which numberless crimes are committed without their perpetrators being brought to retribution by real-life detectives who unfortunately do not possess the unerring intuition and the uncanny favor of fortune which permitted their prototypes in the once-popular juvenile fiction to "get their man" every time.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT

In the August number of The Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company attention is called to the large number of homicidal assaults which have occurred during recent years in the United States. The figure given is more than 9,000 annually; seventeen times the number which would have occurred if the percentage which occurs in England and Wales had prevailed in the States. The homicides which were committed in Chicago in the year 1922 exceeded the number which occurred in all England and Wales in that year. Furthermore, the toll of homicides per 100,000 of population is nearly six times that existing in Canada. It is hinted that inability to apprehend indict and try assailants, and to make prompt and definite disposition of homicidal cases are important factors in accounting for this situation. This insurance company is about to make a persistent attempt to secure all data on the legal procedures connected with the homicidal cases occurred among its policy holders.

That the problem is of great importance to its millions of policy holders is shown by the fact that in 1923 the company paid out in claims for this class of death alone the sum of $724,000. The collection of facts regarding the trial and disposition of these homicidal cases appeared to be beset with much difficulty, and satisfactory informaton could be gathered only in 146 out of the 446 homicidal cases which occurred among their policy holders during the last six months of 1922. Of these 146 cases of murder or manslaughter the information was obtained that thirty-two fell into the class of justifiable killing; that is, death was inflicted in self defence in seven cases or by an officer of the law in the line of duty in twenty-five cases. There was a definite indictment in sixty-nine cases; the remaining forty-five cases were not indicted; in one-third of them the assailants are still at large; in twenty-two the assailants committed suicide and in eight the evidence was insufficient to warrant indictment. Of the sixty-nine who were indicted, eleven escaped trial; sixteen were discharged as not guilty; of the forty-one judged to be guilty, thirty-five are serving time, with an appeal pending in six of them. Summarizing the results. The Statistical Bulletin asserts that out of the 146 homicidal cases of which 114 were manslaughter or murder cases, thirty-five are serving time in the penitentiary, one is on parole, one is fined, and one has been executed. All the remainder are either unapprehended, have been set free, or are awaiting trial.

STRIKING A SNAG

As the campaign in the West Riding of Hastings proceeds, it becomes more apparent that E. Guss Porter, K.C., will be returned to his seat in the House of Commons by a very substantial majority.

Flushed with the exertions of the first few days of rosy campaigning, some Liberal leaders made bold statements. A few began to to play with figures in estimating Charles Hanna's majority. They are not so confident now after bumping a few times against the stern convictions of hundreds of voters in the riding who are not interested so much in the worth of Mr. Hanna or Mr. Porter as they are in the worthlessness of James Murdock. The efforts of the Liberal government and its supporters, notwithstanding, the large majority of West Hastings people are not forgetting issue at stake. They realize the sacred right of the ballot by which they will cast their verdict on the guilt of a Minister of the Crown who took an oath that he would be honorable.

The manner of man Charles Hanna may be has nothing to do with the case. On the same grounds, the vindicative attacks on the long career of E. Guss Porter counts for nothing.

The duty of West Hastings, to be performed under the watchful eyes of the whole Dominion, is to say "guilty" or "not guilty", after having carefully considered the of James Murdock's conduct in withdrawing his money from the Home Bank on the eve of the failure of that institution.

NO DEFEAT FOR LABOR

(Toronto Telegram)

Not a victory over labor. But a victory for labor—a triumph for British workers over anti-British talkers. These talkers have temporarily destroyed the Labor movement in politics and would have permanently destroyed the British Empire if the Old Country workers had left them on the job.

FOOLING THE PEOPLE

(National Review)

It would take a peculiarly bold and reckless politician to maintain that the policy of penalizing the British taxpayer by making him pay the entire cost of a war that was forced upon him by the Germans originated with the Democracy. On the contrary, the British poeple believed, as they were told by politicians then needing their votes, that the loser should, could, and must pay. There was no question then of "sparing" Germany at the expense of England, nor any doubts raised as to Germany's capacity to pay. She was a criminal nation, whose pockets were to be "searched," and on the faith of this understanding a record Parliamentary majority was returned, and forthwith it was British and not German, pockets that were searched and drained.

OWNS 4,500 BRUCE ACRES

(Petrolia Advertiser)

Up in the county of Bruce one of the finest counties in this grand old province of Ontario— there is a tract of land and water known as Greenock Swamp. It is located near the village of Cargill, named after the late Henry Cargill, M.P., and if what we have heard in times past is correct it was forced on Cargill for almost nothing by an ungrateful province. At the same time it laid the foundation for his fortune. Cargil is dead now, and as is generally the case where the head of a family has made a fortune the heirs are disposing of the assets and investing elsewhere. One of the latest sales was the disposal of 3,500 acres of the famous swamp, excellent timber land, to Senator Jim Donnelly of the neighboring village of Pinkerton. Some day the swamp will be cleared and drained and then the owner will have as fine a tract of land as there is to be found in the country. Senator Donnelly is now one of the largest landowners in Bruce, with an acreage of 4,500 to his credit.

FULL LIGHT ON THE CAMPBELL CASE

The Toronto Saturday Night says:

British newspapers which have come to hand throw an entirely different light on the Campbell sedition case, which has played so great a part in the British elections, than was contained in the cable despatches. For instance, the fact that Campbell's article in the "Workers' Weekly" was written by a member of the Red Internationale of Moscow, and urged a mutiny of the army and navy by the sanguinary Soviet method, at a time when Soviet representatives were in London successfully bull-dozing the British Government into a promise of cash concessions. They also ignored the fact that the explanation given by the Attorney General Sir Patrick Hastings for the withdrawal of the explanations given by the "Workers' Weekly" in which the editorial appeared. Sir Patrick claimed that he had discovered that Campbell was entitled to sympathy as a man crippled by the war and was only "acting editor" of that publication, the real editor being away on a holiday. He argued that Campbell was therefore not a responsible person under the law. Of course if this were a true interpretation of the law, real editors would always be away from the office of every newspaper when anything dangerous was to be published; and "acting editors" would be requisitioned to enable the publication to escape responsibility.

Ingenious as this explanation was, it entirely differed from that offered by the "Worker' Weekly" itself. That publication did not attempt to hide under the subterfuge of an irresponsible "acting editor" and scoffed at the idea that sympathy for Campbell's condition as a crippled ex-service man had won immunity for him. It stated in so many words that Ramsay MacDonald himself had been threatened with reprisals by four of his supporters in Parliament, George Lansbury, John Maxton, A. A. Purcell and John Scurr, who told him that if the prosecution went on he, the Prime Minister, and several of his colleagues would be put in the witness box by defence counsel. The "Worker's Weekly" described the withdrawal of the indictment in these words: "Perhaps for the first time in England's 'fair island history' has the course of justice in the Law Courts been changed by outside political forces into an outright triumph for the working class over the capitalist class—not by way of securing a legal success but by a plain revolutionary victory."

In other words the substitution of revolutionary edicts for law! It will thus be seen that the Campbell case was a much more important issue than has been generally known on this side of the Atlantic—one of the most important of all conceivable issues.

A very clever lawyer succeeded in winning his client's case and getting the better of a rather bumptious fellow-lawyer. The latter couldn't conceal his chagrin, and, meeting his victorious opponent in the smoke-room of the hotel at which they were both staying he remarked in a loud and spiteful tone:

"Sir, is there any case too bad for you to tackle, or any criminal so much dyed in crime that you won't defend?"

The other puffed his cigar, and replied loud enough for everyone present to hear:

"No; what have you been doing now?"

Mr. Doyle has not yet personally "got" England. The music was plainly heard in the store through the loud speaker.

WATER IN FARM HOUSES

Hints About Installing in the Rural Household

The Compression System—What You May Enjoy With This Method—The Agricultural College Will Help You—Raising Ducks.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

There are two main sources of farm water supply, namely, well and spring (both hard water) and rain water (soft). Anyone thinking of installing a modern water system and plumbing in his home should make sure that his water supply is both plentiful and safely protected from all possible sources of contamination. Much more water will be used daily under modern than under old conditions of service, about 30 gallons per person per day.

The College Will Help You.

Ask the O. A. College to assist you in solving the following problems in this matter of water supply:—

1. How to increase the well and spring supplies of water.
2. How to safeguard these supplies from surface contamination.
3. How to make more use of the rain water supply.
4. How to get that fine spring water running through your house and stables by installing the hydraulic ram near the spring.

Pumping and carrying water by hand is too expensive at modern rates of wages, is very inconvenient, and is wasteful of time and energy. No one likes the job. It is rapidly going out of date wherever people are getting acquainted with the more modern pumping and supply systems.

The Compression System.

The Compression System is the most popular one to-day. The idea is this: The hard or soft water, as the case may be, is pumped into a large strong air-tight metal tank to about two-thirds full. The water compresses the original air in the tank and thereby produces sufficient pressure to force the water out of the tank through a pipe line that connects to the sinks, closet, bathtub, etc., in the house. The pump may be driven by hand, gasoline engine, windmill or electric motor or any available power. The last named means is the preferable one because the pumping is carried on automatically, is quiet in operation, economical of space, and a fresh water line that supplies water direct from the well for drinking purposes may be installed. The style and size of the pump required depends on whether the well is shallow or deep. The size of the tank depends on the amount of water required about the place. An outfit large enough for the ordinary-sized family or household costs about $175.00, piping, connecting system to well and to the various fixtures in the house being extra.

What You May Enjoy With This System.

1. Have complete plumbing system in your home. That means hard and soft water on tap in the kitchen, bath (tub or shower or both), and an indoor sanitary water closet, which will dispense with the outside privy. These conveniences stand for comfort, convenience, saving of labor and time, better health and greater efficiency or fitness for work and enjoyment.
2. Lawn and garden water service to keep home surroundings attractive.
3. Water under pressure is very useful and convenient for washing the automobile, washing outside of windows, cleaning floors in cellar or stables, putting out fires if reached in time.
4. No longer any need to pump and carry water. Another burden is rolled away.

Different makes of this system are on exhibition in the Physics Building, O. A. College, Guelph. They are properly set up and in good working order. Drop in and see them work and get more information about them.—R. R. Graham, Physics Dept., O. A. College, Guelph.

Raising Ducks.

After hatching, in about one day's time, place before them bread and milk mixed together, and a pan of sand and water. Be sure your ducklings get sand and water at starting. Ducks will thrive if water is before them all the time. It is their nature to want water. After a few days on bread and milk add bran or fine corn meal or fine cracked corn to the bread and milk. Always use milk to mix duck feed.

As the ducks grow older feed cracked corn and wheat. At younger age corn bread and milk is good for a change in feed. Let the ducks have green feed also. If you do not want them out of pens gather green feed yourself for them. Do not keep ducks shut up except at night. Let them in the creek and watch them to keep crows away. Be careful of turtles in creeks also.

When ducks are nearly feathered out feed whole corn mixed with some cracked corn. Then at last whole corn and wheat altogether. They will not want to eat it at first, but do not feed them too much and they'll eat it. Feed ducks three times a day, like ourselves.

Keep their drinking water as clean as possible. They want water right beside them when they eat. Ducks can swim in a few weeks if you stay and watch them, allowing them to be in water only a few minutes. Do not let ducks sleep in a muddy or damp pen.

To a considerable extent, on the ram and his condition depend the quality, condition and vitality of the lamb crop. Everything possible should be done to maintain his thrift at the highest point, especially during the breeding season.

Costs Five Years To Murder Man

Sentences for Capital Crime Surprisingly Light in Russia

(Associated Press Despatch)

Moscow, Nov. 5—Persons guilty of murder and other crimes in Soviet Russia are punished with sentences so light that they will amaze American judges and public prosecutors. In most cases punishment for murder in the first degree does not exceed five years. It rarely exceeds 10 year, unless the crime is associated with banditry.

Punishment for other crimes, such as arson, forgery, robbery, rape, infanticide and criminal assault is correspondingly light. Bigamy is another offense which is only lightly punished As marriage and divorce in Soviet Russia have been made very easy, however, there are relatively few cases of bigamy.

Death sentences are given only for counter-revolutionary activities, "economic espionage," counterfeiting, organized banditry and crimes against the State. But even in these case capital punishment is sometimes withheld A notorious case in recent weeks was that of Boris Savinkof, charged with widespread spying activities and other crimes against the Soviet. Although he confessed his complete guilt, he was given only 10 years in prison.

Claim Police Had Their Own Graft

Alleged Montreal Men took Money For Recover-Stolen Goods

Montreal, Nov. 5.—Mr. Justice Coderre, presiding in the police investigation yesterday listened to evidence showing the manner in which the enforcement of the laws are made matters of compromise both as to the withdrawal of complaints, and in the matter of payments being made by victims of robberies in order to regain possession of stolen goods. With the cases shown the names of detectives were mentioned as being party to the arrangements as between the victims and the person able to return the stolen goods for the consideration.

A startling feature of the evidence was that payments were made in front of witnesses, cheques accepted and receipts given, as if ordinary transactions were being conducted.

His Lordship dealt with the case of one second hand dealer in the course of evidence, when he ordered that a copy of the evidence of Morris Mendelson, keeper of a second hand store at 109 Craig street west, be sent to the Crown Prosecutor for action. Mendelson had testified a few minutes before that as regards a quantity of stolen furs, for the return of which the victim had paid $50; the furs had not been taken from his place to headquarters. Detective Charette, following him, said that the furs had been taken from Mendelson's place. Detective Charette testified to paying the $50 in question to Mendelson so that the goods might be returned, he getting the $50 from the merchant robbed.

A series of garage burglaries were told of, and in one of these cases, that of Paul Emile Decarie of Dorval, the evidence was that Detectives McCann and Phillipe Belanger had told Decarie that he could get part of the returned goods back if he would withdraw the complaint. When he refused to do so he was told he could get the goods back if he would withdraw the complaint. When he refused to do so he was told he could get the goods back if he did not want to know who had them. Finally the good were returned to him with the consent of Chief Justice Decarie of the Court of Sessions.

A countryman with a local reputation as a vocalist attended a dinner, and was asked to sing. Although he had no music with him, and was as hoarse as a frog, he consented to try, but broke down.

"Never thee mind, lad," said an elderly guest, trying to cheer him up: "never thee mind the breakdown, for thee's done thy best: but th' fellow as asked thee t' sing ought to be shot."

Deaths And Funerals

PROF. C. K. GRAHAM

Prof. Charles K. Graham, who passed away at his late residence, 42 Shaw St., Toronto, yesterday, was a member of the Toronto Board of Trade. He had been ill for a considerable length of time. The late Prof. Graham, who was a member of the staff of Shaw schools, Ltd., has had a distinguished teaching career. Born near Belleville, Ont., and educated at Albert College, his first appointment was that of professor of poultry in the Connecticut State College at Storrs, Conn. Later he was director of agriculture for Hampton, Virginia. From Hampton he came to the city of Toronto. He was a Baptist in religion and his lodge affiliations included membership in Rameses Temple, Mystic Shriners, Toronto, and the Blue Lodge of the Masonic Order, Bay of Quinte. He was 51 years of age. Surviving are his widow Margaret McGill, and two brothers, Prof. W. R. Graham, Guelph, and R. J. Graham Belleville, and one sister, Mrs. R. B. Gilbert, also of Belleville.

MRS. EMELINE JOHNSON

An aged resident of the city in the person of Mrs. Emeline Johnson, widow of the late Mr. Mordecai Johnson passed away last night at the family residence, 2 Wickett street. Deceased was born in Shannonville, Tyendinaga Township, 78 years ago, and for many years had resided in Belleville. She was a member of Holloway street Methodist church. One son, Eli, of this city survives, also two brothers and a sister. Mrs. Johnston was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Palmer of Tyendinaga.

THOMAS GUESS

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 5.—One of the oldest residents of Kingston Township died Monday in the person of Thomas Guess, aged 83 years. He had lived in this district nearly all his life. His widow, one son, George, at home; and one daughter, Mrs. Walter Cooke, of Kingston, survive.

Mrs. Anne M. Hunter, one of Kingston's most highly respected residents, passed away yesterday at the age of eighty-five years. Mrs. Hunter was a widow and resided with her daughter, Miss Emma Hunter, secretary of the Kingston General Hospital.

New Invention Is Creating Stir

"Phonofilm" Showing at Toronto Promises to To Make Hit

INTRICATE MACHINE

Talk, Music and Movie is Produced Perfectly

Toronto, Nov. 5— Moving pictures that talk and sing! A combination of the two marvelous inventions, the movie and the radio! A new invention itself arising from this combination.

Toronto is seeing the new marvel this week at Shea's Hippodrome It is called the "phonofilm," and is the work of Dr. Lee de Forest, "the father of radio broadcasting." They are listed as 'radio talking moving pictures.'

An orchestra apeared on the screen Roger Wolfe's orchestra, with Banker Kahn's jazz-loving son at the banjo. First it was silent, like orchestras or anything else on the screen usually are and then the orchestra began to play Not the Hippodrome orchestra! It played "Come on, Spark Plug." and you could hear the neighing of the famous steed the troting of his dainty hoofs.

A Spanish dancer did a series of romantic gyrations while another orchestra accompanied her.

A gentleman in a dinner jacket delivered a short address and then you saw and heard the proceeding of the Democratic national convention, including the actual roll call of votes for Alabama, which radio fans heard so often during the convention. But this time you see the convention as well as hear it.

Then John Arthur led his own Hippodrome orchestra and played an accompaniment to Eddie Cantor singing in New York three weeks ago. You saw Cantor on the screen. You could hear his voice singing, you could hear the scuffle of his feet as he danced.

There was perfect synchronization. When the lips of the man on the screen moved, the audience heard him talk. When a violinist drew his bow across the strings, the notes of the violin came at exactly the same moment The transmission of sounds was clear enough that one could distinguish the different instruments in the orchestra as it played.

Photographing Sound

Dr. DeForests phonofilm is not the old kind of "talking movie". There have been plenty of the latter in the past. They were usually attempts to combine a movie and a phonograph but they never quite hit it off. One or the other of the two instruments was usually out of step.

There is no phonographic attachment to the phonofilm. It is a talking movie in its own right. To describe the mode of operation in detail would result in such a highly technical treatise that not one in a thousand would understand it, but to put the matter as briefly as possible, the result is achieved by photographing sound waves at the same time as the picture is being taken. On the top of the movie camera is a small attachment through which these sound waves travel They pass through a small flame which changes them into light waves and are recorded on the film at the side of the regular picture on strip less than quarter of an inch wide The film is developed and a positive made in the regular and usual way.

When the time comes to throw it on the screen an ordinary projector machine is used with a special attachment. By means of this attachment the action of the tiny flame is reversed and the light waves from the film are changed back again into sound waves transmitted along two small wires to a pair of loud speakers on the stage and the audience hears the characters on the screen talk, the bands play and off-stage musicians accompany singers dancers and whole operas.

The possibilities of the new invention are so many as to be beyond cataloguing. They say that contracts have already been signed for the phonofilming of Ziegfield's Follies and the whole Ziegfield show in all its detail will be available, it is said, in the smallest movie house on the continent

By means of the phonofilm outstanding inventors and teachers will be able to lecture to thousands of classes at once, appearing on the screen and illustrating their talk with a number of experiments. Phonofilms will be made of operas of opera singers, of great social events, political events, historical events. So it is predicted.

Hans Johnson was found guilty at Edmonton of murdering Hugh McDermitt, and was sentenced to be hanged on Feb. 4th, 1925.

New York Expects Record Christmas

Believe Sales of 1919 Season Will Be Beaten

New York, Nov. 5.—Merchants and retailers are preparing this year for the largest Christmas in their history. The famous "silk shirt" Christmas of 1919, when the country went into an unparalleled era of buying at extravagant prices, will be bettered, according to department store forecasts, but the character of the 1924 Christmas will be vastly different. Muslins, flannels, broadcloths, woollen goods, pongees, etc., will be bought by many who in 1919 thought only in terms of silk.

Even at lower price levels prevailing to-day business men look for a total volume of department store sales and kindred lines that will exceed the 1919 record. In that year the rush for silk shirts carried the silk business into a billion-dollar year, making the first time that any country has taken leadership in silk purchases from the Chinese. Thereafter the return to muslins and flannels came swiftly, and in 1921 overall parades were the popular delight.

The 1924 Christmas, according to Wall street men who have been making a study of the winter buying prospects, will represent a sort of middle ground between the 1919 and the 1921 Christmases. The American dollar, it was pointed out, now is worth at least half as much again as the dollar in 1919, and housewives are more frugal. Merchants have found them inclined to bargain more this year, but still ready to buy once their idea as to price was met; in 1919 price was secondary and luxury was first.

In anticipating a new record for Christmas sales, department stores have before them some extraordinary 1919 records. For three days before Christmas in the "silk shirt" year, twelve department stores of New York and Chicago reported an aggregate of sales topping $1,000,000 per hour. To eclipse this figure the stores will have to sell more goods, as prices now are much lower. But the 1924 Christmas season will be longer than the 1919 season. Quiet Christmas buying is already under way, and the "Shop Early" injunction is meeting with better response each year in the metropolitan districts.

The counters will present articles and novelties from several nations. A survey shows that England has already shipped over many tons of fancy woollen goods. France has consigned a great volume of novelty goods; Czecho-Slovakia and Italy have also joined the rush, and nearly every ship coming from Germany is bringing over a large amount of toys many of the mechanical toy type and among these goods also is the German doll, which has won many friends.

Popular also is the radio and radio equipment and department stores as well as radio shops are enlarging their displays with aerial paraphernalia.

TWO ELECTION DEATHS

Jackson, Tenn. Nov. 5.—G. W. Bartholomew, 70, election judge at Middleburg, and his son, J. D. Bartholomew, 40, are reported to have been killed and W. W. Rogers wounded Tuesday. Dan G. Powers, 50, defeated in the August primary as Republican candidate for magistrate in Henderson county, is said to have fled after the shooting.

Berlin Rubs Eyes And is Waking Up

German City Again Lively Due to Dawes' Plan

(Associated Press Despatch)

Berlin, Nov. 5— Amazing changes have come about in Berlin with the opening of the new theatrical and musical season, the business revival effected by the stabilized renten-mark, and the adoption of the agreement worked out at the London Conference for the execution of the Dawes plan.

High-priced hotel are crowded, there are theatre and opera openings almost nightly; various German commercial organizations are holding conventions and conferences; directors of various shipping companies are preparing for the extension of their activities and the hotelmen have been encouraged to greater activity. Hotel lobies are more brightly lighted and private dining rooms are again entertaining many parties. Berlin hotel keepers are especially jubilant over the dropping of the tax of 15 percent which the city has imposed on all foreigners occupying rooms in Berlin.

Berlin's leading hotels are taking on an especially international aspect, and celebrities from all parts of the world are again appearing here as in pre-war days. In the lobby of a single hotel Mrs. Katherine Tingley, Ganna Walska, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, Isadora Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Dawes H. M. Robinson, Leo Slezak, Gerhard Hauptmann, Max Reinhardt, Mascagni, Maria Gay, Julia Culp, Fritzi Massary and a score of other persons known to newspaper readers the world over were recently to be seen.

GERMAN SUGAR PUT ON NEW YORK MART

New York, Nov 6.—German sugar sold in the New York market yesterday for the 1st time since 1920. A local refiner was credited with the purchase of 7,000 tons of the German raw beet product, of which one thousand tons will be shipped to this country. The remainder was resold abroad. The purchase price of four cents a pound represented a slight concession from that paid for Cuban sugar, although sales of Cuban raws late today were reported at the lower basis.

Reports of a heavy over-supply of sugar in Germany have contributed to the recent unsettlement in the local sugar market. Prospects that prices of the product here would be forced lower by importations also have been an influence in the weakness of sugar company securities.

Denmark Proposes To Scrap Military

Would Substitute With Police Force and Coast Guard Fleet

Copenhagen, Nov. 5—Denmark proposes to scrap its army and navy and establish in their stead a police force of 7,000 men and a coast guard fleet of a few small vessels.

The disarmament plan, which has been approved by the cabinet officers of the nation, will be put before the rigsdag at its next session for enactment into a law.

Diplomacy is the only weapon left to Denmark for use in case of an armed invasion, under the peace plan, and diplomacy, high officials of the government believe, is the only weapon Denmark could need.

Laust Rasmussen, minister of war and one of the authors of the plan contends that the army and navy of Denmark are too small for national defense and too small to make war, and therefore they should be abolished A nation which has no fighting forces cannot make war it believes, and such a nation stands a good chance of safety from invasion. Beside, Denmark is a member of the League of Nations, and government officials declare they are pledged to make no war and are guaranteed protection in case of an invasion.

War Taught a Lesson

During the World War the Germans demanded that Denmark mine the Baltic Sea, to which it hold the key. Denmark had mines so it had to obey the German demand to save itself.

"If we had no mines, we would have been safe. We learned a lesson then," declares Minister Rasmussen.

Ban Military Names

Even the suggestion of military forces is banned under the disarmament plan. The police force would be made up of "police constables" and the ships would be members of a "coast patrol and guard". The cost of his organization would be only a fifth of that of the present army and navy and the two new groups would be able to perform the peace-time duties of the present forces. That is the keynote of the whole proposition.

Denmark proposes to disarm itself, Minister Rasmussen says, to insure itself against being involved in war.

Slain In Arms of Her Sweetheart

Young Man Arrested Following Fatal Accident at New York

New York Nov. 5.—Miss Minnie Stebner, 21, of 180 Seaview avenue Jersey City who was to have married William Zahnbauer, 24, of 184 Seaview avenue was killed when a small coupe in which she and her fiance and another couple were returning from a hallowe'en party in Fairview N.J. failed to take a curve on Hudson Boulevard between Graham and North streets and crashed into a tree.

Miss Stebner was sitting on Zahnbauer's lap at the time of the crash and was catapulated through the windshields. Her skull was fractured and neck broken. She died thirty minutes after another automobile had taken her and the other victims to Jersey City.

Zahnbauer escaped with cut hands, but William Stebner, 25, brother of the dead girl, who was driving, received lacerations of the scalp and Miss Mabel Rider, 21 of 175 Lembeck avenue, Jersey City, was cut on the head and body.

Stebner was technically charged with homicide and the other two survivors were held as material witnesses. Five hours later they were paroled in their own custody by Judge Egan, of the Common Pleas Court for a hearing before Judge Leo Sullivan, of First Criminal Court.

BERLIN BARBERS CELEBRATE

Berlin, Nov. 5.—The Berlin Hairdressers' Union celebrated its two hundredth anniversary recently by uniformly dressing the shop windows. The latest styles in women's hairdressing fads, including the latest freaks in bobbed hair, were shown.

FOUND DEAD OF GAS

London, Nov. 5.—David Pugh, aged 53, of 153 Madison street, was found dead in bed by his son, Edward. He had been despondent for some time, and on retiring had connected a tube with a gas jet, inhaling the fumes. Dr. J. C. Wilson, coroner, did not deem an inquest necessary.

Following an illness which lasted one year, Mrs. Alma Shaw died Sunday in her 76th year, at her home, 125 Grand avenue east, Chatham. Two brothers, Erastus and Ernest Guernsey and one sister, Miss Amelia Guernsey of Prescott, survive.

The boys are holding their own in the increase in population in St. Thomas according to the vital statistics for the month of October there being 24 boys and 13 girls among the new arrivals. The number of marriages registered was 11 and deaths 12.

Five Brothers All Over 75 Years

Kentucky Boasts Remarkable Family; Every One is Active

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5.—In Letcher County, Ky., resides one of the most remarkable families in the world today. Five brothers, direct descendants of Daniel Boone, an early Kentucky pioneer, are all more than 75 years old, while their combined ages would total 428 years. They are the Webb brothers. Possessed of many characteristics of their hardy ancestors, each of the brothers expects to live to be 100 years old. They are Scotch-Irish, their grandfather having come to this country from England two centuries ago. He was Benjamin Webb, of Revolutionary War fame.

"Uncle" Ned Webb, 93 years old and hale and hearty, is the oldest of the brothers. An inveterate pipe smoker, he spends most of his time expounding his secrets of clean living and longevity.

Second in age is Enoch Webb, known as "Chunk". He is more than 91 years old, a veteran of the Civil War, and the father of 13 children. He gracefully boasts that his grandchildren may be numbered by the hundreds. "Chunk" detests smoking but takes great pride in his flowing beard.

"Uncle Sam" Webb, third oldest of the quintet, is approaching his eighty-ninth birthday. He neither chews nor smokes, but lives a normal life with his wife and children near Sergent, Ky., and walks from 10 to 25 miles nearly every day.

Sam has a small farm on which he truck and keeps horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs. Like his brother Enoch, he is a Civil War veteran.

"Dutch the Fourth" is the next oldest Webb, having celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary several weeks ago. He resides in a quaint little mountain home near Uz and is a railroader. Tamping ties with the section gang is his job, while his wife looks after the home and the wants of a dozen or more children.

At 76, Joe Webb is the youngest of the family. He lives on a little mountain farm known as "Bottomfork Creek," near Mayking, and not far from the site of the homestead of his father. Joe's neighbors declare that he is the most aggressive of the five brothers, although he is not quite five feet tall and weighs less than a hundred pounds. Joe looks with pride upon his model productive farm lands.

SHERIFF AWAITS MAN'S RECOVERY

Middletown, N.Y., Nov. 5.—A deputy sheriff sat yesterday beside the hospital cot of Jack Loomis, 26, waiting for him to recover from two self-inflicted bullet wounds in his chest, so he might be charged with the murder of Miss Emily Undreiner, a pretty blonde waitress of 22.

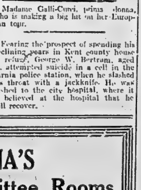
Loomis killed her in Monticello when she, another waitress and two men returned from an automobile ride. Loomis and Miss Undreiner had been companions for three years years until they quarreled two months ago.

Friends said Loomis had been keeping close watch upon the girl since their dispute, jealous of each new friendship.

FRENCH PLACE SLAB TO MARK DISTANCE

Paris, Nov. 5.—Henceforth when the tourist automobiling round Paris sees that he is so many kilometers from the city, he will know that that distance is measured to a bronze slab that has been placed on the open space in front of Notre Dame Cathedral.

This slab, weighing 176 pounds, is set flush with the paving and is inscribed with a diagram showing the points of the compass and the arms of Paris, a ship tossed by the waves, with the device in Latin to the effect that she will forever float and never be submerged.



Madame Galli-Curci, prima donna, who is making a big hit on her European tour.

Fearing the prospect of spending his declining years in Kent county house of refuge, George W. Bertram, aged 70, attempted suicide in a cell in the Sarnia police station, when he slashed his throat with a jackknife. He was rushed to the city hospital, where it is believed at the hospital that he will recover.

Ended His Life To Spite Wife

Leaves Queer Message Behind; Called Spouse "Judas"

Chicago, Nov 5.—John Snyder, 27 years old, of 13101 Lorette avenue, Detroit, is believed to committed suicide by leaping into Lake Michigan from the steamer Alabama. Snyder was a passenger on the boat when it left Chicago and when the steamer arrived at Grand Haven, Mich., he was missing. His baggage was found in his state room. Investigation lead to the finding of letters addressed to his wife, and indicating that they had had martial troubles.

"Will Remember Him"

One letter said: "You will always remember me when you drink lake water." Another referred to his wife as "Judas".

A letter addressed "to whom it may concern," read as follows:

Takes Rap at Undertakers

"I found it hard to live since my best pal, my wife turned Judas to me. This was the best way I could find to end my life without much pain to me and trouble to my wife and folks. Undertakers are also profiteers. They won't lower the price for an ex-soldier, so I feel that I was good to my wife to the end and also not to add to the cost of my mother's and folks' sorrow.

"Some day she may see it that way, but to-day my act may give her a thrill, as she said once. Send my things and the letters to my wife at 13101 Lorette street, Detroit, Mich."

OPEN THE HIGHEST OF RADIO STATIONS

Tarbes, France, Nov. 5.—The highest radio-telephonic station in the world has been opened at the observatory on the Pic Du Midi, some 10,000 feet in altitude. The station uses a 350-metre wave length and has an antenna capacity of 300 watts.

The installation was taken up the mountain in sections, the heavier parts on mule back and the delicate instruments by hand.

In addition to assuring communication between the observatory and Bagneres, which has hitherto been precarious owing to the breaking of wires by avalanches, the station will render immense service to agriculture by broadcasting weather forecasts.

It is also expected that it will facilitate the study of various radio phenomena, including the "fading" of signals from distant stations.

"Deudrology," or the study of trees is a new subject being taught in Queen's University by Prof. W. F. MacClement.

Some Powders Cause Asthma

According to Berlin Doctor Who Specializes in Actors

Berlin, Nov. 5—Many kinds of face powder cause asthma, according to Professor Payser, a Berlin physician, who has a large practice among singers and actors.

In a contribution to a medical journal he warns stage celebrities that they must be careful about the character of powder and paint they use if they wish to protect their throats, noses and lungs from injury.

Dust and drafts seem to be unavoidable concomitants of stage life, Professor Payser says.

If actors wish to overcome the dangers of their profession, they must use tobacco and alcohol very sparingly, if at all, and get all outdoor exercise and sleep possible.

SIGNED; BUT IT DOES NOT MEAN ANYTHING

Frankfort, Nov. 5.—The fact that Germany in signing the Versailles Treaty acknowledged herself to be solely responsible for the outbreak of the World War carries absolutely no weight as far as the scientific establishment of the facts in the case is concerned, in the opinion of the German Historical Society, which recently held its fourteenth convention here. The signature, declare resolution unanimously adopted was obtained "under duress, and is of no significance whatever for determining the scientific truth."

The German historians hold that before the question can be scientifically determined ,all official archives of all rations concerned must be made available for thorough and methodical research.

WATT'S TOOLS KEPT AS HE LEFT THEM

London, Nov. 5.—Negotiations are expected to be completed shortly whereby the garret in Healthfield Hall, Handsworth, in which James Watt conducted the experiments which led to the development of the steam engine, will be brought bodily to London to be perpetuated in the South Kensington Museum.

Watt first went to Healthfield Hall in 1768. After his death the room in which he worked was locked and remained unopened for many years, and his tools and benches, even the leathern apron in which he worked and which remains in the same spot in which he placed it, have remained undisturbed.

A GRATEFUL MOTHER

Letter From Mrs. Ayars Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Two Other Letters Tell of Benefits Received

Spring Valley, Saskatchewan.—"I took the Vegetable Compound before my last confinement when I got to feeling so badly that I could not sleep nights, my back ached so across my hips, and I could hardly do my work during the day. I never had such an easy confinement and this is my sixth baby. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the 'Farmer's Telegram' and wrote you for one of your books. We have no druggist in our town, but I saw your medicine in T. Eaton's catalogue. I am a farmer's wife, so have all kinds of work to do, inside and outside the house. My baby is a nice, healthy girl, who weighed nine pounds at birth. I am feeling fine after putting in a large garden since my baby came. (She is as good as she can be). Yours is the best medicine for women and I have told about it and even written to my friends about it."—Mrs. ANNIE E. AYARS, Spring Valley, Saskatchewan.

Baby Healthy As A Trout

Mount Forest, Ontario.—"I am proud today to think I have a fine big baby boy, as healthy as a trout, and I never felt better myself. Before I took your medicine I felt weak and miserable and had pains all through me. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to get stronger and those pains all left me. I am glad I found out about this medicine. I think there is none other equal to it for women who have troubles of this kind. I cannot praise the Vegetable Compound too highly for the good it has done me. Whenever I know of a woman suffering I am glad to tell her of it."—Mrs. WM. RIDSDALE, R.R. No. 1, Mount Forest, Ontario.

Toronto Mother Writes

Toronto, Ontario.—"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a splendid medicine to take before and after confinement. A small book was put in my door one day, advertising Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines, and as I did not feel at all well at the time I went and bought a bottle of Vegetable Compound right away. I soon began to notice a difference in my general health. I was full of aches and pains at the time and thought I had every complaint going, but I can truthfully say your medicine certainly did me good. I can and will speak highly of your medicine, and I know it will do other women good who are sick and ailing, if they will only give it a fair trial. You are welcome to use this letter if you think it will help any one."—Mrs. HARRY WESTWOOD, 543 Quebec Street, Toronto, Ontario.

Ritchies Lost An Early Lead

And Breezes Came Out Victorious at "Y" Alleys

Last night at the Y. Alleys, the Breezes and Ritchies met in their League fixture and the Breezes were blowing last night when they pulled out a win by 106 pins. In the first game it loked as if Ritchie's were going to win, as they were up fifty pins; they went to the rear, however, in the second game and were down 130 pins on the two games, and were unable to come back strong enough in the third game to win. Miss Snell of the Breezes was high single and three-string with 207 and 491 respectively.

OSHAWA TO HAVE JUNIOR TEAM ONLY

Oshawa, Nov. 5—From present indications, Oshawa, the "baby city of Ontario" in its first year of cityhood, is not likely to operate a franchise in the intermediate series of the Ontario Hockey Association this Winter. The most of last year's junior material which was counted on to form a nucleus for the higher series this year have scattered to other parts of Ontario.

Leroy Moore, the good centre boy, who last year registered as coming from Chapleau to don a local junior uniform, has located in Kitchener, where he is likely to turn out with the intermediates or seniors; Harry Lott, the best left wing player ever developed locally, and Don Corbeau, who forsook the bright lights of Toronto last year to ramble around centre ice as sub have both hit the northern trail, and will don the uniform of the North Bay Trappers; Dick Hall has returned to his native town, Whitby and will be a decided acquisition to the county town team.

With these removals Oshawa is left no quorum to do business unless an S.O.S. is responded to by all the veterans of last year.

The junior series in Oshawa can be well looked after, as considerable material has been uncovered the past couple of years through the operations of the Church League and with a live organization at the head of the kids they should lead the teams from other towns in the lake shore group a merry chase for first place honors.

"How can you tell?"

"Oh, yes, I see. It has only two."

Hoodoo Pursues The Baby Shoes

Lost to Hikers on Recreation Alleys; To Consider Protest

The hoodoo is still pursuing the Baby Shoes ladies team and last night was no exception. The Hikers stepped in and won by 93 pins, taking each game by a small margin. Miss Gartung and Miss H. McDonald were the highest bowlers.

The Durant-Stars and Wolves of the North put up another good junior game, the former team winning out by 21 pins and both teams rolling some very nice scores. Only 2 pins separated both teams at the end of the second game, and it was anybody's game until the last man rolled the last ball and when the smoke of battle had cleared the Durants were leading by 21. Jack White for the Durant had a nice three string score of 637 and C. Jeffery for the Wolves rolled 660 for his three strings.

Only two bowlers of the Cyclists showed up in their scheduled game with the Natural Tread, so an exhibition game was arranged the Natural Tread proving victors. Bob Wray rolling for the Pick-Ups was high three string with 676 and Allen for the Natural Tread was next in line with 599. Players and scores:

Thinks Baseball Is Monotonous

English Turn Tables on Critics of Game of Cricket

London, Nov. 5.—Americans who scorn cricket as a slow sport ought to be told that the English, or at least some of them think that baseball is monotonous. Such was the conclusion of the cricket experts of the London newspapers who reported the first of the games played between the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox in the British capital last week.

"An innings by the dullest professional cricketer, whoever dawdled through the leaden hours on an English cricket ground, has infinite variety when compared with the wackings of a baseball star," was the sober judgment of the Manchester Guardian reporter. "He has only two possible strokes; one is the slow one with a cross bat, the other is a smothering stroke which will enable him to hok for first base as in tiprun, while the pitcher and catcher tumber over each other in rescuing the the ball from the mid-wicket.

"What usually happens is that the striker slogs the ball into deep field, high in the air, whence it descends into one, of the capacious gloves whose wearers are quite infallible in getting to the right place for the catch.

"There is no obviously perceptible variation in the pitching which is all as fast and furious as ma ybe, but, of

Varsity To Give Queens a Battle

Toronto Squad Ready For Big Undertaking on Saturday

(Toronto Star Weekly)

When Queen's and Varsity clash at the Stadium next Saturday it will mark the big event of the season as far as local rugby enthusiasts are concerned.

Queen's think that McGill are stronger than Varsity and are quite confident of their ability to beat the blue and white. On the other hand, it is a case of do or die with Newton's Queen's Park outfitand there is not a member of the Varsity squad but believes that Saturday's encounter will be but the first of a series of victories that will not cease until the college title rests once more in the local citadel.

Tricolor Favorites

To a neutral observer the Tricolor should enter the game as favorites but if they come here imbued with any idea that the outcome is a foregone conclusion they will be handed the rudest jolt that they have received in the last three years.

But for an error that resulted in a touchdown there might have been a different story to the game in Kingston. True, Queen's deserved a bigger score on the margin of play that they held in the first half but Varsity met and on several occasionsapeared to have the Presbyterians on the verge of a riot. The college champions claim that but for lack of condition they would have trimmed Varsity by a wide margin. While all the locals say is, "Just give us another chance." All of which would indicate that Saturday's struggle should furnish an epoch in rugby history.

Many Individual Stars

The game should not only be a battle between two evenly matched teams but a series of scrimmages between some of the outstanding figures in the football arena. Warny Snyder stood out for the Blue and White at Kingston but the Queen's outsides were down like a pack of wolves before any of the Varsity halves had a chance to break away. Can Varsity stop Thomas and Company is a question that must be answered in the affirmative before any college honors will come to Toronto.

Coach Newton has had much good material at his disposal but he has had a big problem on his hands trying to make the best selection. Pequegnat was a star in the McGill game, but failed to scintilate to such an extent at Kingston. Somerville, Reid and Kirkpatrick and Plaxton, Trimble and McVicar of the O.R.F.U. team are all good players, to say nothing of Lebel, the St. Michael star, so that it is quite possible that a different combination to the present one of Snyder, Pequegnat and Somerville may be evolved before the big game.

Schedule Favored Queen's

Unless they sustained some injuries in Saturday's game the schedule will have favored Queen's. The two McGill games were just what was needed to put the Presbyterians in the best of condition and to show what will be the best combinaion for the game with Varsity With the exception of Ottawa exhibition contest the Blue and White have had no such opportunity, although more than Queen's they needed a chance to try out their men to the best advantage. The O.R.F.U. team may also affect the chances of the intercollegiate squad as Newton does not desire to cripple the O.R.F.U. team.

Should Be Titanic Battle

It is on the interference play on the line that Queen's are expected to have the biggest advantage. Brought up in the Shaughnessy school, Coach Hughes has developed the interference play of his team to a high art and in this respect Queen's have overshadowed any of their rivals for the last three years, and given good interference, a shifty pair of halves like Leadley and Batstone are usually able to make life miserable for their opponents.

It should be a titanic struggle and the breaks of the game will have much to do with deciding the result.

Help Kidneys By Drinking More Water

ALSO TAKE A LITTLE SALTS IF BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BOTHERS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

HOWIE MORENZ IS READY FOR WORK

Montreal, Nov. 5.—Canadiens are rapidly closing negotiations with their regular players of last year, the latest to come within the fold being Howie Morenz, the centre who was the brilliant pivot of the Canadian attack last season. There was little doubt generally, but that Morenz would again be back along with his wing partners, Aurel, Joliat and Billy Boucher, but in these days of buying and selling players with fancy prices being offered in many instances, the signed contract was welcomed by Leo Dandurand and his associates on the Canadien board of directors.

Morenz has informed Manager Dandurand that he is in excellent condition after an operation he underwent here two months ago and is ready for a hard season. Morenz came to Canadiens last year from the Stratford intermediate O.H.A. team. He gave great promise in the preliminary training of the world's champions at Grimsby and lived up to his advance notices through a hard season of campaigning in the N.H.L., climaxing his brilliant first year as a pro-hockey player by sensational displays in the Stanley Cup games against the two western challengers, Vancouver and Calgary.

THOUSANDS ARE GOING HOME FOR THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving this year falling on Monday, November 10th, allows an unusually long week-end, and permits travelling distances which would be impossible in a shorter period. Thousands are arranging to visit the home folks or out-of-town friends.

The passenger Department of the Canadian National Railways are making special arrangements on all routes to provide the public with every travelling comfort. Nevertheless, as it is impossible to estimate the number who will be travelling, it would be wise for all those who anticipate taking advantage of this occasion to make their reservations as soon as possible.

Like notes of music, sounding the full depths of a girl's pure passion, her words dropped from her perfect lips. Her face like a poem of Dante Gabriel Rosetti's; pale, passionate-pale yet eloquent. Every gesture—as she swept the dark silky hair from her forehead with an impatient movement, as she bent forward in the keen hope of touching Romeo's hand; as she kissed her fingers to him; as she pressed her throbbing heart full to o'erbrimming with love—every gesture was noted and dwelt upon by the enraptured audience, and when the scene closed a wild and unanimous burst of applause rolled like thunder from pit to boxes from boxes to pit!

They clapped they stamped, they cheered. It almst seemed as if a crowd of rational beings had taken leave of their senses. In plain truth, she had witched the hearts out of them, and they were fascinated.

Romeo stood for the first time in his experience, at a loss what to do, till there rose from the pit a cry, "Juliet, Juliet!" Then he went to the wings, and, breathless, grabbed at her hand.

"Come on!" he said, excitedly.

But Jeffrey held her fast by the arm. He was pale and trembling, but his voice was stern and grim.

"No!" he said. "Not yet! This is nothing. Let them wait till the last scene; then—then, if they want her, she shall go but not till then!"

The two London critics in the stalls exchanged glances.

"Wonderful bit of acting," said one. "Really wonderful for so young a girl!"

"Yes," assented the second; then he added thoughtfully, "I wonder what made her wake up. It came quite suddenly did you notice?"

There was one person in the theatre, one out of the whole crowd, however, who neither clapped nor cheered, but sat perfectly silent. It was Lord Cecil Neville. He sat breathing slowly and heavily, like one under a spell, his eyes fixed on the spot where she had stood, all his senses in thrall.

CHAPTER VI.

A BUNCH OF VIOLETS.

He had spent the greater part of the day looking for her, his disappointment growing hour by hour as he grew convinced that he should not find her; that he had lost her forever. If he had only known her name, he could have inquired in the town; but he could scarcely go about asking people if they had happened to see the loveliest girl on earth, with dark hair and wonderful blue eyes; besides, there was, to him, something almost sacred in his meeting with her and he shrank from putting commonplace questions about her.

By luncheon time he was, I am sorry to say, in anything but a good temper . Fortunately the marquis rarely put in an appearance at that meal, or, in all probability, there would have occurred an open quarrel between him and his nephew and Lord Cecil would have fled the house. Lady Grace, too, did not appear; she had gone to pay a visit to a friend in the neighborhood, and Lord Cecil, therefore, ate his cutlet and drank his Chateau Margaux in solitude.

He was not at all sorry for this, for, to tell the truth, Lady Grace's candor, though extremely original, had very much embarassed him, and Lord Cecil was too little used to embarrassment to find it agreeable. She was very beautiful, very charming, and he admired her very much, but still he felt her absence a relief; he was free to muse over the unknown who had eluded his search all the morning.

Suddenly, as he finished his last glass of claret, he remembered the play-bill he had picked up on the terrace, and it occurred to him that here was the means of escaping dinner at the Towers; for this night, at all events, he could get away from the marquis' sneers and sarcasm.

"I shall not be home to dinner," he said the stately butler. "I think I'll go to the theatre."

"Yes, my lord," responded the butler, displaying not a sign of the disgust which the announcement caused him. To think that any one—a viscount, especially—should prefer going to the play to dining!

"What sort of a theatre is it?" asked Lord Cecil, carelessly, and for the sake of talking.

"Very good, my lord, I believe," was the solemn reply. "I've heard that there is an excellent company there. They play 'Romeo and Juliet' to-night. That is," he made haste to add; "I heard some of the under-servants talking about it; I never go to the theatre myself, my lord. I will send a small dinner, of three or four courses, at an early hour in the breakfast room, for you, my lord."

"All right," said Lord Cecil, carelessly. "That will give you a lot of trouble, will it not? I can get a chop or something at the hotel in the town, can't I?"

"Oh, no, my lord; it will be no trouble," the butler made haste to reply; "the marquis would be much annoyed if your lordship were to be inconvenienced."

Lord Cecil nodded; he could scarcely suppress a smile at the butler's crediting the marquis with such hospitable sentiments.

"All right," he said, again; "I'll have it at half-past six."

"Yes, my lord," assented the butler, with a faint sigh; it seemed to him a dreadful sacrifice; and Lord Cecil soon afterward took up his hat and went out.

He made his way to the meadows, and stood looking down on the brook and at the spot where Polly had landhim so nearly upon his head; and at the bank where the fair unknown, whose face and voice haunted him perpetually, had sat, and a vague hope dwelt in his breast that she might, perhaps, revisit the scene as he was doing.

But an hour passed and she did not come and he strode off, moodily, full of disappointment and half-angry with himself.

"I am a fool!" he thought. "She has forgotten me by this time. Why should she come back here? If I were to meet her, what could I say to her? She'd very likely think me an impertinent snob if I did more than lift my hat. I couldn't very well tell her that I have scarcely thought of anything but her since we parted yesterday, and to say anything less to her would seem to me to be sayin gnothing at all!"

Thus musing he went into the town his stalwart figure, with its military carriage, his handsome patrician face, and his Poole-made clothes which he wore as if they had grown on him, causing no little sensation amongst the inhabitants.

Beau Brummel Is Coming to Griffin

John Barrymore Shows Famous Character Thursday to Saturday

English history was never more colorful, nor society gayer, than during the period portrayed in "Beau Brummel," the screen adaptation of the Clyde Fitch play, which comes to the Griffin Theatre To-night to Saturday.

John Barrymore has the starring role in this Warner Brothers' Classic of the Screen. In the title role he impersonates the most audaciously insolent beau and wit of all times.

More than 800 costumes, typifying periods of 1795, 1814 and 1821, were assembled for the filming of this screen drama. The extras used included 300 French soldiers, 60 members of the French nobility, 300 courtiers and ladies of the court, and 60 officers of the Tenth Hussars.

The characterization is one entirely suited to the stage star who caused a sensation as Hamlet on Broadway.

The personality of Beau Brummel has captivated the imaginations of men and women by his grandeur and the dramatic rise and fall of his career. During the heydey of his popularity he was king of dandies, "the little sovereign of a futile world who had his divine right and his raison d'etre like any other king," as someone has said. He had perfect taste in clothes, and vanity and insolence carried to such unheard of lengths that they ceased to offend, but became instead merely picturesque and amusing, making him one of the most vivid figures in the social history of Europe. Yet, beneath all he had a broken heart, and tried to conceal it by masquerading as a lover of clothes.

How he rises to heights and then becomes a pauperized exile is shown in this photoplay.

The supporting cast includes Mary Astor, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis, Carmel Myers and others. Harry Beaumont directed.

MODES TO FOLLOW

Shining, sleeveless jumpers of metalic brocade are worn under severely plain dark-colored tailor-mades.

The latest evening cloaks are a strip of velvet or brocade to which is attached a deep flounce of metal lace, ornamented with paded velvet or silk flowers.

Steel-embroidered kid gloves are novelties. The edge of the gauntlet on such a glove has a narrow fringe of monkey fur.

An exclusive new cotton crêpe for pretty frocks show on a white ground a design of feathers in blue, black, red and yellow silks.

A new departure among lingeries is to use lace dyed in a contrasting color to the material chosen for delicate underwear. Brown lace ornaments a 'set' in mauve crepe de Chine, pink lace trims white garments, and black lace is allied to green georgette.

Materials for smart-wear lingerie seem more gossamer-like than ever and are brilliantly hued.

Most of the ministers of the Ottawa Presbytery have signed a declaration of their intention to enter the United Church of Canada, along with the main body of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, it was stated at a meeting of the Ottawa Presbytery yesterday.

When the gun, which he was carrying, exploded in his hands while hunting and blew to pieces, Jeane Pratte, a contractor at the works of the Quebec Development Company at St. Joseph D'Alma., Que., suffered the loss of one hand, and is in grave danger of losing the other.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Jenkins have gone away on a visit.

The Alert Bible Class of Holloway St. Church gave Mrs. Anderson, one of their members, a pleasant surprise, last night, when they gathered at her home in Hillside St., and presented her with a black leather purse. Mrs. Anderson leaves with her son to-morrow. She intends spending the winter at Rialto, California.

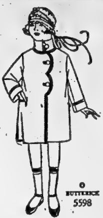
CARLETON—MERTON

The marriage of Mr. Clarence Carleton of Roslin and Miss Mary Merton of Thomasburg took place on Monday afternoon, November 3rd, at Mower, near Napanee. The ceremony was quietly performed by Rev. W. R. Merrick at his residence, only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom being present. The couple, who were unattended, left for Ottawa on the train, amid showers of rice and confetti.

Miss Chrissie Turner is to recite tonight in a play which is being broadcased from Rochester. This will give radio owners of Belleville, who have heard Chris recite in her own city, with much pleasure, an opportunity of "listening in" on her voice again.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



When the youngest generation goes out into society to meet the Prince of Wails, Jackie Coogan or other important people, she wears a coat of clay-blue broadcloth and a crêpe de Chine hat of the same entrancing color.

It is such a short time—three or four years at the most—that a perfect lady can wear pale blues and pinks in her stret costumes that it is to be hoped no mother will be so strong-minded that she will let the time pass without a pastel-colored broadcloth or kasha coat for her small daughter. Of course if one must combine the practical with the frivolous, the almond green and powder blue shades will answer for both every day and special occasions. Cashmere coatings and soft pile fabrics in camel color, dark blue and scarlet are also smart for the small girl's coat. The closing and collars are a bit out of the ordinary and very good style.

FASHION HAS BID BLACKS GOOD-BYE

Paris, Nov. 5.—Fashion has virtually said good-bye to black and brilliant browns and reds, greens and blues are the favorite colors for the Paris winter season. The brighter shades made into gowns, usually trimmed with fur are much in evidence.

Feathers also have become a decided feature of feminine wear, not only for the slimy dance gowns, but also the more formal dinner models and afternoon creations.

The Shepherd King Is Belle Feature

A Wonderful Picture Filmed Near The Pyramids And Sphinx

During the filming of one scene in the William Fox production of "The Shepherd King" in Egypt, 1500 Bedouins on camels and Arabian horses were used to furnish a colorful panorama against the flaming background of the desert.

These nomads of the desert count their wealth by the number of camels they own. Their animals are the strongest strain of camels and a good "ship of the desert" is expected to travel fifty miles a day, for five days without drinking. The fleetest camels have been known to cover one hundred miles in a single day, but this is probably harder for the rider than for the beast.

The motion picture company under Director J. Gordon Edwards had to travel on these beasts while going out on "location" near the Pyramids and the Sphinx. This was the first time a picture of this importance had been filmed with these monuments of the ages as the historic background.

Violet Mersereau plays the leading feminine role in the photoplay which was adapted by Virginia Tracy from the stage play by Wright Lorimer and Arnold Reeves. "The Shepherd King" will be shown at the Belle theatre starting to-morrow.

MRS. HARDING SAID TO BE SERIOUSLY ILL

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 5.—Dr. Carl W. Sawyer announced yesterday that the condition of Mrs. Warren G. Harding, who became ill at the Sawyer home at White Oaks Farm last week, "was rather serious," and that Dr. James C. Wood, abdominal surgeon of Cleveland was called into consultation.

Dr. Sawyer said he did not want to spread an alarm over Mrs. Harding's health, but the announcement a few days ago she was ill had brought so many inquires by letter and telegram, that it was not possible for him to reply to them.

Duchess of Atholl, who may be given an appointment in Stanley Baldwin's government.

The beaded dancing frocks of the present season are much more elaborate than has been the custom of past winters. Gold beads or white are used to make attractive dancing costumes.

But feathers as trimming predominate, and cocked feathers had been pressed into the service of fashion to replace the ostrich boas of last season.

OSHAWA TO ADD WING TO SCHOOL

Oshawa, Ont., Nov. 5.—After a lengthy discussion a City Council meeting, the Board of Education was granted $80,000 to complete the new wing at the Oshawa High School on Simcoe street north.

This makes a total of $385,000, which will be spent o nthe new addition.

Centre of Stirring Election Scenes

Trafalgar Square, where nearly half a million Londoners awaited the election results. A large screen was hung over the wall of the building which is exposed to the extreme right of the photograph and as the results were received they were flashed onto it from one of the side windows of the Canadian Pacific Railway and Steamship offices which are seen toward the right front. In addition to the election results a series of slides and films illustrating scenes and industries in Canada were shown, while at the same time, through the largest loud speaker procurable, a lecture was delivered on Canada interspered with the Maple Leaf and other Canadian songs.

CHICAGO MARKET

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, Nov. 5—All grain scored upturns in price to-day as soon as market opened. Wheat displayed particular buoyancy, jumping 1 1-8c to 2 3-4c in first transactions. Unexpected advances in price yesterday at Liverpool and Winipeg while exchanges in this country were closed on acount of election activities had apparently much to do with upturns here. Trading was on liberal scale with gains holding well during early dealings. Corn and oats sympathized with action of wheat. Corn started at 5-8 to 1c advance and later was but little below opening level Oat prices were 1-2 to 3-4c up, December 49 1-2c and subsequently were still pointing higher.

Ma Ferguson is Governor Now

Was Elected Yesterday by Large Majority in Texas

Dallas Texas, Nov. 5—The election of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Democratic nominee for Governor, over Dr. George C. Butte, Republican nominee, by a large majority, is indicated in returns from 296 towns and cities of the State tabulated by the Texas Election Bureau up to 9.45 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Ferguson, the anti Klan candi. [illegible] primary in August, was nominated by a majority of more than 90,000 votes.

The 9.45 o'clock tabulation showed Mrs. Ferguson leadin the Republican nominee by more than 32,000 votes.

Mrs. Ferguson won nation-wide fame as "Ma" Ferguson during the Democratic primaries in Texas last August, when the "Me for Ma" slogan, which aided her fight against the Klu Klux Klan, went all over the country. As is always the case in Texas, the Democratice nomination was equal to election and Mrs. Ferguson virtually "walked" into office as the first woman Governor, not only in Texas, but in any State in the Union. She has to share with Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, who was elected Governor of Wyoming on the Democratic ticket today.

Mrs. Ferguson made her fight on two main issues—vindication of her husband, James E. Ferguson who was impeached as Governor of Texas at the beginning of his second term in 1917, and opposition to the Klan. Mr. Ferguson was impeached by the State Senate the day after he resigned office. The Senate held up 10 to 21 charges against him of devoting State funds to personal uses.

Darken Hair! Look Young

NOBODY CAN TELL WHEN YOU RESTORE GRAY, FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA

Grand mother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for 'Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound,' you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known down town druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy soft and beautiful.

Abbe Delorme Celebrates Mass

Following His Discharge From the Courts of Criminal Law

Montreal, Nov. 5.—The Rev. J. Adelard Delorme opened his first day of freedom by celebrating Mass in the Church of Notre Dame de Lourdes.

On Friday night, when the jury in the Court of King's Bench had freed him from the accusation under which he had lain for almost three years, his lawyers whisked the Abbe to the Archbishop's palace on Lagauchetiere street. The reason was that plans for a popular demonstration had become known, and both Father Delorme and his advisers were desirous of avoiding that.

It was on his arrival at the palace, where he was received by Mgr. Deschamps, who is acting as substitute for Mgr. Gauthier while the latter is in Europe, that it is understood Father Delorme made his request to be allowed to celebrate Mass. The authorities, it is declared, could not refuse that request even had they so desired.

After sleeping at a quiet presbytery in the eastern section of the city, Father Delorme attained the desire he so often expressed while in confinement and chanted the first Mass on All Saints' Day in the little church situated on St. Catherine street just east of St. Denis street.

For the present, the Abbe will stay with his fellow ministrants. He will at once start putting his affairs in order, and then it is understood he will take a long vacation.

Big Task Ahead

Before Father Delorme lies a formidable task in the civil courts. It is taken for granted that he will at once move to secure relief from the interdiction under which he was placed in 1922. With that interdiction lifted he would regain control of his estate.

Anticipations that the civil court proceedings may be sensational may, however, prove wrong. During the week-end it became known that efforts will be made to have affairs of the Delorme estate settled up as unostentatiously as possible and a project which, it is hoped, will be acceptable to all parties interested.

Refuse New Life To Loan Company

Minister Claims Winnipeg Concern Unsafe For Public

Ottawa, November 5.—The temporary certificates issued under the Loan Companies Act, under which the Great Winnipeg has been operating since the early part of the year, has expired and has not been renewed, according to an announcement by the Department of insurance here.

The act provides that the certificate of a company may be cancelled when it is believed that it is unsafe for the public to transact business with it. It is on the authority of this provision that Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, upon the advice of the Department of Insurance, which has charge of the administration of the act, has taken this action in the interests of the public.

Early this year the department required the Great West Permanent Loan Company to give up its savings bank business. The company has been under close supervision of the Department of Insurance for some time past, and numerous deputations from Winnipeg have waited upon the Acting Minister of Finance within the past few months in endeavors to strengthen the company's position.

It is known that the company had approximately $1,000,000 tied up in the Marlborough Hotel of Winnipeg. Most of the bonds of the company are held in Scotland. W. T. Alexander, of Winnipeg, who is well known in Canadian financial circles, is president of the the Company.

December 1 was fixed at yesterday's meeting of the New Brunswick Provincial Government as the date of the by-election in Moncton folowing the appointment of Ivan C. Rand as Attorney-General. Nomination day was set for November 24.

Asks Co-operation For Jobless Here

Captain L. F. Green Says Employment Conditions Are Brighter

Capt. L. F. Green, of the Employment Service of Canada to-day, informed the Intelligencer that unemployment conditions during the last two weeks shows improvement, and through the kindness and consideration of a great many citizens, Casual jobs of short duration have been supplied. Mr. Green states that if 1000 homes in the City could supply one day's work each week it would be a wonderful help to the unemployed of the City, whose ranks are composed of good honest workmen, who from no fault of their own are at this season of the year unemployed.

Unemployment may be divided into three categories. There are not a few who on account of age, ill health or other reasons are palpably unemployable, and therefore fitting objects for charity pure and simple. Then there are many workers of low industrial quality, who are incapable of earning a bare living wage as the fruit of their exertions. Thirdly there are the artisans of average capacity who are the victims of bad times and who would be easily absorbed if trade and industry took a turn for the better. Each class needs separate treatment, with due regard to the important consideration that care should be taken not to afford relief in such a manner as to injure the industrial character of those whom it is sought to benefit and thus to sow the seeds of aggravated trouble in the future.

"Then again there is a steady stream of respectable married men", Captain Green explained, from nearby localities arriving daily, seeking employment as Belleville is considered one of the best Industrial Centres in Eastern Ontario and as these men cannot take precedence over local workmen they are sent as Bush Workers to the Camps in the North.

HEARS EVERYTHING WITH HIS TRIRDYN

"Everything in the United States" is being heard by M. J. Wigman of Green Bay, Wisconsin an owner of a Crosley Trirdyn radio receiver. In addition to this, Mr. Wigman hears stations in Canada and has heard station 2IO in England three times. In a letter to the Weekly, Mr. Wigman said:

"I am a user of one of your Trirdyn radio receivers and if it were impossible to get another, money could not take it from me. I get everything East to West, North to South in U. S. A and Canada also. I have heard 2LO London England, three different times. So let that go on record for Trirdyn.

SUPERINTENDENT HAS QUIT AT STRATFORD

Stratford, Nov. 5—The house committee of the Hospital Board had a curious problem to deal with Monday night. Without giving any preliminary warning, Miss E. Masterson, the superintendent, according to a member of the Board, left the building, apparently automatically resigning the position.

The committee met and appointed Miss Mickel superintendent pro tem with authority to pick her own assistant.

Miss Read, the assistant superintendent with Miss Masterson, according to the custom of the hospital here, automatically loses her position.

The members of the board are saying little about the situation, which arose most unexpectedly.

Fear Attraction Of Conservatives

Liberals of Trenton Do Not Want to Rent Arena

On November 24th, Premier Mackenzie King will speak in Trenton Opera House and on the same evening the Liberal-Conservatives are endeavoring to rent the Trenton arena for Hon. Arthur Meighen, who will speak there in opposition.

At a meting of the shareholders of the Trenton arena last Tuesday, President W. A. Fraser of the Liberal Association of West Hastings and Col. Bywater, both shareholders, objected to the application of the Conservatives (evidently fearing that E. Gus Porter and his speaker, Hon. Arthur Meighen would "draw" the crowd away from the Opera House.).

After much discussion the meeting was adjourned until Friday November 7th, when the matter will be finally dealt with, all shareholders having been notified of the purpose of the adjourned meeting.

C.N.R. EARNINGS

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the period ending October 31, 1924 were $7,678,090.00, being a decrease of $1,249,146.25, over the corresponding period of 1923.

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways from Jan. 1 to October 31, 1924 have been $195,325,323.00, or a decrease of $11,070,018.13 over the corresponding period of 1923.

Ald. L. E. Hagedorn, chairman of the Kitchener city hall building committee Saturday, definitely anounced his candidature as mayor for 1925. A couple of months ago Mayor Breithaupt announced that he would not run again

During the month of October, customs collections in London amounted to $129,034.64 and excise $117,262.12, a total of $246,296.76. Though this total is $88,000 less than in the corresponding period of 1923, the collections are on the upward trend.

Y.M.C.A. LAUNCHES FINANCIAL DRIVE

There was an enthusiastic attendance of Captains and team workers and others interested in the launching of the annual financial drive for the Belleville Y.M.C.A. in the Association Building last night. Mr. W. B. Deacon, General Chairman, presided. Mayor W. C. Mikel was present and spoke in commendation of the work accomplished by the Belleville Association in its programme for the men and boys of the community. He felt there should be no difficulty in obtaining the money necessary to carry on the excellent programme the Y has planned for the coming year.

R. J. Graham, a past president of the Association, told of, the early struggles in the erection of the building and in securing the necessary finances, pledged his support and urged the younger men to assume the responsibilities that their fathers had carried for many years. The building has been used as a strong community centre by all types of organizations and groups, both inside and outside the membership.

About fifty men have agreed to give the time necessary for the next three days in order to put this campaign across and make it a success. The General Chairman is Mr. W. B. Deacon. Captains of teams are H. W. Ackerman, S. License, T. D. Ruston, G. H. Holton, Howard J. Clarke, Stanley Nurse Geo. F. Cole, G. B. Smith, N. P. North and R. J. Wray. The first Report Supper will be held to-night at the 'Y'.

Motherwell Says He's Not Quitting

Minister Laughs Heartily at Story Circulated Yesterday

Regina, Sask., Nov. 5.—Premier King and Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, both intimated here yesterday that there was no truth in the rumor emanating from the East to the effect that Hon. T. A. Crerar is to succeed Mr. Motherwell as minister of agriculture

Mr. King, when questioned, said "On what authority is the statement made? Find out the source of information and you will know how reliable it is."

"It is a new one on me," said Mr. Motherwell, laughing uproariously. "We are liable to hear anything at the present time, but it is the first I have heard of it."

Turning to Hon. Charles Stewart, and Senator Hayden, Mr. Motherwell asked them if they had heard the latest joke in politics. He related it and they joined him in the laughter. Mr. Motherwell in a joking manner asked them if they, too, had lost their positions while in the West.

Prince of Wales To be Exhibitor

Will Show Ranch Stock at Canadian National Exhibition

Toronto, Nov. 5.—Breeders of pure bred stock in Canada, including 75 exhibitors from the United States will be afforded an opportunity of competing in the show ring with stock from the Prince of Wales' "E. P." Ranch, Alberta, at the approaching Royal Winter Fair, in the Royal Coliseum, Toronto. This will be the Prince's initial effort in an eastern show ring. The entries from the Royal ranch reached Manager A. P. Westervelt on Saturday. On his return journey through Toronto from his ranch recently, His Royal Highness assured E. M. Carroll, president and A. P. Westervelt, general manager, that he would be delighted to exhibit at the royal show.

The Prince is sending a car load of stock made up of horses and cattle, included in the Prince's consignment will leading western fairs, and several of which will make their initial appearance in the judging ring at the Royal. Included in the Prince's consignment will be the famous shorthorn bull "King of the Fairies," a grand champion of continental Europe and Canada. This noted animal which was bred on the royal ranch across the Atlantic, has yet to meet defeat.

Also he will show "Princeton Commodore," a Percheron colt stallion which garnered several ribbons at the western fairs during the summer.

The consignment from the Prince's ranch will be in charge of W. L. Carlyle, and will be shipped to Toronto on Thursday in conjunction with 18 car loads of stock coming to the Royal show from Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, including exhibits from the Federal Government experimental farms in the west. The royal exhibit will not be shown at another winter fair in Canada, but may compete at the international show at Chicago at the close of the Toronto show.

HOPE TO REDUCE ONTARIO DEFICIT

Toronto, Nov. 5—The provincial fiscal year closed the end of last month. Prior to attending a meeting of the cabinet Col. W. H. Price, provincial treasurer stated that he thought there would be some improvement in the amount of the deficit to be presented to the people of the province this year, when the budget is brought down at the legislature. The deficit for the fiscal year was approximately $15,000,000

The loss of the federal government's grant of $300,000 will have a direct bearing on the balance sheet of the Ontario department of agriculture and Hon. James Martin was unable to say whether or not his department would be able to show a surplus this year.

Ivan C. Rand, of Moncton, was sworn in as Attorney-General of New Brunswick yesterday morning. The ceremony took place in the Executive Council Chamber prior to a meeting of the Government.

District News

Wins Promotion

Oshawa, Nov. 5.—Mr. E. J. Weil, of General Motors, has received a well-earned promotion and leaves at once for Walkerville, where he will take over the management of that branch of the General Motors Corporation.

Start on Harbor

Oshawa, Nov. 5.—Nearly all the equipment necessary for the construction of the new Breakwater at "Port" Oshawa is on the job, and the contractors last week practically finished their construction of trackage, spurs and switches for the movement of derricks, cars and pile drivers to be used on the work. Some time during the week the first actual work on the Harbor itself will be commenced.

Poor Watch Dog

Oshawa, Nov. 5—William Templeton, 135 Barrie street is a sad, but wiser man this morning and is convinced a watch dog is of no account where chicken thieves are concerned. Mr. Templeton keeps fowl in his yard and his dog was the night custodian. However, some time during the early morning hours of yesterday thieves entered the yard, took the dog tag off the "watcher," kicked him out of the yard and stole between forty and sixty chickens.

School Taxes

The Prescott town council has passed a by-law imposing a rate of 41 mills on the dollar for public school supporters and 40 mills for separate school purposes. A by-law was also passed appointing H. W. Ernest collector of taxes.

Warden J. C. Ponsford of the Portsmouth Penitentiary is away on his holidays, enjoying deer-hunting. In his absence Deputy Warden R. B. Tucker is acting as Warden.

Accidental Death Verdict

Kingston, Nov. 5.—Accidental death, with no blame being attached to any member of the train crew, was the verdict returned by the coroner's jury Monday night at the inquest held to inquire into the death of Joseph Roberts, Mrs. Joseph Roberts, his wife, and their two children, Lenwood and Irvinia, who were instantly killed when the car in which they were driving was struck by a west-bound freight engine near Findlay Station on Sunday morning.

Tax Trouble Subdued

Peterboro, Nov. 5.—The threatened re-organization of the Tax Collector's office did not materialize at Monday night's meeting of the City Council. A special committee appointed by the Finance Committee to examine the Collector's office and to report and make recommendations to the Council reported that after having had a conference with the Tax Collector, "we recommend that no change be made at present; the Tax Collector having given an assurance that the rolls will be returned as directed.

Real Long Distance Call

Peterboro, Nov. 5.—A resident of the city, who had relatives visiting at his home from Los Angeles, and who had returned a month ago, was surprised last night on receiving a 'phone call over the long distance telephone line from Los Angeles. The conversation was very satisfactorily carried on between the two parties. It is just possible that this is one of the very few long distance calls from or to Peterborough from such a distance, and it denotes the remarkable strides that have been made in telephone service in recent years.

Off For the Hunt

Brighton, Nov. 5.—The Long Lake Hunt Club left Belleville Tuesday morning for their annual three week's hunt. The party is composed of Jim Thompson, D. Dolan, and Lloyd Knox of Belleville; C. H. Grenfield and Dr. Dure of Brighton; Dr. Andersen of Wooler; Archie Randolph and Dr. Glover of Campbellford; Ray Zufelt of Toronto and their guide Peter Fraser.

The party will proceed to their usual hunting grounds, where there is a large camp with good accommodations, which is situated on Long Lake. This will be the tenth annual hunt of the club and judging from past experiences will be a very successful one.

Jury Man is Fined

Cobourg, Nov. 5.—Forty-four talismen were called to face W. J. Crossen on trial on a murder charge Monday evening before the panel was secured, the defence counsel rejecting 25 and the prosecution ordering 15 to stand aside. One man who failed to answer his name was fined and one was rejected, because of deafness.

Port Hope is Wet

Port Hope, Nov. 5.—One hundred and five families in this town "Boil their own", since the Province retained the O. T. A. That number of citizens have secured the necessary permit to make their own beer.

Looking For Boy

Lindsay, Nov. 5.—The police are looking for a Home boy named Nicholls against whom serious charges are registered. The boy, who had been employed as a farm hand in Mariposa township, came into town a few days ago and purchased a new Cleveland bicycle from Mr. Geo. Shepherd, on which he paid a deposit. It is charged that Nicholls afterwards disposed of the wheel and did not pay Mr. Shepherd the balance due.

It is further charged that Nicholls issued a worthless cheque as part payment on a Ford car at Isaac's garage, but did not get the car. The youth interviewed the Carew Lumber Co., in search of a job and secured employment in the woods. He was advised to board at the Royal Hotel at the firm's expense until Monday when he would be sent to the woods. He disappeared on Monday and his whereabouts is unknown.

CONSTIPATION must be avoided, or torpid liver, billiousness, indigestion and gassy pains result.

WORKMAN BURIED UNDER COAL PILE

Montreal, Nov. 5.—Buried under a miniature mountain of coal for half an hour, Jean Baptiste Barsalou, aged 67, a coal heaver, living at 10 Bonsecours street, suffered internal injuries which resulted in his death at Notre Dame Hospital. The accident happened at 12.15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the wood and coal yard of Alfred Gagnon, at 375 Dodet street, when the boarding of one of the huge bins collapsed and loosed an avalanche of coal upon the workman.

FAILED TO DO IT JUSTICE

Despite the efforts of song writers to sing the glories of California, they have failed in giving an adequate description of this land of remarkable loveliness. It is a land of perpetual summer, of romance and beauty, of rest and play. Cool, inviting mountains, sun-steeped slopes and vales, balmy breezes carrying the tang of growing fruit, bring the glow of health to the cheeks of the ailing. The world-weary find rejuvenation on the sunny bathing beaches, in motoring, riding, playing tennis or golf, while deep sea fishing, surf-riding or aqua-planing keep the more active entertained.

There are two splendid routes to California; one—by the famous "International Limited" of the Canadian National Railways via Chicago—this train leaves Toronto daily and gives a service unexcelled for speed, comfort and convenience.

The other route is by the "Continental Limited" leaving Montreal daily and "The National" from Toronto daily via Vancouver and Victoria. This "All Canadian" route is very popular with the regular tourists to California. It takes you through the world famous Jasper National Park and Mount Robson Park and the white mantelled mountains are beautiful beyond description.

Any Agent of the Canadian National Railways will gladly give you literature, complete information or make reservations for either route.

SETTELL ASKS MORE TIME TO PREPARE CASE

On Advice of Counsel Refuses to Answer Questions To-day

WOULD SEE FRIENDS

He Asks to Be Allowed Into City in Custody

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 6—Acting on advice of counsel, E. C. Settell, when called to the stand before Judge Snider, this morning, announced through his counsel that he would not answer any questions put to him in view of the fact that he had not been given ample opportunity to prepare his case.

Following the conclusion of the evidence of C. E. Bodley, car superintendent Settell was asked to take the stand. J. W. Cartwright acting for Settell, stated that he could not ask Settell to answer any questions, owing to fact that he had not time for preparation of the case.

"We are not really interested in the result of this investigation," he said Settell will have to answer for his actions before a criminal court.

Judge Snider said, "We expect to close on Tuesdoy or Wednesday of next week, and we will have to adjourn today ove rthe holiday. We must get through some time."

Settell asked that he be allowed a little time to prepare his case and suggested that he be allowed to go about the city in custody, securing witnesses that would be impartial. Judge stated that Settell would have an opportunity to go over the Hydro books and that the accuntant would assist him.

Hail Smith Now As New Chieftain

New York Governor Receives Hundreds of Telegrams From Party

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 6—Governor Alfred Smith's remarkable victory on Tuesday appears to have made him an outstanding national figure in the Democratic party. Smith won New York Governorship by a plurality of almost 136,000 in face of a Republican landslide. On Tuesday, for the second time in four years he overturned approximately a million votes. This according to the New York World, has aroused the whole country to a realization of his strength. Hundreds of telegrams have been received by Smith hailing him as the new national chieftain of the Democratic party. Many of them were from men who occupy high positions in the party in various sections of the country.

INTEREST IS KEEN IN YALE ELECTION

Penticton, B. C., Nov. 6.—Interest in the voting in the Federal by-election in Yale constituency to-day is very keen and weather conditions give promise of a heavy vote. Both sides are confident but belief is generally expressed that the vote will be closer than in the general election, when J. McKelvie was returnde by 542 majority.

D. W. Sutherland, Liberal candidate, and G. Sterling, Conservative, have had vigorous speaking campaigns throughout the riding.

EX-POLICEMAN GUILTY OF PEDDLING DRUGS

Vancouver, Nov. 6.—A salutary lesson to narcotic drug traffickers was meted out in the Assize Court Wednesday, when Mr. Justice Murphy sentenced Peter Brannan and John Driver to seven years' imprisonment, and in addition, fined them $1,000 in lieu of a further six months' imprisonment.

Brannan for 18 years a member of the police, principally on the Winnipeg force, and Driver, his brother-in law, had been found guilty of distributing about $8,000 worth of opium. The purchaser was a Chinese.

LADY-IN-WAITING DIES FROM INJURY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 6.—Lady Elizabeth Dawson, Lady-in-Waiting to the Queen who fractured a thigh in Scotland, has died at Aberdeen. Lady Elizabeth was out with a shooting party when she slipped on a steep hillside near Balmoral, a day or two before the King and Queen returned to London. The tragic sequel has been a great shock to the Queen and the Royal Family. She succeeded Lady Bertha Dawkins as Lady-in-waiting a little more than a year ago. Her unmarried sister, Lady Katherine Meade, is lady-in-waiting to the Duchess of York.

Crossen Was Sentenced to Six Years Game Keeper's Trial at Cobourg Closed

Cobourg, Nov. 6.—"The verdict is manslaughter." So said the foreman o fthe jury at the conclusion last night of the trial of William John Crossen, gamekeeper, charged at the Fall Assizes here with the murder, on May 18 last, of Byron A. McCrodan of Toronto. Six years' imprisonment in the Provincial Penitentiary was the sentence meted out by Hon. Mr. Justice Wright, who said, in imposing it, that any sentence given by him would stand as a warning and deterrent to others against the promiscuous use of fire-arms.

A second charge against Crossen—that of shooting Edwin Rowe with intent to do grievous bodily harm—was traversed to the next Assizes, with the expectation that it will be dropped.

REPUBLICANS EXPECT A WORKING MAJORITY IN BOTH HOUSES NOW

Democratic Leaders Admit It On Returns This Morning

COOLIDGE VOTE HIGH

President Will Have Eighteen Million of Thirty Million Cast

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 6.—Latest available figures on Senate and Congressional returns indicate that the Republicans will have a working majority in both houses .There are several States where Senatorial contests were very close and results have not yet been definitely announced, but Republican leaders say they are confident they will have a majority of fourteen in the Senate over the Democrats. The lineup of the two houses is as folows:

Senate	Old	New
Republicans	51	54
Democrats	41	40
Others	2	1

Necessary for majority—49.

There is one vacancy. Connecticut Senatorship, to be filled in December. This, it is generally believed, will go Republican.

Congress	Old	New
Republican	25	241
Democrats	207	190

Necessary for majority—213.

While this estimate is from a Republican source, impartial observers believe that it will prove fairly accurate when official returns are in. Democratic leaders this morning admitted that the Republicans had carried both houses.

The latest figures on the presidential vote show that out of a total of approximately thirty million, Coolidge received about eighteen million with an electoral vote of 379 from 34 seats. Davis received about eight million with an electoral vote of 139 from [illegible] States and La Follette about four million with thirteen electoral votes from his home state of Wisconsin.

It was definitely established this morning that Governor Smith was only Democratic official elected in New York State. He carried State by a plurality that may exceed 150,000. but his companions on the ticket all went down to defeat. This means that Smith, for his third term as Governor, will not only have to face a heavily controlled Republican Legislature for the next two ,but he will be the only Democrat in Albany during that time above the rank of assembly man and State Senator.

TOO SHY!

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 6.—Because he was too shy to be a pick-pocket, Frank Gross, a clerk charged with that offence, was acquitted at the Guildhall. Inspector Twokey of the Metropolitan Police testified:

"A man to be a thief of any description must have a certain amount of moral courage and a spice of the devil. This man has neither."

Dr. G. F. Wright Is Named Candidate

To Contest Dental College Election as District Representative

Dr. G .F. Wright of Trenton was chosen at the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Dental Society last night, as the representative of this society to contest the election for Board of Directors for the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, which will be held this month.

Dr. Knight of Picton was elected president of the Bay of Quinte Dental Society. Dr. Fraser of Madoc, was elected vice-president, and Dr. Frank of Picton, secretary-treasurer.

Past President Dr. Day of this city presided at the annual meeting which was held at the Chamber of Commerce building. No clinical discussion resulted as it was purely an organization meeting.

Conservatives Gain Seat in Quebec

Three Liberals and Two Conservatives Returned In By-Election

Montreal, Nov. 6.—Winners of the five by-elections held in the Province of Quebec yesterday to fill vacancies in the Legislature were:

Ste. Anne, Montreal—J. H. Dillion, Liberal. No change.

St. Maurice—A. E. Guillemette, Liberal. No change.

Sherbrooke—A. Crepeau, Conservative. No change.

Bonaventure—P. E. Cote, Liberal. No change.

Quebec County—L. Bastien, Conservative. Opposition gain.

The standing of the parties in the Quebec Legislature as a result of to day's by-elections is: Total seats, 85; Liberals, 62; Conservatives, 22; vacant, 1.

Balloting yesterday brought to a close a campaign in which the leaders of both the Government party and the Conservative opposition figured. Premier Taschereau and several Cabinet Ministers toured the constituencies, while Arthur Sauve, Opposition Leader, delivered a number of speeches in the various ridings.

According to first counts of the ballots, the Liberal majorities in all the seats the Government party retained were cut.

Warrants for Five Arrests

Warrants were issued this afternoon by Judge Monet for the arrest of five men, said to be prominent citizens, in connection with yesterday's Provincial by-election in Ste. Anne Division of Montreal. The warrants were issued on representations made by Wilfrid Handfield, K.C., acting for the local Liberal organization.

More than 12,000 seizures and prosecutions for adulterating and misbranding foods and medicines have been made under the United States pure food and drug law this year. Offences range all the way from putting an olive oil label on cottonseed oil, to marketing impure medicinal drugs.

Hamiltonians Vote in U.S. Election On Ballots Supplied Them by Mail

Hamilton, O nt., Nov. 6.—Many American citizens in this city and district voted in the elections for president on Tuesday. They were supplied by the authorities with ballot papers and forms for making a declaration in respect to their votes. Those they returned by special mail delivery. Magistrate Vance was one of those who had a hand in the election of President Coolidge, for through him some American citizens, residents in East Flamboro, made their affidavits that they had complied with the regulations.

The method of the United States in giving the privilege of the ballot by mail to citizens resident in other countries and states, contains wondergul possibilities for getting out the careless vote. It also contains an inducement for Americans taking up their residence in Canada to refrain from taking out naturalization papers.

SAY CHURCHILL IS LISTED FOR EXCHEQUER JOB

London Newspapers Forecast Cabinet Formed by Premier Baldwin

CURZON COUNTED OUT

Austen Chamberlain Slated For Foreign Secretary Position

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 6—Winston Churchill whose election as a Constitutionalist to the House of Commons in last week's general election marked his return to the Conservative ranks will be listed as Chancellor of the Exchequer, when Prime Minister Baldwin submits his cabinet to the King to-night, afternoon papers predict to-day.

Marquis of Curzon, it is generally declared, will not be included in the list. The predicted appointment of Mr. Churchill, who is an out and out Free Trader, is considered the newest sensation of the new political alignment. The most important Cabinet posts will be distributed according to newspaper forecasts as follows:

Foreign Secretary—Austen Chamberlain; Secretary for India, Earl of Birkenhead; Admiralty, Sir William Johnson Hicks; Health, Neville Chamberlain; Lord Chancellor; Viscount Cave; Colonies, L. C. M. S. Amery Air Ministry—Sir Samuel J. G Hoare; Attorney General—Sir Douglas M. Hogg.

Sir Adam Defends Service of Hydro

Institution Stands Under Several Attacks, He Claims

Toronto, Nov. 6.—With all the fier energy so characteristic of the man Sir Adam Beck declared last night in an address to the Central Ratepayers Association that never had a stain been cast on the great Hydro undertaking, nor a serious flaw discovered despite the unending efforts of powerful corporations to discredit the organization and the men connected with it.

"As far as human ingenuity could protect this great work, its name and its character ,we have endeavored to do it," he said. Bookkeeping had been done with the utmost care, and Sir Adam expressed the belief that from the accounting standpoint the institution was as nearly perfect as possible.

Five attempts, and the present one—six in all—had been made to land him to jail, Sir Adam said, yet all previous investigations, inquiries probes and attempts to bedevil Hydro and himself had absolutely failed.

No Complaints Received

And while the Hydro had been facing a storm of abuse, there had never been lodged in the Commission's office from any of its customers "a single complaint of having been used unjustly, unfairly, autocratically, or even uncourteously, and we have been operating for 16 years," he said.

If Hydro had been a success, it was because into all its officials had been instilled the original requirement of Sir James Whitney: that it kept entirely free from politics. In this connection Sir Adam declared that he did not know of an instance where politics had influenced a decision of the Ontario Commission, nor had he ever heard of it entering into the deliberations of the local Commissions.

Displeased with Elections

question asked by one of the audience drew from Sir Adtm a reference to the United States elections. Unfortunately for Canada, he declared, Coolidge was back in the White House. That meant that Hoover would be with him and "Hoover thinks that he can dictate to us in Canada as well as to the people in the States what we will do regarding the St. Lawrence development." The need for general support of the people behind the Morrisburg project to overcome opposition from Hoover and others he strongly urged.

Praise for New Schedule

Sir Adam devoted most of his time to explaining the new Hydro rate schedule, which, he said, had already been adopted by 219 municipalities, with only 15 dissenting. Changing conditions had necessitated the change in the system of charging, and when once the new schedule was adopted. he believed the public would find that it was really an improvement on the old

BUSINESS BETTER BABSON MAN SAYS

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 6.—That the worst has been experienced and that business improvement could now be expected was the statement of John T Kingsburg, of Babson's Bureau of Statistics, who spoke last night to members of the Purchasing Agents' Association at a dinner in the Royal Connaught Hotel Mr. Kingsburg's talk was one of the most optimistic heard in Hamilton for some time, and as he is recognized as an authority on world conditions, the address was of more than unusual interest. "After exhaustive investigation the organization had reached the conclusion that business will within six months be on the upward trend, although he stated that the downward trend of prices could not be expected for some time yet.

TRENTON HOTEL HAS SUFFERED SERIOUS LOSS

Fire Destroyed Interior of Grand Union Yesterday Afternoon

STUBBORN BLAZE

Firemen Found it Hard to Combat Flames in Attic

Fire which is believed to have been started by an overheated chimney, wrought havoc and destruction in the Grand Union Hotel, at Trenton, Wednesday afternoon, destroying the top portion of the large old building, endangering Culver and Graham's garage next door, and destroying the interior with contents.

Though the old hotel on Dundas St. was not completely gutted, largely owing to the exceptionally fine work done by the Trenton fire fighters with apparatus together with the voluntary services of spectators and townsmen. the interior and contents, is badly damaged by smoke and water. Only the clothing in the building was removed.

The loss to the owner A. A. Farrar, who conducted a Standard hotel. will be considerable, though the building and contents are very well insured. A billiard hall and grocery store conducted by Farrar in building, suffered losses to the equipment and stock.

The fire which started about two o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the spacious attic of the hotel, was confined to the building for some time owing to the heavy tin roof on the building. The attic was a seething mass of confined flames and intense heat making the work of the fire fighters all but impossible. Determined work on their part however, not only held the fire in control, but kept it from spreading, so that while the interior and contents of the building were damaged, the damages were mainly experienced through water and smoke effects.

The fire had not been wholly extinguished until six o'clock last evening. No one was hurt and life was not endangered at any time.

Member of Choir Was a Burglar

Mystery of Many Washington Robberies Believed Cleared Up

Washington, Nov. 6.—By the arrest of Francis Winfield Hart, 24, member of the choir of Grace Episcopal Church the Washington police believe they have solved a dozen recent burglaries that netted the wielder of a jemmy loot valued at upward of $15,000.

Hart confessed, the police say. He was arrested at the Cavendish apartments, where he came to live a month ago at the home of the Rev. Meade B. McBryde, rector of Grace Church and leader of the choir, who had known him for seven years and had taken him in when his parents turned him out. Hart was married at seventeen. His wife died three years ater, leaving a child. Hart was a non-union bricklayer, ostensibly.

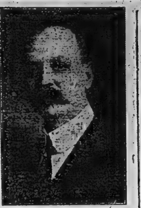
Even while police were taking him to headquarters Miss Caroline Harbest telephoned her apartment had been entered and she feared the burglar was still there. Detectives hustled there. Among other things missing was a string of green beads. When Hart was searched at headquarters the green beads were found in his pockets.

Hart, it was said, was already out on $1,000 bond under a charge of alleged complicity in an embezzlement from th elocal gas light company.

ELECT H. C. NICKLE HOSPITAL CHAIRMAN

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 6.—At the annual meeting of the Board of Governors of Kingston General Hospital, H. C. Nickle was elected chairman of the Board of Governors. Col. R. E. Kent, Chairman for eight years, tendered his resignation. The others officers are: Harold Davis, Vice-Chairman; William Jackson, Hon. Secretary; Miss E. A. Hunter, Secretary-Treasurer; R. Easton Burns, Auditor. The Management Committee will consist of the chairman, vice-chairman, honorary secretary and Dr. A. W. Winnett, Dr. R. J. Gardiner and J. M. Campbell.

H. L. Britain, efficiency expert, of Toronto, has been engaged by the Board of Management to make a study of the whole hospital situation and make a report.



E. Guss Porter, K.C., whom the electors of West Hastings are expected to send back to Ottawa with a substantial majority.

AGED BACHELOR LOSES HIS HOME

Was Preparing Breakfast On Church Street When Fire Started

Charles Fry, aged man who keeps bachelors' hall in his small two-roomed home at 82 Church street south, had a narrow escape from serious injuries, when he escaped from the burning house about 10.30 o'clock this morning, wearing but his shirt and trousers.

Fry who is almost blind, lives alone and was preparing breakfast over the stove when in some manner the fire started. He beat a hasty exit, and the small structure was badly gutted. The house of two rooms and a back kitchen, was badly burned and all contents are a total loss. The back end of the house was completely burned away and the remainder badly gutted.

The firemen were on the scene as quickly as possible after the alarm was sent in, and did everything in their power to save the home. No insurance was carried on house or contents.

TAKE ALL MEANS TO GET PRISONER

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 6— In spite of the fact that Frank Barnes held in New Orleans for the murder of Smylie Muirhead is alleged to have expressed his willingness to return here without extradition a special court was held here yesterday presided over by Magistrate Fraser. The affidavits of witnesses were made and will be sent to the attorney-general and from there to the British Consul at Washington.

New witnesses swore they saw Barned try to hit the party prior to the tragedy as they crossed another street Barned it is understood will claim that the whole affair was accidental and that his car became unmanageable.

SAY KU KLUX KLAN IS COMING BACK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 6.—Democratic party organs in the United States are claiming that one of the outstanding features of the Tuesday election was the political comeback of the Ku Klux Klan. Th eclaim is based on the fact that candidates endorsed by Hooded Order have apparently scored sweeping victories in Indiana, Kansas, Colorado and Oklahoma. The Klan endorsed candidates, who waged a vigorous an dpartly successful battle in Montana.

HOLSTEIN COW MAKES NEW BUTTER RECORD

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 6.—A world's record for butter production has been made by Aggie Texal Canary, a seven-year-old Holstein, owned by W. R. Cummings, proprietor of the Gold Dollar Stock Farm, about three miles from here, it is announced by Charles Wood, supervisor of the record performance tests. Mr. Cummings' cow made 1,128 pounds in the 305-day test, as compared with the previous Canadian and world record in the 305-day division by a Holstein owned by R. R. Stevens, of Bowmanville, Ont., which made 1,122 1-2 pounds of butter in that time.

HOUSE IS BURNED FOR FIFTH TIME

Fort William, Nov. 6.—Mrs. G. Lyndhal's farmhouse in O'Connor Township was destroyed by fire Tuesday night, when she was away obtaining men to assist in the threshing. This is the fifth time she has been burned out, and the second time on the site of her present home. The building, worth $1,000, was destroyed; also the contents, including a piano.

Evangelist "Billy" Matheson Returns To Hamilton For Another Mission

Hamilton Nov. 6—Evangelist 'Billy' Matheson, the giant ex-pugilist and ex-saloon keeper, is returning to Hamilton to conduct another mission. He will hold meetings every Sunday at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the S.O.E. hall, 121 Hughson street north.

Late last spring the picturesque, forceful and vigorous evangelist who preaches and works especially for the down-and-outs. the down-trodden, the hopeless and the miserable conducted a successful mission for several weeks in Manson's hall. On two occasions he addressed large audiences in Pantages Theatre .Upon leaving here in June he established a permanent mission on Market street, just west of McNab street. While here before this dramatic expounder of the Bible made many friends who will be glad to learn of his return.

POOR SECURITY WAS OFFERED TO HOME BANK

Stock of Brick Company Lost Value In Year 1914

SHIFS WERE JUNK

Could Not Be Classed as Ocean-Going Witness Said

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 6.—The affairs of Mount Royal Brick Company of which accused was director were probed deeply at this morning's session of the trial of C A Barnard, Home Bank director, on charges of making, using, approving and concurring in false statements of the bank's affairs. Mr. Barnard gave stock in Mount Royal Brick as security to the bank. J. Alphonse Turcotte, Montreal, who was a trustee of the Company was a witness. He said that the Company was organized in 1914 and that it paid no salaries after August of that year and that the total value of bricks it had sold was only $333. The total liabilities of the Company were $2,458,-181 and assets $2,120,529. Interest on bonds was paid up to December 1914, and no interest was ever paid after that.

Percy C. Bondham, m arine surveyor, of Montreal, gave evidence concerning the values of two ships, Vaudreuil and Paipoonge, given by Mr. Barnard as security to the bank in 1919. He said shipping was worth $150 a ton. It dropped rapidly in 1922 and 1923 and only a scrap value of 9 a ton could have been realized on the ships in 1923. He said they were not properly ocean going vessels.

Have $3,000 Of $5,000 Wanted

Y.M.C.A. Campaign Bringing Pleasing Results; Final Sprint To-day

As a result of the second days report of the canvassing for the Y.M.C.A. the total reached was $2,931, R. J. Wray's team leading closely followed by S. Nurse. The other captains coming in the following order—G. T. Cole, N. P. North, G. B. Smith, H. Holton, S. License and Howard Clark.

The team workers gathered for supper during which Al. Wilson's orchestra played. W. B. Deacon presided and called for the day's reports as given above. C. M. Reid was called on and told of the early struggles when in the old building and emphasized that the returns indicated that if the teams covered the names and made enough calls the objective would be reached. George Ostrom and H. W. Ackerman told of the splendid reception and urged the men to see it through now. Stan Nurse as Captain threw a challenge to the other team captains that his team would make more calls and bring in the largest returns to day. There was an exceptional fine spirit manifested and to-day's report it is hoped will reach the goal.

Let there be harmony in things essential—liberty in things not essential—Charity in all.

THE LAW

Illustrations of what law means in this country have been comprehensive of late, says the Ottawa Journal.

Four murderers have been hanged in Montreal—after fair but not long delayed trial.

Another murderer in Ontario, an alien, was recently executed despite all sorts of pressure to get him off.

A prominent public man, ex-Cabinet Minister, ex-Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, has been sent to penitentiary for graft.

One of the Province's chief civil servants who went wrong was followed to California, brought back, and sent to penitentiary.

A prominent and wealthy Toronto business man has been sent to jail and fined $600,000 for defrauding the public.

The wealthy directors of a bank which collapsed are undergoing trial. Several officials of the bank have been convicted of failure of trust, and await sentence.

Suspicion arises of deficiencies or worse in a police force, investigation gets under way, and a chief of police is promptly found suspended from office.

In every case, the law has been prompt, efficient and resolute. Political influence, wealth, position, have had no greater respect from the law and no more respite than suspects from other classes, minor officials, or the very underworld. There has not been even a suggestion in any responsible quarter that money or influence could protect against the courts.

It is well worth while for Canadians to be able to say this, knowing it to be true. It is a good indication of the tempe rof our people, a good augury for th enational future.

MEAT UNIVERSITY

London now has a Meat Trades "University." Here is taught by practical and fully competent instructors, the whole duty of butchers—from animal physiology and hygiene to shop management and the making of sausages. Other trades organizations are co-operating with the London County Council to incorporate as the Smithfield Institute. There will be a junior course for boys who have just entered or intend to enter the trade, and a senior course to enable men to study the more advanced side of their work. There are no fees for juniors, and fees for other courses are from 75c. to $2.50 a session.

To raise the standard of a trade is good business.

ROBBING PROVIDENCE OF THE CREDIT

It is amusing to hear Honorable J. A. Robb pointing to the favorable balance of trade as a proof of the good that the King Government is doing the country. And yet this is what he actually did recently at Trenton. He said that on the 12 months ending September, exports exceeded imports by $260,000,000. Then comparing this with an excess of imports over exports amounting to $26,000,000 during the 12 months ending March 1921, he said—"see what a great change we have wrought since the days of the Meighen regime."

Mr. Robb did not tell his audience that the heavy exports of the trade period he referred to, were due to the fact that last year Canada had the largest wheat crop in her history. She raised about 500,000,000 bushels or 70,000,000 more than she ever had done before. This enabled us to export 294,000,000 bushels.

What had the King Government to do with the producing of that great crop of wheat? Absolutely nothing. It was the work of Providence alone. But Honorable J. A. Robb claims the credit for it. This is the inference to be drawn from his remarks, if they mean anything.

But if the King Government is to claim credit for the record crop of 1924, it must also be charged with responsibility of the light crop of the current year. The Government's own figures show that instead of raising 450,000,000 bushels of wheat, as they did last year, this year the prairie provinces are only credited with 267,000,000 bushels, or about 175,000,000 bushels less. Of course a government can't be praised for a good crop or criticized for a bad one, which goes to show how ridiculous is Mr. Robb's claim of credit for the large favorable trade balance that followed the big crop of 1923.

Nor did Mr. Robb make mention of the fact that to a very large extent the large favorable trade balance was due also in part to the jump in wheat prices. Just now wheat is selling for at least 50 cents a bushel more than it was at this time last year. No wonder that the export figures are higher, but Mr. Robb says nothing about this.

Turning back to the year 1920-21 with which Mr. Robb makes his comparisons, what does one find? Instead of a crop of nearly 500,000,000 bushels of wheat, it was only 267,189,000 bushels. If during that year of Mr. Meighen's administration the crop had been anything like as big as it was last year, the trade balance would have been higher than it was during the year that has recently closed.

The truth is that the members of the King Government are so short of arguments to prove that the country is prosperous that they have been compelled to claim some of the credit that rightly belongs to Providence for the crops.

U.S. AND EUROPE

The point of main interest to Canada and the Empire, arising out of the presidential elections in the United States, is their effect on foreign policy. President Coolidge having been returned, present policies will continue; but that does not mean to say that conditions will be static, says the Hamilton Spectator. The president has shown himself sympathetic to the claims of Europe and has revealed his desire for progressive assistance of the war-torn powers and for an extension of the influence of United States' diplomacy by every means short of actual participation in the disputes and jealousies of the nations. The part the United States has already taken in the rehabilitation of Europe is most important, notably in connection with the German economic settlement plan.

League of Nations enthusiasts will be disappointed that the candidate who came out openly for active participation in the league was not given the opportunity to make good his pledges. The position of the "official observer" is not one to add strength to the council; but it is not without value. The world must be content with the moral influence brought to bear, which is not a thing to be despised. Evidently, the American people think that this kind of service is the best for humanity under existing conditions. Mr. Myron T. Herrick, United States' ambassador to France, in a recent speech in New York, said that his country could do more, and had done more, in the capacity of 'counsel and friend" than by plunging into "the local and continental entanglements of Europe." His view is evidently shared by the majority of his fellow-countryment.

Inspector W J Shaw reported to the St. Thomas board of health that he was forced to condemn a carlot of peaches shipped from the Niagara fruit belt to a St. Thomas firm. The peaches were rotten in the core, and this action was sustained by the provincial fruit inspectors.

Genevieve Alapinsky, aged three years, was drowned in the Welland canal yesterday morning. Her five-year-old brother, who was walking along the bank with her, showed sufficient presence of mind to run to the bridgeman's shanty at Niagara street, but she had sunk when help arrived.

Press Opinions

ONE TAX COLLECTION ONLY
(Victoria Colonist)

The country is in the grip of taxation systems and that grip is strangling initiative and enterprse. There should be reform, commencing with rigid economics in all administrative expenditures, followed by the provision of one tax-collecting agency, and one only, for federal, provincial and municipal purposes. The present triplication of energies means wholesale waste of money on an army of officialdom.

MEN OF VISION
(Hamilton Spectator)

In the course of an address to the Young Men's Canadian Club at Toronto last evening Mr. Justice Riddell is reported to have said: "Canadians are a nation of kickers and they have every right to be. I am proud of our kickers, because I was born and bred that way. We are free men. If we don't like a government we have the right to kick it out. If we find fault with the government, why shouldn't we resort to drastic measures?" It is to be hoped that the young people who composed his audience were sufficiently mature to properly interpret the noted jurist's message. Mr. Justice Riddell was not pleading the cause of the chronic kicker or the arm-chair critic. His intent, it was apparent was to drive home the responsibility of citizenship and the sacredness of the franchise. His was a plea for constructive criticism. Nothing should be torn down until there is something better to replace it—but an inferior article should not be countenanced longer than it takes to provide a worthwhile substitute.

"BOUNDERS" AND GENTLEMEN
(Brooklyn Eagle)

Let us trust that the Prince will not gather from his experiences the notion that we are a nation of "bounders." We are not. A large segment of our people is as much shocked as he is by the boorishness of our compatriots. An American gentleman is not so reserved, not so impressively dignified, perhaps not so serious in his contempt of frivolity, as the English gentleman. He is a different type, but a real type nevertheless. The Prince would recognize him at first sight as a brother gentleman. And he might easily find himself recognizing a newspaper reporter of the old school, refined, educated, cultivated according to the highest standards of Anglo-Saxondom.

CANADA'S COMPETITION
(Province Journal)

Statistics just published by the department of commerce show that the United States is rapidly losing its export flour market in certain countries in competition with Canada. In fact, the rise of Canada as a competitor is one of the most phenomenal events in recent trade history. In 1913 we sent abroad 10,678,000 barrels of flour, as compared with Canadian exports of 3,832,000 barrels. Last year our exports increased to 17,253,000 barrels. Of course the combined exports of the two countres more than doubled the pre-war figure, a fact occasioned by the severe shortage of wheat in several European countries that have not recovered from the effects of the war.

WESTERN SARCASM
Edmonton Journal

Sarcasm is a dangerous weapon for newspaper use, as many editors have found. The Bassano Mail recently referred to a proposal made by the federal member for East Calgary for assuring an ample supply of rainfall at all times in Alberta. This was to flood a large part of the province by damming the rivers. The Mail suggested that a better plan would be to level the Rocky mountains for a width, say, of two hundred miles, so that the moisture-laden winds from the Pacific could penetrate right through without being deprived of their humidity by the towering peaks. At the same time, however, he thought that something should be done for shuttering off the moisture when it was likely to interfere with stampedes or other open-air meetings in which the public was interested. We now find that the Mail's article is being taken quite seriously elsewhere in the Dominion, several newspapers having referred to it as an example of the reckless ideas that prevail in the west.

JUDGING O THERS
London Times

If we would contribute to the brotherhood of men, we must make the best of fellowship as the critical temper. We need not ignore our differences and the amazing contrasts which exist in men's characters, desires and circumstances, for it is only as we have these in our minds that we can hope to make our contribution toward the general welfare, but this is no justification for passing moral judgment on our fellows. We are in danger of forgetting the mystery of personality. Modern psychology encourages us in the analytical study of human nature, and current fiction gives a zest to it which tempts many to an almost morbid habit of judging our neighbor's motives and dissecting his character. But we may easily suppose that our knowledge of human nature is greater than it really is. Personality is always complex, and contains depths of life which we can never really understand. Our rough and ready classification of the people with whom we have to do, as good or bad, is rarely true and can never be justified. The saint has his imperfections and the sinner his excellences.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist. Apply a little in the nostrils and get instant relief. Millions endorse this remedy known for more than fifty years.

To-day's Smile

"How did you feel," inquired the tourist, "when the cyclone wrecked your home and you found yourself sailing through the air on the wings of the wild wind, as it were, with the debris of your domicile whirling about you?"

"Like a fly in a glass of soda water, thank you," replied the Kansas farmer. "I was present, but didn't seem to have enough influence to quiet the fuss."

An American was visiting a farm in Ulster and Pat was showing him all the fowl of the farmyard. When they had nearly finished Pat pointed over to a place where a lot of fowl were gathered, and said, "D'ye see them hens with the square nebs?"

"Yes," said the American.

"Well," said Pat, "them's ducks."

A London Letter

(By Panton Hose)

For The Canadian Press

London, Nov. 6.—Visitors from Overseas who happened to be in the neighbourhood of the Houses of Parliament at the right moment on October 13 were able to witness no less than two of the little pageants which London is always producing, as though for their special benefit. Each had its origin in a custom centuries old.

One was the arrival of Sir Alfred Bower, the Lord Mayor-elect, with his train of Sheriffs, Aldermen and Corporation officials, to receive from the Lord Chancellor His Majesty's formal approval of the City's choice. The famous golden coach, which is one of the glories of the Lord Mayor's Show, does not appear on these minor occasions; but the ordinary city carriages, with gorgeous gold-laced, silk-stockinged footmen holding on behind, and scarcely less gorgeous personages inside in fur and scarlet, make an impressive sight. This visit of ceremony concludes "after compliments", as they say in the East" with the circulation of the "loving cup", twined with flowers, after the fashion which Canadians who partook of the City's hospitality this summer will remember.

On the same day (the one on which the Michaelmas sitting of the Law Courts begins) His Majesty's judges and counsel attend service at Westminister Abbey, and afterwards proceed on foot across the road to the House of Lords, where they take "breakfast" (really lunch) with the Lord Chancellor. This is the one day in the year when the general public has a chance of seeing an assortment of judges in their various robes of scarlet and ermine, black and gold, or purple, black and white, except, of course, in the event of some great reception like those which took place during the visit of the Canadian Bar.

London's Favorite Report

Of the London places of interest which keep an account of their visitors, the Zoo is an easy first. During the holiday months of August and September this year, the Gardens were inspected by no less than 783,735 people—an increase of 215,030 compared with the corresponding two months of 1923. The great new aquarium, opened for the first time this spring, is already one of its most popular features. In six months' residence some of the fish have become uncannily tame. Conger—eels—great thirty-pound brutes capable of "taking charge" when hauled into a small boat—not only thrust their heads out of the water and feed from the keeper's fingers, but positively allow themselves to be picked up. Crawfish, bigger than lobsters, climb half out of their tanks and gently grip the hand that offers food, and carp will suck the human finger. (The golden carp captured recently and brought to the Zoo after twelve years' freedom in the Thames, of which we wrote a few weeks ago, has unfortunately died.) A hawks bill turtle, who could nip off half a hand with a single bite if he felt that way inclined, allows a friend to shake his flipper.

When H. M.S. Hood came home with the Special Service Squadron, she brought with her two Canadian beavers to join the little colony already in the Gardens. Teddie of Toronto, has made yet another conquest, for Flop (the lady of the newcomers) has deserted her mate in his favour.

Somebody—we hope it was not a reader of this paper—with the very best intentions, nearly made an e nd of "Old Bill" the walrus not long ago, by presenting him with a pound of biscuits. Biscuits, it seems, are poison to the Walrus tribe, and drastic measures, including half a pint of castor oil, had to be taken. The engaging creature is now himself again, and doing well on a daily 40 pounds of fresh cod, w ith seal-rubber specially imported from the arctic regions. He is now too heavy to shift for weighing, and the only way in which a record of his growth can be kept is measuring him at intervals around the waist.

Getting Ready For Christmas

London, which makes the finest toys in the world, is getting ahead with the supply of rocking-horses for Christmas presents. A single factory turns out in a year 150,000 horses on rockers or wheels, of which 98 per cent are dapple-grey and the odd two per cent brown or cream. During Queen Victoria's reign a certain number of cream-colored rocking-horses were wanted, her cream-colored ponies being famous, but now the paintings of dapple-greys is a trade in itself. The chief "rocking-horse spotter" in this room can "dapple a small grey" in seven minutes, and he does nothing else.

President Patterson has announced a subscription of $375,000 by John D. Rockefeller towards the $1,500,000 of the Acadia University new Forward Movement.

VERMIN IN LIVE STOCK

Much Injury Done by Lice to Farm Animals

Vermin Multiply Rapidly—Treatment for Cattle, Horse and Hog Lice—The Louse a Robber of Profits—Soft Bacon.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Thousands of dollars are lost each year by stock owners neglecting to take the necessary measures to destroy the lice that infest the stock. Millions of these busy little insects make life a misery to the animal, and they also make the animals a source of loss to the owner. The keeping of live stock as a medium of support for lice never made any money for the farmer. It is unprofitable. Many people neglect, for reasons best known to themselves, to apply the simple remedies that destroy vermin and prevent losses on live stock operations.

Lice Multiply Rapidly.

Lice multiply most rapidly in dry, cold weather, and are found in greatest abundance on long-haired, old and poorly cared for stock during March and April. Spring rains tend to reduce the numbers of vermin on animals that are exposed to the weather, and the lice become less numerous as the season progresses. A few seem to survive the summer and show their presence in the late autumn or early winter when their progeny have increased to millions, and bring torment to the unfortunate animals that support them. Rub and scratch is the practice, until the hair is off and the louse is either crushed or pushed further along. Bare patches are noticed on side of neck, breast, head and back, wherever the animal has been able to reach—evidence of vigorous attempts at relief from the tiny tormentors. Animals that are tied and not free to rub themselves have a harder lot than those running free.

Treatment for Cattle Lice.

All animals should be given a good grooming with brush and curry comb to remove scurf, loose hair, and any vermin that may be off guard, then apply the following:

Soft soap	1 quart
Hard soap	½ pound
Coal oil	1 pint
Water	2 quarts

Mix the quantities of soap and coal oil together first, then add the two quarts of boiling water. This will make an emulsion if thoroughly mixed, to which a gallon of warm water must be added before applying to the animals. An ordinary stable brush is a good instrument with which to apply the emulsion. Care should be taken to saturate the skin over the entire body. Repeat the treatment in ten days; another brood will be up and doing by that time. Sheep dips prepared by reliable manufacturing chemists are available and very useful in destroying cattle lice. There are three species of lice attacking cattle, viz: the long-nosed louse, the short-nosed louse, and the biting louse. Herds that are regularly groomed during the winter suffer but little from lice.

Treatment for Horse Lice.

If the weather is warm enough so that it is safe to wash a horse, the kerosene emulsion given for cattle is very effective. If the weather is cold, the animal can be given a good grooming, and then either sodium fluoride or pyrethrum powder should be well dusted on the skin, and the horse blanketed. Raw linseed oil can be brushed into the hair quite easily and with good effect. A good brush and oil are death to the mites. Any treatment given should be repeated in ten days, since the powers of multiplication are wonderful. There are two kinds of lice infesting the horse, the biting and the suctorial.

Treatment for Pig Lice.

Raw linseed oil applied with a brush to all parts of the body is very effective. The formulae for kerosene emulsion can also be used to advantage. An oil rub, always accessible for the use of swine, will do much to keep the vermin down. The practice of having a machine oil can handy at feeding time and giving each pig a squirt along the back once a week is a good one. It will make conditions unhealthy for a pig louse. The pig louse, "Haematopinus suis," is a big one, almost as long as its name, and can easily be seen.

Do not let the louse rob you of your season's profits, and do not let it annoy your animals. A little soapy or greasy material will stop its breathing for all time. Why not get after the louse to-day?—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Soft Bacon.

Experimental work at the Ontario Agricultural College has proven that soft bacon comes from pigs that have been fed heavily during early life on fattening feeds while enclosed in pens or yards so small as to prevent proper exercise for the animals. O. A. C. experiments have also proven that pigs grown to 125 pounds weight on mixed feeds well balanced with skim milk (2½ pounds milk to 1 pound of meal), or tankage up to 10 per cent. in the ration may be furnished on corn or barley and still produce a firm, high quality product. Dairy by-products tend to offset the trouble arising from lack of exercise, but both exercise and skimmilk are better than either alone.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Cow testing separates the good from the poor and lays the foundation for a good herd.

It is always a good plan to save a piece of nice clover or rape on which to refresh the breeding ewes, just prior to the mating season.

BIRTHS

LIDDLE—On Nov. 5th, to Mr. and Mrs. Everett H. Liddle, 16 Hillside St., Belleville, a daughter. (Lois Beulah).

The host was in the act of adjusting his tie, preparatory to the arrival of his guests.

"Great Scott!" he exclaimed, suddenly. "I had almost forgotten."

He bounced down the stairs.

"My dear John," exclaimed his wife, "what is the matter?"

"Matter!" gasped the husband. "This is no time for questions. Here, take this lot, and I'll fetch up the rest."

"Why, dear," said his wife as a heap of miscellaneous sticks and umbrellas were dumped on the landing, "are you afraid our friends will steal these umbrellas?"

"No," he replied, as he descended for the second load, "I'm afraid they will recognize them."

That the farmers of Western Canada are now giving increasing attention to the improvement of their home surroundings is shown by the fact that they have not only planted 5,250,000 trees distributed from the Canadian Government Forestry stations at Indian Head and Sutherland, Saskatchewan, this year, but have also purchased large quantities from private nurseries.

During the past year the Ontario Department of Agriculture through its colonization branch, has located upwards of 4,000 settlers upon farms in old Ontario. These settlers are in addition to those located in Northern Ontario by a different branch of the department. Those going north are mostly of foreign extraction. Those settled in old Ontario are from agricultural regions in Great Britain.

Father And Son Are Surprised

Each One Thought the Other Was Long Since Dead

Southampton, Nov. 1.—Father and son, each believing the other to have died many years ago, have just met at Southampton, both alive and well.

The death of the father at Johannesburg was reported in the London Press on February 7, 1916, and the son reported missing in France in 1917 was later assumed to be dead, and his wife was granted a widow's pension.

This week troops arrived at Southampton to join the Union Castle liner which had been chartered to take them to the Near East.

Among them was Frank Hannaway-Rowe, a drill instructor in the Royal Air Force, who had been stationed at Netheravon. He knew that his father had once lived in Southampton, but he had read in a newspaper an account of his death.

Having an hour to spare before sailing, he visited the street where his father used to be in business as a herbalist. Afterwards he called at a licensed house near by, and in the course of a conversation revealed his name.

"Why, I have got a photo of your father," said the wife of the licensee and showed it to him.

"I suppose you know he is dead," said Mr. Rowe.

"It must have been very sudden," replied the landlady.

"He died about eight years ago," said Mr. Rowe.

"That's curious," was the landlady's comment. "Why I saw him last Monday, and he appeared to be quite all right."

Father's Surprise

Mr. Rowe was incredulous. He repeated that he had read an account of his father's death, but he was persuaded to go to an address near at hand and there he met his father, hale and hearty, in spite of 85 years of a strenuous life.

"But I thought you were dead, too," said the astonished father.

W. Hannaway-Rowe Sr., had two sons in the war. The younger was killed, and Frank was wounded a third time in 1917. Later he returned to France, and news came that he was reported missing.

Eventually his wife was given a widow's pension, the War Office being unable to say more than that he was reported missing.

It is now known that, wounded a fourth time, he was taken to a hospital in France, and remained there about two years his memory a complete blank.

Eventually he recovered, turned up at his wife's home, where he was shown cuttings from several London papers indicating that his father had died in February, 1916, at Johannesburg. He accepted the reports without question, as other members of the family had done and not until their dramatic meeting at Southampton did father and son realize that the other was alive.

JUST ONE HOLIDAY

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—Armistice Day throughout Canada will be observed next Monday simultaneously with Thanksgiving Day. There will not be two holidays. The celebrations will be joint, except that on the actual anniversary of the Armistice—this year, next Tuesday—there will be two minutes of suspended activity and silence at eleven o'clock. The latter is by royal request.

Norman Lynch, a London man, wanted in Elgin county for assaulting and deserting his wife, was located near Sarnia, by Constable Walter Wardell, and appeared before Magistrate Maxwell at St. Thomas. He was remanded to the county jail until Friday for sentence, having pleaded guilty to the charges.

The quarterly board of the Norfolk Street Methodist Church, Guelph, has extended an unanimous vote to the Rev. Humphrey A. Graham, of the Colborne street Methodist church, Brantford, to accept the pastorate of the Guelph church, and it is thought probable the invitation will be indorsed at the next meeting of the Hamilton conference.

The speaker made a hurried motor trip from Toronto in order that he would not disappoint the lodge members, having promised to deliver the travelogue. He had been attending the funeral of his brother there.

HAD LIVING VIPER IN HER STOMACH

Chur, Switzerland, Nov. 6.—When the stomach of a young nurse who had died in terrible agony was opened a living viper was found. The patient had been put on a strict diet and the venomous snake, driven by hunger, had eaten the intestines of the young woman.

Only one explanation seems likely, namely, that the girl while on a hike in the Swiss mountains, drank from a mountain brook and swallowed either a serpent egg or a small living reptile.

HARNESSED GIRL TO SLEIGH LIKE DOG

Dauphin, Man., Nov. 6—Alexander and Catharine Leclaire were convicted here yesterday on a charge of maltreating and otherwise persecuting their young stepdaughter. Leclaire was sentenced to fifteen months in jail His wife drew a term of 23 months in the detention home.

Evidence was given to the effect that Leclaire had repeatedly beaten the child senseless, while on one occasion the girl was harnessed to a sleigh and compelled to pull other children of the family for a distance of twelve miles.

The redingote is a new and altogether logical development of the vogue of narrow coats and the tailored note in street dress.

This Autumn the black satin slip is the foundation of many smart costumes in the same wardrobe. With the new redingote of wool rep, kasha, faille silk or cashmere, you have a very chic semi-tailored street costume which has quite the effect of a narrow coat over a sheath frock. With the same satin slip you can have a decidedly elegant afternoon frock by wearing it with a tunic blouse of printed Georgette. With a lace tunic blouse you have an informal dinner dress. This particular version of the redingote came from Paris and has the new Chinese collar and braid trimming.

B. C. HOUSE OPENS

Victoria, Nov. 6—The first session of the sixteenth Legislature of British Columbia opened here Monday, Lieut.-Governor C. A. Nichol, delivered the King's speech.

Only the usual formalities attendant upon the opening of the House were proceeded with, J. A. Buckman, member for Columbia was elected speaker and H. G. Percy, Fort George, deputy speaker.

LADY ASTOR PUTS HOPE IN WOMEN

Brighton, Nov. 6—Lady Astor's confidence in her own sex was voiced again in a speech to delegates attending the annual conference of the National Council of Women of Great Britain and Ireland. She described the younger generation as 'full of hope, zeal, confidence and physical ignorance."

"The only way we can affect youth" Lady Astor said, "is not in what we can do for them but in what we are. I have unbounded faith in my sex. I truly believe that women coming into public life is the greatest spiritual step forward that has happened for generations. The most selfless service comes from women."

She asked girls to think for themselves and make up the kind of minds they wanted.

"It is said," she continued, "that our young people are going back on Christianity. I don't agree with that. I believe the young people who are thinking for themselves, may be far nearer the Kingdom than the young people who accepted the faith of their forefather blindly. Blind faith is not Christianity. I do not think when so many women are thinking that they are going to reject Christianity."

COAL MINERS STRIKE IN ALBERTA AVERTED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—That the threatened strike of miners in the Alberta coal fields has been averted is indicated in telegraphic advices received by the Labor Department this morning from the Edmonton Miners' Federation. Advices state that an agreement has been reached with all operators concerned in the basis of findings of conciliation board which recently handed down its decision.

ASK THIS HALIFAX NURSE

She Is Willing to Answer Letters from Women Asking About Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Halifax, Nova Scotia.—"I am a maternity nurse and have recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to many women who were childless, also to women who need a good tonic. I am English and my husband is American, and he told me of Lydia E. Pinkham while in England. I would appreciate a copy or two of your little books on women's ailments. I have one which I keep to lend. I will willingly answer letters from any woman asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. J. M. COLEMAN, 24 Uniacke Street, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Could Not Sleep Nights

Dublin, Ontario.—"I was weak and irregular, with pains and headaches, and could not sleep nights. I learned about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by reading the letters in the newspapers and tried it because I wanted to get better. I have got good results from it and I feel a lot stronger and am not troubled with such bad headaches as I used to be and am more regular. I am gaining in weight all the time and I tell my friends what kind of medicine I am taking. You may use my letter as a help to others."—Mrs. JAMES RACHO, Box 12, Dublin, Ontario.

USE HOT AIR TO DRY FARMER'S HAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, England, Nov. 6.—A woman's brain is behind the research carried out by the Oxford University's Institute of Agricultural Engineering into the problem of how to make the farmer independent of weather conditions in harvesting his crops. The wife of Captain B. J. Owen, the director of the Institute, suggested the hairdressers' use of hot air for hair-drying as a guide in solving the problems. Captain Owen tried the idea with very satisfactory results. Haystacks dried with hot air in ten hours at a cost much less than that of drying in a field by ordinary means. The principle of the process, which was demonstrated to farmers and representatives of the Ministry of Agriculture at the University Farm, Sandford, near Oxford, is to drive hot air into the centre chamber of a hay or corn rack and radiate it to all the parts.

FEAR EXCLUSION OF WOMEN MEDS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 6.—Great concern at the possibility that women medical students may be excluded from St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, is expressed in a resolution passed by the central committee of the Women's Co-operative Guild, an organization of over 52,000 married working women.

"Co-operative guildswomen, it is stated, know from personal experience the value of the work of women doctors, and feel that it is a matter of national importance that the best opportunities of medical education should be open to them.

CLAIM MOTHER POSED AS BRIDE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vancouver, Nov. 6.—Alleged to have posed as the mother of a girl of juvenile age in order that a marriage certificate for the marriage of her son George, aged 23, and the girl would be obtained. Mrs. Dorothy Nunn is charged under Section 27 of the Marriage Act. Her son is also charged under the same section. It is alleged that the young man wished to marry the girl, whose parents are not in Vancouver, and that Mrs. Nunn posed as her mother in order to obtain the license. The couple were later married.

Hardware Lost Bowling Protest

Are Now on Even Terms With Greyhounds at Recreation

At a meeting of the executive at the Recreation alleys last night presided over by R. J. Wray, B. Rofo and A. Meagher, representing the Greyhounds and M. Nafin the Hardware on the Hardware, protest it was decided after deliberation and checking over the score sheet that the Greyhounds won the game. This will put the Greyhounds on an even term with the Hardware, but the Greyhounds have one more game to play.

The Fruit Merchants won there sixth straight game in the junior league at the Recreation alleys last night winning from the Baby Shoes team by 83 pins. The Baby Shoes lost the game in the first game played when they only rolled 650 but in the second and third they come through with some very good scores. Breinner and Marr were high bowlers.

Playing four men aside with the Hikers playing a John Doe score the Bowlers lost to the Hikers in the senior league by 88 pins. Morrell with 714 was easily the high three string bowled and Liberty for the Bowlers rolled 675.

TY COBB LIKES IT AWAY UP NORTH

Hearst, Nov. 6—"It's great being lulled to sleep by the hoot of an owl and awakened in the morning by the howl of the wolves." This is the message received from Tyrus Raymond Cobb, famous United States ball player, and Jack Miner, well-known Canadian naturalist, who are spending a month of "real vacation" in the Hudson Bay district woods many miles from here. They were last heard of going north by canoe in the general direction of James Bay. Ty Cobb may be doing some hunting but Jack Miner seldom carries a gun preferring to hunt with a long range camera. They are due back to civilization in a week or two. This is Miner's thirty-ninth consecutive season in the north country.

INDIAN WOMAN IS MADE LEGISLATOR

Madras, Nov. 6.—India's first woman legislator is Mrs. Poonen Lukose, who has been appointed by the Maharanee Regent of Travancore to be a member of the local council. She is a Syrian Christian doctor and she been head of the state medical service for several years.

Mrs. Lukose was educated in England and when attending London University was the only Indian woman studying out side of India.

CURED HIS RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 472 L. Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N.J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Printers Take One From Klahoyas

P. Harrison Gets High three String of Game at "Y" Alleys

Last night one of the interesting games of this season took place on the Y alleys between the Printers and Klahoyas, the former winning out by 137 pins. It looked in the first game as if the Klahoyas were going to break their losing streak and pull out a win, but fate was against them in the last two games. P. Harrison of the Printers, was high three string of the evening with 584.

MORE CHILDREN ARE AT HIGH SCHOOLS

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—Eight and a half per cent. more children between the ages of five and 19 years attended school in 1921 than in 1911, according to a census bulletin just issued. In 1901 42.13 per cent. of the school population attended school for some period: in 1911 there was a slight improvement, the percentage rising to 25.88; while according to the 1921 census the attendance was 61.32 per cent., or 2,763,728 school children.

Of the total school attendance when the 1921 census was taken 88.5 per cent. were Canadian born, 5.6 per cent. British born, and 5.9 per cent. foreign born. Of the Canadian born 62.93 per cent. attended school for some period in the year. Eighty-nine per cent. of the 1,508,846 children between the ages of seven and 14 in the nine provinces attended school for some periods of the year, and 80.25 per cent. were at school from seven to nine months in the school year.

New Brunswick, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, in the order named, showed the largest proportion of the school age as not having attended school.

Mr. Robert J. Graham held the undivided attention of members of Moira Lodge last night, when he told in his typically interesting way, the story of his travels through strife torn China. For one hour and a quarter, Mr. Graham told of the beauties of the Orient and the difficulties of travel through a foreign country.

It was the regular meeting of Moira lodge. Refreshments were served.

QUEEN'S KICK AT TREATMENT GIVEN

Kingston, Nov. 6.—Complaint is being made by Queen's rugby fans that the Toronto Stadium management, in filling Queen's order for 2,500 seats for Saturday's Intercollegiate fixture in Toronto, spread the seating all over the stadium, in stead of grouping Queen's supporters all together. Complaint is also made that the seats given to Queen's are "poor ones."

Queen's supporters are inclined to believe that it is an attempt to prevent the followers of the tri-color from supporting their team as a unit. This matter, coming on top of the long-standing argument over the division of gate receipts for home games, has caused a strong tremor around the University that Queen's will break away from the Intercollegiate series and will make application for entry into the Interprovincial, as it would give them four home games. The way the Intercollegiate is now run, each team takes its home gate; and thus it can be easily seen that Queen's are getting much the small end of the financial gain from athletics.

NECK WAS BROKEN WHEN HE MARRIED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 6.—That his neck was broken at the time of his marriage two months ago, was disclosed at an inquest at Brighton on Frank George Rickels, 39, a Hove corporation worker, who died in hospital from paralysis which developed recently. It was stated that last May Rickels was knocked down by a runaway horse and severely injured. He recovered and in August married a woman to whom he had been engaged for seven years.

STILL ADDING NAMES TO VOTERS' LISTS

Despite the fact that there were three registration booths opened in this city where persons could register in order to vote at the approaching bye-election for the Dominion House, a considerable number are being added at the supplementary court now being held daily. Judge Deroche presides over this court, which will conclude on Saturday evening. On Tuesday 37 names were added and yesterday 46, making a total of 83 for two days.

DOCTORS HOPEFUL; PLAGUE CHECKED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Los Angeles, Nov. 6.—With but one death reported yesterday, the first in forty-eight hours, health authorities combatting pneumonic plague in Los Angeles were hopeful today that the peak of the epidemic, which originated in the Mexican quarter last month, had been passed. Official records showed total of 26 deaths since the beginning of the epidemic. Seven other patients were still under treatment.

WHEN TWILIGHT YIELDS TO LAMPLIGHT

No other part of the house is more cheerful than the living room when the mellow sunshine streams in through the windows, and adds its own rich pattern to colorful rays and hangings. And no room responds more happily to the glow of the evening lamp. When the daylight is gone, the flick of a silken cord releases this modern sunshine to scatter the night at your bidding.

Portable floor and table lamps, equipped with the correct Edison Mazda Lamps, can increase the cheerfulness of your living room many times over.

To obtain the best results, choose lamps with wide shades which throw the light upward and downward. See that they are equipped with 50 or 75-watt white or frosted Edison Mazda Lamps.

Near you is an Edison Mazda Lamp store, recognizable by the yellow and blue cartons. There you can obtain real information about good lighting.

White Edison Mazda Lamp most suitable for portable lamp use, as the filament cannot be seen.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN: SERIAL: THEATRES

A Woman's Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

But though he stared into the shop windows and looked at every girl who came in sight he did not see the girl of whom he was thinking; and it was nearly seven before he came back to the "small dinner of three or four courses" which the considerate butler had served for him in the breakfast room.

He was half inclined to give up the idea of the theatre and if it had not been his dread of the marquis' society he would have done so. As it was, he ate his dinner slowly, and enjoyed it, although he was in love; and then, and not till then he fully made up his mind to go.

"I'll have a brougham round in ten minutes, my lord," said the butler, but Lord Cecil declined it.

"I'd rather walk," he said. "I like a stroll after dinner."

The butler—more in sorrow than in anger—asked what time he should send the carriage but Lord Cecil declined a conveyance for any part of the evening.

"I'll walk back," he said; "I rather like a stroll after the theatre," and the butler, with a sigh of resignation, gave him up as a bad job.

As he walked along the lanes, fragrant with the breath of spring, a thought—a hope—flashed through his mind that he might perhaps see the girl in the theatre. He never asked himself what his object in seeking her might be; men seldom ask themselves such questions. Lord Cecil was not an altogether bad character. He was not a modern Lovelace in pursuit of his prey, by any means. He was not, in fact, a Lovelace at all. He had lived in a fast set—had been the star and centre of the crack regiment in which he had held a commission—had gone through the ordeal of London life as completely as most young men of title; but he had come out of it, if he could be said to have come out of it not altogether unscathed, but not very badly burned or smirched.

The Nevilles had always been wild, and Lord Cecil had not been any tamer than his ancestors; but in all his wildness he had drawn the line. For women in general—for the sex, as a whole—he possessed a respect which had sometimes amused his less scrupulous companions.

He had overspent his allowance; lost large sums at baccarat and kindred games, turned night into day, risked his money and his neck at steeplechases and generally, as his friends put it, played Old Harry, but no woman had, as yet, any indictment against him. He could truthfully declare with the Frenchman on his deathbed: "No woman can come to my grave and say that for want of heart I broke hers."

To women he was always frank and gentle, and the women of his set adored him. If he had broken no hearts in the sterner sense of the word, he had all unwittingly caused many a belle of the London season had "given herself away" to Cissy Neville, as his intimate friends called him.

And now the marquis had intimated that he must marry Lady Grace. Lord Cecil thought of last night's after-dinner conversation as he strolled along, tried to think of it gravely and seriously, but somehow he could not; all his thoughts flew, whether he would or would not, to the dark-haired, blue-eyed girl he had so nearly ridden over in the meadows. After all he was not obliged to marry Lady Grace. The marquis could not compel him, and as for the money———. He shrugged his shoulders, and, having reached the theatre, put the subject from him.

It must be confessed that he followed the box-keeper to the private box he had taken with rather doubtful anticipations.

"Romeo and Juliet" in a country theatre is not always an entrancing spectacle and Lord Cecil only wondered how long he should stand it. He was rather surprised at the air of elegance perceptible, and still more surprised at the crowded state of the house, and he congratulated himself, as he looked round at the well-dressed and aristocratic audience, that he had come in evening dress, for he had at one time thought of retaining his morning clothes.

He settled himself in his box—he had arrived during the entr'acte—and looked at the programme.

"Juliet—Doris Marlowe."

The name struck him at once as a pretty one, and he did not trouble to read the rest of the cast. Then the curtain drew up on the balcony scene, and, leaning forward carelessly, he looked at the stage and saw, there in the balcony—the girl for whom he had been seeking, the girl with the dark hair and blue eyes!

For a moment he thought he was dreaming, and the color rushed to his face. Then he looked again, "all his soul in his eyes," and saw that he was not dreaming, but that it was in solemn truth she, herself.

If he had had any doubts her voice would have dispelled them. He would have remembered and recognized those musical tones if he had heard them fifty years hence instead of as many hours.

He was amazed, bewildered, engrossed, but not too engrossed to be aware that the "Juliet" he looked upon, Miss Doris Marlowe, was a great actress.

If she moved the rest of the vast audience, imagine how she moved him who had been thinking of her and longing to see her!

Every day and all day they are required to work. And while it is true that they are equipped to render a satisfactory service if they are normal, still it is also true that very few eyes are normal. And an abnormal pair of eyes are sure in time to cause a lot of trouble. Let me tell you if Your eyes need the aid of glasses.

Beau Brummel Is Great Picture

John Barrymore as King of the Dandies Pleases Audience

Three long cheers for John Barrymore!

If we feel compelled to begin a review of a motion picture in this unconventional strain, forgive us! If our enthusiasm seems too unmeasured and unrestrained, please repeat the forgiveness! We can't help it. It just leaps out of us, the elated and thrilling feeling.

What's it all about, it's about time for you to ask.

The answer is "Beau Brummel", whose three day's engagement begins tonight at the Griffin theatre. We were frankly captivated by the performance of the one and only Barrymore in this adaption of the Clyde Fitch play, swept off our feet as we followed the thrilling romance of Beau Brummel, king of the dandies.

England of the period lives vividly, unforgettably, powerfully. You see the beaux and wits as they pass snuff boxes, indulge in their intrigue and gallantries, the high scale of their living, the brilliance and verve of bon mots, the charm of it all. But beside that charm there is the pulsing drama the sort that keeps you tense and startled, makes you live with the protagonists of the story.

Dorothy Farnum, the adapter, did a wonderful piece of work in this Warner Brothers' Classic of the Screen. But then—so did everybody, from the star to the brilliant supporting cast, some of whom are Mary Astor, Carmel Myers, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis, Willard Louis, Richard Tucker, Andre de Beranger.

All in all the combination of play, star, producers, director—it would be criminal not to mention the superb skill and mastery of Director Harry Beaumont—is perfect, and a wonderful treat is in store for all enthusiasts of the screen this week.

It would be a pity to miss it! Such days come about once in a decade.

For Boys and Girls

NEWS BY TOP OF DRUM

A wonderful "instrument" is the drum with which the natives of Africa talk. Itt is wireless in its simplest form.

Each village has its short code of signals, and most of the people in that village become acquainted with it. Many of the natives are able to interpret and answer the faintest tap-taps of their brother experts in far-off villages. There is no doubt that each village has its call-word, but most of the signalling is mere broadcasting.

Certain combinations of taps mean important outstanding words, such as war, white man, danger, and so on. The rest of the conversation is worked in by variations in the tone and taps.

Cattle-owning tribes have an expressive drum-call which says to everyone in hearing: "Lions amongst our cattle. Come and help." Few cries raise more instantaneous excitement in the night. Sleeping natives are up in an instant and the call of the drum can be recognized anywhere.

The actual drum in each village has a roof built over it, says Mr. Cuthbert Christy, who tells us all this in his book, "Big Game and Pygmies." The drum house becomes the centre of the village life, the drummer on duty being news-agent.

To make the drum, a section of tree-trunk perhaps two feet or more in diameter is hollowed out so as to resemble a great drinking-cup, three feet high. A skin is stretched tightly over the rim.

Long-distance-talking drums are frequently tree-trunks eight feet long and four or five feet in diameter, and heavy hard-wood drum-sticks are used. The volume of sound from these great wooden drums is ear-splitting at close quarters, and the beating can be heard at a great distance.

WHEN THE WIND BLOWS

Very often we talk of a "gale" of wind when a gale does not actually prevail. Wind must attain a certain velocity before it can be classed as a gale.

Wind blows in twelve distinct forces The first of these strengths, "Force 1" is a wind blowing at three miles an hour. It barely deflects the smoke from chimneys, and is scarcely felt at ordinary walking level. "Force 2" is a six mile and hour wind. This is sufficient to make the leaves rustle and is felt on the cheek It is the "gentle zephyr" of the poet.

A breeze is termed "moderate" if it ranges from ten to sixteen miles an hour. Such a wind is sufficient to scatter bits of paper and leaves that are lying about the street. On the coast it [illegible] be termed a "fair" breeze for sailing.

At thirty miles an hour the wind is high enough to impede walking. This is "Force 6". It makes telegraph wires "sing" and whistles round the gables of houses. The largest trees are swayed when the wind reaches a speed of thirty-six miles an hour, or "Force 7"

"Force 8" is the official designation of what we term a gale. Here the wind reaches a speed of forty-five miles an hour. It is a jump from "Force 8" to "Force 11". The latter is a wind blowing at seventy miles an hour. Such a wind is likely to cause shipwreck and destruction to light buildings."

Finally we have "Force 12" a wind blowing at more than seventy miles an hour. This is commonly termed a "hurricane." But much higher velocities are reached in some localities.

John J. Farrell has been appointed collector of customs for the port of St. Thomas to fill the vacancy made by the retirement of Daniel Ferguson. Mr. Farrell entered the service of the St. Thomas office in 1901, and has steadily advanced in position.

Social Items

Mrs. E. West and Mrs. Watson were in the city yesterday from Madoc.

Under the auspices of Quinteus Rebekah Lodge No. 133, a monthly social event took place last evening at the I. O. O. F. Temple. There was a good attendance and the evening was one of rare enjoyment. Progressive euchre was indulged in for some time, the winners of prizes being as follows:

Ladies—First, Mrs. L. Damoslai; second, Mrs. A. Goger; consolation, Miss Nellie Barrett.

Gentlemen—First, R. L. Johnson; second, W. McDonald; consolation, W. A. Charlton.

At the conclusion of card playing refreshments were served after which dancing was indulged in for some time. Music for the dances was furnished by Young's Orchestra.

The first annual Fifth of November Dance and Card Party under the auspices of Benjamin L.O.L. 274, was held last evening in Johnston Academy and was largely attended. Music was furnished by the Bon Ton Orchestra to the thorough enjoyment of every one present. Cards were indulged in and to Mrs. B. Ainsworth went the honor of first prize, Mrs. Weeks second prize and Miss Florence Chaddie, the consolation prize. Mr. F. Marsh was successful in obtaining first prize for the gents, while Mr. W. H. Brooks carried off second prize with Mr. J. Murray winning the consolation. The evening broke up in the wee small hours after being enjoyed by all.

Book Reviews

The Coming of Amos. By William J. Locke. (McClelland and Stewart, Toronto. 370 pages. $2.00).

Mr. Locke always writes a good story Many there are who feel that he has never quite recaptured the first fine, careless rapture of "The Beloved Vagabond", nevertheless they wait for his frequently recurring works, and are never entirely disappointed. The place to which Amos comes, in the book before us, is Cannes; more particularly it is the studio of David Fontenay, a prosperous painter of portraits. Amos is the nephew of David, the son of a sister who had eloped and gone to Australia years before. Now Amos returns, orphaned, wealthy, uncultured, huge of stature and great of heart. In his uncle's studio he meets an exiled Russian lady, the Princess Nadia Ramiroff, to whom the uncle has become engaged. But Amos falls in love with the same lady, and it is Mr. Locke's business to entangle this and other complications, which he does in some two hundred and seventy delightful pages. "The Coming of Amos" will be one of the most popular books of the year.

Rose of the World. By Kathleen Norris. (S. B. Gundy, Toronto. 423 pages, $2.00).

The heroine of Mrs. Norris' new story is a very attractive young person. She is beautiful, of course—it is doubtful if even the frontispiece in colors does her justice—and she is also clever and good. She has her troubles, for she marries a man whom she does not love. For this she is not altogether to blame, for the man she really loves had thrown her over. He also suffers, for he soon finds that Rose had not lost her place in his heart. Mrs. Norris uses the familiar device of killing off the misfit husband and wife in order that her hero and heroine may marry and be happy. The device is not a pleasant one, and it jars upon the reader distinctly in this particular case. Apart from this the book can be heartily commended. Mrs. Norris has the story-teller's gift, and her influence is always on the side of domestic virtue.

Infinite Care Was Taken in Filming

"The Shepherd King" is Good Sample of Fox Production

Infinite care was taken with every scene in the William Fox picturization of "The Shepherd King," made partly in Egypt and the Holy Land and partly on the slopes of Monte Mario in Rome. The scenes taken in the throne room of King Saul are good examples of this painstaking effort. Many months were spent in erecting the sets in which several important scenes in the drama are enacted.

William Fox sent a company under Director J. Gordon Edwards abroad to film this famous story of romance and adventure set in the shadow of the Sphinx. "The Shepherd King", which was written by Wright Lorimer and Arnold Reeves, proved to be the sensation of the theatrical world when it was produced in New York. It scored an immediate popular hit and later toured the country. Virginia Tracy who prepared "Nero" for the screen also wrote the scenario for this picture

The picture is replete with beautiful photography. Egypt and the Holy Land formed brilliant backgrounds for the dramatic action of this tremendous spectacle. "The Shepherd King" is now being shown at the Belle Theatre

Iceland Girls Are Right Up to Date

But They Refused to Flirt With American Sailors

Reyjavik, Iceland, Nov. 6—The girls of Iceland may be separated from the rest of the world by hundreds of miles of Arctic sea, but fashions penetrate here almost as rapidly as news of the outside world. When Paris or London decrees a new style, whether in hair-dressing, gowns or the handling of a feminine cigarette it is sure to be adopted in Reyjavik before many weeks have passed. The old national costume, unchanged for hundreds of years is still worn almost exclusively in the rural districts, but in the cities the girl who aspires to social standing keeps abreast of the times, and sometimes even a bit ahead of them.

American sailors who visited Iceland in connection with the round-the-world airplane flight were more than surprised when they found bobbed hair and other feminine foibles usually associated with Paris, London and New York. There was the customary display of silken hose, "slicker" gowns unmarked waistlines and wrap-a-round skirts, with a faint aroma of black narcissus or other Parisian perfumes hovering about the dainty persons of the wearers.

One difference the American sailors found, and it caused them to grin, sometimes rather wistfully. The Iceland girls did not flirt.

Frederick Phillips, 28, formerly of Niagara Falls, Ont., war veteran, and lately living across the river, is missing and the police on both sides have been asked to search for him. The announcement was made by his wife.

CHEESE BOARDS

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 6.—The cheese board has decided not to close its season until Nov. 17, when the final meeting for the year will be held.

CHICAGO MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 6—Influenced by a sharp advance in the price of November delivery of wheat at Winnipeg wheat market here showed an upward tendency today during early dealings. Besides, advices were at hand referring to need of heavy general rains in Argentina and to reduce estimates of Argentine exportable surplus. Profit taking sales however acted as check on upturns in price. Opening which ranged from 1-8 to 1 1-8 cent higher was followed by numerous fractional changes with initial limits. Predictions of cold wave eased down corn market. After opening at 1-8 to 1-2 cent up prices sagged to well below yesterday's finish. Oats held about steady, starting unchanged to 3-8 cent higher and later fluctuating to only minor degrees.

TORONTO MARKET

LIBERALS SAY THEY ARE NOT YET DEAD

London, Nov. 6.—That the Liberal party in the United Kingdom is not a dead done by any means, though immediately after the general election of last Wednesday sundry persons more or less prominent in politics declared that it was dead, is seen in a conference of four Liberal leaders at Mr. Asquith's resident yesterday. The conference has been called for the purpose of considering the Liberal party's future.

The four in attendance at the conference are: Mr. Asquith, Lloyd George, Sir Donald MacLean, and Walter Runciman, a Minister in the Government when Mr. Asquith was Premier.

EXAMINE PAY LIST OF CARLETON COUNTY

Otawa, Nov. 6.—The reading of a long list of charges of alleged irregularities in connection with the pay lists of Carleton County for road work done by the county in Osgoode Township, together with the reaching of a decision as to what form the probe should take, featured the judicial investigation into the charges and allegations, which commenced before Judge Colin O'Brian at the court house yesterday and which was further adjourned until Dec. 8, when evidence will be taken.

When Investing

There are so many things that should be considered when investing money that a wise choice of investments cannot usually be made entirely upon one's own judgment.

Sulphur Safe To Heal Skin

BROKEN OUT SKIN AND ITCHING ECZEMA RELIEVED AT ONCE

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Caught Big Lunge Just 75 Pounds

Picton Fisherman Lands Largest Fish in Many Years

Picton, Nov. 6.—Jacob Ackerman, Big Island, while lifting his nets, landed a huge maskinonge weighing seventy-five pounds and measuring six feet two inches in length. This is the largest fish caught here in years. Other anglers caught by trolling two maskinonge in Hay Bay weighing nineteen pounds and seventeen pounds respectively. This catch is regarded extraordinary for so late in the season.

TORONTO MAY VOTE ON LIQUOR AGAIN

Toronto, Nov. 6.—Toronto may get a chance to vote on the question of local option in the sale of liquor under Government control.

It is likely that at the next meeting of City Council a motion will be made to submit a question on the subject to the electors by way of a Referendum on January 1.

The outcome of the voting, of course would have no other effect than to show the Government the attitude of the city in the matter of allowing individual municipalities to vote themselves out of the O.T.A.

Asked Wednesday morning whether Council had power to submit such a question, City Solicitor Johnston said that the Council could submit any question it liked—as a question.

Signs of Eye Strain

EYE strain is muscular strain. A network of tiny muscles enables the eye to contract or expand, let in much or little light, and to focus that light.

A defect in the shape of the eye may cause these muscles to work extra hard and under constant strain. This will cause tired, weary, aching, tearing eyes, headache, nervousness and exhaustion. Properly ground glasses, such as you secure of us, end eye strain and the troubles it causes.

Walter G. Fanning

The following account of the life and death of Walter G. Fanning, formerly of Belleville, is taken from the Cranbrook Courier.

Surviving but two days after being taken ill, Walter G. Fanning, father of Walter Fanning and Mrs. J. E. Kennedy of this city suddenly passed away in the St. Eugene hospital on Saturday last at the ripe old age of 83 years.

The late Mr. Fanning was a native of Ontario and claimed the town of Brockville as his birthplace. Although a dentist by profession, it does not appear that he took kindly to the trade for with the outbreak of the civil war in the U.S. in 1861, he joined his father in the business of horse buying for the army of the North, a profession he followed up to 1914 when he was appointed an inspector of stable supplies and stores for the Canadian army in Europe.

As a lifelong Conservative and one who took a prominent part in Canadian politics, the late Mr. Fanning enjoyed the friendship of the late Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Mackenzie Bowell, two statesmen for whose abilities and personal charm he always expressed the warmest admiration. The old gentleman never tired of relating stories of past political campaigns in which his grand old Tory friends figured as leaders in the long ago; and in which he too bore his part.

Walter George Fanning came of good old United Empire Loyalist stock. He could trace his ancestry back to the year 1699 when, as an officer in the British army in America, a Captain Fanning left Ireland to occupy a military position in the territory now known as the State of New York. This Captain Fanning may be said to be the progenitor of the present Fanning family so far as the records show. He was the paternal grandfather of Col. Sir Edmund Fanning, the great great grandfather of the recently deceased Walter George Fanning of this city. Colonel Fanning, according to Judge Warburton's recently published history of Prince Edward's Island was a man of more than ordinary executive ability. While but twenty-six years of age he held the important post of chief justice of the Supreme Court of the Colony of North Carolina and a few years later succeeded to the important post o surveyor-general of that territory.

Colonel Fanning's military record did not begin, however until the year 1736 when in order to quell insurrection and unrest among the settlers of the colony, he raised and took command of a body of loyalists to police the country and uphold the authority of the king. It is also recorded that Colonel Fanning served through the Revolutionary war as commander-in-chief of a body of Loyalist troops on whom the king conferred the title of the King's American Regiment. Twice wounded in action, towards the close of the struggle between the colonies and the Crown, Colonel Fanning sailed on a British ship of war to Nova Scotia, where, in the year 1783, he was created lieutenant-governor of that province and where he also served as a member of the provincial council. Three years later, by royal appointment, he became lieutenant-governor of Prince Edward Island, a position he ably filled for many years.

The late Mr. Fanning, great grandson of the fighting governor of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, was one who had the history of his family at his finger ends. It is believed that he may have left among his affects notes and data that may serve in the filling of another page in the history of the builders of Empire in Canada.

Walter George Fanning was buried from the Methodist church on Tuesday, the large number of friends and acquaintances present testifying to the esteem in which the deceased was held during his four years residence in this city. Bearing the body of the grand old pioneer, were, Messrs. J. P. Fink, Van Arsdalen, J. H. McQuaid, William Hamilton, M. A. Beale, and D. Burton.

In the passing of Mr. Fanning is severed a connecting link with the historic past.

Some Lady Hughes Jewels Recovered

Gems Stolen at Lindsay Were Found In Toronto Cupboard

Toronto, Nov. 6—Jewels valued at several thousands of dollars, the proceeds of the big robbery at the home of Lady Hughes, widow of the late Sir Sam Hughes, at Lindsay, were unearthed in Toronto yesterday. The jewels were located hidden in a cupboard in a city home by officers of the Toronto Detective Department and Chief Constable William Umphrey of Lindsay. Some 17 pieces of jewelry were found, the most valuable article being a necklace worth $1,200, the personal property of Lady Hughes. Other articles were prized for their sentimental value.

The jewels were recovered on information given to Chief Constable Umphrey by William J. Checkley of Lindsay, who gave himself up to answer the charge of burglary at the home of Lady Hughes. Checkley told where he had hidden the proceeds of the robbery in a certain house in this city, and they were found there yesterday. Checkley's son is in custody in connection with the robbery. Russell Trevens and Thomas Joseph Campbell are also waiting trial on the charge of entering the house.

Provincial Inspector Hammond had charge of the investigation for Provincial Police immediately following the robbery.

SHOT DURING ROW ON ELECTION DAY

Montreal, Nov. 6.—Nate Penny noted lacrosse player, was shot in the knee on Notre Dame street shortly before noon yesterday morning, following an altercation between two other men, Samuel Sailor and George Roberts, over the by-election in St Anne's division.

The shooting occurred when Sailor and Roberts got into a heated argument near one of Candidate Dillon's committee rooms.

FOUND HIS WIFE DROWNED IN TUB

Fully clothed with the exception of her stockings, Mrs. Abner Duffield, [illegible] Bexley street, was found drowned in the bathtub of her home by her husband yesterday. The body was immediately removed by Mr. Duffield, but all attempts at resuscitation proved useless. Mrs. Duffield had been in ill-health for some time and had returned from the Woodstock General Hospital only last Sunday. During the summer months she had been an inmate of the Ontario Hospital at London, suffering from a mental ailment, and had recently been attended by Dr. Black, for this complaint.

Leaving his home this morning, Mr Duffield had gone to the hospital on business, and from there to Dr. Black's office to procure medicine for his wife. On his return from Dr. Black's office he was shocked to find the body of his wife lying in the bathtub which was filled with water. The bathtub is unusually large in size, and the body was discovered lying in a peculiar position, slightly on one side, with the head completely covered by the water. Dr. Black was called but the woman was beyond aid.

Prepare For Byng

The public meeting held in the Lindsay Council Chamber last night, which was called by Mayor Graham to arrange for the visit of His Excellency the Governor-General, Lady Byng and party on November [illegible]th was well-attended considering the short notice given. A number of ladies, members of the I.O.D.E. and prominent business men were present.

Calling Cows, Died

Deseronto, Nov. 6—The funeral of the late Mrs. Robert Maracle, a resident of Tyendinaga Reserve, who died suddenly on Monday afternoon, was held at two o'clock this afternoon in Christ Church, Tyendinaga Reserve. Mrs. Maracle left home on Monday with the intention of bringing the cows from the pasture. At her prolonged absence, her husband became alarmed and on going in search of her, he was met by their dog who led him to the body of his wife. Mrs. Maracle had suffered from heart failure for some years and her death was apparently instantaneous.

Mrs. Maracle was a highly esteemed resident of Deseronto territory, where she had spent all her family with exception of a few years in Hamilton. The sympathy of many friends is with the bereaved family.

To Select Candidate

Kingston, Nov. 6.—Extensive preparations are being made by the members of the executive of the Liberal-Conservative of the county, for the annual convention to be held in the Court House on November 26th at 1.30 and at which a candidate for the Federal riding will be selected.

It will be recalled that changes in many of the ridings were made at the last session of the House of Commons and the changes to Frontenac make that county one of the biggest in territory in the country. The townships of Ernesttown, Sheffield, Kaladar, Camden, and Denbigh, formerly in Lennox have been added to Frontenac.

DISCOVERED IN 1513

Four hundred and eleven years ago an intrepid Spanish explorer and adventurer, Juan Ponce de Leon, by name, first set foot on a land of luxuriant sub-tropic growth known to-day as Florida.

Since that time Florida has become perhaps the most alluring winter resort in the world. A warm-watered ocean offers bathing at its best; a few miles off-shore the monstrous and sporty Tuna and Tarpon await the more adventurous disciples of Izaak Walton; a marvellous beach fringed with exotic palms, broad motor highways, scores of green, velvet-smooth golf courses—the whole steeped in glorious sunshine and perfumed with the fragrance of fruit blossoms and sub-tropical flowers.

Nature has lavished her bounties on Florida, and man has moulded them for his convenience. There are facilities for every summer recreation—surf-bathing, deep-sea fishing, boating, golfing, tennis, riding, motoring. Beautiful hotels, splendid apartments and bungalows house the visitor in luxurious comfort.

Canadian National Railways can offer a splendid service in helping you plan your visit. Any Agent will gladly supply full information and make your reservations. n6-10-19

Peter York Dead

Cobourg, Ont., Nov. 6.—Death came suddenly last night to one of the King street merchants of Cobourg, Peter York. Deceased had previously been in good health. He had just reached the family residence, corner of College and Chapel Streets, when he dropped dead. Mr. York had formerly resided in the United States, but came here few years ago to conduct the business at the death of his brother, Thomas J. York, who expired suddenly in his store.

FOUGHT DUEL TO THE DEATH WITH PISTOLS

Two Pittsburg Frenchmen Meet Death in "Field Of Honor"

WOMAN IN CASE

One Man Released From Jail Challenges "Man in Case"

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Pittsburg, Nov. 7.—Vacant room in a Forbes street building here was used as a "field of honor" by two Frenchmen today and when the smoke of battle had cleared, both men lay dead on the floor, each with a bullet in his head.

Pierce Biagioli, of French-Italian extraction, was called upon by J. N. Fournaire, French baker to explain attentions alleged to have been paid to Fournaire's wife, Georgette, mother of two children. Fournaire spent the last two months in jail on a serious charge lodged by a fourteen-year-old girl. He was released on bail yesterday, and returning home he is said to have heard whisperings concerning his wife and his friend. Fournaire summoned Biagioli, seeking an explanation and they met this morning, going to the vacant room in the baker's building to settle the argument. Police reports were that Fournaire after killing Biagioli, shot himself.

Bank Director Is Found Guilty

Judge Coatsworth Finds Col. Clarence Smith Guilty of Charge

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 7.—Col. Clarence F. Smith of Montreal, one of the Directors of the Home Bank was to-day found guilty by County Judge Coatsworth on the charge that he "negligently did sign or approve of false returns to the Government in connection with the Home Bank, now in hands of the receiver." This is the first conviction against a director of the bank, although officials are awaiting sentence.

Smith was found not guilty on two counts charging deception in connection with the statement. In his judgement, Judge Coatsworth comments on the fact that directors and their friends and companies in which they were interested had secured loans to the amount of millions. The director, says the judgment, cannot plead that he did not know what was going on, for it was his duty to know. Personal dealings of accused says Judge, seem to indicate that he became a director for his own purposes. He was present when all large debts, accounts and securities were discussed. Falsity of statement, his honor remarks, may now be taken for granted. It remains only to fix the responsibility on those who are accused.

The maximum penalty, it is stated in legal circles here, is three years on the charge on which Smith has been found guilty.

Retires at End Of Long Term

Dr. Farley Has Been Efficient Officer of Moira Lodge

At the recent meeting of Moira Chapter R.A.M., Doctor J. J. Farley retired from the most responsible position in the Chapter, after forty-five years faithful service thirty-five years of which he was treasurer. Dr. Farley entered the portals of Masonry in 1879, became the first principal in 1784 and continued during '85, '86, and '87. Some few years later, he was elected to the most important position of Grand Superintendent of Prince Edward district, representing the Grand Z for the district. He has been honored by the Grand Chapter of Canada with many other important appointments as late as 1920, having been appointed representative at Grand Chapter for the State of Mississippi.

Right Excellent Companion Farley has been an enthusiastic officer and in connection with degree work, his skill is spoken of as being superior to that of any other officer in Canada in this particular work. Companion Farley will continue as Moira Chapter's specialist.

There are but four living members of the Chapter who preceded Dr. Farley as joining members, namely, Companion S. S. Lazier who joined in 1870 Com. E. B. Fraleck, 1872, J. P. Thompson, 1873 and P. H. Hambly, 1877.

The wish of Moira Companions one and all is that Right Excellent Companion Farley may live for many years and that the portals of the Chapter may long continue to be cheered by his presence.

Mr. Donald G. Bleecker was elected treasurer to succeed Dr. Farley.

PLEADS GUILTY TO FIVE CHARGES

Frank Stapley is Remanded One Week For Sentence

Magistrate Masson adjourned the case for one week, after Frank Stapley, 17, had pleaded guilty to a list of serious charges, in order that he might decide what disposition of the case would be of greatest benefit to the accused youth and society.

Stapley pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering Bernard Brown's shoe repairing shop at the Footbridge Gangway stealing therefrom one pair of boots. He pleaded guilty to theft of a suit of clothes from Dora Goodman's second-hand store on October 24th valued at $10. He pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering Meagher Brothers' clothing store, 262 Front street on October 13th. He pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Ed Thomas' store at 364 Front street on October 27th, and stealing goods valued at $15 and he pleaded guilty to theft of a bicycle, the property of Frank Howard.

Wanted Elsewhere

Accused is wanted at Oshawa for theft and Chief Constable Kidd stated that two other charges might be laid against him here.

"I will ask for a heavy and substantial sentence on this man," advised Crown Attorney Donnan. "He is a man of average intelligence and is the making of a dangerous criminal. He may next try theft with violence and may eventually lead to murder if he is not checked. I would ask to keep him and the public protected until he learns that it pays to go straight."

Mother Has Faith

The boy's family, father, mother and three brothers now live at Oshawa, but formerly lived at Stoney Lonesome.

"What kind of a boy is he?" asked the bench in perplexity of the thin-faced mother, who held a sleeping baby in her arms.

"He has always been a good boy to me," was the answer of the emotionless woman. "He has worked well during the summer, shingling and any carpenter work he could get, with his father and brother. He also helped digging sewers, and any kind of work. I do not know what has gotten into him lately."

During the week the Methodist pastor of the church which the family attends at Oshawa, will be interviewed by T. D. Ruston, and the past record of the youth will be probed.

Still absolutely emotionless the woman asked that she and the younger brother be allowed to see the prisoner and after the brief visit, all remained stoically reserved, as they left the station.

CLEVER DANCER IS COMING TO GRIFFIN

Belleville is to be treated to something unusually good in the dancing line during this week end. A niece of Miss Macdougal, with the Griffin Theatre, Miss Jean Macdougal Proctor, is coming to pay her aunt a visit and is expected to dance at the Griffin tonight, to-morrow afternoon and evening and probably on Monday evening also.

Miss Proctor is just fourteen years of age, but has won distinction at the Canadian National Exhibition and as a pupil of the Summers School in Toronto. She had twenty different costume dances in her repertoire.

PRESBYTERIANS ARRANGE VOTE FOR CHURCHES

Big Rally is Held in St. Andrew's Last Evening

ARE VERY HOPEFUL

Prospects Are Cheering For Continuance of Presbyterian Church

At the Presbyterian Convocation in St. Andrew's Church on Thursday evening representatives were present from Trenton, Picton, Madoc, Napanee, Melrose, Demorestville, John St. and St. Andrew's, Belleville.

Col. S. S. Lazier, who occupied the chair, remarked at the opening that it was rather unusual to see a lawyer in the pulpit, but as there is a close connection between law and Gospel he did not feel out of place. He paid a high tribute to the work done by the Presbyterian Association.

Rev. H. R. Horne, LL.B., Toronto, stated that 14 convocations had been held within the last three weeks, and that these had been attended by representativs from 150 congregations. No word of bitterness had been spoken at any of these convocations, but there was a quiet, earnest determination to preserve the Presbyterian Church. Th union movement had passed through three stages and was now passing through a fourth. First there was the idealistic stage, when men discussed the question as an ideal. Then it passed through the economic and material stage. At the third stage it became coercive, and now it had reached the ecclesiastical and political stage. But the General Assembly is only a small portion of the church—in fact, for one member of the Assembly there are 600 members of the Church(and the one cannot impose his will on the other 599.

Turning to the Church Union Bill Mr. Horne said it did three things. First, it incorporates the United Church; second, it provides for the continuance of the Presbyterian Church; third, it provides that congregations may vote as to whether they desire to enter the United Church or not.

Mr. Horne recommended that a committee be formed in each congregation to see that a vote is taken, and that a requisition for a vote is sent to the Session. If a certain percentage asks for a vote it must be taken. When a meeting is held it is not under the control of the Session but of those present. Only members of the Church can vote except in certain congregations whose constitution provides otherwise. The ballot must remain open for at least two weeks and may remain open for 30 days. The vote should be taken in practically the same way as in a parliamentary election, and when the poll is closed the votes should be counted in the presence of scrutineers.

Vigorous Address

Rev. James Wilson, D.D., pastor of the Dovercourt Road Presbyterian Church, Toronto, delivered a vigorous and eloquent address. He came, he said, to give inspiration and to receive it. He had attended several convocations and they had been most inspiring. He was not perturbed when he read in the papers that certain ministers had declared their intention to enter the United Church, for in many cases these ministers did not represent their congregations—in fact they represented nobody but themselves.

Dr. Wilson stated that he is a member of a committee which meets in Toronto every Monday morning to receive and consider reports which are sent from all over Canada. Judging from those reports the outlook was exceedingly cheering for those who wished to see the continuance of the Presbyterian Church. He read a long list of the names of officers of the Dominion Women's Missionary Society who had declared their intention to remain in the Presbyterian Church. Several of these women were among the most efficient workers that ever had belonged to that organization.

The choir of St. Ondrew's was out in good force and during the evening two of the members, Mrs. Bell and Mr. Kerr sang delightful solos. The devotional part of the service was in charge of Rev. C. L. Cowan, of Picton. Rev. Mr. Cranston, Trenton, assisted.

Col. Ponton, in a touching address moved a vote of thanks to the speakers. He pointed out that St. Andrew's is a child of the Kirk of Scotland. He mentioned the name of several of the historic Scottish churches which he had visited during the past summer, and then added feelingly, "God fogive me if I ever cast a vote to destroy the Church of my fathers". The motion was seconded by Mr. C. A. Cameron and heartily carried.

A committee consisting of Colonels Lazier, and Ponton, Rev. Messrs. Cranston, Trenton, and Cowan, Picton, and Messrs C. A. Cameron, G. A. Read, I. L. Moore and George West, Madoc, was appointed to give counsel and direction to any congregation desiring to have a vote taken

E. Guss Porter Committee Rooms Hum With Real Activity Of Organization

A large number of Mr. E. Guss Porter's city workers assembled in the committee rooms east Robertson block last night. The checking over of the voters' list, which is not an easy task was proceeded with and the reports thus far presented are certainly encouraging for the Conservative candidate. A grand rally will be held at the rooms this evening when committees of all wards in the city will report for duty.

Mr. E. Guss Porter, Conservative candidate in the coming West Hastings bye-election, is electioneering in the northern end of the Riding this week. Political meetings are being held at Monk Road, Coe Hill and Bancroft.

MOTHER KEPT SON ON THE DOORSTEP

Will Have to Explain Conduct to the Police Now

When Ernest Lang discovered ten-year-old Harry Goodman sitting in front of his home on the doorstep at 132 Front street at 1.50 o'clock this morning he investigated. The boy told that he had been refused admittance by his mother, Mrs. Lily Goodman, because of some breach of discipline. Lang awakened the household and Mrs. Goodman admitted that she knew the boy was there and that she had refused him admission to the house.

Lang took the boy to police headquarters and ordered a meal for him. The boy said he had been sitting on the door step from six o'clock last evening, without supper.

When Mrs. Goodman did not sound after him Sergeant A Harman went to the Goodman home at 2 o'clock and brought her to the station. Mrs. Goodman admitted to police that she knew the boy was there and that she had refused admittance. Mrs. Goodman will be required to explain her unusual attitude to the police before the matters is settled.

Women Working Hard For Porter

Hold Enthusiastic Organization Meeting in Samson Ward

An enthusiastic business meeting of the Conservative ladies of Sampson Ward was held at the home of Mrs Schuster, George Street, yesterday, when matters pertaining to the election were discussed and ward officers appointed. It was intimated that Mrs. Fallis would return on Tuesday and a general meeting of the ladies would be held. The work and interest of the ladies undertaken and displayed by the ladies of Belleville in this campaign is taken as an encouraging sign of the conclusion of Mr. E. Guss Porter's efforts.

NEWS BRIEFS

Raids by bandits of alleged Bolsheviki upon towns in the eastern provinces of Poland continue and there is agitation for the appointment of a strong Minister of the Interior to deal with the situation. Former Premier Witos has declared in the Diet that there are on the average two cases of such looting daily in the eastern provinces.

According to letters received in Charlottenburg, Germany, by friends of Maxim Gorky, the Russian author is rapidly recovering from an attack of spasmodic colitis, which seized him during the month of September and caused gravest anxiety regarding the possibility of his recovery. Gorky is living at Sorrento, Italy.

General stoppage of work along the whole of Australia's waterfront is threatened as a result of the seamen in Melbourne, declining to provide steam for cranes and donkey engines for use by wharf laborers working overtime. The trouble began with the strike of the dockers at Sydney and Brisbane against overtime work.

Riche Okada, who cut the United States flag from the flagstaff in the grounds of the destroyed American embassy in Tokio on July 1 last, was on Wednesday sentenced to six months' imprisonment. His two accomplices were sentenced to four and two months, respectively, with a suspension of sentence for two years, which means that if they are of good behavior during that period they will go practically unpunished.

NEW CABINET TAKES OFFICE WITH POMP

Receive Seals of Office and Other Necessary Formalities

STRONG CABINET

Even Opposition Newspapers Welcome Sound Appointments

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 7.—New Conservative Government assumed office today with the customary ceremony at Buckingham Palace, when Stanley Baldwin and members of his ministry, thus far chosen, took their oath, received their seals of office and complied with other necessary formalities.

On the whole the new cabinet gets a very favorable reception from London morning papers, even opposition organs finding grounds for approval of many of the appointments. It is universally remarked that the ministry is much stronger than Mr. Baldwin's last administration though the Times says, "Public is looking with almost pathetic anxiety for emergence of new leaders." Many papers remark of the Premier's courage in choosing Winston Churchill for a high post, but the choice itself is nowhere condemned, and by several papers is variously described as "welcome, sound or excellent."

Crown To Stamp Out Fairy Tales

Told in Police Court to Protect Bootleggers

O.T.A. fairy tales concocted for the protection of bootleggers by his thirsty customers must be stamped out according to the emphatic announcement of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan in police court this morning.

"I am just waiting for a suitable opportunity to lay a charge of perjury against such a story teller, and when I find the opportunity I will surely lay the charge," he added.

These statements resulted from examination of two accused youths arrested at one o'clock this morning at a dance at Point Anne, by Sergeant E. G. Atkins and Constable S. Elliott of Provincial police.

Though Inspector F. Naphan who has taken over the case, believes that the two youths and a third boy arrested, were drunk on "moonshine" purchased from an Indian, whom he also believes he knows, the boys denied it on oath and told stories which did not "get over".

Two Belleville boys and a Deseronto Indian youth were arrested at Point Anne on drunk charges last night. One local boy told of being the invited guest of an Indian to a field adjoining the dance hall where he had two drinks of what was supposed to be wine. This was about 11.30 or twelve o'clock. At one o'clock when arrested, he was all but dead to the world, officers state. His story was disbelieved and he was remanded to the county jail for one week as a memory restorative measure.

Good Story

The Indian's story was a good one. He told of boarding the train for Kingston yesterday in working clothes, buying a ticket on the train owing to his late arrival at the station, and travelling to Kingston, where he bought three bottles of Nervelene at a store for 35 cents per bottle, and returning to Deseronto last evening. He states that he then drank the three bottles empty and with a Deseronto garage man drove to Point Anne. He was very drunk when arrested, and was taken ill while under examination this morning by the Crown Attorney. He was forced to retire to the wash room.

He admited buying the nervelene for drinking purposes "like everybody elese does," as he said. He will probably be charged with having liquor in a public place.

"That's not liquor," he retorted in defence.

"Yes, it is regarded as such when you purchase it to drink", advised the Crown.

When the witness was taken ill, the cases were laid over until three o'clock this afternoon.

Provincial police headquarters was asked to send an officer to the Point Anne dance last night, so constable Elliott attended the function. When one man was ejected from the hall, an altercation commenced between him and the floor manager. Officer Elliott arrested him and while he was taking him out, a friend of the prisoner struck the officer on the face. Elliott drove to Belleville with his prisoner where he was locked up, and then he and Sergeant Atkins returned to the dance, where the other two were arrested.

No opposition was offered the two officers although the large crowd which congregated was productive of much "tall talking".

James Couzens, re-elected as U. S. senator for Michigan on the Republican ticket. He was born in Chatham, Ont., and spent his boyhood there.

FINANCIAL DRIVE OF "Y" CONTINUES

N. P. North's Team Leads With Close Seconds

Mr. P. J. Lee said last night that in the years he has ben coming to Belleville he had never seen such an earnestness, sch a determination and such a desire to put across a financial campaign as had been manifested these past three days. The chairman W. B. Deacon, presided, and after supper served by the Ladies Auxiliary, called for reports by teams.

Mr. N. P. North's team headed the list for the day, Stan Nurse's team a close second, G. F. Cole third, and H. Holton fourth, G. B. Smith and S. License following. R. J. Wray's team took a trip to the country to let the others catch up but promised to be ready to cross the tape first even though hard put by N. P. North's team. With the special committees report added the total was $3,868, what was to be done to reach the objective? 1,132, to get. Stan Nurse's colts guaranteed to clean up their objective of $400 but being pressed by the others they underwrote $100. G. F. Cole and G. B. Smith's teams also agreed to the same. The surprise came when N. P. North's team said, "we will make our objective $500". H. Holton S. License and those of H. J. Clark's Messrs. Ackerman and Ostrom stated they would be good for $325 more. The race is now on between R. J. Wray's team and N. P. North's team for first place.

They will all meet for a complimentary supper next Tuesday night for the final reports and the awarding of the emblems for team attendance by the chairman and the special awards offered by Mr. H. W. Ackerman for the best canvasser and producers.

ENGINEER F. A. GABY TESTIFIES AT PROBE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 7.—Chief Engineer F. A. Gaby of the Provincial Hydro Electric Commission, testified before Judge Snider today at the resumed inquiry into the Settell charges. He went into witness box after the Commission had heard allegations that material and time of the Hydro Commission had gone into the construction of his private residence, and charges regarding his expense account for his European tour. Questioned as to Settell's charge that he had sold a steam shovel to the Commission Mr. Gaby stated he had financed A. Cridland of Mount Dennis to buy assets of the Cataract Sand and Gravel Co., who later sold equipment including the shovel to the Commission. He admitted Cridland was just a figure head for him, and that the Commission did not know that he was chief stock holder in the Sand Company.

Kingston, Nov. 7.—To find a human skull, carried from some place by his dog, was the gruesome discovery of Mr. S. Good, a farmer residing about a mile north of Parham Thursday morning, when he came out of his house.

Apparently the dog had found the skeleton of a man and brought the head to the house. The skull was minus jaw bone, and was found to be that of a man. Dr. Suddaby was called, and on examination, he found that the skull gave indications of being in that state for about two months. Dr. Geddes coroner, was summoned and search parties were sent out to try and locate the remainder of the skeleton.

Man "Fools" Two Young Girl Friends; Gets Their Money and 5 Months Term

Hamilton, Nov. 7—Wallace McMillan was given five months in jail by the Magistrate Wednesday morning, when he was found guilty on a vagrancy charge. The accused appeared last month, and two young women said he got money from them on promises of marriage. When they discovered he had a wife in St. Catharines, they laid the charges against him. Inquiry showed that the prisoner might be a married man but his wife could not be produced. Therefore, the magistrate had the charge changed from false pretences to vagrancy.

Orville Walsh, for the defense, submitted to-day that McMillan was not guilty.

"Yes, he is," said his worship. "He has been living on nothing but the money he got from these two girls. He hasn't done any work. He promised to marry both of them, and, even if he was eligible, he couldn't do that. Just to show what I think of him, I'm sending him to jail for five months."

THERE MAY BE REAL CONTEST FOR MAYORALTY

Rumor Names Four Probable Aspirants For First Honor

BENNETT MAY STAND

Philip Harrison Will Enter Aldermanic Election Race

The municipal election which takes place three weeks from next Monday is overshadowed by the campaign for the bye-election in West Hastings in which Belleville is included.

If rumors are to be believed, there may probably be a triangular contest for the Mayoralty. Ex-Mayor G. A. Bennett has intimated he will be a candidate and Ald. H. W. Greenleaf has aspirations for the Chief Magistrate's chair. A number of citizens have requested Mayor W. C. Mikel to again offer his services for a second term and he is seriously considering the matter. It is also understood that Ald. W. R. McCreary may enter the race. Nomination day will be on Monday 24th inst.

In the Aldermanic race there will no doubt be some new material as one or two members of the present council have intimated that they have no desire to continue in office. Ald. Gardiner and Ald. G. Foster may not be in the field again. Philip Harrison who resigned from the Board of Education, will contest the Aldermanic election. In all probability however, the greater number of the present Aldermen will seek re-election.

BOLD BURGLARS AT ALLISTON STORE

Alliston, Ont., Nov. 7.—Upwards of $4,000 worth of goods were extracted from the large general store of F. T. Hill and Co. here by burglars at an early hour Thursday morning. Most of the goods taken were furs. Some of the garments were valuable.

The burglars two young men, were seen coming out of the rear entrance to the cellar under the store by George Graham, a milk wagon driver, at half-past five in the morning.

Graham walked right up to them.

"What are you fellows doing here?" he asked.

The reply was the shining blue barrel of an automatic levelled at him only a few feet in front of his face.

"If you squeal you'll be a dead man before night," was the rejoinder from the intruders.

FINALLY FINISHED

A TORN SKIRT

An interesting comparison of Belleville now and the Belleville of thirty years ago is afforded in a brief note taken from the files of The Intelligencer three decades ago and published elsewhere on this page.

A young lady of those days walked across the footbridge over the river Moira and tore her dress on a nail which protruded from the bridge.

This accident could not have happened yesterday because skirts now do not trail along the ground as they did in those days. But had the accident occurred yesterday, for the sake of illustration the young lady might plausibly have uttered a short word beginning with the letter "d" and have slipped into a Front store to-day for a new garment.

But not so back in 1894. The young lady made such a fuss about it, the news reached the newspaper office. The editor took the matter up and seriously suggested in his columns that the offending nail or pile should either be pulled out or hammered in.

It may be that in the days of frilly sleeves, bustles, and flowing skirts, newspapermen were more solicitous of a lady's welfare. It may be that money was valued more lightly at that time and that the damage to a dress was far more of a catastrophe than it would be now. At any rate one seldom sees newspapers of to-day interesting themselves in a torn skirt.

LOTS OF FUN

This bye-election in West Hastings promises to provide lots of fun before it is over on Nov. 25th.

Government realizes that to win it would be a real triumph and they are evidently going to make a real effort to have Charles Hanna, an ex-mayor of Belleville, elected. On Tuesday night two Cabinet ministers, Hon. J. A. Robb and Hon. Thos. Low, spoke in his interests in Trenton and Hon. George Graham is to give him some help later on. But Gus Porter has become almost a Parliamentary fixture in West Hastings and it will take a popular opponent and a lot of hard work to defeat him.—Brighton Ensign.

THE SPHINX

Once again Charles Hanna addresses a political gathering and once again Charles Hanna asks for votes Ottawa in their news columns but the campaign or for that matter any political issues before the country at the present time.

At the Village of Stirling on Wednesday night, the Daily Ontario, Liberal organ, reports his speech as follows:

"The first speaker was Mr. Hanna, the candidate. He was received with rounds of applause, similar to how he was greeted when he entered the hall. He said he was glad to be a Liberal standard bearer, because the policy of the party was one which legislated for the masses and not the classes. It was a policy that would bring prosperity to Canada. There had been some dark pictures painted of his (Hanna's) character. He presumed that this would be added to by those who were doing the whispering. However, he would simply stack his reputation for morality against those of any moralist. In Belleville he has been chosen as mayor and his record there was obtainable as was also his character. He appealed to the audience to give him their support, and promised to give the best that was in him in the way of service if they returned him as their member on November 25th."

He did not mention the name Murdock according to this report. He said nothing that might create an interest in his ability either as a speaker on the floor of the House representing West Hastings or as a legislator. Apparently he is quite willing to allow more experienced politicians to share the whole burden of attempting to pull the wool over the eyes of the electors of the riding.

HANNA'S POOR SUPPORT

A most remarkable and significant feature of the by-election in West Hastings is the attitude of Liberal newspapers toward the campaign. In so far as we have been able to observe, not one organ has had the courage to come out and defend the conduct of James Murdock as it concerns the issue in the election. The Daily Ontario and others have been quite willing to play up the statements of the partisan speakers from and remains silent on the issue of have been reluctant to step out in the editorial columns and come to Murdock's defense.

The only explanation of the situation that offers itself is that Liberal papers are afraid to tackle a hopeless argument on their own initiative.

Letters to Editor

CORRECTS STATEMENT

To the Editor of the Intelligencer,

Dear Sir:—In the report to the City Council of my visit to Peterboro to investigate the dustless street sweeper, I said that sometimes the brooms had to be renewed in 20 days. It now appears that this statement requires an explanation. Mr. Bishop, the representative of the Company making the sweeper was at the Council meeting the other night and heard my report read and next day informed me that when a new broom was required in twenty days time it was because the sweeper had been working a great deal of the time 16 hours (two shifts) a day. But usually it worked 8 hours a day when a broom would last a month.

A. ROBINSON.

A MONUMENTAL BLUNDER

To the Editor:

In reading my newspaper this morning I note that the Government of Quebec in view of the dullness existing in the lumber industry, is said to be contemplating allowing certain rebates of stumpage dues in order to encourage cutting operations this winter. The same item also states that there are still large quantities of timber cut last season which have found no market. Surely a more monumental blunder than that proposed by the Government would be impossible to imagine. With market already over glutted with timber the Government propose actually to reduce its stumpage rate in order to encourage a still further glutting of the market.

Higher instead of lower stumpage dues would be applied under the circumstances if intelligence prevailed in order that operations might be reduced instead of increased. This would not only result in higher prices for the operator's output, thereby earning him a profit instead of a loss, but would also help to conserve our only too rapidly dwindling forest remnant.

The Government urges as an excuse for its actions that it wishes to provide work for lumber jacks. At best that is but a palliative since such work will cease altogether with the exhaustion of our woodlands—a condition which the Government appears to be eager to bring about by every means at its command.

Another pernicious practice is that of granting half stumpage rates on burnt timber. Just so long as this practice is continued there will always be burnt timber. The Government is simply making forest fires a profitable thing for the operator in two ways, since he not only has this substantial reduction on his stumpage on burnt land but is also allowed to make a clean cut instead of being held to a ten-inch diameter limit as is the case in green timber, the latter being in itself a sufficient bonus for the encouragement of forest fires without the reduced rate in stumpage prices. The Government might better compel all cutting to be done in burnt timber and at full stumpage rates, and thereby allow our small remaining stand of green timber to grow. As a prominent forester recently said to me: 'It is not now a question of going out to look for burnt areas, but rather a hunt to find green growth on many of our watersheds."

Let it not be forgotten that this timber that the Government is giving away to their political supporters is the people's heritage. A stumpage price anywhere near the equal of the price paid to private landowners would very materially reduce the taxes of every man, woman and child in the provinces that have any wood left. The people must not forget that these wooded areas are their property and do not belong to the politicians who are merely paid servants hired to protect the people's interests.

Improvement in the conditions in the lumber and pulp industry cannot be brought about through lower stumpage rates but rather through higher prices for the resultant products. The whole trouble with the pulp, paper and lumber industry is and always has been over-production. Why, then, should the Government offer a bonus in order to encourage further over-production? Higher stumpage rates, and a reduction in the cut would not only stabilize prices for the operator but would promote forest conservation.

Why is everyone in such a mad race to cut down our last tree to the extent that the market for a manufactured product (the raw material for which is on the very verge of exhaustion) is so flooded that the business is being carried on at a loss, a situation which has been seriously reflected in some of the bank changes which have recently come about in Canada.

The net results are that the people get little or nothing for their stumpage on trees that are not an annual crop but have taken a hundred or more years to grow the lumber-jack and man working in the saw mill receive an unnecessarily low wage and the operator loses money, while the banks which have encouraged these operations through the financing of [illegible] and advances are put into peril or are forced to the wilderness of burnt stumps and charcoal.

EFFICIENCY AND TALK

Regina Leader

The greatest danger confronting co-operatives arises from the apparent ease with which men without the slightest business ability talk themselves into positions of great responsibility. What the farmers require in marketing their produce is more co-operation and more efficient co-operation.

GROTESQUE

Ottawa Journal

The very idea of this country facing its revenue decline by twenty-five millions in six months, and proceeding to spend five millions more than before, is utterly grotesque. Unless the people waked up to what it means, Canada can not only not make the progress she ought, but will fall short of making any kind of progress.

To-day's Smile

Betty's grandfather had died, and everything in the house was very quiet. A feeling of depression crept over her, which she sought to relieve by playing softly on the piano.

"Hush dear!" said her mother, "you mustn't do that. We're in mourning, you know."

After a few moments of silence, Betty said:

"Can't I play on the black notes mommie?"

American wheelmen are indeed enterprising. There is now under construction a scheme for a bicycle track between New York and Chicago. The construction is suggested of a two-foot cinder path on each side of the common road, and it is proposed that immediate steps be taken by all wheelmen between New York and Chicago.

Atwater-Kent RADIO SETS

All At-Water Kent Equipment is designed, made and assembled in the At-Water Kent Manufacturing Plants.

Here wire is wound on hollow cores to make transformers, rotors, and the like; brass bars and tubes are machined into screws, sockets, etc., then polished and given two coats of protective lacquer. Here, condensite powder is moulded into glossy, dark brown panels, dials and other parts, and the solid mahogany bases are dressed and stained and varnished.

And before any piece of At-Water Kent Radio Equipment is packed, it must pass a rigid inspection, and a series of searching tests.

It is due of the fact that At-Water Kent apparatus is designed, manufactured and tested, all in one plant and under one management, that it's performance is so consistently remarkable. And this is why thousands of users of At-Water Kent Radio Equipment look upon it as "The Standard of the World."

WASN'T REBEKAH NIGHT

The At Home given in the I.O.O.F. temple on Wednesday evening was under the auspices of Quinte Fortress No. 3 and Belleville Canton No. 8, and not the Rebekahs as stated in yesterday's issue.

ON THEIR WAY

Cars, gaily bearing the tri-colours of Queen's and manned to the utmost capacity, have been observed passing through Belleville, on their way to Toronto for the game to-morrow.

TEMPERATURES

The temperature yesterday was 9 degrees higher than for the same date last year. Figures for the days are as follows:

1924—62.42.
1923—53.33.

THANKSGIVING DAY POST OFFICE HOURS

General Delivery, Registration and Stamp Vendors' Wickets:—8.30 a.m. to 10.30 a.m. Lobby for box-holders 6.30 a.m. to 9 p.m. No street delivery by letter carriers. Two deliveries by letter carriers on Saturday, November 8th.

BUSH FIRES UP NORTH

Heavy bush fires are at present raging in the northern part of Hastings and adjoining county. Several famers' buildings had narrow escapes over the weekend. At various points farmers fought fire on Saturday night and all day Sunday to protect their dwellings and farm buildings. More than a little valuable timber went up in smoke.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Pleading guilty to a charge of being intoxicated while in charge of an automobile, which recently figured in an accident on Front street, a young girl was given suspended sentence of one year this morning, under section 1031 of the Criminal Code.

BOY IS PUNISHED

Suspended sentence of one year was passed on a fifteen-year-old boy who pleaded guilty to theft of three bicycles this morning, and the boy left the court with his tearful mother.

AUTOS COLLIDE

Slight damages resulted to both cars from a collision which occurred last evening about 6.30 o'clock near the corner of Bridge and Isabel streets. J. Burns, Trent Road was driving his car west on Bridge street, when the collision occurred between his machine and a car driven by O. J. Reid, 36 Ridley avenue.

ASKS REMOVAL

Provincial police officers have been asked to remove a man named MacDonald at Bonar Law, to Rockwood asylum for the second time. A letter from Dr. Ryan, superintendent of the Rockwood Institution requests his removal. Motorcycle officer R. F. Davis left this morning for Bonar Law where he will attend to the matter. About one year ago MacDonald was committed to Rockwood but had later been liberated.

Mr. Richard Edwards of New Carlow North Hastings, suffered a severe loss this week when his farm building containing the season's crops were destroyed by fire. In addition to the crop, four horses, a threshing machine and other farm machinery fell prey to the flames. The fire is thought to have originated from sparks from the threshing engine.

The medlesome woman riding in a trolley car, began sneering at a young mother's awkwardness in holding a fretting baby.

"I declare," she snorted, "a woman ought never to have a baby until she knows how to hold it."

"Nor a tongue either," calmly replied the worried young mother.

A statement made in a medical paper alleging a great increase in the use of alcoholism among University undergraduates, is strongly repudiated in Cambridge, England, and evidence is adduced to show that there never was a time when undergraduates were so moderate in their drinking as at present. Joseph Wells, vice-chancellor of Oxford University, declares the statement entirely unjustified.

Another well-known Montreal business man pays high tribute to the merits of Tanlac. This time it is Hector Lecavalier, dairy and grocery merchant, 390 Beaubien St. Mr. Lecavalier resides at 1922 Chateaubriand Avenue Montreal. Here is what he says.

"I am now enjoying my three square meals a day, sleep good at night and feel fine, but that is vastly different from the condition I was in before taking Tanlac. I used to have indigestion so bad I dreaded to eat and could hardly keep anything down.

"Besides I was troubled with bronchitis, dizzy spells and upset nerves. My tongue was coated white, my energy gone and I felt worn-out all the time. Seven bottles of Tanlac has stopped my trouble and now I am a new and different man."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Deaths And Funerals

ALICE M. CURRY

There died at Fort Saskatchewan, Alberta, of heart failure, on Oct. 14th, an old resident of the country, Alice M. Curry, wife of the late U. G. Curry. The deceased was born at Wellington, Ontario and spent her early years at Consecon and Hillier, removing over thirty years ago with her family to Belleville, Ontario, where she resided until four years ago, when she went West to live with her daughter, Mrs. F. A. Walker, at Fort Saskatchewan. Six children are left to mourn her loss, also sixteen grand children. The children are: Mrs. A. J. Todd, Oak Lake, Manitoba; Melvin, of Chicago; Mrs. F. A. Walker, Fort Saskatchewan, Alberta; Mrs. E. E. Orr, Peace River, Alberta; Arthur, of Toronto and Robert of Coalspur, Alberta.

Mrs. Walker accompanied the body East and arrived in Picton on Monday afternoon. The interment took place at Cherry Valley, in the old family plot, where she was laid beside her husband, who predeceased her twelve years ago.

Prior to the departure of the train for the East a short private service was held by the Rev. M. L. Wright.

Mrs. Walker was met on her arrival by a number of friends and relatives.

The late Mrs. Curry was a woman of outstanding character, a devoted mother and a faithful friend.

EMELINE JOHNSON

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Mrs. Emeline Johnson took place from the family residence, 2 Wickett street and was attended by a number of relatives and friends. Rev. G. Marshall of Emmanuel church officiated. Bearers were Messrs. J. Hinchey, J. Hunter, T. and P. Keegan.

Brighton, Nov. 7— A large full-grown bear has been roaming around Brighton and has become bold enough to eat apples out of the orchards of Thomas Weatherburn, wh lives near he village. A number of nearby farmers have also had glimpses of "bruno"

FORGED CHEQUE

Oshawa, Nov. 7.—Herbert Oliver Myers pleaded guilty in court Wednesday morning to forging a cheque having a face value of $400, and was remanded until Thursday, November 13, for sentence. One witness, G. P. Lynd, manager of the Whitby branch of the Dominion Bank and the accused gave evidence. D. A. J. Swanson appeared as counsel for the defence.

Myers was arrested in Oshawa following the alleged forgery which took place in Whitby, a cheque having a face value of $490 drawn on the account of Mary E. Willis and made payable to J. H. Wilder being the paper in question.

JUDGE TRAINS HIS DAUGHTER FOR LAW

Chicago, Ill. Nov. 7.—Judge Bernard Barasa is training his daughter in the matter of law, even if she doesn't intend to use it for a better purpose than to get married and stay that way.

The daughter Kathryn, pretty and eighteen, has not wholly decided that that is what she will do with her law education, but then, she's pretty and 18 and shouldn't be expected to decide her father says.

She is one of the three law students at De Paul University this year.

When she completes her schooling Judge Parasa wishes to retire from the bench and form a partnership. He has been on the bench here eight years.

The price of bread in Oshawa was lowered one cent per loaf Thursday, making the new scale 10 cents instead of 11, as during the past few weeks. The sudden decrease is not due to a reduction in the price of wheat o flour but may be simply termed the result of a bread war between local and Toronto bakers.

Conservative Win In Yale Riding

Expect Grote Stirling's Majority to be About 500

Vernon, B.C., Nov. 7.—Yale constituency remains in the Conservative column, Grote Stirling, the Conservative, having defeated Daniel W. Sutherland, his Liberal opponent, in the Federal by-election yesterday.

With all the main centres in and eight small polls missing at 9.30 p.m. Mr. Stirling had a majority of 419. One hundred and two polls out of 110 gave Stirling, 6,600; Sutherland 6,186. In the last election the late J. A. McKelvie defeated Mr. Sutherland by a majority of 542.

A fairly heavy vote was polled, as the weather was fair and the roads good.

The remaining polls will not affect the result, and Conservative leaders predicted that Stirling's majority would reach 480.

GERMANY MAY BUY KAMERUN COLONY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 7.—Germans have a chance to buy back a considerable area of their lost colony of Kamerun in Western Africa, according to the Daily Mail, which says that fifty thousand acres of valuable plantations there are to be auctioned in London on November 24 by order of the late Government, it being stipulated that there shall be no restriction regarding the nationality of purchasers. The Mail indignantly protests against this opportunity for Germans to "acquire vast estates in a British colony with future possibilities of important arms equipping submarine bases."

Kamerun was divided beween the British and French after the war.

FOR RETURNED MEN

"Good news for disabled returned men engaged in Canadian industries is contained in the announcement that the unique piece of legislation passed by Order in Council in December, 1921 whereby on an accident occurring to a pensioner of 20% disability and upward the amount payable would be recovered from the D.S.C.R. and the employers of those pensioners may claim reimbursement of the premiums paid, has been extended for another year. Only two provinces of the Dominion—Ontario and Alberta—have taken advantage of this provision to any appreciable extent, but by the provision sof the legislation pensioners of 20%, disability and upward all over Canada are placed in a preferred position, and the ground for refusal to employ pensioners because of added liability to the emplyer has been removed."

Full praticulars concerning the above extract can be obtained from L. F. Green, Employment Service of Canada, Campbell St.

"YOU can cook an entire meal with the Hotpoint 3-Heat Grill. It will boil, broil, toast or fry. Any two operations may be carried on at the same time. It may also be used with the Hotpoint Ovenette for roasting."

The Hotpoint Grill is equipped with a reversible 3-heat switch, while the element frame is constructed throughout of rust-proof monel metal.

For sale by dealers everywhere.

LAST BALANCE SHEET PUBLISHED TO-DAY

The 69th Annual Balance Sheet of The Molsons Bank, which is published to-day in our columns, draws attention to the purchase of that Institution by the Bank of Montreal. The regret expressed by the President in his address at the Annual Meeting a few days ago voices the general opinions at the disappearance of The Molsons Bank, which for so many years has enjoyed the confidence of the public. At the same time the Directors are to be congratulated on the fact that while circumstances made it desirable to link up with stronger Institution, The Molsons Bank was in such a position that an agreement was possible which fully protects the interests of both the shareholders and customers.

Customers of The Molsons Bank will in future have the benefit of the larger facilities and services of the Bank of Montreal, an Institution which will have assets of approximately $750,000,000, and which for more than a century has been renowned for its fair dealings. That an old and well-tried Institution now disappears is, as we have said, a matter for regret, but in its passing, The Molsons Bank reflects th high traditions which have always been associated with this Institution.

"What we want," explained the employment manager, "is a well-behaved, trustworthy man of high moral character. Do you think you can fill the bill?"

"Yes, suh," replied the negro applicant "no question 'bout it suh

"No?"

"No indeed suh. Why it was on account of my good behaviour I done got out of de penitentia'y last week."

ARRANGE HOLIDAY ROLL ON ALLEYS; PRINTERS AND MAPLE LEAFS ARE WINNERS

Entries Pile in For Tanksgiving

Great Day Promised at Recreation; Maple Leafs Win

The first mixed doubles tournament to be held at the Recreation alleys on Thanksgiving Day promises to go over with a bang judging by the number of entries already in and with more to hear from. Some very nice prizes are to be given to the three couples making the highest scores and outside of that the management is giving a special large box of chocolates to the lady rolling the highest three string score and a tin of Players to the gentleman rolling the highest three string score. To-night at the alleys the ladies draw for their bowling partners and arrange their hour of bowling.

The Maple Leafs bowling team won another game in the ladies league at Recreation alleys last night winning from the Ever Ready by over 100 pins. The Ever Readys got off to a good start winning the first and second game by a small margin but losing the third by 174 pins. Mrs. Bone for the winners was high three string with 440 and Mrs. Salisbury and Mrs. Domenico were tie for the Ever Readys.

The National Castings cut loose last night in the Junior League and won out from the Aristocrats by 96 pins. The Aristocrats won the first game by 11 pins but in the second the Moulders came back strong, rolling 886 against 744 and this lead carried them through the third game. Hurley for the Aristocrats was high bowler with an even 600, while for the Castings Joe Henn lead the way with 555.

For the ten months of 1924, the register of Inspector Walton shows Sarnia's aggregate for building permits to be $646,378.

Magistrate Woodrow, at Sarnia, found Dan Tyrell of Dawn Township guilty of a charge of evading payment of toll on the Plank road on October 12, and imposed a fine of $3 with costs $2.

London City vital statistics for October show that there were 123 births the same as in the corresponding month of last year 69 marriages, a decrease of 12 and 73 deaths, a decrease of 3.

NOTICE BOWLERS

All ladies who have their names in for the tournament kindly be at the alleys to-night to draw your partner and arrange bowling hour.

Can't See Anyone To Trim Dempsey

English Sportsman Look Over Situation, and Are Resigned

London, Nov. 7.—Jack Dempsey has let it be nosed about that he wouldn't mind coming over to England to take a punch or two at some of the British heavyweights. All of which has caused sophisticated sportsmen of this land to smile and the unsophisticated to foresee even darker days ahead for British prestige in the boxing business.

There isn't a boxer in all of Britain who gives any promise of standing up against Dempsey for even a few rounds, unless the champion had a mind to be playful. And the British know this. In fact they poke just as much of their quiet fun at their boxing predicament as do the more boisterous humorists overseas.

After all, who might be matched with Dempsey in a London ring? There is Frank Goddard, the champion, who got his title on a foul. And just the other day he crossed the channel to do a little fighting in the Basque country with a man named Paolini. Nobody in the boxing game in Britain except Goddard had ever heard of Paolini, for his main business in life had previously been chopping down trees. He gave Goddard a sound thrashing.

Then there is Joe Beckett, who has a long record of cold knockouts registered against him. Not long ago Beckett retired, married and settled down to a quiet life of watching the boats come and go at Southampton. He sent a little piece to the papers the other day saying he would like to try a "come-back". Nobody else, seemingly, cares to see him try, and he has had no encouragement.

After chuckling over the Beckett ambitions one turns ones' thoughts, perhaps to Jack Bloomfield, the cruiser-weight champion who had dreamearlier this year of retrieving British prestige in the pugilistic profession. Tommy Gibbons came over to England from the States and disillusioned Bloomfield, quickly and forcibly. So he too got married and settled down, and even the caption writers in the topical movies made fun of his feeble stand against the American, who gave him an unmerciful thrashing, while the best Bloomfield could do before being put to sleep in the third round was to land four blows, hardly more than love-taps on the energetic epidermis of his conqueror.

That just about ends the list. There are, of course, promising youngsters, doing their stuff in small-time boxing circles over here just as there are plenty of ambitious heavyweights active in America. But none of them are first-raters by any stretch of the imagination.

Still the British would be glad to see Dempsey, although it is doubtful if he could fatten his already fat wallet to any great extent in England, especially if he keeps up his habit of thinking in nothing less than six figures. Both of the two principal British boxing promoters—Major Wilson and C. B. Cochran—have recently had bankruptcy proceedings brought against them. Even Gibbons had to go to court to get his pay of about $50,000 for the fight with Bloomfield. Over here it is assumed Dempsey would turn up his recently turned-down nose at the mere mention of such a skimpy sum as fifty thousand dollars.

Says English Will Not Like Baseball

Country Will Remain Unconverted According to Daily Express

The London Daily Express, Lord Beaverbrook's organ, has the following editorial on the visit of American baseball teams to England:

"The New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox have arrived in England. They come as missionaries. Their object is to convert us to baseball, or at least sow the germs of heresy towards our own summer game of cricket.

"In their own country these are famous men, for they make a double appeal to the American imagination. They are athletes and they are successful business men. The average American youth could probably tell you the overhead cost to the club every time a star player swings at a ball. Their salaries are prodigious, and their hold on the affections of the people immense.

"It is not likely, however, that even the visit of two such distinguished teams will make us adopt baseball. Between baseball and cricket lies the difference of Wall Street and Leadenhall Street, the difference of Broadway and the Strand, the difference between the accents of the American college and the English public school. It is climatic, temperament, almost unexplicable. Therefore, we shall remain unconverted, but shall enjoy the skill of our visiting batters to the full."

KID LEWIS, BOXER, WAS NO FINANCIER

"Everything I touched I put my foot in," said Kid Lewis, the boxer, otherwise Gershon Mendeloff, at his bankruptcy examination in England recently.

He estimated that his income from boxing amounted to £16,950 during the last three years, while his expenditure had been only £10,000, but he admitted that he lost £1,500 on a revue entitled "Hallo Sweetie!" and £500 on contests at Premierland.

He had also lost money on the purchase and sale of a public house, and £1,000 on an Australian boxing venture which fell through. Lewis returned his liabilities at £3,032 and his assets at £1,200, and attributed his insolvency largely to gambling losses.

He said that he had lost about £5,000 in three years by this means; he had put as much as £500 on a horse. He had also gambled at cards, but found that "the more you put down the less you pick up."

The examination was concluded.

Country Kids Up Too Late Perhaps

Fell Down at "Y" Alleys After a Splendid Rally

Two interesting games were played at the Y Alleys Thursday evening one in the ladies' league and one in the men's. In the first game the Trailers and Ramblers hooked up, the Trailers getting away to so good a start that they seemed about to break a long streak of hard luck. They tied the Ramblers in the first game, but their opponents came back strong in the next two games, winning out by 413 pins. Miss Ford took the single with 221 and Miss Ross the three string, with 494.

In the Men's League the Country Kids and Bowlers had a merry battle when the Country Kids put a scare in the Bowlers. After being down 110 pins, they came along and reduced the lead to 1 pin during the second game. The spurt petered out in the third game, however; it must have been after the Kids' bed time, the ladies' game having finished late. J. Yerex of the Country Kids took the single and three string with 242 and 636 respectively.

CALGARY TIGERS TO OPEN NEW ARENA

Montreal, Nov. 7.—Calgary Tigers, Western Canada professional hockey champions, will have the honor of opening the new Forum ice rink at Montreal. Terms for the game to be played against the new Montreal National Hockey League team on November 27, were accepted yesterday by William Northey, of the Canadian Arena Company, in a wire to President Fred Johnson. Calgary will play in Ottawa on November 24 and 26, and will come to Montreal to play on the following day, providing the new Forum is ready.

Work is proceeding rapidly at the new west-end plant, and it is expected to have the floor piping in place this week. No hitch is anticipated for the proposed opening on November 27.

NEW RECORD AT OSHAWA

Oshawa, Nov. 7.—All bowling records were shattered at the Motor City Bowling Club Wednesday evening, when W. M. Robertson made a score of 356. Mr. Robertson will be the likely winner of the November prize.

Harold Lackner, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lackner, Hawkesville a village ten miles from Kitchener, had both arms broken yesterday afternoon when he fell from an apple tree on his father's farm.

OSHAWA PULLING FO RINTERMEDIATES

Oshawa, Nov. 7.—Although the hockey situation in Oshawa for this coming winter cannot be determined at the present time, there is every likelihood of the Motor City again being represented by Junior and Intermediate teams in the Ontario Hockey Association. Whether or not there is any new material to choose from will not be known until colder weather arrives and the O.H.A. begins to make active preparations for the 1924-25 season. However it is safe to count on two or three new players, who together with last year's team, will do credit to the city in the intermediate ranks.

It would certainly be an undesirable thing for Oshawa not to be represented in the intermediate series and it is the intention of those in charge of this line of sport to take the necessary steps when the proper time arrives.

As far as the Junior team is concerned, Oshawa should have a strong aggregation, despite the fact that Harry Lott, and Lorne Moore, have left for other parts. Interest is steadily increasing in what the coming season will bring forth and while there is doubt expressed in some quarters as to the strength of the local teams, hockey fans can rest assured that the calibre of the hockey here will be up to the standard set in previous years, if not better than for some time.

Word has been received from Shreveport, Louisana, that Fred Chatron, a Wallaceburg young man was recently sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary on a charge of stealing an automobile.

Calloused Girl Is Crook at 16

Tells How She Victimized Unsuspecting Men for Bandit Group

Chicago, Nov. 7.—"Rouge has rough stuff beat a mile. There's no such animal as a hick. Any man will hoof it plenty to see a yard of silk if the wind is blowing."

Such are samples of the "wise-cracking" philosophy of 16-year-old Evelyn Klinger under arrest here as the country's youngest bandit queen.

Sophisticated beyond her years, Evlyn tells a tale of lawlessness that reads more like a chapter from out of a Jesse James wild west novel.

What she wanted from life she took. But not once did she use a gun. She left the "rough stuff" to her gang. "[illegible] me by" says Helen.

Cracked Safes Too

"I used to give the dumbells a beautiful smile. And they'd always fall because I had my lips all reddened up. I'd steer them out where the boys were waiting. They'd do the rest. It was lots of fun."

Four of Helen's male companions—youths of 20—are in custody with her. She was their leader. They say so. She boasts of it.

They have confessed stealing 40 autos, scores of holdups and a number of safe-cracking jobs, police say.

Worked in "5 and 10"

"We only took sedans," Helen related. "I like the closed jobs best and told the fellows to lay off the other models.

"When there was nothing else doing we'd open a few safes."

A few months ago Helen was clerking in a 5-and-10-cent store.

"Rough life that was," she reflects. "When I got through I had to come home and fold my hands to look sweet for the folks.

"The angel-child stuff was driving me cuckoo. I stood it long enough and then one night I ups and calls my man. I was going to be married to him before long.

"There—I says, "let's go." And that's what we did.

"But take it from me, there's nothing to this rough stuff."

First Stowaway Found in Plane

But Quebec Man Goes Away Unpunished at Angliers

Angliers, Quebec, Nov. 7.—Anxious to see his wife and children, one man chose a means of getting out of the Rouyn gold fields which was as dangerous as it was unique, and which had not fair weather prevailed, might have resulted in it arriving home in a condition which would have caused his family more sorrow than joy.

Pilot Caldwell of the Laurentide Air Service, on taking off from Rouyn, he found that his machine was exceedingly tail heavy and that he could with difficulty manage to fly level.

On his arrival here he reported a leak in the hull. His search revealed a man's cap, gloves and numerous cigarette butts.

Eventually he found that the leak was a human one, and that the air service had carried its first stowaway.

As this is the first case of its kind on record no action was taken to punish the man.

Fire of a mysterious nature totally destroyed a brick farmhouse on the Blossom Road near Cainsville, yesterday morning, with almost total loss, only a few pieces of furniture being rescued.

A Canadian American visitor in London to a newsboy who sold him a paper the other day: "I guess I should have to pay double the price of this paper if I were over in America."

"Well," replied the urchin, "yer can pay me double, guv'nor, if it'll make yer feel more at 'ome!"

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

DRINK WATER FREELY AND OFTEN IF BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BOTHERS

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Sticks to Charge Made in Pulpit

Poster Threatened with Tar And Feathers at London, Ontario

London Nov. 7.—"I want it thoroughly understood that these statements were made on my knowledge of the truth, and that I stand by them. If I have made a mistake I would have said long before this, 'I am sorry I made a mistake,' but I did not make a mistake and no one can make me say that I have."

This was the statement given in an interview yesterday afternoon by Rev. Dr. Bowley Green (pastor of the Talbot street Baptist church, in regard to the statements made in his sermon last Sunday when the term, "Beer-soaked Englishmen" was used and the charges that the statement was an "infamous lie," which have been laid by heads of the St. George's Society.

Dr. Green stated that his sermon, in this connection, had been accurately reported and that he had no apology to offer for the statement.

"I have been threatened with tar and feathers," he said. "I have been threatened to be thrown into the Thames river or some place like that but I am not afraid of that—I can swim."

Dr. Green referred to the statement over which the Englishmen of the city have been aroused by saying he spoke of what he knew to be the fact.

"I was at these meetings and I saw that the men who were heckling the O.T.A. speakers and who were shouting the loudest for Government sale were 'beer-soaked Englishmen.' I know them, I am an Englishman and I want to say that I am proud of it."

Started Fight; So He Loses All

Employe Tried to Collect For Damages He Sustained

Montreal, Nov. 7.—Because Wilfrid Brault started a fight which ended very disastrously for him, he was refused damages by Mr. Justice Archer in the Superior Court.

Brault sued his former employer, Wilfrid Lajeunesse, for $199.70 as damages which he alleged to have suffered when Lajeunesse assaulted him in August, 1922.

The plaintiff declared that Lajeunesse refused to give him a receipt for a sum of $10 which he had collected on a debt. Besides refusing illegally to give this receipt, said Brault, his employer used fists and feet upon him with such effect that he was bruised from head to foot. Brault further alleged that Lajeunesse had choked him, and knocked his head through a window, the glass cutting his face and the back of his head. The injuries sustained, said Brault, prevented him from working for at least a week, and he claimed that he was entitled to damages.

Lajeunesse pleaded, however, that the plaintiff himself had provoked the trouble.

Brault, said Lajeunesse, insisted upon being given a personal receipt for the money collected by him, in spite of assurance that the accountant had been ordered to make a receipt in favor of the debtor. The plaintiff, pleaded Lajeunesse, became very abusive and threatening. On being requested to leave, Brault struck his employer, and the fight resulted, it was alleged. Lajeunesse claimed that he did not use more force than was necessary to repel the plaintiff's assault.

Mr. Justice Archer found that Brault had started the fight himself, and, for this reason, his suit was dismissed.

CHICAGO MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 7—Reports of unfavorable crop conditions both in Argentine and Australia together with much higher quotations at Liverpool, led to fresh upturns here in wheat prices today during early dealings. Hot winds were said to be prevailing in Argentine emphasizing lack of moisture. In Australia there were heavy rains threatening to make wet harvest. Chicago opening prices varied from 1-8c decline to 1 1-4c advance was followed by material gains all around. Cold weather tended to ease corn market. After opening unchanged to 1-4c up, prices sagged to below yesterday's finish. Oats were firm, sympathizing with wheat rather than corn. Starting at 1-8 to 1-4c higher, oats market continued to harden. Influenced chiefly by rise in hog values provision market scored a moderate advance.

Hit By Teacher Goes to Hospital

Toronto Boy Kicked Up a Rumpus When Threatened With Strap

MOTHER UNDERSTANDS

No Court Case, She Says, After Teacher Apologizes

Toronto, Nov. 7—The result, it is claimed, of a tussle between a school teacher and himself, 14 year-old Harold Royal, 364 Silverthorne ave., a senior fourth pupil of Silverthorne School at Ewart street and Scott road lies in the Western Hospital under special nurse and doctor's care, badly bruised about the body, and suffering from internal injuries. His condition was serious Wednesday but yesterday was reported to be improved. He will be a patient in the hospital for some considerable time.

"Doctors, nurses and hospital bills run high, and I expect they will be paid, however," Mrs. Royal said.

Became Seriously Ill

"My lad, who is a quiet boy, came home in company with two other boys on Monday afternoon from school," she continued. "He came in quietly and went to bed, and he was in bed some time before I even knew he was home. He complained of being ill, and told me there had been a little trouble about the matter of taking the strap at school. I told him he shouldn't have been too smart. You see, I have an older boy going through for a teacher and I can understand the trials and troubles of a teacher, and I know that a lad can be aggravating.

Specialist Was Called

"However, towards evening my boy became worse, and, frightened by his condition, I called Dr. O. L. McCormack, Dufferin street. He examined the boy and ordered his removal to the Western Hospital immediately. His condition did not improve, and a specialist was called, Dr. Willinsky, of that hospital, attended him. During the night—that was Monday night—he again became worse, and we spent a very anxious and troubled night. But he improved with the next day and is now doing nicely.

Asked if her lad had told her as to what led up to the scuffle, Mrs. Royal said.

"I know but half the story," she said "From what I could drag from the very sick lad, he, with other boys were in a room where the teacher, whose name I don't know, was taking a girls' group in song practice. What took place in that room I don't know but my boy was to be given the strap. He may have been irritating. He told me he wouldn't take the strap, and a scuffle with the teacher followed. Harold was thrown to the floor, he said, and in being thrown struck the side of the desk."

No Criminal Action

Yesterday Mr. Royal stated that Mr. Bebb had called upon them and, following apologies from him, both she and her husband were entirely satisfied that the affair had been an accident. Neither she nor her husband wished any publicity in the matter and said that no action—criminal or otherwise—would be taken. "We do not want any publicity in this matter," Mrs. Royal said, "it would only be detrimental to the master, and we are perfectly satisfied that he was not altogether to blame. Perhaps Harold was disobedient, in any case Mr. Bebb has acted since in a very gentlemanly way, and we do not want him to suffer

Continuing, Mrs. Royal stated that this is the first time they had any trouble with their children going to the school. Their eldest boy, Wilfred, aged 16, had passed through the Silverthorn School, and is now in his third year at High School. Harry, aged 14, was in the senior fourth, and the teacher and principal speak highly of him, the boy, in turn, speaking as highly of them. Elsie, aged nine, is in the senior first.

Ever since the accident a stream of callers have been visiting the house young Harold being one of the most popular children in the district.

Teacher Is Sorry

C. T. Bebb, the teacher, was found in bed, having suffered for two days with a bad attack of lumbago. "I really have nothing to say, he exclaimed. "I explained matters to the boy's parents last night, and I think they are satisfied that it was no intentional action on my part. Perhaps I was the one to be most surprised when I learned Harold was severely injured." Mr. Bebb has been teaching for four or five years, and has been at Silverthorn School since September last. He expressed his sorrow at the unfortunate occurrence. Mr. Bebb was a member of the 5th Battalion, served overseas for 4 1-2 years, and was wounded twice. He explained that this was the first time he has had any trouble during his scholastic career and was greatly upset over it.

Will B einvestigated

A. Orchard, chairman of the Silverthorn school board, stated that the matter had been reported to the board and would be fully investigated by them.

Principal A. E. Bryson refused to discuss the matter. "It has not been officially reported to me and it does not help in such cases to make them public," he said. Both he and Mr. Bebb are going to visit Harold in the hospital to-day.

R. J. Graham Motors From Brother's Funeral to Address Lodge

Mr. Robert J. Graham held the undivided attention of members of Moira Lodge Wednesday night. He told in his typically interesting way, the story of his travels through strife torn China. For one hour and a quarter, Mr. Graham told of the beauties of the Orient and the difficulties of travel through a foreign country.

The speaker made a hurried motor trip from Toronto in order that he would not disappoint the lodge members, having promised to deliver the travelogue. He had been attending the funeral of his brother there.

It was the regular meeting of Moira lodge. Refreshments were served.

SALE OF POPPIES TO BE ENORMOUS

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—The distribution of "Vetcraft" poppies as the "Flower of Remembrance" for Armistice day in Canada this year will reach an unprecedented total, according to officials of the Dominion Command, G.W.V.A. Judging by the orders which have already been received, nearly 2,000,000 poppies will be worn. Last year's distribution was slightly in excess of 1,000,000.

The considerable increase in viewed with gratification of officials of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and the Great War Veterans' Association. The poppy replicas are made by seriously disabled men in Vetcraft and Red Cross workshops in the principal centres of the Dominion, under the supervision of the D.S.C.R. The distribution is entirely in the hands of the Great War Veteran's Association, which utilizes its provincial commands and more than 800 branches as distributing agents.

MIDDLESEX BOY IS REMARKABLE PATIENT

London, Nov. 7.—Within 24 hours of having a big iron spike weighting 4 lbs. removed from between heart and lungs, both of which organs it had displaced, Edgar Heath, a Hanworth, Middlesex, boy of 15, smiled at a newspaper reporter and said: "I feel happy here, thank you." He was at the West London Hospital.

Edgar had fallen from the high porch of his home, Flower Cottage, Main Road, Hanworth, and been impaled on a garden railing spike. The head of the railing snapped and the boy fell to the ground. Half an inch of the spike protruded from his body.

The surgeons made a space through which to extract the iron by forcing two ribs apart. They were themselves amazed when they had the object before them.

It was 8½ inches long and the tip was blunt. Its shape very roughly resembled the Prince of Wales' feathers. The side "feather" dipped over in such a way that it held as tightly as if it were a massive two-pronged fish-hook It was 4½ inches across at the point where the "feathers" dipped over and the thickness of the metal was 1¼ inches.

In its course the spike had carried into the boy's chest and pressed against the lung a piece of shirt fabric as big as a fair-sized handkerchief.

The operation was one that called alike for great surgical skill and for bravery on the part of the patient.

TO REWARD GIRL FOR EFFICIENCY

Hamilton, Nov. 7.—From a reliable source it was learned yesterday that Miss May Bernhardt, the $900 per annum clerk who discovered the false entry made by Harold S. Forbes for $24,000 when a staff of trained auditors had failed, will be made assistant auditor as the result of the re-organization which is planned at the city hall.

She discovered four false entries within 48 hours after the experts had been baffled and to her work can be attributed the municipal investigation, as the entries are said to have been made so skilfully that they almost defied detection.

TORONTO MAY TRY TO COLLECT FINE

Toronto, Nov. 7—Toronto may make an effort to collect the $600,000 fine imposed upon Aemilius Jarvis and Peter Smith. Mayor Hiltz stated that he intended to investigate the matter and consult the Board of Control and the city's legal advisers.

According to one legal authority, Toronto will automatically receive 80 per cent of the fine and York County the other 20 per cent., if it is paid as a fine. The only way to have the money returned to the Provincial coffers, he said, would be for the Crown to remit the fine and collect the $600,000 as restitution. This, however, would have to be with the consent of Aemilius Jarvis and Peter Smith.

The money would be welcomed in the City Treasurer. Already this year the city has had to vote extra funds for the maintenance of justice on account of the heavy costs of the Home Bank and kindred trials.

GOOD NEWS FOR AILING WOMEN

Much has been said for and against proprietary medicines by the medical profession. It will interest every woman to know that in a recent country-wide canvass of over 121,000 purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as to the results received from its use, the replies received showed that ninety-eight out of every one hundred women had been benefited by its use. Therefore every sick and ailing woman owes it to herself to give this remarkably successful remedy a fair trial.

SEE CONSERVATIVE TENDENC YALL OVER

Washington, Nov. 7— Political leaders are drawing a parallel between the victory of President Coolidge and the triumphs of the Conservative party in the recent British elections. It is pointed to as evidence of a general revival of Conservative tendencies.

One of the biggest questions left over from the elections in the United States is whether a strong third party can be formed by Senator La Follette and his aides. Regular Republican leaders express doubt whether it is possible. They say the overwhelming victory for Coolidge will discourage the formation of a third party, or, at least one of formidable proportions.

TRAVELLED THE WORLD BUT 'Never Found Anything to Equal Zam-Buk'

MR. DAVIS
KANSAS C
U.S.A.

Mr. Henry C. Davis, a widely-travelled railway engineer, now of South 17th St., Kansas City, U.S.A., writes that he has found nothing in any quarter of the globe that compares with Zam-Buk for healing. He says:—"As a first-aid I have used Zam-Buk in innumerable instances for cuts, wounds, bruises and similar injuries sustained in my engineering work.

A REAL ANTISEPTIC HEALER.

"I also tried Zam-Buk for a rather common trouble in this country—skin poisoning by poison ivy. Disfiguring sores appeared on the hands, and other parts of the body after being in contact with the poisonous plant. Zam-Buk speedily cooled the affected surfaces, drew the poison right out, and healed my skin perfectly.

"Another time, whilst travelling, I suffered from a virulent outbreak of eczema, contracted through careless use of a public towel. I had medical advice and tried in addition, many special remedies without finding the hoped-for relief. Zam-Buk treatment took away all the pain and burning irritation, and quickly purified and healed the deep troublesome sores. It made my skin quite well."

unequalled for cuts, chapped hands, chilblains, cold-sores, burns, scalds, etc., to check bleeding, inflammation and pain, and bring swift clean healing. Also for eczema, poisoned sores, ulcers, piles, bad legs. Of pure herbal origin, Zam-Buk is infinitely superior to artificial ointments composed of pore-clogging fats and crude drugs. Dealers everywhere sell Zam-Buk, 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

ZAM-BUK FREE & POST-PAID.—The Proprietors of this wonderful herbal healer offer every reader a USEFUL SAMPLE BOX. Send request to-day to Zam-Buk Mfg. Co., Dupont St., Toronto.

His heart beat wildly, the color came and went in his face; he was lost to everything but that bright, celestial and purely human, being on the stage, then rendering the exquisite lines of her part; and it was not until he caught one or two curious glances directed at him that he drew back a little and tried to look simply interested like the rest.

The drop scene went down on the act and he, to use his own phrase, "pulled himself together."

He got up and went out into the lobby, and made his way to the refreshment bar; and when he had obtained his brandy and soda he lingered over it and got in conversation with the attendant.

"This Miss Doris Marlowe is a great success?" he said, trying to speak indifferently.

"Oh, yes, she is, indeed," said the girl, with a long sigh; she had dreamed of being an actress herself, poor thing; "I just stole out and looked in at the last act. A success?—I should think so! I call it magnificent. I never saw anything like it; did you sir?"

"No, never," responded Lord Cecil. "She is a London actress, I suppose? And yet I don't remember seeing her in London," he added.

"No, I don't think she's ever played in London, but always in the provinces. This is the first time she's ever done anything like this. She's played here in small parts; this is her first appearance in Shakespeare."

"Who is she?" he asked, endeavoring to make his question commonplace yet feeling that he was hanging on her reply.

The girl paused in the wiping of a glass and looked puzzled.

"Who is she? I don't know, sir. I question whether anybody knows rightly, excepting Mr. Jeffrey."

"Mr. Jeffrey? Who is he?" asked Lord Cecil, with a sharp pang. Could this man be her husband?

"Oh, the old gentleman who goes about with her. He ain't her father, but a kind of guardian. He was an actor once. It was he, so they say, who taught her to act. Anyhow, she treats him just like a father."

Lord Cecil drew a breath of relief.

"They are always together; they go from theatre to theatre. He is a very extraordinary old gentleman and very trying at rehearsals, so I've heard the actors say; but he knows all about it, quite as well as the stage manager.

At this moment the two London critics came up for a drink, and one of them bowed to Lord Cecil.

"Quite an eventful evening, my lord," he said, with the easy respect of a fellow-Londoner.

"Yes," said Lord Cecil. "It is a great success, I suppose. Do you know who Miss Doris Marlowe is?"

The critic shrugged his shoulders.

Haven't the least idea. Quite a stella incognita, but she will not be so after to-night. We shall see her in Drury Lane before many months are passed."

"Who was that?" his friend, the other critic, asked.

"Lord Cecil Neville," was the reply. "The heir to the Marquisate of Stoyle. A splendid fellow, and, strange to say, not a bit spoiled, though all the women make a dead set at him."

Remarkable Film At Griffin Now

Beau Brummel is a Great Take of English History

"Let's be grateful for the thoughtfulness of our Creator in giving us bodies naked, so that we could dress and ornament them as we choose."

A little artificial, this sentiment eh! Agreed! But not for a soul that is the flower of artificiality, Beau Brummel, to wit, the last word in clothes, and in presenting to the world a smooth sartorial surface.

John Barrymore playes the title role in "Beau Brummel," the screen adaptation of the Clyde Fitch play, at Griffin's Theatre now. It is a Warner Brothers' Classic of the Screen with an unusual supporting cast, consisting of Mary Astor, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis, Carmel Myers and others equally well known.

The Beau is one of the most picturesque, vivid figures of English history. How he won the friendship of the Prince of Wales, thus becoming the arbiter of fashion, and how women flocked to him, literally throwing themselves at his feet, and the way the Beau fell from the heights of popularity to disgrace are episodes in this superb Warner Brothers' Classic of the Screen which Harry Beaumont directed.

The Calais of 1800, and the London court life of that period, lives in the picture. Not only that, but there appears in some scenes 300 French soldiers, fifty members of the French nobility, 300 noblemen and women and 60 officers of the Tenth Hussars. It is a colorful background for a colorful romance.

Took One Year To Make This Picture

The Shepherd King at the Belle Is Fine Realistic Story

Picturing the splendor of the pyramids, the inscrutability of the sphinx and the lonely beauty of the Egyptian desert. The William Fox production of "The Shepherd King", from the W. A. Brady stage success, opened a 3 day engagement last night at the Belle Theatre The original play, by Wright Lorimer and Arnold Reeves, established its New York success in 1904, meeting with nation wide approval on the road in the years that followed.

J. Gordon Edwards took his cast to Cairo to film the production, which was more than a year in the making. Violet Mersereau, who appears as Princess Michal, youngest daughter of Saul, enacts a splendid role with remarkable talent. The cast, chosen from the continental artists who made "Nero", has done an even more impressive thing in this. Edwards employed 3,000 Bedouins and obtained 485 camels and nearly as many donkeys, to form the impressive spectacle picturing Moses leading the children of Israel out of Egypt.

Nerio Bernardi, as David, is impressive in the role, while Guido Srenta, as Saul, King of Israel, Allesandro Salvini, Doeg, the king's supreme general and Edy Darclea, as Princess Merab, are cast as effectively as they were in the production of "Nero."

"The Shepherd King" is a story too well known to require repetition; the stage play was acclaimed as a marvel of drama and the Fox picture goes to greater lengths for its realism and impressive splendor.

While Sunlight Works

YOU have more leisure hours on wash day if you use Sunlight Soap. Away downstairs in the wash tub this wonderful soap will do the labour. You rub the things with Sunlight—you put them to soak—and then its penetrating, cleansing ingredients search through and through the fibres, loosening even the hardest dirt or the oldest grease stains completely. No wash board rubbing, no boiling, no hard work. Then, with rinsing, the dirt runs away and your clothes are ready for the line, purified and snowy clean.

Wash day should not take your labour—only Sunlight's gentle strength.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. B. Johnson, 246 Craig St., W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

CHEESE BOARDS

At a conference between salesmen and cheese buyers at yesterday's cheese board, it was decided to hold the last board of the season on Monday, November 17. This will be the final board until May 1925, when the cheese making period will again commence. Several of the factory representatives at yesterday's board intimated that cheese making would continue at their respective plants for some time to come. All local factories will produce butter during the winter months as usual.

Cheese boarded yesterday totalled 783 boxes of colored, aged from 15-31 and 21-3-. Bidding on the first call was 16 1-4 cents, which rose to 16 3-4 cents in the second call. No sales were made. The factories represented yesterday were: Bennington, 165; Innerkip, 75; German Union, 182; Bright 90 North Oxford, 150; Honey Grove, 121.

CANADIAN INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL

Montreal Herald

Alcohol was introduced to the local exchange over a year ago when the stock was traded in around $11.50. Since its early inception this stock has been a great favorite with traders and at the present time there are around 900 shareholders. A short while ago the Company announced to the shareholders that they would be given two shares of the new stock for one of old which means that there will be now 800,000 shares of no par value stock outstanding.

Due to the split up, some brokers, as is customary in such cases, advised their client that an additional margin would be required if the holders desired to carry the additional stock. As the result of the circular and of the referendum in the Province of Ontario some who had good profits have liquidated. It is felt in quarters close to the company that it will not take long to distribute the additional 400,000 shares brought on the market by the split, for it is a well established precedent that a cheap stock on a dividend paying basis will attract a good following.

The Company's earnings at the present time are far in excess of dividend requirements, so that the shareholders can reasonably look forward to future increases providing that there are no unforeseen developments of a disappointing nature.

The market action of the stock will be followed with a great amount of interest.

The Human Eye

Is a miracle of efficiency if normal. But the sad truth is that most eyes are abnormal to some extent. Abnormal eyes mean strained eyes, and strained eyes mean headaches and a dozen other troubles. ANIMAL TEMPERATURES

Interesting Figures Relating to Farm Live Stock

Horses Are Relatively Cold-blooded —Poultry Have Highest Temperature—High Temperatures Indicate Fever — Wintering Bees — Select Sires to Give Balance.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The temperatures of domestic animals are of interest, in that each class has a normal temperature range of its own.

Horses.

The horse in health will have a temperature not lower than 99.5°, or higher than 101.3°. There are exceptions, of course, to all rules, and a few animals may be normal at higher or lower temperatures than those given.

Cattle.

The normal temperature range for cattle is 100.4° to 103.1°, which covers the case pretty well. When a bovine animal's temperature goes above 103.1° it can be considered above normal, and that there is some disturbance within.

Sheep and Swine.

Sheep to be considered normal give a temperature reading between 102.3° to 104.5°. The pig's normal temperature can be looked for between 100.4° and 104°. Some individuals run high and others low, but all are steady within two degrees during period of health.

Poultry.

Poultry have very high normal temperatures, 106.7° to 108.5°. Such temperatures as enjoyed by poultry in health could not be endured by any other of our domestic animals for more than a few days.

High Temperatures Indicate Fever.

Any deviation from the normal temperature is taken as a source of information regarding the state of health of our domestic animals. High temperatures indicate feverish condition, while sub-normal temperatures indicate decline and weakening of the individual to a point of grave danger. Exercise raises the temperature, and rest lowers it, hence we get higher readings in the evening than in the morning.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

WINTERING BEES.

Every Colony Should Have a Queen —Have Enough Bees—Keep In a Naturally Protected Place.

Every spring beekeepers find from 5% to 50% of their colonies have died during the winter, or are very weak. There is no reason why the winter loss should be higher than 2% or 3%, provided the beekeeper will prepare and pack the bees properly. So says Prof. Eric Millen of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Every Colony Should Have a Queen.

The first step is to make sure every colony has a queen. As it is too late to requeen now, queenless colonies should be united with those having a queen. Place a sheet of newspaper on top of a strong queenright colony, and place the broodchamber of the queenless colony on top. Leave them for a week, and then shake the bees into the lower broodchamber and remove the upper broodchamber. It is taken for granted that no American foulbrood exists in the apiary. Otherwise, colonies should not be united, but rather destroy the queenless colonies and combs, if diseased.

Have Sufficient Bees.

The next step is to see that each colony has sufficient bees to cover at least three frames on both sides, if examined on a cold morning when the bees are clustered. This will insure enough bees to come through the winter, provided the stores and protection are adequate. A very important factor of wintering is the question of food. Many beekeepers give every colony ten or fifteen pounds of sugar syrup made in the proportion of 2½ of sugar to one of water, and fed in an inverted feeder over the brood frames. This is done in many cases regardless of the amount of stores the colony has. Every colony should have at least 45 pounds of food to ensure successful wintering, and an opportunity to increase in strength in the spring.

Keep In a Naturally Protected Place.

Bees should be kept in a naturally protected place for winter, or a board fence should be erected around the apiary to form a wind protection. Colonies may be packed singly, two in a case, four in a case, or in any other way desired by the beekeeper. Three or four inches of packing should be placed all around the colony, and not less than eight inches on top. Dry leaves, planer shavings or cork chips make satisfactory packing material. If the beekeeper will see that his colonies are put away for winter in good condition, the winter loss will be negligible.

Select Sires to Give Balance.

If the dairy herd is made up of low testers and poor producers, a bull from good producing and high testing ancestry should be chosen. If the females are too leggy, select a male that is compact and close to the ground. If the sow is rough in the shoulder and short in the side, select a boar with compact, well-muscled shoulder and with length and scale.

The foundation of any enduring structure, whether of a business, a farm, or a life, is thrift.

Rebuilding is not always necessary to make most farm home attractive. Paint and shrubbery plantings will work wonders.

The Great Breatheable Remedy
Peps
FOR COUGHS, SORE THROAT, COLDS & BRONCHITIS.

AS you dissolve a Peps tablet on your tongue, certain healing fumes are released which are immediately taken with the breath down into the furthest recess of the lungs where liquid medicines cannot penetrate. These Peps fumes on their way bathe the whole of the breathing passages with their healing potency, soothing the throat, allaying inflammation in the bronchi, and relieving the chest. Liquid medicines are simply swallowed into the stomach and cannot act in this direct Peps way.

While Peps are an expensive remedy to produce, the demand has become so great that it has now been found possible to have the

PRICE REDUCED to 25c. box

Now obtainable of medicine dealers everywhere, or direct from Peps Co., Dupont St., Toronto.

WAS SENTENCED TO FOUR HOURS IN JAIL

Montreal, Nov. 7.—One of the shortest sentences ever imposed in the Montreal courts was set by Judge Perrault in police court yesterday when he told William Alexander, a cook, aged 33 that he would have to spend four hours in the cells. Alexander pleaded guilty to stealing a rubber apron, worth 49 cents, from a St. Catherine street store, saying that he was drunk at the time. He gained his liberty at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

CANNERY AT PICTON GOT ALONG WELL

Picton, Nov. 7—The Boulter and [illegible] Canning Co., completed their new canning factory on August 1; and it has since been in full operation, canning 1800 bushels of tomatoes daily during the season. Next year they expect to double their capacity and add jams, jellies and green peas to their line.

The plant is 180x80 feet and cost $25,000. During the canning season, 75 people are employed. The products are sold as the Aeroplane and B and C brands.

G. E. Boulter, manager of the company, is the eldest son of W. Boulter, founder of the firm of W. Boulter and Sons, who were pioneers in the Canadian canned goods industry, manufacturing the Lion Brand of products. Their brand was sold to Dominion Canners, and the present company are an independent concer.

Gordon To Speak

Campbellford, Nov. 7—Mr. G. N. Gordon, Deputy Speaker in the House of Commons, will speak in the High School Assembly Hall on Friday night at 8 o'clock. The Chamber of Commerce has asked him to come and his address will be "The Public Men of Canada." It is the intention to have other speakers here, and they will endeavor to have the University course of lectures.

PUT OFF CELEBRATION

At the Chamber of Commerce Executive Council meeting held in Peterboro advice was received that the City Council had decided that, owing to the erection of the war memorial not taking place until 1926, the Centennial Celebrations would not be held until after that time.

Youths In Wrong

Omemee, Nov. 7.—Four mischievous youths, while on their way home from Omemee, a week ago Saturday night, threw a stone through a window in Mr. W. McConnell's house. The prank did not go unchallenged, as the owner of the house caught the party before they had time to make good their escape, with the result that all four appeared in court on Thursday afternoon. The case lasted all afternoon, and the boy who commited the offence was fined $15 and costs, while the companions were fined $5 and costs. Lawyer E. Anderson appeared for the plaintiff and the case was tried by Police Magistrate Bradford. Provincial Detective Storey of Lindsay was also present in connection with the case.

MADOC

Miss Mary Feeney has been spending the past week the guest of her sister in Marmora.

Miss M. Waddell, of Madoc, has returned home after attending the funeral of her sister in Syracuse, N.Y.

On Friday evening, October 31, the friends and neighbors of Mr. Thos. Marrin gathered at the home of his sister, Mrs. Geo. Walsh, and presented him with a purse prior to his leaving for Detroit. An address was read by Mr. J. A. Caskey, after the usual responses. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and dancing.

The fowl supper held at Hart's Methodist Church on Thursday last was well attended. After a bounteous supper a programme was given in the church, the ladies' and men's quartette of Madoc taking part. An enjoyable evening was spent by all.

With the approach of the hunting season, man hunters are making ready for a holiday in the woods; in fact some have already gone, as it takes some time to get to their camps. We will hope the deer will be more plentiful than the partridge, as there was a scarcity of these birds.

STONE FROM SERBIA USED AS PLATFORM

Oshawa, Nov. 7—A unique feature in connection with the unveiling of "The Garden of the Unforgotten," Oshawa's war memorial on Thanksgiving Day, will be the delivering of the official oration by Canon H. J. Cody, of Toronto from an imprvised platform which will be a stone two and a half feet square and one foot deep, which came from a spot near where the Grand Duke Ferdinand, of Austria was assasinated in Sarajevo, Serbia, which assassination precipitated the great war.

TO HANDLE FORD ADVERTISING HERE

Toronto, Nov. 7.—Announcement is made by the Ford Motor Company of Canada of the appointment of Bryce R. Muir as Advertising Manager. He will have charge of all this Company's advertising, both domestic and overseas. The appointment will be well received in advertising circles in Eastern Canada and Detroit, where Mr. Muir is very well known. Mr. Muir resided in Montreal till he came to make his home at the Border several years ago, and was recently connected with the Brotherton Company of Canada, and Messrs. McKinney, Marsh & Cushing, of Detroit.

USED MATCH TO FIX LEAKY GAS METER

York, Pa., Nov. 7.—An attempt to fix a leak in a gas meter with a match at the bumper plant of the Page Steel & Wire Company in Elmwood resulted in an explosion which injured two workmen. The detonation which followed the sudden ignition of the gas was heard several miles from the scene of the explosion.

The damage to the plant was insignificant, but the meter, one of the large factory type, was blown to fragments.

THOUSANDS ARE GOING HOME FOR THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving this year falling on Monday, November 10th, allows an unusually long week-end, and permits travelling distances which would be impossible in a shorter period. Thousands are arranging to visit the home folks or out-of-town friends.

The passenger Department of the Canadian National Railways are making special arrangements on all routes to provide the public with every travelling comfort. Nevertheless, as it is impossible to estimate the number who will be travelling, it would be wise for all those who anticipate taking advantage of this occasion to make their reservations as soon as possible.

THE ELECTION HABIT

Lethbridge Herald

If it comes to an election every year in Great Britain, it will be a case of the survival of the party which has the heaviest war chest. This is something which is beginning to dawn on the people there.

BYNG ANXIOUS TO MEET MANY AT BELLEVILLE

So He Writes Mayor Mikel; Coming on November 24th

HERE TWO HOURS

Arrives at Two O'clock and Will Leave Again At Four

His Excellency the Governor General of Canada, Lord Byng, is very anxious to meet as many people of Belleville as possible when he comes to the city on Monday, November 24. He instructed his private secretary to write the following letter to His Worship, Mayor Mikel, K.C.:

"I am desired by His Excellency, the Governor General to say that he proposes to visit Belleville on Monday November 24th, arriving at 2 p.m. and leaving at 4 p.m. He will be accompanied by Her Excellency the Lady Byng of Vimy, Miss E. Sandford, (Private Secretary) Captain C. S. Price-Davies, A.D.C. and myself.

"I would be glad if you would forward a proposed programme for Their Excellencies visit, and a copy of any address should it be proposed to present one.

"I am to add that His Excellency is particularly anxious that no expense should be entailed by the Municipality on account of his visit, and he hopes that arrangements will be made so as to enable him to meet as many of your citizens as possible.

"An early reply would be much appreciated.

I am, Yours faithfully,
F. W. Erskine, Captain
Private Secretary

REMANDED TO JAIL FOR ANOTHER WEEK

Revelations of the Dry ages came to light at Friday afternoon's session of police court, when the Indian youth of Deseronto, who was arrested at the Point Anne dance by Provincial officers early Friday morning decided after a gruelling examination at the hands of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, to come through with the truthful story.

The accused was remanded to jail for one week as were his two white and youthful Belleville "companions in trouble", who were also arrested at the dance. One of the others pleaded guilty to the drunk charge, but his story, which he refused to change at the afternoon session, sent him to the hill for a week during which time he may refresh his memory, officers believe. The third boy pleaded not guilty to a drunk charge and was also remanded to the county jail here for one week.

If Inspector F. Naphan is ready to proceed with the trial before the week is out, they will be brought before Magistrate Masson.

Changing a cock and bull story of a train ride to Kingston on Thursday, where he purchased and later drank three bottles of Nerveline, the Indian boy told yesterday afternoon of buying one quart of Rum from a man named Jack MacFarlane at Deseronto on Thursday evening before he drove with a livery man to the Point Anne dance. He maintains that he drank the full quart alone and boasted that he can drink two quarts at short intervals.

Immediately Inspector Naphan telephoned to Chief William Bowen of the Deseronto police force, and asked him to detain MacFarlane. Immediately after court, the Inspector left by motor for Deseronto, where he interviewed MacFarlane.

BUSH FIRE DOES CONSIDERABLE HARM

Milton, Ont., Nov. 8.—The continued dry spell which has lasted for five weeks was responsible for the bush fire which started two days ago in William Fraser's Woods, near Camp bellville, and continued to rage until yesterday when it was got under control by hundreds of fire fighters from the whole district who have worked day and night without sleep or rest. The fire, fanned by the strong gales, threatened at one time to wipe out the village of Campbellville six miles west of Milton. Yesterday morning one hundred men had the fire cornered in a fifteen acre acrea and now eight men are patrolling, drawing barrels of water to spread around that area to hold back the fire until rain comes. The loss of property will total several thousand dollars.

NO PAPER MONDAY

Monday next, November 10th, is Thanksgiving Day, and consequently there will be no issue of The Intelligencer.

FREE THEATRE TICKETS

Look in the Classified columns of this paper every day. You may be the lucky one to receive two free tickets to Griffin's Theatre. Everyone says the pictures at Griffin's are the best in town. Read the Griffin's ad. on page 3 of this paper every night.

The feature picture now playing is "Beau Brummel".

BE THANKFUL!

That coal may be bought in the city.

That there are no immediate election (yet known) after the municipal race in December.

That business is gradually improving.

That an annual opportunity to give thanks is made possible through Thanksgiving.

That the West Hastings bye-election is conceded to E. Guss Porter, K.C., the Liberal-Conservative candidate.

That we have an extra 25 cents to contribute to that worthy cause "Poppy Day".

That there is every promise of ideal holiday weather.

POPPIES SELL WELL IN STREET TO-DAY

War Veteran Drive Finds Ready Response From Belleville

To-day in Belleville streets, the happy holiday shoppers are being asked to help financially in the annual "Poppy Day" drive—every one is being given an opportunity for real Thanksgiving in the form of a small donation to the poppy girls.

This year the proceeds of "Poppy Day" will be used for relief work among the needy war veterans and their families. The object is a worthy one as the ready response will clearly show.

Early this morning the girls and women who are selling the vet craft poppies in the streets, were at their appointed places, as the drive had been carefully planned by the Daughters of the Empire, Argyll Chapter, and no details were left undone.

It was but a short time until most every man, women and child was displaying the brightly hued poppy offered by the vendors, and the product proved to be one of the most marketable products in the city of opportunities.

DEFENDANT PRAYS FOR THE PLAINTIFF

Stratford, Ont., Nov. 8—A striking example of duty to Christian principles was portrayed under trying circumstances in Mitchell, just before noon yesterday. Standing on the witness stand at the Division Court session, giving evidence in a case in which he was the plaintiff, John Walsh died suddenly. Mr. Walsh was a resident of Bornholm and had brought suit against Mr. Kenny a resident of the vicinity. He was a Roman Catholic and there being no resident priest in Mitchell some time elapsed before the arrival of the priest sent for from Logan.

Judge Barron, of Stratford, the presiding judge, announced that someone might recite prayers for the dead and dying. Immediately from out of the crowd assembled in court, arose the defendant in the case, likewise a Roman Catholic, who, with his sisters, advanced to where the man lay, and recited the prayers for the dying. The priest arrived soon after and anointed the body.

TEACHER KILLED STUMBLED ON ROCK

Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 8.—Stumbling over a rock, thus causing his rifle to slip his from his hands and discharge a bullet into his right side and right wrist, James Elder, aged 25 years, of Allenport, Ont., suffered on Tuesday morning last a wound from which he died the following morning. News of the accident, which occurred while Allen was on a trip with the Allenport Hunt Club, about nine miles from the Village of Killarney on the north shore of Georgian Bay, did not reach Owen Sound until late last night when the body, accompanied by Allenport friends, arrived by steamer.

Elder was alone when shot, but shortly after he was found by Dr. Hammond, a veterinary, who was a member of the party. Dr. Campbell, another member, gave medical attention, and Elder was removed to Killarney, which is about 90 miles north of Owen Sound.

The victim was a school teacher and lived with his father, Benjamin Elder, at Allenport.

BELLEVILLE MEN AT "Y" CONFERENCE

Leslie Woodley, Arthur Herity and Walter Harden left today for Kitchener as representatives of the Y. M. C. A. here to attend a conference of the employed boy brotherhood of the Y to be held in that city. The conference opens this evening and will continue until Monday. Mr. C. C. Robinson of New York who is prominent in this branch of Y. M. C. A. work will be one of the speakers. Other prominent men will be present to give addresses.

TUESDAY NEXT WILL BE BUSY DAY IN CITY

Nomination Day for the West Hastings Bye-Election

SPEECHES FEATURE

Prominent Speakers Will Support Both Candidates In Afternoon

Tuesday next, November 11th is nomination day for the West Hastings bye election, found necessary by the resignation of Mr. E. G. Porter, K.C., as a protest against the action of Hon. James Murdock in regard to the Home Bank money withdrawal The proceedings will take place in the City Hall here. Mr. Walter C. Boardman being the Returning Officer. From noon time until two o'clock nominations will be received. Following the nominations, usual oratory will be in order. Mr. E. G. Porter the Conservative candidate and Mr. C. Hanna will be supported by prominent speakers. The proceedings will no doubt be of a lively nature.

To Move For Local Option at Toronto

City Member Issues Strong Words on Liquor Plebiscite

Toronto, Nov. 8.—"The first session of the Legislature I will ask for Local Option. There will be many behind me before that time comes. I know that I owe allegiance to the Premier, but I owe it also to the Conservative party, and I owe allegiance to my constituents, no matter who the premier is. He has said that every man should speak out and express his opinion. If he (the Premier) had not said that I do not know that I would have said as much. This is a serious matter and he should give it serious consideration. And I will say this—that Toronto has been heard of for the last time as solid Toronto unless something is done for Toronto."

These were the closing words of James McCausland, M.P.P. for South west Toronto, at the annual meeting of Ward Three Conservative Association held in Victoria Hall.

The Plebiscite

"We had a fight the other day," said Mr. McCausland, "and I am entirely opposed to the Government in the attitude it has taken. Last session we asked that we be given a decent license law. Well, they did, and I think the questions were fair, but I said that a local option question should have been in there. (Cheers.) That was no sooner done than we were told to keep out of it. Then Mr. Raney started to write letters, and the Rev. Mr. Moore started writing letters ("boo-hoo", said one or two enthusiasts) and the Premier began to answer letters and tell the people what he was going to do, and from that moment it was not a plebiscite, but a referendum, because he told Mr. Moore what he was going to do after this fight.

The Jewish Vote

"You know there was 50,000 majority in this city. There are people who tell you it was the foreign vote. I am sick and tired of hearing about this foreign vote. A Jewish vote is just as good as an English vote. They say it was the foreign sections of the city that didn't go dry. Well, Parkdale didn't go dry. The east didn't do it, and the north didn't do it. They all voted for Government control. Then the Prime Minister ~~got two~~ or three of the Cabinet together and started to manufacture a policy for the people of Ontario. Minorities have some rights. (Cheers). The Premier told the prohibitionists what he was going to do for them, but the 550,000 who voted against it—what is he going to do for them?

Booze at a Decent Price

"This is the first time we have asked for something. That was the right to buy decent liquor at a decent price, and not make thieves and liars of people. Rather than go and be a hypocrite I'll prefer to buy my liquor from a decent bootlegger, and there are decent bootleggers. If I go to the doctor and tell him I am sick to get liquor, I am a liar, and if I tell him that I think I'll be sick, he'll tell me I ought to have a bottle." (Cheers and laughter).

Mr. McCausland said that he had left the Conservative party when Sir William Hearst led it into the "wilderness of uncertainty" and had it shot to pieces. "The present Government is doing the same thing," he said. "They are playing with their enemies at the expense of their friends." People were being practically driven away from the city by the policy of the Government. "Do you want to make this city a village?" he asked.

"No," shouted the audience, and Mr. McCausland added: "If they force this issue there will be a split as far as I am concerned."

Local Horseman Buys Two Hackneys Enters Both in Toronto Winter Fair

Mr. J. C. Panter has sold his thoroughbred Hackney "Count Mac" to a Toronto lady, who will enter the hackney in the Winter fair there. Mr. Panter has imported another hackney to match his chestnut mare "Sunshine" and another hackney horse "War Council" from Chicago. "War Council" arrived in Canada Friday last, and is said to be a beautiful horse of seal brown color, He has very high action and in every way is a wonderful hackney. Both have been entered in the Winter Fair at Toronto by the owner, in tandem, and team classes.

HELPED HIMSELF

(Special to The Intelligencer)

Campbellford, Nov. 8.—Wellington Stevens, wood cutter, single and aged 22, is Canada's most recent presentation of an original man. He removed the four wheels off Daniel Black's buggy and left the buggy "flat". This was on the evening of October 23th.

When he appeared before Police Magistrate Payne his defense was that a curly-headed friend named "Bill" had told him that he owned the buggy and invited him to help himself to parts. They must have been small for Stevens "took four".

The story did not go far with Magistrate Payne, but Stevens will go to the County Jail at Cobourg for 45 days.

FOWL IN PLENTY ON MARKET TO-DAY

People Rush Farmers For Thanksgiving Dinner Material

A feature of the market today was the quantity of fowl offered for sale for Thanksgiving Day. Chickens were in abundance, while ducks, geese and even turkeys were quite plentiful. Turkeys and geese commanded a rate or good figure, the former selling from $3.50 to $6.50 each according to size and quality. The ruling price for geese was $3 or 35c a pound. Ducks sold at $1.25 and $1.50 each. Chickens were reasonable selling at $1.50 to $2 a pair Spring chickens were $1.25 a pair.

Fresh dairy butter was not as plentiful as usual and the ruling price was 45c per pound. Special eggs sold at 50c a dozen and 48c was paid for fresh laid eggs. Cream sold at 30c a pint, honey 15c a comb and 75c for a four pound pail.

Apples were plentiful selling at $1 and $1.50 a bushel, according to quality. Grapes sold at 50c and 60c a basket, being the last of the season.

Vegetables were in abundance and no change in prices were noted. Potatoes sold from 90c to $1 per bag.

Underground Garage Planned in Chicago

Project Calls For Space for Twelve Thousand Cars

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Building of a great underground garage for downtown Chicago is within range of possibility. The South Park commissioners have approved the idea. The scheme is to excavate parking space below the surface of Grant Park, which lies between the loop district and the lake. At the Chicago Association of Commerce it was said the project might call for space for 12,000 cars, would cost between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000, and would be submitted to vote next February.

Promoters of the municipal garage, hold out in its favor that the fee to be charged ultimately may pay for the cost of constructing it. There is some talk of a charge of 75 cents a day. If as high as that there may be complaint from the rank and file of motorists, while if the proposition does not pay for itself, South Side property holders may object to piling on another bond issue, though but one unit of the garage may be asked to start.

Released From Custody

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 8.—Simeon Kaminchikoff, of Grand Forks, B. C., known as the "Czar of Heaven," among the Doukhobors was released from custody yesterday after being held in connection with the Kettle Valley train explosion in which Peter Veregin was killed. His presence at Farron, scene of tragedy was explained by his employment on the section gang, and he had "turned out" with crew to render aid.

TEMPERATURE DROPS THIRTY IN FEW HOURS

Cold Snap Carried on Forty Mile Gale Last Night

FARMERS HARD HIT

They Need Moisture Badly For Fall Plowing Operations

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 8.—A temperature drop this morning of between thirty and forty degrees from balmy "sixty-two above" of yesterday noon, sent folks of this part of Canada shivering into their heavy overcoats.

To-day's coolness was brought in during the night in the teeth of forty mile an hour gale that swept up clouds of dust and fallen leaves and disrupted many arrangements for Thanksgiving motor tours.

Up-to-date the fall weather in this part of the Dominion has been strictly summer like. There has been little rain and farmers have been up against it for moisture in fall plowing operations. While some other parts of Canada have been blanketted with snow, there was no appearance of it here until last night when some whirling guests accompanied heavy winds.

Prospects now, according to the weather man are for colder weather, while in Western Canada the promise is for a "little milder" temperature.

HEAR DEPUTY SPEAKER AT CAMPBELLFORD

Entreating citizens and merchants to stand together in their whole-hearted support of the Chamber of Commerce, as such institutions play a great part in building the prosperity of the town, Hon. G. N. Gordon of Peterboro, Deputy Speaker in the House of Commons, made a strong address before a well attended meeting of Campbellford Chamber of Commerce last night.

Mr. Gordon's subject was "Public Men in Canada," and he briefly sketched the history of the affairs of Canada from the time of Confederation, paying great tribute to the memory of Sir John A. MacDonald, Sir Wilfred Laurier and down the line to Premier Mackenzie King and Hon. Arthur Meighen and he did not forget to mention Tommy Church, M.P., who by reason of his happy manner is a great favorite in the House.

Though bitter political opponents, Mackenzie King and Hon. Arthur Meighen are the best of pals in the House, Mr. Gordon stated and have been friends since college days at Varsity.

Other speakers were Mayor A. J. Meyers., I. A. Humphries, B. J. Lynch C. L. Owen and J. Nelson Stone. Dr. O. C. Watson was chairman and President George A. Kingston of the Chamber of Commerce was also on the speaker's platform.

CAMBRIDGE REFUTES DRINKING CHARGE

Cambridge, Eng., Nov. 8.—A statement made in a medical paper, alleging a great increase in the use of alcoholics among university undergraduates, is strongly repudiated here, and evidence is adduced to show that there never was a time when undergraduates were so moderate in their drinking as at present. Joseph Wells, vice-chancellor of Oxford university, declares the statement entirely unjustified.

"The amount of drinking," he says, "is much less than it was 30 years ago. It is very rare indeed for a man to be seen drunk, except on special festive occasions. There is very little sympathy among undergraduates for the man who allows himself to overindulge in liquor. Wines, as a form of private entertainment, are almost extinct."

College officials and proprietors of hotels and clubs say that beer in small quantities is the staple beverage of English undergraduates, and that there is practically no cocktail drinking.

BOY OF 15 DEFIES SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Welland, Nov. 8.—What course to pursue in the case of open defiance on the part of a lad of 15, who declared he would do something that would entitle him to a jail sentence before he would consent to attend school any longer, occupied some of the time of the members of Welland's Board of Education.

The complaint was laid before the board by Mr. Reilly, who said the mother of the lad had come to him with the ultimatum of her young son, and she sought advice as to what action could be taken to make the defiant juvenile attend school.

No action was taken, as the board did not know what could be done in such a case.

THANKS NORWOOD!

Upon arriving at the Chamber of Commerce where the meeting was held we were given a most cordial reception by Mr. J. O. Herity, commissioner of Industries and manager of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Herity is a former editor of the Belleville Daily Ontario, who was enlisted to promote the advancement of the Hastings County Capital and we understand his efforts are achieving good results. Belleville's citizens have become live boosters and their city is forging ahead and is looked upon now as one of our most wide-awake young cities. We were surprised to learn that Belleville now has some fifty industries. It is also the centre of Canada's greatest cheese and butter producing section. Two trans-continental railways, provincial highways in four direction, and water transportation give it decided advantages. There is no doubt Belleville is spreading out and now that part of East Peterboro has been attached to Hastings County for Federal election purposes the influence of this ambitious city upon this section stands to develop—Norwood Register

INSURANCE MEN HEAR INTERESTING TALK

The Beleville branch of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada held a meeting and luncheon yesterday at noon at the new Queen's Hotel. Mr J. J. McSweeney, Dominion President of the Association, and Mr. J. A. McCamus, General Secretary were the guests and speakers. Mr. George Cole of Imperial Life, Past President of the Belleville Association, acted as chairman for the meeting.

Mr. McSweeney gave an eloquent address taking in the early days of Life Assurance and the present day conditions. He also spoke on the field men of Canada, and Chartered Life Underwriters, as well as the service the Association rendered to the Agents, the Companies and the public. The following members of the Beleville Association were present: George A. Reid Great West Life; Frank Hinchey, Sun Life; Stanley Nurse Imperial Life; W. H. Reeves, Canada Life; Thomas Demo, London Life; George Cole, Imperial Life; W. Salisbury, Excelsior Life; Harold Holton, London Life; H. G. Davison, Northern Life.

YOUTH AT PLAY DARKENS CITY

St.Thomas, Ont., Nov. 8.—A 17-year-old lad, Isaac Mann, appeared in the Police Court yesterday and three others are summoned for today on a charge of having caused damage to the wires of the Hydro-Electric Commission in this city. The lads were the cause of about 5,000 residents being put to great inconvenience and the Hydro-Electric Commission to considerable expense when the entire No. 4 District of the Hydro system lighting the northeast section of the city was put of business and that part of the city was left in darkness fo the whole of last night.

THE WEATHER

Lower Lakes and Georgian Bay—Northerly winds, fair and cold. Sunday, southeast winds, partly cloudy with rising temperature.

Fashionable New York is drifting back to the city, and the smart restaurants are full of smart women in their new Autumn frocks—frocks that are notably shorter and narrower than last season and quite as beautifully simple. Ten inches from the floor is a conservative fourteen. Sleeves are long and close length, many dresses are eleven or twelve and quite a few go as far as and. tailored frocks have tier bands, wrap-around or center-front closing, tailored coat effects, etc. Covert is a smart color and cashmere and ribbed silks are among the newest materials.

Orders Crowd New York Stock Market Twenty Issiues Reach New Peak Prices

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 8—Avalanche of business orders from all sections of the country poured in today's stock market sending more than twenty issues to new peak prices for the year in the first fifteen minutes of trading on a total transactions of 150 thousand shares. Railroads led the advance but spirited bidding also took place in standard industrial shares. Heavy buying of sterling early to-day pushed the demand rate up more than one cent to a new peak price for the year at 4.59 3-4, the highest level reached since July 1923.

EXPECT WOMEN INCLUDED WITH NEW CABINET

Generally Agreed Duchess of Atholl Will Be Member

LATE WIRE NEWS

Chicago Crooks Take Their Time; Tragedy in Paris

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 8.—Viscount Cecil is widely expected to join the new Cabinet as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, which is a more or less ornamental post with few administrative duties. His inclusion would bring the number of cabinet ministers to twenty, probably completing the list. A number of posts outside the Cabinet remain to be filled in the new ministry however. It is generally agreed that the Duchess of Atholl will be the one woman member of the Government. Viscount Cecil as Lord Robert Cecil was Lord Privy Seal in last Conservative administration.

Tendency to Labor?

London, Nov. 8.—J. R. Clynes, former Lord Privy Seal, in an interview yesterday, declared that he feared that private interests of forces dominating Conservatism would now prevent the development of dominions on the lines followed by Labor Government. Referring to J. H. Thomas' work as colonial secretary in the late administrate, Mr. Clynes remarked that the tendency of dominions towards labor rule was now greater than ever before. He said he thought Conservatives would offer dominions nothing more than ultimate hope of form of preference.

Cool Workers

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Six men last night bound and gagged the watchman of the Empire Storage Company and spent several hours breaking in a vault and opening twenty five safety-deposit boxes before they escaped with jewelry and securities, the value of which may run into thousands of dollars.

Terribly Mangled

Paris, Nov. 7.—Returning to their home after a brief absence, Louis Viof, and his wife, residents of suburb of Drancy, found the mangled body of their six-year-old son lying beside the family's German police dog. The dog was removed and is being watched for possible signs of madness. The case has created a considerable stir here as dogs of this breed have been favorites and there are thousands of them in the Paris region.

Let there be harmony in things essential—liberty in things not essential—Charity in all

A TASTE FOR EXPENSE

Whilst economy is preached as a campaigning slogan, and every candidate represents the opposition as a saturnalia of extravagance, a phrase that seldom fails to bring down the house, it is a pity the thrift maxim is not a little more closely applied to election campaigns themselves. It is estimated that the United States pays something like fifteen million dollars for the privilege of electing a President. The alleged apathy of the folk in Main street over political issues does not seem to touch upon the fiscal report. The "slush" fund may be a crush fund or plush fund, but a free and glorious democracy of intelligent voters is mulcted in a bill of costs which would keep the League of Nations machinery in good working order for fifteen years, whereas, the luxury of election referred to will not keep any political party in trim for as many weeks and perhaps we might say days. The benefit to the public of these two bargains, when the work turned off is compared, requires no further comment says the Montreal Gazette.

WESLEY'S PRESBYTERIAN GOWN

What will be the pulpit garb of the clergy of the United Church of Canada? asks the Toronto Star, proceeding to reproduce a painting of John Wesley in Geneva gown, long cassock with girdle and pulpit bands as suggestion.

The Church Union Committee also has issued a bulletin with the pictures of Knox, Milton and Wesley, and, curiously enough to us moderns, the Methodist founder was the only one of the trio wearing the garb usually associated with the shorter catechism.

At least one Methodist preacher of our day, Rev. Trevor Hughes Davies, D.D., of Toronto, wears Wesley's gown and bands in the pulpit and his resemblance in appearance to his gentle leader has been remarked.

It is a far cry from the circuit rider of 150 years ago in knee breeches and gaiters to the voluminous gown of modern city pulpits, but there may be a happy medium for the future. Wesley might serve as a precedent, for his garb was quite Calvinistic, even if his theology was of milder flame.

WHAT DRAWS TOURISTS

One of the most historic and interesting spots in Canada is Fort Chambly, south of Montreal. Fort Chambly is on a direct, paved highway between United States and Montreal, and properly exploited, would draw thousands of tourists annually to visit its impressive ruins. Yet Fort Chambly is ill-kept, and not particularly inviting to the visitor. It is little advertised.

Canada has a government commission looking after its battlefields and historic monuments. If the commission is not efficient, it its scope is not broad enough, if it has not enough money to finance the preservation and exploitation of Canada's national monuments, the situation should be remedied by the government at Ottawa.

Canada hopes to get a revenue of millions a month from tourists. One way to insure a steady revenue from this source will be to tell the world about our storied forts and cities in Nova Scotia, Quebec, the Niagara Frontier and other districts, and to keep these show places attractive and interesting.

Canada should not be less careful of this work than a private corporation would be, that leased them for profit-making reasons. — Financial [illegible]

A HAPPY COUNTRY

But little reflection is needed to give Canadians cause to celebrate Thanksgiving Day in a genuine spirit of thankfulness. To the majority of us, our daily task is buoyed by the constant realization that Canada is a happy home.

Admittedly, it might be much happier under the administration of a Conservative government, but no matter who happens to be in power, the people of the country remain the same always and it is the people, members of a great family, who make the place such a pleasant spot to live in.

Peaceful and industrious, possessing a fair sense of humor, Canadians work together harmoniously. The individual is wrapped up in his family, endeavors to secure his own home and takes a healthy interest in the affairs of his country.

We can be thankful that there is no other country in the wide world at the present time that can measure up to Canada in the matter of happiness.

MODERN CHIVALRY

Mrs. Miriam Ferguson had a hard fight of it as candidate for governor of Texas. She must have experienced something like rough work at times. At any rate she has complained that her opponent was guilty of conduct that was unchivalrous and ungentlemanly.

Without knowing exactly what the conduct was that "Ma" Ferguson complained of, it would be impossible to pass judgment on the justness of her claim; but it is to be remembered that the requirements of chivalry have changed since the days when knighthood was in flower. If there is less chivalry to-day than there used to be in the treatment of women it might be well to ask what the reason is. Does the responsibility not rest chiefly on the women themselves? It is not chivalry they want women want justice and equality. Chivalry implied that women needed the help and protection of man. Women who claim equality declare their ability to take their own part.

However, notwithstanding the experiences of "Ma" Ferguson, down in Texas, and the demands of some women for complete equality with men, there is probably more real chivalry in the world to-day than at any other time. There may not be so much of it in books of romance but it is to be found in the lives of men and women.

AN EDITORIAL

(From the Norwood Register)

A lively bye-election campaign for the Federal House is taking place in West Hastings between Mr. E. Guss Porter, Conservative candidate, and Mr. Chas. Hanna, Liberal candidate According to the Bancroft Times "Charlie" Hanna states if elected he will do his best for a better railway and postal service, and at political meetings reference has been made to the extension of the railway between Bancroft and Whitney. The Times states this would give the people of North Hastings a short and direct route to Ottawa.

As under the new redistribution bill, a part of Peterboro County will be joined up with North Hastings, the promise of a new railway is of interest here. Local politicians have been wondering how the ends of this hundred or more mile riding would ever be reached in an election campaign. The new railway will help solve the difficulty. A member residing say near Asphodel C.P.R. station will be able to ride nearly all the way to Ottawa through his own constituency. Indeed Mr. Gorden M.P., might want to spend a week some Saturday and take the short cut home via the new Government railway. Mr. Denne, President of the Peterboro Industrial Fair, however, will doubtless be opposed to the new railway as everybody would be short-cutting to the Central Canada Fair at Ottawa just when his fair was on.

OLD LADY MAULED BY MASQUERADERS

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 8.—A party of five youths, sons of leading Jordan families on Friday, were on trial here accused of destroying a barn on Hallowe'en, belonging to Mrs. Charles Butcher, living in the neighborhood. They are Harvey and Morgan Wills, Arnold Nethercoate, Clifford McNinch and Orville Honsberger. Mrs. Butcher stated that a party of masqueraders, perhaps thirty all told, descended on her place from a dance in the village, and after first setting fire to an old mattress in front of the building, as if to destroy it, they proceeded to pull down the building. She said it was 83 years old, but good until they ruined it. She didn't recognise any of the destroyers, as they wore masks and false faces. The woman said she tried to dissuade the wreckers from their folly, whereupon she was seized roughly and dragged about the ground. A crowd of Jordan folks attended the trial.

WAIT FOR THE LAME SOLDIER

Once on a time they led the way
  With many a British cheer,
They rushed to meet the hosts of grey
  And never knew a fear.
To-day they do not lead the van,
  For some are maimed or blind:
But now, with faces drawn and wan,
  These heroes lag behind.

Some stumbled on the broken tracks
  And linger in the rear;
And loads we laid upon their backs
  Are more than they can bear.
They'll reach the company ground too late,
  For Fate has been unkind—
Oh, brothers, let us pause and wait
  For those who lag behind.

I hear them call in pleading tones
  When chilly shadows lower,
They stumble 'mid the broken stones—
  Their weary feet are sore.
'Twas they, indeed, who saved the cause,
  And never once repined—
Then, O my brothers, let us pause
  For those who lag behind.

For us they dared to do the deed,
  For us the victory bought,
And now to think that they should need
  Bread—oh! the shameful thought!
Behold the Poppy time is near,
  My friends, be not unkind,
But glad their hearts with British cheer—
  The men who lag behind.

UNIVERSITY COURSES FOR WORKERS

(Ottawa Citizen)

In 1923 the Workers' Educational Association of Ontario conducted 33 classes with a membership of over 1,000, at which lectures on literature, history, economics and other subjects were given by tutors of university and standing. The movement has only been active in Canada since 1919 so that the progress made may be looked upon as an encouraging beginning. The W. E. A. is a workers' organization, controlled by workers and aims to serve the educational interests of the workers. As such it should appeal strongly to trade unionists, whose various unions have given moral and financial aid to it.

NO NEED FOR ALARM

(Christian Science Monitor)

Some unexpected conclusions are contained in the fifth annual report of the Scottish board of health, recently issued, regarding the effects of unemployment upon the general well-being and morals of the nation's workers, the tendency being remarkably satisfactory. It is stated, for example, that there is "ample justification" for the view that unemployment has not had any serious effect on the physical condition of the population. Indeed, the mortality rate last year was the lowest ever known. Then there has been less excessive drinking than ever before, and serious crime has decreased. On the other hand, there has been noticed an increase in betting, money which has been given for the necessaries of life having, in a number of cases been used for this purpose. Presumably, in such a case, the reasoning employed is that he who has little to lose will risk much. Balancing one factor against another, however, the scale tends to show a tipping in the right direction.

To-day's Smile

A clergyman was recently conducting a funeral in Arizona when two shots were fired in the street outside the church. The undertaker at once rushed out, but returned in a few minutes with a smile on his face.

"I've secured both those funerals," he whispered to the parson.

"Child's Eyelids Inflamed Stuck Together and Bled"

Mr. E. P. Kimball, Entwhistle, Alta., writes:

"Our little girl from birth was troubled with inflamed eyelids and in spite of several remedies, grew worse until at the age of sixteen months her eyes could not be opened after sleep without bleeding, a waxy discharge sticking the lids together and adhering with great tenacity. The child's grandmothers were consulted by mail, and both responded with a little sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. These were used as directed, and lasted until we could obtain a further supply from Edmonton. Improvement was very marked from the first application. The waxy discharge was easier removed and did not reappear. Inflammation subsided and has not returned."

DELORME WOULD HANDLE OWN AFFAIRS

Montreal, Que., Nov. 8.—A petition will be presented by counsel of Abbe Delorme, recently freed of the charge of murdering his half-brother, to lift the interdiction against him regarding the administration of the Delorme estate. This petition, which will be filed in The Tutelle Division of the Superior Court, will not be contested by the curators, it is understood.

No official statement was issued Friday by the priest's lawyers, but it was a foregone conclusion when the gates of freedom opened for him that he would immediately make an attempt to handle his own affairs. When the petition is presented the Abbe will automatically assume charge if there is no contest.

No Opposition

Montreal, Nov. 8.—No opposition will be made to raising the interdiction under which Rev. Father Adelard Delorme has been placed since his sanity trial in 1922, it was stated officially Friday morning in the Superior Court.

COULD NOT SLEEP NIGHTS

Pains and Headaches Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dublin, Ontario.—"I was weak and irregular, with pains and headaches, and could not sleep nights. I learned about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by reading the letters in the newspapers and tried it because I wanted to get better. I have got good results from it as I feel a lot stronger and am not troubled with such bad headaches as I used to be and am more regular. I am gaining in weight all the time and I tell my friends what kind of medicine I am taking. You may use my letter as a help to others."—Mrs. JAMES RACHO, Box 12, Dublin, Ontario.

Halifax Nurse Recommends

Halifax, N. S.—"I am a maternity nurse and have recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to many women who were childless, also to women who need a good tonic. I am English and my husband is American, and he told me of Lydia E. Pinkham while in England. I would appreciate a copy or two of your little books on women's ailments. I have one which I keep to lend. I will willingly answer letters from any woman asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. S. M. COLEMAN, 24 Uniacke Street, Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Two Letters Raced Around the World

"C" Won Out by One Second in Unique Radio Experiment

New York, Nov. 8.—Two radio signals were flashed in an opposite direction around the world from the third annual National Radio exposition in Grand Central palace, and the eastbound signal won the race by one second. According to the engineers of the Radio Corporation of America, who conducted the test, this was the first successful attempt to encircle the globe with a single wireless message. The letter "C" sent eastward completed the circuit in five seconds, while the letter "S" made the west ward journey in six seconds.

The difference in time was due to the fact that the winning signal was relayed only three times, while the west ward signal was handled by one additional relay station. The relay points were: Eastward—Paris, Saigon in French Indo-China, and San Francisco; westward—San Francisco, Honolulu, Malabar in Java, and London.

THIEVES STEAL EVEN AT POLICE STATION

Hamilton, Nov. 8.—Hamilton has some "nervy" sneak thieves, but none more nervy than those who have been operating in the yard of the Central Police station.

So active have these gentry become that it has become necessary to lock the gates leading from the yard to King William street.

Yesterday, when Charles Morilla and Charles Partecto, two youths acquitted by Judge Evans on a charge of stealing automobile tires, went to get their automobile, which was held in the station yard while they were awaiting trial, they found someone had been stripping the car.

One tire was gone, the headlights had been stolen and practically the whole kit of tools had disappeared. A number of smaller parts had also been carried away.

ASTHMA NEVER CAME BACK

Since Taking The Fruit Treatment in "Fruit-a-tives"

Read this letter from Mrs. J. M. Pennington of New Rockland, P.Q.

"In 1919, I was taken with Bronchial Asthma and no one knows what I suffered during the winter. I began having choking spells and would just gasp for breath and could not speak. The doctor said he could do nothing for me.

In the spring of 1920, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives" and soon the choking spells became easier and I have not had one since May 7th, 1920. It is such a relief to be able to go to bed and have no thought of having to get up in the night for an hour or more as I did all that winter, but never have to now, all because I take a "Fruit-a-tives" tablet every night.

C. N. R. Juniors Defeat Hi Li and Ramblers Win From Hydro Girls

The Ramblers won from the Hydro girls at the Recreation alleys last night, taking three games in a row. Miss V. Blaind and Miss Adams were high bowlers with 478 and 469 respectively.

In the Junior League the Canadian Nationals won from the Hi- Li by over 200 pins. The Hi-Li were down 800 the first two games but in the last game they rolled 941 against the Nationals 667, Bruce Bottom was the "big noise" of the night with 635, and for the Hi-Li Fleming was high bowler.

The seniors were in a class all by themselves when the Greyhounds met the Kiwanis in a league fixture, the former winning out by over 300 pins and both teams rolling some score below the juniors. Bill White had a night out, when he "spilled the maple" for a total score of 668, White also had the high single score of 269.

"Well want to marry my daughter, I suppose?" snapped the grouchy old millionaire as he glowered at the timid youth before him. Then adjusting his glasses, he added: "By the way, aren't you one of my daughter's former suitors?"

"N-n-no sir," faltered the cheerless one, "but I expect I soon will be one."

Buckey Harris Now Wants an Increase

Washington Manager Suggests Twice Amount of Contract

New York, Nov. 8.—Winning the world championship may be expensive for Washington club owners if they yield to demands of "Bucky" Harris and others for higher salaries.

"Bucky" Harris, youthful manager of the world champion Washingtons, believes in making hay while the sun shines. He wants a salary of $18,000 for the season of 1925, exactly twice as much as his contract called for this year. Report says that President Clark Griffith of the Washington Club, will not yield to young Mr. Harris' ultimatum.

McGraw, it is believed, draws at least $30,000 annually for managing the New York National League team, winners of four consecutive pennants. Cobb's salary is not less than $25,000, and there is Speaker, leader of the Indians, who is said to have a similar contract. But little Huggins, who piloted the Yankees into three successive world series, draws about $15,000.

Nearly all of the major league magnates are violently opposed to the suggestion to reduce the price of admission to world series games. They do not agree with impartial critics who say that "commercialism" in baseball must be curbed. As a result of their attitude, the payrolls of many clubs in the big circuits must be increased before numerous stars will sign new contracts.

The impression among members of the playing profession seems to be that their employers are rolling in wealth. During last season the players on all the teams kept track of the gate receipts, and having a good line on each club's expenses, they were able to estimate the profits.

Connie Mack of the Athletics, it is pointed out, paid more than $100,000 for Pitcher Groves of the Baltimore team. This was the top price for a minor league players. But other major league clubs also invested heavily in new and inexperienced material, thereby creating the impression that they had money to burn.

Commissioner Landis is drawing $50,000 a year, which is double the salary actually paid to Babe Ruth. Cobb, Speaker, Sisler and other powerful drawing cards. Consequently, dissatisfied players are preparing up all along the line to force the club owners to hand over more money. The "commercialism" of baseball is to blame.

Major Club in Difficulty

It has been hinted that a certain major league club might change ownership before next spring. Additional information is at hand. A leading stockholder who was induced to invest his money last winter has grown tired of baseball and is willing to unload at a fair price. This man, it is reported, is dissatisfied with the methods of the club's officials, including the manager, and has refused to "stand a tap" for new players, believing that the team cannot be reconstructed on winning lines and that heavy losses next year are inevitable. So the club is in the market.

Right on top of this interesting gossip comes an inside tip that still another big league franchise is for sale. In this case it will require a large sum of ready cash to eliminate the controlling owner.

HAGEN AND SARAZEN PLAYING TO-GETHER

The first important international match of the winter golf season has been scheduled to take place at St. Augustine, Fla., on December 14, when Abe Mitchell and George Duncan, two of England's foremost players, will meet Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen. Details for the match, which will be at 36 holes and for a substantial purse, were completed recently by John Anderson, representing the British stars, and Ray McCarthy, director of sports of the Florida East Coast System. Mitchell and Duncan are scheduled to arrive in New York on November 29 for their third tour of the United States, in which the clash with Hagen and Sarazen will be the most important on their list. Their complete itinerary will be announced later.

CUT U.S.A. FLAG; GETS SIX MONTHS

Tokio. Nov. 8—Riche Okada, who cut the United States flag from the flagstaff in the grounds of the destroyed American embassy, on July last was sentenced to six months' imprisonment His two accomplices were sentenced to four and two months respectively with a suspension of sentence for two years, which means that if they are of good behaviour during that period they will go practically unpunished.

The judge, in announcing his decision said the unselfishness of motive prompting the deed justified the suspension of the sentences.

Okada cut down the flag during the demonstration held throughout Japan in June and July, as a protest against the United States Immigration act, excluding oriental immigrants from the United States.

Monkey Terrorizes The Neighborhood

Known as Climbing Burglar He Can't Be Caught

London Nov. 8—A climbing burglar who escaped from captivity in a house in Sanson street, Camberwell, S.E., a week ago is still at large He is Joey a pet African monkey, and he has baffled all attempts by police and civilians to recapture him.

Joey's exploits have become the terror of the nieghborhood, He sleeps at night in Brunswick Park and rises early. His specialty is open windows. Having climbed up the drainpipe and frightened away the servants by peering in at the window, he jumps in, seizes any food lying about, and escapes. His "swag" has so far included

A cake of soap (partly eaten on the spot.)

A bunch of bananas.

Several bunches of grapes.

Breakfast table sundries.

Recently he led a crowd of men a stern chase over the housetops in Vicarage road, but after an hour's game of hide-and-seek among the chimneypots the pursuers gave it up.

Joey was then nearly captured in Waterloo street but after another pursuit took sanctuary on the spire of he Presbyterian Church in Benhill road.

A Daily Mail reporter saw him perched gloomily in a tree in Brunswick Park dismayed by the weather.

In despair the police have sent for an expert from the Zoo. If the expert fails to recapture Joey he is to be outlawed and any man's hand may be against him. As a constable put it: "I'm afraid he'll have to be shot in the end."

Expecting Smoke At Baseball Meet

When Ban Johnson and Judge Landis Get Under Way

New York, Nov. 8.—Baseball fans here are astounded by the statement attributed to Judge Landis in the west that Ban Johnson favored paying the Black Sox their "shares" of the world series money of 1920, when the Chicago Club finished second to the Cleveland Indians. The judge made that statement in court under oath, in answering the suit of Happy Felsch and Joe Jackson has entered no denial. His alleged suggestion is incomprehensible.

Without doubt the approaching meeting of the two major leagues under the chairmanship of Judge Landis here early next month will be featured by another battle between the judge and Ban. Every precaution will be taken this time to prevent uninvited ringsiders from getting the juicy details. At Chicago last year the boys were careless. They failed to shut the door of the meeting room and even left the transom open. What the judge said on that occasion was plenty. He's a master of all sorts of language.

Johnson is ready to go before the joint meeting with a demand that it define the duties and rights of the major league presidents on the advisory committee, of which Landis is the third member. Johnson contends that Landis has converted the committee into a board of one—Judge Landis. It remains to be seen what new definition Ban will get. It is bruited about that Clarke Griffith and William Richardson owners of the Washington Club have stepped out from Ban's support on account of his attitude toward the world's series.

It has been suggested that the big leagues hire Madison Square Garden for the meeting and sell ringside tickets at the usual fancy rates demanded for big attractions. The gate would be enormous.

REMOVE PICTURE FROM ITS SHRINE

Rome, Nov. 8.—As a preliminary to the celebration of the 16th centenary of the foundation of the Basilica of St. John Latern, the famous painting of Christ believed traditionally to have been begun by St. Luke and to have been finished supernaturally, was solemnly removed to the Basilica from the Sancta Sanctorium, adjoining the Basilica, where it usually is enshrined.

This ceremony last took place in 1913 on the occasion of the centenary of the edict of Milan, and previously in 1900, the last holy year, It will also be exhibited next year, which has been declared a holy year.

Women - Vote For Fair Play

(Contributed)

The tariff protects the producer, the manufacturer, the farmer and the working man. It is absolutely necessary as a means of raising money to finance the country. The Republicans, just returned to power in the United States by an enormous majority, is a high tariff party, their Fordney Tariff Bill, almost entirely shutting out Canadian farm produce. Why then should we allow their farm products to enter our markets? Every year millions of dollars of our money goes to the United States gardeners for early vegetables and fruits; thus skimming the cream off the market which should be held for the Canadian farmer.

The Conservative party stands for Protection—reasonable, adequate protection for every legitimate Canadian industry. Strengthen the hands of the Conservative party at Ottawa, which is fighting your battle.

The Real Issue

Of course, the big issue of this election is the personal honesty of the Hon. James Murdock and his fitness to continue as a Cabinet Minister. Mr. Porter charged and proved that Mr. Murdock violated his oath of office in using for his private gain information which came to him in his capacity as a minister of the Crown. When a partisan Liberal majority with the help of the Western Progressives, voted to white-wash Murdock. Mr. Porter had no other course to pursue than to resign his seat and appeal to the electors of his own constituency.

West Hastings must re-elect Mr. Porter—West Hastings must put itself on the right side of this question. If public men are permitted to play fast and loose with their solemn oath for petty personal gain, there is an end of public honor.

The women should be the first to speak out in condemnation of Mr. Murdock's conduct. A vote for Mr. Porter is a vote for honesty and straightforwardness. Every woman should vote on the 25th of this month and every woman's vote should be a condemnation of Mr. Murdock's conduct in using private information, given to the Cabinet, in an effort to save his own $4,000 in the Home Bank smash. Vote for fair play, women!

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

"The Marquis of Stoyle," said the other thoughtfully. "That old villain! And this is his nephew. He is immensely good-looking."

"Oh, a splendid fellow. Did you ever hear that story about him——?" and they moved away.

Lord Cecil drank half his soda and brandy, and then went back to his box.

Meanwhile a thrill of excitement seemed to run through those engaged behind the scenes. A theatre is rendered famous by its actors and it seemed that the Theatre Royal, Barton, was going to be made celebrated as the place of the first appearance of a great actress.

"If she can only carry us through to the end!" muttered Jeffrey, as he paced to and fro, his hands clasped behind his back, his eyes flashing fire.

"Oh, she'll do it!" said the manager, who happened to hear him. "Don't you be afraid Mr. Jefffrey; that young lady is a genius! I knew it from the first. She will carry it through to the very last. And about the engagement now? You make your own terms, and I'll agree to them. You'll find me straight and honest——"

But Jeffrey paced on. He was an old theatrical hand, and he knew, full well, that a Juliet may score in the balcony scene and yet fail in the later and more important ones.

But there did not seem much fear of failure with Doris.

Off the stage, and in her dressing room, she was quiet and subdued, but the moment she got on the boards her eyes flew to the centre box, and she seemed to draw inspiration from the handsome face that leaned forward in rapt, almost devout attention.

The play proceeded. The great scene, in which Romeo takes leave of Juliet, his newly-made wife, went with a rush. The audience cheered until it was hoarse. Thrice the young actress was called to the front, and everybody who had brought a bouquet flung it at her feet.

Jeffrey, pale and statuesque, implored Doris to be calm.

"It is not all over yet!" he said warningly. "There is the last scene. Remember what I taught you! It is the last scene in which a Juliet, who is a Juliet, declares herself! Do not let their applause make you forget what is due to your art! I would rather that they remained mute and silent, Doris."

And for answer she simply smiled. She did not tell him that while she could see a certain face in the centre box all would be well.

The pause before the last scene arrived. The whole house was talking in excited whispers. To the Barton folk, ardent theatre-goers as they were, nothing like this had befallen them. A twitter of excitement ran through the house, and amongst the crowd that thronged the lobbies Lord Cecil walked about, as excited as the rest.

Suddenly, as if he had been stricken by an idea, he turned up the collar of his coat and made his way through the press to the streets and looked about him eagerly.

Some women selling oranges came hurrying up to him, and amongst them a woman with a basket of violets.

He bought the whole contents of her basket, and bade her tie them together; then, with the flowers in his hand, he went back to the theatre; but, instead of going to his box, he made his way to the stalls and stood close to the orchestra.

The last scene came on. Again it is unnecessary to describe it; the grim and solemn vault the beautiful figure of the girl in the death throes, the terrible agony of Romeo, were all here, tendered real and lifelike by the genius of the actors.

Spellbound, the house watched and listened in profound silence. Listened to the passionate, despairing plaint of Romeo, and the deeper agony of Juliet who awakes to find her lover dead.

Never, perhaps, since the play was played, was actress more touching, more tear-compelling than Doris Marlowe that night at the Theatre Royal, Barton, and as her last words died away in solemn silence, a great sob seemed to rise from the crowded house.

Then the sob gave place to a thunder of applause. Once more the sober audience seemed possessed by a spirit of delirium; men sprang to their feet and waved their hats, women rose and waved their handkerchiefs with which they had wiped away their tears; and cries of "Juliet! Juliet!" resounded through the theatre.

A pause, and presently Romeo appeared, leading Juliet by the hand.

The audience stormed and cheered as one man, and those who had not already thrown their bouquets to her threw them now.

She was pale to the lips, and the blue eyes looked almost black as she bent them on the cheering crowd, and like a queen bowed beneath the tribute of their devotion, she bent her girlish head low.

THE ENGLISH SPARROW'S SERVICES TO AMERICA

English sparrows are slowly mak- [illegible] invaded Alaska during the spring of this year, and that their presence on the American Continent is not unwelcome is shown by a recent tribute paid to their usefulness by a well-known American writer.

They came not as stowaways, like the detestable tarantula in bunches of bananas, he says. Their advent was dignified, as became a race that had splashed in the fountain of the Middle Temple, and figured in the classic literature of Old England. Brought overseas for the benefit of the inhabitants of a new country, they rendered signal service. As faithful stewards they did more than was required of them, for they cleared the land of great quantities of weed-seed, and blessed the coming crops.

If they also partook of waste food from garbage and kitchen offal, and of seeds deftly picked from the droppings of horses—a trick learned in the London streets—who would grudge them that toll of scavenging, or the gleaning of a little scattered grain? Yet they lived to be maligned as mischievous marauders and to taste the bitterness of men's ingratitude.

A brief retrospect of yearnings after the sparrow in Brooklyn, New York City, and Rochester, and of lectures in his praise before learned societies, who presumably understood their business, proves the determined efforts to introduce the youngster, continues the writer, till finally Philadelphia beat the record by a bouncing importation of one thousand—and thereby hangs a tale.

The city, seeking to rid herself of the objectionable spanworm, which, descending in large numbers on long, silken threads from the shade trees, and crawling over the clothes of the passers-by, became a pest, thought at last of those adorable sparrows of her dreams; and sure enough these little knights of St. George came, saw, and conquered the dragon.

But Nature has her revenges, and frequently turns with grim irony on those who try to thwart her—or on those who behave with ingratitude. The first plague being removed from competition, the larvae of the tussock-moth, became the predominant parasite of the city trees. These repulsive vermin with bristling hairs that irritated, expressly provided by Nature for their protection, were too obnoxious for any self-respecting bird to touch.

Could well-bred sparrows be expected to devour nuisances to order, and to digest all their disgusting caterpillars? The feathered legion, anxious enough to oblige, determined that they must draw the line.

So when they took this stand certain ill-conditioned fellows of the baser sort started a cry against those "pestiferous creatures," and said they should be exterminated by fair means or foul. Then began a slogan of abuse against "those English sparrows," which was secretly swelled by certain malevolent influences, faint murmurings of a far-off hymn of hate, which at a distance was eventually to draw down judgment on another nation.

However, in spite of this artificial ill-feeling, these workers have made many friends among American writers, who see further than immediate utility, and who can appreciate an interesting bird, which illustrates some of Nature's subtler laws.

As a community and welfare worker who can beat him in congested districts where he chirps so cheerily and chums with women and children, whose drab lives are divorced from nature? asks the writer. Nobility of spirit makes him turn his back on the freedom and beauty of mountain and prairie to haunt the dark ravines of side streets, so sterile, and the dizzy canons of skyscrapers so barren and dreary, which nearly shut out Heaven's sunshine, only that he may lighten the burden of poor humans, who pine for the open country. It is his God-given mission. Compensations are never wanting in nature, nor reciprocities in her devotees.

Artists and bird-lovers, and field naturalists he finds everywhere, adds this enthusiastic American admirer of the English sparrow, and gentle folks, on whose apparently forbidden city cliff dwellings there are hospitable ledges, storey high, from whose opening windows crumbs are scattered and kindly winged thoughts, while there goes up a gracious whispered antiphon "He prayeth best, who loveth best, all things both great and small for the dear Lord who loveth us he made and loveth all"—words which brighten the dreariest outlook with a benediction.

SCIATICA

There are two or possibly three forms of sciatica. The first is a simple neuralgia affecting the sciatic nerve; the pain, although possibly severe, is of moderately short duration, and the patient probably will get well without any treatment beyond rest and gentle rubbing with some counter-irritant such as capsicum or mustard embrocation. Of course massage and the application of heat—either hot-water bottles along the leg when in bed or baking or even "ironing" very gently over a layer of flannel—are also of great help. A second form is a true neuritis, or inflammation of the sciatic nerve or one or more of its branches. That condition is much more serious, for, although, as in most cases of simple neuritis, the patient, if properly cared for, probably will get well eventually, the period of recovery will be long; weeks and months may pass before he obtains complete relief. Still another affection that often is mistaken for sciatica and is so called is not sciatica at all, but really is muscular rheumatism confined to the back of the thigh. The pain, fortunately, is usually not severe; the chief difficulty is that any movement of the affected leg causes great distress. The affection usually does not last long; and massage and a few doses of a solution of bicarbonate of soda, citrate of potash or some other alkaline potion will help it. It is always necessary—or at least it is best—to discover the cause of continuous pain in the area of the sciatic nerve, for the pain may not be sciatica at all but may be owing to disease of the hip or to a tumour's pressing on the nerve somewhere along its course from the origin of its fibres in the spinal cord to their distribution in the leg or in the foot.

Thankful Mothers

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little one she would use nothing else. The Tablets give such results that the mother has nothing but words of praise and thankfulness for them. Among the thousands of mothers throughout Canada who praise the Tablets is Mrs. David A. Anderson, New Glasgow, N. S., who writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my children and from my experience I would not be without them. I would urge every other mother to keep a box of the Tablets in the house." The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach; drive out constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail at 25c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WORK FOR WORK'S SAKE

Work thou for pleasure; paint or sing or carve
The thing thou lovest, though the body starve.
Who works for glory misses oft the goal;
Who works for money coins his very soul;
Work for work's sake, then, and it may be
That these things shall be added unto thee.

THE LIBELLED TENNIS-PLAYER

I heard of a young woman who gave her family this reason. She said if she looked half as ridiculous and grotesque during a set as any of the published photographs of famous players, it was time to quit. This was called to mind by a letter to the English Press recently in which a player protests thus:

"I think it is time some protest was made against the grotesque photographs of well-known women tennis-players that are published so frequently in the illustrated press. One cannot help thinking that the men who take these photographs and the editors who publish them take a special delight in showing the women players in the most awkward and unnatural positions. The camera cannot lie, we know, but it can distort, and anybody who has watched good tennis being played knows that the players never appear in these grotesque attitudes to the ordinary spectators—any more than a racehorse is ever seen in the wooden attitude shown in an instantaneous photograph. Many of the leading women players of to-day are particularly graceful on the courts."

NATURE LORE

FEEDING WINTER BIRDS

Folks are the same, the world over and when we say this we may be permitted to include the birds, for they are just like human beings in so many ways. If you get your winter table or boarding house spread in working order for the birds, you will see what I mean. Those who have ever lived in a boarding house know that the different boarders come to the table at the same time, as a rule but there the sameness ends, for some are greedy, some are snappy, some are haughty, and some are regular teasers.

I remember last winters outdoor bird dining car affairs very well. For some reason nature knows all about, we usually find nut hatches in company with wood peckers in the winter. They seem on friendly terms but have a regular set of rules, for they keep out of each others way. I have wondered if the nuthatch locates food that he cannot dig out and the woodpecker gets it but this is only guessing, at any rate, they remind me of people, for they act so nicely or so badly.

It seemed to be a rule that nice weather meant nice manners and bad storms knocked out all the rules. Every bad snowstorm is danger and every prolonged storm or sleet with freezing, means death to many birds unless they get help. It is like a relief train to a city that has had an earthquake, to get food at the shelf.

When the earthquake and fire took place in San Francisco, we saw pictures of Mrs. De Bunk and Mrs. Scrubber sitting together on a soap box, drinking soup from empty tomato cans, the soup having been supplied by the army kitchen. They pulled hunks of bread from the same loaf. But after the storm was all over, Mrs. De Bunk got very dignified again and Mrs. Scrubber had to go by the rules and keep at a mannerly distance. Well, it is just like that in Birdland, at least it was that way last winter at my bird table. In nice weather, there might be some sparrows and saucy chicadees feeding, making a terrible fuss and seeming to enjoy the scattering of the seed, all of which my little girl and boy enjoyed through the window as we watched, no particular advantage being held by any particular birds but suddenly there is a woodpecker call from over in a nearby tree. Silence! Then the birds go on eating again but not so freely, then some leave the table. Swoop, swoop, down comes Mrs. Woodpecker. That ill mannered gossip, Mrs. Nuthatch actually remains until Mrs. Woodpecker has arrived and then, right in front of her, as though to show Mrs. Woodpecker that she is not the only pumpkin seed on the table, Mrs. Nuthatch grabs another nice piece of suet and sticking her nose up in the air, gives a mocking "Yank-Yank" and hops off into the air.

Mrs. Woodpecker sits there in great dignity and is in no hurry to show her boarding house reach either. She looks things over with a trained eye, very quietly and with every show of manners of long and careful training. After all the formalities have been gone through, she nibbles a little suet, takes a piece of this and that and then more suet and takes her time, all the other birds hanging about waiting. When Mrs. Woodpecker has wiped her mouth and twisted her head nearly off, trying to catch two bugs on her back, she quietly leaves the table and seldom comes back twice at the same meal. After she leaves, the fun starts all over but when Mrs. Nuthatch is there, there seems to be a different set of rules again. That woman is not as swell a dame as Mrs. Woodpecker but she must be Somebody, for she takes liberties with Mrs. Woodpecker and she gets a certain amount of respect from the crowd, for they remain sometimes with her and eat in a mannerly way and sometimes she freezes them with a look and they keep at a distance.

All this going by rules and watching for who is the big pumpkin seed of Birdland, seems to be knocked in the eye, when bad weather comes along. It does not matter who was king or queen yesterday, if there is a bad storm on or if one has just ended. There is so much danger to the birds in bad weather that those who can get around and are safe once more, are glad enough to eat like Mrs. De Bunk and Mrs. Scrubber and so, all the rules are suspended until half dead birds, that must eat without delay or die, get a chance at the food.

It seems to be a rule of good mother Nature that rules of etiquette are suspended in times of danger and it gives us and the children a wonderful feeling of happiness to look out of the window when a big snow storm has covered all food in the fields and woods and see timid wild birds getting emergency food that must, in many cases, be their only salvation. But why was Mrs. Woodpecker queen of our table? Next week the story will be "Why she was Queen."

YOUNG GIRL KILLED AT WESTERN CROSSING

Toronto, Nov. 8.—In trying to cross the C.P.R. crossing at Weston road and Dundas street at 12 o'clock Thursday night, Miss Elsie Boult, aged 23, of 13 Fermanagh avenue, was run down by a light shunting engine and instantly killed. The young woman had been suffering from ill-health for some time and her nervous condition is believed to have been responsible for her confusion and for her action in trying to cross the tracks while the gates were down. The girl's head was badly mangled and both feet were severed at the ankles.

Mince one onion fine and brown in 2 tbspns. butter. Then add 1 tbspn. flour and stir until well blended. Add 1 cup stewed tomato and cook until the sauce thickens. Then add 1 pt. of oysters drained, and simmer gently until the edges of the oysters have curled. Season with 2 tspns. finely chopped parsley, 3-4 tspn. salt and ½ tspn. Tabasco (if desired). Serve on hot, buttered toast.

POEMS Old And NEW

GIFTS

By Theodocia Pearce

God—Thou has made the world so beautiful,
A flock of birds on pinions fleet and strong.
Then—though it were not yet enough to soar—
Gave to them song.

God—Thou hast made the world so beautiful,
A bower of June with roses gay abloom,
Then—though it were not yet enough to grow—
Gave them perfume.
God—Thou hast made the world so beautiful,
A million beings, soul their priceless gem,
Then—though it were not yet enough to live—
Gave Love to them.

IN MEMORY OF J. M. Stratford

You are not dead—Life has but set you free!
Your years of life were like a lovely song,
The last sweet, poignant notes of which, held long,
Passed into silence while we listened, we
Who loved you, listened still expectantly!
And we about you whom you moved among
Would feel that grief for you were surely wrong—
You have but passed beyond where we can see!
For us who knew you, dread of Age is past!
You took Life, tiptoe, to the very last;
It never lost for you its lovely look;
You kept your interest in its thrilling book;
To you Death came, no conqueror, in the end—
You merely smiled to greet another friend!

THIS OLD WORLD OF OURS

As we follow the trail, in this old world of ours,
It isn't all sunshine, or bright colored flowers,
There is many a rose, with thorns pricking through,
There are many friends false, when we think they are true.

There is many a smile, that is hiding a tear,
When we think their lives, are cloudless and clear,
Where it not for the smiles, and bright colored flowers,
'Twould be dreary enough, in this old world of ours.

I suppose if there never, were trouble or sorrow,
We would not enjojy the sunshine of to morrow,
Nor would there be brightness in blooms of the flowers?
If nothing else grew, in this old world of ours.

SELECTIVITY

—of—

Atwater-Kent RADIO SETS

Many types of radio receiving sets deliver a sufficient volume of sound from distant broadcasting stations, but they are not selective—that is, they cannot separate two stations both broadcasting at the same time, on waves of nearly the same length.

All large centres boast of several broadcasting stations, and unless the receiving set is keenly selective, it is difficult, in fact almost impossible to tune out local broadcasting and tune in distant stations, unless they are operating on widely different wave lengths.

The balanced sensitiveness of the latest models of Atwater-Kent Receiving Sets, overcome these difficulties to a marked degree, so that two or more stations, broadcasting at the same time, can be separated and the desired station tuned in clearly and without troublesome interference.

BRIGHT, BUT SLOW

The inhabitants of the New Forest one of the few woodland regions left in England, are truly Arcadians. Mr. H. A. Vachell, the novelist, who lives there, writes that there are men and women there who have never been so far from home as Southampton, the principal city of the county. During the war one of the ancients asked Mr. Vachell, "Whatever are we goin' to do wi' the Frenchies when we've beaten un?" He believed England was fighting the hereditary enemy! Mr. Vachell tells another story. "An old man was asked whether he had ever been to London. "Aye, that I has." he piped cheerily. "They come to me an' asks me to form part of what they calls a depitation. 'Lard love 'ee,' I says, 'I ain't got no closes fit for Lunnon town.' I says, 'Never you mind' says they; 'do 'ee come along wi' us.' An' I did. Well, we all marches so grand and gay down that there street they calls Regency Street, when all of a sudden-like a gert, red-faced man atop of a bus yells out: 'Halt!' Course we halted, and then he says, 'How in blazes do they keep the crows off the wheat when you fellers come to town?' We was ondeniably down-scrambled, we was; but a very notable answer blowed into my yed just a fortnight afterwards. 'Twas in November when we was marchin' down that there Regency Street, an' in November there be no wheat to keep crows aff!"

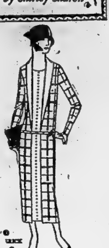
FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



The vogue of plaids has added many new members to the Highland Clans and has also produced many new plaids that are more French than Scotch in nationality.

Plaids are very smart this Autumn for a simple type of day dress. They were conspicuous among those present at the polo matches and you see them daily in the new redingotes during shopping hours on the Avenue and in ensemble traveling costumes worn by late arrivals from Europe. A plaid is particularly nice for the redingote, for with a plain front it gives the effect of a narrow coat and dress costume. These redingotes are one of the new tailored dress styles and make extremely nice street costumes for the Autumn when you don't need a coat but want the coated look.

ANOTHER NATION FOR THE LEAGUE

(Philadelphia Public Ledger)

Spain has been beaten to a stand still in Morocco. She is now seeking peace with the native tribes upon virtually the same terms she offered in July, 1923. Her final effort at subjugation, which followed rejection of these terms, her year of fighting under the advantage of a government dictatorship, has, apparently, proved worse than futile; for the tribes flushed with victory and regarding themselves invincible hope to follow Turkey's example and free themselves from the foreign yoke. Morocco, like Turkey, situated at a strategic point along one of the most important lanes of world commerce, has been dominated politically by the big nations. In 1912, the whole territory with the exception of the Tangier area, was divided by Spain and France and protectorates imposed. If the natives of the Spanish Rif are able to set up anything like an independent nation, a new deal will be called for involving all the big nations, including the United States—just as was the case with Turkey. A precedent such as was set at Lausanne is apt to go a long way in international politics.

Letters to Editor

AN APPEAL

Dear Mr. Editor,—

May I talk to the mothers of our community through your columns?

I would like to ask every father and mother to make it a point to come to a community service which is being held at the Griffin Opera House Sunday evening, November 16. The manager of the Theatre has given us a very generous offer. And it is hoped that many will attend following their respective church services. Members of every denomination are cordially invited to hear the short illustrated talk on the work done in the Italo Mission Church which Mrs. Schuster Sr., organized, and was actively associated with until her death a few years ago.

Others are now carrying on the work which she left and it will prove gratifying to know that an old Albert College student, Rev. George Buckingham of Stayner who was in Belleville last summer in connection with Daily Vocational Bible Classes will be present to continue his interest in the welfare of Belleville's children. If you haven't little ones of your own, come and get interested for the children's sake.

Rev. Mr. Buckingham, it will be remembered, created much interest in this city last summer in his way of using the seven vacation weeks to a very helpful advantage to our community of tomorrow without remuneration of any kind.

This work provided instruction to 175 children along the helpful lines of kindergarten work for the tots sewing for the older girls drilling, singing, the memorizing of songs and Bible parables. The older boys were taught hammock making at the Y.M.C.A. and best of all it gave many a mother the assurance that her children were not in danger of accidents in the streets.

For a certain number of hours each day they were safely taken care of in healthy helpful occupation and no expense. The weekly treats of ice cream proved a success.

Mr. Buckingham is spending his thanksgiving with his mother. He has consented to stop off on his way to Ottawa and will give us his views of next summer's similar campaign here. We owe him more than money can repay for his efforts on our behalf. We, as well, to do self-respecting people should not accept the services of our young girls vacations free to help for the advancement of the city pupils. They gave daily services in our behalf and let us show our appreciation by crowding the house on Sunday evening, November 16, giving a free will offering to help make a contribution worth while, though late.

There will be community singing and an illustrative talk on the "Pearl of Great Price," by Mr. Buckingham, just enough of a program to help us to help each other for good. May we ask the clergy of the city to assist by announcing the meeting from their respective pulpits this Sunday, the ninth inst.

Very respectfully, I am,

BEATRICE JONES,

260 Dundas St.

Winnipeg Mother Finds Ideal Remedy for Colds of Children

A Vaporizing Salve which Relieves Colds Over Night and Croup in Fifteen Minutes. Nothing to Take—Just Rub It Over Throat and Chest.

Master William Butterfield

Mothers everywhere will be interested in the experience of Mrs. W. Butterfield, 627 Carydon Ave., Winnipeg, Man. Mrs. Butterfield tried the new external remedy for colds, Vicks VapoRub, when it was first introduced in Winnipeg and writes:

"My three-year-old boy, William, became very sick with what seemed to me like a pneumonia cold accompanied with indigestion. He was a very sick boy for two weeks. One night I grew alarmed—he breathed so quickly and was so restless. I rubbed him with Vicks VapoRub and the result was quite gratifying. He breathed more easily and I was able to get a little sleep myself. The next two nights I again rubbed him with Vicks with still better results and he became as bonny as ever. I surely appreciate Vicks VapoRub and shall use and recommend it at all times."

Vicks is just as good for adults. It is the direct treatment for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, catarrh, head or chest colds. When rubbed over throat or chest, Vicks has a two-fold action. Internally it is inhaled as a vapor and at the same time, externally, absorbed like a liniment. This double action seldom fails to give immediate relief.

THE SERVICE TAX

Calgary Albertan

This service tax, a direct descendant of the famous Hugill tax, does not seem likely to get us very far toward removing the burdens of taxation. It was founded on the wrong principle and will not be effective, however worked. The idea that the other fellow should pay the taxes will always be very popular but it is not the kind that ever results in securing very much revenue.

Hot Water and Calomel

CLEANS AND TONES UP THE WHOLE SYSTEM

You need not fear any bad after-effects, no salts or Seidlitz are needed when you take the new tanol calomel. It is the best medicine in the world for headaches, indigestion, gas on the stomach, constipation, high blood pressure, bad taste in mouth, rheumatism poisoned system, etc. One tanol calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime, and a cup or two of hot water first thing in the morning will wash all the previous day's wastes, gases and toxins from the system, making you feel better, eat better, work better, digest better, and be 100 per cent. better in every way. Get a few of these simple tablets from McKeown's Drug Store and you will be surprised how effective they are.

Sulphur Will Clear Skin Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

GLASSES are a Simple Remedy

EYES are lenses. By muscular power—you change the shape slightly. Doing so focusses light rays so that you see clearly near and far objects. Slight defects in the shape of the eye make the muscles work extra hard to focus light—strain them, causing headache and other distress. A properly ground lens of glass will refract the light, focusing it sharply so the muscles won't have to work so hard, thereby ending strain. We are expert in fitting glasses to end eye strain. Consult us about your eyes.

Griffin Picture Is Laugh Maker

"Her Temporary Husband" To Be Shown on Monday

The confusion of whiskers jumble things for a certain houseful of people whose activities form the basis for the side-splitting farce comedy. "Her Temporary Husband," which comes to the Griffin Theatre Monday for a three day showing.

Sylvia Breamer, the heroine of this hilarious laugh-provoker, must marry within twenty-four hours to win a fortune. She wants the fortune but not the partner that goes with it. So she marries a grave-yard candidate, a "youthful" chap of about ninety-five summers.

Lucky for Owen Moore, her enterprising admirer, the intended groom sports a heavy crop of whiskers. Owen dons cheaters, masquerades as the dying "victim" and gets married to the girl—then complications.

Before the amusing situation is straightened out almost everyone in the bridal home are 'hiding behind the rushes.' A gang of ruffians come to kill the bewhiskered bridegroom. Then it is a case of "on ag'in off ag'in Finnegan" as the bewhiskered masqueraders try to keep one jump ahead of the 'bold' bad villains.

The picture was made to produce laughs—to be a genuine gloom chaser—and it lives up to its mission with a vengeance.

John Seiler, furniture dealer of Eden Grove, was seriously injured in a fall from a tree while picking apples. He sustained a compound fracture of the right leg below the knee and was otherwise painfully bruised.

Feet of Clay is Timely Photoplay

Cecil B. DeMille's Paramount Production at Belle Theatre

Cecil B. DeMille's newest production for Paramount "Feet of Clay" adapted from the popular magazine serial by Margaretta Tuttle, featuring Rod La Rocque, Vera Reynolds, Victor Varconi, Ricardo Cortez Julia Faye Theodore Kosloff and Robert Edeson and which opens a three days' run next Monday at the Belle Theatre, is an absorbing, timely story, opening with a yachting party and beach carnival at Catalina, punctuated by a dashing race by twenty beautiful girls on surfboards behind fast speedboats, and brought to a period by the maiming of Rod La Rocque, fighting with a shark to protect Vera Reynolds.

Despite the rage of the wealthy Bertha Lansell, played by Julia Faye who is very interested in Kerry Harlan, (La Rocque), the latter is married on shipboard to Amy Loring (Vera Reynolds), Bertha's half sister Robert Edeson is Doctor Lansell (Bertha's husband).

Back in New York, six months in a Harlem flat finds Amy, though happy, quite ready for a dance given by her half-sister. At the dance, Harlan has to be a wall-flower. Ricardo Cortez, playing Tony Channing, a wealthy rival, dances with Kerry's wife. At the encore, Harlan, unable to endure it longer, takes the floor, dances and collapses. It develops that his foot has now been so injured that death may come if he uses it within a year. It's now up to Amy Loring to support her husband. Theodore Kosloff, playing Bendick, a modiste, employs her model in his establishment.

Then back and forth, we see the play of two dramatic forces. Harlan helpless knowing his wife needs recreation, has a dagger driven into his heart as Channing appears with his invitations. Amy, on her part, comes home at lunch time to find Bertha Lansell deluging the invalid with the things that money can buy. And in the background is the husband.

The young couple come to an absolute impasse. Disaster impends And then in a manner novel, dramatic, DeMille cuts the knot and brings the story to a striking end through the introduction of a one-act play by Beulah Marie Dix called "Across the Border."

"Feet of Clay" is Cecil B. DeMille's best production to date.

CHIEF OF POLICE COLLECTING FINES

Guelph, Nov. 8—Chief of Police Rae has inaugurated a campaign to collect all outstanding fines, which amount to a substantial sum.

He placed Gus Strome, head of a cartage company who was recently fined $200 on an O.T.A. charge, under arrest and lodged him in the county jail.

Warrants are out for the arrest of others who have offended in a like manner, and the head of the police department states he will give no quarter, it being a case of pay up or be locked up.

LAY CORNER STONE

Port Hope, Nov. 8—Port Hope citizens were well represented Thursday afternoon at the laying of the corner stone of the new school on Ward St. The weather was delightful for the occasion, and, while every walk of life was represented by the grown up people, the outstanding event no doubt was the attendance of the school children from all the public schools in town to the number of 700.

Dr. McKinley, Chairman of the Public School Board, was the chairman of the proceedings, and was accompanied on the platform by Dr. Powers, ex-Chairman of the School Board, Dr. Orchard, of Trinity College School, Dr. Rigby, Rev. F. W. Anderson, Prof Carman, ex-Mayor F. L. Curtis, H. A. Ward, K.C. Mr. J. A. Hume, Rev. H Wood, M. A. E. Meadows, M. R. Hayden, Mr. Geo. GIN PILLS
FOR THE KIDNEYS
THE WORLD'S BEST REMEDY FOR ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLES

MOTHER OF SEVEN HAILED TO COURT

Hamilton, Nov. 8.—Provincial Officers Williamson and Griffiths of the local O.T.A. enforcement squad raided the home of Lucy Williams, 39 Stuart street east.

After an exhaustive search of the premises they discovered a "hide" in a hole under the kitchen floor covered by the ash box. There they found 25 bottles containing what the officers claim is "moonshine" and bearing what they say are fake labels, also 11 bottles of beer.

Mrs. Williams was not arrested but simply summoned because she had seven children. She brought all seven to court with her thsi morning. After court the magistrate told her to leave them home when her case comes up for hearing.

A Grateful Letter

"I wish from my heart I could persuade every person who is run down in health to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial." Thus writes Mrs. Louie Mitchell, Oak Point, Man., who further says:— "About a year ago I was a weak woman, suffering from a run down system and impoverished blood. Any little exertion would cause my to tremble and my heart to throb violently. I could not sweep a room or walk fifty feet without being exhausted. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking only six boxes I am well and strong as ever. I can walk and run without stopping every few seconds gasping for breath as previously. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my stand-by in the future if ever my blood needs building up again, and I shall always find pleasure in recommending them to anyone needing a tonic.

There are many troubles due to weak, watery blood which can easily be overcome by a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The sole mission of this medicine is to enrich and purify the blood and when that is done all the varied symptoms of anaemia disappear, and good health returns. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

TEACHER DISAPPEARS

Lindsay, Nov. 8.—The hurried departure from this town of a prominent school teacher—a principal of one of the Public School—has started tongues wagging, and many rumors of a serious nature are in circulation. It is understood that the teacher handed in his resignation to the chairman of the Board of Education at the week-end and then left town on Monday.

Only two members of the Board —the chairman and vice-chairman— were aware of the reasons which led to the teacher's departure and these were laid before the Board at a private meeting on Tuesday evening, when a report of a rather serious nature was presented. The members of the Board refuse to disclose the facts, but declare that it is better for all concerned that the facts of the case are suppressed.

The teacher in question had been in Lindsay for three or four years. He had been very successful in his profession, was prominent in church and societies, and esteemed by a great many.

A NATIONAL ASSET

As the greatest transportation company in the world, the Canadian Pacific Railway has maintained a national service in the Trans-Canada Limited which is second to none and on the conclusion of the summer schedule of this crack train has transferred the equipment to the Vancouver Express which leaves Toronto every night at 10.10 p.m. on its trip across the continent, via Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, the spiral tunnel, Sicamous and parts of the Canadian Pacific Rockies famous throughout the world, on its way to Vancouver, where the travellers are unanimous in their praise of the service of the Vancouver Hotel. The Canadian Pacific also operates a steamship service to Victoria, the Mecca for winter tourists.

Not only does the Vancouver Express carry tourist and standard sleepers, but it also carries a compartment-observation car complete in itself, while a parlor car is added from Revelstoke to Vancouver.

Added to this national service is a feature service from Toronto to Montreal via the Lake Shore Line, which has been entirely reballastd with crushed rock and relaid with 100 pound rails, insuring a maximum of comfort for travellers at night as well as an absence of dust in daytime. Trains leave Toronto Union Station at 9.00 a.m. daily, 10.00 p.m. daily except Saturday and 11.00 p.m. daily. Arriving at Windsor Station, the traveller has the benefit of immediate facilities in the women's rest room, lunch room and barber shop, which cannot be duplicated in any other station in Montreal. An added convenience is offered those who wish to travel to Montreal from North Toronto in the 9.45 p.m. train, daily except Saturdays ,from Yonge Street Station.

Canadian Pacific agents will gladly make your reservations and supply you with any information you require They are fully qualified to offer a "second to none" service to the public.

District News

Kingston, Nov. 8—No further trace of the remainder of the skeleton which apparently was unearthed somewhere north of Parham, has been found, the only thing in the hands of the authorities at that village being the skull brought to the farm of Mr. B. Good by his dog.

Thursday afternoon thirty-five people were out searching for further remains, but nothing was found. The skull was examined by Coroner Gedes, but no light on the identity of the man naturally could be found. The fact that the jawbone was missing would give rise to the belief that foul play was the cause of the man's death, but this, too, remains unsolved.

Found Body

Kingston, Nov. 8.—The body of a man, believed to be one of the members of the crew of the steamer Glenlockie of the Great Lakes Transportation Co.'s line which went ashore Thursday morning on the Charity Shoals as a result of the heavy storm during the night before and the early morning was found Thursday afternoon by Messrs. J. R. and F. N. Belyea fishermen of Simcoe Island a short distance off Simcoe Island shore. It will be remembered that three of the members of the crew disobeyed the captain's order and left the steamer in a small boat which capsized shortly after it was launched.

McGaughey Model Prisoner

Lindsay, Nov. 8.—In a month's time Frederick McGaughey, who was sentenced to be hanged by Justice Logie for the murder of Beatrice Fee, will pay the death penalty in the jail yard here. The unfortunate young man has maintained the same stoical demeanor which characterized his attitude during the days of his trial, although at intervals he has talked quite freely to the guards and jail officials. According to reports he eats and sleeps well, and is a model prisoner in every respect.

As the day of the execution approaches, many expressions of sympathy are heard from friends of the unfortunate youn gman because of the terrible position in which he has placed himself. Temperance orators during the plebiscite campaign pointed a moral in his sad case from the platform, and this was strongly resented by many.

Hon. J. S. Martin Speaks

Bowmanville, Nov. 8.—Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, was the guest of the Canadian Club last Wednesday night, when he addressed the members of the club on his visit to England, France, Denmark and other European countries. Mr. Martin delighted the 75 members present with his racy presentation of his trip, and though he dwelt mostly on conditions as he found them over there, he used the facts as a contrast against conditions in Ontario. The address was listened to with rapt attention, and when Mayor Holgate proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Martin, seconded by Dr. Jamieson, the response was most spontaneous.

CADI ACCEPTED UNIQUE EXCUSE

St. Catharines, Nov. 8—The explanation of Charles V. Bradford, prominent business man of Niagara Falls, Ont., to Magistrate E. H. Campbell, that somebody must have thrown the gray squirrel into his auto while he was shooting pheasants last week, was convincing and Bradford was discharged.

E. Stewart, game warden, who discovered the squirrel, lodged the complaint.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, the general and the diplomat, and a lot of the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a successful football or track team.

Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men.

Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything.

Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not only for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of its disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations.

It is the first of all the First Aid requisites in use in all of the leading athletic clubs.

And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always keep it in the home where you can "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1.25 at your druggist.

SHADOW BOOTLEGGERS

Lindsay, Nov. 8.—Vice-President Dingman, of the Provincial License Commission, dropped into Lindsay Thursday and his presence caused a flutter of excitement. It is understood that his visit was the result of reports sent in as to conditions prevailing in the town and district in connection with the sale of home brew.

Mr. Dingman it is said, expressed himself as surprised at the situation as he found it. Bootleg whiskey, it is charged, has been sold for a long period by well known residents of the town, and there have been other infractions which call for aggressive action on the part of the authorities.

There is talk of drastic action on the part of the local "Vigilance Committee," and a number of alleged violators of the O.T.A. are being shadowed. A prominent prohibitionist is authority for the statement that a well known citizen has made considerable money during the past few years in the bootleg business.

HANNA SHIES AT PORTER'S CHALLENGE

TRUE TO FORM, LIBERAL IS SILENT IN EXPLAINING STAND IN DEFENSE OF J. MURDOCK

Nominations Held in City Hall This Afternoon

BIG CROWD PRESENT

Conservative Member Tells Reason For Present Election

Before a crowd which taxed the capacity of the City Hall Auditorium this afternoon, E. Guss Porter, K.C., lawyer and Charles Hanna, merchant were nominated to contest the riding of West Hastings for the by-election to be held on November 25.

In his expert manner, Mr. Porter reviewed the history of the Murdock charges explaining very clearly the reasons leading to his resignation and calling upon the electors of the riding to pass judgement on the Minister of Labor, James Murdock.

The feature of the afternoon was a virtual challenge made by Mr. Porter to Mr. Hanna to explain why he refused the nomination in the first instance and why he accepted after a trip to Ottawa.

Mr. Hanna ignored remarks made by Mr. Porter in his nomination speech and avoiding the issue of the day, simply stated that his moral character was of the best. He referred to the thirteen questions put by the Intelligencer as "unlucky". And let it rest at that.

Many People Present

The City Hall was crowded to the doors half an hour before the first speaker arose to speak this afternoon at the nomination for the coming bye-election in the riding of West Hastings. Representative from every corner of the riding are here, there being a number of ladies in the audience.

Hon. Edmund Bristol, K.C., will speak for E. Guss Porter, K.C., the Liberal-Conservative candidate and H. Gordon, M.P., Peterboro, barrister and Deputy Speaker in the House of Commons, will speak for Charles Hanna, Liberal standard bearer.

At two o'clock crowds were still filing into the historic old Assembly Hall, seats being at a premium.

When the candidates with speakers walked to the platform, resounding cheers were sent up which made the rafters ring.

Walter C. Boardman, returning officer with C. A. Cameron presided.

E. Guss Porter, K.C., was first speaker and explained that this meeting was unique as there would no longer be a riding of West Hastings, by reason of the re-distribution Bill. In future it would be south and North Hastings.

"The large attendance shows an active interest in the equally unique issue," said Mr. Porter. There was never an issue similar to it before. A moral issue rather than political, the effect of the bye-election would not affect the tariff, immigration or any other political problem. This issue was a question of right and wrong, and Mr. Porter believed that Canadians demanded the highest type of honesty, obligation and dignity in the upholding of the traditions of parliament.

The Canadian Government was modelled after the British Government, he said, and we endeavored to follow it here. "We cannot go wrong in following it," Mr. Porter said.

A minister of the Crown was different from an ordinary member of Parliament. He occupied a most important position. He was bound by a solemn obligation to His Majesty, the King. Murdock, a minister of the King Government took this oath before assuming office, that he would protect the dignity and traditions of Parliament.

"I charged that he had violated these obligations and I undertook to prove to Canada this fact."

Mr. Porter said he received his first intimation of Murdock's actions through the press. Labor men, widows and orphans had suffered through the failure of the Home Bank and Murdock had withdrawn thousands of dollars had the bank having learned the facts of the situation as a Cabinet Minister, and having taken advantage of the knowledge acquired, withdrew his money a few hours before the bank failed.

It was difficult to imagine a minister who would do such a thing as the press charged. The high minded people of West Hastings would not stand for such behaviour, Mr. Porter felt and in an interview with Hon. Arthur Meighen, Mr.

VISCOUNT CECIL, who is likely to be made chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, and become the twentieth and final member of Baldwin's inner cabinet. He was formerly Lord Robert Cecil.

Porter was told that someone must take the matter up.

"I said that if I could sift the evidence, I would take the matter up."

Mr. Porter refused to take the press stories out of fairness to Murdock, but went to the fountain head of information.

Going to the Union Bank where the books were examined and officials examined at the clearing house, Mr. Porter found conditions infinitely worse than the press charged.

"I then told Murdock that I would charge him on the floor of the house and numbered the 12 charges so that he would be fully and perfectly aware as to what he would be called upon to answer.

"When I made my charges I asked for a committee of investigation and then Murdock was given an opportunity to answer to his conduct, and again when the charges were made he had an opportunity to deny the charges. He did not deny the charges and until the present moment Murdock has never said that the charges were not true."

A Poor Defence

Parliament saw the importance of his answering the charges, but all the defence he made was a statement that he would read a few letters.

The money was withdrawn in August 1923, until May 20th, 1924 until a qualm of conscience.

G. T. Clarkson, liquidator of the Home Bank, wrote a letter stating that Murdock had withdrawn his money illegally and yet he did not reply. A second letter for Clarkson warned him that he would be compelled if he did not pay the money back.

Forced By Law

Then Murdock saw the long arm of the just law dangling over his head. He saw probably what Peter Smith is seeing now. Then he said, "I'll give it back" and issued that statement:

"I will not allow any man or woman to suffer through any conduct of mine whether a Minister of the Crown or not."

He admitted under oath that he did not withdraw the money in the usual business way.

Premier King then asked Mr. Porter if he would withdraw the charges.

"I never saw a man yet who would not give up when the law closes around him," exclaimed Mr. Porter.

"Had he said, 'I have innocently made a mistake, and wish to make it right,' any honest parliament would have made it right with him, but instead he, with the money in his pocket, defied the people of Canada to take it from him."

When Mr. Porter would not withdraw the charges, parliament gave him an investigation, and said if Murdock was guilty he must be punished.

Seventeen Liberals and four Conservatives, including Mr. Porter, begun the investigation and adducing of evidence, but the gun was loaded and it was easily seen that Murdock would be white-washed out, as he was when the 16 of the 17 (except Miss Agnes McPhail, M.P.) voted for Murdock. The other four voted condemnation.

Applaud Honest Woman

A congratulatory reference to Miss McPhail's attitude, drew loud applause.

"I was greatly disappointed," continued the speaker, "and as this is not a court of last resort, I said I would take it upon myself to resent such unfair treatment, and I will hand in my resignation and leave it to the people of West Hastings to say if his conduct is in keeping with the dignity of office or not."

"I was not speaking as E. Guss Porter, but as the people of West Hastings. Yes, for the people of Canada through West Hastings.

"As you speak so the whole of the Dominion of Canada will understand it. Will you look upon the map of Canada with a black blot on West Hastings, and be satisfied with it? I am not satisfied and I do not think you will be..

"Hanna must stand for those who would wink at such conduct, for he is on the other side of this issue.

Issued Invitation

"I have invited every supporter of the Government—every Cabinet Minister to come and defend Murdock. Where are they? If they had a defensible case they would be here.

"The Government did not issue the writ early because they could not find a candidate. Then they tried Hanna and at first he could not stomach it.

"He stated at first that he would not be a candidate, but after refusing, he suddenly changed. He may tell you what changed him when he speaks after me to-day.

"He has been asked a number of pertinent question but has answered but one, about going to Ottawa.

"I have always been returned to this riding many times with handsome majoritie during he pa 24 years, and I wish to thank the electors.

"I hope that I have always fulfilled the obligations."

Charles Hanna Up

Charles Hanna thanked his nominator and told of being out to get the seat vacated by Mr. Porter. Murdock was upheld by 149 members against 39.

"I think the people of West Hastings will leave the government to the 149 members who voted for the exoneration of Murdock", he said.

"I did authorize The Intelligencer to say that I would not stand, but cannot a man change his mind at the eleventh hour?" he asked.

His life record from infancy, Mr. Hanna offered for perusal of the electors for moral purposes.

Refering to the thirteen Intelligencer questions Mr. Hanna said they were unlucky and foolish.

OFFER THANKS AT UNION SERVICE

Rev. C. E. Clarke Addresses Large Congregation at Special Service

The union Thanksgiving service of the Protestant churches, under the auspices of the Ministerial Association was held yeserday morning at Christ Church with Rev. C. E. Clarke as speaker.

Mr. Clarke took as his text, "What mean ye by this service." "This service here referred to the Jewish Passion, which was instituted as a thank offering to their God who smote the Egyptians and delivered the Israelites.

He went on to point out three especial things for which we should be thankful. First, the wisdom of those who brought about confederation, and made of us a united nation. Second, that idealism was not yet dead. This was evidenced by the way in which so many noble men gave their lives for the country in the Great War. They sacrificed everything without grudging. Thirdly, that religion was still an active force among us. In Russia religion had been overthrown and the children in the schools were taught that there was no God and no justice. Mr. Clarke enlarged upon this theme in a very interesting address.

Rev. Mr. Marshall read the prayers, Rev. Mr. MacKechnie read first and Rev. Mr. Kerr the second lesson. Dr. Brown offered up a prayer of Thanksgiving. The choir assisted by Mrs. Yateman, soloist, rendered special music. A large congregation of about two hundred and fifty worshippers, filled the church The collection was given in aid of the Children's Shelter.

Big Porter Rallies On For To-night

Ladies Meet at G.W.V.A. Club; Gentlemen at Committee Rooms

A grand rally of the lady voters of this city who are supporting Mr. E. G. Porter will be held this evening at the G. W. V. A. hall, Front street, instead of the I.O.O.F. hall. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock and the speaker will be Mrs. Howard Fallis, of Peterboro, the lady organizer for the campaign.

On Saturday night and last night there were good rallies of men at Mr. Porter's committee rooms east Robertson block. This evening at the same place there will be a grand rally of those in the city who are favorable to the election of Mr. Porter.

JUDGE LOOSES ANOTHER LIST FROM SETTELL

Many Serious Charges Laid Against Hydro Chairman To-day

ALLEGE SMUGGLING

Claims His Apartment in Toronto Furnished by Commission

(Associated Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 11—Thirty-nine charges made against Sir Adam Beck by E. C. Settell his former secretary, were made public this morning by Judge Snider, commissioner, hearing allegations brought against officials of the Hydro Commission The charges are sweeping in their nature, running from allegation of wrongful disbursement of funds smuggling goods across border and practical theft of motor car, by one, Simpson.

The charges in condensed form are as follows:

That Sir Adam Beck was aware of the fact that Sothman, former chief engineer, was doing outside work on Hydro time.

That in 1909, time of the staff of Hydro Commission was employed on work relating to artesian wells for the City of London and that the time was paid for by Hydro Commission.

That in 1909 there were irregularities in the purchase of motor cars from a Toronto Company.

That on August 18, 1909, contact was given to Galt Malleable Iron Co.

That expenses of Sir Adams trip to Berlin, Germany were excessive.

That Sir Adam's horse show expenses were paid by the commission.

That a motor car was purchased in England and was retained there for a year at the expense of the commission, for Sir Adam's family.

That $25000 was deposited in Molsons Bank to offset a loan made to Sir Adam.

That Hydro Engineers were used on construction of factory in Toronto for Sir Adam Beck.

That large sums of money were disbursed by the commission to defray the expenses of the purchase of remounts by Sir Adam during the war.

That F. A. Gaby forced the purchase of automobile for presentation by Hydro Electric Union to Sir Adam and that car was paid by commission and later billed to the Union.

That the Commission spent $5,000 to furnish a Toronto apartment for Sir Adam.

That the Commission had paid for a dinner to a hundred nurses that Sir Adam was supposed to be giving.

That there were irregularities in awarding of contract to London Rolling Mills.

ARMISTICE DAY IS MARKED QUIETLY

At Home and Throughout The Empire People Remembered

Armistice Day was observed quietly in Belleville today. In many places, the two minute period of silence was observed in honor of the dead and in many other ways the anniversary was remembered. Some citizens, noticing the close approach of the hour of eleven stopped their vehicles. The Bell Telephone lines were all dead during the interval and in several places of business, everything was dropped.

Mayor Mikel sent along word from out of town today that in view of the fact that the Governor General was coming very shortly, no preparations of an official kind had been made to carry out the observance.

Graduates of the University of Toronto in Belleville sent flowers to Toront to be placed on the Memorial Tower along with hundreds of others from all parts of the Dominion.

In Canada

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Having merged its observence of thanksgiving and armistice into one public holiday yesterday, and patriotic and religious ceremonies throughout the Dominion having been celebrated on Sunday or Monday, Canada went about its work—a day life on this sixth anniversary of the ending of the war. Sellers of poppies were in evidence in all cities and towns from coast to coast, the proceeds of the sale to be used on behalf of needy survivors of the war. At eleven o'clock a two-minute silence was everywhere observed. The unveiling of memorials to men who were killed in action were common throughout the country.

THE TEACHER PROBLEM

(Goderich Signal)

The Globe's educational expert, pointing out the danger of overcrowding in the teaching profession, proposes that either the examinations and other tests should be more exacting or the training course should be lengthened. This might provide a remedy for the overcrowding; but the public should have some protection from the teacher who shifts from one school to another every year or two. School boards might inquire more carefully into the previous history of teachers who apply to them and decline to engage any teacher who has shown this undesirable flitting tendency.

This is the first Japanese maiden ever to be married to a Japanese husband in the city of Toronto. She is Miss Ito Sacamoto, and she was married November 5th to Suiech Tacaba. The bride is an accomplished pianist, and the bridegroom an electrical engineer. They met five years ago in Vancouver.

To-day's Mistake Is To Belittle

Says George N. Gordon, M.P., In Address To Kiwanians

George N. Gordon K.C., deputy speaker in the Canadian House of Commons was an interesting speaker at the Belleville Kiwanis Club at noon to-day, taking for his subject "Side Lights in Parliament". He gave splendid character sketches of men who had lead in Parliament and closed his address with the observation that one of the mistakes of to-day was that of belittling public men too much. Mr. Gordon thought it hardly fair to criticize those who held to their honest views.

The speaker said he had an unusually good position from which to watch and listen to the parliamentarians in debate and summing up the House, he declared that it contained men of every type and men of brilliant attainments, who engaged in moments at times very serious and at others very pleasant.

In drawing to the attention of Kiwanians some of the great characters developed in the country, Mr. Gordon spoke first of Sir John A. McDonald, whom he said was typical of the pioneer life of his time. His father had built the mills at Glenora and Sir John's first case was in Picton. He was tolerant and sympathetic, factors in his character that made him the beloved man he was.

Sir MacKenzie Bowell was a very modest man, he said. For this reason not all his good qualities were appreciated during his life time. He was one of the type of which Canada had great need to-day.

Dealing with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Gordon said he was a great student of the bible and Macauley's History of England. His rhetoric was faultless and he wondered why his speeches were shelved these days when they would offer such material for the teaching of English. Sir Wilfrid was impatient and not easily satisfied in his youth, but he overcame this as he grew older. He was an Imperialist at heart, as could be judged from his library.

Sir Robert Borden was of a different type, not being emotional as Sir Wilfrid and Sir John were. He was the cold, business man type, he was shrewd and the pathetic feature of his public life was that he dropped from it overnight. He was a man broken by the war, and few realized what he went through as a war time prime minister.

Mr. Gordon said he always liked to hear Mr. Robert Forke, Progressive leader, speak in Parliament. He was a man bowed by years of farm work, but he made the direct sort of speech that he enjoyed listening to.

Dealing with the present Prime Minister and the leader of the Opposition, the speaker said they were both graudates of Toronto University and were bath splendid public speakers. The citizens of West Hastings would have a good opportunity within the next few days to hear them both.

Police Inspector Resigns Office

Sergeant Gurnett of Toronto Will Replace Inspector Bumpstead

Inspector Reg. Bumpstead of District number five, Provincial Police, has handed in his resignation to headquarters and has received word that he will be given two months' leave of absence with pay.

Inspector Bumpstead's services cease to-night and to-morrow Sergeant E. Gurnett of number four district at Toronto will take over the duties here as Acting Inspector.

Vice-Sergeant E. G. Atkins of headquarters here will be transferred to Niagara Falls as sergeant and will leave for the city tomorrow. Sergeant Rao of number six district at Ottawa will replace Sergeant Atkins here.

Several other changes in the Provincial police force will be made it is believed, but Inspector Bumpstead does not know as yet of them.

Cars Collide On Holiday In City

Three Automobiles Are Damaged But None is Injured

At 12.20 a.m. Monday, a car driven by George Easton, R.R. No. 2, crashed into the side of Bridge st. bridge, when another car meeting him on the bridge is alleged to have crowded him. Easton was driving eastwards. Fenders were damaged and a running board torn off. The frame was twisted and the springs broken. Harold Barnum rode with Easton.

A crash also occurred at the corner Campbell and Front streets when a car driver turning South on Front street from Campbell, collided with a car driven by Blake Waddel of Cannifton. H. A. Ross, 282 Foster Avenue drove the other car.

The left front fender and running board were damaged on the Ross car and the rear fender of the other car was damaged.

POLICE REPORT SHOWS GREAT WORK VOLUME

Provincial Police Headquarters Have Had Busy Year

HIGH PERCENTAGE

Ninety-Four Per Cent. Of O.T.A. Cases Were Convictions

The annual report of district number five Provincial police for the fiscal year ending October 3 1st, 1924, was handed out this morning by Inspector R. Bumpstead on the last day of his term here as Inspector.

This resignation of Inspector Bumpstead came as a great surprise to everyone, and none will regret more than local newspapermen, to whom he and his brother officers have always been very courteous and considerate. Both Inspector Bumpstead and Sergeant Atkins have made many friends in Belleville by their fair and impartial dealings as Crown officers, and the figures of the year's work alone speak for the ability of local Provincial officers from Inspector to Constables. Sergeant Atkins is transferred to Niagara Falls.

Three hundred and thirty-seven cases were entered in the Criminal Code during the year, 304 of the number being convictions, 34 dismissed and one withdrawn. One man has been sentenced to death in the district for murder, and eight others await trial on serious charges. Total fines imposed under the Criminal code are $8231, 114 having been fined. Sixty-six were committed to sentence and 16 by default. One hundred and eighty-four arrests were made, and 136 search warrants executed. Thirty-nine stills were seized, convictions being secured against owners in 33 instances of seizures. Value of goods recovered is $21,350 and 479 investigations have been handled.

There were 43 deaths from unnatural causes, investigations revealing ten known suicides. Five murder cases in the district were handled during the fiscal year. The 337 cases this year under the Criminal Code stand against 197 for last year.

Under the O. T. A. there were 306 cases, 287 of which were convictions, 17 dismissed and 2 withdrawn. Total fines imposed are $27,662. There were 87 arrests, 193 search warrants executed, as well as 362 investigations.

Four automobiles were confiscated and the value of liquor confiscated is $4,600.

Eleven insane persons were arrested against four last year, and there were 33 convictions under the Inland Revenue Act stand against 18 similar cases last year.

The per centage of convictions under the Criminal code is93 % and under the O. T. A. 94% a remarkably good record.

WORK FOR ALL

The bye-election in West Hastings is drawing nearer and organization is daily becoming more complete, yet there is much that electors can do individually which will produce fruitful results. Though the convictions of individual electors have decided for individuals where they will mark their ballot on November 25, the mind of any voter should not rest contented with that effort alone. When there is so much organization necessary and such a great volume of work to be done in a limited time, individual work is difficult for those in charge of the election. It therefore rests with the "you and I" electors, to do "our" mission work among the brother and sister electors. Do not be satisfied in knowing that your vote will support E. Guss Porter, K.C., but becoming a real campaigner, do everything in your power to assure yourself that you have secured other votes for Mr. Porter, by your campaign work.

SIX YEARS AFTER

Six years have just elapsed since the world had its supreme thrill out of the great war, since that glorious moment when bloody warfare ceased after a period of over four years of gore, hatred, misery, pain and a most disordered world.

Six years make but a brief span in the life of man. Yet how great are the changes which have been sung in that time. So far back have memories of the struggle receded in the minds of men, even those who were dipped in the blackest of war horrors can journey along through the present for days with scarce a thought of those stupendous experiences.

It is to be noted how easily in many ways the vast army of soldiers have slipped into civilian life groves. The private has forgotten his grievance against a certain officer. The officer who became so reserved and exacting under a sense of the fitness of things has become an affable frien dto all. Privates and non-commissioned officers have become employers and some officers have returned to the ranks of the employes. The dirty mess tin and the rusty knife and fork have been almost forgotten and etiquette picked up where it was laid down early in the war.

Yet withal the experiences of the four years' struggle are stamped indelibly on the minds of everyone of us. The mother has not forgotten that surge of joy which rolled in with the knowledge that the strife was over and her boy safe. The general public can never forget the sacrifices made and rallies to such appeals as that made Saturday throughout the dominion when hundreds of thousands of red poppies were sold for the benefit of the unfortunates of the war. Boys growing into manhood hold sacred the heroism of the fathers. Visions of row on row of grave tablets are ever with us. The glorious dead are not forgotten.

May November 11 ever serve us to cherish these remembrances that the seed sown between 1914 and 1918 may grow well to flourish as an emblem of Canada's sturdiness.

WHERE THE TWO PARTIES STAND

The electors of West Hastings are confronted by the fact that the Liberal candidate, Mr. Hanna stands for a policy, which in the words of Honorable Chas. Stewart uttered in the Budget debate during last session of Parliament, sounded the "death knell of Protection". On the other hand, Mr. Porter, the Conservative candidate, stands for a policy of adequate protection.

There is no use trying to beat around the bush on this issue. The business interests of this country might just as well know what they are up against. The tariff changes of last session gave them a rude shock; but there is good reason for saying that the worst is yet to come. It is not the tariff to-day that the business interests have to fear, it is the tariff of to-morrow, if the Liberals and Progressives have their way.

What has Mackenzie King been doing in the west? He has been appealing strongly for Progressive support. He has practically been saying to the Western Progressives; "There is no need of you maintaing a third group in the House. You and the Liberals stand for the same things. Come right in with us; let us make one big party." In a sense the appeal is logical, for the Liberals tariff platform is really that of the Progressives.

Now Mackenzie King knows just as well as anybody does that he cannot get the support of the Western Progressives, nor the support of any considerable body of Western opinion, unless he agrees to make further reductions in the tariff. The Progressives have made it clear that what they got last session was only the first instalment. And no wonder they said so after hearing the Minister of the Interior boldly assure Parliament that the policy announced sounded the "death knell of Protection."

Knowing the direction in which the Liberals are moving the electors of West Hastings are asked to give Mackenzie King authority to do as he likes, as far as they are concerned, with the tariff. If the proposition of the Liberals in this contest means anything, it means this. If the Liberals should win Mackenzie King woudl almost certainly come out next morning with the claim that West Hastings had endorsed his tariff policy.

There is no other course for West Hastings to take, but to stand by the Protection, as it has done for the last 35 years. This is what the business interests the world over are doing. And there is a good reason why. They are tired of the uncertainty that is produced through frequent changes in the tariff and other unsettling measures. They want to know where they are at.

The country knows where Mr. Meighen and the Conservative party is at on the tariff and on every other public question. Neither he nor his party preaches low tariff doctrine in the West and adequate protection in the East. Mackenzie King found out early this year that the policy of pretense would not do any longer, and so he came out boldly for tariff reduction. Now he can't turn back, for the Progressives, whose support he must have will not allow him to do so.

There is but one thing for the electors of West Hastings to do, and that is to stand by E. Guss Porter and the Conservative party, whose position is well known. This would be safe and sane policy, for those who have anything at stake should know where they are going.

The Referee

I see great interest shown in the meeting for ladies in the Great War Veterans' Hall to-night. The gentler sex in the city of Belleville as well as throughout the riding of West Hastings are doing a wonderful work these days in the interest of honorable conduct for Canadian Parliament.

Sure we have had wonderful weather during the past three weeks. But have you noticed that people do not make nearly as much noise praising the Weatherman for the good he does as they do when knocking the bad spells that happen along?

Watch the smoke during the next few days when the big guns from Ottawa get going in West Hastings.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Borne on the breeze from east to west,
Faint trembling accents come—
The white-haired grandsire's quavering voice,
Calling the children home;
The brisk good dame comes bustling forth,
Each welcome guest to greet,
The ancient roof tree thrills again
To childhood's pattering feet.

From noisy marts, from princely homes,
From study, office, mills,
Grave bearded men retrace their steps
To childhood's breezy hills.
What worth are laurels, honors, wealth—
Dame Fortune's glittering toys,
The farmhouse roof for one glad day
Reshelters mother's boys.

Heaven bless our simple country home
Where industry and worth
Make wide free spaces where we breathe
The purer air of earth!
Heaven hold on its protecting care
The dear old folks, we pray,
And oh, heaven bless and keep for aye
Our own Thanksgiving Day.
—Marion E. Pickering.

Signs of the Thanksgiving Times—a blood stained axe resting defiantly against, the saw-horse behind the wood shed.

The hunters' alibi on returning after a half day trek; with nothing but guns and the empty game bag.

"We just saw one wood pecker. Never saw the woods so quiet—shot him but after losing a few feathers he flew higher in the tree, shook himself and sang—was evidently wearing a steel-lined vest.

Though returning to toil again, every one of the remarkably large crowd of holiday travellers expressed a happy and "contented" expression.

This is mourning day in the barnyard—salvaged feathers only, mark what once might have been the pride of that barnyard.

Press Opinions

EARNINGS LESS, SPENDING MORE

(Ottawa Journal)

Official Government statement shows that customs and excise revenue for the first seven months of the fiscal year is down by $36,000,000. During the same months expenditure has grown over that of the corresponding period of last year by about $5,000,000. Thus, with a little more than half the year over, we are more than $40,000,000 worse off than in 1923.

For the individual who keeps on spending more than he earns the end is certain. It is bankruptcy.

It is precisely the same with a nation. Its natural resouces, its greater facilities for credit, may make the process of destruction longer; but the ultimate is just as certain.

PLEASE DON'T, MR. PRICE!

(Border Cities Star)

The Provincial Treasurer, Hon. W. H. Price, looks for some improvement in the amount of Ontario's deficit this year. The last budget speech placed the deficit at $15,000,000. Mr. Price's statement is cheering news, but there is still a lurking fear that the Government is contemplating the imposition of a provincial income tax in order to raise additional revenue. If this be so, Premier Ferguson and his colleagues are going to let themselves in for a storm of criticism. Between the Federal levy and that imposed by cities and some towns, Mr. Taxpayer has about all he can stand at present. A provincial income tax would be the last straw.

A REPUBLICAN VIEW

(New York Herald Tribune)

The people of America are overwhelmingly in favor of the steadfast Americanism of Calvin Coolidge. They would make haste slowly. Common sense is their guiding star. For reckless political experiment, as for vague, sentimental internationalism, they have neither sympathy nor patience.

In this struggle between principles the Democratic party played neither a helpful nor a conspicuous part. It presented a two-faced ticket. It sought to flirt with the radicals and to reassure the conservatives. It earned and it has received the fate of every compromise with wrong.

Letters to Editor

ARMISTICE DAY IN EDINBURGH

Dear Sir:— Grandma and I were busy with our morning tasks when about 11 a.m. we heard what we had been looking for for days. We rushed to the gate. Crowds were already rushing by waving flags, whistles were blowing, bells were ringing and bands playing and the big gun was booming forth from the castle. I rushed across to the nearest shop for flags for our wee laddies but already their stock was sold out. After lunch we were lucky enough to secure outside seats on a double decker and as we passed through the meadows large silver queens were floating very low the pilots calling out the wonderful news to the crowds below "Peace is declared and the war is over." The car pushed along slowly through the dense crowds at Toll Cross to Princess St. It had to stop very often owing to the congestion and there was no hearing one another speak. Newsies were yelling themselves hoarse "Peace declared" and the papers were very much in demand. More excitement than ever at the Wellington Monument on which a soldier and W. A. A.A. were clinging and yelling while the crowds cheered them on. In a little square near the bridges a man was playing an accordian while a little old woman with a very large hat stuck on the top of her head and in a tight-fitting jacket with very large sleeves, was holding up her skirts and dancing a real old fashioned jig. It was very amusing but pitiful too when one considered the poor old soul was making such a spectacle of herself for the sake of the few pennies that was now and then thrown from the people. Late in the afternoon the street cars were stopped for the rest of the day for the first time in years as they could no longer push through the ever increasing swarms of people. In the evening we managed to push through Princess St. Long rows of soldiers and girls pushed their way along singing "We'll all go home the same way" and "Hurrah! Hurrah! the war is over" and other popular ditties. There must have been many sore and hoarse throats next day but we should worry and through all the fuss there was very little damage done and few accidents occurred to mar the joyous and happy times. Everyone seemed happy though there must have been many sad hearts (as Edinburgs casualty list was the largest of any city in the British Empire in proportion to its size, though the war was over their loved ones would not return. Grandma was going around with tears in her eyes and smiling face as she knew her laddie who was in France with the American Army was safe and she might see him soon and her other laddie, my husband, was in a convalescent hospital in Blighty. I was happy as I knew I would soon be taking my babies to join him at Liverpool to sail for Canada and dear old Belleville.

I. F.

TO WOMEN VOTERS

Dear Sir:—

I would like to have the courtesy of your column to say a word to our women about the use of the ballot. We realize that mothers and sisters are often less prejudiced to form rules than fathers and husbands, so the question of honorable justice must rule. "As rights to all and favor to none" on November 25.

May we learn to use our opportunities given us by men and women who stood for right against all odds for the benefit of the cause they were entrusted with.

I feel Mr. Porter has done much for us; for all the people of the Dominion, when he had the courage and insight to openly face a charge as he did in the Parliament at Ottawa, when he accused James Murdock.

I cannot picture many men in any place risking their position in public for your benefit or your good as Mr. Porter has done. Not even in municipal affairs. Most men will be heard to say I cannot afford to risk my job for them. Now is the time of all times when we need Mr. Porter on the job.

Mr. Porter has the knowledge of affairs at Ottawa that comes only from years of experience and observation.

Though the Conservatives are in the minority at Ottawa, it was Mr. Porter who placed Belleville and West Hastings on the map "In Ottawa," when he made his daring challenge for justice. NNow let us feel that it is up to us to show our appreciation by sending back the man who made a loyal stand on our behalf with a sweeping majority.

B. E. JONES,

BRITISH INCOME TAX REFUNDS.

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—It does not appear to be generally known that claims for refund of British Income Tax deducted from dividends, interest, rents, etc., received from the Old Country can now be made for the whole period since April 5th, 1920.

Formerly claims for recovery of tax were limited to three years. Now, however, under the Finance Act, 1923, this time limit has been extended to six years, but not so as to affect any years previous to 1920.

I might also point out that it makes no difference whether the income in question is derived from trustees in Great Britain, as in all cases a refund can be claimed.

I have gone into the matter very fully with the Inland Revenue lately, and if any of your readers are not aware of what claims can be preferred and will get in touch with me at 13, Buckingham Palace Gardens, London, S.W., I shall be happy to advise them.

Yours truly,

WILFRED T. FRY.

DOCTOR ADVISED AN OPERATION

Read Alberta Woman's Experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Provost, Alberta.—"Perhaps you will remember sending me one of your books a year ago. I was in a bad condition and would suffer awful pains at times and could not do anything. The doctor said I could not have children unless I went under an operation. I read testimonials of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the papers and a friend recommended me to take it. After taking three bottles I became much better and now I have a bonny baby girl four months old. I do my housework and help a little with the chores. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and I am willing for you to use this testimonial letter."—Mrs. A. A. ADAMS, Box 54, Provost, Alberta.

Lachine, Quebec.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my left side and back and with weakness and other troubles women so often have. I was this way about six months. I saw the Vegetable Compound advertised in the 'Montreal Standard,' and I have taken four bottles of it. I was a very sick woman and I feel so much better I would not be without it. I also use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I recommend the medicines to my friends and I am willing for you to use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. M. W. ROSE, 580 Notre Dame St., Lachine, Quebec.

CHAMPIONS MODERN GIRL

Rev. H. B. Kenny gave an excellent and humorous address last night at Fredericksburg, to a packed house on the subject, "Women, young and old" Comparing the modern girl to the girls of other generations he believes that the modern girl loses nothing by the comparison. She can hold her own with any other generation. In his remarks he said that she was capable of accomplishing more good than the women of any other age, and the people who claim that she is not, can never produce the proof.

REDNERSVILLE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

A delightful afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. Willoughby Anderson when the Institute met for their October meeting. The president Mrs. L. Brickman presided and after opening Ode and prayer Miss Helen Redner led in Community singing. After business and correspondence had been taken two splendid papers on "The Value of a Good Neighbour" were given by Mrs. Elwood Spencer and Mrs. Stanton Fox. Miss Mildred Redner gave a humorous reading and Miss Clara Anderson an instrumental solo. The Roll Call "A Canadian Author and some of his or her works was well responded to and after singing "God Save the King" Miss Clara Anderson gave a demonstration on China painting. Miss Clara Anderson is a clever artist and won the sweepstakek prize at Picton Fair competing with several of the artists of the province. Mrs. Anderson and her sister Mrs. Gibson served delicious fruit. A vote of thanks was tendered her for her kindness.

Our next meting will be a social evening in Redner's Hall on Nov. 27th, when lunch and a good programme will be given. A special feature will be a sale of Xmas gifts donated by the members. Admission 25c and 15c.

Ease of Tuning of Atwater-Kent RADIO SETS

The latest models of Atwater Kent Receiving Sets are easily tuned, and therefore quickly tuned.

While the number of dials vary on the various sets, they are all tuned in the same manner, by turning the dials to right or left, so that the numbers engraved on each of them are kept in step as illustrated below.

This simultaneous turning of the dials, together with a few simple instructions accompany ing each set, is all that is necessary to pick up broadcasting signals and tune them in to maximum volume and clearness. Any child can do it and in the hands of an adult tuning is accomplished with truly surprising rapidity.

GOOD NEWS FOR BRONCHITIS SUFFERERS!

Deep-Seated Chest Troubles Yield to PEPS.

BRONCHITIS lays hold of the chest in a slow insidious way. Do not, therefore, neglect to take prompt measures to counteract the first symptoms of this ravaging ailment—the first difficulty in breathing, the occasional made-up feeling in the throat with its accumulations of phlegm. Be warned by that irritating cough and those frequently-returning colds.

Get a box of Peps, the well-known breathing remedy. After removing the silver wrapping place a Peps tablet on the tongue and breathe in the healing fumes as the tablet dissolves.

Peps are simply invaluable for allaying that teasing, tickling cough; for softening and loosening the phlegm, and soothing the irritated and semi-inflamed bronchial tubes. Every day as you breathe in the powerful germicidal fumes which are emitted from these Peps, a healing influence is extended deep into the lungs where liquid cough mixtures cannot penetrate.

The regular use of Peps at bedtime will ensure healthy slumber undisturbed by bouts of coughing. By day, the treatment should be continued on the assurance that the throat, bronchi and lungs are all being healed and strengthed by this medicine.

Peps are guaranteed to be absolutely free from opium, laudanum, chloral, morphia and any harmful ingredients of the old-fashioned cough medicines.

Dr. GORDON STABLER, M.D., C.M., writes:—"Fear every little cold. Keep Peps handy and you will ride triumphantly clear of bronchitis. Peps are invaluable for soothing and healing semi-inflamed bronchial tubes. Peps tablets are more of an inhalation, and go directly to the seat of injury."

Whilst PEPS are an expensive remedy to produce the demand has become so great that it has now been found possible to have the price reduced from 50c. to 25c. Get a box to-day! All druggists.

Croup at Night No Longer Feared by Canadian Mothers

Direct Treatment with Vaporizing Salve Immediately Reaches Congested Air Passages.

Many Canadian mothers, who in the past have worried over croup and children's colds, are delighted with the "external" remedy for colds, Vicks VapoRub.

You just rub Vicks over throat and chest for croup, children's colds, bronchitis or deep chest colds. When so applied the body heat releases the ingredients as vapors which are inhaled directly into the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and reducing the inflammation.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed and stimulates the skin like a liniment or plaster and thus aids the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion. Croup is usually relieved in 15 minutes.

There is no dosing in using Vicks. Nothing to upset the delicate stomachs of small children. You just "rub it on".

For what the French call "a dinner dress" to be worn semi-formally at a restaurant or theater, the tunic blouse in lace over a satin slip makes a most satisfactory costume.

There are many times when you go out in the evening, when you do not want to be en grand tenue. Perhaps you have come in town to do a little shopping before dinner and want to stay on without change of dress for a restaurant dinner and the theater. Perhaps you are going to play bridge or Mah Jong or people are coming in for dinner informally and you don't want to wear formal evening dress. The new tunic blouse in ochre or string color with the circular flounce worn over a satin slip fills just such needs in a most satisfactory manner.

Slice 1 large lemon and cover with 2 cups water, 1 tbspn. butter and 1 cup sugar. Boil until lemon is soft.

Make a batter of 1-2 cup sugar, 1 Tablespoon butter, 1 egg, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 cup of flour and 2 tablespoonfuls baking powder. Put butter in baking-dish and pour over it the boiling syrup and bake about 30 minutes or until batter is done.

Baseball in London

The following article on baseball in England by a Canadian staying in the Old Country.

"Let us go to the ball game."

"I've never seen a ball game in my life. I haven't the foggiest idea how it is played."

"Well, now's your chance. The New York Giants and White Sox are playing at Stamford Bridge to-day and if you won't ask too many questions I'll try to interpret for you."

"Really! It's awfully good of you."

"Not at all. I don't want to see the game, but I want to see how you take it. I'm in search of copy for a humorous article."

"Oh, I say, that's a bit thick."

Arrived at Stamford Bridge, where some five thousand Americans were gathered (the American population of London is about a quarter million) we took our seats in their midst where my English friend could get the full benefit of their crossfire. The teams were warming up a few pitchers and knocking out grounders.

Fans Noisy Lot

"My word." said my friend presently, "what a noisy lot of barrackers. Aren't these teams popular?"

I explained that this was the American way of showing interest and affection for their ball players, that the latter were used to it and and that there would be no riots nor slander actions.

"What a strange people," was his comment.

"Is that the regular costume they wear, this sort of golfing outfit with jockey's cap? And those huge mattresses those chaps carry on their hand, what is the purpose of them?"

I began to dread the start of the game.

Name Indications

Presently glancing at the score card his eye ran down the list of player's names. "I'm beginning to understand," he volunteered finally "why the United States is restricting her quotas, if these are representative American sportsmen."

He had me there, as it was difficult to say whether this list had been taken from the pay roll of one of Herr Stinnes' factories, a jury panel in Cork, or the waiting roster of the Canadian Government's immigration office at Warsaw.

"By the way, old boy," he continued "you'd better post me a bit on the game before it starts. I know cricket so I expect I'll soon catch on."

We were approaching the crucial time.

"Forget your cricket first of all," I said, "There is no bowler no leg, no slips, and the whole side doesn't need to be put out. That fellow you pointed to with the cage on his face isn't a wicket keeper, but a catcher. Three men must be put out to retire the side then the fielding team comes to bat and so on until nine innings are played. There are no stumps and a player may be caught out struck out, or touched out by a baseman if he is off one of the three bases you see. But wait, the game is starting and you'll understand."

Crowd Warms Up

Meantime the crowd was livening up and letting loose all the baseball slang which had been simmering in them ever since they crossed the Atlantic. "Look at him; he's still got his ocean roll; hasn't found his land legs yet." "Why didn't you stay home and vote? You've made enough money for one year." "Hurry up and get started the Prince will soon be home, and they never heard of you here."

"Beastly personal, aren't they. Does that sort of thing go on over their always? I can't understand their getting so excited. Why, the game hasn't even started yet, has it."

"No, but it's going to. The pitcher's in the box and the umpire has called play ball. The Giants are at bat. The pitcher is going to deliver the ball."

Game Starts

"Ah! jolly fast too. He's out already, is it because the catcher chap caught it?"

"No, not unless it's the third strike'

"I see, then it's ovain, is it?"

"No, forget your cricket. Look at that clout. It ought to be good for a homer."

"But the ah-batsman has dropped his bat."

"Yes, they don't carry it. He's got to get round the bases as fast as he can, in the opposite direction to the hands of a clock" I added with ironic acidity. "Who is that fielder, look at him covering the ground. He'll get it, yes, he's got it. That is one man out.

"So it is a little like cricket after all, isn't it? He's caught out."

I regarded this imperturbable and conservative Englishman in silence.

Next man up drove a clean hit between first and second. A sacrifice advanced him to third. I nudged my friend in his ribs and enlightened. "This is, the moment ball fans live for, two men out and a runner on third."

Coach For Crowd

"Really! But what's gone wrong with that man over there? He's walking up and down like a crazy person such odd antics I've never seen."

"Oh, that's only the coach. He's trying to egg on the crowd to rattle the pitcher. You see the batter must hit safe or the run doesn't count."

"Then he's the crowd's not the player's coach a sort of communist agitator, what! But why doesn't the crowd go on the field and play too?"

"It's against the rules."

"But the rules allow them to interfere with the players from the sides?" he objected.

"Oh you don't understand Americans. They're only enjoying themselves and I don't suppose the players pay much attention. They're used to it."

"Then why do they do it? It's frightfully undignified, dont you think We should let the players play it out between themselves without all the barracking.

"I don't know, it's always been the same in baseball."

"And in other sports too?"

American Temperament

"More or less, yes. It must be American temperament. Perhaps it's the climate."

"How odd. You know it reminds me somewhat of some foreigners I once—'

"Look at that! Did you see that double play? Wasn't that snappy fielding?"

"Rather! I'll admit its jolly clever. The players are in tip-top form, aren't they But you know it seems a bit cut and dried to me not much variety what?"

"Oh, come on. I'll bet you're thinking of your tea?"

"Why do they break off for tea as in cricket?' he queried, brightening visibly. "I thought they carried on through. It's such a quick game."

"I'll not pull your leg" I mocked. "They don't. But we can go if you like. Do you understand it all now?"

"All but one thing," was the reply.

"And that is?"

"Why people go to see it."

"So you still think cricket is a better game?"

"My giddy aunt." A

Is 10% Too Much?

When a man has 100% of his income with which to supply his family's needs and his own, shouldn't he arrange it

90%—as a maximum for present expenditures

10%—as a minimum for care of family in case of his death or for his own old age if he lives.

Even the small proportion of 10% of a man's salary will continue a goodly amount of income to his family under our Jubilee Monthly Income Policy.

For example, a man age 30, earning $250 a month—by investing 10% in a London Life Jubilee Policy can guarantee to his wife (aged 30) at his death, an income of $100 a month as long as she lives.

If you are not adequately insured, your family carries the risk of your death by accident or disease, not yourself. Transfer the risk to the London Life and provide for "the monthly cheque that never fails."

Ask one of our representatives to arrange the details or write to—

COL. HUGHES ATTENDS WITH LONDON VETS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 11.—A hastily arranged re-union of ex-service men of Canadian forces here, was held today in recognition of Armistice Day, and it was attended by nearly three hundred former officers and men of the Canadian army, whereas it had been anticipated that the maximum number would be about fifty. Col. Garnet Hughes presided.

In all the world no food like Fry's for growing children

They're brighter at school,
They're stronger at play—
Red checked and happy
When fed the Fry way.

What a wonderful difference it makes in the home; when the children are brimming over with health and vigour! Yet, as any doctor will tell you, health is so largely a matter of feeding.

FRY'S Cocoa contains nourishment in rich concentrated form, for every department of the human body—for muscle, tissue, flesh, nerve, brain and bone. It furnishes in rich abundance, energy for work and play—and materials to build the body with. And all this in such delicious form that every child takes FRY'S eagerly.

Be sure you get FRY'S—made in Canada and famous the world over for purity and quality. Cheap, unknown cocoas haven't its purity and richness.

Intelligencer Team Carries off Honor

P. Harrison and Miss W. Ross Win Mixed Doubles At "Y" Alleys

Thanksgiving Day mixed doubles at the Y was a real battle, when 18 couples rolled some fine scores, Miss Wilma Ross and Phil Harrison, the "Intelligent" Twins, carried off the premier honors with 1190. Phil rolled the game of his life, and he was ably seconded by the other member of the "shorty team."

Art Herity and Stella Ford were second with 1124 and Mrs. Beal and R. J. Wray were third with 1114. Mrs. Lee and G. Lynch fourth with 1083 and A. Lafferty and H. Posto fifth with 1055.

The competition was very close at night and a few pinch hitters might have spilled the beans anytime.

Sidenius, Adams, Win Y.M.C.A. Races

Junior Winner in Only Eleven Years Old, Adams is Newcomer

On Monday two races were staged for the Y Runners a Junior Race about 2½ miles and Senior 3 1-3 miles.

The Juniors were sent away first and made pretty fair time, Cliff Ketcheson leading the way home in 14 min., 27 sec. Flower was second in 14 min., 57 sec., H. Palmer third 16 min., 11 sec., and R. Sidenius fourth in 18 min. 6 sec. Sidenius who is only 11 years carried a handicap and just nosed Ketcheson out in the corrected time by 21 seconds, the result being Sidenius 1st, Ketcheson 2nd, Flower 3rd. The winners' names will be placed on the large shield and each one will receive a medal.

Senior Race

J. Alexander led the way in the Senior 3.3 mile run . Adams was second .Yerex dropped out with muscles tied up and Cornell had a bad stitch and rode in.

Alexander who has not trained since September 6th, could not get far ahead of Adams, a newcomer who finished just 30 seconds behind him. Adams had a handicap of 1 min., 29 sec., so is credited with a win by the corrected time.

H. T. Adams, 1 min., 30 sec.—20 39.
J. Alexander scratch—21 29.

This race was for the Strong Cup and medals.

Leo Bush Winner Of Five Mile Run

Did the Marathon Run at Campbellford in Thirty-one Minutes

(Special to The Intelligencer)

Campbellford, Nov. 11.—Leo Bush of Campbellford won the annual five mile road marathon here Thanksgiving Day from a field of twelve runners, six of whom finished in the race. Bush is now owner of the handsome silver trophy donated by the citizens of the town as first prize, as he has won it three years in succession. James Dickson won it in 1920, and A. Loucks won it in 1921.

A serious accident marred the event. Shortly after the start, J. Heptonstall fell and fractured his right arm. Those who finished the race and the order in which they finished was as follows: Leo Bush first, Thornton Ibey, Jack Crawford, Jack Poulton, Percy Blaind and B. MacPherson. Bush did the five miles in thirty-one minutes. Special prizes are awarded for the later arrivals in the race.

WILL MEETS STATES BODY ON DEC. 5

Toronto, Nov. 11.—The O. H. A. Executive met in The Telegram Building with a full attendance.

It was decided that before any change of policy with regard to O. H. A. teams visiting the United States for exhibition games, that the O.H.A. invite representatives of the United States Amateur Hockey Association to meet the Executive Committee of the O.H.A. in Toronto on Friday, Dec. 5, to discuss international hockey relations.

Playing certificates to clubs will be given out when fees are paid.

O. H. A. clubs are reminded that all senior, intermediate and junior players must have amateur cards and playing certificates will not be issued until they are secured.

Two Seniors

The recommendation of the subcommittee that there be only two city clubs in Toronto in the senior series was endorsed.

A change of residence application form was decided on, and all players who have changed their clubs or residence since Jan. 1, 1924, are requested to write the secretary, W. A. Hewitt, Daily Star, for copies.

Wilson H. Clarke, of Oshawa, suspended during the season of 1923-4, was reinstated.

It was decided to recommend to the O. H. A. annual convention the adoption of an amendment under which the secretary of the association will have the sole appointment of referees for all games.

Queen's Win Four Games in a Row

Defeated Varsity 14-13 on Saturday; Intercollegiate Champions

Toronto, Nov. 11—As was expected by many close followers of sport, the deciding game for the Canadian Intercollegiate championship, between Queen's and Toronto at Varsity Stadium on Saturday, was decided by the breaks of the game and the Blue and White, after having outplayed the Tricolor for the greater part of the way, was forced to admit defeat, the third in succession they have sustained on their home field against Queen's and the Kingston University completed their Intercollegiate season with four straight wins and are now holders of their third consecutive championship, but the winners had to be aided by luck at several stages of the game to win by the smallest possible margin, the score being 14 to 13, while the losers on the other hand seldom were the recipients of a glance from Dame Fortune let alone being given the privilege of basking in a smile for a moment.

While Queen's had the better of the breaks by a considerable margin they demonstrated to the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a game in Canada that they are still a strong team but are not as formidable as they were in 1922 or 1923. The Tri-color was seven points behind before the first period was little more than half over and were trailing at half time by 8 to 5 and the score at the interval was hardly complimentary to the locals as on the play, they deserved a greater margin. In the third period Leadley knotted the count with his second field goal of the game, but the Blue and White once again took the lead by scoring a single.

Up to this time there was no doubt as to the better team and while it was realized that neither team was sure of victory the opinion of the majority was that Varsity would finish in front unless Queen's uncorked something extraordinary in the way of an offensive or that a break would occur. Queen's failed to produce the extraordinary, but the break came and quicker than can be described the one-point margin was transferred into a four-point deficit and the thrice champions took the lead, never again to be caught, but the remainder of the game produced one of the most nerve-wracking finishes ever seen on a rugby field in Canada.

A Costly Fumble

On the first down after Varsity had scored the rouge which gave them a 9 to 8 lead, Leadley kicked to Ralph Mill at centre field and the Varsity quarter back made his only fumble of the game that he failed to recover. Bud Thomas proved the man of the hour when the oval bounced off Mills' chest into his arm. He raced towards the Varsity line and just as he was about to be tackled passed to "Pee Wee" Chantler and the latter went over for a try, which was not converted. It was a great blow to the Blue and rooters mingled their cheers with sighs of relief and sent up their Thanksgivings two days in advance.

Varsity came back and for the remainder of the period held Queen's scoreless, even if the winners did have the advantage of the wind and in the fourth quarter the locals staged an onslaught which, if it had been favored by any break would have reversed the result, but their luck was out. Twice Sandy Somerville attempted drop kicks but they were wide. Referee Isbister had to get a line on both of them they were so close and it was a matter of few inches in both cases. Instead of three points they both went for singles. Just before the game ended Somrville tried a sixty-yard drop as a final stab for victory and while the task was practically impossible before he attempted it, he made his best effort of the day, the ball travelling true for over forty yards. Had he been as successful in either of his previous attempts, Varsity would have finished on the long end of the score but such is rugby:

In the last period the losers had their opponents distinctly on the run and it called for all the defensive ability of the Tri-color, principally that of Batstone and Leadley to keep the Blue and White from regaining the lead. While a victory meant everything to Varsity and Warren Snyder they wanted it to be earned in a convincing manner and the fourth period was productive of one of the greatest exhibitions of sportsmanship on the part of the local leader. In a tackle, Harry Batstone had the back half of the sole of his shoe torn loose and called for time to have it repaired. When the two minutes was up Referee Isbister put the ball in play and Queen's had to resume without the services of the greatest star in the constellation. Batstone ran on the field after the first down with his shoe tied up with a handkerchief.

The teams: Queen's—McLeod, flying wing; Batstone Leadley and G. McKelvey, halves; Baldwin, quarter; Lewis, snap; Brown and Norrie, insides; Reynolds and J McKelvey, middles; Thomas and Wright, outsides; Chantler, Burley, Airth, Muirhead and Groudin, substitutes.

Toronto—Kirkpatrick, flying wing; Pequegnat, W. Snyder and Somerville halves; Mills, quarter; Weber, snap; King and S. Snyder, insides; H. Stollery and Bales, middles; Campbell and Duncan, outsides; Dundas, Soanes, Taylor, Master and W. Stollery substitutes.

Referee—Bob Isbister, Hamilton; Umpire—Joe O'Brien, Kingston, Head linesman—Lt.-Col. Constantine, Kingston

OSHAWA CLAIMS TO HAVE A GOOD TEAM

Oshawa, Nov. 11.—With announcements appearing in the outside papers that hockey practice would soon open in the centres where artificial ice is available and one of a more recent date in a Toronto morning paper which inferred that Oshawa "the Baby City of Ontario," would not operate in the Intermediate Series of the Ontario Hockey Association unless an S. O. S. is responded to by all veterans of past years, has made local enthusiasts who have been basking in the exceptional sunshine of the past few weekse, stir from their shells to consider the winter months sport in Oshawa. Since Wednesday morning one could see impromptu gatherings around the "four corners" discussing the outlook and while the first peep on the inside looked gloomy, local fans can pin this in their hat: Oshawa will be represented by as good a team as last season ifnot better. Of the "vets" of past years who are anxious to again get in harness are "Dick" Smith, the old reliable net guardian Russ Williams, Sammy Lowe, Jack Smith with a possibility of Walt Fair again donning the blades and all four working out for the defense positions; "Kip" Rowden and a Winnipeg hockey player who has located here, skidding the boards on hight wing; Carl Houck and Strip Stevens, the two Uxbridge boys, to face off at centre and Morris, the Owen Sound boy and Avery, Formerly of Bowmanville, on left wing.

BASEBALLERS HUNNTING

Peterboro, Nov. 11.—Messrs. Al. Heckman and Arthur Johnston left Sunday to join the Eagle Lake Hunt Club who are in full strength at their usual hunting grounds. The personnel in additoin to the two already mentioned consists of Chas. Gunsolus, Capt. A. G. Carrtuhers, Walter Evans, Gordon White, "Shiner" Johnston Tom Donaldson, Clint Coons, Dan Muskrate and Chef Baptie. Some of the deer had better be careful about getting too long a leaod or "Al" and "Shiner" are liable to pick them off.

"TOTS" HOLWAY GOING

Kingston, Nov. 11.—"Tots" Holway of the Brockville intermediate O. H. A. team of last season, who jumped to the pro. ranks with the Toronto St. Patricks and made good, on Wednesday night received a contract for this winter from the Queen City hockey magnates, which was signed by the player and returned. Holway has not received instructions when to report but as practices will start shortly he expects to leave town in a day or so.

J. L. Forster, Principal of General Byng public school, Sandwich, was elected president of the Teachers' Institute; Windsor. Other officers chosen are : Vice-president, J. Pearson; secretary- treasurer, Mrs. A. Newcomb.

Robert Kerr, a well known resident of Ingersoll, died yesterday aged 62 years. Although ailing for some time he had been confined to his bed for only three days. He was born in North Oxford township and lived there continuously up to a few months ago. He had taken a very active part in township affairs.

Reports that British munition plants have been working night and day to supply 142,000 machine-guns for the Japanese government which were published in more than one London newspaper and subsequently gained world circulation have been vigorously denied by the Japanese authorities, in Tokio.

Any SKIN TROUBLES In Your Home?

Then Zam-Buk is your surest means of securing once more perfectly sound tissue and a blemish-free skin. Zam-Buk owes its signal triumph over skin disease to its unique herbal composition. This rare antiseptic balm expels all harmful germs that have secured lodgment beneath the cuticle, banishes sores and eruptions, and grows healthy new skin in a way done by no mere pore-clogging ointment or fatty salve.

ECZEMA ON HANDS.—Mr. J. E. Cusick, of 319, Wilson St., Hamilton (Ont.), says :—"Every winter eczema appeared on the back of my hands. The intense itching and pain was most severe, and the disease got so bad, I was unable to work. Even a sample box of Zam-Buk proved its worth, and I at once bought a supply. I never could have believed if I had not experienced it, how quickly Zam-Buk completely healed my hands."

BURNS & SCALDS.—Mr. E. Webster, of 519, Seigneurs St., Montreal, says :—"As I was lifting a pan of boiling water off the stove, my son Eddie ran towards me, and knocked the pan upwards, severely scalding his neck. We tried several so-called remedies, but they all failed to give him relief. We then applied Zam-Buk and this acted like a charm. It drew away the pain and soon healed Eddie's terrible scald."

POISONED HAND.—Mrs. Geo. Boorman, of 906, Selkirk Avenue, Winnipeg, says :—"I cut my left hand while using a pair of scissors. The deep ugly wound bled so profusely, and so long, I was afraid an artery had been severed. Inflammation set in, and my thumb turned black with poison. Zam-Buk soothed the acute pain directly, drew out all inflammation and discoloration, and soon healed the wound."

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN: SERIAL: THEATRES

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

She had nearly crossed the stage, had reached the spot exactly opposite that on which Lord Cecil stood. Then, and not till then, he raised his bunch of violets and tossed them at her feet.

She paused a moment in her triumphant progress, for it was nothing less then stooped and picked up the rough-and-ready bouquet; Romeo's arms were quite full.

For an instant her eyes rested on Lord Cecil's face, then, as if with an involuntary movement, she raised the bunch of violets to her lips and passed off the side wings engulfing her.

Three times more they called her as if they could not let her go from their sight, and thrice she came before them and, modestly, girlishly, bowed her acknowledgments.

Then—tired, hot and thirsty—the crowd began to disperse.

Lord Cecil Neville alone remained on the spot from which he had thrown his bouquet. He could scarcely believe that it was over until the attendants began to cover up the seats with their calico wrappings, and taking the hint, he made his way out.

The groups of people he passed through were talking about her triumph. He caught a word here and there, and all unconsciously, found himself at the stage door. At least, he thought, he should get a glimpse of her as she drove away from the theatre.

Meanwhile behind the scenes the greatest exclement prevailed. There had never been a Juliet like her, they were declaring; and they prophesied a success in London which should even eclipse that of Barton!

And Doris, looking pale, stood smiling dreamily through it all. Even while Jeffrey paced to and fro in her dressing-room, too excited for speech, she remained calm and serene, wrapt in a kind of spiritual veil.

Managers, actors, thronged round her with congratulations; even the old dresser, declared, with tears that "nothing had been seen like it."

At last the porter announced that Miss Marlowe's fly was waiting, and Jeffrey took her away from the excited crowd.

"Draw your cloak well around your throat," he said, as anxiously as if she were so fragile that a breath of wind would sweep her away. "Give me those violets to hold for you," he said.

"No, no—I can manage thanks," she said, quickly. "How sweet they smell, do they not?" and she held them up to him for a second.

"Yes" he said, absently. "Were they thrown with the rest?"

"Yes," she answered in a low voice.

"Some one of the poor people in the pit, I daresay," he said; "a graceful and spontaneous tribute, worth, I was going to say, all the the rest of them beautiful and costly though some of the bouquets are. But I daresay you don't agree with me?" and he smiled.

"But I do," she said, averting her eyes. "Yes, I think them worth all the rest!"

They had traversed the long passage by this time, and reached the fly. Jeffrey put her in carefully, and was himself following, when he stopped suddenly, frowning and biting his lips.

"Doris," he said, "you leave all to me? You leave all to my judgment, as hitherto? You are a famous woman now, or will be to-morrow, and may like to be independent. Would you rather wait till to-morrow and make your own arrangements with the manager, or shall I, as of old———"

"Jeffrey!" she broke in, with a reproachful look in her eyes.

"Very well," he said. "Brown has made me a very large offer for a month. I put him off just now, but I think I will go back and accept for you. I shall not be many minutes."

Doris leaned back, and, closing her eyes, pressed the violets against her cheek. She could see, the handsome face all aglow with excitement and admiration as he raised his right arm and flung the flowers; she could see it at that moment, and the mental vision shut out all the rest of that eventful night.

Suddenly she heard her name spoken beside the carriage window, and, leaning forward, she saw, in real earnest, the face which had been her inspiration. It was Lord Cecil Neville's.

"Miss Marlowe," he said, leaning forward and speaking quietly, pleadingly. "Don't be angry! Pray forgive me! I—I could not pass on without saying a word—one word of thanks."

"Thanks?" she murmured.

Her eyes were lifted for a moment to his ardent face, then dropped to the violets and rested there.

Is Outstanding Comedy of Year

"Her Temporary Husband" Makes Hit with Belleville Theatre Goers

In "Her Temporary Husband," a First National comedy feature showing at the Griffin Theatre, there is a cross-section view of three rooms, through which two men are alternately chased by two villains. The four are supposed to reach their door in unison, open and close it so that neither is seen by their pursuers or able to see the men ahead.

During the production of the picture Director John McDermott worked for hours, calling "One, two three, four," so that the four actors would work in accord. But sooner or later, before the scene would be completed, one of them would open a door too soon, or wait too long. After a while, just as the chase was getting warm and McDermott was sighing with relief, in loafed "Prince," the studio dog.

"Bow, wow!" protested Prince, perplexed at such unstagelike conduct. He entered the chase, grabbing Owen Moore by the trouser leg.

Curses. Oaths. Threats. McDermott all but collapsed.

The dog was tied down in a secluded corner and the chase started once more.

"Her Temporary Husband" is the most outstanding comedy of the year. Directed by John McDermott, a master of laugh-provoking pictures, it is interpreted by a most unusual cast of funsters including Owen Moore, Sidney Chaplin, Sylvia Breamer, Tully Marshall, Chuck Reisner, Charles Gerrard, George Cooper and others.

Priscilla Dean Is Regent Star

She Takes Splendid Role In a Great Sea Picture

At the Regent Theatre for the first half of this week, Priscilla Dean is the popular attraction. This charming actress who has been before motion picture fans for several years now and is an old favorite has a splendid role in "The Storm Daughter". Her lot is cast with the rough crew of an old sailing vessel and her adventures during a mutiny and among the various men on board are exciting to say the least. The storm scene is one of the most realistic ever thrown on the screen.

There are other features in addition to Priscilla which make this show well worth while attending.

Be Beautiful! Darken Hair

TRY GRANDMOTHER'S OLD FAVORITE RECIPE OF SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Feet of Clay is Very Entertaining

Belle Theatre is Adaptation Of Popular Magazine Serial

"Feet of Clay," Cecil B. DeMille's latest production for Paramount, which features Rod LaRocque, Vera Reynolds Victor Varconi, Ricardo Cortez, Julia Faye, Theodore Kosloff and Robert Edeson, opened a 3 days' run at the Belle Theatre yesterday. The story is an adaptation of the immensely popular magazine serial by that name by Margaretta Tuttle. Beulah Marie Dix and Bertram Millhauser wrote the screen play.

Traveling in its locale between a brilliant resort, a poor Harlem flat and a gorgeous eye-filling home of wealth, "Feet of Clay" is one of the most entertaining productions DeMille has ever offered the picture public.

The story starts with a yachting party at Catalina Island. All sorts of beach novelties are worked into a series of colorful scenes which in costume combine bathing suits on lovely girls with the latest summer creations of the modiste and the tailor. The eye-filling piece de resistance is a race between twenty girls in jockey bathing suits on surfboards behind fast speedboats.

Capping the beach scenes is a luxurious sequence abroad the world's largest yacht. It is amidst the spacious comfort of this three-hundred-foot pleasure craft that dramatic scenes occur, following a water series where La Rocque's foot is mangled in a fight with a shark.

In the story Julia Faye, wealthy half-sister of the penniless Vera Reynolds, has a "society cat" part of the sort which gained her such a reputation in "Saturday Night," "Triumph" and other pictures. She, her husband, Robert Edeson, and Ricardo Cortez, wealthy in love with Vera Reynolds, form interlocking cogs in a plot which leads to dramatic consequences when La Rocque's makes it necessary for his new wife to support her husband. Misunderstanding is bred by the situation, which De Mille solves in a unique manner.

ECONOMICAL RECIPES

Here are two tested recipes that, in addition to being delicious and tasty, are unusually economical.

ONE EGG CAKE

1-4 cupful Borden's St. Charles Milk diluted with 1-4 cupful cold water.
1-4 cupful vegetable cooking oil, scant
2-3 cupful sugar.
1-2 teaspoonful salt.
1 1-2 teaspoonfuls baking powder.
1 1-2 cupfuls sifted flour.
1-2 teaspoonful vanilla.
1-2 teaspoonful lemon extract..
1 egg.

Beat the egg light and cream with the sugar, salt and flavoring. Combine the milk, diluted, with the cooking oil. Sift together the dry ingredients and add them alternately to the first mixture with milk. Beat thoroughly, turn into lined, medium-sized pan and sprinkle nut meats, chopped raisins or cocoanut over the top. Bake in a moderate oven, for thirty minutes.

EGGLESS MAYONNAISE

3 tablespoonfuls Borden's St. Charles Milk, undiluted.
1-2 teaspoonful salt
1-4 teaspoonful mustard.
2 tablespoonfuls sharp vinegar.
3-4 cupful salad oil—any kind.
1-4 teaspoonful pepper.

Combine the seasonings, add the milk and gradually beat in the oil with an egg beater. Then whip in the vinegar. Use as any Mayonnaise. Transfer to a covered jar. This will keep indefinitely in a cool place. If too thick, thin with Borden's St. Charles Milk.

"Best Thing in the World For Delicate Girls"

Mrs. John Bennett, Boggy Creek, Man., writes:

"My little girl had organic nervous trouble, could not sleep, had severe headaches and fainting spells. This went on for three years, and three doctors helped her very little. After reading of what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food had done for others, I got some for her. She is now so well that she is like a different child. She is fourteen years old and looks the picture of health.

"We have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for different members of the family, when recovering from "flu" and scarlet fever, and it has always helped them."

DISCOVERED IN 1513

Four hundred and eleven years ago an intrepid Spanish explorer and adventurer, Juan Ponce de Leon, by name, first set foot on a land of luxuriant sub-tropic growth known to-day as Florida.

Since that time Florida has become perhaps the most alluring winter resort in the world. A warm-watered ocean offers bathing at its best; a few miles off-shore the monstrous and sporty Tuna and Tarpon await the more adventurous disciples of Izaak Walton; a marvellous beach fringed with exotic palms, broad motor highways, scores of green, velvet-smooth golf courses—the whole steeped in glorious sunshine and perfumed with the fragrance of fruit blossoms and subtropical flowers.

Nature has lavished her bounties on Florida, and man has moulded them for his convenience. There are facilities for every summer recreation—surf-bathing, deep sea fishing, boating, golfing, tennis, riding, motoring. Beautiful hotels, splendid apartments and bungalows house the visitor in luxurious comfort.

Canadian National Railways can offer a splendid service in helping you plan your visit. Any Agent will gladly supply full information and make your reservations. n6-10-19

WOULD RE-ORGANIZE COLONIAL DEPART.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 11.—In a leading editorial, "The Times" suggests the reorganization of the Colonial Department of the Government, stating that the Department has been overburdened with recent accretions like Ireland and Middle East Mandates. The editorial says, "The time is ripe for the recognition of fact that the Colonial office is no longer an appropriate channel for business between self-governing Dominions and the British Government. The Secretary of State for the colonies should be fully employed attending to the vast question of development of resources of Empire.

One of the most successful bazaars ever conducted in Woodstock by any church organization came to a close in the City Hall last night. It was the annual affair staged by the Women's Guild of New St. Paul's Church, and when the receipts were counted up it was found that over $900 had been raised for church purposes.

Wearing GLASSES Strengthens the EYES

The eye is a double lens which refracts the light rays and focuses them on the optic nerve. To get this focus, muscles move the eye and contract and expand the different parts. If the shape of the eye is wrong, these muscles are overworked—strained. Glasses correct the error in the shape of the eyes, allowing the muscles to secure a focus of light rays with only normal work. We are expert in examining eyes and fitting glasses accurately. Glasses we prescribe strengthen the eyes by making them see normally, and ending the strain that causes many kinds of trouble.

Vigilants are Hard At Work in Lindsay

One Bootlegger is Retiring, Two Doctors Reduce Scripts

Lindsay, Nov. 11.—The "night riders," a term used by the opponents of the O. T. A. in referring to the Prohibition Viligance Committees of the county, have already inaugurated their campaign for a vigorous enforcement of the Act.

The first to suffer as a result of their vigilance was a party of hunters from the county, bound for the hunting preserves of Haliburton. They were waylaid by the vigilants at Haliburton a few dayes ago, their cars searched, and six gallons of liquor taken from one of hunters allowed to proceed, but they them. The liquor was confiscated, the will be asked to explain matters later.

Word was sent out to other hunting parties to watch out while going through Minden if they had anything to conceal.

Slump in "Scripts"

There has been a decided slump in the "script" market here as the result of the visit of Vice-Chairman Dingman, of the Provincial License Board. That Thursday that two doctors during the past four months had issued 10,000 scripts. Thursday night some of their "patients" gave out the statement that they were unable to obtain scripts and that the town was bone dry insofar as this particular end of the traffic was concerned.

Bootlegging has been carried on in Lindsay with impunity for a considerable period by a number of well known residents, and it is stated by those in a position to know that one of the number is about to retire from business with a snug bank account to his credit.

CAMPBELLFORD BARN TOUCHED BY FLAMES

(Special to The Intelligencer)

Campbellford, Nov. 11.—Hot ashes started a fire in the barn owned by Thomas Hortans, Grier street, at 11.15 o'clock Saturday night, but the quick work of the firemen with the chemical engine saved the barn from total destruction. The loss will not be heavy as the barn was well insured.

Adelaide township lost a well known resident in the person of John James Earley, who died in his 69th year. He leaves his widow, two sons and one daughter.

Announcement was made yesterday at Windsor by the committee having the matter in charge, that ratepayers will not be asked at the coming municipal election to vote on the general hospital by-law, nor will any steps be taken toward completing the project until next year.

District News

Church Wall Fell

Point Anne, Nov. 11.—The Pointe Anne United Church, the first venture of the kind by merged congregations in this district, with the walls almost erected to their full height, has come to grief. High winds which continued most of the night Saturday were too much for it. The whole of the west wall crumled up and a section 25 feet long fell into the basement taking with it 20 feet of the north wall. These walls were of concrete blocks and were "green," but the foundation of poured cement remains firm. The United Church now proposes to ask help from Presbyterian and Methodist congregations in the district in order to carry on, according to Rev. L. F. Sharpe, the minister.

Identifies Sailor's Body

Kingston, Nov. 11.—The mate of the steamer Glenlockie, from the crew of which three men were drowned on Saturday morning when the steamer ran ashore on the Charity Shoal, was in the city Friday afternoon and viewed the body found by the Belyea brothers near Simcoe Island, and which lies in the undertaking parlors of Mr. John Cornellous. The mate positively identified the body as that of John Brody, who shipped on board the Glen lockie in Montreal.

Purchases Hotel

Tweed, Nov. 11.—Mr. [illegible] Cournyea who has been an auctioneer in this district for a number of years has purchased the Bradshaw Hotel at Tamworth and will take possession about December 1.

Snider Again Remanded

Kingston, Nov. 11.—Urban V. Snider of Odessa, who was remanded for one week from last Saturday by Police Magistrate Rutan of Napanee on a charge of shooting with intent to do bodily harm in connection with the wounding of the boy, Percy Clarke in Odessa on Hallowe'en, again appeared before the magistrate in Napanee Friday morning and was again remanded until Saturday next.

Used Another's Car

Kingston, Nov. 11.—In city police court Saturday morning a young man who has been in this city for only a few months, was fined $100 and costs or in default three months in jail on pleading guilty to a charge of stealing the use of an automobile without the consent of the owner.

The owner of the car is Ald. H. F. Price.

Girl Student Passes

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Miss Doris McLean, prominent in girls' athletic associations and student of Whitby Ladies' College died suddenly Friday morning at the home of her parents at 12 Austin Terrace. Miss McLean, who was only 18 years of age had always enjoyed good health, and was keen participant in all outdoor sports. About a month ago she came home from Whitby complaining of "not feeling just right," and two weeks ago she was taken seriously ill.

Big Barn Burns

Lakefield, Nov. 11.—Fire which broke out between 5 o'clock and 5.30 Thursday evening, completely destroyed the big barn at the Peterborough House of Refuge, ¼ of a mile from here. Two calves and two pigs were lost in the blaze.

Sentence Is Suspended

Oshawa, Nov. 11.—Edward Beverley of Brooklin, when he appeared for sentence before Judge McGillivray in the County Court, Whitby, Friday, after being found guilty a week ago of the seduction of a farmer's young daughter living near Brooklyn, was allowed to go on suspended sentence, besides defraying the costs of the prosecution. During the summer Beverley and the girl lived for three days and nights in a Ford coupe touring in the vicinity of Oshawa to Port Perry.

ANOTHER BOOST

"The editor of The Examiner spent last Friday in Belleville presiding at a meeting held by the Ontario Division of the C.W.N.A. for that district. There was a good attendance from the territory between Uxbridge and Cornwall. The meetings were held at the Chamber of Commerce office. Belleville's Chamber of Commerce is a live organization with J. O. Herity, a former newspaperman, as its energetic secretary. It has done and is doing a splendid work in building up Belleville.

"At noon the newspapermen were entertained at luncheon at the fine Quinte Hotel by the Mayor and Council of Belleville. Other guests included the mayors and reeves of a number of municipalities who had met to confer with the Belleville council as to means for promoting the common welfare of that district. TWO WOMEN FELL DOWN SIDE OF CLIFF

Campbelltown, N.B., Nov. 11.—Two young women of this town lost their lives on Sugar Loaf Mountain Saturday.

Mrs. Dorval McLean, aged 32, wife of Edward McLean, an employe of the Canadian National Express Company, and her sister, Miss Lottie Ramsay, aged 18, are the victims. They are thought to have fallen from a cliff.

They left home yesterday afternoon to walk up Sugar Loaf Mountain. When evening came they failed to return, and search parties set out. The bodies were located today. From the position of the bodies it was evident that they had fallen while climbing the mountain and rolled to the bottom of the cliff.

Mrs. McLean is survived by her husband and a seven-months'-old baby.

SET GRANARY AFIRE TO ATTRACT HELP

Bandon, Nov. 11.—One thousand bushels of barley went up in smoke Saturday when Harry Withers of this city, suffering from a compound fracture of his right leg, which was also frozen, crawled to a haystack and set fire to a small portion of it in hopes of summoning aid. A granary was on the other side of the stack, and was destroyed by the blaze.

On Friday Withers was motoring near Moosomin, Sask., when his car stalled, and as he stepped out of it he slipped and fractured his right ankle. Using the car cushions as crutches, he spent the night looking for a farmhouse, and managed to reach the stack early in the morning.

Walking around in this way he caused a compound fracture of his leg, and it may have to be amputated.

"I Will Not Discuss The Issue This Afternoon. I Will Leave That To Other Speakers Who Know More About It"-- HANNA

PORTER KNOCKS ARGUMENTS OF GEORGE GORDON

While Charles Hanna Sits By Wrapped in Deep Silence

ISSUES CHALLENGE

But None Refute Facts Given by Conservative Candidate

During the brief ten minutes given Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., in which to reply to Charles Hanna and his speaker at nomination meeting yesterday, he swept away every leg upon which G. N. Gordon, K.C.M.P. of Peterboro speaker for Hanna, had built his fifty minute oration, and allowed his arguments to fall flat before the Liberal-Conservative section of the audience which sent up roaring cheers that all but prevented Mr. Porter from being heard.

"I could speak for one hour in reply," smiled the veteran of West Hastings, when he realized that the ten minutes were spent, "but the Liberals are running the machine and that is all the time I have been allowed."

Standing boldly to the extreme front of the platform, calm and composed, the note paper on which he had noted his debating points scarcely moving in his upheld hand, Mr. Porter with determination and evident satisfaction, hurled back and discredited the one-sided and technically legal arguments advanced by Mr. Gordon.

"Forty of the fifty minutes taken up by Gordon's speech had nothing whatever to do with the issue in West Hastings, the Murdock charges," explained Mr. Porter, "although in his parting remarks he clearly stated, that it is an election with but one issue."

In speaking of the G.T.R. arbitration in 1920, Gordon had confined his remarks chiefly to the fees and salaries drawn by the lawyers (Conservative of course) for their foreclosing the mortgage. He gave names and numbers which proved tiresome.

Murdock Sold Labor

In answer Mr. Porter said, "Yes, Murdock was arbitrator for the railway men, but he sold them body and britches, and any of them will tell you so." (loud cheers and applause.)

Gordon had stated that Murdock had been appointed to the Board of Commerce by Mr. Meighen to assist in keeping down prices in Canada, with the acquiescence of Hon. Edmund Bristol, K.C., and Guss Porter.

"He is the enemy of Meighen and a few of his followers however, since he objected to interference with a judge's decision which would protect the masses against combines," he said "Murdock resigned as a result of the differences, and the conspirators and scalp hunters are after him yet even unto the threshold of private life."

"Yes, he was appointed by Mr Meighen and the Conservative Government answered the Conservative candidate, "and acted on the Board of Commerce until he betrayed his trust and went over with the Grits to become a Cabinet Minister." (Loud applause and cheers.)

Strange to relate, Gordon avoided the postal strike entirely, but Mr. Porter did not. He reminded the Labor section of his audience (and it was strong and obviously for Porter) that Murdock had told the postal employes who had gone out on strike, "That they could stay out until Hell froze over." (Loud applause.)

"How about it, Gordon?" piped a voice.

Gordon had said that Porter's charges against Murdock were shameful and untrue. Mr. Porter believed that Gordon was too bright a man to make such a statement.

"Murdock has never yet denied the charges, though given several opportunities," explained Mr. Porter. (applause and cheers.)

"Come on Gordon, how about it?" shouted one man in the audience.

From Gordon Himself

Gordon had stated that Murdock had not received the information that the Home Bank was shaky from the Council Chamber, but "from another source."

The other source of information was G. N. Gordon, explained Mr. Porter amid roars of laughter and prolonged cheers. Is it any wonder that he comes here today to defend him?

Gordon said that Murdock was just as morally pure and respected as Porter.

Mr. Porter's answer was, "We are all respectable until we are found out. He may have been respectable until this incident. I do not care to know

ALDERMAN DENIES RECEIVING LETTER

From Constable Charging Trifling With Daughter's Affections

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, Nov. 12.—Denial that he had ever received a registered letter backing up William C. Radley's complaint that a Montreal constable was trifling with his daughter's affections, was made by Alderman J. A. Brodeur, chairman of the Executive Committee of the city of Montreal this morning on the witness stand at the Montreal police investigation. Radley yesterday testified that he had been invited by Ald. Brodeur to write his charges against Constable Arthur Belanger along this line. He had done so and sent the letter by registered mail from Toronto, his home and had received no reply.

Alderman Brodeur remembered Radley calling on him. He had asked Radley to send some of the letters which the constable was alleged to have been writing to Miss Radley, enticing her to leave home. These letters had not apparently been produced. He had not proceeded further against the constable because the charges against him were not substantiated. He assured the court he had not seen the letter Radley claimed to have written and was then allowed to sit down.

TWO CHILDREN ARE BURNED TO DEATH

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Owen Sound, Nov. 12.—Helen and Loretta Featherstone, eight and nine years of age respectively, were burned to death early this morning and their grandmother, Mrs. Fred Featherstone is in hospital seriously burned and may not recover. The fire which broke out in the back kitchen of their home quickly spread to the brick portion of house and before the children could be got out, they were suffocated and burned to death. The mother of the children also escaped. Coroner Dr. Dow will hold an inquest.

STILL UNCERTAIN OF SHIP'S IDENTITY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 12—A derelict reported to the Navy Department as having been sighted in the path taken by the missing yacht "Lief Ericson" for which the cruiser "Trenton" is searching the North Atlantic, was located as early as Sept. fifth, the Department was informed to-day and therefore could hardly be the wreck of the missing yacht. Message to Department said Holland-American Liner Rhyndam reported derelict in approximately same position given few days ago to cruiser Trenton on arriving in New York.

THREE HUNDRED CITY WOMEN HEAR SPLENDID ADDRESSES AT POPULAR PORTER RALLY

Candidate Shows Ladies How to Return Franchise Privilege

MRS. FALLIS SPEAKS

Issue is Right or Wrong, She Says; Up to Women

"During my public life. I have never heard three such fine addresses in the one hall and at a single meeting as I have heard tonight."

That was the spoken verdict of E. Guss Porter, K.C., when he arose to address the Liberal-Conservative ladies of Belleville in the G.W.V.A. Memorial auditorium last evening. Three hundred ladies and a number of men attended the meeting which was addressed by Hon. Edmund Bristol, K.C., M.P., of Toronto, Mrs. Howard Fallis of Peterboro, Hon. J. R. Cook, M.P.P. and E. Guss Porter, K.C. Mrs. (Dr.) Kinnear presided in her usual finished manner.

Mr. Porter stated that he was unable to find words to express thanks for the excellent work the women of Belleville were doing for him. "You are doing able and effective work," he said. Then he pointed out that every woman now had an opportunity of voting for him, as he had voted for the franchise for women when it was introduced and passed in parliament.

"I had the privilege of voting for you. Now you have a privilege," he reminded.

The chief argument by those for the franchise for women when it was introduced in parliament, was the superior ability of women in determining moral questions.

Will Justify Faith

"The moral issue in this election will justify the faith men had in women at that time. Will women decide the moral issue on the right side, or forget their obligation and vote the other way?"

Mr. Porter appealed for the active, united and intelligent support of men and women of the riding, in saying that they do not want a lower moral standard in public life.

This case has never had a precedent Twice in the history of Canadian parliament two Conservative members of a Conservative government lapsed from their obligation, but they were driven from public life forever. Not so with Murdock. Every man jack of King's men swallowed their honor preferring rather to retain power than to punish crime. They whitewashed Murdock's face both in committee and in the House of Commons, but they could never remove the scar on his soul.

Mr. Porter stated that he knew he could never get a verdict for he was opposed by partisans of the worst possible type.

The remainder of his address was a repitition of his presentation of the issue as given at the nomination meeting and as appeared in Tuesday's issue.

Mrs. Fallis Explains

"It is honor vs. dishonor, justice vs injustice and right vs. wrong," said Mrs. Fallis in presenting the issue for her sisters, and it is imperative that every woman use every bit of influence to change public sentiment towards moral integrity in public life and for the moulding of public sentiment. The moulding of public sentiment is superior to the making of statutes, so it behooves every woman to do her share in broadening the influence, forming public opinion and thoroughly and permanently organizing. The marking of a ballot is very simple but the significance is great and only through active organization may women ever hope for representation at Ottawa—not by sitting and quietly talking at home. Organize and make it known to the world that you are a power to be reckoned with.

Liquor laws, factory and change in ownership laws, Mrs. Fallis states is the result of the work of women, who though young in politics have been old in suffering.

Assailed King

That the tariff is of vital interest to women as it affects the comfort and happiness of the home is Mrs. Fallis' belief. She assailed King for being all things to all men on the tariff issue. Adequate protection for industries and Canada should be first. King will find that election promises must be kept when he comes out at the next general election. He urges Progressives in the West to unite with the Liberals. "We can unite on the common ground objections to the tariff, and then Hon. Thomas Low says King will not tamper with the tariff. The English and U.S.A elections show that people are demanding stability and are tired of coalitions.

Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.P. regretted that he must discuss a crime, for such it was that Murdock was charged with. Welcoming women to the political fold, Mr. Cooke told of their past influences towards higher standards and advances in any line of endeavour.

Why Shouldn't They?

"Why shouldn't they"? he asked. "They teach thamother lessons to the children in the cradles, which can only be taught by mothers".

Murdock's action in the speaker's opinion was a vicious violation of a solemn obligation by a Minister of the Crown, and Hanna cannot get a way from the fact that he is champion of the man who was charged by Mr. Porter

TO ENFORCE AWARDS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Mr. Justice Kelly has given judgment for the enforcement of the awards of the arbitrators who awarded Ed. A. Kellaway $200, and Frances and George Evans $50 damages against the City of Belleville for injury to their premises and stock by flooding.

In the first case the arbitrators fees are placed at $450, stenographers fees at $25, and claimants costs at $100. Kellaway had claimed $200 and Evans' claim was $100.

Men Outnumbered By Women Here

When it Comes to Vote In Municipal Elections

At the approaching civic election for Mayor and Aldermen for 1925 the lady voters of the city if they choose to exercise their franchise will have it in their power to say who will be their choice. There are, according to the 1924 voters' list, just issued! 6034 persons entitled to vote of whom 3173 are women and 2861 men, a majority of 312 for the women. The classification in the various polling subdivisions are as follows:

Ward	No.	Women	Men

A large an enthusiastic meeting of men supporters of Mr. Porter in this city was held last evening at the Conservative rooms, east Robertson block. Every ward in the city was well represented by a large number of workers who entered heartily into the task of checking over the voters' list. Meetings will be held every evening until the day of election.

BECK EXPLAINS CHARGES MADE BY SECRETARY

Tells Commissioner He Had Right to Furnished Flat

HE HIRED DETECTIVES

Settell Had Been Alarmed By Home Smith's Guests

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Giving evidence this morning before Commissioner Judge C. Snider, investigating charges made by E. C. Settell against officials of the Hydro Electric Power Commission. Sir Adam Beck, chairman of Commission, declared that when he started on the Hydro Commission he served without compensation, but had demanded certain privileges including a motor car and a chauffeur and hotel expenses.

At the end of six years he was offered a cheque by the late Sir James Whitney for $45,000, being at a rate of six thousand dollars per year and fifteen hundred living expenses. This Sir Adam said he refused.

Sir Adam then explained that the Commission furnished a part of a small flat and later when a bigger flat was used Sir Adam brought all his furnishings from his London residence.

In conectionn with the Sothman charges, Sir Adam said that when Sothman was appointed chief engineer, it was stipulated that he should be allowed to do outside work and this the Commission knew. Regarding the charges that detectives had been employed to watch Home Smith's house, the Hydro Chairman stated that Settell came to him alarmed stating that people were congregating in the house who should not be there.

"I absolutely deny that, Mr. Commissioner," interjected Settell.

He did not know how fees of detectives were charged, said witness, admitting they were engaged. Settell hired them he said.

Allowed a Car

Sir Adam said that as a remount officer during the war, he had used a car and chauffeur while buying horses for the army. He was entitled to the use the car and the Commissioners knew it, he declared. The Hydro Chairman denied absolutely the charge that changes were made in the minutes of Commission. There might have been changes in technical terms, but no deliberate changes, he testified. Sir Adam declared that he had never refused to pay accounts placed before him by Settell.

"He was the only protection I had" he said. "I asked for protection by the staff so that personal accounts should be paid by myself and not allowed to be chargod to Hydro."

He denied emphatically that twenty thousand dollars of Hydro funds deposited in Molson Bank was to secure a loan made by Beck companies or himself.

"The Beck company never got a loan of any kind from Molson's Bank", he declared.

No Apologies to Make

"Y" WORKERS NEAR $5,000 OBJECTIVE

R. J. Wray's Team Attained Their Objective—Others Expect To

The aim of the Y.M.C.A. workers to secure $5,000 to meet necessary obligations is virtually assured Last evening at the Y building a meeting was held of team captains and workers which was presided over by Mr. W. J. Deacon. Supper was served by the members of the ladies auxiliary, who were heartily thanked by past President, G. F. Ostrom for serving five suppers during the progress of the campaign.

The report of captains was most encouraging. Mr. R. J. Wray's team heads the list with their objective attained. Messrs S. Licenso and H. Clarke's teams have also in sight the amounts allotted to them, Messrs S. Nurse, H. G. Holton, F. G. Cole and P. North's teams are all near their objective and expect to reach same.

The total amount reported last night was $615 making a total of $4,483 of the objective of $5,000.

Several captains were called upon and all complimented Mr. North and members of his team for the work done on new ground.

It was expected that Mr. H. W. Ackerman's surprise package would have been opened at this meeting but it has not yet arrived.

Mr. H. Ballantyne, general secretary of the Y's National Council of Canada, will be here in a few days to meet the Board of the Y also the workers in the campaign. At this meeting awards will be made to the workers.

Armistice Concert Proves Real Treat

Many Revel in Music By Bridge St. Choir and Dr. MacMillan

A rare treat was afforded the music lovers of Belleville last night, who heard Dr. Earnest MacMillan, Mus. Doc., Oxon, F.R.C.O., at the fifth annual Armistice Day concert given by Bridge St. Church.

The opening number was the one hundredth and fiftieth psalm by the choir. In all their selections, the choir gave evidence of careful training, and perfect harmony.

Scherzo (from Sonata No. 5) was the following number, with Dr. MacMillan at the organ. Dr. MacMillan is a real artist and held the audience spellbound from the first notes. He has perfect techuique and an accomplished touch.

Lullaby, sung by the choir and accompanied by Professor Hunt at the organ and Miss Wylda Palmer at the piano was a delightful selection. By Babylon's Wave was another well rendered number with an organ prelude, and piano accompaniment. The Bells of St. Michael's Tower completed the choruses.

Messrs Jack Deacon and Harold Howard sang a fine duet "Watchman, What of the Night?"

The soloists were Miss Irene Baker Mr. Allan Schryver, Mrs. MacKinnon, Mr. Fred Sprague and Mrs. Stebie, and all pleased the audience immensely.

Dr. MacMillan at the organ, brilliantly played selections from Handel, and Daquin: Prelude and Fugue in A Minor by Bach; Intermezzo and a Song of Sunshine by Hollins; and Cesar Franck's Finale in B. Flat These were much appreciated by the audience who brought Dr. MacMillan back for encores in spite of Professor Hunt's request that there be none.

The receipts from the sale of tickets are expected to amount to over $150 when all returns are made.

According to a report prepared for the Protective Committee of the American Bankers' Association, the cost of crime in the United States has reached its highest point, as much as the annual budget of the nation, which was more than $3,600,000.

LIBERALS MEET IN ENGLAND TO REMEDY ILLS

Lack of Harmony Evident Since Collapse Of Party

WILL OVER HAUL IT

Object to Aversion of Three Cornered Fights to Defeat Labor

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London Nov. 12—Steps taken by its leaders towards overhauling the Liberal party are not viewed with entire favour by those in the party ranks. About one hundred Liberal candidates who were defeated in the recent polling met yesterday to talk over the situation. They criticised the constitution of the committee of experts which Mr. Asquith party leader announced last Monday was working to meet the need for overhauling of the party "from top to bottom". Particular criticism was directed against inclusion in the committee of some members whom candidates regarded as largely responsible for poor organization which is blamed for Liberal collapse. Demand was made for wider representation and appointment of independent investigators on committee. The pact with Conservatives, by which three cornered fights were averted in some constituencies to assure defeat of Laborites was roundly condemned at the meeting and another complaint was that there was nobody at Liberal headquarters during election with sufficient authority to advise when difficulties arose. More democratic control of party funds was demanded.

SAYS FASTING IS OLD AGE ENEMY

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Prof. A. J. Carlson of the Department of Physiology, University of Chicago, after three years' investigation, has come to the conclusion that fasting is the real enemy of old age.

Fifteen-day fast periods is what the professor believes is the right dose. This so increases the metabolic rate that the faster arises with song and retires with a zest.

Dr. Carlson, who has himself submitted to the experiment, says fasting is not painfl. He carreid on his work while fasting, and though he grew somewhat weak, there was no pain or mental re-action.

ADMITTING THE TRUTH

The Daily Intelligencer to-day employs an unusual method to bring before the attention of the electors of West Hastings a remark made by Charles Hanna, Liberal candidate, at the nomination meeting held yesterday in the City Hall. His words will be found at the top of page one.

Charles Hanna could not have uttered a more fitting statement to strengthen the claims made by The Intelligencer recently that he is but a figure head in this by-election. He is to be congratulated for his frankness.

As a matter of truth, Charles Hanna knows little about the issue upon which he is running. We doubt very much that he has even taken the trouble to study the facts of the Murdock charges. His silence about anything and everything which would have to do with his job at Ottawa, were he elected, lends a terrible suspicion of his helplessness as West Hasting's representative in the House of Commons.

Liberals of the riding have made a grave mistake in offering to the voters of West Hastings a candidate who appears to be nothing more than the man who carries the Liberal banner.

A CAPABLE OFFICER

Belleville welcomes as a new citizen to-day E. C. Gurnett, acting Inspector for Division No. 5, Provincial Police. He has taken the place of Inspector Reg. Bumpstead who has resigned.

Inspector Gurnett comes to this district with a splendid record. Following a period of good service overseas, he joined up with the Provincial force and was not long in distinguishing himself. In Welland County, he had charge of several important cases of crime and established a fine reputation as something more than a policeman—a detective.

He showed absolute lack of, fear when on the trail of murderers in the Welland county and his ability was rewarded with promotion to the rank of sergeant. He was stationed in Toronto prior to coming to Belleville.

Here he will become a friend to law-abiding citizens and a stern enemy to law-breakers, if he lives up to his record to date.

AN OBJECTION

On Friday last, The Intelligencer published an editorial entitled "Hanna's Poor Support". Therein, it was pointed out that the Liberal press of the country had not had the courage to come out in defense of the conduct of James Murdock. The Ontario of Belleville was mentioned especially.

Strange to relate the Liberal organ of this city has had nothing to say. Apparently, it has accepted the indictment. From another source, however, there comes an objection.

The editor received a letter to-day from the editor of the British Whig, a strong Liberal paper at Kingston, who writes that "apparently you are not reading the Liberal press of the province. To do so would be a Liberal education, at least."

He goes on to state that an editorial had been published in the Whig. It was called "A Meaningless Gesture", in which the claim is made that the charges against Murdock are "petty". He enclosed this editorial and incorporates in his letter a campaign speech for Charles Hanna. Then comes the last paragraph: "I trust, that in fairness to Mr. Hanna and the community you serve, you will be good enough to publish this letter from a Liberal editor."

"A Meaningless Gesture" was a well written editorial, but it didn't mean anything. It was on a par with the excuses for Murdock being put up by cabinet ministers throughout the riding now. It was as full of meaning as the Liberal-Progressive "whitewashing" vote in the House of Commons. It was a blanket denial of the charges, lacking discussion of the history of Murdock's transactions, which, when put into print, are self-convicting.

Perhaps, the Belleville Liberal paper, the Daily Ontario, may serve the community by publishing the Whig's campaign letter.

THE "NIGHT RIDERS"

The Peterboro Examiner, published the following for editorial last night, criticizing severely the action of some "Vigilantes" up north who seized liquor from hunters:

"If the reports of the activities of the Prohibition Vigilance Committee in Haliburton are correct, the Attorney-General should have something to say in the matter.

"It is stated that a party of hunters en route to their camp was waylaid by the "vigilantes" and six gallons of liquor confiscated.

"The right of hunting parties to have liquor at their camps, involving, of course, the question of whether or not a hunting camp is a legal place within the meaning of the Ontario Temperance Act. does not enter into the situation.

"What does matter is that a band of citizens with a misguided conception of their duty have apparently usurped the prerogation of the law's representatives.

"That kind of conduct cannot be tolerated in this Province.

"Ontario wants no Ku Klux Klan methods in her law administration, whether in dealing with the Ontario Temperance Act or in enforcing any other measure on the statute books.

"If over-zealous prohibitionists actually seized a quantity of liquor, as alleged, they should be arrested immediately on a charge of highway robbery.

"The Ontario Temperance Act must be enforced in respect to the expressed will of the majority, but it must be enforced by the officers of the law—not by fanatics who think they are justified in taking the law into their own hands.

"The Attorney-General should institute immediate inquiry into this Haliburton story.

"There must be no further outrages of that kind in Ontario."

Three Hundred

forming the only issue in the election.

Hanna was reluctant at first in accepting the unpopular position. He deliberately stated to the press that he would not stand, but by virtue of some inducing negotiations he now accupies the unenviable position.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, Dominion Liberal organizer and known as election fixer, had a hard time to secure a candidate to carry the odium. He did not seek old Liberals.

"I can imagine him saying to his Liberal chiefstians at Ottawa, 'I cannot find a Liberal but there is one Charles Hanna who has been thrice mayor. He supported Mr Porter twice,he supported the Labor-Liberal candidate another time. He supported an Independent conservative anotoher time, and the U F. O. at another time. Probably I could get Hanna.'"

"At any rate Marshall did not issue the writ until the public press became insistent, for he evidently thought that if the proper inducements were held out in the right way, Hanna might accept. Probably one condition of his acceptance was that the Liberal chiefs must come into the riding to assist in the campaign, but Mr. Murdock must be kept in the background.

Pointing out the difference in the sentences meted out to Peter Smith and Amelius Jarvis, he said, the reason that Smith received six times as heavy sentence, was because Smith had taken a solemn oath. Jarvis had not.

"What difference is there between the Smith crime and the Murdock accusation"? asked the speaker. Ottawa Ministers have excused and alleviated his conduct, but not one has denied the charges."

That Murdock's reasons for withdrawing the money were excuses, was shown by the speaker who told that the statement that the $4,000 was to pa yoff a mortgage was untrue. It was not his indemnity either for he receives $14,000 annually not $4,000 and any man drawing $14,000 annually deserves no sympathy.

He acted the coward when he said he withdrew the money at the beheat of his wife, and that statement was also untrue. He got the information about the bank's condition right in the council chamber and he went direct to the Home Bank, refused a marked cheque, demanded the cash, which he took and gave to his hired girl, instructing her to deposit it in the Royal Bank in her name.

"When Hanna stands for a man like this, he offers a deadly insult to the electors of West Hastings," he said, and again Mr. Cooke asked what were the inducements which caused Hanna to accept.

Appeals For Support

Hon. Edmund Bristol believes that if the women electors use skill, patience and ability as they did for himself in Centre Toronto, Mr. Porter will receive the greatest majority that he ever received in his political life.

"Very few men in public life can stand up with Mr. Porter," exclaimed the speaker. "He has been a successful lawyer, and his war sacrifices as well as sacrifices throughout his life deserve warmest admiration and good will."

It was a disagreeable task to attack a minister, especially of the opposition and especially Minister of Labor. Honesty, ability and courage on Mr. Porter's part, however caused the charges to be laid, and clearly proven.

Woman Was Honest

An uniquely interesting feature of the result of the vote of the investigation committee (composed of 17 Liberals and Progressives and 4 Conservatives) was the fact that but one of the 17 voted for Porter and his charges, and that one was Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P. (Applause greeted this announcement).

Twenty-seven thousand depositors in the Home Bank had but $200 deposits. When Murdock withdrew his $1,000 only after having received two letters from Mr. Clarkson, liquidator of the Home Bank, the second of which warned him of the law, he was acting in a small manner towards the 27,000 small depositors. Knowing these facts it seemed unnecessary to ask, "Was he properly charged?"

No wthe Liberals and their cohorts were in this riding in a body, for they would rather win this election than anything else in the world They are losing seats in Quebec and Vancouver and their majorities are being reduced where they are winners. They will be crazy to do any thing to win—by hook or by crook.

Touches Tariff Issue

Mr. Bristol told of seventeen of the greatest Liberals coming out in opposition to Laurier and the 1911 Laurier tariff policy which would hand Canada to the United States. That was when Sir Clifford Sifton left the Liberal fold.

The present day Liberal party then is a sort of remnant—the same breed of imitators who denounced the national policy—the salvation of Canada—and who denounced the building of the Canadian National Railway which opened up the west. By mixing the school question up for the Orangeman in the west they got in power.

During the war in 1917, 36 English speaking Liberals voted for Conservatives and joined the coalition party, it was pointed out.

"Now all they can say is that Mr. Porter did not get a majority for the substantiation of his charges." He never would get a majority from an outfit like that, if it is a question of honesty and fair dealing to the public." explained the speaker.

Mr. Bristol stated that it would be disgraceful to vote for a remnant, who were not with us in the war, and urged that every sound thinking woman and man vote for the party which has always been reliable, and always sticks to one platform—the party which has been responsible for the real building of anything big and beneficial which is in the country.

"You have always received fair treatment from the Conservative party and will again when it is returned to power at the next general election," assured the speaker.

Preaching Free Trade

Two of King's ministers are now preaching free trade, one of the surest dampers for investments in Canada, and yet King tells them, in the west that the Progressives should join up with the Liberals.

Blame for the increased national debt, stagnant factories and migration of Canucks to United States, the speakers laid to MacKenzie King and his policies. He also charged King with spending the war years in the United States making dollars out of Rockefeller, where he later received honorary degrees from two universities.

"I hope that all you good people, descendants of the United Empire Loyalists, will get out election day," emphasized the former Napanee boy," and with all your friends take possession of every polling booth and assist to make even still greater the unhappiness in the present unhappy Liberal camp."

Mr. A. Thomson delighted the audience by singing two fine songs, on of which was an old Tory Scottish song.

FORGETTING GOD

(Montreal Star)

As a matter of fact, the average sermon sends us forth strangely listless and languid, with our obscure life unilluminated and our spiritual hunger unappeased. This may well be the fault of the pew. Christianity is built on the simple faith of simple souls, and we have rambled far from the ancient simplicities followed material delusions, sought riches instead of righteousness, worked out our problems in terms of the world, the flesh and the devil, the lust of the flesh the lust of the eye and the pride of life.

RIGHT AND WRONG CRITICISM

(Louisville Record)

Criticism is a good thing. It is indeed a fine art. Its object should be to bring about correction and improvement, and when this is its aim it should be always welcome.

But criticism that is intended in the way of condemnation can never be welcome, and rarely, if ever, does any good. It is not given to us to condemn our fellow men. Judge not lest you be judged, is the word of authority.

CONDITIONS IN CHICAGO

(Toronto Star)

A report presented to Chicago's city council showed that in one Sunday paper there were forty-three columns of "flats for rent" advertisements and four columns of "suburban apartments." In all, there were approximately 5,000 vacant flats in the city advertised, and close to 500 in the suburbs. The report says an equal number, if not more are not advertised. In exaggerating the number of vacant residences in Toronto and blaming them upon an exodus to the United States, critics of the government have overlooked the similar and worse conditions which exist in United States cities.

BELIEVE IN SOMETHING

(McClary's Wireless)

There is something extremely hopeless in the attitude of the persons who have no faith to link up with. Happy when engaged in a temporary plunge of business or pleasure. Absorbed for a time in the intricacies of human reactions or various propositions. Delighted with the opportunity to develop gifts that nature has bestowed upon them. Then between times, a dead weight in themselves, a feeling of loss of continuity, of nothing is worth while. Believe in something, even if it is only a hobby. Youth might carry you through a number of years, but time has no favors! When the effervescence of youth wears away have something to believe in.

That empty feeling has created millions of inebriates and suicides.

Believe in something.

ENCOURAGE BELLEVILLE TRADE DON'T DISCOURAGE

Dear Editor,—Kindly allow me a small space in your valuable paper to voice the sentiments of a number of people from the surrounding country on the Parking Bylaw. While spending Thanksgiving Day out of the city I was asked, "What the people of Belleville were thinking about in allowing the Parking Bylaw to be carried to such an extent that people from the country could not come into the city and do their shpping without fear of a fine, and these same people stated that if the merchants of Belleville would stand idly by and allow such to continue that their slogan, "Buy at Home and Boost Belleville" would be badly trampled on by country folks, for they culd buy their groceries at their country stores and send to the T. Eaton Co., Toronto, for all other household and individual necessities and thus avoid all fear of the Parking Bylaw.

JUDGEMENT RESERVED

An appeal case of local interest was heard at Osgoode Hall yesterday in the appellate division before Mulock C.J.O., Magee J.A., Hodgins, J.A. Ferguson, J.A. and Smith J.A. The case was as follows:

Cokers v. City of Belleville—R. D. Ponton (Belleville) for plaintiff. J. R. Cartwright for defendant. Appeal by plaintiff from judgment of Orde J.A., of 25th March, 1924. Action to recover $2,000 damages for breaking of arm, etc., from fall on icy sidewalk alleged to have been caused by negligence of defendant. At trial the action was dismissed with costs. Appeal argued. Judgment reserved.

CASE ENLARGED

The case of E. Gillmore of Toronto representing the Duffie Electrical Manufacturing Company, was called in court this morning. The accused is charged with offering for sale a larger type 1,000 watt heater which did not carry the customary tag which notes that such heaters must not be used on ordinary lamp sockets. An application to have the case enlarged for a week was granted by Magistrate Masson.

ODDFELLOWS AT PICTON

On Monday afternoon the members of the I.O.O.F. of Bay of Quinte District No. 47 met at Picton, it being the largest gathering in the history of this District. The Noble Grand of Picton Lodge, Bro. Clow, expressed a hearty welcome to the visitors and said Picton Lodge appreciated the meeting being held in their Lodge Rooms. The Initiatory Degree was exemplified by Picton Lodge, one candidate presenting himself for initiation. The Degrees were then conferred by the following Degree Staffs:

First Degree by Trenton Lodge; Second Degree by Frankford Lodge; Third Degree by Belleville Lodge, each Lodge showing great efficiency in exemplifying the various teachings of the Order. D. D. G. M. Bro. J. Duckworth expressed his thanks to the various Lodges for the splendid attendance and hope such a meeting would be an annual event.

Porter Knocks

whether or not he was, but he was not respectable this time. He forgot his duty, but I did not forget mine and charged him."

Gordon had flailed Porter for taking away the good name of a man, the highest prized quality in many men's lives.

"Was there ever a man who was too good to be charged?" asked Mr. Porter in defence.

Gordon said that any man would have done what Murdock did in withdrawing the money.

"An individual or an ordinary member of Parliament is not comparable with a Minister of the Crown," explained Mr. Porter. "An ordinary citizen is not a trustee for His Majesty the King by virtue of office and oath, and when he commits an offence he is under no obligation to anyone but himself and the law."

Reading from Hansard, Gordon inferred that Mr. Porter had not charged that Murdock had violated the oath of office.

"The oath which he took, does not specificly say, "Thou shalt not steal or thou shalt not rob widows and orphans," began Mr. Porter. Here Hanna's supporters "boohed" a bit.

The Truth Hurt

"Oh it hits hard, but it is the truth and must be known. The pinch is close," came back the speaker, and I challenge anyone to contradict one word of it. Loud cheers drowned the boos.

Gordon had delved rather fully into the workings of the Pension Board, and the returned soldier problem.

Mr. Porter's reply was, "My record for the returned men before they went overseas and after they returned is clear cut. I have never had one application from a soldier, his widow or any one connected with veterans, but I have done all in my power for them. I leave it to any ex-soldier in the county."

There was a pause in which a pin might have been heard falling.

"And what is more he continued, I have never taken one nickel from them and would be ashamed to do so."

It is indeed fortunate for Mr. Gordon that a chair had been provided for his benefit before Mr. Porter commenced, for he did not have a leg to stand on, after Porter had finished.

Gordon Evades Issue

Gordon's address was a forty minute evasion of the true issue and a ten minute application of salve. Little wonder he was boohed until the chairman called for order owing to his aggressive and domineering attitude early in this speech which later gave way to faltering and a more quiet attitude.

At one time he was told to "Dry the cow", and was more than once reminded that he had spoken long enough.

He did give Mr. Porter credit with being one of the best lawyers in the province, but said his charges were shameless and it was miserable to attack a Labor man like Murdock. That was evidently a "feeler" for Labor but it fell flat.

"There is no labor now", cried a sarcastic voice.

"I'll take it back", smiled the man and there was a general babble of voices and laughter.

Gordon said that Murdock placed the $4,000 which he had withdrawn in the name of his wife in another bank so that she could draw on it if she wished while he was in the west.

Loud boos and moans baffled the speaker and held him up.

"It is at best a highly technical case", he continued, "and in my opinion is a tempest in a tea pot".

Then he re-hashed the sterotyped story of the careful work of the Minister of Finance, debt reduction, the return of Canadians from U.S.A. He criticized the Conservative administration for alleged non-payment of any war debt, failure to collect war profit taxes and charged Sir Thomas White with knowing that the Home Bank was shaky in 1918, when if the bank were closed depositors would not lose out.

Speaking of the Pensions scheme, the speaker would not criticize the Conservative government on that score as it was admittedly a difficult problem to handle, but he did severely criticize the Senate for crucifying the Pension Bill except for the clause that bonuses will be included for two years. "We have Senate rule here not rule of the people," he said.

Gordon excused Hanna from answering the fifteen (not thirteen) question asked by The Intelligencer by saying that Hanna was not on trial and does not have to answer legal questions.

Then came the story of Hanna's being thrice Mayor, president of the Labor Council here, and a touching tribute to industrial organization and the benefits it had accrued. This explanation was given a good hearing, but did not square the matter with labor men in the audience as the wily Peterboro lawyer evidently intended. When he told of netting a majority of 2,500 at Peterboro though the Canadian General Electric employes were organized against him, a voice piped:

"You will never do it again".

Took Courageous Stand

Hon. Edmund Bristol G.C., M.P., for centre Toronto gave a clear cut address and expressed pleasure in speaking on behalf of Mr. Porter for whom he has the highest personal regard.

"Mr. Porter is a distinguished lawyer, a man of respect and high standing," commenced the Toronto member," and knew from the beginning that there could not possibly be any personal gain from his attacks on Murdock. He knew the dice were loaded against him before he started, but though he knew he would be unable to win success, he was determined to stamp on public men the absolute importance of their always being honest and honourable especially when they are Cabinet ministers."

The recent Peter Smith case was cited as an example of what happens to men in high office who are not honorable.

Then Mr. Bristol confined his remarks to the other issues of lesser importance in this bye election, but of Dominion wide importance. In 1921 the U. S. A. placed the highest duty against Canada, 42 cents per bushel against the best wheat in the world, grown in western Canada. United States was better enabled to pay higher wages as a result, hence the obvious migration of the world's best citizens to the U.S.A. where they are welcomed with both arms. Factories here were stagnant owing to Grit legislation, and annually 200,000 Canadian migrated to the south.

A Hopeless Policy

It was pointed out how the land was full of soup kitchens before Sir John MacDonald backed up the tariff of 1878. The defect of the system of a low tariff was apparent when it was recalled how in 1911 Sir Clifford Sifton deserted the Liberal party because he disagreed with their tariff policy and wished to keep Canada from being actually handed to the United States. King's policy on the tariff issue kept investors from investing money in Canada, as they felt it is an unsafe proposition, but the United States was well satisfied. King was an LL.D. in Harvard and Yale, he said, Toronto University is not good enough for him.

"We must have fair prices for the farmers and continuous work for labor in order to be prosperous," asserted the speaker, "and that cannot be possible under the King administration of the tariff."

FINAL U. S. A. RETURNS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 12.—Complete returns from all districts show the party line up in next United States Congress as follows: Republicans 245; Democrats 185; Farmer Labor 3; Socialists 2; in present congress, Republicans have 223 and Democrats 209.

DEATHS

ROUHAN—At his late residence, 13 Albion street, on Wednesday, November 12th, Nathaniel J. Rouhan. Funeral notice later.

Deaths And Funerals

MRS. EMMA A. PITNEY

Mrs. Emma Ann Pitney widow of the late Mr. Luke A. Pitney, passed away on Thanksgiving Day at Belleville General Hospital. Her home was at 86 East Dundas street. Deceased was an elderly lady and had resided in this city the greater portion of her life. Mrs. Pitney had many friends in the city who will regret her passing. A family of three sons and two daughters survive. The sons are A. W., of Toronto; Guy, of California and P. O. mail carrier of this city. The daughters are Mrs. Chas. Fredersburg and Mrs. James Casey of Toronto. One brother, Mr. Geo. E. Weymark, of this city and three sisters, Mrs. F. Pannell and Mrs. Chas. Clarke, Kingston and Mrs. Aleck Milne, Toronto are living. Mrs. Pitney was born at Kingston. She was a member of Bridge street Methodist Church.

Miss Bernice Blue returned to Normal School in Peterboro yesterday after visiting at her home in Crookston.

This year the mine products of Ontario, gold, silver and other minerals, is expected to be valued at $70,000,000, the greatest in the history of the Province, and in a few years, through development, the people may look forward to the time when the value of mine products will be $200,000,000 or more, according to Hon. Charles McCrea, Provincial Minister of Mines. The Minister of Mines said he believed that the Province was on the eve of a great mineral devolopment, and, instead of having one mining town such as Timmins, that it would have 20 for every one it had now.

Logging the Dials on the Atwater-Kent RADIO SETS

One of the most pleasing features of the latest models of Atwater-Kent Receiving Sets is their sureness of securing a desired broadcasting station.

A printed list is supplied with each set which gives the approximate dial-settings of all broadcasting stations. With this key list in hand, the owner of an Atwater-Kent Receiving Set can tune in a series of desired stations, and, by writing down the dial readings opposite the names of the stations, make up a list or "log".

When once logged in this way, a desired station can be returned to at any time by merely setting the dials according to the numbers shown in the log.

Actress Claims He Beat Her Up

Sugar Dealer of New York Faces Suit For $100,000

New York, Nov. 12.—Apparently unworried by the action for $100,000 damages brought by Miss Florence Lee, actress, who charges he severely beat her, Hugh Corby Fox, dealer in railway supplies and a sugar grower, sailed yesterday for Cuba. Mr. Fox was arrested Friday evening on a civil order issued by Justice Gavegan, but was released at once upon depositing $1,000 bail.

Miss Lee, who has appeared in "Kiki" and other Broadway plays, says she met Mr. Fox in 1922 at the Hotel Pennsylvania, through his sister-in-law, Mrs. Francis Fox.

She says the assault occurred October 26. She, Fox, Miss Martha Enderton, of the San Remo Hotel, and Oscar Ziegley, of Havana, manager of the Fox sugar interests in Cuba, had dined at a Babylon, L.I., restaurant.

After visiting friends, the party was returning to New York, Miss Lee sat in the rear seat of the automobile between Mr. Fox and Miss Enderton. Suddenly Mr. Fox called her "a little bum" and struck her in the face, she says. He continued the chastisement while Ziegley held her hands, according to the actress. Then she was put out of the automobile, but upon request of Mr. Ziegley, was driven home. Miss Lee says her right eye and cheek were blackened and her mouth and lips cut.

Mr. Fox, member of several clubs has been twice married, and has had much matrimonial litigation. His first wife was Mrs. Margaret Hitt Fox, known in Kentucky as "our beautiful Miss Hitt." She obtained a Reno divorce in 1913 and there was much litigation over the custody of the couple's son, Hugh Corby Fox, Jr.

Mr. Fox re-married. His second wife was Mrs. Anna Lovell Fox, formerly wife of Frederick Hipsch, who in 1909 sued the late Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, for $200,000 alleging the latter had alienated the affections of Mrs. Hipsch. This action was dropped and Mr. Hipsch permitted his wife to divorce him in Reno.

GERMAN OFFICER IS DECLARED OUTCAST

Berlin, Nov. 12.—Lieut.-Colonel Siegert, organizer of the German flying forces during the World War, has been declared an outcast by the National Association of Imperial Officers because he ridiculed the distribution of war medals by the ex-kaiser's officials. He declared in a newspaper contribution that war medals were like airbombs and said they "both dropped unexpectedly far back in the hinterland and hit innocent beings."

Many officers belonging to the National Association of Imperial officers have been expelled for criticism of the imperial regime.

HE HASN'T MISSED VOTING IN 79 YEARS

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 12.—The oldest voter registered in Alameda county for the recent election was Charles F. Lohse, who reached the century mark last spring. Two weeks later he walked to his voting precinct to register for the primary and the general election. He has not missed voting in 79 years.

Born in New York, Lohse came to California in 1849 and was one of the successful gold miners of that period He is a veteran of the Civil War.

PEOPLE GAMBLED RIGHT IN CHURCH

Rushden, Eng., Nov. 12.—"Gambling is actually carried on in our churches," said the Rev. J. A. Sutherland speaking at a meeting of the Northamptonshire Baptist Association.

"During a service it has been known," he declared, "that when the two sidesmen were taking the collection, young people in the gallery bet on which of the two would finish first."

REPORT PRINCE HAS MADE LOSSES GOOD

New York, Nov. 12—It was reported in insurance circles that the Prince of Wales has ordered the payment of $125,000 to Lord and Lady Mountbatten and Mrs. J. S. Cosden for the loss of jewelry stolen at Mrs. Cosden's home at Sands Point during the prince's visit here.

Lloyds and the Alliance Insurance company, it is said, made the payments which were ordered after the prince's arrival in London. No trace of the theft was found.

PEASANTS WOULD WORK FOR MONEY

Riga, Nov. 12.—It is related today in Riga that in one section of Russia the peasants are willing to work in the fields for wages, just as they did in the days of Emperor Nicholas.

The report is that in Pskow, Siberia, a secret understanding has been reached between the village Soviet and the local land owners whereby the latter have leased back their former property, and are giving jobs at day's wages to the peasantry.

This is called a "relapse into bourgeois romance" by the Moscow authorities, and steps have been taken to stop it.

Valentino Has Grown Whiskers

In Preparation For Part as Moor in 14th Century

New York, Nov. 12.—Jackie Coogan and Rudolph Valentino came back from Europe on the Leviathan. Jackie has 27 trunks with him and Valention is wearing whiskers. These he says, are not his own fault, but due to the fact he is to play a Moor in a picture laid in the fourteenth century. No Moor would be accepted by the public unless he had whiskers, says Valentino.

Jackie Coogan, who was accompanied by his parents, was ten years old in Geneva last month. In his months abroad, carying over the money raised for the relief of the children in the Near East, the youthful star has been in charge of a tutor, so that nothing has been neglected in the way of education.

The most impressive experience he says he had was his audience with the Pope, which lasted eighteen minutes, in which he says the Holy Father called him "Little John." The elder Coogan was asked about the apparent smallness of the income tax paid by Jackie, it being reported as $500.

"I don't know," said Coogan, "That is something that is handled by the people whotake care of the finances."

CHICAGO TO BAR HORSES IN "LOOP"

Chicago, Nov. 22—Plans are contemplated to bar horses from the crowded streets of Chicago and to limit horse-drawn vehicles to a few specified streets where they will not interfere with traffic. Mayor Dever is in favor of legislation that would drive horses from all the downtown streets.

Many of the horses are blind, staggering with hunger and, are driven chiefly by foreigners, rag pickers, peddlers and others, mounted on rickety wagons and one of these outfits in a crowded street can snarl up traffic badly.

Most of the grocers and other trades men have substituted light trucks for horse-drawn delivery wagons and say the cost is not so great and much more satisfactory.

Cyclists Defeat Lucky Strikes

In Junior League at Recreation; Aristocrats Win Other

Two games were played at the Recreation alleys last night in the Junior league. In the first the Cyclists won from the Lucky Strikes by 16 pins after losing the first game by 122 pins. H. Salisbury and Bill Dennis were the two highest bowlers.

In the second game the Aristocrats took a fall out of the fast going Can. National team trimming them by 157 pins. The Aristocrats rolled one of their best games, headed by Lent who knocked them for 602 and 270 for his high single. For the Nationals Bruce Bottom is hitting a fast clip being high man for his team. The old reliable Steve of the National had an off night spilling the Maple for a grand total of 7. Players and scores:

LOOKING OUT FOR ARMY DESERTERS

Soo, Ont., Nov. 12—The police here have been notified to be on the lookout for three escaped army deserters from Fort Brady, Sault, Mich., who are carrying eighteen 45 calibre revolvers and several rounds of ammunition which they looted from the Fort.

The soldiers made their getaway in civilian clothes and as it was balance night at the bank it was feared by the police that a hold-up was the intention.

A special squad of armed soldiers together with the police, scouted the streets. Bank officials were warned. It is felt by the police that the soldiers escaped to the woods or out of town.

So far the police have found no trace of the soldiers.

Claim Tigers Will Come To Kingston

For Next Round to Decide Dominion Championship

Kingston, Nov. 12— In connection with the reports coming from Toronto that the next round in the Dominion championship between Queen's and Hamilton Tigers would be played in Toronto one week from Saturday, it is pointed out here that under the three-year schedule drawn up several years ago, the game this year is ordered to be played on the grounds of the Intercollegiate winners, and since Queens is the Intercollegiate champion this year is necessarily follows that unless she chooses to alter the arrangement, the game will certainly be played here.

Of course if the team were to go to Toronto to play the Tigers there the gate would be infinitely larger than here; but this would savor so strongly of "commercializing" the game—playing for the gate receipts, so to speak—that those who know Queen's and the members of her Athletic Board of Control feel sure that no such move will be taken, but that the game—if it be played at all—will be played in Kingston and in the city which has so loyally supported Queen's and Queen's team.

As a matter of fact the subject has not been more than informally discussed yet and it has not even been finally decided that Queen's will carry on into the Dominion finals. But those "in the know" say she will carry on, though no official announcement on this point will be made until after the meeting of the Athletic Board of Control tomorrow afternoon.

But if Queen's does go on it is safe to say that the game with Tigers will be played here as ordered, and not in Toronto merely because of the larger gate that would result.

Buy Some Candy ; And See a Show

London Theatre Inaugurates Unique System to Protect Profession

London, Nov. 12—The management of one of the principal London theatres yesterday announced its intention, beginning next week of giving each purchaser of a box of chocolates a free seat at the play. The cost of the chocolates will range from 10 shillings, entitling a buyer to a seat in the stalls, to 15 pence which will carry a seat in the gallery

The management explained it was taking this action as a protest against the system which charges a heavy entertainment tax to theatres but permits the giving of elaborate cabaret shows ostensibily are mere adjuncts of without the payment of such a tax. The theatre claims that these cabaret shows ostensibly are mere adjuncts of food but are advertised in the newspapers the same as theatrical shows.

It is contended that the constant multiplication of the cabaret entertainments is becoming a serious menace to the theatrical profession. The management who originated the chocolate idea intends to defy the authorities, it was declared, to take action against a theatre selling candy as food as giving free seat to a performance unless similar action is taken against hotels and restaurants.

MAKE PRESENTATION TO S. A. BARKLEY

On Tuesday evening at the Oddfellows Temple a number of the members of Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133 met to say good-bye to the Captain of their Degree Staff, who is leaving Belleville to spend the winter with friends and relatives in Carleton Place. The early part of the evening was spent in progressive euchre, the prize winners being Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. S. A. Barkley and the consolation prizes were won by Mrs. J. Elliott and Mrs. W. MacIntosh. Refreshments were served and a real Rebekah social time enjoyed. The following address was read by Mrs. G. Cornish and Mrs. E. Rowsome made the presentation.

Dear Bro. Barkley:—

We members of Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133, I.O.O.F. and especially members of the Degree Staff have met this evening for the purpose of saying good-bye and to express our best wishes for the future.

Words cannot express the gratitude Quintena Lodge owe to you, for the way in which you have always worked as Captain of the Degree Staff, and we feel that you are the one who is mostly responsible for the splendid standing of our Lodge and its Degree Staff.

We trust that you will have many opportunities of spending many hours in the meetings of our Order, an Order to which you have given so much of your time and ability and in the evening of your life you will recall many pleasant evenings spent in Quintena.

In asking you to accept these gifts we trust that they will add to your comfort during the coming winter and that you will always have a place in our thoughts as we expect you will always be thinking of Quintena.

We can assure you of a true Rebekah welcome when you come back to be again one of us.

Signed on behalf of Quintena Rebekah Lodge and the Degree Staff.

Mrs. E. Rowsome,
Mrs. J. Carter.

Some slight hint of the money cost and waste of war appears in the American wooden ships built but never used in the World War. They cost two hundred and thirty-five millions. The Shipping Board has tried in vain to sell them while they rotted at their docks. Now a salvage company proposes to buy them for the metal value of the copper and iron they contain. Ten of them are to be burned, and if the metal salvage pays the entire fleet will be bought to burn for $262,000.

Frenchies Puzzled By Baseball Game

Couldn't Distinguish Between Balls and Strikes; Are Very Curious

Paris, Nov. 12—The New York Giants defeated the Chicago White Sox by a score of 1 to 0 here. It was really a fast game of baseball. There was much excellent fielding and team work which aroused enthusiasm among the American spectators; but, as during Saturday's game, the French spectators were cold and puzzled over the intricacies of the pastime. The weather also was cold—almost wintry—and the spectators drank "grog American" instead of peanuts.

The crowd was even smaller than that of Saturday, and unfortunately for the French, they took the low-priced seats back of centre field, and therefore had little chance to appreciate the fine points of the game.

The game was played in the famous Colombes Stadium. President Doumergue failed to put in an appearance, but the Government sent a military band and the leading French sportsmen were present.

French opinion seems to be that sport at the present time is having a hard enough time in the country without the necessity of trying to learn a new game that seems to have little appeal to the people. Many of the spectators during the games here have been closely following the coaching, and today a number of them joined Hughey Jennings in his "Atta Boy" and his famous cry "Eeyah." The "rooting" of the Frenchmen evoked much laughter and aided the crowd to keep warm.

The French spectators were unable to see the difference between a ball and a strike and frequently showed their disgust with the batsman for permitting balls to pass or for "fanning". Their interest seemed to be limited to curiosity over the great American game, and even the French sporting writers say they cannot see very much in it. The writers, however, assert there must be something to the pastime, or otherwise the Americans would not get so excited over it.

Today's game lasted one hour and twelve minutes, which caused much disappointment among the French crowd which felt that it did not get very much for the money it expended. Both the Giants and the Sox put plenty of ginger in their play, notwithstanding the discouraging attendance. The stands were only 3 per cent. filled.

FOOTER TEAM WALKS 60 MILES TO GAME

"What is the secret charm of association football that sets the natives walking sixty miles, that attracts men of every clime and color?" asks Ivan Sharpe in a review of the game in the London Athletic News. "Not many weeks back a friend in Natal wrote to say that the Ladysmith native team being short of the fare necessary to the fulfilment of a fixture at Harrismith, sixty miles away, decided to walk. They arrived at Harrismith on a Saturday morning, played and won their match and were just starting to walk back when the white population clubbed together and raised the return railway fare."

Official statistics just issued show that in August of this year 12,690 immigrants entered Canada, of which 5,760 were from Great Britain and Ireland, 1,784 from the United States and 5,206 from Europe and other countries. Of the 5,706 from the British Isles, 2,885 were from England, 1,729 from Scotland, 943 from Ireland and 149 from Wales.

QUEEN'S RECORD

By defeating University of Toronto on Saturday, Queen's University won the senior intercollegiate championship for the third successive season and for the fifth time since the launching of the Union in the season of 1898, when the first schedule of games was decided. Originally there were four teams in the Intercollegiate, University of Toronto, McGill, Queen's and Ottawa College. Ottawa College withdrew in 1908 and later on Royal Military College joined the senior rank, to withdraw after playing one season. Of the twenty-three championships decided, University of Toronto has won the title on twelve occasions. McGill and Queen's have each won it five times, while Ottawa College earned the honors in 1907, the last season they competed in the Union. The following table shows the years the title was played for and the winners:

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN: SERIAL: THEATRES

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"Yes, I was in the theatre," he said. "You did not see me, of course, but I was there, and—I can't tell you how we all felt, how we all feel. It was superb; it was—out there I can only thank you."

"You have done that already," she said, with a smile, as she raised the violets.

Lord Cecil Neville blushed. I am afraid it would be rather difficult to get credit for this statement in certain quarters in London.

"I couldn't get any better ones," he said apologetically.

"No," she said; "I think you could not! Yes, I saw you in the theatre," she added as if she had been thinking of his first sentence. "Were—were you surprised, or did you know?" and she glanced at him with a half curious smile.

"Surprised!" he said. "I could scarcely believe my senses! I had no idea, until I saw you on the stage, that you, who were so good to me yesterday, were a great actress."

"I am not," she said, in a low voice "I am only a very little one. To-night I succeeded, another night I might fail——" a faint shadow came on her face, as he looked puzzled; then she smiled, as she broke off, to add: "I have something of yours——"

"Yes, my heart!" was his mental comment, but he said aloud: "Of mine?"

"Yes," she said. "A handkerchief. I haven't it here," and she smiled again: then, suddenly, her face grew crimson for she remembered that she had left it in the bosom of her dress. "I—I will send it to you if you tell me where."

"Let me call for it," he said, eagerly.

Doris' brows came together, and she shook her head gently. She knew that Jeffrey's welcome to a stranger would be a rough one.

"I will send it," she said. "I think I know—the Towers, you said, in a low voice:

"If you should walk in the fields to-morrow morning—you may, you know! lay it on the bank where you sat yesterday. Will you do this, Miss Marlowe? I will fetch it in the afternoon."

The beautiful eyes dwelt upon his face with a deep gravity for a moment as if she were wondering what his object could be in making the request then she said, gently:

"Yes, why should I not?" as she held out her hand; "good-night."

"Thanks, thanks!" he said, in his deep, musical voice. "Good-night! You should be happy to-night for you have made so many people miserably so! I shall dream of Juliet all night!"

She let her hand rest in his for a moment, then drew it away and he was gone.

But at that moment it chanced that a handsomely-appointed carriage came round the bend of the road, and a lady with softly-shimmering hair and darkly-brilliant eyes, who was leaning back in a corner of it, suddenly caught sight of the fly and the stalwart figure standing beside it.

She bent forward eagerly, and her keen eyes took in, as the carriage rolled past, not only the expression of Cecil Neville's face, but the face of the girl in the fly.

For an instant the warm blood rushed to Lady Grace's face; then, as she sank back again into her corner, she laughed, a laugh of cold, insolent contempt.

"Some actress or shop-girl," she murmured. Then her expression changed, and she bit her lip thoughtfully. "And yet he looked terribly in earnest!" she added. "Shall I take him up?" and her hand went out to the check-string; then she let it fall, and the carriage got on its way. "No; I think I'll keep my little discovery to myself—; may be useful—and let you walk home, Lord Cecil!"

CHAPTER VII.

A RARE DIAMOND

When Doris came down from her room the next morning, it did not seem as if the tremendous excitement of the preceding night had left any baleful effects. In her soft, white dress she still looked more like a schoolgirl home for the holidays than the tragedienne who had, a few hours ago, moved a vast audience to tears and wild enthusiasm.

She came into the room singing just as the birds sang under the eaves by her window, and laughed lightly as she saw Jeffrey bending earnestly over a copy of the local daily paper.

"Well, have I a tremendous slating, Jeffrey?" she said, almost carelessly.

"Slating!" he replied. "If anything, it is too laudatory; read it!" and he held it out to her.

"After breakfast; I am so hungry," she said, contentedly. "Read it to me Jeffrey; all the nicest paragraphs," and she laughed again.

He glanced at Doris under his heavy brows.

"At any rate your success has not made you vain, Doris," he said with grim approval.

"If it should make any one vain, it should you—not me, dear," she said, quietly. "It was you made last night's Juliet good or bad."

"Very well," he said: "I'll be vain for both of us. Yes, it is a wonderfully good critique, and I think the news of your success will reach London, too. There were a couple of critics from London in the stalls; I didn't tell you last night in case it should make you nervous."

She looked at him thoughtfully.

"I didn't think it would have made much difference," she said. "I seemed to forget everybody and everything—"

"After the second act," he put in.

She blushed to her temples.

"There was a distinct change then: I noticed it, and I have been puzzling my brain to account for it. Perhaps you can explain it."

She shook her head, and kept her eyes on her plate.

"No? Strange. But such inspirations are not uncommon with genius; and yours is genius, Doris."

"Don't frighten me, Jeffrey," she said, with a faint smile.

"I have agreed with Brown, the manager," he went on, "that you should play Juliet for a week, and after that some other of the big characters for a month and he is to pay you ten pounds a week."

Doris looked up, surprised. Ten pounds per week is a large sum for merely provincial actresses.

He smiled grimly.

"You think it a great deal? In a day or two you will get offers from London of twenty, thirty, forty pounds. But I am in no hurry. I have not been in a hurry all through. I want you to feel your feet, to feel secure in all the big parts here in the provinces before you appear in London. Then your success will be assured whatever you may undertake."

"You think of everything, Jeffrey," she said, gratefully.

"I have nothing else to think of, nothing else to tell you!" he responded, quietly, almost pathetically. "I have set my heart upon you being a great actress and"—he paused—"I think it would break, if you failed. But there is no need to speak of failure after last night."

He got up as he spoke and folded the newspaper.

"I'm going down to the theatre," he said; he was never quite contented away from it. "You'd better look over your part this morning. Take it into the open air as you did the other day; it seems to succeed."

"Very well," she said, obediently.

He put on his hat and the thick inverness he wore in all weathers, and went away, and Doris sat looking dreamily before her.

Then suddenly, she got up. She would take his advice and go into the meadows—for the meadows meant the open air to her—and as she was going she would take Cecil Neville's handkerchief and place it on the bank as he had requested.

You must expect to pay for it. If you should be wearing glasses this minute and aren't the results are going to be more and more serious for you and your eyes. An hour spent there would give you all the facts. And that knowledge would be worth far more to you than it costs as you'll admit.

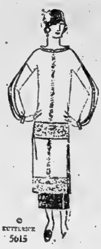
FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



The tunic line is to be found in tunics, apron fronts, redingotes and tunic blouses and may be long and narrow, short and narrow, long and flared or short and flared.

Of all the tunic lines—and there are several—there is none smarter or more generally becoming than the long, narrow tunic blouse. It fits closely at the hip and is no wider at the hem. With a satin slip you can have as many completely different costumes as you have blouses. You could have a blouse of white Georgette embroidered with Chinese blue, coral and tinsel thread, or of terra-cotta crepe de Chine worked in antique gold, or of black velvet with no embroidery at all but with bands of fur at the neck and hem.

COLOR IT NEW WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Beautiful home dyeing and tinting is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes. Just dip in cold water and tint soft, delicate shades or boil to dye rich, permanent colors. Each 15-cent package contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint lingerie, silks ribbons, skirts, waists, dresses, coats, stockings, sweaters, draperies, coverings, hangings, everything new.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—and tell your druggist whether the material you wish to color is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or

"The Fighting Blade" is Fine Reproduction of Olden Days

The United States war for independence, its revolution against King George III, of England, is undoubtedly the most significant period of its history. It marked the birth of their republic. A like period in English history is that which marked the birth of freedom, of representative government for the British, the period in which "The Fighting Blade," a First National picture starring Richard Barthelmess, and which Griffin's Theatre will present Thursday, Friday and Saturday, is laid. Again, "The Fighting Blade" is the only story of the Cromwellian era which has ever been filmed. Incidentally, the producers have taken no liberties in matters of detail and the student of history will find no anachronisms in the production. The settings, the costuming, the furnishing, the manners and customs were reproduced only after the most thorough and diligent research had been undertaken. Another reason for the significance of the picture.

Oliver Cromwell was leader of the Parliamentary Party which chafed at their lack of voice in government. Charles I was king. He disdained the Parliamentarians and vested power in the Cavalier Party, as the lords or royalists, were known. Cromwell led a revolution and, from 1642 through 1649, civil war was waged in England, ending with the execution of Charles I. Four years later Cromwell was made Lord Protector of England. And he established the foundations for the present popular government.

"The Fighting Blade" depicts one of the most dramatic episodes of the historic conflict, reciting the exploits and the romance of the valorous Kerstenbroock (played by Richard Barthelmess), a Flemish soldier of fortune who gained fame as the most deadly duelist in all Europe and who by circumstances was drawn to the people's side in their fight for the right to govern themselves, and who paved the way for Cromwell's success. The picture unfolds a story which even without its historic background would be a tremendously fascinating entertainment. In addition to the star the cast includes Dorothy Mackaill, Frederick Burton, Morgan Wallace, Lee Baker, Bradley Barker, Stuart Sage, Allyn King and others—a sterling cast in an unusually worthy and worthwhile picture.

WOMAN'S SWEET CHARM

In perfect health lies the secret of woman's charm which makes her radiate cheer and happiness wherever she goes. No one enjoys listening to the aches, pains and woes of an ailing nervous, irritable woman, and her condition is plainly stamped upon every feature. The most effective remedy for woman's ailments ever discovered has proved to be Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women are soon restored to health by its use and acquire the charm that health alone can give.

Miss Josie Dyment of Jerseyville, Ont., the 16-year-old running sensation of the past season. Unheard of until the Canadian National Exhibition where she won her race with apparent ease, beating several of the good American runners who appeared there.

KILLED NEAR WHITBY

William Kilgour, 12 Wood street, Oshawa, died in the Oshawa Hospital following a motor crash which occurred about two and one half miles west of Whitby. The victim, in company with another man, one Thomas Henson, were driving east in a Hudson six when it overturned, causing the injuries which resulted in his death at the Oshawa Hospital shortly after his admittance. The other occupant of the car escaped with but a shaking up but was placed under arrest by Police Sergt. Paxton, who was notified of the accident, on a warrant which has been held for him here since 1921, the charge being one of breach of the O. T. A.

Gilbert Put on Fight For Town

But Famous Actor's Efforts Were Unappreciated; at Belle Theatre

Told by the natives that not an exciting thing had happened in Bishop Calif., for two years, John Gilbert noted Fox star, decided to vary the monotony and give the citizenry something to talk about. Mr. Gilbert and his company of seventy-five people were in Bishop on "location", shooting an important sequence in "The Wolf Man", a William Fox production recently completed under the direction of Edmund Mortimer.

Accordingly one afternoon Mr. Gilbert and one of his actors "walked boldly into the town and put up a red-blooded "stage fight" which resulted in the postponement of a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and the calling out of town Vigilantes to put an end to the fray. The logging town not being of sufficient size to boast of a constable, relied on the self-appointed protectors of the peace to remove the contestants to their quarters which they did without much gentleness.

Mr. Gilbert and his partner, however, opine that such "acts of amusement" in the future will be staged in a peace loving community that is protected by "the law" and not the "vigilantes." "The Wolf Man" comes to the Belle Theatre tomorrow for three days.

STORM WINDOWS ARE STOLEN; CASE HERE

The alleged theft of storm windows from a house owned by Mrs. C. Pickle of this city brought Roy Holgate to the polic court this morning to answer the charge. As the Crown Attorney was not present the case was enlarged until to-morrow morning. Col. E. D. O'Flynn, who appeared for the accused, stated that his client had been put to a heavy expense in this case as two witnesses had been brought from Collingwood. One being a mail carrier. An enlargement of the case was very inconvenient. Mr. E. J. Butler, who was present in the interest of Mrs. Pickle stated he was not in a position to act as prosecutor in the case.

During the first five months of the year 1924, there was an increase in Japan of 15 labor unions and 33 union branches, with a total of 40,903 members, according to figures published in the "Industrial and Labor Information" of the International Labor office.

A RARE GATHERING

Oshawa, Nov. 12.—Seldom, if ever, have the people of Oshawa taken part in as elaborate and beautiful a ceremony as that associated with the unveiling of the Soldiers' Memorial Monday afternoon. There are those who think back upon the time when the soldier boys left to go Overseas. They remember the loud "Hurrah!" the cheering thousands, the flutter of flags, the tramp of marching feet, and the sad partings as the last farewells were said. Those memories still have their places, but it is doubtful if the emotions of the people of Oshawa were ever as deeply stirred as they were yesterday afternoon when the Memorial to our soldier dead was unveiled.

The setting was perfect for the ceremony—bright sunshine, a large crowd, the music of many bands, the singing of massed choirs, the presence of armed men, the flutter of flags, the whole contributing to make the occasion a memorable one.

Drink Water If Back Or Kidneys Hurt

WHEN THE BACK HURTS FLUSH YOUR KIDNEYS AS YOU CLEAN YOUR BOWELS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get abot four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Here and There

A contract has been let in Alberta for the erection of fifty cottages for Hebrideans who are coming in the spring, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, between Edmonton and Red Deer, and on the Hardisty line, as far east as Strome.

The dances, customs and folklore of Old Quebec are still alive and show no signs of decline. Thousands of persons recently witnessed a performance of these at the Monument National, Montreal, and joined heartily in the well-known choruses which have made the picturesque aspect of Quebec world-famous.

The piledriver Tarzan is rapidly nearing completion at the B.C. Marine, Vancouver, B.C., and will be ready for launching soon. This piledriver will be the largest in the world. It is being built for the Sydney Junkins Company for use in the construction of the new pier B-C for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Erected at the cost of $200,000, one of the handsomest marine terminals of the Canadian Pacific Railway was recently completed at Victoria, B.C. The terminal houses the general offices of the British Columbia Coast Service of the Canadian Pacific. The main building is 122 feet long, 54 feet wide and three storeys high, with a fourth storey erected centrally over the structure.

Russia will never again rival Canada as a wheat exporter, according to L. W. Lyde, Professor of Geography at London (England) University. He believes that grain growing in future lies with the Canadian farmer. Russia cannot properly supply its own needs. Prewar export of wheat was purely artificial, drawn, not from a natural surplus, but from the needs of a very poor and ignorant peasantry.

A twenty per cent increase in the business over the Dominion Atlantic Railway, serving Nova Scotia, was the approximate summary of the summer's travel recently given by F. G. J. Comeau, General Traffic Agent of the line. This is attributable to the growing appreciation of the beauties of the Annapolis Valley and the charm of the Evangeline county among tourists everywhere.

St. Hyacinthe, Nov. 8—No sales of buter to-day; 150 boxes cheese sold at 16 1-2c.

CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, Nov. 12.—With reports at hand telling of general rain in Argentine, price today during early dealings here. Fact that Liverpool quotations had undergone sharp decline yesterday while American exchanges were closed gave further emphasis to initial weakness of values here. Important new buying, largely result of standing orders developed here on down turn, however and market became a broad, rapidly swinging affair in which individual operation counted for little. Opening which ranged from 2 to 3 7-8 c lower was followed by rallies of 1 1-2 c or more Corn and oats were chiefly governed by sympathy with wheat. After opening 3-4 to 2 1-4 c down corn, market recovered most of loss. Oats started at 1-2 to 1 7-8 c lower and steadied at about 1-2 c under Monday's finish. Provisions were responsive to grain weakness, notwithstanding that hog values showed comparative strength.

TORONTO MARKET

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Receipts 113, trade slow. Heavy beef steers 6 to 725; Butcher steers, choice, 525 to 6; Butcher cows, medium, 2 to 375; Calves 850 to 12; lams, ewes 1150 to 12; hogs, selects, off cars 1068.

WINNIPEG MARKET

Winnipeg, Nov. 12.—Wheat Nov. 1 3-4 to 2 cents lower at 1.61 to 1.60 3-4; Dec. 2 1-2 to 2 cents lower at 1.55 1-2 to 1.56; May 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 lower at 1.60 to 1.59.

Oats Nov. 7-8 lower at 58 5-8, Dec. 3-8 lower at 59 1-2; May 5-8 to 7-8 lower at 63 1-4 to 63.

Old Recipe Of Sage Tea Darkens Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound' at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

of nurses by the Hydro at dinner. His trip to England in 1924, he said, was authorized by the Dominion as a delegate to the power conference there. Sir Adam said he knew Mr. Gaby was interested in the Cataract Sand and Gravel Co., from which Hydro bought steam shovel. Sir Adam understood other commissioners knew of it too. He said he didn't know how Gaby got into the company which owned shovel.

Probe Auto Charges

Several witnesses were called this morning at the inquiry into the Settell charges against the Hydro Commission and officials regarding the use of commission automobiles. Ross Macklem, former Hydro chaffeur, denied ever taking Mr. Gaby to Rochester. He took Mr. Gaby to Niagara Falls on business on one occasion. He denied that he had stated outside that he could "tell lots."

Another former chaffeur, Arthur Dunlop, said he had hauled coal in Hydro truck to Clarkson for Bodley, superintendent of Hydro garages. There had been no time sheets put in on these trips. Witness also said he had seen Mr. I. B. Lucas driving Hydro cars.

Mr. Lucas cross examined witness on this and witness said he had never seen Mr. Lucas in a commission car after he ceased to be a commissioner. Mr. Lucas himself then went on stand and was asked questions at request of Settell.

"Since you have been solicitor for the Hydro, have you ever taken a Hydro car to Markdale?"

"I think on one occasion I made a trip to Markdale and from there to Owen Sound with Mr. Berry, local superintendent, to examine pole lines upon which there was litigated at the time between the Hydro and Grey County. I may have made a second trip," replied Mr. Lucas.

"Have you received from Hydro or its associates any monies in addition to your salary?"

"Not one copper," said Mr. Lucas.

"Have you ever used a Hydro car on holidays or Sundays?"

"No, I have a car of my own."

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

An extensive programme is being prepared in connection with the winter sports activities of the Chateau Frontenac, the Canadian Pacific Railway's famous hotel at Quebec. E. Des Baillets, newly appointed sports director for the hotel, is planning the formation of the Frontenac Winter Club and the holding of competitions in curling, ski-ing, ski-joring, skating and other pastimes of the season.

Surprise packets in the shape of crates containing two lions, a male cub and a full grown female, constituted the most interesting shipment handled by the Montreal and Toronto offices of the Dominion Express Co. this year. The animals, exchanged for specimens of Canadian deer, recently arrived from Dublin and were dispatched over Canadian Pacific lines to their destination, the zoological gardens at Toronto. Needless to say, they were carefully handled.

20 MINUTES

That's all. Twenty minutes after taking a ZUTOO tablet your headache will be gone.

One of these little tablets—safe, reliable and harmless as soda—will stop any headache in 20 minutes.

Or, better still, taken when you feel the headache coming on, a ZUTOO tablet will ward it off—nip it in the bud.

Hard Luck Trails Western Farmer

Abandons Prairie Home for Costly Motor Trip Down East

Woodstock, Nov. 1.—When the crank shaft in their automobile broke near here, it was only another chapter in the manifold misfortunes of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Vardy and family, en route from Alberta to Toronto. With Mr. and Mrs Vardy were their two small children and an Austrian whose name Mrs. Vardy did not recall when spoken to by The Sentinel-Review this morning.

The Vardys had for two years been trying to eke out an existence on a part section of land in Alberta. The fates seemed to conspire against them, with the result that when their meagre wheat crop was disposed of this year, they promptly struck out to get as far away as possible from the scene of bitter disappointments.

"Last year," said Mrs. Vardy "we had only 92 acres under cultivation. From them we got a total of eighteen hundred bushels of wheat, but the price was only 72c. Not much in that. This year, we had a greater acreage—in fact we had 120 acres in wheat. The price promised to be better. It was better. We lacked rains in our district, and got no crop to speak of. From this greater acreage we got only 700 bushels, and it was so poor that it graded out at No. 4. At least most of it did. $1.16 was the most we got for any of it, and most of it was below that.

"They can talk of Alberta, but I am sure Manitoba and Saskatchewan are better provinces. If it is not one thing in Alberta it is another. If it is not too much rain, it is not enough. If it is neither of these it is frost, and when it is not frost it's hail. I'm sick of the thoughts of it. We got out so quickly that we did not even stop to dispose of our household goods. A man said he would look after that for us."

Hard Luck With Car

And so the Vardy's left the scene of their failures. They started out over the long, long trail to Toronto. It was two weeks ago Friday that they started. They drove their own car as far as Regina. It had given them some trouble, and they feared for the rest of the great distance. They made a deal at Regina, getting a larger second-hand car. And then their troubles started in reality.

"It has been one break after another all the way. We usually stayed at hotels nights along the road. That did not cost so much, but when we added the repair bills of the car to the hotel bills, we find that we have gone through more than four hundred dollars along the way. It has been terrible."

And Yet She Smiled

But Mrs. Vardy was not altogether pessimistic. She is a comparatively young Scottish woman. Has only been in Canada five years.

"I like this country. I like it awfully well. In fact I do not think I would want to go back to Scotland, unless it would be for a visit. I like the open freedom here, and the people, and the opportunities. But it is Ontario that I wish to call my own country from this on. I am through with the west. Some do well there, and some do not. We were in the latter class. My husband is a native-born Canadian. We are going back to Toronto. Things cannot be much worse than they have been."

Mrs. Vardy was interviewed in the comfort room of the municipal building. That is where the family spent the night It's name is rather a misnomer when it comes to spending an entire night there with two small children, but Mrs. Vardy made no mention of that. She was apparently grateful for it. She was waiting until her husband returned from the garage.

Mr. Basil Gray has returned from the camp where he was working and is home again.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Whiteman and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gray on Sunday.

Mrs. J. Miller visited at Cloyne last week.

Mr. C. C. Thompson motored to Harlowe on Sunday.

District News

Hundred Unemployed

Peterboro, Nov. 12.—The weekly report from the Employment Bureau of this city shows that there are 113 persons out of work, while there is a considerable number of new applicants coming in each week. The city is full of small jobs, lasting for a day or two at a time, but steady work for the unemployed is very scarce, and a large number of the new-comers who came here with high hopes of getting work and big pay are now broken-hearted and many wish that they had never seen this country.

At Cobourg

Cobourg, Nov. 12.—Cobourg citizens yesterday left the mundane things of everyday life to gather in Victoria Park for the unveiling of a memorial to their soldiers who fell on overseas service. The beautiful and impressive ceremony with the chaste cross bearing its sword of service brooding over all, cast a spirit of reverence upon the multitude that had gathered to honor the men in whose memory the monument is raised. No less in the faces of the people than in the addresses of the prominent speakers could be read the conviction that these men are not dead but live and the memorial is more a tribute to their valor and deeds than a stone to mark their graves.

District Meeting

Hastings, Nov. 12.—On Wednesday evening, November 12th, a district meeting and spiritual conference will be held in the Methodist Church in Hastings. There will be afternoon and evening sessions at two and seven o'clock. A feature of the former will be a round table conference on the problems of the district and in the evening a farewell will be given to Rev. W. R. and Mrs. McWilliams who are returning to their mission work in Japan.

Meighen at Kingston

Definite announcement was made that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Prime Minister of Canada, will attend the big Conservative convention for Frontenac-Addington, which will be held in the Court House at Kingston on November 26th, when a candidate will be selected for the newly-formed riding.

Ploughmen Organize

So much interest has been taken in the ploughing matches that it was decided to form a Ploughing Association for the County of Frontenac. The following directors were appointed and at the first directors' meeting the officers will be elected. Secretary pro tem, A. W. Sirrett: directors, Mathew Shannon, Patrick Kelly, Joseph Stewart, John Sibbitt, D. C. Rogers, James Baxter, Clifford Rutlege, James Henderson, Joseph Duff, Carman Drader, Erwin Orr, Alexander, Smith, Harvey Scott, H. J. Stewart. W. Cordukes, William Moreland, John O'Reilly, R. Arthurs.

Wind Hurts Deseronto

Deseronto Nov. 12.—The terrific winds which recently visited this territory caused severe damage to many buildings; the men engaged in the fishing industry suffered heavy, as in many cases the nets were lost, boats torn from their moorings and piled up on the shores. Many of the nets at the upper section of the bay were in a very bad condition from the lodgement of black moss necessitating very much work to clean them and in a number of cases the nets were ruined by the lodgement of the moss.

Successful Services

Napanee, Nov. 12.—The anniversary services to which the congregation of Grace church look forward each year with great interest was held on Sunday and was one of the most successful held in years.

The pulpit supply committee was very fortunate in securing E. C. Laker, Ph. D. of Trenton as the special preacher for the occasion and his discourses showed him to be one of the strong pulpit men of the Methodist church.

Make Gruesome Find

In the midst of a few shrubs less than 250 yards from the farm of Mr. S. Good, Parham, the body, minus the head, was discovered by searchers on Saturday afternoon and proved to be that of Howard Bender, a young man who disappeared after a dance at Parham about two months ago. No indications of foul play were found, and in fact the manner of the death of the young man remains a complete mystery.

Move Military Hospital

Kingston, Nov. 12.—The local Military Hospital, which for some time has been located in a barrack room of Artillery Park Barracks, has now been moved to the old Sydenham Building into more up-to-date and commodious quarters.

Fire in Garage

Kingston, Nov. 12.—On Sunday afternoon fire broke out in the garage at Military Headquarters on King street, and the structure, being frame, was easy prey to the flames. The garage was totally destroyed and a McLaughlin car, owned by Major Williams was also totally destroyed with 300 feet of hose and a reel. When the fire was first discovered the building was in flames and there was no chance of saving it. It is estimated that the loss of the garage, car and hose will amount to about three thousand dollars. Two lines of hose were used to put the fire out.

Lost Jewelry

An unfortunate incident occurred at the unveiling ceremony at Oshawa, when Mrs. Dagleisch 201 Nassau street had the misfortune to either lose or have stolen two rings. Mrs. Dagleisch fainted during the ceremony and in the excitement the rings were either taken from her finger or dropped off. One was a diamond and the other a ruby ring set in 18 kt. gold settings. The local police received notification of the loss.

HON. C. E. McCREA AT ELLIOTT BANQUET

CITY AND COUNTY RESIDENTS ATTEND ANNUAL BANQUET GIVEN BY MR JOHN ELLIOTT

Quinte Hotel is Happy Headquarters of Many Guests

MAKES STRONG PLEA

Mr. Elliott Suggests Stronger Organization of C. of C. Work

Eclipsing the seventeen former similar events, the eighteenth annual banquet tendered to-day at the Hotel Quinte to the Belleville Cheese Board by Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank in Belleville, was most satisfying.

The speaker of the day, Hon. Chas. E. McCrea, Minister of Mines made everybody happy with an enthusiastic review of Canada's present position.

The tide had turned, he intimated and Ontario and Canada was on the road to prosperity he said.

Mr. Elliott paid glowing tributes to the quality of Belleville cheese, relating to investigations made overseas which proved that no cheese from any part of the world was imported in England came up to the Belleville product.

In his address Mr. Elliott again appealed to the agriculture men to get behind Chamber of Comerce work. He advised an agricultural section working with the Belleville Body. The speaker also urged his guests to improve their stock. He paid splendid tribute to the high grade Canadian cheese he had seen in England during his recent trip to that country.

So large was the list of guests to-day it took several minutes to seat everybody and by the time Archdeacon Beamish asked blessing on the food, there wasn't room for another soul in the large dining-room.

Under the genial presence of mine host Elliott, guests sat down to a feast of food and thought with pleasurable anticipation. On the one side of the menu appeared one item "Roast Young Chicken", just a sample of the best of good things provided. On the other page of the menu there was announced speeches from Hon. Charles E. McCrae, Minister of Mines, Charles Rollins Warden; A. G. Roblin, President of Belleville Cheese Board; H. W. Ackerman; J. O. Herity and Col. W. N. Ponton. Mayor Mikel sent his regrets.

The assembly of scores of representatives of the chief industry of this district was an interesting sight. Faces bronzed by the days of outside work [illegible] confidence in to-day's business. John Elliott had concentrated optimism before him.

Among the guests at the head table were R. J. Graham; Wm. Ireland, M.P.P.; Charles Hanna, C. M. Reid, F. E. O'Flynn, Dr. Baker of Albert College and many others.

Guests were present from all parts of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and many outside points. Some were attending the eighteenth annual banquet, having been regular attendants since Mr. Elliott first inaugurated the popular event.

Expressing his pleasure at presiding, J. E. O'Flynn said these banquets were a wonderful tribute to the man who had provided them. He took occasion also to pay tribute to the genial host of the Quinte Hotel.

He explained that A. G. Roblin president, was unable to be present owing to illness and that Geo. Nicholson, ex-president would respond to the toast to the Cheese Board.

Miss Jean McIntosh then gave three delightful readings which were well received.

Chairman O'Flynn told how he had been partly instrumental in bringing John Elliot to Belleville nearly a score of years ago, in calling on him for a speech. Mr. Elliott's success in the following years had backed up his good judgment he said.

Mr. Elliott stated that to-day's gathering was more representative than it had ever been. He was sorry the room was not large enough to accommodate all who should come.

The bank manager pointed out that Canada had a surplus of $247,000,000 exports over imports ending September 1924, and in showing the healthy state of affairs in the country at the present time, he said that from May 1 to Oct 25, 1924 1,300,000 boxes of cheese had been received in Montreal as compared with 1,168,000 boxes in the same period during 1923, an increase of 112,000 boxes.

The Belleville Cheese Board had never been as good in its history as last year he said.

Importance of Chamber

"Col. Ponton and I had the honor of representing the City of Belleville at the Tenth Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, which convened in Guild Hall, London, England, July 1, 1924," Mr. Elliott said. "There we had the opportunity of listening to addresses delivered by distinguished citizens of Great Britain and the Dominions and possessions comprising the British Empire.

"For three days our time was occupied in hearing and participating in the debates arising out of the consideration of the 42 Resolutions which were on the agenda paper, five of which were submitted by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. I mention this so that those here to-day may be informed of the importance of our local Chamber of Commerce, and the outstanding position it holds in the Councils of the Empire.

"Not only does this apply to the Congress recently held in London, England, but with equal force to the approaching Annual Meeting of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chamber of Commerce which will assemble in Toronto on the 20th instant.

"Out of 22 Resolutions to be submitted for consideration by delegates from the 60 Boards comprising that organization, no less than six are presented by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, and most of them pertain to the welfare of the farmers of this country.

From Farmers Section

"Once again I urge the farmers of the Bay of Quinte district to take advantage of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and form an Agricultural section. By so doing you will assist in promoting the welfare and prosperity of the City of Belleville and surrounding counties. I venture to emphasize this point, believing you will realize its importance.

"Having spent three days listening to delegates from Australia, New Zealand, South, East and West Africa, India, and numerous other countries, telling the British people what their respective Dominions could do to supply England with food and other commodities. I decided to visit the great Wembley Exhibition, where I might see their products and judge of their importance. In this occupation seven days were spent visiting each building, and in most cases in charge of a competent Guide. Such a unique experience gave me an opportunity of obtaining valuable information regarding the products of the various parts of the Empire, but time to-day will not permit me to go into details.

"However, before closing, there is one country to which I shall make special reference, as it is our keenest competitor for Agricultural Products in the British market. I refer to New Zealand, which, in the year ending March 31, 1923, shipped 132 million lbs of cheese as compared with Canada's 106 million lbs. Fifteen years ago New Zealand only sent one box of cheese for every four sent from this country. To-day New Zealand is sending five boxes for every four sent from Canada, therefore we must realize we have very keen competition in the British market.

Canada's Cheese Best.

"Yet I have it on the best authority, that Canada's best cheese is superior to that made in New Zealand, and if all Canadian cheese was equal to that exported from the Belleville section, we would undoubtedly control the British market. I wish you to be optimistic in reference to the quality of our cheese. Canadians taught New Zealanders how to make good cheese, and what they can do as a result of our instructions, surely we can do ourselves.

"While in England I saw a shipment of Belleville Cheese arrive, and was told by the purchaser that it was equal to the best cheese he had ever bought. I succeeded in getting a few pounds of it which I sent to the Hon. P. C. Larkin Canadian High Commissioner, and Mr Wm. C. Noxon, Agent General for the Province of Ontario, as I wished these gentlemen to know, from actual experience, the class of cheese produced in this locality and sold on the Belleville Cheese Board.

Render Good Service

"I cannot speak too highly of the splendid services these two gentlemen are rendering to the Province of Ontario and Dominion of Canada.

"Before closing my remarks, I desire to impress upon the dairymen present the debt they owe to the local press, and Mr. S. Pardoe, General Manager of "Canada", a weekly paper published in London, England, as he frequently reproduces therein photographs of the Cheese factories and farm buildings in this section, and never misses an opportunity of saying a good word for this locality.

"In concluding, may I once more impress upon those present, the need of increased production of cheese. This cannot be done without good cows, and possibly some farmers may need financial assistance to purchase them. If such is true, I am sure the banks in Belleville will willingly lend money for that purpose. I can speak with authority on that point for The Standard Bank of Canada.

"During the past fifty years we have been aiding Agriculturalists. We are still prepared to continue that policy, therefore do not hesitate to consult our local managers. You will get a sympathetic hearing and deservedly so, as no class of loan is safer than money borrowed by farmers. They are strictly honest. That is my experience after lending them large sums during the past thirty-five years.

"If any farm laborers are required, they can be obtained by making application to Mr. L. F. Green, who now represents the Department of Immigration for the Provincial Government in Belleville and surrounding district.

"We have a great country, one of which any Canadian may be proud," Mr. Elliott concluded. No part of the British Empire is better than Canada. Let us be thankful our lot is cast here, and do what we can to develop this, our splendid heritage.

ARE ARRANGING DATES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Otawa, Nov. 13.—Acording to present arrangements, Premier Mackenzie King will speak in West Hastings on Monday, Nov. 24, the day before the electors go to the polls. Dates for the visit of the Opposition Leader Arthur Meighen t othe constituency, have not yet been definitely decided on, but it is probable that he will be there on the 18th, 19th and 20th.

Mr. Meighen has been in the West but returns to Ottawa on Saturday.

A QUESTION

A reader of The Intelligencer reports that Charles Hanna told a Deloro audience recently, that he had been Mayor of Belleville for three years and could have been mayor last year had he not given over in favour of Mayor Mikel on account of the U. E. L. celebration.

Will Charles Hanna deny this, or if not, will he repeat the statement from any platform in his home city. Or is that statement reserved for the electors who are not necessarily in true possession of the real facts, by virtue of their distance from Belleville?

SHOT HIS BROTHER BY SAD ACCIDENT

Campbellford Lad Aimed At Window Where Peckett Was Dressing

(Special to The Intelligencer)

Campbellford Nov. 13— A shooting accident occurred at Campbellford yesterday when Francis Peckett received a .22 bullet in his right lung. Little hope is held out for his recovery.

Francis Peckett resides at his father's home in Campbellford. It appeared that after supper the two brothers Harold aged 14 and Francis went up to their bedroom. Francis was dressing and Harold was playing with a new .22 calibre rifle which he had recently purchased. He was aiming out of the window when Francis happened to pass in front of him. Just at that moment the gun clicked and the unfortunate lad received the charge and fell over. Drs. Longmore and Haig arrived promptly on the scene, and did everything possible to relieve the lad from suffering.

He is one of a family of five of Mr and Mrs. Walford Peckett. The father is connected with the Hydro Electric construction work here.

The victim of the shooting was a pianist in one of the local theatres. Reports this morning state that his condition is still serious.

Sisters Die within Twenty Four Hours; And Both Died From Same Affliction

Stratford, Nov. 13— Mrs. Hannah Wilton, aged 82, died at her home, 26 Earl street at about five o'clock Saturday afternoon. Early Sunday morning her only sister, Mrs. Joseph Luna of Toronto, aged 83 died at the home of a son at Markham. The two women who both died from the effects of paralysis that of Mrs. Wilton occurring on Thursday, and her sister's on Tuesday, were buried within half an hour of each other. A peculiar feature in connection with the double death was the fact that when Mrs. Wilton heard that her sister was suffering from a stroke, she expressed the wish that she might never take one. With the passing of Mrs. Luna the last of a family of seven children died. A third sister, the oldest of the family, Mrs. Cartwright of Toronto, died last Easter

REPORT TELLS HOW SOVIET LETTER CAME

Secret Association Chief Rushed Zinovieff Letter To England

USED AIRPLANE

Labor Party Will Now Recruit People For Socialism

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Warsaw, Nov 13.—Lwowska Gazeta, Lemburg newspaper usually well informed on Russian affairs, says the alleged Zinovieff letter was divulged by the chief of an important secret association of the Moscow Foreign office which directed the propaganda in the British Dominions. This official, the paper says, left Moscow suddenly about the middle of October, taking with him the famous letter and other secret documents concerning Bolshevists propanda in the British Empire. His departure spread consternation among the Soviet authorities and attempts were made to catch him at Berlin. He took an airplane to London where other agents of Soviets tried to seize him upon landing but, he again evaded them, and handed the documents and the Zinovieff letter to Conservatives who, the account says, intended to use the letter in the forthcoming debates in the House of Commons on the Anglo Soviet relations. The newspaper adds that the man who took the documents to London is being kept hidden by Conservatives for fear of an attack upon him by the Bolshevists.

Work For Socialism

London, Nov. 13.—"Our work now is to win people for Socialism" is the slogan in an appeal issued by the independent Labor Party, which is in the nature of a personal appeal signed by the late Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald R. Smillie Labor M.P., for Morpeth, John Wheatley, Minister of Health in MacDonald Government, Miss Margaret Bondfield, Parliamentary Secretary to the Labor Department in the MacDonald Government, J. Maxton Labor M.P., for Bridgeton division of Glasgow and J. Scurr, Labor M.P., for mile end division of Stepney.

The appeal is to all Socialists who supported the Labor cause in the recent general election. The results of the election, the appeal states, shows that the first object of the Labor party was largely achieved in that the Liberal party had ceased to be an effective force in the political life of the country, and that workers organizations were solidly behind Labor party.

Order Re-investigation

London, Nov. 13.—Cabinet has appointed a cabinet committee to re-investigate the alleged letter from M. Zinovieff calling for increased activities on the part of the British Communists according to statements in some of the morning newspapers.

These reports state that it was necessary to establish whether the letter was forgery or genuine in order to reply to the Soviet Government's demand for an apology. It is believed the committee's report will be ready for the cabinet at meeting early next week.

Auto And Truck Crash at Corner

Truck Rolled Over Twice But Driver Was Not Injured

When a car driven by C. L. Bronson, 26 West Bridge Street, struck a truck owned by Michael Adams, grocer, broadside at the corner of George and East Bridge streets at 10.15 o'clock this morning the truck was rolled over twice, and badly wrecked. The driver though covered with dust when extricated from the wreck, was not injured in the least, and Bronson was not hurt either. His car, save for a dented fender was not damaged.

The truck, which was loaded with bread was proceeding south on George street, Bronson driving east on Bridge street. The truck driver thought he had time to cross ahead of the oncoming car and had also to watch a car approaching from the east on Bridge street. He was unable to cross and was struck fair in the side.

Both men reported the accident to the police.

IRISH QUESTION IS AT STANDSTILL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 13.—The Irish boundary commissions' work is at a standstill according to some of the newspapers which say it may be necessary to pass another bill through the British Parliament before it can be resumed. The commission met recently in London but after two meetings, adjourned indefinitely. The difficulty is said to be that the commission found itself powerless to summon witnesses and call for documents, while it is also stated that commissioners were not agreed in respecting the scope of their work. The suggestion now is that the points will have to be cleared up by fresh legislation but nothing to this effect has come from official sources.

STEWART TRIAL HAS STARTED AT TORONTO

Dalton McCarthy Outlines Crown's Case Before Judge Coatsworth

PREDICT LONG TRIAL

Says Stewart Was Interested in Point Ann Quarries

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 13.—The trial of J. F. M. Stewart, Toronto Home Bank director on charges of making, using, approving and concurring in false statements of the bank's affairs, was stated this morning before Judge Coatsworth. Mr. Stewart is the third director to the trial. N. W. Rowell K. C., and I. F. Hellmuth K.C., are Counsel for defence and D. L. McCarthy K.C., is Crown prosecutor. Mr. McCarthy in outlining the case to the court before evidence was started, said that accused had been elected director of the bank in June 1922 and was a regular attendant thereafter at all Board meetings. Before he had been director one week Mr. McCarthy declared that accused had arranged loans of $100,000 to a mercantile Security Co., and $50,000 from the Vancouver branch to Manufacturers' Holding Co. A number of companies in which accused was interested also got increases in their loans from the bank. They also got increases in their loans from the bank after accused had became director. Mr. McCarthy said that Mr. Stewart was deeply interested in, if not the originator of the Reynolds Timber Co., which got a large loan from the bank and never even paid interest. Mr. Stewart he stated further was interested in two of Mr. Haney's Companies, the Port Credit Brick Co., and Pointe Ann Quarries. Accused was interested in the West Coast Towing Co., and was present at board meetings when the Western Canada Pulp and Paper Company matters were discussed. Mr. McCarthy contended that Mr. Stewart had knowledge and means of knowing the true condition of the bank. On request of Mr. Rowell the annual reports as made by the Home Bank back as far as 1916 were put in as evidence through Mr. Roberts, secretary of the Department of Finance at Ottawa. Mr. Roberts was the only witness this morning. This trial will likely be the longest yet in the Home bank case.

SAYS THAT CIDER MADE HIM DRUNK

Bell Boy Stole Brandy—Theft Case Dismissed—Parking Violators Fined

Is doped cider being sold from house to house in Belleville? That is the question which Magistrate Masson would like to have definitely answered. Twice recently, men appearing before him accused with being drunk, have sworn that they had been drinking cider which was purchased for [illegible] cents per gallon from farmers who called at their homes.

"Probably some scalawag is doping it and selling it to these people. If so the sooner he is caught and locked up the better," stated the bench this morning.

A local man appeared and pleaded guilty to a drunk charge and said that cider caused his very intoxicated condition. He was fined $10 and costs of $7.

Discussion of home brew concoctions ensued in an apparent effort to decide the problem. Raisins, wheat or alcohol dropped into "innocent cider" is said to produce the required "kick," and it was also stated that if cider is boiled on the stove, it can be made very "potent" in two days.

Case is Dismissed

Josephine Pickle charged a former tenant this morning with the theft of storm windows from her house at 84 Great St. James street, but the case was dismissed, there not being sufficient evidence tendered to even make a case. It was rumored that the accused would sue in the high court for damages for malicious prosecution.

Mrs. Pickle testified that George Lane had told her that he had seen accused selling the windows in the yard, but Lane on the stand denied that he ever said so, simply saying that he had seen accused and another man carrying the windows about the property. He did not know where they had taken the windows.

Mrs. Pickle had personally told a woman at accused's house that if accused did not get the windows back in two days she would lay a charge, and accused then went to her house and told her that the seven windows were in the loft above the barn.

Mrs. Minnie Fry, a former tenant before accused took the Pickle house testified that when she left the house the seven windows were on the house and two old window frames stood in the barn.

Accused told of renting the house and of Mrs. Pickle telling him that there were seven windows for downstair windows but none for the two upstair windows. The seven windows are in the loft as accused said and an agent for plaintiff has seen them there, where accused put them when he removed them this spring.

Frederick Breedon, brother-in-law of accused corroborated his evidence, for he helped remove the windows.

When it came to the costs the matter was left for the solicitors to settle. No court costs were imposed but witnesses brought from Collingwood and [illegible] as well as a railway man who lost $16 by attendance and was [illegible] wish to be compensated. The [illegible] man is Mrs. Pickle's witness. E. D. O'Flynn defended accused and R. J. Butler, private solicitor for plaintiff was present. B. C. Donnan conducted the prosecution.

Liquor Theft Charge

Jack Nevery, 17, bell boy at a local hotel, was arrested this morning by P.S.A. Harman and Detective J. Truaisch, and appeared in police court charged with the theft of a bottle of brandy from a guest's room. The brandy was used as medicine on prescription for an ailment by the guest.

Nevery made a clean breast of the affair and was given suspended sentence of two years.

Parked Too Long

Two citizens contributed five dollars each this morning when they pleaded guilty to charges of parking their automobiles longer than the half hour allowed by law.

I. B. LUCAS, K.C., former provincial treasurer, attorney-general and Hydro commissioner, against whom charges were made public at the Settell investigation Tuesday afternoon

TO-MORROW NIGHT TO BE BIG NIGHT

Meeting in City Hall in Interests of Mr. E. Guss Porter

Tomorrow night is to be one of the big night's in Mr. E. Guss Porter's campaign. It is anticipated that there will be a capacity crowd at the City Hall Auditorium to hear Mr. Porter and other able speakers who are anxious to speak on his behalf..

The following prominent men will speak tomorrow night: E. B. Ryckman M.P. for East Toronto; W. A. Boys M.P. for S. Simcoe and chief conservative whip in the House of Commons; and H. C. Hocken, M.P. for West Toronto..

More and more workers are enlisting for the cause every day and present indications point to a splendid majority against James Murdock in the City of Belleville.

THIRTY CARS BURN IN $50.000 FINE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, Nov. 13.—That two constables and a civilian held him up at a lonely corner, went through his pockets and finding he had no money, severely beat him up and took him to the police station where they charged him with assaulting them, was stated at the local police enquiry before Mr. Justice Cadorre this morning by Honore Demers, chief mechanic at Legare automobile plant.

Chinaman Had Unique Teapot in Hamilton; Poured Either Tea or "Pekin Gin" at will Hamilton, Nov. 13.—Chin Yack Man never played poker with Bret Harte or Bill Nye, but a teapot he owns "is peculiar." It is an ornate affair, having two hearts with but a single spout, as it were.

Chin runs a chop suey eating place at 49 King William street.

Police have been suspicious of Chin's place for several months. When Constables Beeker and Clarke raided it, they grabbed the ornamental teapot which Chin carried as he blandly and deftly flitted from table to table.

One turn of the spout—and one got tea, naturally. Another turn—just so—and, presto out burgled "Pekin Chin," a product of the paddy fields near Hwang Ho which is said to have more "zip" than chain lightning.

Asked in Police Court if he was guilty of B. O. T. A., Chin stated he "clould not slay flor sure, but he gless so." He was fined $200.

PETER SMITH IS TAKEN TO PENITENTIARY

Smokes Pipe and Talks to Wife Who Accompanied Him

MEETS REPORTERS

Says If He Told Truth Would Increase Newspaper Circulation

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 13.—Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer of Ontario, left Toronto this morning for Portsmouth Penitentiary to serve three years' imprisonment, more or less, as a result of his conviction on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the sale of Provincial Government bonds while he occupied the office of Provincial Treasurer. Mrs. Smith accompanied her husband on the train. Peter Smith smoked his pipe cheerfully as train pulled out of Toronto. He called for a morning newspaper as the news agent went through the train. "I want to see how they have whitewashed Sir Adam Beck," he said, but added that he did not know anything about that case. Talking to newspaper reporters Smith said in regard to things generally, "If I told the truth, it would increase the circulation of your newspapers." The prisoner was not in a very talkative mood however, and addressed most of his conversation to Mrs. Smith.

A PREFERENCE

Some of Mr. Hanna's supporters are very industriously circulating the report that on account of his being a member of certain Lodges in the City that he will get every vote in these Lodges. Can it be possible that Mr. Hanna thinks because he is a member of a lodge that his fellow members are compelled to vote for him? Does he think they are so lacking in intelligence that they have no opinions of their own.

Mr. Porter is a member in good standing of the same Lodges, but considers it an insult to the manhood or womanhood of these Lodges to expect or canvass their votes upon such grounds. He prefers to leave it to their intelligence and honor upon the issue involved.

THE BYE-ELECTION

"The bye-election campaign for the West Riding of Hastings has now been formally launched. At yesterday's nomination meeting there was a capacity and a keenly critical audience composed of the best elements in the constituency. They heard speeches from both the Liberal and Conservative party viewpoints. Unquestionably these were and will again be discussed at great length by those who desire to fathom the depths of questions relating to tariff and other controversial elements of party platforms.

"The Ontario suggests to electors the importance of considering the future of West Hastings. One of the most blest counties in Ontario, as it is indeed of all Canada, in natural resources, its development on broader lines must be properly in the minds of all right thinking men. That being so, it needs in Parliament a representative who will endeavor to give it that attention which its importance as a community so well endowed, merits at the hands of the Government. Do not forget that after the election is over and the shouting dies West Hastings must go on; the people who comprise its sturdy and intelligent population must go on. A wave of good times is coming this way. We have turned the corner.

"The Ontario is certain that the great majority of people desire chiefly to do the thing that will be best for the whole community. Be sure then that the man you vote for is the man who will give West Hastings the service and attention that will best meet the needs of the whole people. Then only will his be the honor and glory: After accomplishment, not before."—The Daily Ontario.

Splendid! Vote for Mr. Porter.

CANADA'S TRADE OUTLOOK

"As a trade field, Canada is well worth looking after", says the Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada, a monthly review of Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada, published by the Department of Colonization and Development of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

"That the United States, if it is to hold its own in Canadian trade, will have to look well to it, is disclosed in the trade returns for the year ending September 1st, which gave the imports from that country during the year as approximately $3[illegible]0,000,000, or $56,000,000 below those for the preceding period. For example, imports of coal were down $22,000,000, imports of metal down $16,000,000.

"The true significance of these reduced imports from the United States is to be seen in the fact that imports from all countries, the United States included, only fell off to the extent of $58,000,000, so that almost the entire decrease in imports was in those from the Republic.

"It indicates that the Canadian policy of widening the range of her external trade through the medium of trade treaties is having effect. It is not for nothing that half a dozen such treaties, assuring more favored treatment for Canadian products, have been entered into. These new trade treaties introduce competitive factors into the Canadian market. The new treaty with Australia is a case in point.

"In placing a trade commissioner at Ottawa, the United States has given evidence that it fully appreciates the growing importance of the trade of Canada. From 1915, until recently, the United States had things pretty much their own way in the Canadian market; the situation to-day, however, is different. Great Britain and some of the European countries are becoming strong competitors, and will doubtless become more so as time goes on."

PROMISES IN WEST HASTINGS

"Anything to win a bye-election," seems to be the cry of the Liberal party. Promises galore have been made by the Government in recent elections and in some instances the people have listened to the voices of the paid promisers and marked their ballots for what they supposed they would get. In the West Hastings bye-election the promisers are busy. Hon. T. A. Low seems to be the "star" performer for the government. Hon. Tom does not seem to mind what he says or what he promises, and if the seriousness of some of the statements were not understood, one would believe that the Hon. Mr. Low is more knave than fool. At a meeting in Marmora the other day he told his audience without a blush that the record of Mr. Porter did not show one thing done in the interests of the riding. Of course Mr. Low was looking only for one thing, a big patronage—a new dry dock, a Union Club, a Scribe Hotel. These are the only kind of things that count in the eyes of Hon. Tom Low and his ilk. But Mr. Low went further. He said he was sure than within twenty-three months, if elected, and the Liberal Government were still in office, something would be done for a better mail service for Marmora, and the outlying places like Bancroft, by Mr. Charles Hanna.

As some our local sheiks might say, "The old stuff." If Mr. Low is sincere, if the Government is sincere, if they believe as Mr. Low says that a better mail service is needed in that territory, why have they not given it, or why do they not institute it now. Why wait to see if a Liberal candidate is returned? The sincerity of Mr. Low, it would appear, is the sincerity of a gambler—heads I win, tails you lose. The people of West Hastings should ask the Hon. Mr. Low to go ahead and do what is needed without waiting for the election of a Liberal to their riding. Election promises are things the Liberal Party have been famed for, but they also stand out as the biggest platform and promise breakers the country ever experienced But it will take more than election promises of Hon. T. Low to defeat Mr. Porter. The people of West Hastings know that Mr. Porter stands four square for the principles of the Conservative Party. Mr. Porter has never wobbled. He has never "flinched" no matter how big the inducements. A man who is loyal to his party will be loyal to his friends. A man who is loyal to his party will be loyal to his constituents. The record of Mr. Hanna as an exponent of Liberalism is so short that it would seem that Mr. Hanna has not yet grasped the full importance of the step he has taken in contesting the riding of West Hastings against a man who is known throughout the length and breadth of the constituency as a man of honour, a man of principle, and a safe, sound administrator not only for the riding of West Hastings but for Canada at large.—Port Hope Times.

SIDETRACKING THE ISSUE

"Vote for Hanna. Look what he did during the U. E. L. Celebration."

Such is the election plea being pushed forward by supporters of Charles Hanna.

As has been pointed out before, the Intelligencer is not out to belittle Hanna, the man. It is Hanna, the candidate against whom honest convictions are operating.

No supporter of Mr. E. Gus Porter in this by-election desires to take away from the good work Charles Hanna before and during the Celebration. He worked faithfully and hard. To him goes a lion's share of the credit for a very successful undertaking.

At the same time, no supporter of E. Gus Porter wants to see Charles Hanna given all the credit. We do not believe Charles Hanna, himself, would stand for that, knowing as he does that Mayor Mikel was responsible for getting the Celebration here in the first place and that a score of other citizens worked prodigiously for the success of the event.

But apart from all that, it must be hammered home that Charles Hanna's work in the municipal life has absolutely no bearing on the issue of the election. It should be repeated time and time again that voters of West Hastings have no interest in Charles Hanna other than that he upholds the conduct of James Murdock by his very candidature.

Good citizens who realize this will do good work for a worthy cause pointing the facts out to those for whom the issue has been befogged.

Press Opinions

HARD TO UNDERSTAND

(London Free Press)

To the average man it is hard to understand why Canada's money in the United States was ever below par Canada was just as sound financially two or four years ago as to-day.

PINING FOR NOTORIETY

(Presbyterian Witness)

It looks as if the star of the American-Irish so-called patriot had gone out in darkness like an exhausted sky-rocket. He is not even permitted any longer to pose as a martyr. The Irish Free State has no use for him, and when he seeks to raise a disturbance in Ulster he is quietly taken charge of and sent back home. He has made desperate efforts to establish a republic in Southern Ireland, presumably with himself as its first president and he has been responsible for the loss of many precious lives. If deValera had received his deserts he would have been hanged long ago. But this would have made a martyr of him and prolonged his influence. Just now he is somewhat of a problem, as he is bound to make trouble wherever he goes, and he still has a small following. The fate which he most fears is the horrors of obscurity. But he has long since forfeited any claim to leadership in his adopted country. He is in the position of the claimant to a throne with little prospect of having his claims recognized and the lot of such pretenders is the most obvious fate awaiting him.

BUSINESS LOSSES THROUGH CRIME

(Boston Transcript)

Business, like every other human affair, has always its risks but these are generally considered under the head of losses due to economic financial or personal causes that must be imputed to the fallibility of all men. But as business has developed and all its dimensions have increased on the basis of a huge population and its attendant commerce, the business loss actually due to crime has played a larger and larger part in all calculations. This is shown concretely by a report on The Crime Tendency in Business, compiled by the committee on public affairs of the American Institute of Accountants. This report puts the annual loss to American business at the fearful total of $1,600,000,000 which is divided as follows: Losses from embezzlements and forgeries, $200,000,000; credit frauds, $400,000,000; from stock frauds, $1,000,000,000. As to the last we can take it that it is more hypothetical a calculation than the other two.

M. O. H. AT TORONTO IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Toronto, Nov. 13—Dr. Charles J. Hastings, Medical Officer of Health is seriously ill at his residence, Russell Hill Road. He has been unwell for some time and has recently suffered from a cold, which caused him to temporarily relinquish duty on Friday last. Since then bronchial-pneumonia has developed and his condition is regarded as critical although last night it was reported he was resting more comfortably.

Dr. Hastings, who is in his sixty-seventh year, has been devoted to his duty ever since his appointment as head of the Civic Health Department in October, 1910. He is the second civic official to be stricken with illness lately, City Solicitor Johnston having suffered a breakdown due to heart trouble.

Dr. Warner, of St. Thomas was very low last evening. During the past week he has failed fast and attending physicians believe the end is very near.

ENGLISH PAPER RAISES RATES

The London Daily Mail announces an increase in the rate of its front page to 1,400 pounds sterling, which amounts to $6,790 at the normal rate of exchange. On the first of January 1924, there were only eleven front pages vacant out of 313 which are published every year.

George Kapoun and his wife, of Chicago, can talk back to each other on three separate days of the week. But Judge Harry Lewis has decreed. It is the first of a "take-your-turn-at-battle" experiment which Judge Lewis is trying out to keep married folks out of the divorce courts. The Kapouns were on the verge of separating until this plan was suggested.

HICCOUGHS STOPPED TRIAL

Washington, Nov. 13.—A severe attack of hiccoughs, incapacitating the official court reporter, forced a postponement yesterday until today of the court-martial of Captain Harold A. Barnes, in connection with an alleged deficit of $1,800 in his accounts as commissary officer at Fort Myer, Va. This was the fourth postponement since the trial began two weeks ago, but none of the others was due to hiccoughs.

To-day's Smile

This story is told of a church where they were raising money for refurnishing the church. The colored sextion remarked of a certain fairly well-to-do farmer having a reputation for closefistedness that he was "as stingy as old Caesar."

"Why do you think Caesar was stingy?" he was asked.

"Well, you see," came the reply, "when the Pharisees gave our Lord a penny, Jesus asked them, 'Whose subscription is this?' and they said, 'Caesar's.'"

An old Highlander, when passing a farm one day, was savagely attacked by the dog. Seizing a hayfork which lay near, he thrust it into the animal, much to the annoyance of Farmer Hayseed, who was at work near the spot. "You stupid ass," called out the farmer, "can't you take the blunt end of the fork to the dog?" "You stupid ass yourself," retorted the infuriated Gael, "what for did ye blooming dog no' tak' his blunt end to me?"

There have been nearly 500 licenses for radio sets issued in Sarnia Inspector Smith stated yesterday. The number is rapidly increasing. One of the peculiarities of radio operation here is the fact that Canadian stations are very rarely heard, Toronto and London in particular. Topographical features are believed responsible for the difficulty experienced in the Canadian stations.

THE WELL LIGHTED CORNER HAS THE WELL WORN CHAIR

WHEN everybody makes a bee line for a certain corner of the living room, or looks with envious eyes on its occupant, it's time to get the other chairs into use. Light will do it, by the generous use of floor and table lamps, well shaded to kill the glare.

You will be surprised at the wonderful difference an extra floor or table lamp makes to your living room.

To obtain the best results, choose wide shades that throw the light upward and downward. Use 50 or 75-watt white Edison Mazda Lamps. Put 25-watt all frosted Edison Mazda Lamps in small decorative table lamps, wall brackets and candlesticks, always using shades.

Near you is an Edison Mazda Lamp store, recognizable by the yellow and blue cartons. There you can obtain real information about good lighting.

DEATHS

ROUHAN—In Belleville, on Wednesday, November 12th, 1924. Nathaniel Rouhan, aged 66 years.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, 13 Albion street on Saturday 15th inst., at 10 o'clock. Mass at St. Michael's Church at 10.30 a.m. Body taken to C.N.R. station for shipment to Cobourg for interment.

Deaths And Funerals

NATHANIEL ROUHAN

At the family residence, 13 Albion street, Mr. Nathaniel Rouhan passed away yesterday. Deceased who was 66 years of age was born at Grafton and for the past 14 years had resided in Belleville. He was a rule instructor on the C. N. R. and had been in the employ of the railway continuously for 43 years. Mr. Rouhan was a member of St. Michael's church. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Brotherhood of Railway conductors. Deceased was much respected by all who knew him. A widow, two sons, Frank, of Detroit, and Cyril, of Belleville, and one daughter, Mrs. D. H. Donoghue, of this city, survive. Two brothers, James and Michael, of Chicago, and one sister, Mrs. E. Gray, of Chicago, are living.

WILLIAM RUSSELL

One of the oldest residents of Ameliasburg Township in the person of Mr. William Russell passed away last night. Deceased who was 90 years of age died at the homestead where he was born in the year 1834. For many years Mr. Russell was a successful farmer retiring a few years ago. He was a veteran, having served at the frontier during the troublesome time in 1866. He was a member of the Methodist church. Twelve years ago Mrs. Russell predeceased him and surviving are two sons, W. R. and Elijah, both of Ameliasburg, and one daughter, Mrs. R. Wescott, of Shannonville. Two brothers, James R. of Stayner, and Lewis, of Kamsack, are living.

ELIZABETH STEVENS

Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens an aged lady passed away at the hospital here yesterday afternoon. In the year 1848 deceased was born in Lennox and Addington County. Mrs. Stevens was a widow. The body after being prepared here for burial was to-day taken to Napanee for interment.

MRS. EMMA PITNEY

Yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Mrs. Emma Pitney took place from the residence of her son, Mr. P. O. Pitney, 86 Dundas street east. Services were conducted by Rev. Dr. F. E. Malott, of Bridge street church who also officiated at the interment at Belleville cemetery. Expressions of sympathy were evidenced by many beautiful floral tributes. Bearers were Messrs. A. Milne, W. How, James Casey, P. O. Pitney, G. and George E. Weymark, all relatives of deceased.

Presbyterians Are Generous Givers

Cheering Figures Given at Presbyterial Conference Here Yesterday

"Since the armistice was signed our congregations have increased their contributions for their own local work by $3,150,000, or 48 per cent.; our Woman's Missionary Society has increased its givings by $198,000 or 71 per cent., and the contributions from congregations for our benevolent, educational and missionary enterprises have increased by $400,000 or 41 per cent. We have also given in response to appeals for aid in China and Russia in time of famine $457,000. Had conditions been normal our givings would have been larger still."

These were the cheering figures quoted by Rev. Dr. Robert Laird, the Treasurer of the Presbyterian Church, at a joint conference of the members from the Western portion of the Presbytery of Kingston and representatives of the Women's Missionary Society, in the John St. Church, on Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. Laird believes that though the financial situation is still grave, inasmuch as the deficit amounts to nearly $400,000, it will eventually improve. He is of the opinion that when people know that the Foreign Mission Board should have at least $50,000 more to carry on its work effectively, and when they know that the Home Mission Board is able to make ends meet only by neglecting work which ought to be done, they will give the money necessary to meet the situation. Some congregations have done wonderfully well of late. The week of self-denial which closed last Sunday has produced some surprising and cheering results and the returns have only begun to come in.

To show that some are making great sacrifices while others are spending laviably on luxuries Dr. Laird stated that on last Easter week the Finnish Missionary in Toronto gave 100 free meals to his starving fellow-countrymen, while in the same week, from a little town near Toronto 240 000 roses were shipped, some of those roses costing $25 a dozen, and none less than $6 a dozen.

Mrs. Howard Sharpe followed with a paper in which she showed what the W.M.S. could do in meeting the Budget requirements of the Church.

The discussion was continued by Rev. Messrs. Cowan, Picton; McCormack, Madoc; Fraser, Melrose; and Ramsay and Kerr, and Mr. R. Templeton, Belleville.

Representatives were present from Tweed, Picton, Madoc, Demorestville, and Belleville. Rev. D. C. Ramsay occupied the chair.

Yellow Air Cabs Are The Latest

Designed to Carry Passengers For 20 Cents Per Mile

New York, Nov. 13.—"Yellow air cabs," fitted and painted exactly like Yellow taxicabs, and designed to carry passengers for 20 cents a mile, are soon to be placed on the market, it is announced. They are to be manufactured in Dayton, Ohio, by an organization headed by Col. H. E. Hartney, former commander of the First Pursuit Squadron of the A. E. F. in France, and former chief of training of the army air service. The announcement was made by Col. Hartney at the Hotel Astor.

The planes will be marketed in the same way that Yellow taxicabs are sold, and there will be a demonstration fleet of nine air cabs operated in Chicago, with fleets of three cabs each in four other cities.

Col. Hartney said the air cabs would make 16 miles on a gallon of gasoline, as yellow taxicabs do, and that their 90-horsepower motors would drive them at a maximum speed of 100 miles an hour, with 90 miles as their cruising speed. The cabs, he said, would be equipped with devices which would make nose dives and the stalling of motors an impossibility.

"The development of commercial aviation is one of the most important matters now confronting the country," Col. Hartney said. "It is important internationally, as airplanes are going to be the first line of defence in time of war. This is recognized already by Great Britain, France and Italy, who have separate air ministries in their cabinets. No nation is ever going to be able to pay for the upkeep of an adequate air defence, which is neither practicable nor possible in time of peace.

"The development of commercial flying is really the saving solution of the problem."

It will cost $10,000,000 and will accommodate 12,000 students. The great Gothic tower will be 360 feet long, 260 feet wide, and 650 feet high. It will have 52 storey reached by 16 high speed elevators.

Printers Ask For A Higher Tariff

On Printed Matter and Advertising Coming Into Canada

Toronto, Nov 13.—With the consent of International President James Lynch and members of the Executive Council of the International Typographical Union, officials of local unions of the organization in Canada propose to ask the Federal Government to place a tariff on printed matter and advertising entering Canada from the United States.

The decision of the International Typographical Union to seek a tariff on imported printed matter was announced by President Lewis, Local No. 21, after a meeting in the Labor Temple which had been called to place before members the plan of the Executive Council by which the International Union would be re-organized in Canada and printing lost through the strike would be brought back to master printers of large centres.

What Proposal Means

"Local unions in the United States can take care of United States magazines, President Lynch told us when he agreed to our suggestion of a tariff on printed matter from the United States," said Mr. Lewis. "If we can secure this it will mean that firms of the United States will have to publish in Canada, and consequently more work for our men. We also intended to boost magazines published in Canada."

Recount Granted For By-election

Is To Take Place in Montreal on Saturday Next

Montreal, Nov. 13.—A recount of the ballots cast in the recent provincial by-election in St. Ann's division will be held on Saturday morning in the Court House, under the supervision of Mr. Justice Bruneau, who granted a petition asking for the recount. The petition was presented on behalf of a voter favorable to Dennis Tansey, who lost the election to J. H. Dillon, K.C., by a margin of 183 votes.

It was conceded, as soon as the polls were closed last Wednesday, that a recount would be asked on account of the comparatively narrow majority obtained by the successful candidate, Mr. Dillon, who polled 1,759 votes as against 1,576 ballots cast for Mr. Tansey.

Action was instituted yesterday when Clarence McCaffrey, counsel for Dennis Tansey, presented a petition to Mr. Justice Bruneau, in the Practice Division of the Superior Court, asking that an order be issued for a recount in the constituency. The petitioner is a voter Rye Nimo, an electrician, living on Bourgeois street.

The petition contains but one allegation, to the effect that certain ballots, cast in favor of Mr. Tansey in poll No. 52 situated at 121 Leber street, were illegally rejected by the returning officer in charge of the pool. No other illegality is alleged, and the petition concludes with the usual prayer asking that the formalities necessary for a recount be ordered.

All Ready For Big Convention

When Liberal - Conservatives From Whole Dominion Meet Monday

Toronto, Nov. 13— Preliminary arrangements for the Conservative National Conference, to be held in the King Edward Hotel on Monday, Nov. 17, are complete. The conference will open at 10 a.m. Dominion-wide organization will be the first matter considered, and every Province will be represented.

The Provincial Presidents expected are: R. L. Maitland, British Columbia Hon. R. B. Bennett, Alberta; Dr. Munroe, Saskatchewan; N. K. Boyd, Manitoba; John R. MacNicol, Ontario F. W. Stewart and J. A. Lamarre, Quebec; Harry A. Smith, New Brunswick; A. A. Alley, Prince Edward Island; E. C. Phinney, Nova Scotia. Owing to the Legislature being in session, Hon. R. H. Pooley, M.P.P., British Columbia Leader, cannot attend, but Hon. W. J. Blair, Alberta; Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, Saskatchewan; Hon. F. G. Taylor, M.P.P., Manitoba; Premier G. Howard Ferguson, M.P.P., Ontario; Hon. Arthur Sauve, M.P.P. Quebec; Hon. C. D. Richards, M.P.P. New Brunswick; Premier J. D. Stewart, M.P.P., Prince Edward Island, and Hon. W. L. Hall, M.P.P., Nova Scotia, are expected. Many of the Federal and Provincial members as well as Senators have signified their intention to attend. These and officers from all over Canada will make up the conference delegates.

The Provincial Leaders will all deliver short addresses at one stage or another. Hon. Arthur Sauve, M.P.P., Quebec Leader, will lead off the toast list at the limited luncheon on Nov. 17. The conference delegation will attend the fourth annual meeting of the Conservative Association of Ontario in the King Edward Hotel on Nov. 18, at which it is expected, 1,500 will attend. On the evening of Nov. 18 a dinner will be given to the two Provincial Premiers and the Federal Leader, Rt Hon. Arthur Meighen, M.P.

Loeb is Breaking Down in Prison

Father's Death Proves Climax; Leopold Thrives However

Chicago, Nov. 13—Richard Loeb, the brilliant college student who beat out the life of little Bobby Franks "for a thrill" is breaking under the rigors of prison routine at Joliet where he is serving a life sentence for murder and 99 years for kidnapping.

On the other hand, Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., his partner in crime, and under like sentences is thriving.

These facts became known when it was learned that Loeb had been placed under constant watch of prison physicians.

A severe cold was given as the reason of Warden Whitman but it is said the reason lies deeper than this. confinement has told heavily on the spirit of Loeb who five months ago was a carefree, dancing, frollicking youth.

The death of his father a few days ago brought him almost to the breaking point, a guard revealed.

Instead of reading in his spare hours this guard said, Loeb sits on the edge of his bunk, his head resting in his hands, gazing at the floor for hours.

And he stands listlessly before the lathe to which he was assigned to turn out chair rungs, uninterested, dejected.

But Leopold, who works in the rattan shop, making chair bottoms, goes about his task with the utmost cheerfulness. He turns out four chair bottoms a day, although the usual number for a prisoner is two.

His hands are calloused but his health and spirit generally strong.

Navigation is rapidly drawing to a close, a fact which is evidenced at Sarnia by the great reduction in vessel passages. Normal insurance rates do not expire until December 15, but few vessels remain in service as late as that. Despite the open weather, shipping has been very quiet for the last few weeks. The steamer Noronic is in dock at Sarnia preparing for winter anchorage.

Wanderers Beat The Greyhounds

Cornell Takes Honors With Three String of 711

The final game took place in the High School league at the Recreation Alleys yesterday, the first and second team playing off for first position honors, the Mushmelons winning out in the last game. Pears were leading 37 pins in the second game but in the third they came through with their best score of the day rolling 835 and winning by over 100 pins. Buck for the winners carried off the high single and three strings with 269 and 525 respectively.

In the Ladies League the Belmonts won from the Baby Shoes, Miss Barrett and Miss Shannon rolling the highest scores.

In a junior league game the Durant-Stars won from the Hi-Li by 53 pins. The Hi-Li were down over 200 pins in the first two games but in the third they cut down their opponents lead to 53 pins. Fleming and Strahan were high three string bowlers.

In the senior game the Wanderers won from the Greyhounds for the second time, tieing these two teams for second position. The Wanderers got away to a good start rolling 1039 for their first game against the Greyhounds 880, but in the second and third the Greyhounds were right after the Wanderers. Clayt Cornell is sure hitting the hardwood this week and last night was no exception when he rolled 711 for his three strings. For the Greyhounds Peeny Mills is still the old reliable. Peeny rolled 656, and hasn't been bowling for several weeks.

Tigers Can Win Says Paddy Jones

But Whether They Will or Not Remains to be Seen

Paddy Jones writing in The Hamilton Herald says:

"Can Tigers stop Leadley and Batstone, Queen's University's wonderful half-backs? They can!

WILL Tigers stop Leadley and Batstone That remains to be seen.

Hamilton's Big Four champions failed last season to halt that pair of ground-gainers. Tigers' wing line smothered the Tri-color's front rank for the first half of the game played in Kingston, but the combined runs of Leadley and Batstone more than offset Tigers plunging attack. And, in the second half, when the big Tigers' wing line had worn itself out the Presbyterians increased their lead over the Bengals.

Tigers are stronger in every way this year. The wing line has been bolstered. And the addition of Dr. Karl Quinn to the back-division has added strength to that department.

I believe that Tigers can stop Leadley and Batstone and defeat Queen's by resorting to high, short kicks. Neither Leadley or Batstone is a big fellow, and, if tackled by huskies like Timmins, Reid, Elford, Veale and Walker, will lose a great deal of their speed. Tigers wore down big chaps like "Chuck" Reaves and Joe Breen by hard, but absolutely legal, tackling; they should have no trouble doing the same thing to the Queen's stars. From the start of the game Gibb should be instructed to lift the ball high but not far. This will enable Tigers' wings to be on the job when Queen's backs catch the ball—and toss them. A few such tackles in the early part of the struggle will certainly not tend to increase the speed of 'Pep' and 'Red.'

As far as the rival wing lines are concerned, Tigers should have a big margin. With a line that couldn't be compared to this year's Tigers ripped the Queen's line to shreds in the 1923 eastern final game. The college champions' line this year is not a bit better than it was then; Tigers is much improved.

Hamilton's chances look bright to me."

Seven of the ten aldermen of Woodstock have signified their intention of standing as candidates for next year's council, while the other three are undecided.

High School Girls Are League Champs

They Defeated Picton in Basketball Fixture Last Night

Last night the final game in the Bay of Quinte League was played in Picton.

From the first the Belleville girls outplayed Picton. The gallery was filled with "rooters", a great number of whom were loyal Bellevillians.

Marjorie Lynch played an excellent game as forward, scoring five of the baskets.

Elda Robertson played with lightning speed, scoring seven baskets and two free throws.

Peg Holloway and Grace Gilbert in centre played with their usual speed.

The guards, Evelyn Whalen and Helen Potter played the best game yet.

Congratulations B. H. S.

Score—24-8.

Lineup:

B.H.S.—Forwards, Elda Robertson, Marjorie Lynch. Centres, Peg Holloway, Grace Gilbert. Guards, Evelyn Whalen, Helen Potter.

P.C.I.—Forwards, Marion Insley, Isabel Norman. Centres, Gwen Wannamaker, Annie Wilson. Guards, Maizie Carson, Marion Knight.

The Juniors suffered another defeat but they played a good game. Mary Roberts at the first of the game scored basket after basket. Score 25-21.

Lineup:

B.H.S.—Forwards, Mary Roberts Sheila Taylor. Centres, Nora Wallbridge Mazie Ray. Lorine Sprague, Lorna Ridley. Guards—Lazietta Carle Catherine Chisholm, Evelyn Cook.

P.C.I.—Forwards, Ruth Herrington Doris Arthurs. Centres, Bessie Steet, Mary Vandusen. Guards, Helen Mills, Rose McKibbon.

Trailers at Last Go Up Ahead

Defeated Ritchie Team at "Y" Alleys Last Night

Following an unbroken string of losses, the Trailers side-stepped all precedent, shook up their luck bag, and administered a sound trimming to their opponents of the night, the Ritchie Co. Ladies Team. As a result of last night's win the Trailers not only failed to live up to their name but also will share with their latest victims the cellar position in the league whereas they might have retained that honor for themselves.

Miss Styles for the winners obtained the high total of the evening, Miss Blaind following second in order.

Increase String of Wins

Something approaching consternation reigned in the camp of the Excelsiors last night when they realized that they must enter the game against the Klahoyas without the ever reliable services of their Captain, Rus Woodley. Realizing they had their work cut out for them the Excelsiors took no chances and started out at the very first of the game to garner a substantial lead which they not only held but also added to throughout the course of the game. Art Herity, who has been hitting a fast clip of late, was the leading scorer of both teams, while Lent for the opposite side of the house set a creditable example for his teammates.

California Taking Lead in Boxing

By New Law Which Will Allow Twelve Round Bouts

New York, Nov. 13—New York and the metropolitan district, which has been the boxing world's mecca for several years, faces the prospect of having its monopoly broken if the new California law, permitting 12-round bouts, results in the expected boom to the ring game on the coast.

California, where pugilism flourished in former days, has restricted bouts to four rounds of late, a limit which served to keep away many of the ring's most prominent performers and eliminated the chance of championship bouts.

Already a number of eastern boxers have started westward on fistic 'prospecting' expeditions, Benny Leonard, the world's lightweight king, disclosed today that he had begun negotiations with Los Angeles promoters for a 12-round title bout there in February against an opponent to be selected. Other champions may follow suit, including Mike McTigue, the light-heavyweight champion and Abe Goldstein, bantamweight titleholder.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES
A HANDBOOK OF INFORMATION

From 35 to 45

At 35, you are in the hey-day of life, busy with affairs of the moment.

At 40, you realize that you have "rounded Cape Time." You begin to reflect.

At 45, you seriously consider how you are going to support yourself in your old age, when you may no longer feel able to work.

One certain way to avoid being a burden on your children or relatives in your old age is to provide yourself with an independent income. You will find no safer or surer way to acquire such an income than by the purchase of a Canadian Government Annuity.

Such an Annuity, guaranteed by the Dominion of Canada, may be bought on very easy terms. It may be of any amount from $50 to $5,000 a year, commencing when you choose, and lasting as long as you live. Under special plans of purchase, you may protect the interests of your wife or dependents for a term of years certain. No medical examination is required. For particulars, fill out this Coupon and address it as directed.

The apparatus which makes audible the music and voice, picked up by a Receiving Set, has a very great deal to do with the success or failure of a Radio Installation. The clear, mellow tones of the Atwater-Kent Loud Speaker and Phonograph Atachments are the result of almost endless tests and experiments in the Atwater-Kent research laboratories. Their unusual volume is attained without distortion or undue resonance—in fact in every way, are they fitting companions to Atwater-Kent Receiving Sets.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN: SERIAL: THEATRES

A Woman's Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

She put on her hat and jacket, and possibly for the convenience of carrying, thrust the handkerchief in the bosom of her dress, where it lay hidden all the preceding day, and started.

It was a glorious morning, with only a feather of cloud here and there in the sky, and the the birds sang as if winter were an unknown season in England.

With her stage copy of "Romeo and Juliet" under her arm, Doris Marlowe, the simple child of nature, the famous actress, made her way to the meadows.

The Barton folks have something else to do than wander in the meadows and Doris did not meet a soul; the great elms which threw their shadows over the brook ,were as solitary as if they had been planted in Eden. But lonely as the spot was, Doris peopled it with memories; and she stood by the brook and recalled the vision of the powerful figure on the great horse as it appeared before her the moment prior to its being hurled at her feet.

"How strange that he should have been at the theatre last night!" she thought. "How curious it must have seemed to him, seeing me there as Juliet! I wonder whether he was sorry or glad!"

She could not answer the question to her satisfaction, but she stood motionless for a moment or two, recalling the words he had spoken as he stood beside the fly last night.

Then she took the handkerchief from her bosom and, folding it with careful neatness, placed it on the bank where she had sat.

"It is not likely that any one will come here before he comes to fetch it this afternoon," she said.

Almost before the words were out of her lips, a stalwart form leaped the hedge, and stood before her.

Doris started and her face flushed; then, pale and composed, she lifted her eyes to his.

"Well, now!" he said, in humble apology, "I seem fated to startle you, Miss Marlowe. I had no idea you were here——" he stoppel awed to silence by her silence.

"You said you would come for it in the afternoon," she remarked, almost coldly.

He colored.

"Yes I know; but I could not come this afternoon, and I thought——" he stopped, and raised his frank eyes to her face, pleadingly.

"You thought?" she said very gravely, her brows drawn together slightly.

"Well," he said, as if with an effort, "I will tell the truth! I thought that if I came this morning I might meet you. It was just a chance. Are you angry?"

She was silent a moment. Was she angry? She felt that she ought to be; and had a suspicion that he had, so to speak, entrapped her into a meeting with him; and she honestly tried to be angry.

"It does not matter," she said at last very coldly. "There is your handkerchief."

He picked it up, and thrust it in his pocket.

"Oh, thank you, thank you!" he said gratefully. She turned to go, with a slight inclination of her head, but he went on, speaking hurriedly and so earnestly, that she paused, her head half turned over her shoulder, her eyes cast down; an attitude so full of grace that it almost drove what he was going to say out of his head. "I don't deserve that you should have brought it."

"I don't think you do," she assented, a faint smile curving her lips at his ingenuousness.

"I daresay you think it strange that I didn't ask you to send it to the Towers?" he went on. "You know you would not let me call at your place for it," he added apologetically.

"Why did you not let me send it?" she asked, with faint curiosity.

"Well, I'll tell you," he said. "Won't you sit down and rest? It's warm this morning, and you have walked far, perhaps."

She hesitated a moment, then sat down, almost on the spot she had sat the preceding day, and Cecil Neville could not help a wild rushing to his heart that he was once again lying at her feet!

He sat down on the bank ,as near to her as he dared, and leaned on his elbow toward her:

"You see, I'm only a visitor at the Towers. The marquis—that's my uncle, you know—"

"I don't know," she said, with a faint smile, her eyes fixed dreamily on her book.

"Of course not," he assented. "Well we don't get on together. He is—not to put too fine a point on it—about as disagreeable a person as you'd find in two days' walk! We never have got on together. They say that a man always hates the fellow who is to come after him, unless it happens to be his own son; and I suppose that's the reason the marquis hates me——"

"Because you are to be the next marquis?" she said.

He nodded coolly, and tilted his hat so that it screened his eyes from the sun, and permitted him to feast upon her beautiful face more completely.

"Yes, that's about it; but I'll give the marquis the credit of hating everybody all round, himself into the bargain, I dare say; but I fancy he reserves a special line of detestation for his own relatives. Ah, you are smiling," he broke off, with the short laugh that sounded so good and frank. "You are wondering what this has to do with my disliking you to send the handkerchief!"

Doris smiled again in assent.

"Well you see, I thought it might come into the marquis's possession, or that he'd hear of it through Lady Grace——"

She turned her eyes upon his, not curiously, but with graceful questioning.

"That's a lady—Lord Peyton's daughter—who is stopping there," he explained, "and they might ask questions and —and bother me about it!"

"Well?" she said, quietly.

He looked down half hesitatingly, then met her eyes, which seemed in their fixed regard to reach to his soul.

"Well—I've said that I'll tell you the whole truth, and I will; and the fact is I didn't want to be asked questions about the—the accident yesterday. I—yes, I'll speak out, though I should offend you—I wanted to keep it to myself!"

"To keep it to yourself?" she repeated.

A flush came to his tanned face, and his eyes were raised for a moment.

"Yes. When a man gets a good thing—Suppose—" he broke off—"a fellow found a big nugget, or a rare diamond, or anything of that sort, he would like to keep it to himself, you know!"

She smiled again.

"Do you want me to take that as a compliment?" she said. "Am I the big nugget, the rare diamond which you discovered?"

He flushed more deeply, and looked at her pleadingly.

"I'm such an idiot that I can't express myself," he said, apologetically. "I meant that the whole thing, your—your kindness and goodness to me was so precious that I didn't want a lot of people talking about it. I wanted to keep it to myself as something especially belonging to me, something too precious to discuss with others. I'm afraid I can't make you understand."

"You do yourself an injustice," she said. "You express yourself very well!"

"Now, you are laughing at me," he said.

"As you would laugh at me, Lord Neville, if I believed what you said!" she retorted, not sharply, but with a sweet gravity that was indescribable.

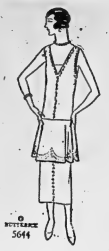
FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



The new circular movement is sometimes felt at the hem, sometimes just below the new close-fitting hipline in smart French frocks.

Just before the war Poiret had a great success with what was known as the minaret peplum. Practically the same line, now called the Persian tunic, is seen in many of the latest French frocks It is one of the new circular movements and many women consider it even easier to wear than the circular skirt as it retains the narrow line at the hem. It is very becoming especially if your figure is rather full in back for it hides the curve. Frocks of this type are made in satin crepe, satin, crepe de Chine or Georgette with a satin slip in the same color or in flesh pink.

Mammoth Set Used For Screen Scenes

"The Fighting Blade" is Massive Picture; Barthelmess Stars

The biggest set ever used in a motion picture filmed in the East was employed for the banquet hall scene in John S. Robertson's production, "The Fighting Blade," a First National picture in which Richard Barthelmess is being starred at Griffin's Theatre.

The entire studio at Fort Lee was employed for this set several stages having been thrown into one for the purpose. It is a replica of the Great Hall at Staversham Castle which was located near Oxford, England, which castle was destroyed during the conflict between Cromwell's Roundheads and the Cavaliers who supported Charles I. The destruction of the castle is shown in the climax of "The Fighting Blade," for the picture is based on the most thrilling episodes of that dramatic conflict.

An idea of the size of this setting may be gleaned from the fact that more than five hundred extras sat at the tables for the banquet in honor of Staversham's betrothal to Thomsine. A feat in photography was registered in showing the ceiling of this mammoth hall throughout the scene. This interior was planned by Everett Shinn, a celebrated artist and technical director, after a sojourn of many weeks in England, where he personally visited many castles and studied the archives relating to architecture of many of the historic piles no longer extant. The banquet hall scene is the most glamorous in the ambitious production. Also the one of greatest dramatic tensity, for events of previous reels build up to a powerful climax, and it is in the midst of the banquet that the climax bursts. When it is remembered that there are over five hundred people to be brought into immediate concern in this climax, one might imagine the magnitude of the production. It is, beyond a doubt, the most important as well as the most massive picture in which Richard Barthelmess has, to date, been starred.

Becomes a Beast Through Liquor

"The Waif Man" is Interesting Story of Belle Now

Portraying a wealthy young Londoner, scion of a noble family and gentleman extraordinary, who becomes a beast under the influence of liquor, John Gilbert has an unusual role in his latest William Fox release, "The Wolf Man," which comes to the Belle Theatre tonight for three days.

The picture carries its action from the most exclusive club in London to the timber country in northern Quebec. Alma Frances and Norma Shearer have the principal feminine roles, and each of them is given an opportunity for excellent dramatic work.

Edmund Mortimer directed the production from the story by Frederick and Fanny Hatton. An excellent cast has been assembled to produce a realistic picture.

Gas on Stomach Won't Let You Sleep

Gas pressing on heart and other organs sometimes causes a restless, nervous feeling and prevents sleep. Adlerika helps any case of gas on the stomach, unless due to deep-seated causes. The QUICK action will surprise you. Because Adlerika is such an excellent intestinal evacuant it is wonderful for constipation—it often works in one hour and never gripes. J. S. McKeown, Druggist.

PEOPLE OF MONS SEND GREETINGS

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—"The administration of the city and the population of Mons send cordial greetings to the Canadian Army."

These were the words of a message received by the Chief of Staff of the headquarters of the Department of National Defence.

The message was signed by M. Jean Lescarts, Bourgomestre of Mons.

The following reply has been despatched from headquarters:

"On behalf of the soldiers of Canada I thank the administration of the city and the population of Mons for their kindly greetings on the occasion of the sixth anniversary of the Armistice. All ranks are pleased to recall their happy associatio nwith the citizens of Mons.

"Chief of Staff."

PAINS IN LEFT SIDE AND BACK

Other Troubles Women Often Have Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lachine, Quebec.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my left side and back, and with weakness and other troubles women so often have. I was this way about six months. I saw the Vegetable Compound advertised in the 'Montreal Standard' and I have taken four bottles of it. I was a very sick woman and I feel so much better I would not be without it. I also use Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I recommend the medicines to my friends and I am willing for you to use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. M. W. ROSE, 580 Notre Dame Street, Lachine, Quebec.

Doctor Said an Operation

Provost, Alberta.—"Perhaps you will remember sending me one of your books a year ago. I was in a bad condition and would suffer awful pains at times and could not do anything. The doctor said I could not have children unless I went under an operation. I read testimonials of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the papers and a friend recommended me to take it. After taking three bottles I became much better and now have a bonny baby girl four months old. I do my housework and help a little with the chores. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and am willing for you to use this testimonial letter."—Mrs. A. A. ADAMS, Box 54, Provost, Alberta. C

Montreal, Nov. 13—On October 20 an expensive electrical clock disappeared from one of the class-rooms of the Dufferin School, St. Urbain street. A few days later detectives traced it to a second-hand store on Craig street west, where it had been sold for 25 cents. The second-hand dealer, David Frank, of 90 Craig street west, agreed to sell it back to the Protestant School Board for 25 cents, after he had identified Donald McCartney, no address, as the man who offered the clock for sale.

If Your Sink Breaks Out Use Sulphur

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

Red Peppers End Agony Of Rheumatism

Red Pepper Rub takes the "ouch" from sore, stiff, aching joints. It cannot hurt you, and it certainly stops that old rheumatism torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers. Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any good druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

Queer Justice Is Served To Actor

Billy Moran Jailed Three Weeks For Breach Act

WAS ORDERED OUT

But Attorney-General's Orders Were Obeyed but a Moment

Toronto, Nov. 12.—The type of justice which hangs a man and tries him afterwards is not foreign to the administration of law and order on Manitoulin Island, if the experience of a Toronto music hall artist, is to be taken as a criterion.

"Billy" Moran, a well-known local entertainer, took a small concert party up into that district during the summer months. Their programme which comprised singing, dancing and general vaudeville turns, was put on at several places on the island, including Gore Bay, Providence Bay, Little Current, and Kagawong.

Sent to Jail

While at Little Current, Provincial Constable Shields served Moran with a summons charging him with a breach of the Travelling Shows Act, in that he had no provincial license. Moran, who was unable to get a lawyer to defend himself before Magistrate Major, contended that a provincial license was not necessary under the act, for his vaudeville company, and that the act applied only to circuses, carnivals, and such exhibitions of that kind. The plea had no effect on magistrate, however, or evidently on the prosecuting attorney, for Moran was sentenced to a fine of $200 with the alternative of two months in jail, which, Moran alleges, was changed to three months while he lay in jail.

Ordered Released

After being confined for three weeks Moran managed to smuggle a telegram out Attorney-General Nickle and almost immediately an order came from Deputy Attorney-General Bayly for the remission of the fine and the release of Moran.

But Moran did not get out of jail. He was re-arrested without being allowed to leave his cell, charged with an offence under the War Tax Amusement Act in that he did not collect war tax at his entertainments.

"If I had done what they charged me with doing I would have been liable to arrest," says Moran, "as the collection of the war tax is the duty of the house manager."

Moran remained in jail for three more days till the arrival of Inspector Nevin, of the War Tax Office from Toronto, and as soon as he arrived Moran was once more freed from custody without the case having gone to trial.

Was Refused Fiat

As a result of these actions on the part of the Manitoulin authorities Moran says that his concert party was broken up and engagements that had been made were broken. He asked the Attorney-General for a fiat to permit him to sue the Magistrate, but this has been refused on the ground the "the King could do no wrong." Moran says that the magistrate is a cripple from parlysis and has to be wheeled about in a chair.

The net result of the undeserving prosecution is that Moran's profitable tour was suddenly cut short, his company which he intended to tour with all season was broken up, he spent $100 on lawyers' fees, and he spent 21 days in jail, and for all of this he is unable to get any compensation.

Repairing Roadways

Workmen are engaged with provincial highway machinery in repair of roadways through Deseronto which were damaged by the heavy trucks in continuous transit over them while the highway was closed for construction purposes. The repairs mean a decided improvement to Deseronto's roadways.

Dry Raid at Bay

Kingston, Nov. 13.—Federal officers who conducted a raid at Alexandria Bay on Saturday afternoon seized a trunk load of liquor and ten gallons of alcohol at the place in "The Alley" conducted by Mrs. Myrtle Handley, known as the old Union Hotel. At a boathouse said to be owned by a man named LeFevra they obtained two bags of beer and at the Rathskellar a quantity of liquor was seized. The raid upon the Handley house was the fourth by the officers and each time liquor has been seized.

Still a Mystery

The question as to how Howard Bender, whose body was discovered at Parham on Saturday afternoon near the farm of Mr. S. Good after the skull had been brought to light by a collie dog some days previously, met his death still remains a mystery.

Ice at Fraserville

Fraserville, Nov. 13.—The U. F. O. shipped two cars of stock from Fraserville, one load consisting of 93 hogs, the other a mixed load of cattle, calves and lambs, to the United Farmers' Co-operative Company, Union Stock Yards, Toronto.

The farmers around this vicinity have almost finished ploughing, owing to the favorable weather, although the land has become very hard due to the lack of rain.

There have been many hard frosts in this vicinity of late, the ice remaining on the ponds during the whole day.

Tweed Accidents

Tweed, Nov. 13.—While drawing ties from the C. P. R. station Mr. W. Bradley was seriously injured by a fall from the top of the load, hitting his head on a rail, several of the rails falling on him.

Mr. G. Thompson, employee of the Steel Trough Machine Co'y, was accidentally struck on the head with a baseball bat, while the men were playing ball at noon. He was unconscious for several hours.

To Enforce Law

Newcastle, Nov. 13.—William Milligan and James Turngate, of Newtonville appeared before Magistrate Campbell in Newcastle. Both men were charged under the Provincial Highways Act for allowing their cattle to trepass on the provincial highway. Both men pleaded guilty and Magistrate Campbell imposed a fine of $4 and $6 costs on Milligan and $5 and $6 costs on Turngate.

The Department of Provincial Highways have sent out instructions throughout the country to enforce law against cattle trespassing on the road, as they are causing much damage to motorists. The authorities will see that this law is strictly enforced.

Poultry Show

Large crowds of people attended the opening day of the fall show of the Kingston Poultry Association in the poultry building at the Fair Grounds, and much interest in the many fine birds was shown. The show is continuing tonight and tomorrow, and it is expected that many more people will be in attendance.

With over 300 birds, including many pigeons, on display, the show promises to be one of the most successful ever held, and Mr. H. Welsh, the superintendent, has displayed that he knows poultry, and knows how to handle the exhibition.

Sentenced 10 Years

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 13—At a session of the police court Harry Checkley was sentenced to a term of five years in Portsmouth Penitentiary for robbing the residence of Lady Hughes last September. Russell Teevin, an accomplice was sentenced to a year in Ontario reformatory and Joseph Campbell was given suspended sentence for one year on condition that he will take a college course. William Checkley, father of Harry Checkley, pleaded not guilty and was elected to be tried at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

Indians Plow

Roseneath, Nov. 13—The Indians of the Alderville Reserve held their 2nd annual ploughing match on the farm of Mr. Norman Marsden, under the supervision of Mr. R. H. Abraham, Agricultural Representative of the Indian Department also Vice-President of the Ontario Ploughman's Association.

Mr. A. E. Wilson of Perrytown, director of the Ontario Ploughman's Association acted as judge in a very fair and instructive manner, pointing out the deficiencies and giving advice to the contestants when necessary.

Horse Kicks Boy

Lindsay, Nov. 23—The twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent O'Connell, Downeyville, is in the Ross Hospital suffering from a fractured skull as a result of being kicked by a horse at his home a few days ago.

The little lad was feeding the hens, when a horse came up and started to eat the grain.

The boy hit the animal with a pail when it turned and kicked him in the head.

The injured boy has been in an unconscious condition but the latest report from the hospital is to the effect that his condition shows improvement.

TRENTON PEOPLE TURNED OUT IN LARGE NUMBERS TO HEAR WEIGHTY PORTER ARGUMENTS

Conservative Candidate Shows Up Mayor Fraser's Mis-statement

FACTORY HARMED

By Dangerous King Policy Of Free Trade in Canada

The monster meeting held in E. Guss Porter's committee rooms at Trenton last night in his interest proved another triumph for the Liberal-Conservative candidate, and indicated the strong support which he always has and will again receive from the good people of Trenton.

Mr. Porter's committee rooms at Trenton are in a large vacated store, and seat more people than most halls. The place was crowded to the doors, standing room was at such a premium that the street door was open and the crowd stood in the door way to hear the excellent addresses given by Brigadier General Ross, M.P. for Kingston, Mr. Hugh Stewart, K.C.M.P. for Brockville Leeds of Brockville and Mr. Porter. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. of Trenton officiated as chairman in his usual cheery manner.

It was an unanimous meeting, there not being one dissenting voice. Occasionally a rotund old veteran in the audience would inspire General Ross by repeating "He can't get in." Of course referring to Hanna.

"We'll see to it that my friend will be correct on November 25th," warned the General.

"He can't get in. He is a green horn. Put the old head in again," insisted the old man.

It is rarely that the tariff issue is so clearly placed before an audience as it was last night by General Ross, who attacked the Liberal administration for their low tariff policies which is drawing Canada and Ontario especially nearer destruction than she ever was before. In a clean cut manner he distinguished the policies of the Conservative party from the Liberal party, pointing out many specific cases where the King administration had failed to keep promises, increased expenditure instead of economizing, spent money lavishly and uselessly just to keep Liberal candidates in doubtful constituencies. He proved conclusively that the Liberal policies on the tariff was playing Canada into the hands of the United States, that our timber and pulp business was going entirely to the States.

Criticizing their work in the Civil Service readjustment and their organization of the Militia Department, showing ruthless and unnecessary spending of money in private government work, the speaker urged the electors to make sure that not only on the 25th but at the next general election, they turned the Liberal Government out.

Held Election Back

He charged King with holding the West Hastings bye-election back (another violation of a promise) so that he could throw every effort to win other by-elections for the moral effect might affect on this riding.

Mr. H. Stewart talked from the standpoint of two issues in the election the record of the King Government and the real issue the Murdock charges.

Mr. Porter explained the Murdock charges in his excellent speech, and gave Mayor Fraser the Liberal Mayor of Trenton the "dressing" which he has long asked for. He pointed out what he had done for Trenton, Belleville and every town and village in the riding in answer to the Liberals' cheap argument "that Porter has done nothing."

Conservatives Come Back

Explaining that the Conservative party had passed through the dark days and that the country, like England ,was rapidly returning to the two party system, as Ontario recently indicated, General Ross showed the difference between the Liberal party, which makes and then breaks election promises, while Conservatives ask for votes on a standard platform which always has been followed out to the letter.

Tariff is a certain set of regulations by which trade is controlled between all countries and revenue from tariff provides for the expense of administration. The development of natural resources, foundation of factories, creation of employment, the bringing of capital to Canada and providing protection to capital, was the Conservative platform. The Conservatives still stand there and appeal again on this very important question.

The Liberals and Progressives were the only people now free trade advocates with no restriction to trade with any country.

They think this will develop the country, the speaker said. Britain in 1860 adopted free trade so she could manufacture goods cheaper than any other country in the world. When Napoleonic wars shut off European supplies from the United States, the U.S.A. started their campaign to develop manufacturies. They taxed or laid restriction on goods coming into the country until the Civil war. After the Civil war with stagnant factories and debt, they inaugurated greater protection which has steadily made them the richest country in the world and which is yet the basis of their life. Canada, a new country, is ripe for competition with the U.S.A., but King's lower tariff policy allows their manufactured goods to come freely into our country while our factories are closing down.

Trenton Affected

This condition struck Trenton singularly as his reduced tariff on woollen goods has closed factory after factory in Canada and has made operation very difficult for the Combing Mills at Trenton. Last year 32 woollen mills closed in Canada. Only thirteen per cent of 13,000,000 pounds of wool produced here annually was used in Canada. The remainder went to U.S.A. and other countries for manufacture into cloth, though by reason of the severe climate here, the wool of Canadian sheep is the world's best. Trade market has been knocked from under the Trenton Combing Mills' feet just when its officers have spent capital and are ready to go strong.

Furthermore free trade encouraged cheap labor, England supplying an example, as well as the Southern States, where cheap colored labor had replaced the days of slavery.

The Conservative policy was to bring capital to Canada, manufacture our own products from our own vast natural resources, raise up factories and protect our own people.

No country in the world, outside of Great Britain ever made a success of Free Trade, explained General Ross, "And she is at a point now where she must protect herself."

Under protection, a diversification of work and factories was provided.

On his trip to the coast last summer, General Ross saw the folly of low tariff, where the wonderfully fine timber of Vancouver Island was carried on American boats to American mills, where Americans sawed it up. There was no protection there. Similarly the pulp business of Canada was going to the U.S.A. daily. Under the nose of the King commission appointed to investigate the pulp trade, the Americans constructed a $5,000,000 pulp mill on an island which they thought near the American side of Lake Erie. So Canadian pulp continued to leave Canada and go to U.S.A. Similarly the exclusive resources of Canada such as asbestos, mica, felspar and nickel was leaving the country for manufacture elsewhere.

Broke a Promise

Before the last general election, it was pointed out that Liberals had promised that nothing would be done to injure factories. They elected several of their candidates on that platform, who were today just as helpless as Charles Hanna would be if he were elected on that plea.

In General Ross's opinion, with Fielding's loss went the freedom of Ontario, for subsequently the western Progressives took hold of King and turned him around to suit their purposes of the east shouldering the west

Showing how King's promise of economy had been broken, the speaker proved that he had not reduced administration affairs, had not improved Civil Service and General Ross told how King had increased the salary of the Auditor General from $6,000 to $15,000 annually where work was to cut off the heads of $900 clerks. The Pension Section, Imperial, formed was described as an expensive joke. Clerks were cut off the staff of the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment but where forty millions were paid out by 62 clerks in pensions formerly, the newly formed King organization paid out seven million with 122 clerks on the job.

Pensions were cut $60,000 but the salary of the Pension Board was raised $13,000. Not one step was taken against the alleged combines, but a $3,000,000 hotel was purchased in Paris a $3,000,000 club in London, Eng. $600,000 was voted for an unnecessary tower erection to finish off the House of Commons and $50,000 was voted to change a remarkably good lighting system there.

A $30,000 breakwater was erected at Belle River whose record as a port is that for every 441 boats which enter Windsor none enter Belle River. This elected a Liberal there, as a $100,000 grain elevator erected at Prince Rupert elected one there, though the wonderful dock and warehuse there has never been used and Prince Rupert is like a deserted village.

Great Work

Federal Minister of Agriculture Motherwell did one great thing. He produced a balanced ration for the hen (applause) and with King produced the greatest emigration from Canada to U.S.A. that the world ever knew. Each year more that 100,000 of the myoung Canucks who fought Canadians went to that country, many Canada's battles in France and returned to their native country where they are unable to make a living under King's free trade policies.

"If the figures on emigration ever decrease, it will be because there are no Canadians left," smiled the speaker amid applause.

A $7,000,000 bridge promised in Montreal helped greatly in winning the bye-election by a reduction of 3,000 votes however, and the Rimouski bye-election went Liberal but with a 3,000 vote reduction from former majorities. Though King made the candidate in Yale, B.C., a Cabinet Minister and brought on the Provincial bye-election at the same time. Both Liberal candidates were defeated.

That Mr. Porter was a shining light at Ottawa, and W. H. Ireland a hale fellow well met, and Murdock a living example of a shameful display made by a Cabinet minister were reminiscences of the General.

Renounced Themselves

Mr. Stewart was pleased to announce that the most scathing criticism levelled at the King government was by the Liberals themselves, such men as Raymond and Gouin denouncing the policy of the government in the House. There has been no investigation of alleged squandering and mismanagement under Meighen's regime, though he had piloted Canada through the greatest period of expenditure in the history of the country due to the war.

If Hanna were unable to make a speech Mr. Stewart said he would be useless in the House. He could not take anybody in the house to speak for him. Mr. Porter could make an unusually fine address, and after him making the Murdock charges was congratulated by Liberals for his fair and excellent presentation of the case.

That the Liberal government was steadily losing prestige and support power throughout Canada session after session, was shown when Fielding and Gouin quit the party on critical votes. They had not reduced taxation, the sales tax has gone up and up, higher than it was under the Conservative regime, and nuisance taxes like the stamp on cheques and receipts had become tiresome. Tariff had been cut down and industries ruined.

Summing up the Murdock charges, Mr. Stewart pointed out that Murdock had used information which he secured as a Minister of the Crown, to his own personal advantage, an act entirely not in accordance with British Parliamentary law. On August 14th, 1923, three Home bank directors went down to Ottawa, knowing the bank was in a weak condition. It was stated that they arrived at 10 p.m., but they aroused King from bed to see what they could do at that late hour for the bank. On the 15th there was a Cabinet meeting and Murdock was there. The meeting concluded at 12.40 o'clock and Murdock hurried to the home bank branch, refused a marked cheque, withdrew his $4050, walked past the Royal bank to his stenographer, whom he instructed to go back to the Royal bank and place the money in the bank in her name.

"Public men must be clean and honourable with a reputation above suspicion", warned Mr. Stewart.

THOUSANDS GO TO FUNERAL OF NOTED GUNMEN

Ceremony Surpassed That of Yesterday With 1,000 Autos

IT MARKS NEW ERA

Chicago Mayor Out to Collect All Firearms In City

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Thousands of persons filed past the ornate flower bedecked silver and bronze casket of Dion Obanion all night and this morning in final tribute to the florist, gunman, rum runner and hi-jacker, slain Monday morning in his flower shop by three gunmen who called him from his task of trimming flower stems.

His funeral to-day was looked forward to as the greatest in Chicago's history, even surpassing that yesterday of Michael Merlo, friend of Obanion and leader of Unione Siciliana when one thousand automobiles, 25 of them carrying only flowers, formed a cortege from St. Clement's Church, where ten thousand persons had gathered for the last rites.

Obanion's funeral to-day was without the blessing of the Church, although burial in consecrated ground was permitted. Itt brought a new era in Chicago's civic affairs as well as marking the passing of 32-year-old gang leader, termed by Morgan Collins, chief of police, as Chicago's arch criminal and responsible for at least twenty-five murders.

Incensed by the great amount of publicity and open threats of Obanion followers to "shoot it out" with adherents of other groups of gunmen, Mayor Dover has directed that every known pistol toter be searched on suspicion as frequently as encountered. He planned a conference today with Chief Collins to decide on measures for eliminating pistol carrying or forcing gunmen to leave Chicago.

Canadian Has Started His Trip In Canoe Across Choppy Waves Of English Channel

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 14.—P. C. Smythe, Toronto man, who is attempting to win a bet that he could paddle alone in a canoe from Sydney, N.S. to New York and from London to Rome and cover the entire distance in two months, left Dover this morning on his perilous trip across the English Channel to Calais, France. The Channel was somewhat choppy and the atmosphere hazy, but Smythe made excellent progress. He headed westward from Dover on the ebb of the tide. Smythe proposes keeping to the coast after crossing the English Channel, then to go round the Bay of Biscay and proceed along the Mediterranean to Rome.

EMMA GOLDMAN, who was expell much of a communist, who now, following a period of exile in soviet Russia, in a speech bitterly excoriated the bolshevik regime as czarist, oppressive, counter-revolutionary and degrading.

RATEPAYERS VOTE DAYLIGHT SAVING

If Recommendation of Committee Goes Through at Council Meeting

At a regular fortnightly meeting of the various civic committees held last evening many accounts were passed and four recommendations were endorsed and sent on to the Council meeting on Monday evening next. One recommendation is that the question of daylight saving during the summer months next year be submitted to the electors for their approval or rejection. The recommendations were as follows:

That the salary of the manager of the Water Works Department be $150 per month starting December 1st, 1924.

That the claim of J. A. Sanford against the city be settled for $15 and the treasurer be instructed to pay this amount to Mr. Sanford in addition to the $5 tax to be refunded.

That the city solicitor be instructed to prepare the necessary bylaw to introduce daylight saving in the City of Belleville during the summer of 1925.

That the Alemite Product Co. of Canada Limited, be granted the use of the Council Chamber, free of charge for the holding of their annual convention from November 15th to the 19th inclusive.

Freight Trains Hit Near Campbellford

Caboose Knocked off track; Box Car Telescoped Last Night

(Special to the Intelligencer)

Campbellford, Nov. 14.—Shortly after six o'clock last night an east-bound C. N. R. freight train, heavily-loaded with grain, crashed into a lighter freight going in the same direction, one-half mile west of Hoard's Station, knocking the caboose off the track and telescoping a box car loaded with flour.

The wrecking crew made a quick run from Belleville and had the track cleared in less than four hours. The passenger train due in Campbellford at 6.58 did not arrive until 10.25. Fortunately no lives were lost, the train hands escaping with a severe shaking up. A tired and weary looking lot of people got off at Campbellford. The Peterboro train did not arrive until nearly midnight.

Unusual Array Of Speakers Here

To-night's Meeting for Mr. Porter One of Campaign's Best

One of the most important meetings organized in support of Mr. E. Guss Porter is that being held at the City Hall this evening.

In addition to the address to be given by Mr. Porter, the Conservative candidate, Messrs. E. B. Ryckman M.P. for E. Toronto, W. A. Boys, M.P. for S. Simcoe, and H. C. Hocken M.P. for W. Toronto will speak. This is an array of speakers that is seldom heard at one meeting. There is no doubt the city hall will be taxed to accommodate all who desire to attend.

The ladies are especially invited to be present and hear the issues discussed by those able to do so.

OLD LOYALIST SPIRIT NEEDED IN THESE DAYS

Minister of Mines Delivers Urgent Plea For Mineral Development

AT CHEESE BANQUET

Best We Have Had Yet Says Genial Host Elliott

"The best we ever had".

This was the remark made by John Elliott, manager of the Belleville Branch of the Standard Bank, at the conclusion of his banquet to the Belleville Cheese Board yesterday afternoon when he responded to an enthusiastic vote of thanks moved by Mayor Fred Newman of Picton, seconded by C. M. Reid and applauded lustily by several hundred guests at the Hotel Quinte.

From start to finish it was a splendid affair, a family affair, and congratulations poured down on Mr. Elliott today.

The main speaker of the day, the Hon. C. E. McRae gave a splendid account of Northern Ontario and its possibilities and made a strong plea for the same spirit in the development of that Country as there had been by United Empire Loyalists in this section of Ontario in the days gone by.

Take 1 follows.

Heard of It Before

It was kind of John Elliott to invite him to be present, Hon. Charles E. McCrae declared in opening his address. He had heard good advance reports of this annual event.

There was so much Ontario people had in common, he said. Everybody was in the same boat called "Canada."

In this part of Ontario, you have earned a fine reputation for the production of cheese, he said. Ontario produced 68 per cent of the cheese of Canada and Eastern Ontario's share of this per centage was a tribute to the farming community of the district and to provincial backers of the farmers.

When one looked at the deflation of the last few years, it made one see the seriousness of the period just passed through. This year, however, there should be twenty to thirty millions of an increase in the value of field crops in Ontario. Indications pointed to a turn for better times. With greater receipts, there would be a larger expenditure and the increased purchasing power of the farmer would be a great stimulus to trade in the country.

Three Factors

There were three factors which played an important part in Canada's progress, he said, and the farmer's prosperity was one of them.

Canada had been waiting a long time for prosperity, Mr. McRae thought, but said it seemed to be here at last, due largely to the economic world demand for Canada's produce. Another factor was the economic policy of the Dominion of Canada. But he said he wouldn't talk politics at John Elliott's banquet.

Every country in the world was setting its house in order and with the general advance it behooved everybody in this country to watch his own shop.

The other factor was the loyal government factor and its relation to the people of the Province.

This province was one of the greatest provinces in the Dominion of Canada. It was still the banner province in Canada to-day.

A Rich Heritage

One of the richest heritages owned by any country in the world, said Mr. McCrae in starting in to tell about Northern Ontario. There were 3,000 miles of steam railway in that district, he said. It was the greatest known mineral section in the world. It held pre-Cambrian formation, the oldest rock formation known. All the great mines of the world were found in this sort of formation. No man could tell what would be unearthed there in the future.

Down in this section of the country, men were interested in taking profits from the top six inches of soil. Up north it was a question of getting down thousands of feet.

Railways and highways had played an important part in uncovering the mineral deposits of Northern Ontario. One railway had cut through one of the greatest nickel deposits on earth. Another railway line had given cause to the discovery of silver at Cobalt.

Men of the north, who now own and control the Hollinger Gold Mines were discouraged at first in their attempts to produce gold successfully.

Their faith in the product of the country had been justified, however. This year there would be $25,000,000 of gold produced.

Rapid Growth

Showing the development of the north, Mr. McCrae said that Timmins had grown to a population of 13,000 where but little over a decade ago there was but a handful of people.

There was still a call to the youth of Ontario to take a hand in the development of that wonderful section of country as there was a call to United Empire Loyalists years ago.

Capital was needed also and a steady policy to protect that capital was necessary. When the speaker had visited London this year to interest Capital he had stressed the fact that the Government of Ontario was friendly to capital, going into the north country and would tax it fairly. This information was received with deep interest and he hoped for much success attending that visit.

Mr. McCrae said that of seventy to eighty millions obtained in Northern Ontario this year, fifty-five to sixty millions went out for wages and for the purchasing of equipment and supplies. The industry was one of the most important in the country.

Fair Taxation

The speaker said that every opportunity was afforded a man to stake a claim and that no tax on profits was levied until a man had made ten thousand dollars. The tax was graded from that point up.

"The fairest mining tax in the world he declared. Capital was a shy bird and wanted the assurance that it would be treated fairly after it had been tied up.

After all, if men like John Elliott could draw such a tribute as the banquet was, for fundamental well doing, he deserved all the tribute the people pay him., Mr. McCrao concluded.

An Enthusiast

Norman C. Stephens, assistant general manager of the Standard Bank of Canada, introduced expressed his appreciation to Mr. Elliott for the privilege to be present. Mr. Elliott thought cheese, talked cheese, discussed cheese and even ate cheese in the old country to create a market for Canadian cheese, he said jovially.

It was the man that counted in the banking business, he said, not so much machinery, paying final tribute to the Belleville manager.

Warden Rollins

Warden Charles Rollins felt that Mr. McRae's remarks would apply very well to Hastings. He could say something about the undeveloped possibilities of North Hastings. Up there, when lumber prices were very low, a number of mixed farmers started to build up cheese factories and they had done much to develop the north of Hastings.

With his experience of 30 years in that country, he knew it was a great mistake that those factories closed down, and he hoped that the Belleville Cheese Board would do something to get those factories going again.

S. ALEC GORDON WINS ONE SCHOLARSHIP

The Minister of Education has announced the eleventh award of the scholarships provided for by the will of the late J. I. Carter of Sarnia. These scholarships are awarded to the three candidates who obtained the highest marks on not more than ten papers of the 1924 annual upper school examinations in the City of Toronto and in twenty-four counties or groups of counties. The values of the scholarships are as follows:

1. To the competitor who obtained the highest aggregate, $100.
2. To the one who ranked second on the aggregate, $60.
3. To the one who ranked third on the aggregate, $40.

Cheques for the amounts awarded will be issued by the Provincial Treasurer in due course to those who were successful. The three awards in Hastings County are as follows:

Hastings—1, Irene G. Boes, Trenton, 2, S. Alec. Gordon, Belleville; 3, J. Herbert Caskey, Madoc.

CRIPPLED BARBER ENDS FIVE LIVES

Quarrelled With His Wife Last Sunday; Returns With Gun

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 14.—Four persons were shot and killed here last night by Henry Weber, a crippled barber who then killed himself. The victims were his wife, Bessie, Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Shader and Mrs. Thomas Alexander. Weber and his eighteen year old wife, whom he married three years ago, quarrelled on Sunday and he had not been home since, according to neighbors.

Last night he purchased a new rifle and went home carrying the weapon. Shader was the first person he met and he was shot through the head as were the others, all dying within a few minutes according to police. Mrs. Alexander was visiting Mrs. Weber, having been married only a few months ago Mr. and Mrs. Shader are survived by two small children. In two notes left, Weber indicated that he planned to kill himself and his wife, but no mention was made of others.

Veteran Labor Leader, Samuel Gompers, Declares United States Workers in Luck

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Elpaso, Texas, Nov. 14.—Labor fared almost "phenomenally well" in the general election in the United States, Samuel Gompers, president of American Federation of Labor said to-day in a statement, commenting on the results of November 4th balloting.

"In face of a tremendous Coolidge land silde there were elected to the new house of representatives more members having Labor's endorsement than are to be found in present house." Mr. Gompers asserted. "The new congress is not likely to pass any measure greatly detrimental to the interest of workers and the people generally".

Fumes and Flying Splints Injure Many—School Children Terrorized

Damage Reaches Millions of Dollars—900 Families Homeless

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Jersey City, Nov. 14.—This afternoon, fire in the rear of The American Sugar Refinery, broke beyond control and forced fire fighters to retreat. Walls are caving in and releasing flames which may carry across to warehouses full of inflammable substances. Large plants of The Vulcan Iron Works, Manhattan Electric, and Main Warehouses of Colgates, are in the path of fresh flames. The conflagration which started in a saltpetre plant of The Richardson Chemical Company, leaped beyond control of the fire forces of two cities to the plant of The American Sugar Refinery Company, and then encompassed and destroyed several smaller factories and two rows of tenement houses which included most of the buildings in the entire block. It raged for four hours before the firemen declared it under control at one o'clock this afternoon. Losses run into millions of dollars but can not be closely estimated. 15 persons being seriously injured or burned, scores of others cut by glass blown out of windows over a half mile radius by a series of explosions and nine hundred families made homeless was the total.

Factories Destroyed

The entire city block, bounded by Essex, Morris, Warren and Washington streets, occupied by two factories and two rows of tenement homes was a roaring furnace at 11 a.m. today in fire which, starting in The Richardson Chemical Company salt petre plant, leaped through dozens of streams of water and beyond human control while explosions blew out the walls and roof of the plant, broke windows in a half mile area, spread terror among residents and gored into a huge American Sugar Refinery plant. Over a dozen firemen were overcome by fumes and scores of people were treated for cuts and from flying glass, effects of fumes which rolled across the city and the Hudson River. At 11.20 o'clock saltpetre plant had been destroyed and flames had spread to a block of three storey frame dwelling house close by, and to one building of The Colgate Soap Factory. The front wall of the Sugar Company's building crashed. Two thousand children from a school near by had been rushed out of school during the morning to safety, when the terrific explosion in the saltpetre plant scattered splints in all directions. Children, terrorized, fled through streets, finally being herded out of the danger zone.

Police Protect District

By hundreds of policemen, parents and children in tenements near by were taken from the district in taxi cabs. Fire boats from New York City and Fire Departments from Hoboken and other places were soon in desperate fight while hundreds of volunteer firemen were engaged in extinguishing blazes in near by houses caused from sparks. At noon Fire Chief Boyle called for tons of dinamite in order to blow up buildings in hope of checking conflagration. City Commissioner Egan closed on city reservoir, directing all its supply to fire nozzles which increased water pressure from 32 to 95 pounds. Stores of sulphuric acid began exploding after noon and threw blazing debris into groups of firemen. Hundreds of families with household goods about them moved to safer section. Police lines had been stretched about the burned area at a distance of six blocks from the fire. At 12.20 when fire had wiped out two or more factories and scores of tenement houses, firemen expressed belief that fire was under control.

THE ANSWER

The Conservatives at Trenton are distributing the following information in pamphlet form:

"The Grits say: 'Porter has done nothing for Trenton.'

"The answer:

"A mineral survey of North Hastings to stimulate mining.

"Supported Trenton against Port Hope for terminal of Trent Valley Canal.

"Supported terminal of C.N.R. at Trenton.

"Obtained grant to Bridge of $87,500.

"Dredging Channel, $26,500; Dredging and Blasting Harbor; Government Harbor instead of Municipal; supporting taking over of Town Dock, but the Meighen Government was not returned.

"Postal Collection Boxes in Trenton and Rural mail from Trenton to Sydney and Northumberland.

"This is a small fraction of his work in the whole riding. He pays taxes on $39,805 on property in his own name in Trenton, but the Grits say he has no interests here.

"During the war and since he has written thousands of letters for the relatives of soldiers, assisting the bereaved in every way possible and since the war closed has done all possible for returned men and those disabled, in adjusting pensions and helping them, and for all this has never charged one cent.

"His son and only child was killed in the war.

"How does Hanna's or King's record compare with this?

"We are asked to throw this tried and true friend overboard for what?

"The Grits cannot produce one sane argument why anyone should vote for Hanna."

FINDING A SCAPE GOAT

The Right Honorable W. L. MacKenzie King has found the questions asked by Westerners respecting his attitude on the Hudson Bay Railway so embarrassing that he has had to find a scape goat on which to put the blame for the failure of his government to implement its pledges on this subject. He told one western audience that while he believed in the project, still it would be useless to introduce a measure to complete it just now, for the Senate would throw it out.

The truth is that if the Government put in the Supply Bill an amount for the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway the Senate could not very well throw it out. So there is no use in the Prime Minister trying to throw upon the Upper Chamber the blame for the non-fulfilment of his own pledges. The Right Honorable Arthur Meighen hit the nail on the head when in Quebec City recently he pointed out that the Government's own following in the Upper House were opposed to the Hudson Bay Railway. The Prime Minister however, would lead the country to think that the only opposition encountered there came from the Conservatives.

The Prime Minister's western speeches also suggest that he is looking for an excuse that will let him out of a policy of further reductions in the tariff. He has been telling the westerners that they can't [illegible] to get certain things, if they [illegible] give him more Liberal support. It is not enough that the [illegible]sives have consistently supported him. He wants real Liberals, not camouflaged ones. The West knowing how it has been so long fooled by the Liberals with tariff promises has pretty well made up its mind not to trust its interests to Liberal members.

No wonder that Mackenzie King is finding trouble out West. Any political leader who has built up the false hopes he has would be sure to get into trouble. And the discerning westerners are on to this scape goat business. They know that while a scape goat may be pleasing to the Prime Minister, still it doesn't bring home the bacon, hence their annoyance. So far the Prime Minister's western tour has been a political failure.

Press Opinions

BATTERING AN OPEN DOOR

(Ottawa Journal)

Mr. Meighen in British Columbia the other day said something worth repeating:

"I resent strongly the attitude of a small section of the press and others that we must be continually battling with Downing Street to preserve our autonomy intact; that eternal vigilance is the price of our liberty. That is bursting through an open door, for the head of no British party—Liberal or Sonservative—wold withhold that liberty from us. The attitude of the British people is that the destiny of the Dominion is to be declared and directed by the Dominion people alone."

Mr. Meighen here expressed a truth familiar to every Canadian statesman for the last quarter of a centry. Every for the last quarter of a century. Every external relations is heralded as a victory over Downing Street. Yet it is precisely what Mr. Meighen says it is: a bursting through an open door. The statesmen of Britain, instead of opposing, welcome anadian development. And "Downing Street" is one of the hoariest bogeys in the nomenclature of politics.

GREAT LAKES WATER

(Buffalo Express)

Chicago steals 10,000 gallons of Great Lakes water per second. This lowers the levels of Great Lakes harbors below Sault Saint Marie at least six inches. Shipping interests alone are estimated to lose $30,000,000 a year. The flow of water over Niagara Falls is adversely affected.

Chicago takes this water on a temporary permit of the secretary of war for less than half that amount. Chicago's justification of the theft is that Chicago needs it for dilution of sewage. Actually it wants the water for development of hydro-electricity a few miles south of the Midwest metropolis.

The Great Lakes Harbor association is going to hold a "demonstration conference" in Cleveland. It is hoped by this means to bring home to the Great Lakes interests on both sides of the international boundary the seriousness of the situation resulting from Chicago's selfishness.

Great Lakes water belongs in the Great Lakes. Its only proper outlet is the St. Lawrence river.

IT PERPLEXES

(Montreal Gazette)

The British agricultural editor who had to pay 10 cents for an American apple at Halifax, with the famous Annapolis Valley only a few miles away, is not the first to be perplexed by the scarcity or dearness of home fruit in the Canadian market and the successful competition of foreign products, sometimes transported from points several thousand miles away.

NOT MUCH SUNSHINE

(Toronto Saturday Night)

The majority for the O.T.A. in the vote of 1919 was ten times what it was on October 23rd last. The majority for the O. T. A. in the vote of 1921 was four times what it was on October 23rd. If those who think that the Ontario Temperance Act is the last word in temperance legislation can get any sunshine out of that cucumber they are welcome to it.

Letters to Editor

ON IMMIGRATION

Editor, Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

Dear Sir:—Your last immigration statistics show that, from Continental Europe, of your five largest contributing nations, only one is Nordic. The others are Mediterranean or Alpine. From above five nations, non-Nordics apparently outnumber Nordics about 205 to 50.

Does such a proportion not stimulate earnest thought as to its effect upon the Canada of tomorrow? Does this not constitute the beginning of a displacement of your present splendid Nordic stock, overwhelmingly British-Nordic, because of low wage rates plus high birth rates?

By the United States' blundering, non-eugenic immigration policy we have accumulated some 20 million non-Nordics. These we cannot assimilate. The Commonwealth Club made a careful survey of the tragedy therein. It concluded, after scientific investigation, that each non-Nordic admitted meant the actual displacement of one Nordic. Had America, it finds, barred ALL immigration in 1800, we would have to-day our present population density. We would, however, be without our race-frictions. These retard our national efficiency. Canadians devoted to their country might find this report stimulating. Commonwealth Club (address San Francisco, California), would probably supply a copy to any Canadian anxious as to what living conditions his grandchildren will inherit.

The writer is the descendant of Yorkshire Nordics. He believes passionately that the greatest force for world peace is a clear grasp of this problem by the citizens of the units comprising the British Empire and the United States.

Very earnestly,
C. M. GOETHE.
[illegible] Immigration Study Commission of America.

THE PASSING OF MOLSONS

The absorption of Molsons Bank by the Bank of Montreal may be likened to the disbandment of a famous regiment after a great war. The closing of its career being the final ceremony ending a series of achievements in which the nation and all those associated with it may well take a great deal of pride.

To the historian and the lover of national landmarks, the disappearance of the Molson name from our banking world will be a distinct loss for, founded as the institution was over 70 years ago by the family whose name it bore, it continued to carry on the reputation, then established for half a century, of conservative business principles, high integrity, and patriotic record.

To the student of banking history in Canada, there could be only one institution for Molsons to amalgamate with, namely the Bank of Montreal, for the Molson family have been most closely indentified with both institutions. A glance at the present shareholders lists of the two banks reveals the heavy financial interests that the members of the family have in them.

The association of the Molson family with the Bank of Montreal began over a century ago when the Honourable John Molson, the founder of the Molson family in Canada, then a power in the industrial life of Montreal and a pioneer of steam navigation on the St. Lawrence, became interested in the founding of the then Montreal Bank. It is exactly one hundred years ago, 1824, since he was elected a director of that Bank and two years later, in 1826 he became its President, piloting it successfully through the two terrible years of depression following the financial panic in Great Britain of 1825, when so many financial institutions collapsed. His tenure of the Presidency of the institution lasted until 1834, three years before his death in 1837.

Molsons Bank was the gradual outgrowth of the requirements of the business interests of the family. In the early year of the last century, the family had of necessity to run a banking business at the brewery to meet the requirements of its employees and customers; at one time even issuing its own coinage or tokens.

In 1853, the banking business was turned into a separate concern and two years later obtained its charter.

F. W. Molson, the President of Molsons Bank, and his co-directors realized that, due to the tremendous taxation, federal, provincial and municipal, that the banks face as well as the difficulties of the past few years, it was in the interest of the shareholders as well as the depositors of the institution to amalgamate with another bank.

Colonel Herbert Molson, C. M. G., M.C., a business partner of F. W. Molson, has been a director of the Bank of Montreal for some years past; therefore it was only natural, in view of the association of interests and early connections, for the President of the Molsons Bank to make arrangements with the institution he did.

Whilst, therefore, the disappearance of such an historic and honourable an institution as the Molsons Bank may be looked on in one sense as a National loss, one cannot but be struck with the public spirited viewpoint of the Molson family in acquiescing to the elimination of this Monument to the activities of the family in the financial life of Montreal, when same was in the best interest of the large number of shareholders and clients of the institution.

The basis of the absorption which has been agreed upon is that the Molsons' shareholders will receive two shares of Bank of Montreal stock for three shares of the stock of their own institution plus a cash bonus of $10.00 for each Molsons Bank share. At present market values of Bank of Montreal shares, the Molsons' stockholders have made a good exchange. In making the comparison one should base same on the market value of Molsons this past year back; an average price would be about $150.00 per share.

3 shares therefore had an equity of $150.00.

2 shares of B. of M. are now selling at $500.00.

Cash Bonus of $30.00.

Increase in equity to Molson's shareholders for each 3 shares held is $80.00.

Whilst Molson shareholders will receive a reduced income from their holdings of bank shares under the arrangement, they will gain in that they will have a more marketable security and one that will bring a price nearer the intrinsic worth of the security than was recently the case with their former shares. The market price of Molsons shares has run much below their intrinsic worth this past year or so due to groundless fears brought on by the troubles that some of our banks have had to face.

The highest price at which Molsons shares have sold during the past twenty years was $230.00, whilst a low of $147.00 was touched this past summer.

PANSIES IN NOVEMBER

Miss H. Colden, Hillcrest Avenue brought a bouquet of pansies in perfect condition to the Intelligencer yesterday. They were picked from her own garden.

For a good march ask for Victor Record No. 19425 "Heroes All" at Gerhard Heintzman's.

FURNITURE SEIZED

Mr. B. Sopher, Front street merchant of Belleville was in court at Campbellford on a case concerning the purchasing of some furniture from a Campbellford dealer. It seems that after the sale had been made and the furniture was loaded on the truck, it was seize by the bailiff, and Mr. Sopher was not allowed to take it away. The judge reserved decision.

A Phonograph speaks for itself. Why not hear a Gerhard Heintzman?

CASE ENLARGED

That he neglected to provide medical attendance, provisions and fuel to a person for whom he was responsible was a charge preferred against Campbell Hudgins of Corbyville today. As the case was not ready to be proceeded with an enlargement for a week was granted.

Hear John McCormack sing "Thank God for a Garden" on the Victor Red Seal Record at Gerhard Heintzman's.

ANOTHER DRUNK FINED

On a charge of intoxication to which he pleaded guilty, a party from Point Anne was fined by Magistrate Masson $10 and $9.50 costs. The fine was paid. The Provincial police and License Inspector Naphin were the complainants in the case.

A most complete line of musical instruments at Gerhard Heintzman's, 245 Front St.

About twenty-five members of W. W. Club gathered at the home of Mr. W. Ashley to spend a social evening in honor of Mr. Ashley's Jr. birthday. Mr. W. Ashley, master of ceremonies looked after the welfare of the club. Mrs. N. A. Phililius, Mr. W. Ashley, Mr. J. Thrasher carried away the prizes of the evening, after which Mr. Thrasher favored with music. A dainty lunch was served at which Mr. Ashley Jr., blew out the most candles of the birthday cake. The members then dispersed in their usual manner.

The members of the W. W. Club gathered at the home of Mr. E. Fenn, 303 Foster avenue, and spent a social evening in the same manner in honor of Mr. Fenn's birthday.

WREATH APPRECIATED

A letter addressed to graduates of the University of Toronto residing in Belleville and the surrounding district has been received from Angus MacMurchy, K.C., expressing thanks for the floral wreath sent to be placed on the Memorial Tower on Armistice Day. He said it was one of the most beautiful of all the beautiful tributes sent from all parts of Canada.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

Workers for Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., received a pleasant surprise at the Committee rooms in the city last evening while they were busy looking after details of the campaign. David Spence, M.P., of Parkdale, Toronto, turned up and gave the men present an interesting talk on the need for good organization in order to win the fight.

Young Thief Is Given Two Years

Broke Into Belleville Store; Stole Bicycle and Clothes

Two years less one day in the Reformatory of Ontario and a further sentence of an indeterminate period not to exceed one year was meted out this morning by Magistrate Masson to Frank Stapley, a young man of this city. The accused pleaded guilty to three charges of breaking into business places, also two charges of theft, namely a bicycle and suit of clothes. Relatives of the young man were present in court and made a plea for leniency. Magistrate Masson considered it would be a wise move to send the accused to a place where he would learn a trade and also be away from temptation. Mr. B. C. Donnan, County Attorney was present in the interest of the Crown.

HERE'S AN OIL BURNER WE CAN GUARANTEE

Before we took on the Oil-O-Matic, we made sure that it was an oil burner we could absolutely guarantee. We know it is right. It has proved itself for five years. Nearly ten thousand are now in use and not one owner would take his out. When you see it you will understand why. Come in and let us demonstrate it for you. See how simple it is. And fully automatic. Safe, clean, odorless, quiet. Burns cheap fuel oil. Has no wasteful pilot light. No part goes in the firebox. Works with any kind of good heating plant. Better see about it today if you want an Oil-O-Matic this year.

EASY TERMS

You can pay for your Oil-O-Matic as you use it if you want to. No interest on the notes. Ask us about this remarkable plan.

WILLIAMS
OIL-O-MATIC
HEATING

The Williams Oil-O-Matic is indeed somewhat more expensive than certain other Oil Heaters, on the market, but just as a man in buying an expensive car in preference to a cheap one, expects and receives the utmost in comfort, economy in the long run and durability, or in other words gettings just what he pays for, similarly, in buying a Williams', you get the utmost in a heater which will prove to be cheaper and more satisfactory in the long run.

Gas Poisoning Death is Terrible

It Finally Drives Victims to Violent Form of Insanity

New York, Nov. 14.—Picture yourself being slowly poisoned by a gas so deadly that physicians cannot combat it—and faced with the fact that you will be gradually driven insane, until at last seized with a raving madness from which the only relief is suicide.

Then you will realize the awful fate which waits for victims here of tetra-ethyl lead gas poisoning, contracted by workers who handle the dread chemical compound in the manufacture of a type of gasoline that prevents "knocking" of engines.

Scientists and manufacturers have known for some time of the danger in handling the compound, but public attention was first attracted to the subject when thirty-five workers were stricken last month in the development plant of the Standard Oil Company at Bayway, N.J. Five were driven insane and died within a short time.

The others are under observation at the Reconstruction Hospital here. They have seen the victims die one by one, and, with terror clutching at their hearts, they lie on their cots waiting, waiting, waiting—never knowing when they will become madmen— placed in straitjackets until death ends their sufferings.

Hope Seen

The victims' only hope of recovery lies in Dr. Mabimin Touart, who has discovered a form of treatment which he believes will save them. By giving them sodium bromide as a laxative, with injections of hyposulphite of soda to dissolve the lead in their systems, he hopes to prevent further deaths.

Tetra-ethyl lead was invented to take the "knock" out of gasoline. Normally gasoline tends to explode too violently in a cylinder. Mixing the chemical compound with the gasoline makes the explosion less violent and applies the force against the piston more evenly. It is used where gasoline is manufactured and wherever gasoline is exploded in an engine.

For a time it was feared that garage mechanics and motorists who handled gasoline might be poisoned, but scientists disproved the idea. The compound was dangerous only when handled in concentrated form, they said.

Gets Into System

When tetra-ethyl lead is absorbed into the nervous system it passes rapidly into the nervous tissues and is taken up by the cells of the nerve centres. Insanity is a form of disorder of the nervous system in which the cells involved are those used in thought and reasoning. Thus a victim is driven slowly insane as the lead poisoning gains headway.

The poisoning is hard to combat, because it cannot be discovered until the danger point has been reached. A workman who has appeared to be in perfect health may be stricken suddenly and die before a remedy can be given him.

Thomas Midgely, jun., the inventor of ethyl gas, said the compound had caused two deaths in the plant of the General Motors Chemical Company at Dayton, Ohio, within the last year. He said forty others had been stricken there and that workmen in the Du Pont plants had been poisoned to a lesser degree from handling the compound.

Scientists believe, however, that no fatalities will result if the gas is handled carefully. They urge that the greatest precautions be taken wherever it is used.

Trenton

That King is bartering the protective system of the country to keep in power, was shown when he pleased the Western Progressives who were grain growers and not manufacturers and did not want protection, by conceding to them, and carrying on his programmeless platform.

It was the Conservative party which secured Confederation, built the C.P.R., introduced the National Policy which even Sir Wilfred Laurier adopted, and was headed to-day by the cleanest statesman in Canada, Hon. Arthur Meighen, a man who advocated protection for all classes.

Appealed to Ladies

Mr. Porter appealed to the ladies, many of whom were present and stated that their interest in his behalf augured well for the success of the cause advocated.

Reminding the ladies that he had voted for franchise for women when it was given to them by a Conservative government, he reminded them that they were now given a privilege to vote for him. The strong argument which gave women the franchise was the fact that they had superior ability in deciding moral issues. There was a distinctly moral issue in this election. He urged the women to decide on right, and not to be satisfied with voting themselves, but, to bring all their neighbors, doubtful and otherwise, to the rolls. Mr. Porter then announced that Hon. Arthur Meighen would speak in Trenton Opera House on November 21

"I always noticed that a Conservative admires a Liberal if he be a true Liberal, and the same is true the other way around, but a straddle-the-fence has never been appreciated", explained Mr Porter. "Charles Hanna has no political affiliations."

"He says he is just as respectable as I am. I never said that he was not. I hope that he is, and if possible, more so. He may have been until the present time, but now he certainly is not on the side of highest living."

Mr. Porter could not find words to express his thanks to Trentonians for their part in electing him as their representative for West Hastings ever since the riding was formed. He had represented them at each and every Parliament. This is the last time there would be a riding of West Hastings, for by the Redistribution Bill." The riding would henceforth be known as North and South Hastings.

"And if I have not done what is right by you people, remember, it is the mind which is at fault—not the heart."

What He Has Done

They say "what has he ever done for West Hastings"? he continued. "I could not begin to tell you all I have done for you". Who gave you one of the finest steel bridges in the Province to replace an old wooden bridge? Who blasted out the rocks on your harbor front, who made your harbor a Government harbor, which is maintained by the Government and not by the town? Who gave you the right to appoint a Harbor Commissioner who would collect toll on everything which comes into your town through the harbor and why did Mayor Fraser not appoint a Harbor Commissioner? I will tell you why. Because every pound of coal and foot of timber which came to him, comes free of toll whereas if a Harbor Commissioner were appointed by him as Mayor, he would be obliged to pay toll.

"Then Fraser says that I am a "foreigner" and I have no right to take a hand in Trenton municipal matters. I own absolutely and completely 2 properties in Trenton, which were paid for by me with my own money. I pay more than $38,000 taxes here, and why should I not have a voice here."

"Fraser was not giving the facts, when he said that I had no right to take part in Trenton Municipal matters, for I mailed to him my marked cheque this year and asked him to pay my taxes so that I might benefit by the discount by early payment, and he paid my taxes, returning a receipt. He was therefore in full possession of the facts and he knew better than to say I had no business in Trenton municipal matters.

FAILED TO DO IT JUSTICE

Despite the efforts of song writers to sing the glories of California, they have failed in giving an adequate description of this land of remarkable loveliness. It is a land of perpetual summer, of romance and beauty, of rest and play. Cool inviting mountains, sun-steeped slopes and vales, balmy breezes carrying the tang of growing fruit, bring the glow of health to the cheeks of the ailing. The world-weary find rejuvenation on the sunny bathing beaches, in motoring, riding, bowling, dancing, tennis or golf, while deep sea fishing, surf-riding or aqua-planing keep the more active entertained.

There are two splendid routes to California, the first via Chicago reached by the famous "International Limited" of the Canadian National Railways, also by late evening daily connection observation sleeper from Toronto. The "International Limited" is of course a daily train and offers a service unexcelled for speed, comfort and convenience. At Chicago connection is made with all the crack trains for the South and Southwest.

The other route is by the "Continental Limited" leaving Montreal daily and "The National" from Toronto daily via Vancouver and Victoria. This "All Canadian" route is very popular with the regular tourists to California. It takes you through the world famous Jasper National Park and Mount Robson Park and the white mantled mountains are beautiful description. At Vancouver connection is made with Rail and Steamship lines serving all destinations in in California.

Any Agent of the Canadian National Railways will gladly give you literature, complete information or make through reservations for either route.

WANDERERS KEEP LEAD BY DEFEATING PRINTERS AT RECREATION ALLEYS

Recreation Alley

The Wanderers and the Printers in the Ladies League at the Recreation Alleys last night, staged a battle the former winning out easily. This was one of the most important games of the league as the Printers had only lost one game and the Wanderers had yet to lose their first game and a win for the Printers would put these two teams tie for first place, but as things now stand the Wanderers have practically cinched first place. The game itself was about the poorest these two teams have rolled outside of the work of Mrs. Lee who rolled 561 and Miss Ross 441, the rest of the team were all under 400. The first game both teams were down pretty low, but as the game went on, the scores increased somewhat.

The Fruit Merchants made it 7 straight wins in a row when they won from Marsh's by 109 pins. Quattrocchi and E. Ethier rolling the highest scores for their respective teams.

In the other junior game the Wolves of the North won from the Nat. Castings by over 100 pins. Adams and Turner rolled the highest scores for their teams.

The winners of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Ontario bungalow camps fishing trophy competitions for 1924 were announced recently. The French River competition resulted in two competitors turning in fish almost identically alike. In this contest a tie was declared. The successful anglers were D. W. L. Hawkins, New York City, and H. H. Champ, Hamilton, Ontario, each entering a small mouth bass weighing exactly 4 pounds. The winning fish at Nipigon River Camp was a 6 pound, 10 ounce trout, caught by William Metzger, Detroit, Michigan. The Devil's Gap (Lake of the Woods) trophy was won by J. A. Furlong, Winnipeg, Manitoba, who entered a muscalunge weighing 28 pounds, 8 ounces.

Hamilton, Nov. 13.—Thirty automobiles were destroyed and damage of $50,000 was done by fire which swept John Lampman's garage 187 Queen street south, at 3 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Lampman and his family had a narrow escape from being trapped in their apartments above the garage. They were all asleep and ignorant of the fire until Jack Farnan, son of a neighbor, pluckily climbed a post to the second story and awakened Mr. Lampman. Firemen succeeded in confining the fierce blaze to the lower floor. Chief James believes that it started near a furnace. Mostly all of the automobiles were insured. Mrs. H. Farnan first discovered the fire. She was awakened by the glare of the reflection in her bedroom window.

Bowlers Keep In Running By Win

Defeated Ritchie's Last Night Under Stiff Competition at "Y"

The Bowlers and Ritchies met last night at the Y Alleys and a win for the Ritchies would have put the Bowlers out of the running and they certainly put a scare on them in the first two games. In the first game Ritchies were up 62 pins and increased this in the second game to 96 pins. But the Bowlers came from behind in the third game and pulled out a win by 80 pins. This put the Bowlers a tie with the Excelsiors and Y Reds. R. J. Wray of the Bowlers carried off the high single of the evening with 258 while F. Thompson of the Ritchie's carried off the high three string with 672.

Hi Y. Girls are Well Initiated

Unique Ceremony is Carried Out in Assembly Hall

Last night was initiation night for the Hi Y Girls in the Assembly Hall, when under the supervision of Mrs. E. C. Sprague and Mrs. H. Moorman, they were initiated. Miss Loreen Sprague acting as mistress of ceremonies. Miss Jean Moorman was keeper of records. Miss Helen Graves, outside Guide, Misses Lina Haines, Mary Day and C. Pauline Sidenius, inside guides. Pilots for the aeronauts were Misses B. Wellbanks and V. Sidenius.

The initiation ceremony consisted of the girls having to walk over obstacles symbolic of the obstacles in life's travels which must be overcome in order to attain success. They were then required to step over three pillars representing faith, hope and love in life. Another feature of the initiation was the drinking of water which to the blindfolded girls was described as being anything but sanitary. This drew many laughs. They were then led to the huge white cross where Loreen Sprague gave them the cast charge of sacrifice and service. A supper preceded the initiation and group games and refreshments followed.

The girls are planning a tea and prize bake sale before the Christmas holidays, and on Thursday evening next will receive the serious end of the charge.

A cablegram from London, England, quotes an article in the "Financial News" dealing with the British Empire Exhibition. It stresses the exceptionally fine exhibit staged by Canada and the unquestionable benefit to trade relations it has effected. The article pays a high tribute to the Canadian Pacific Railway exhibit, describing the railway's gorgeously illuminated map of Canada, with its 6,000 incandescent lights as probably the most brilliant specimen of cartography ever seen at the exhibition or elsewhere.

It has been announced that H. J. Logan, M.P. for Cumberland, will accompany the Minister of Trade and Commerce to the West Indies to negotiate a new reciprocal treaty with those islands. The general purpose of the visit is to admit West Indian commodities free in return for Canadian manufacturers receiving similar treatment, the products of the two countries being entirely dissimilar. It is also hoped to build up a direct system of importations through Canadian ports instead of through the United States, by which route a great proportion of West Indian products now come to Canada.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has appointed P. A. Cox, general agent, to be assistant Oriental manager, at Shanghai, and E. F. L. Sturdee, acting general passenger agent for the Orient, to be general passenger agent for the Orient, with headquarters at Hongkong. Leo Solloway, recently appointed asiatic freight agent, with offices at Montreal, and supervision over Oriental and Australasian traffic via Pacific ports, has the distinction of being the youngest official in the Canadian Pacific Service. He was born in Vancouver, in 1895, and has been in the steamship freight service 14 years.

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"I said I would tell you the truth, and I've told nothing but the truth," he said, earnestly. "I dare say it seems strange to you that I should have this feeling about our meeting yesterday. I dare say you forgot all about it half-an-hour afterward! Why should you remember—you who have so much to think of?"

Doris turned her face away, lest her eyes should betray her, and tell how much, how constantly she had thought of him!

"You," he went on, "who are so clever and gifted a great actress, with no end of people round you——"

She looked at him with a pensive smile.

"But you are wrong, quite wrong," she said. "I am not a great actress. Last night was my first success, if success it was——"

"There is no 'if' about it!" he said with fervent enthusiasm. "It was a tremendous success! Why, I heard people declare that there had been nothing like it since Kate Terry's Juliet! And I—though I'm not of much account—I was never so much carried out of myself. Why to tell you how great and grand you were, I actually forgot that you were the young lady who was so good to me yesterday and only thought of you as Shakespeare's Juliet; and I felt quite ashamed that I had ever given so much trouble to so great a personage."

His warm, ardent praise touched her and her lips quivered.

"Juliet was only a simple girl, after all," she said. "If she had chanced to have been placed in my position yesterday she would have done the same."

"I don't know about that," he said. "I'm not clever, like you," and he pushed his hat off his brows with a deprecatory gesture. "But I know you must have something else to think of than the fellow who was such an idiot as to jump a hedge before he saw what was on the other side; and, of course, you must have no end of—of people round you!"

"But I have not! You are quite wrong," she said, with her sweet, thoughtful smile. "I live with an old friend who has been like a father to me! I haven't any father or mother, and I see no one, except at the theatre and then only in the way of business," and she laughed.

He listened as if every word she dropped from her sweetly-curved lips were a pearl.

"How strange it sounds! You so clever and beau—so great an actress."

"Yes," she said dreamily; "I suppose it does sound strange! Everybody thinks that an actress must be the gayest of the gay; surrounded by light hearted people turning night into day, and living on champagne and roast chicken." She smiled. "Jeffrey and I know scarcely any one, and I do not think I have tasted champagne, excepting once, when one of the managers had a benefit; and we go straight to bed directly we get home from the theatre; and, oh, it is quite different to what people imagine."

He drew forward a little so that the hand upon which he leaned touched the edge of her cotton dress.

"And—and you didn't quite forget our strange meeting?"

"I am not in the habit of seeing gentlemen flung from their horses at my feet, Lord Neville," she said, but she turned her face from him.

Jiggs and Maggie Come Wednesday

Famous McManus Characters to Appear at Griffin Theatre Here

Bubbling over with hilarious good humor, come George McManus' cartoon comedy conceit, "Bringing Up Father" to the popular Griffin Opera House for an engagement of one night, Wednesday Nov. 19th. "Bringing Up Father in Ireland" is the title of this year's concoction. Just as McManus the Artist gives us a new "Phool-Stunt" every Sunday, so does McManus the playwright give theatregoers new play every season. There's nothing left but the inevitable characters, "Jiggs and Maggie" and those two happy conceits of the fertile artistic brain of George McManus, will live forever and after.

It's just a plain old fashioned "Laughfest" with musical and dancy environment. Not meant to cause tiresome thought or any dire dramatic illusion. Just a plain musical show with pretty girls and some new and pleasing music. All set to a scene of rare beauty in the land of the "Old Sod" from whence "Jiggs and Maggie" had their birth.

"Bringing Up Father" patrons are loyal enough to patronize the play whenever it comes to town. And judging from the success of last season's production, it will last another generation. Therefore it is up to George McManus to train one of the bright young hopeful McManuses to push pencil as successfully as did the old man. For "Bringing Up Father" without a McManus, would be like coffee without sugar.

Whatever you do, don't miss "Father" this year, and by all means get seats for the children. It was created for them.

Good All Around Show At Griffin's

Vaudeville, Good Orchestra and Feature Picture Served Up

Theatre goers were treated to a real good show at the Griffin Theater last night, where good music, first class vaudeville and the best in motion pictures combined for an evening of splendid entertainment. The six piece orchestra rendered many selections throughout the show and Coden and Luken two comedians put on a real act. Black face potter, good singing, clever dancing and fresh jokes were put across in fine style. Their act is better than the average one put on outside of the larger cities.

Richard Barthelmess was at his best in "The Fighting Blade", a First National attraction.

"The Fighting Blade" is a romance of the Cromwellian era. It depicts the daring exploits of a dashing Flemish soldier of fortune the most famous duelist of his day, who came to England to avenge the death of his sister, and remained to join the Roundheads under Cromwell in the historic rebellion that paved the way for popular government in England. The production is said to be the most pretentious starring vehicle Richard Barthelmess has had, and one of the most significent pictures in the present era of bigger and better pictures.

Barthelmess plays the role of the Flemish soldier of fortune. His excellent supporting cast includes Dorothy Mackaill, Morgan Wallace, Lee Baker, Frederick Burton, Stuart Sage, Allyne King and others.

WHAT IS THE USE OF LIVING?

What is the use of living when a woman gets up in the morning as tired as when she went to bed at night, with headache, backache, dragging-down pains, nervous, irritable and despondent? These are all symptoms of ailments peculiar to her sex which make life a burden. Every woman in this condition should rely upon Lidia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a good old-fashioned remedy made from roots and herbs. It contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and for fifty years has been restoring women to health and strength and the joys of liv-

Mrs. H. Shoener, Murney St., gave a delightful party to a few friends last evening at her home. A dainty lunch was served and a very enjoyable time was spent.

A very successful tea was held yesterday afternoon by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the B. of L. E. in their hall, Pine street. The hall was very tastefully decorated with 'mums, autumn foliage, palms and potted plants. The President and Convener, Mrs. J. Elliot was ably assisted by Mrs. J. MacIntyre and Mrs. S. McLean at the home-cooking table. The fancy work table was presided over by Mrs. G. Adams and Mrs. W. R. Wensley. Mrs. G. Collins and Mrs. Ormond presided at the tea table. Mrs. Gyner and Mrs H. Flagler attended to the visitors. The proceeds were very satisfactory. Mrs. Delisle attended at the door.

GEROW—HAMAAN

A quiet wedding took place last evening at the Baptist parsonage when Rev. N. S. McKechnie united in marriage Mrs. Victoria Hamaan and Mr. L. S. Gerow. They will take up residence at 50 Geddes street.

Great Care Taken in Production of Belle Theatre Picture

The cast working under direction of Edmund Mortimer on the William Fox picture, "The Wolf Man," which is now showing at the Belle Theatre until Saturday, went up into the northern timber country to get local color. John Gilbert, long familiar with the life, was among the few who felt at home in the logging camp. He played poker with the lumber jacks the first night.

IF BACK HURTS OR BLADDER BOTHERS, ALSO TAKE A LITTLE SALTS

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep thme kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

CHICAGO MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Increasingly unfavorable crop reports from Argentina led to decided rally in wheat prices today after declining tendency at outset. Steadiness of Liverpool market, together with advance in sterling exchange counted also as strengthening factor here. Early weakness was ascribed chiefly to profit taking sales and to temporary pause in new buying. Opening quotations which ranged from 1-4 cent decline to 3-4 cents gain were followed by moderate general sag and then by sharp upturn to well above yesterdays finish. Corn and oats were governed by action of wheat. After opening 1 1-4 cents lower to 1-2 cent advance, May $1.18 1-2 to $1.19 corn market under went set back all around but later scored material gains. Oats started unchanged to 1-8 cent off. May 58 3-4 cent to 59 cent eased a little more and then made general advance. Weakness of hog values pulled down provisions.

What He Has Done

Liberal campaign speeches, Mr. Porter characterized as "moonshine". They evaded the issue and skirted around, he said. "Murdock is a poor man, they say. No man is too poor to be honest."

He deposited the money in his hired girl's name, and withdrew it on the dictates of his wife he says—a mean man who will throw the burden on his own wife. He sold labor body and britches in 1910 during the Railway strike when he was appointed arbitrator for Labor, and he told the poorly paid, postal strikers when they did strike, that they could stay out "Till hell freezes over".

He deserted the Conservative party and the Board of Commerce, to which Board he was appointed by Conservatives, after he had learned the secret of their intended policies, and going over with the Grits, became a Cabinet Minister for changing.

Naming a few of the many things he had done for Belleville in reply to the cheap Liberal insinuation that he had never done anything for Belleville, Mr. Porter told of getting the $253000 dock, and warehouse, dredging out the harbor, establishing letter mail service, completing the armouries, and the drill shed for the 34th Battery. He also got a steel bridge for Frankford and purchased a fine park for the village from the C. N. R.

GIRL GETS DAMAGES FROM BIG STORE

Welland, Nov. 13.—High Court was continued here Wednesday with his Lordship Justice Mowat presiding. The jury awarded Miss Marie Williams $1,208 damages against C. L. Laing, Manager of the F. W. Woolworth Company of Niagara Falls. This action was taken by her mother, as she was only 13 years of age at the time. The company claimed she was employed as clerk and had stolen some money, and she was dismissed. The plaintiff claimed she was detained for several hours and questioned, and induced to sign a confession that she had taken eighten dollars.

Woman Carried Fake Baby Bundle

Tried to Get Away With Fur Coat at Montreal

Montreal, Nov. 14—A "baby" wrapped in a shawl, an innocent expression and a quick pair of hands are, the police allege, the properties used by Mary Hekal, aged 29, giving an address in St. Lambert who is charged with the theft of a Persian lamb, sable trimmed fur coat, valued at $500.

The first act was staged in the establishment of 148 Notre Dame street west of Walter F. Cummings, furrier who owns the coat, the second was behind the Board of Trade Building, when Mary Hekal was arrested by Constable Malric; and the third was in a cell at police headquarters, where the woman is held on a charge of theft.

Mr. Cummings reported to Police Lieut. Belanger of the Headquarters police station that a woman carrying what he thought to be a baby, came into his place of business at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and asked what time it was. When she was told she said: "Oh, then I'll wait here half an hour and look over some coats. I am to meet my husband at 2.30.

She walked up and down the shop rocking the "baby" which was wrapped in a shawl, and crooning to it. Meanwhile customers began entering and at about half-past two o'clock when the shop was fairly well filled, she walked to the street.

Mr. Cummings noticed the departure of the woman and thought it strange that she should leave without saying a word. He also saw that the "baby" under the shawl seemed unusually large.

Woman Was Followed

He followed the woman along Notre Dame street, up St. Peter street then along another street to the Board of Trade Building. Here they encountered Constable Malric of the Headquarters police station.

"See where you are walking young woman," said Mr. Cummings suddenly, "right into the arms of a constable' He then asked Malric to make the arrest.

The prisoner denied that she had been to the Cummings establishment that afternoon, but examination of the "baby" by Constable Malric showed that it was a parcel held in such a way that it resembled a child. And around this parcel was the fur coat. The woman was then taken to headquarters where she gave her name as Hekal and her address as St. Lambert.

Mr. Cummings told the police that none of his clerks saw Mary Hekal take the coat, which was hanging on a rack, though an employee was within six feet of her most of the time she was in the shop.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. B. Johnson, 246 Craig St., W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Ramsay MacDonald Coming to Canada

And Labor Premier of Victoria Resigns Office To-day

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 13—Ramsay Macdonald is contemplating a visit to America on a holiday after his hard grind of nearly a year as Great Britain's first Labor Premier, the Evening Star to-day says it understands.

Labor Premier Resigns

Melbourne, Victoria, Nov. 13—G. M. Prendergast, Labor Premier of Victoria resigned office today as a result of the defeat of his Government yesterday in Parliament on a no-confidence vote by 34 to 23 and the refusal of Governor Earl of Stradboke, to accede to his request for Parliamentary dissolution. Following defeat Parliament adjourned until Nov. 18. The Labor Ministry took office last July.

WHEAT REACHES NEW HIGH PRICE RECORD

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—Opening futures, wheat Nov. 2 3-4 to 3 1-4 higher at 1.66 to 1-2; Dec. 1 7-8 to 3 3-8 higher at 1.61 1-2; May 2 to 3 cents higher at 1.65 to 1.66. Oats Nov. 7-8 to 3-4 higher at 60 to 59 7-8; Dec. 3-4 to 1 1-4 higher at 60 1-2 to 61; May 1 1-8 to 2 1-8 higher at 65 to 66.

New York, Nov. 13.—Sterling exchange firm, demand rates Great Britain 462 1-8. Canadian dollars at par.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—With buying in progress on the big scale wheat quickly advanced today to a new high price record for season. A reduction of twenty million bushels in the official estimate of 1924 yield in Canada, was chiefly responsible, taken with recent cuts in estimates on exportable surplus of Argentina and Australia. Opening which ranged from 1c to 2 3-8 c higher was followed by decided further gains. Corn and oats displayed independent strength, general blying was in evidence growers were organizing to hold corn and lack of offerings. Reports that corn growers were organizing to hold for $1.50 bshel attracted considerable notice. After opening at 3-8c to 1 1-2 c p corn continued to advance.

Oats started at 3-8 c to 3-8c gain. moderate additional upturns ensued. Provisions rose with grain, despite lower quotations on hogs.

Woman's Coolness Saved Two Lives

Conquered Frightened team On Streets of Hamilton

Hamilton, Nov. 14—Mrs. A. Lucas, 63 Duke street, and her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Gerald S. Glassco, are little the worse for their exciting experience Sunday morning when Mrs. Lucas' team bolted following a collision with a motor car.

David Huxton, Mrs. Lucas' driver, is still suffering from bruises and the shock of his fall when, on impact with the motor car, he was thrown to the pavement and rendered unconscious.

Serious injury to Mrs. Lucas and her daughter, Mrs. Glassco, would have been inevitable had it not been for the coolness of Mrs. Glassco. Stepping over the coachman's box Mrs. Glassco made her way forward, as the team plunged down Bay street and across King street. Leaning down, the while she grasped the dash-board of the coachman's box with one hand, she clutched at the reins and managed to gather those controlling the off horse. She brought the frightened team to a standstill just north of King street. Only the lightness of Sunday morning traffic on King street saved the outfit as it crashed across the street car line.

The driver of the motor car which collided with the team at the corner of Main and Bay streets was L. Reid, of Orono, Ont., who was uninjured.

Race Riots are Stopped in South

General Exodus of Negroes Followed Attack by Whites

Harrodsburg, Ky., Nov. 14—With six men in jail here charged with rioting and a detachment of Kentucky National Guards on duty at the Dix River dam, a hydro-electric project under construction near here, quiet had been restored today at the scene of clashes early Monday between white workers and farmers and negro laborers.

The clashes resulted from the fatal shooting of Edward Winkle, white worker, at the dam, in an attempted hold-up. A general exodus of negroes in the camp followed an attack by the white workers and farmers from the vicinity. When county officials reported they were unable to handle the situation, Governor W. J. Fields dispatched guardsmen from Frankfort. Indications were that the majority of the negroes, assured of protection had returned, or were returning to work.

A large body of the negroes, many scantily clad, fled to Burgin, where they spent Sunday night in a rock quarry, huddled about camp fires. Others managed to reach Lexington and Danville and still others were found wandering aimlessly in fields in the vicinity of the dam. Officials of the construction company and George Geddes, head of a Lexington employment agency, asserted reports which gained circulation among the negroes that some of their fellow workers had been killed and buried at the dam were unfounded.

In a dying statement Winkle declared he was shot by a negro known as "Jelly Roll." Two negroes, known as "Little Jelly Roll" and "Big Jelly Roll" were arrested and taken to Danville for safe keeping. They reiterated their innocence and asserted the "Jelly Roll" wanted was Palmer Hedges, of Ashland, Ky.

Say Bomb In Mail Wrecked Office

Chicago Inspectors Investigate Explosion Which Took Thre Lives

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 13—Postal inspectors from Chicago arrived early to-day to aid local inspectors in the investigation of the explosion which wrecked the loading dock and receving room of the main post office here late yesterday, killing three men and injuring twelve others. Herman Pettersch, clerk, succumbed after having both legs blown off and Ernest A. Roth, truck driver died three hours after the blast. A splinter was driven into Roth's body by force of explosion. Dale Newhouse who suffered a fractured skull died in hospital this morning. Although no fragment of the bomb or other explosive was found, the postal authorities, police and firemen believe blast was caused by premature explosion of bomb sent through mails.

FOXBORO

(By Staff Correspondent)

Everybody come to the Fowl Supper in the Methodist Church on Monday Nov. 17.

Rev. Mr. Fry conducted the services in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday last.

Mrs. Hoard and children, Eileen and Stewart spent Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. James Stewart.

Mr. George Robinson has arrived home after two weeks vacation at Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Peacock and family spent one evening last week with Mr. and Mrs. C. Hetherington.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Woods attended the 50th anniversary of the Presbyterian Church, Madoc, Sunday and Monday. The proceeds were over $1100

The young people's league of the Methodist church gathered as usual on Tuesday evening and had a very good attendance. The girls quartet was splendid.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Hetherington and daughter Muriel motored to Tweed and took Sunday dinner with their sister Mrs. Alex. Wright.

DISMISSED CASE OF LIQUOR SEIZURE

Windsor, Nov. 13—The first of the fifteen operators of river-front liquor export houses arrested or summoned in connection with the seizure last month of $200,000 worth of beer and whiskey at La Salle, Walkerville and Ford, was acquitted by Magistrate Gundy at a special session of the Windsor Police Court. He was Jacob Aaron of Ecorse.

Aaron was charged with having 30 cases of whiskey illegally. He pleaded not guilty. The whiskey, the police charged, was concealed in a specially constructed automobile, which was found near a La Salle beer dock. When called to the stand Aaron testified he was in the liquor business in Detroit. He said that at the time his liquor was seized Canadian Customs officers were preparing clearance papers for a shipment of liquor from Sandwich to Detroit.

HIS ENTHUSIASTIC SUPPORTERS APPLAUDED STRAIGHT FACTS ARRAIGNED AGAINST MURDOCK

City Hall Auditorium Packed to Doors Last Night

WRITING ON WALL

Growing Interest in Issue Strengthens Big Majority Hope

Many interesting signs have appeared in Belleville during the past few days to indicate the feeling of the people generally in regard to the West Hastings by-election. The city is becoming more and more solid for Mr. E. Guss Porter as the unpleasant facts of James Murdocks dishonorable conduct as a Cabinet Minister are laid before the electors.

But there has been no more significant sign of this great wave of support to an honest cause as the meeting held in the City Hall last evening. In spite of counter attractions, and the fact that meetings are becoming a nightly affair, the auditorium was packed and numbers listened from outside the door. More than that everybody seemed not so much interested in, but enthusiastic for Mr. Porter.

The choice of speakers was a happy one. All speeches were clean. They were packed with conviction. From the time the first speaker opened up the barrage until Mr. Porter himself sounded the close fire, the audience followed intently every argument and explanation given. It was as if every supporter in the room were arming himself with the proof to be able to go out and conduct missiary work himself. Applause came involuntarily. Twice during Mr. Porter's address, it started as a ripple in the middle of a sentence, and grew into prolonged applause.

Real, Old-Fashioned Fight

The chairman, H. F. Ketcheson was a decided asset to the meeting. He kept the program running smoothly and put in a strong word himself at the opening.

He expressed the opinion that West Hastings was in the middle of a real, old-time election battle and he was glad the Conservatives of the riding were rallying for the fray in their typical manner.

"Don't let anybody lead you away from your party allegiance by personal questions, he said. And putting in a word to the returned soldiers, he reminded them that there had been no better friend to them than Mr. E. Guss Porter.

The speakers of the evening were H C. Hockin, K.S., and E. B. Ryckman, K.C.M.P. from Toronto, Mrs. Fallis, ladies organizer of Peterboro, Hugh Stewart, K.C.M.P. of Brockville and the candidate.

The Pride of Women

As Mr. Stewart said, while Mrs. Fallis' remarks were addressed to the women, folk of the audience, they were really directed at the men. Hers was a masterly speech which must have aroused pride in the hearts of members of her own sex. Mrs. Fallis did not take a back seat for any other male speaker on the platform. Employing a most surprising command of rare good English, she marshalled out facts like a veteran statesman, revealing a most intensive study of public affairs. After hearing her last night one does not wonder why Belleville women by the hundreds are well informed on the main issue of the by-election and [illegible] well organized in support of Mr. Porter.

Other speakers, as well as Mrs. Fallis paid sincere tribute to the ability of Mr. Porter. One of the most dependable men of the Conservative Party at Ottawa he was called and his fellow members said his counsel was the most eagerly sought out in the Conservative ranks in the House of Commons.

It was indeed a night of nights to strengthen the belief of his supporters that Mr. E. Guss Porter's majority will roll into a heartfelt condemnation of Liberal and Progressive whitewashers in the House of Commons.

PORTER PATRIOT; MURDOCK MONEY

Hugh Stewart Suggest Fitting Subject for Campaign Address

James Murdock runs a dangerous risk should he ever decide to visit West Hastings. At the big Conservative rally held last night at the City Hall in the interests of Mr. E. Guss Porter, Mr. Hugh Stewart, K.C., M.P., for Brockville, issued two or three questions for the Minister to answer should he venture to poke his nose around Belleville. The neatest of these requested information on the number of prosecutions he had launched against profiteers since taking office and following the bragging about what he was going to do.

Mr. Stewart declared the present election to be one of the most important elections ever held in Canada. But before he entered into his speech, he paused to pay tribute to Mrs. Fallis. She was supposed to have been speaking to the ladies he said, but she was really speaking to the men. In the same way he would speak to the ladies.

He paid tribute to Mr. Porter as an outstanding member of his own profession and as a foremost man of the Conservative Party, upon whom great confidence was reposed.

All parties in the House admitted that Mr. Porter presented his case, fairly, clearly and honestly, without malice. And they would indeed have been glad if Mr. Porter had not resigned his seat.

"Porter and Patriotism or Murdock and Money" would have been a good subject for his address, the speaker said.

There were two possible issues in the election. The supreme one was that of the Murdock charges, and the other the record of the King Government.

As for the latter, West Hastings people were well acquainted with what the King Government had done. It had rapidly fallen in public favor. In less than three years, it was drifting, struggling to retain office and power. Sometimes that happened to a government that had been in power a number of years. It was not to be expected of a new Government.

The Liberals had ascended into power by making promises to various classes in the country. It went into office with a minority and ever since it had been dependent on the Progressive party, which was out of touch with Eastern Canada and who were opponents of Protection.

To gain favor with the Progressives, the Liberal Government bartered away bit by bit the tariff.

The speaker asked if West Hastings people thought it economy in these times for the Liberal Government to go over to the old country and buy a $1,200,000 Club House for officials, without consulting Parliament. It cost $30,000 a year more to carry that new building than it would to rent all the building possibly needed by Canada in England, he said.

Graham was a great jollier, a great joker, a fine fellow, but he had to admit that the purchase of the Scribe Hotel in Paris was another foolish expenditure.

The present government was taking more than $20,000,000 than the old Government had taken in on the Sales Tax, which added greatly to the cost of living, Mr. Stewart said.

Mr. Hanna might be challenged to deny the extravagance of the present Government, but the speaker was mighty sure he would not take up the challenge.

When a minister of the Liberal Government came into the riding and said Canada was entering prosperity by leaps and bounds, the statements could be taken for what they were worth he said. Canadians did not need to be told when prosperity had called around.

Touching on the allegation coming from some quarters that Mr. Porter had caused needless expenditure for a by-election, Mr. Stewart said:

"If Murdock had not taken that money, or if Mr. Hanna had not seen fit to defend Mr. Murdock's conduct, there would have been no expense. There is no reason to put on Mr. Porter's shoulders, the responsibility of this election."

"You are just as capable to come to a conclusion in Murdock's trial as a member of Parliament," he said.

Mr. Murdock had not come into West Hastings and he did not believe he would come before election day. If he should, there were many questions people of this riding could ask.

For example, railway men might ask why he settled the railway disagreement in 1910. (Laughter and applause.)

They might ask him too why, after he had said that profiteers were eating the vitals of Canadians, and that if his government ever got into power these profiteers would be prosecuted, why, now that the government had been in power for three years, no prosecutions had been made.

Mr. Stewart said he did not believe Mr. Hanna realized the significance of this election or that he had known the true facts of the Murdoc disgrace. Otherwise he would not have accepted the nomination.

HE MERELY DID THAT REQUIRED OF A MEMBER

Mr. Porter Answers Hanna Question in Modest Manner

HAD GREAT OVATION

Big Rally at City Hall Cheer Stand He Takes

E. Guss Porter, K.C. Liberal-Conservative candidate for West Hastings drew a remarkable ovation at the City Hall last evening and in a short bright speech nailed down Hanna propaganda which questions the service of Mr. Porter during his long term of office. Mr. Porter gave a staggering list of things he had done and then promptly hushed any praise for what he accomplished. It was merely part of his job. Mr. Porter expressed his gratitude to the speakers of the evening. He did not feel justified, due to the lateness of the hour in saying much more on this occasion. He had presented his case fully at the nomination meeting. There were a few more things to say, but he would be able to say that before the end of the campaign.

He hoped he meritted the kind words of the speakers of the evening and the confidence of the electors of West Hastings whom he had served for a quarter century.

He had endeavored to keep this campaign pure as he wanted Parliament of Canada to be. He had not cast any slurs.

Mr. Hanna and his friends had been boasting that he has been chosen Mayor.

"But in that respect," said Mr. Porter, with a quiet smile. "I can also claim to have been Mayor long before he was, and was Alderman six years before that.

These things were scarcely worth mentioning, however. Serving on the Council was a great honor, but it was a duty also.

What He Has Done

Charles Hanna's supporters had been busy asking the question "What has Porter done for West Hastings?"

The popular candidate was about bereft of breath by the time he had but partly answered this question. He mentioned among other benefits, the Bay Bridge the completion of the armouries, dredging of the Bay, a steel bridge and a park for Frankford, rural mail deliveries upon his application delivery system of mail for Belleville a mineral survey of North Hastings and Government Harbor for Trenton.

"But why should I claim any credit for that?" he asked. "Wasn't that what I was sent to Ottawa for? Wouldn't I have been derelict in my duty if I hadn't? I think it's silly, this talk of Hanna's."

SEES MAJORITY LIKE BALDWIN'S REPEATED HERE

West Hastings Will Condemn Murdock, S. B. Ryckman Says

MUST BE ENFORCED

Laws of Parliament violated City Hall Meeting Told

S. B. Ryckman, K.C.M.P. of Torcato has been overseas for the past few months. There he took an active interest in the big election.

Speaking at Mr. Porter's meeting at the City Hall last night, he compared the issue there with the issue in West Hastings and brought rounds of applause by his expressed opinion that as Englishmen had voted against a government guilty of sharp practice in connection with the Campbell sedition charges so West Hastings would repudiate James Murdock, who learned as a Cabinet Minister that the Home Bank was going to fail and withdrew his four thousand dollars.

Mr. Ryckman explained that he had been sent overseas this year because of ill-health and that recently he had been extremely interested in the election over there. It was similar to this by-election in many respects.

"I believe this is the most important by-election ever held in the Dominion of Canada," he declared.

The issue was not the relation of the King Government to the condition of Canada at the present time. It was not Sir Arthur Meighen's attitude towards conscription in 1917. It was not a personal issue between Mr. Porter and Charles Hanna, he said.

Champions Wrong Cause

"Mr. Hanna is a champion in a wrong cause. He is not entitled to succeed. If there were a better man than Mr. Hanna, he would not be entitled to succeed."

The issue here was a great moral issue. Over in Great Britain they were fighting to keep pure the administration of justice. Over there, a man, Campbell, was charged with sedition. He was exciting the army and navy to mutiny. But through the MacDonald Government the prosecution was withdrawn and the people of the old country declared themselves favorably against that sort of thing in governments.

Here in Canada there was a law of parliament. It had been best described by former leading Liberals. By this law, a member of Parliament might devote all his hours working in Parliament for a certain group and yet must refuse payment for that work. This was an obvious law. Again, a Minister of the Crown could not accept personal gain through knowledge gained in a minister's position. If a member of Parliament is under suspicion by any other member of Parliament, the minister must go to the Leader of the Government and lay the facts before him. It would then be up to the Premier to lay the whole case before the House. Further, the minister was required to make a complete statement to Parliament.

That had not been done in this case.

Laws Must Be Enforced

The speaker illustrated how necessary it was that these laws be enforced and how cabinet ministers could become very wealthy by profiting through information they received in the course of their duties.

"It won't be long before we have a cabinet of Peter Smiths in this country," Mr. Ryckman said, should such conduct as that of James Murdock be condoned.

He had nothing personal against Murdock. It had been said that he was distasteful to the Conservative Party. So he was. But there were others who had done more harm to the party.

Mr. Ryckman charged him with drawing that money on the information he got at the cabinet meeting, and he said he believed that 90% of the men of this country who had been hanged as criminals were found guilty on evidence just as circumstantial as that against Murdock.

He also charged Murdock with having failed in complying with the law of Parliament by making a full frank statement of that matter.

The third charge was that Canada had a cabinet minister who had made false statements.

A Difference

"I plainly think that any man in this room who had money in a bank which he knew was going to fail, would have a duty to go and draw the money," the speaker said. "But if there is any one in this Hall who is cabinet minister, as such he heard the bank was going to fail in two days and drew out his money then, that cabinet is guilty of a serious breach of duty and an infringement of the law of Parliament."

The speaker said he was not proud to follow a man who would abuse his position for the sake of four thousand dollars.

Mr. Porter had never come near failing the honor placed with him, he said.

He gave all manner of praise to the man of Mr. Porter's calibre.

Mr. Ryckman believed that this historic riding of West Hastings was going to support the honor and integrity of Canadian Parliament. Unless this was done, this would happen. If it were found easy to get away with that sort of thing, it would attract money seekers to Cabinet positions.

The sad plight of Peter Smith proved that it was becoming easy for cabinet ministers to go wrong. He believed West Hastings would pronounce judgement against Murdock.

Mr. Ryckman drew a fine hand in returning to the anology of the election in the old land and pointing out that West Hastings would not merely return Mr. Porter, but that that gentleman would get as sweeping majorities as the Conservatives did in Great Britain.

E. B. Ryckman K. C. M. P. Offers Thousand To City Charity to Support Deficit Claim

Belleville people present at the E. Guss Porter Rally at the City Hall last evennig, sat up and took notice, when Mr. E. B. Ryckman, K.C.M.P. of Toronto, offered to donate one thousand dollars to charitable purposes in the city of Belleville if any chartered accountant of any of the four leading Banks of Canada could certify that the direct statements of the financial affairs of this country showed a surplus of thirty odd millions claimed by Hon. Mr. Robb and his associates in the Liberal Government.

Mr. Ryckman stated forcefully that the surplus was a myth an dthat it was not fair of the Prime Minister to parade it before the people of Canada, knowing it to be incorrect.

This challenge to the Government created a stir in the ranks of the audience and was well received. Mr. Ryckman intimated that he was tired of hearing about this surplus and inferred he was ready to call Mr. Robb's bluff.

He said the talk of the surplus "left a bad taste in the mouth, and it could not be swallowed."

Byron O. Lott With Liberal Returning Officer Picking out the Deputies

Mr. E. Guss Porter dropped something akin to a bomb at the big rally in the City Hall last night when discussing the class of men who have rushed to the aid of Charles Hanna in the present campaign.

Of course, he did not have Murdock with him, he said. That man was relegated to the backwoods until the contest was over.

But he did have the Hon. Duncan Marshall who was beaten so badly at home, he might never be able to run again—a fired man at $6,000 a year who was not any too careful about what he said.

The third man was Byron O. Lott of bogus ballot box notoriety, who Mr. Porter said, was travelling with the returning officer picking out deputy returning officers and poll clerks.

"O! WHAT A GOOD BOY AM I!" IS RECALLED TO MIND OF MRS FALLIS

By Attitude of Liberals in Boosting Hanna's Moral Standing

APPEALS TO WOMEN

Urges Them to Support Highest Standard of Public Life

Woman's wit, eloquence and the expression of a keen intellect combined to make the address of Mrs. Fallis at the City Hall last night one of the greatest treats in oratory afforded Belleville people in many months. Mrs. Fallis, who has been performing invaluable service in the interest of clean government throughout West Hastings, placed emphasis on the importance of woman's influence on present day politics and urged all women to step to the side of right. Mrs. Fallis had no good word to say on James Murdock's conduct as a Cabinet Minister.

The speaker made no apology for her appearance on the platform with her men friends, and that she did not need to was shown by the hand clapping that greeted her as she rose to speak.

"We have left our old associates, idiots and criminals," she said referring to the old election act before the women's franchise came into force, "and we are now in a class by ourselves."

We now have our responsibilities, Mrs Fallis said of her sisters. Especially when moral issues came up, were women expected to rush over to the right side. This was a clear cut test on this point for West Hastings women.

Vote For Right

"Vote for what we conscientiously believe is right," the gentle speaker said.

At Wembley last year, Queen Mary had said the old Conception of women's place in the world was changed. While the woman's place was primarily at home to train the youth of the country, after that she should acquaint herself with the country's problems.

Mrs. Fallis ventured to assert that Mr. Porter's courageous action recently had strengthened his hold on the regard of the voters of West Hastings.

She did not believe that Mr. Hanna's candidature commended itself to good liberals of the riding. Mr. Hanna was not a Liberal. He had been for some time a Conservative and between Charles Hanna and Mr. Porter one did not need hesitate.

When it came to juggling figures to show a surplus the minister of finance could not be beaten, the speaker said, taking a short jaunt into a humor.

"Now you see it: now you don't: here it is! There's a surplus," said Mr. Robb.

She wondered if Mr. Robb had carried out the bookkeeping of Henry Drayton would there not have been a considerable deficit in place of the mythical surplus.

A Fitting Subject

Next Mrs. Fallis suggested that were James Murdock to come into West Hastings, he might well choose as his subject.

"How to save yor bank deposits before the Bank breaks and still keep your job."

At the Liberal meeting, all speakers laid emphasis on the lue of Charles Hanna, how fine his morals were. It reminded her of the old nurery rhyme.

"O what a good boy am I", Jack Horner's line.

This election was not brought on to allow electors to go into the biographies, she argued, referring to the Liberal tactics.

"Any man would have done the same time," was the Liberal argument. By that we might take it that Mr. Hanna would do the same thing in the same position.

"The Germans had a different code of honor than the Allies," said Mrs. Fallis. "I suppose it all depends on the way you look at things.

"I want to ask the women of West Hastings to roll up such a majority for Mr. Porter that all Canada will understand that women here want nothing but the highest standard of public morals," she concluded.

GATHERING SPEED!

Heavy Market Here, Fair Prices Rule

Vegetables Plentiful and Good Quality Fowl Sells Right

Prices on the market today showed but slight changes over those of a week ago. Strictly fresh eggs advanced in price however, selling at 50c and 55c per dozen, the latter for specials. Several sellers held out in vain for 60c a dozen. Crowds of sellers and buyers made the market a lively place. Much farm and garden produce was offered today, and sold too.

Fresh dairy butter sold at 40c to 43c per pound. Basket lots were procured at a slightly lower figure. Cream sold at 30c a pint.

Dressed fowl, especially chickens, were plentiful and fairly reasonable in price, selling from $1.25 to $1.75 a pair, according to quality. Ducks sold at $1.25 and $1.35 each. A few geese sold from $2.50 to $3 each.

Vegetables were most reasonable in price. Potatoes sold at 85c and 30c a bag, onions 60c a peck and turnips 40c a peck.

Apples ranged in price from $1 to $1.50 per bushel, according to quality. Strawberry tomatoes sold at 10c a quart.

Much reaonably priced meat was cut up, pork selling from 15c to 18c a pound, and beef from 10c to 15c a pound according to cuts.

Ordered Big Meal But Didn't Pay

So Weary Travellers Find Themselves in the Toils

Robert Millerby, 27, bell boy, of Montreal, and Frank B. MacDonald, 24, boilermaker of San Francisco impromptu travellers, arrived in Belleville yesterday and being hungry, decided that they must eat at all costs despite the fact that they were penniless.

Going to the Quinte Cafe, they ordered a full course meal, and when they had finished, calmly refused to pay and explained that they had no money and had not intended to pay anyway.

When Detective John Truaisch arrive at the eating house, the tale was again calmly unfolded, so both were taken into custody on vagrancy charges.

This morning the pair were remanded to the County jail for one week, when and where they will eat regularly

OLD FASHIONED HONESTY NEED AGAIN TO-DAY

H. C. Hocken Lays Down Challenge to U.E.L. Stock

STIRRING ADDRESS

Win For Liberals Blow at Protection He Declares

Ringing a challenge to the sturdy descendants of United Empire Loyalists, that they remain true to the tradions of their fathers before them, H. C. Hocken, M.P., from Toronto, urged his City Hall audience last night to preserve for Ontario and Canada that personal integrity necessary for the well being of the country and absolutely demanded from Cabinet Ministers.

In his stirring campaign speech, he said, he knew how West Hastings would vote, but he wanted to see Mr. Porter's majority doubled.

"A mind reader," said Chairman Ketcheson, following the close of his address, "For we are going to double his majority. (Prolonged applause).

H. C. Hocken was given a most enthusiastic reception as he stepped to the front of the platform. Mr. Porter was a man of courage and consistency he said, whose counsel was sought often at Ottawa. His presence in the House of Commons was of unlimited value to the Conservative party.

An Unthankful Task

The reason for the present bye-election was—because he had the courage to undertake an unthankful task, Mr. Hanna said. And he injected here a tribute to Mr. Porter's delivery of the charge in the House of Commons.

Whatever mistakes the Conservative party had made, it had always been a sincere party. More than that it had always carried out the policy promised before an election. On the other hand the speaker said, there was never a more insincere group of politicians than those to be found on the Government side of the House at the present time.

Mr. Hocken asked his audience to recall that plank in the Liberal platform which promised Free Trade. Yet Liberal members had since told those citizens opposed to such a policy not to worry, that it would never come to pass. That was just one demonstration of the Government's insincerity. It was not a thing that would be done by Mr. Porter or his party.

The Liberal Policy

The Liberal Policy—the dominant note of it—was to hold office, Mr. Hocken asserted.

"Would you propose to send a man to Ottawa who supports that sort of a

Let there be harmony in things essential—liberty in things not essential—Charity in all

VOTE FOR PORTER AND CANADA

The Daily Ontario has finally declared itself in favor of Charles Hanna as the man who should be elected in the West Riding of Hastings in the bye-election a week from Tuesday next. Prodded, no doubt, by disgruntled Liberals who have long looked with disfavor on the apathy of the old organ toward their cause, and weary of the effort to steer a middle course at a point in the stream of politics where the waters have become most turbulent, that newspaper has decided to join the minority of those in West Hastings who would condone the inexcusable mistake of a Cabinet minister for the sake of the Liberal party.

The Ontario has taken its cue well from members of the Government who have invaded the riding and who are seeking desperately to make people forget the reason for the by-election and are trying to manufacture an issue in its place.

While it must be remembered that the Ontario is just getting under way and probably feels somewhat strange in its new environment, it is to be noted that there has not yet been an attempt to show its readers why Murdock should be found not guilty.

The Ontario takes the easy way of evading conscience by stating simply that the majority in Parliament declared their Minister guiltless. The Liberal organ, just taken back to the fold after months of aimless wandering, knows that the Liberal Government through its representatives in the riding can make but a very poor explanation of Murdock's actions. It knows also that it can do no better with the material there is to work on.

The Ontario takes the coward's course, the unsportsmanlike way of deliberately turning its back on a grave issue striking at the very roots of Canada's honor and of directing its efforts toward a subterfuge.

The Ontario implies that this by-election is a cold business deal. It would have its readers forget that Mr. Porter was willing to take the chance of ending a long political career ingloriously because he viewed with alarm wrong-doing on the part of the public servant. The Ontario snap its fingers at the serious issue of the campaign.

To the Ontario, the welfare of West Hastings, in a material way, is the only consideration. They carry the slogan, "Vote for West Hastings and Charlie Hanna."

But conscience will guide the large majority of the good people of West Hastings, who can shelve a selfish local ambition for the honor of the Dominion.

CANADIAN CHEESE

Recent reports show that Canadian cheese is more than holding its own in the British and foreign markets. In referring to this subject a little while ago the Kingston Standard said that the British people were good judges of cheese as they had the production of the whole world to choose from. The article was written in a general way as to this, but since then it has been reported that they have over 200 varieties of cheese to choose from.

Thirty-three of these varieties are made in Great Britain where different districts have strikingly marked preferences in the matter of texture and color of cheeses. Thus Lancashire folk are specially fond of "Manchester White" cheese, while Norfolk people prefer a brick-red variety. Derby, Gloucester, Leicester and York each produce what may be termed regional cheeses, and foreign competitors color their cheeses for these markets accordingly.

It will be just as well for Canadian cheese-makers to notice that there is a big campaign on in Great Britain in favor of "Cheshire" cheese against foreign competition. Canada will have to watch out. It might be good business for them to remember this, and see what they can do in making Canadian Cheshire cheese to suit the British market.

Old Fashioned

policy," he asked.

The policy of the Conservative party was being lived up to, on the other hand.

When he was a boy he worked for the Globe newspaper and yet at the time his first vote he went with about thirty others and voted Conservative.

Train loads of furniture were being brought into Canada from Grand Rapids, Michigan, then due to a low tariff. One factory was closed down and 2,00 workmen thrown out unemployed.

Canada Watching

"If West Hastings elected a Liberal in this bye-election," he said "it would be interpreted throughout Canada that West Hastings is in favor of lower duties. Is that what you want?" (Cries of no sounded through the hall).

There was nothing like a good home market for the prosperity of the farmer he said.

The real issue however, was the integrity of Parliament. He remembered when Mr. McMaster of Brome said in the House that above all, Canada wanted sincere men. He had struck the right note at that time. Ministers of the Crown should be beyond suspicion, Mr. Hocken declared. He asked if people in the audience would keep a clerk in their employ if he kept making misstatements and proved a lack of integrity. He thought not. The employe would be out of a job immediately.

A Government was placed in the House for a period of five years, and for that reason it was much more important that the utmost confidence could be placed in the Ministers of the Crown. His oath of office required him not to take advantage of his position for his own profit. But what did Mr. Murdock do? He heard in the Cabinet Council that the Home Bank was going to fail. He then rushed out and saved his $4,000. At the same time hundreds of others, not in possession of Mr. Murdock's information, had all their savings swept from them.

Proof Enough

Mr. Porter resigned his seat in the House because Murdock's partisans in the House refused to convict him continued the speaker. The case was not proven, they said.

The fact that Murdock gave back his $4,000 to the liquidator was sufficient evidence for most people in Mr. Hocken's opinion.

"Canada has a great future ahead of it but it must build on the bedrock of personal integrity for Government," he said.

No community could go ahead without the simple old-fashioned honesty of the individuals in it. Without the personal integrity, no good government could be established.

It was in the Bay of Quinte District where such personal integrity was to be found among the old faithful United Empire Loyalists. He knew that that same spirit survived with their children and grandchildren.

Same Blood Flowed

The same blood that flowed in the Loyalist blood flowed in people of this riding and he did not believe it was in the people of West Hastings to condone the conduct of James Murdock, who was not fit to sit in the Council.

If there was anything despised by ordinary people, it was shiftiness and evasion. The speaker said he would rather have a man tell a lie outright than to employ shifty evasion and subterfuge.

Mr. Porter had staked his seat in Parliament for the honor of that Parliament. He was before West Hastings seeking re-election and vindication. Mr. Hocken had no doubt how the vote would go, but he wanted to see that majority doubled. (Applause).

"That would be an unmistakable sign for the King Government," he said.

"Deliver me from a man who will take an oath, violate it and then tries to evade the issue when faced with punishment," he concluded.

BEN SPOOR, parliamentary secretary to treasury in the late MacDonald ministry, who was made a privy councillor by the "dissolution honors."

... THE GARDEN OF EDEN?

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

A story has got into the papers about the discovery of a beautiful valley in Northern British Columbia where the temperature never goes below zero in winter time and the freezing point is seldom reached. The location of this valley is placed just south of the Yukon, and it might be difficult to account for the climate were it not that nature has provided a natural heating system by means of boiling springs. Can it be that someone has stumbled on the Garden of Eden? Or perhaps there were more gardens than one.

SHORTAGE OF BIBLES

(From Montreal Herald)

A busy man who wanted to give his child a Bible for Christmas was at a loss to find one. Then he went to a hotel, put up for the night, and stole the Bible the Gideons had placed in the room. That's just a story. But it illustrates the great shortage of Bibles. A Bible Society officer says that it would take 50 years to supply the world with Bibles if the present output is kept up. There are now 30,000,000 copies a year being produced too. Perhaps this sinful old footstool isn't such a bad place as we'd thought if 30,000,000 folk a year can find time to buy and read a Bible. Religion is not dead. Few people live by what they believe to be right. It will hurt none of them to read the bible.

The steamer Turret Crown which went ashore on Meldrum Bay Point, North channel last week is still on the beach, according to the latest reports received at Owen Sound. Tugs are on the scene endeavoring to release the steamer but so far have not been successful and the vessel is lying in a serious position, actually within a few feet of land.

Thirty Years Ago

Jas. Haggerty, M.P.P., was in the city to-day.

Dr. J. M. Forster and Mrs. Forster arrived from the west this evening and are the guests of Mrs. Terrill.

A certain young man in this city has a propensity for proposing, but thus far has found no young lady disposed to entertain his propositions of marriage. He can transfer his affections in a twinkling from a brunette to a blonde, or vice versa, and at each refusal, his now love-calloused heart darts off in another direction, seeking the light of other fair eyes, and willing or unwilling ears into which to pour his "tale of fond affections (with apologies to the "Fatal Wedding"). Suffice it to say that although passably handsome the young swain has thrice been repulsed in as many weeks—still he has hopes of securing a wife to cheer his lot before he will have to buy christmas presents for those who have not yet refused his offer.

Petitions were put in circulation this morning for signatures asking for a free library. The statute requires at least 100 names. When the required number has been obtained the petition will be presented to the council, and a by-law will be drawn up. There should be no difficulty in securing the required number of signatures for so worthy an object.

SINCLAIRS

Very Much Trimmed with Fur

—are the winter Coats that fashion approves most heartily. Seal, Possum, Squirrel and Moufflon are lavishly used on coats of Velray, Marvella, Flamingo and Suedine and the colors, burgundy, crag, toast, penny brown, cocoa, mole, navy and black supply decided beauty. Canton crepe and satin de luxe linings complete the individual loveliness of each model. Prices from $32.50 to $125.00.

FROCKS are Charming in their Originality

Here again, fur wins a place of importance. Tunic frocks and straight beltless styles, all feature fur-trimming cleverly applied. Various crepes, bengaline and georgette in browns, blues, burgundy and black are very attractively fashioned, gaily contrasting trimmings being used, filmy laces and dainty pleatings. These are frocks that are truly unique, with prices ranging from $32.50 to $67.50.

A pleasant event occurred yesterday afternoon when Mr. Reg. Bumpstead, formerly Inspector of Distict Number Five, Provincial Police, and members of the headquarters department here, presented Mrs. Dorothy Whalen wife of Mr. Alfred J. Whalen this city, with a silver dish and ladle.

Mrs. Whalen who was recently married, formerly held a secretarial position at Provincial Police headquarters here, where she was highly esteemed and her service greatly appreciated.

MRS. HARDING IS NEAR DEATH'S DOOR

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 15—After a fretful night during which Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, her physician never left her bedside, Mrs. Florence Kling Harding, widow of the late President, is still in a critical condition today. Lapsing into a state of coma early last night her condition seemed "dangerously alarming" but she survived somewhat and went through the night with only intermittent periods of rest. Mrs. Harding is suffering from kidney trouble and her condition has been grave for about two weeks.

Deaths And Funerals

ALPRESS RAYNOR ASHTON

Captain Alpress Raynor Ashton died this morning at his late residence in Rednersville in his 86th year. He was born in England, and had lived in Rednersville for sixty years, where he was tax collector, and owned a general store. He has been retired for thirty years. Captain Ashton was a member of the Anglican Church and a veteran of the Fenian raid of '66. He leaves to mourn a widow, three daughters, Mrs. W. A. Woodley, Mrs. W. C. Sills, Belleville, Mrs. R. S. Pulver, of Detroit, and two sons, Dr. F. B. Ashton, of Detroit, and H. G. Ashton of Toronto.

WILLIAM RUSSELL

The funeral of the late William Russell took place yesterday from his late residence the 1st concession of Ameliasburg at 2.30 p.m. to Albury Methodist church. Interment was at Albury cemetery and Rev. Mr. Seymour took the service. A large attendance at the funeral testified to the esteem in which deceased was held. The pall bearers were Messrs. Chas. Brickman, Clarence Russell, Wesley Sagerl, John Garbutt, Gill McMurter and C. L. Babcock.

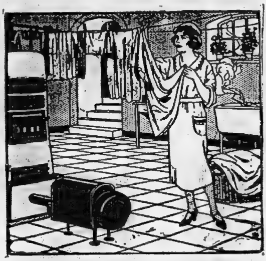
BOOK WEEK

The question "What shall I give my child to Read?" is a question felt if not asked by every mother. We all want to put the best literature within reach of our children. If they do not acquire a taste for the best the parents have themselves to blame. At the very top of a list of books for yong children I want to put "Hurlburt's Story of the Bible". Read it to the very youngest and watch them pore over it when they learn to read themselves. Then of course comes "Alice in Wonderland", "Through the Looking Glass", Stevenson's "Child's Garden of Verses" some Fairy Tales, (not all of them by any means). Then we made a new find in a book for children this year. It is called "Dr Doolittle" and I should like to put it next to Alice in Wonderland. It is a real "find".

I am in possession of a list of books suitable for children in the first and second grades. This list was compiled by Miss Smith, B.A., head of the children's Department of the Toronto Public Library. I hope to publish this in a week or so for your perusal. Give the boys and girls the best.



HERE'S AN OIL BURNER WE CAN GUARANTEE

Before we took on the Oil-O-Matic, we made sure that it was an oil burner we could absolutely guarantee. We know it is right. It has proved itself for five years. Nearly ten thousand are now in use and not one owner would take his out. When you see it you will understand why. Come in and let us demonstrate it for you. See how simple it is. And fully automatic. Safe, clean, odorless, quiet. Burns cheap fuel oil. Has no wasteful pilot light. No part goes in the firebox. Works with any kind of good heating plant. Better see about it today if you want an Oil-O-Matic this year.

EASY TERMS
You can pay for your Oil-O-Matic as you use it if you want to. No interest on the notes. Ask us about this remarkable plan.

WILLIAMS OIL-O-MATIC HEATING

The Williams Oil-O-Matic is indeed somewhat more expensive than certain other Oil Heaters, on the market, but just as a man in buying an expensive car in preference to a cheap one, expects and receives the utmost in comfort, economy in the long run and durability, or in other words gettings just what he pays for, similarly, in buying a Williams', you get the utmost in a heater which will prove to be cheaper and more satisfactory in the long run.

HER NERVES BETTER NOW

Received Much Benefit by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ontario.—"I started to get weak after my second child was born, and kept on getting worse until I could not do my own housework and was so bad with my nerves that I was afraid to stay alone at any time. I had a girl working for me a whole year before I was able to do my washing again. Through a friend I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it. I gave birth to a baby boy the 4th day of September, 1922. I am still doing my own work and washing. Of course, I don't feel well every day because I don't get my rest as the baby is so cross. But when I get my rest I feel fine. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and am going to keep on with it until cured. My nerves are a lot better since taking it. I can stay alone day or night and not be the least frightened. You can use this letter as a testimonial and I will answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. CHARLES CARSON, 27 Forsythe Street, Chatham, Ontario.

Mrs. Carson is willing to write to any girl or woman suffering from female troubles.

Healthy Children Always Sleep Well

The healthy child sleeps well and during its waking hours is never cross but always happy and laughing. It is only the sickly child that is cross and peevish. Mothers, if your children do not sleep well; if they are cross and cry a great deal, give them Baby's Own Tablets and they will soon be well and happy again. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach, banish constipation, colic and indigestion and promote healthful sleep. They are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates and may be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety. You can obtain the Tablets through any medicine dealer at 25 cents a box, or by mail, post paid, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

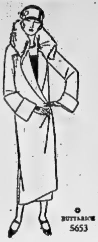
FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



Copper, brick and rust are among the new colors for the ensemble costume, though black for broadcloth is still the first and last choice of many smart women.

The ensemble costume has but one beginning, its narrow, wrap-around coat—but it may have any one of a number of happy endings, a tube frock of the coat material, a soft silk dress to match the coat lining, or a long tunic blouse costume, the lower part matching the coat. These new coats should be wrapped around the figure as closely as possible and held, but it isn't always practical to do so and in shopping it is often more comfortable to button them. Cashmere coatings, soft pile fabric, broadcloth, plush and velvet can be used for either a separate coat or the ensemble coat. Fur fabric is essentially a separate coat material.

As the result of an accident on the provincial highway near Morpeth on November 2, Stanley Orum of Windsor, appeared before Magistrate Arnold in Morpeth on a charge of furiously driving a motor car. He was found guilty, but released on suspended sentence upon settlement for damages to the car, which it is alleged he collided with.

Car Owners Should Study the Laws

Several Continue to Pay $5 Fine for Infractions of Act

The way of the motor car owner is hard if he does not acquaint himself with the divers laws and by-laws which regulate their operation on the highways and bye-ways of life.

Almost each day recently someone, and usually more than one owner or driver appears before the beach to answer charges of infractions of the Highway Traffic Act, the chief charges being parking on certain forbidden main city streets for a period longer than the prescribed half hour, parking too close to fire hydrants double parking on Front street and driving without lights.

A number who appeared this morning anted in their five dollars without costs.

Police report a slight improvement in the perplexing motor car situation, and state that no matter how much or how long they talk their words fall on deaf ears. Money talks however, and penalties in the form of fines are the only effective deterrent, they aver.

Members of the Chatham Rotary Club are very optimistic regarding the crippled children's work, as the result of the report received on the clinic conducted here recently by Drs. Gallie and Robertson, Toronto. There were 55 children at the clinic, according to the report the majority can be helped, and in some cases permanently cured.

"Y" REDS CONTINUE THEIR SWEEP ; BELLEVUES AND GRANITES ARE WINNERS TOO

Bellevues and Granites Winners

At "Y" Bowling Alleys Yesterday Afternoon and Evening

Breezes and Granites met at the Y alleys in a postponed league fixture yesterday afternoon and the latter were returned winners by 360 points. Mrs. Singer with 478 led the scores of both teams while for the Breezes, Hurricane and Blizzard did the heavy work. Naturally, Eh. What!

An early evening contest between the Excelsiors and the Bellevues drew quite a gallery and there was considerable speculation as to which team would turn in the winning score sheet. At the outset fortune favored the Excelsiors and the first string concluded with a credit balance of 71 points for them. In the second and third strings however, Fickle Dame Fortune shifted her allegiance and Bellevues were able gain over one hundred points in each string winning out by 198 points.

This is the kind of proof that convinces. The Fruit Treatment—"Fruit-a-tives"—is sold by all dealers at 25c. and 50c.—or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

Advance Report Very Promising

Bringing up Father Sure Cure For the Blues

Bigger—Better—Funnier—Brighter than ever comes "Bringing Up Father in Ireland" to the Griffin Opera House Wednesday night, November 19. New—from ste mto stern. With a cast of excellent performers. A chorus of unusual beauty and possessing the necessary 'pep' to please not only the blase theatregoer, but the entire family from baby to grandpa. The entire country has acclaimed the marvelous series of comedy cartoons conceived and drawn by that capable artist of the New York American and Journal staff, George McManus. The "Bringing Up Father" series has outlived all other cartoon creations put together. Its popularity grows larger, rather than diminishes as the years go by. Likewise does the stage play of the same title grow in popular favor from Maine to California and from Northern Canada to Galveston, Texas.

Not since the original Barnum's Circus has an attraction been so earnestly desired and expectantly looked for as the coming of "Bringing up Father" on its yearly visit. Capacity business greets this wonderful attraction at every stand. Pleased crowds and still greater crowds that were unable to gain admission to the theatre. There must be a reason, and we guess that reason is the one coined by a newspaper writer in far off Grand Forks Montana. He says "It's a sure cure for the BLUES". What better recommendation could a play have than that "There isn't a dull moment" says the Manchester I. H. Mirror. The Ottawa Canada Citizen says "Greeted by a house packed to the dome." Enthusiastic to the limit of their endurance." Is it any wonder that everybody wants to see "Bringing Up Father in Ireland"

Printers Lost to The "Y" Reds

Winners Took Lead Early and Kept Increasing it

At the Y. M. C. A. bowling alley last night, the Printers bowling team went down to defeat before the Y Red team. In the first game the victors took a decided lead and increased it the two succeeding games. C. Cornell for the Y. Reds had the high single score, 281, also the best three string, 608. For the Printers L. Hill rolled the best single game 229 whilst P. Harrison had the high three string 587. The players and scores were as follows:

Show Hollywood Behind Camera

Interesting Paramount Picture Coming to Belle On Monday

How motion picture stars are made is definitely shown for the first time in pictures when Paramount's "Hollywood," a James Cruze production, comes to the Belle theatre next Monday. 'Hollywood' by Frank Condon, tells of ambitious ones who go to the most famous city in the world—and what they see there.

Among their experiences is the signing of a contract with Cecil B. De Mille in the famous room which such stars as Gloria Swanson, Thomas Meighan, Bebe Daniels and Jack Holt entered as players to emerge as stars.

Cecil B. De Mille was formerly an actor and a finished performance by him is assured. Needless to say this sequence will be watched by the hundreds of players Mr. De Mille has directed.

Cecil De Mille, Pola Negri, Thomas Meighan, William S. Hart, Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Walter Hiers, Leatrice Joy, Jacqueline Logan, Nita Naldi, Betty Compson—to name only a few of the famous Hollywood player-folk seen on Hollywood Boulevard, at the various studios, in the famous luncheon places and at the famous Hollywood Hotel, are pictured in this story. "Hollywood" is hailed as the first real picture of Hollywood as the greatest screen novelty in many seasons.

"Lovers' Lane" Shows Shallowness of Life For Pleasure Only

How many girls have been influenced by the glamour of metropolitan life? How often have they sacrificed love and happiness because they were not content to look for pleasures among the people who loved them most? Happiness to those girls meant living in society, meeting new people, and reaping all the pleasures a big city had to offer. It is a purely selfish craving that has to be satisfied. Love is incidental. Always, however, comes the realization that city life at its best is merely a search for pleasure in its superficial sense, not a pleasure that one derives from service to others, but a physical and mental stimulant which would be the reaction from high life, as it is generally understood.

It is not until they have experienced the thrill of city life that they see the beauty of their own town with all its simplicity, happiness and love.

This idea is developed in the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, "Lovers' Lane," an adaptation from Clyde Fitch's famous stage play of the same name, which is being shown Monday to Wednesday at the Griffin Theatre.

Mary Larkin is one of the many pleasure seekers to whom society life is more important than love in a cottage. She goes to the city to find her happiness, while her sweetheart, Dr. Tom Singleton, remains among the people who need him. Of course, Mary soon sees the real Dr. Tom in contrast to her pleasure-seeking friends in the city, and realizes the wonderful work he has done among the people, although it has meant a sacrifice to himself. Mary comes back to him and finds real happiness in her love for Dr. Tom and their work of service together.

The cast of "Lovers' Lane," headed by Robert Ellis and Gertrude Olmstead, includes Craufurd Kent, Kate Toncray, George Periolat, Ethel Wales, Bruce Guerin, Norval McGregor, and other well known players.

This Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen was adapted by Dorothy Farnum. Phil Rosen directed it.

Maple Leaf Bowlers Excel Themselves

The Maple Leafs rolled one of their best games if not the best for this season when they rolled a total score of 2138 and won from the American Optical Works by a one sided score at the Recreation Alleys last night. The Optical girls lost quite a number of pins by rolling a "John Doe". Miss A. Ethier for the winners, was high bowler, while for the losers Miss Murray was best.

Another loss was marked up for the Kiwanis when the Hikers won from them in the senior league, this is the Kiwanis 7th straight loss and they are going strong to finish the same way judging by the way some of the Kiwanians are bowling. Both teams played four men aside first game and five the last two games. Shappee was the big noise last night with a total of 630. Players and scores.

Whether it is a cut hand or a gashed knee—a torn arm, burnt finger, sprained ankle, bruise or open wound—apply "ABSORBINE JR." full strength.

It may smart for an instant—but it will cleanse the wound, destroy germs, prevent infection, ease the pain and promote rapid and healthy healing.

For toothache, saturate cotton with "ABSORBINE JR." and place in the cavity in the tooth. Then rub the face with this reliable liniment—it stops the pain.

If the children get sore throat or tonsilitis, make a gargle with "ABSORBINE JR." You see how useful, how handy, how necessary it is to keep a bottle of "ABSORBINE JR." always in the house—it saves so much pain and suffering.

Out-Billingsgating Billingsgate

Billingsgate Fish Market has for centuries been famed as the home of the most lurid language. Londoners take off their hats to the Billingsgate fisherman and fishwife when it comes to picturesque profanity. The famous Dr. Ben Johnson once made his colleague Porwell a bet that he would put one of the fishwives in a passion without saying a word that she could understand. He then silently indicated to her with his nose that her fish was stale. Whereupon the fishwife opened her verbal attack. Dr. Johnson answered, "You are an article," and to her next sally, "You are a noun," then "you are an adjective" and so he proceeded through the parts of speech till she broke down crying at being thus "blackguarded."

SPONGE APPLES

Wash, pare, and core six baking apples. Place them in a greased pan—a frying pan is good. Pour one to two tablespoonfuls of water—no more—in about the apples and sprinkle the apples with one half cupful of sugar. Bake for fifteen minutes in a 400 degree F. oven. Meanwhile mix a sponge-cake batter as follows: Beat the yolks of two eggs until thick, adding gradually one cupful of sugar. To this mixture add alternately six tablespoonfuls of hot water and one cupful of pastry flour, sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Add the grated rind of one lemon or one half teaspoonful of lemon extract and fold in last the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry. At the end of fifteen minutes of baking pour off from the apples any liquid which is in the pan (this may be poured over the dessert when serving) and distribute the sponge cake batter over and around the apples. Reduce the heat in the oven to 320 degrees F. and bake for about one hour. Serve hot with hard sauce, made by creaming together one-third cupful butter and one cupful of powdered sugar and flavoring it with one third teaspoonful lemon extract and two-thirds teaspoonful of vanilla.

THE WORLD'S SWEETHEART

"Of personal love songs," says Mr. Davidson Cook in the "Bookman" "as distinct from impersonal gems like 'O my love's like a red, red, rose,' the most popular is not any of the love lyrics of Robert Burns, but one which, like most of his tributes to the fair, enshrines the beauty and charm of a real woman, who lived in the flesh as surely as she still lives in the song which pays homage to her witchery, not under an artificial appellation of classic lore but in her own simple name of 'Annie Laurie.' No song is more frequently sung, no air better known than the never-cloying melody to which it is set, and it would be no exaggeration to say that Annie Laurie is the World's Sweetheart.

"Annie Laurie was the younger daughter of Sir Robert Laurie, of Maxwelton Bt., by his second wife Jean, daughter of Walter Riddell, Minto. She was born at Maxwelton House on December 16th, 1682. Annie Laurie was wooed by William Douglas of Fingland (born at Sanquhar Castle in 1672) and his love and her beauty and 'promise true' inspired him to write the first version of the song. He was a soldier of fortune and famed as a swordsman and duellist. The song is suppose to have been written about 1700, after his return from the Continental Wars. Something parted the lovers, but the soldier-poet did not 'lay down his head and die'. On the contrary, in 1706 he married at Edinburgh Elizabeth Clerk, daughter of Alexander Clerk, of Glendorth. Four years later Annie Laurie married Alexander Fergusson, of Craigdarroch."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

"Worried"—We read a good deal about Sunday Night Suppers and indeed there is a charm about the informality of such suppers that gives it an unique place. It may be served in the dining room on a polished table or it may be served on small tables grouped around the fireside in the livingroom. In my own home it has long been an institution and the children love it. We just pile everything on the teawagon and wheel it in beside the fire. Try it on your family-in-law one and their stiff formal ways will melt under its wonderful charm I'm sure.

"Queen"—Mother Goose and Alice in Wonderland knew that queens made tarts and ate them too. No, it is not necessary to use puff paste to make good tarts. Plain pastry can be made so light and flaky that it can be made to serve the same purpose as puff paste. Remember to handle the pastry lightly and quickly keeping all utensils as cold as possible.

I gave a recipe yesterday for a particularly delicious tart which I hope you will try. Do not let the "knave" steal them before you try one yourself.

"G. M."—Moth balls are not pleasantly fragrant are they. Not long ago I read of a homemade moth ball which was said to be excellent for keeping moths away. As the rind of the orange shrinks it holds the cloves so firmly that they cannot fall out. When the orange is quite dry the result will be a ball that imparts a sweet scent to the garments as well as keeping away the dreaded moth. It ought to be worth trying.

SHORT VISION

Some ants upon a level plain Mound building, worked with might and main,
And raised a hill ten inches high,
 Then one of them began to rant,
And said with speech extravagant
 "Our mountain reaches to the sky."
And lots of people are like that.
 Each thinks the head beneath his hat
Is really wiser far than Moses;
 But what he says betrays that he
Is one of those who cannot see
 A distance farther than their noses.

IF THE ELEPHANT CAME

By Livingston B. Morse

Did you ever really stop to think
 How dreadful it would be
If the Elephant came to stop all night
 Of course you'd have to be polite
 And offer him your things:
But who knows the junk
 In an Elephant's trunk
Or what it is he brings?
 Your nightie would be quite absurd;
Your slippers wouldn't fit:
 And as for caps and coats and gloves—
They wouldn't do a bit.
 I hardly think he'd wear your boots
Or use your brush and comb;
 I fancy that the best way out
Would be to send him home.

AFTER ALL

After all, to be living
 To be part of it all, to be Something of all the giving,
 Something of all we see.
Something of all that's glowing
 In the world around us dear—
After all to be living,
 Now this moment and here!
What if the dreams do shatter,
 What if the dust does rise;
What if the small things matter,
 What if the spirit cries!
Something in all makes even
 The joy and the sadness true;
Storms may shadow our heaven,
 But skies next day are blue.
Just to be part of the effort,
 A seed in the growth of time,
A bubble of bloom in the weather,
 A breath of the morning's rime;
God it is worth the anguish
 Just to be living the part
Of the beautiful world whose singing
 Is a song in the heart!

NATURE LORE

By

Wallace Havelock Robb

WHY SHE WAS QUEEN

Nature has its own little rules of etiquette. It has glorious and magnificent rules or laws to govern all things great and small, from thunder down to dandelions but, in the case of the animals and men, there are many more little funny rules that were made by these folks, in order to have things run smoothly. We shall find many of these queer little rules to talk about from time to time but, just now, we are concerned with the great respect all the other birds, at our winter feeding station, had for Mrs. Woodpecker. This was not so much like a rule as it was like manners, for it depended on the attitude of the birds as individuals. For instance, Mrs Chicadee admitted, without any doubt that Mrs. Woodpecker was queen of the shelf but that pug nosed Mrs. Nuthatch, while admitting the superiority of Mrs. Woodpecker was already ready to stick her nose up and show that she was independent by holding a sunflower seed tilted up in her beak so that she looked pug nosed, whenever she thought she could do it safely.

It all happened in this way.

We had prepared a winter feeding station. I had been told that the people who lived in this house before us were bird lovers and that the birds would likely be looking for friendship so, about the first of November, I made a nice sheltered feeding table, about as high off the ground as my shoulder and fitted it with a canopy to help keep the snow off.

No birds came for several days and I began to wonder if they would come at all, I went and got a book at the library and read up on this bird feeding.

The book would not tell me one thing I had not done, for I had put out suet chopped up nut meats canary seed, crumbs sunflower seed, millet, weed seeds, fine sand and oat meal. I was just about to give up, when I noticed a line that said to not give up hope if the birds did not come but to put suet and food in the bark of trees, for several hundred feet from the table.

I went right home and started down the street with suet and sunflower seeds putting some in the bark of each tree and in a week, all the birds in town were at the table, for they followed the trail.

We had been running our boarding house for birds, for about two weeks and there seemed to be no particular order about the place, it was come and go as you please, with a lot of confusion. My, how we all enjoyed those morning feeds before I went to work.

One morning, Joe called me in a hurry and, of course, Miriam was out of bed too, like a shot when she heard him call. Miriam and I joined Joe at the window of his room, looking down on the table. All the birds were dashing about but unable to get on the table because the fort was held by a newcomer. Mr. Red Squirrel had found out where all the birds had been going every morning for you know all the creatures of the woods are curious and they keep an eye on everyone and everything, so nothing will happen without their knowing all about it, so Mr. Squirrel found out where the food came from, by watching and following the birds. He had arrived early in the morning and had climbed up the pole and was right in the middle of the food table, eating like a little pig and keeping the birds off.

The poor birds were hungry and piece of something when Mr. Squirrel's attention was taken up by an attack from the rear on the part of her mate Mr. Nuthatch. Joe and Miriam ran to the bed and pulled the covers to keep them warm for they were in their nighties. Such a fuss. The children were annoyed at the squirrel and thrilled with the attempts of the birds to snatch food by attacking on two different sides at one time.

I was just making up my mind to "do something about it," when I saw a swooping flight to a nearby tree. All the birds saw it too and so did that pig of a squirrel for he bristled up and prepared to fight. It was Mrs. Hairy Woodpecker! Everything stood still, Mrs. Woodpecker gave a warning call, then swooped for the table, only to find it held by Mrs. Squirrel, who did not obey the warning call.

Mrs. Woodpecker swerved off to one side and landed on the tree again. She took one careful look. Mr. Squirrel braced his feet and bared his teeth. Swoop came Mrs. Woodpecker and zoop went the squirrel, for he lost his footing and fell off the table into the snow. He left the place in a hurry and we all hollered "Hurrah" so loudly, we nearly scared Mrs. Woodpecker. The other birds all ate in peace after she had eaten alone. Do you wonder that she was Queen of our table

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"And I," he said. "Why, I have not been able to get it out of my head! I thought of you every minute; and I tried not to, because—"

"Because?" she said. "Pray go on!" and she smiled.

"Well," he said, modestly, "because it seemed like presumption. And then I went to the theatre, and—" he stopped. "For a moment or two I couldn't believe that it was really you on the stage there. And when the people in the theatre began to shout out your name it woke me from a kind of dream."

She smiled in silence; then she made a movement threatening her departure.

"Ah, wait a little while!" he pleaded. "It is delightful here in the sunshine. Don't go for a minute or two. I wish—" he stopped.

"What is it you wish?" she asked, regarding him with smiling eyes that drooped under his ardent ones.

"Well," he said, "I wish that you would let me go home with you and see Mr. Jeffrey——"

"Jeffrey Flint," she said. She shook her head. "He sees no one, makes no acquaintances. He—he is very reserved."

Speaking of him reminded her of the fact that he would strongly disapprove of her interview with this strange young gentleman. She rose.

"I must go now," she said. "I have not asked whether you were hurt by your fall, Lord Neville, but I hope you were not."

"Must you go?" he said, ignoring the rest of her sentence as of no account. "We seem to have been talking only a few minutes! And there was such a lot that I wanted to say! I wanted to tell you all that I thought when I saw you last night; but I couldn't if I had the chance, because I am a perfect idiot when it comes to expressing myself. But I do think it was wonderful! Are you going to play to-night? But of course you are."

"Yes," she said absently, "I play to-night. I play every night."

"I shall be there," he said, as if it were a matter of course.

She looked at him thoughtfully.

"Of course I shall!" he said. "Why, last night I seemed to have a kind of interest in it which the other people in the theatre hadn't. Yes. As if—as if—I know you intimately, you know. Of course, I shall be there! And I shall bring a big bouquet. What flowers do you like best?"

She almost started, as if she had not been listening to him; as a matter of fact, she had been listening to the deep, measured voice rather than the words.

"Flowers?—oh—violets," she said, unthinkingly.

"Why!" he exclaimed. "That is what I threw you last night! Of course you didn't know. You can't see beyond the footlights, can you? I've heard you can't. Violets! I'll get some I shall take a seat in the stall to-night. I shall see and hear you better there."

"I should have thought you had seen and heard me enough already," she said with a smile.

"No, but I haven't!" he responded, eagerly. "I couldn't see you or hear you too much if I looked at you and listened to you all day!"

Her face grew crimson, but she turned her head toward him with a smile on her face.

"For flattery, pure and simple, I don't think you could surpass that, Lord Neville."

Flattery!" he exclaimed, as if hurt. "It is no flattery. It is the honest truth. And, Miss Marlowe I do not ask you to believe—"he saw her start and lift her head as if listening, and looking up to ascertain the cause, saw that her eyes were fixed upon some spot behind him, and he heard the sound of footsteps.

HIVES OR NETTLE RASH

Hives, a form of skin trouble medically known as urticaria, is often spoken of by its popular name, nettle rash, because the distinctive type of the eruption looks like that caused by the sting of a nettle; that is to say, it occurs in the form of wheals, which are red or red and white slightly raised patches, and is usually accompanied with intense itching. It may occur at any age, but is more usual in children. In most cases it can be traced to some error in diet or to some digestive disturbance. Personal idiosyncrasy must be taken into account ;there are articles of food that certain people cannot eat without having hives immediately. Most prominent among these articles are shellfish, strawberries, pork, and all highly seasoned foods. In chronic urticaria there is often the so-called gouty diathesis or some other condition in which the balance between assimilation and excretion is disturbed. Hives may also accompany violent emotional disturbance in people of unstable nervous balance. Local treatment is directed to curing the intense itching that generally accompanies the trouble, and systematic treatment to correcting errors in diet. It should be needless to add that, if a personal susceptibility has declared itself—if, for example, a meal including shellfish is followed by an outbreak of wheals—the victim may just as well make up his mind to eschew shellfish or the particular form of shellfish that he has just eaten. For allaying the itching an alkaline or an acid lotion may be used. Bicarbonate of soda in water is almost always speedily efficacious, but are not quite so pleasant; nothing is to be gained by substituting them for the alkalies.

Neuritis

Neuralgia, Sciatica and Sciatic-Rheumatism

Had Neuritis Several Years

Mr. John Woodward, Lucan, Ontario, writes:—

"I was a sufferer from neuritis for several years, and tried all kinds of remedies, yet never seemed to get any better. At last my nerves and whole system seemed to give way, through not being able to get any rest or sleep at nights for pain which mostly used to take me in all parts of the limbs and feet. My nerves would twitch till my whole body would seem to jerk right up as I lay in bed. Almost at the point of despair, I thought of Dr. Chase's Almanac and after reading different testimonials, I decided I would get Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which I did, and I feel it my duty to tell you of the benefit I derived. I am more than proud to say that after taking over twenty boxes I believe myself almost normal again, and for the past year I seem to enjoy my usual health."

Neuralgic Headache

Mr. Earnest Clark, Police Officer, 338 King St., Kingston, Ont., writes:—

"For three years I suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness. I believe my condition was brought about by overwork. I had frequent headaches, neuralgic pains and twitching of nerves and muscles. I had indigestion, was short of breath and easily tired. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and seven boxes of this medicine relieve me of all my symptoms. I am now feeling one hundred per cent. better than I was, and have to thank Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the good health I am now enjoying."

Neuritis in Hands

Mrs. A. MacNeill, St. Marys, Ont., writes:—

"For some time I suffered from neuritis, which affected me mostly in the hands. The pain used to be severe at times. I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and five or six boxes of this treatment broke it up. Since then I have not been troubled with those severe pains in my hands, and can cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone suffering as I did."

NEURITIS is inflammation of a nerve. The pain is burning and tearing, not darting as in neuralgia, and is increased by movement.

There may be swelling and sensitiveness to touch, and sometimes redness of the skin.

Your experience will tell you that neuritis, like neuralgia and sciatica, only bothers you when your nervous system gets run down.

Restore energy and vigor to the nerves and you remove the cause of these torturing ailments.

Your experience with external applications has not been satisfactory. Drugs taken to deaden the pain are used at tremendous expense to the nervous system.

The nerves must be nourished back to health and vigor by the use of such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Rest and a course of treatment with this great nerve restorative is the most certain way to entirely remove the cause of neuritis and similar ailments arising from a depleted condition of the nerves.

It takes a little time to rebuild the wasted nerves. You will need a little patience. But you can use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food knowing that with each dose you are supplying to the system certain ingredients which go to instil new vigor and energy into the tired, starved nerves.

A few letters are quoted here to tell of the benefits others are obtaining from the use of this restorative treatment.

Ask your friends and neighbors about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for there is scarcely a community but can produce lots of evidence of its remarkable control over diseases of the nerves.

Neuritis and Neuralgia

Mrs. Wm. Mapletoft, Mount Forest, Ont., writes:—

"For about three years I suffered from neuritis in my right side. I had pains through my back and twitching of the nerves and muscles. I had also been operated on for appendicitis, and it left me a nervous wreck. I was very restless and uneasy, and bothered with frequent neuralgic headaches. My appetite was poor and I sometimes took weak spells. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and in a very short time I found relief. This medicine has done me the world of good and I can recommend it to all suffering as I was. One Spring, also, my husband was all run down and hardly able to work. I bought six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which he took, and he has felt fine ever since."

Rheumatism

Mrs. C. H. Christoffer, Greenbrier, Sask., writes:—

"It is a pleasure to me to write you in praise of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I suffered for over twenty years from rheumatism, neuralgia, violent headaches and palpitation of the heart. My back ached, I could not sleep, and was always tired and nervous. I had taken a great many medicines of one kind and another, but never got anything to help me until I used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This did me more good than all the medicines I ever took, and I cannot say enough in praise of it."

Neuritis in Back

Mrs. George Taylor, 53 Malokof St., St. Thomas, Ont., writes:—

"I had been in the hospital for an operation, and afterwards found my system in a run down condition. I had also contracted neuritis in my back. I got a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found benefit from them, so I continued the treatment until I had taken about 24 boxes. This has made me much stronger, and built up my whole system. I also found that as I got stronger my back ached less. I certainly am pleased with the results I have obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and am glad to be able to recommend it."

MAKING WALLPAPER

Do you know how your wallpaper is made? No matter what the quality of the wallpaper may be or the price asked for it, every design is first produced in water colors.

After the parts of the design to be printed in each color are separtely drawn they are ready for transferring to the rollers. This may be done either by engraving the design on copper rollers or by taking wooden rollers and working out the design by means of small brass strips, the spike ends of which are driven into the wood.

Before the actual printing takes place the paper is given a background. This is done by passing the huge reels of paper through machines fitted with mechanical arms which brush the paper with a suitable coloring matter.

The reels of tinted paper now pass to the drying-rooms, where the regulated heat removes every trace of moisture. In the meantime the machines are made ready by arranging the pattern rollers around a large drum. As the paper is fed into one end of the machine, each roller prints upon it one of the colors that go to make up the complete design.

The coloring matter is applied to the rollers by means of endless woven belts which, passing through the color troughs, ensure supplies of the right color being applied to each roller.

After the rolls of paper are printed they pass to the drying-rooms. To give the wallpaper a superior finish it is passed through a machine with an engraved roller revolving against a soft plain one. In this way the different markings or "grains" are pressed into the paper.

Thoroughly dried for the last time the paper is mechanically measured, rolled, and cut.

As the rolls are being wound, the machine marks off the paper into lengths. This mark the operator looks for. When it appears, the machine is stopped for a moment, the paper is cut, and the neatly wound rolls are removed ready for use.—Tit Bits.

LEACOCK'S LATEST

"For ever so many centuries the Human Mind had lain more or less dormant," says Mr. Stephen Leacock, in "Gaiety." "It was known that it was there. But just where it was and what it did, and how it did it was a matter on which nothing, if anything was known.

"Within recent years all this has changed. A great wave of mind culture has swept over the community. People who never had any before now have little else. It is generally admitted that the human mind was first discovered about four years ago by a brilliant writer in one of the Sunday journals. His article 'Have we a Subconscious Ego?' was immediately followed by a striking discussion under the title 'Are We Top Side Up?' This brought forth a whole series of popular articles and books under such titles as 'Willing and Being,' 'How to Think,' 'Existence as a Mode of Thought,' 'The Super Self,' and such special technical studies as 'The Mentality of the Hen' and 'The Thought Process of the Potato.'

This movement once started has spread in every direction. All our best magazines are now full of mind. In every direction one sees references to psycho-analysis, auto-suggestion, hypnosis, psychiatry, inebriety, and things never thought of a little while ago. The poor are studying the psychology of wealth and the rich are studying the psychology of poverty. Memory has been reduced to a system. A good memory is now sold for half a guinea. Everybody's mind is now analysed. People who used to be content with the humblest kind of plain thinking or with none at all, now resolve themselves into 'reflexes' and 'complexes' and 'impulses.' Some of our brightest people are kleptomaniacs, paranoiacs, agorphobists, and dolomites.

"A lot of or best friends turn out to be subnormal, and not worth knowing. Some of the biggest business men have failed in the intelligence test, and have been ruined. A lot of our criminals turn out not to be criminals at all, but merely to have a 'reaction' for other people's money."

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Desk Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great "booster" for Zutoo Tablets.
He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:
"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

To be Healthy-
Watch your Kidneys

The kidneys play a vitally important part in your bodily health. They are the filters of your body—the purifiers of the blood stream.

If the kidneys are clogged with impurities, the blood becomes poisoned and, in turn, poisons the whole system.

Unless the trouble is checked, serious kidney and bladder derangements, often requiring the surgeon's knife, may result.

Avoid kidney trouble! Take Gin Pills. They will cleanse the kidneys, restore them to normal action, and bring you back to good health. Gin Pills rarely fail. Get a box to-day.

A NATIONAL ASSET

As the greatest transportation company in the world, the Canadian Pacific Railway has maintained a national service in the Trans-Canada Limited which is second to none and on the conclusion of the summer schedule of this crack train has transferred the equipment to the Vancouver Express which leaves Toronto every night at 10.10 p.m. on its trip across the continent, via Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, the spiral tunnel, Sicamous and parts of the Canadian Pacific Rockies famous throughout the world, on its way to Vancouver, where the travellers are unanimous in their praise of the service of the Vancouver Hotel. The Canadian Pacific also operates a steamship service to Victoria, the Mecca for winter tourists.

Not only does the Vancouver Express carry tourist and standard sleepers, but it also carries a compartment-observation car complete in itself, while a parlor car is added from Revelstoke to Vancouver.

Added to this national service is a feature service from Toronto to Montreal via the Lake Shore Line, which has been entirely reballastd with crushed rock and relaid with 100 pound rails, insuring a maximum of comfort for travellers at night as well as an absence of dust in daytime. Trains leave Toronto Union Station at 9.00 a.m./daily, 10.00 p.m. daily except Saturday and 11.00 p.m daily. Arriving at Windsor Station, the traveller has the benefit of immediate facilities in the women's rest room, lunch room and barber shop, which cannot be duplicated in any other station in Montreal. An added convenience is offered those who wish to travel to Montreal from North Toronto in the 9.45 p.m. train, daily except Saturdays, from Yonge Street Station.

Canadian Pacific agents will gladly make your reservations and supply you with any information you require. They are fully qualified to offer a "second to none" service to the public.

Attorney General's Work Appreciated

City Prohibition Union Passes Resolution; Organize For Good

"That this Prohibition Union of the City of Belleville herein records its appreciation of the efforts put forth by the Honorable W. F. Nickle, Attorney General, in the enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act. It is recognised that a difficult task has been performed with an honest purpose and with a general measure of success. It is highly satisfactory to all supporters of Prohibition that the results of the Plebiscite vote is accepted by the Premier and his Government as decisive; that the promises of amendment and stricter enforcement are to be carried out; that the Attorney General's department shows such signs of organization and activity as inspire confidence in the future administration. Full and continued support is hereby pledged to the Attorney General, and to all in authority under him in the faithful enforcement of the law."

The above resolution was unanimously carried at a meeting of Prohibitionists held in the Y.M.C.A. rooms on Thursday evening.

It was decided to place the Prohibition Union on a permanent basis, and the following officers were elected:

President—Mr. H. W. Ackerman.

Vice Presidents—Mr. F. S. Deacon and Mrs. H. L. Pearsall.

Secretary—Rev. Dr. MacTavish.

Treasrer—Mrs. Nettie Farley.

Executive Committee—Rev. N. S. McKechnie, F. E. O'Flynn, G. T. Woolley, George Madden and Mrs. G. F. Cole.

Three committees were appointed, one on Law Enforcement, another on Publicity and a third on Education.

The greatest enthusiasm prevailed, and evidently the members of the union are determined that conditions, so far as temperance is concerned must, and will be, improved.

SAID FAREWELL TO DEPARTING FRIEND

A very pleasing event took place at the home of Mrs. D. A. Martin, 139 Ann street, Wednesday evening Nov. 12th when about twenty of the friends and neighbors of Miss Foley assembled to bid her adieu on the eve of her departure to Western Canada where she intends in the future to make her home. After a short time spent in a social way, Miss White called the gathering to order, when the following address was read by Mrs. Farley, during the reading of which Mrs. Foster presented Miss Foley with a beautiful club-bag.

Dear Miss Foley it is with pleasure mingled with regret that we have gathered here to-night to spend an evening in your company prior to your leaving for the west. We as your friends desire to express our appreciation of your life among us. We shall have lost a kindly, cheery and friendly neighbor and you will leave behind you many staunch friends. But we are sure you will soon make a place for yourself in the hearts and lives of your new neighbors, and we hope and prey that you will be happy among them. When you start westward on your journey we desire to send something with you that we trust you will not forget and leave in the train or station. Please accept the gift because of the love that prompted it, and with the prayers that every good blessing may come to you, and we all join most heartily in wishing you a pleasant and prosperous journey and success in all your undertakings.

On behalf of your Belleville friends.

Although taken completely by surprise, Miss Foley with true womanly instinct and intuition made a brief but very suitable and feeling reply. Refreshment were then served. The gathering broke up about midnight with everyone wishing Miss Foley the very best of good luck and thinking kindly of Mrs. Martin's generous hospitality.

Why Rheumatism
Often Comes Back

The Usual Treatment Does Not Reach the Root of the Trouble

Most treatments for rheumatism do no more than aim to keep down the poison in the blood and enable nature to overcome that particular attack. Then when the system becomes run-down from any cause the disease again gets the upper hand and it all has to be done over.

Sufferers from rheumatism who have found their condition unrelieved or actually growing worse while using other remedies, would do well to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The tonic treatment with this medicine has proved in thousands of cases that it builds up the blood to a point that enables it to cast out the rheumatic poisons through the regular channels, the bowels, kidneys and the skin. When this is done rheumatism is banished, and as long as the blood is kept pure and rich the patient will be immune from attack. This is fully proved by the case of E. E. Davis, J.P., of Dinsmore, Sask., who says:—"I feel it my duty to sufferers from rheumatism to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Some years ago I was a great sufferer from this trouble and was confined to my room. I tried two doctors without relief and had become despondent. Then I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills recommended for this trouble and got six boxes. Before they were all gone I was able to get around on crutches, and when I was on the eleventh box I started to work. I have not missed a day's work since on account of rheumatism. On two occasions since I have had light touches of the trouble, but a box of the pills soon put me right. I strongly recommend rheumatic sufferers to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Pimply Skin

APPLY SULPHUR AS TOLD WHEN YOUR SKIN BREAKS OUT

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickly by applying Mentho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

Take Crossen To "Pen"

Port ope, Nov. 15—The final episode in the Crossen murder trial took place Friday morning, when Sheriff Nesbitt and Gaoler McLaughlin escorted William John Crossen to Kingston to undergo the six years' sentence imposed on him by Mr. Justice Wright for manslaughter. Crossen seemed greatly relieved that the trial was over.

Herb Brundrette Dead

Port Hope, Nov. 15—People in Port Hope were shocked Friday when they learned that Mr. Herb Brundrette had died at six o'clock. "Herb" along with Messrs D. H. Chisholm and Alf. Long had just returned from a hunting trip and had been in camp several miles north of Maynooth, in the Bancroft section. It apears that the hunters had had some luck, as Mr. Brundrete, while hauling a deer into a canoe got wet to the knees. An attack of rheumatic fever developed, and he immediately came home, arriving in Port Hope on Monday morning. He went to bed immediately and Dr. Beamish was called. Nothing serious was expected, although he contracted a slight attack of pleurisy. Thursday night he seemed to be in the best of spirits and chatted and talked with Mrs. Brundrette and other visitors. About six o'clock Friday morning he got out of bed, and immediately complained about feeling funny and slumping down on the bed he expired.

Lost Their Son

Much sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. John Sutherland of Hybla, North Hastings, in the loss of their young son who died a couple of weeks ago, and then the loss of their home by fire on Friday morning last. A pall of tar boiling over the stove caused the conflagration which destroyed the home and contents. Mr. Sutherland was absent from the house just at the time of the accident and arrived too late to save the situation. Fortunately the barn and season's crop was saved.—Bancroft Times.

Jersey City—Hundreds of families returning to homes from which they were driven yesterday by approach of flames and fumes from fire which destroyed two big factory blocks with loss of between one and half and two million dollars.

Guilty Or Not Guilty ?

WEST HASTINGS ELECTORS COMPOSE JURY TO RENDER VERDICT ON ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT CASES EVER PUT TO PEOPLE OF CANADA; THE EVIDENCE IS CONCLUSIVE

The by-election, which is to be held in the historic riding of West Hastings one week from to-morrow, is as important, if not more so, than any other in the history of our great Dominion of Canada. When the voters of West Hastings repair to the various polling booths dotting the country from the placid Bay of Quinte to the virgin tracts north of Bancroft, they will be on a mission more serious, more sacred than they have ever undertaken before.

The electors of the West riding of Hastings are jury men for the occasion. They have been picked from the millions of Canadians to hear all the evidence relating to a serious charge against a minister of the Dominion cabinet—that of violating an oath of office.

Just as twelve men good and true are chosen impartially in the law courts of Canada, so have the jurymen in this case been chosen. There are thousands in the country who would find it exceedingly difficult to sit on this case, men and women who lost hundreds and hundreds of dollars through the failure of the Home Bank and who are righteously indignant at this Cabinet Minister who would have made their losses greater, had it not been for the intervention of the liquidator on their behalf. These people are the depositors of the sunken Home Bank, who, it is repeated, could hardly be expected to be impartial.

It so happened that in the riding of West Hastings represented by Mr. E. Guss Porter, there was but a small handful of people directly affected by the failure of the Home Bank. There was no branch of the Home Bank here. If there was any group of men and women in Canada admirably suited for jurors it was West Hastings people. Realizing this, Mr. Porter took his own political career in his hands and offered his constituents for the job.

Few in West Hastings are trying to wriggle out of this jury duty. The unusual interest taken in the political meetings throughout the riding in the past few days indicates that men and women are capable of handling the trust placed with them and that they are seeking earnestly to digest every last bit of evidence.

West Hastings voters will go to the polls on November 25 sworn to give an honest verdict as surely as if they stood in the jury box, with Bible in hand.

Unfortunately in this trial, there is no presiding judge to guide the conduct of the case and to maintain the rules of evidence. Representatives of the Liberal Party from Ottawa, who are in the riding of West Hastings, are seeking a verdict in their favor at all costs, merely to save the face of the government in power. They are insulting the intelligence of the jury by addressing jurors on matters which have absolutely no bearing on the charge, knowing that there is no one to check them up.

Liberals have even gone so far as to lay charges against the lawyer directing in prosecution, and so far as the actual case against the defendant is concerned, have made no real attempt to prove him not guilty.

It is with all this in mind, that the Intelligencer is presenting before the jury of West Hastings as complete a statement of the facts as possible. Even as a jury of twelve men in a law court of the land is asked to withhold sympathy and to render a verdict on the facts contained in the evidence, so electors of West Hastings are asked to forget the implied plea of "poor Jim Murdock" advanced by the Liberals and to pass judgment as becomes stern guardians of the honor of Canada.

This Cabinet Minister of the Liberal Government, who is charged with violating his oath of office, styles himself as a Labor man. He holds the position of Minister of Labor. And it is true that practically all his life he has been identified with the affairs of Labor organizations.

In many ways, his has been a remarkable career. Starting out at the foot of the ladder, he has climbed to one of the highest positions of honor Canada has to offer. From a job on the railroad, similar to that held by several in the City of Belleville, he has used Labor organizations as stepping stones to reach wealth and great personal honor—honor which it is claimed he has stained.

James Murdock had reason to congratulate himself at the time just prior to the failure of the Home Bank last year. After years of fairly good pickings in connection with Labor disputes, on conciliation boards and in other work, he had landed a job as commissioner on the Board of Commerce, which paid him a yearly salary well up in the thousands. To cap that, he had schemed for a position on the MacKenzie King cabinet. And since 1921, as a Cabinet minister, he had been drawing a salary of $14,000 a year with expenses running up to $5,000. He had obtained a $25,000 home in Ottawa.

The exact financial standing of James Murdock at that time, we do not know. In this case, it is no business of ours or of the jurors of West Hastings. He should have been comfortably well off if good salaries count for anything.

We do not know, however, that apart from his property holdings in Ottawa, James Murdock had something over four thousand dollars in cold cash lying in the Ottawa branch of the Home Bank.

Then one day, or one night to be exact, there came to Ottawa high officials of the Home Bank with the information that unless the Government helped out, that Bank would have to close its doors immediately.

Perhaps there was not a dozen people in the whole of Canada who knew then the situation the Home Bank was in. Certainly the Government did not know. The news they received came like a bombshell.

These couriers from the Home Bank visited the home of one of the Government that night and unfolded the whole story.

The next morning, a meeting of the Cabinet was called hurriedly to discuss the unexpected situation. It was a well attended meeting and was favored with the presence of James Murdock, the Minister of Labor.

To repeat, the Government was surprised. But the most surprised individual at that meeting was James Murdock. One can easily imagine the sinking feeling at his heart following the breaking of the news. His four thousand dollars was in grave danger of being lost forever.

One can imagine, too, how James Murdock fidgetted during that meeting of the cabinet. He was torn between his duty and his selfish desires.

On the one hand, he must have remembered that when he took office, he swore on his oath that he would not use his position as a Minister of the Crown to advance his own ends. Information he received as a Cabinet Minister was not to be employed by him for his own profit. On the other hand, he had one grand chance to save his money.

We have no record of what went on in Murdock's mind at that meeting. But we have the conclusion he reached. For just as soon as he could leave the meeting, he rushed out of the Parliament Buildings and made his way hastily to the branch of the Home Bank where he kept his four thousand.

Once at the Bank, Murdock filled in a withdrawal slip for four thousand dollars and presented it at the paying teller's wicket.

The cashier offered to give a marked cheque, but the wise Cabinet Minister, armed with the knowledge that the crash might come at any hour, was not satisfied with that. He demanded real money.

Obligingly, the bank official went to the vault and counted out four hundred ten dollar bills and gave the roll to Murdock.

It is not hard to picture Murdock sighing with relief as he left the door of the Home Bank, his money safe in his hands. Without a doubt, the feel of four hundred ten dollar bills was a glorious one to the Minister.

But his mission was not ended. He repaired to the Parliament Buildings and his private office. Calling in a young girl stenographer from his department, he placed the big roll in her hands.

The poor lady was nervous. She had never had so much money in her hands before. But she listened to instructions from her boss, took the money and went away.

The instructions which James Murdock gave his hired girl can hardly be matched with the dignity which is supposed to attach itself to a Minister of the Crown for the Dominion of Canada. He told her to take the money to the Royal Bank and to deposit in her name. He would get it back from her when he was ready.

What foolish things men do when they wander from the beaten path of square dealing!

Murdock thought then that he was through with the business; that he had fooled the Home Bank, the other depositors, the whole Dominion of Canada. But Murdock had fooled himself.

Through the clearing house, the four hundred Home Bank ten dollar bills went back to the Home Bank. To Murdock's credit, or rather to the credit of his stenographer, were perfectly good Royal Bank funds.

Had it not been for the failure of the Home Bank, Peter Smith, another Cabinet Minister in a different Government, might not have been sent to penitentiary to easily. The fact that the books of the defunct bank were open to inspection gave the prosecution material to use which they might not otherwise have had.

In the same way, James Murdock reckoned not with the liquidator of the Home Bank, and the fact that the records of his banking transaction were available to prying eyes.

Someone spotted the withdrawal and tongues commenced to wag around places where folks were in the know. In a short time a reporter of the Ottawa Journal heard of it and in a shorter time he paid a visit to James Murdock to hear what he had to say for himself.

That interview the reporter had with the Minister of Labor was part of his daily work. But in performing his duty, he rendered an invaluable service to his country. He launched a bold attack on influences at work to drag down the dignity of Parliament and the honor of Parliament.

The visit of the reporter was a surprise to James Murdock. He had long been patting himself on the back, no doubt, for his smart work in covering up his tracks. He had thought never to have heard again of his withdrawal.

But backed in a corner, he had no choice but to answer.

He actually told the newspaperman that he had taken his money out of the Home Bank in the ordinary course of business to make a payment on a house.

We can picture James Murdock smiling complacently once more, with the Journal representative safely out of the office and later with the interview published.

Yes, for a while Murdock thought he had got away with it. But as has been pointed out before, he did not reckon with the liquidator of the Home Bank. He wrote the Minister saying that Murdock had no right to the four thousand dollars and asking that he return the money forthwith, that it might be applied to the remnants saved from the wreck for the benefit of eighty thousand depositors of the bank who had had no inside information.

Murdock did not send any money in reply to that first letter. So in a short time another letter came from the liquidator suggesting pointedly that Murdock had his choice of paying right away or of being hauled into court.

Murdock claimed even up to that time that he had done no wrong. But the electors of West Hastings, jurymen all, may weigh that claim with the knowledge that Murdock was afraid to rest his case in a law court.

A day or two after receiving the second letter he sent along the money demanded and had the nerve then to pose as a hero. He was giving up his money that no depositor of the Home Bank should suffer on his account!

Once again, we can picture Murdock relieved at having escaped comparatively free with the exception of the loss of his precious money. But again, the Minister of Labor had not heard the last of it.

Mr. E. Guss Porter, representing the riding of West Hastings, rightly felt that with the situation as it stood, there was a stigma standing against the office of a Minister of the Crown. He believed that it was the duty of Murdock to make a statement to the House of Commons explaining the whole transaction. He pressed for such a statement.

But this man Murdock, failed to measure up to the standards of a responsible person. He keeps silent, while his Chief, a Prime Minister, makes excuses and tells Parliament he sees no reason for any more fuss about the matter.

Due, however, to the vigorous stand taken by Mr. Porter, Parliament was forced to cause an investigation into the mess, and a committee was appointed to hear all the facts on the case.

Unfortunately for Mr. Porter and for the people of the Dominion of Canada who demand the highest standard of public life, the majority of that Committee were men who belonged to the Liberal Party and the Progressive party and they were no more anxious to bring out the sordid truth than was the Prime Minister.

In spite of the fact that the evidence brought out was in accordance with the story of the affair written above, in spite of the fact that James Murdock appeared on the witness stand and on his oath swore to something absolutely different to the story he told the Journal reporter, that committee reported back that they found Murdock not guilty of violating his oath as a Minister of the Crown.

To the newspaperman, Murdock said he had drawn out his money in the ordinary course of business to make a payment on a house. On the witness stand before the Committee, he swore that he had taken the money out to save it from loss through the failure of the Home Bank. No doubt he did. But, having admitted that much, Murdock once more undertook to smooth things out by saying that he knew the Home Bank was going to fail because he was tipped off by a friend outside of Cabinet altogether.

To learn what a poor conception this man Murdock must have of the credulity of the public, bear this in mind. Murdock said that the deputy-speaker G. N. Gordon M.P., for Peterboro, had told him that the bank was in poor condition some six days before the bank failed. Yet Murdock made no move to get his money out until after the Cabinet meeting he attended where the hopeless situation of the bank was revealed.

"If you had been in James Murdock's shoes, wouldn't you have done the same thing?"

This is the question being put to the electors of West Hastings during these days prior to the vote.

Here is another question, which electors of West Hastings will find it easier to answer.

"If you had four thousand dollars cash in the Home Bank and G. N. Gordon came to you and remarked that he had it on a reliable source that the bank was going to go under, would you have waited six days to get your money out?"

Is not the fact that Murdock waited the best of circumstantial evidence that Murdock did not know anything about the impending crash until the Cabinet meeting?

In backing up Murdock, G N Gordon, gave out the information that he had been tipped off by the late Mr. Daly president of the Home Bank. The jurors of West Hastings are asked to note that this information as to the source of Mr. Gordon's tip was not given out until just after Mr. Daly's death.

Because James Murdock has not been frank in regard to the whole matter, much of the evidence is circumstantial. Yet it must be kept in mind by the jurors of West Hastings that circumstantial evidence is often the very best of evidence and that many a man has been sentenced to prison, yes and to the gallows, on circumstantial evidence far less clear than we have in this case.

When the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative group at Ottawa was in Trenton last summer on the occasion of the nomination of Mr. Porter, he expressed the point very nicely. He said:

"I wonder if you saw a man walking up to another man with a revolver in his hand pointed ready for action and a moment or two afterwards you saw the one man running away and the other lying on the ground, and you saw that the bullet in the dead man fitted with the bullet for the revolver, would you need to hear the shot and see the shooting to know who committed the crime?"

If West Hastings electors can believe that flimsy story of Murdock's that he received his information regarding the forthcoming failure of the Home Bank from G. N. Gordon six days before the crash keeping in mind carefully that Murdock did not draw his money out until immediately after the impending failure was brought to the attention of the Cabinet; if electors can believe that story from a man who can stoop so low as to tell the public one day that he withdrew the money in the ordinary course of business to make a payment on a house, and on another day say brazenly that he withdrew the money to save it, without thought of any house payments; if the electors of West Hastings can believe that story from a man who hid the money with a stenographer; if the electors of West Hastings can believe that story from a man who has endeavoured at every turn to keep the details of the whole transaction in darkness, then electors of West Hastings may find him innocent.

In such a riding as West Hastings, however, where traditions of honesty, handed down from United Empire Loyalists, are prized most highly, where electors are imbued with the absolute necessity for righteous men at the wheel of Canada's ship of state, where men and women are better informed on public affairs than in any other riding in the Dominion, where people have the brains to come to intelligent judgement, there remains no doubt as to what verdict shall be given.

There is another difference between this case and an ordinary case in a court of law. At the court house in Belleville, for example, the twelve men would have to be agreed in order to bring a verdict of guilty.

In the case before the electors of West Hastings, such unanimity can not be obtained and is not expected. There will be those who will not listen to the evidence, so bound in party loyalty that they are able to gloss over anything Mr. Murdock has done. There will be those who will have been mislead by Liberal confreres of James Murdock, wily lawyers and others, ready to chase from the minds of West Hastings people all thought of the Murdock charges.

There can be a great majority of the jurors of one mind, nevertheless. They are asked in all earnestness to make that majority as large as it is possible to make it. So large should it be, that the foundations of the Liberal government may be rocked to the ground.

A Liberal jury man may serve his party and yet find Murdock guilty. The right sort of a Liberal will not desire his party to stand as a champion of the kind of statesmanship shown by James Murdock.

Honor may be extended to the man who is loyal to his party. But there is all honor to the Liberal who can pass a vote of censure on the heads of his party when they are carrying on in a manner he knows is not right.

The Liberal party is not doomed to everlasting destruction. There are too many of Canada's best men in the ranks of the Liberal party to permit of that. This can be taken as a solid truth, however. If Liberals of Canada permit such men as James Murdock to remain a Minister of the Crown, if they allowed Premier MacKenzie King and members of his Cabinet to pooh-pooh the violation of a sacred oath taken, to think lightly of the honor of Parliament, then the Liberal Party is going to die and it is going to be a long time dead.

The case rests in the hands of the jury of West Hastings. For the honor of West Hastings, for the honor of the Dominion of Canada and for the honor of its Parliament, the verdict must be,

"Guilty!"

The Daily Ontario was late in getting into the election campaign. Now that it has started however, that newspaper has injected the first dirty element into the campaign.

In the same editorial column in which it states, "One fool can ask more questions than a dozen wise men can answer", that newspaper asks the following questions:

"Would Guss Porter, whether common member of Parliament, or Minister of the Crown, have left his money in any bank and lost it if he had got a tip that the bank was shaky from any source, inside or outside the House?

"Would Guss Porter have returned the money to the liquidator as Jim Murdock did?"

The heading over the editorial was "The Noes have it".

An answer to the last question will answer the first. West Hasting's representative would never have been in a position where the liquidator could have demanded any money from him.

THEY CERTAINLY WILL

"Railway trainmen know Jim Murdock better than most of his detractors and will register their opinion of the whole transaction at the polls." The Daily Ontario.

Hungry for votes for Charles Hanna, the Daily Ontario would interpret the by-election as persecution of labor, in an attempt to sway the votes of union men who are not acquainted with the raw real that Murdock has handed labor on more than one occasion. That newspaper pretends to see forces at work tearing down a trainman from success.

Jim Murdock, the trainman, has long since passed. James Murdock, the Cabinet Minister, is another man. Since stepping on the faces of his brothers for personal material success, Murdock has changed considerably. He has reached the point now where he can tell strikers to "Stay out until Hell freezes over."

Let there be harmony in things essential—liberty in things not essential—Charity in all

"YANKEE DOODLE"

(From the Labor Leader)

It is nice to feel that we as Canadians are good friends with our neighbors to the south, and we trust that the time will never come when we shall be anything else but good friends. At the same time there are still a goodly number of Canadians, who, whilst desirous of maintaining friendly relations with that great nation on our borders, do not see the necessity of handing over our birthright to swell the coffers of our aggressive neighbors.

It is quite true that the action of our present Government at Ottawa in giving the United States everything that nation wants in tariff reductions, would lead the American people to think that Canadian citizens had given up all hope of ever building up Canada as a mighty industrial nation, and that we were satisfied to remain for ever the hewers of wood and drawers of water for the American people, whilst the American themselves direct their energies towards the exploitation of Canada's resources.

The American people are to a certain extent justified in holding the belief that Canada exists solely for their particular benefit, because it is an undoubted fact that during the past four years every revision of Canada's tariff has been of decided benefit to American industry, and it is no surprise for us to read in the report of the Department of Commerce, issued by the U.S. Government at Washington, D.C., the following:

"Economically and socially Canada may be considered as a Northern extension of the United States and our trade with Canada is in many respects more like domestic trade than our foreign trade with other countries. The movement of industrial raw materials from Canada into the United States and the return flow of a miscellaneous assortment of partly or wholly manufactured goods is not unlike a similar flow between the West and the South and the more industrialized Northeastern of the United States."

In case our readers should think that this was taken from some old report issued by the American Government, before Canada had a National Policy, we wish to point out that this report was issued no later than the 3rd inst.

We want to draw the attention of Canadian workingmen and women to one or two clauses in the foregoing quotation. It will be noticed that it says:

"Economically and socially Canada may be considered as a Northern extension of the United States." We don't know what effect that sentence has upon the Canadian people who read it, but it certainly gives us "that adjunct feeling" and it isn't a very pleasant feeling to have. If all the pioneering work done by Canadians before and since confederation is merely for the benefit of supplying the United States with a northern extension, then let's be done with national aspirations and ideals, and admit that the present Government might as well go the whole hog and replace "O, Canada" with "Yankee Doodle"—and instead of the "Maple Leaf" let's sing the "Stars and Stripes Forever", because if we can't be anything else we can at least be consistent.. It seems incredible that a Canadian administration could allow Canada to be placed in a position such as it is in to-day. When we look back into Canadian history and read the stories of our pioneer forefathers—the hardships they endured—the heroism they displayed—a heroism that called for greater courage than was ever displayed on the field of battle, a heroism which led men into what was then the great northern wilderness, and to make from that wilderness the garden of the world. When we read the glorious history of French compatriots in old Quebec, and the magnificent enterprise of the Anglo-Saxon race in Upper Canada and the North-West Territories, it becomes sheer blasphemy to ever think of Canada as an "extension," either economically or socially, of any country. As good Canadians, we believe in Canada's destiny as a self-governing country. True, we are proud to be a part of the British Empire, but that is a tie of the heart and does not effect our policy of self-determination.

There is another sentence in the paragraph we quote that is worthy the attention of everyone engaged in industry, that is one referring to the movement of raw material from Canada to the U.S.A. and the return from the U. S .to Canada of the articles manufactured from this material. Just what does that mean?—it only has one meaning, and all the political alchemy in the world cannot give it any other, and this is it. It means that Canada is being stripped of her natural wealth and resources for the benefit of American industry, at the expense of the whole of the Canadian people. In other words, we do all the hard and most unprofitable work; we dig the ore, hew down the trees, strip Canada of all that makes her mighty, load it on freight cars and ship it south, and then our American friends take it and do all the easy, clean, profitable work of making this raw materal into useful commodities which we may buy back if we have the price. The American mechanic gets the well-paid work, the American captalist gets the profit, and we get what? a hole in the ground where we sunk the mine, and a barren waste of stumps where we cut down the trees, and that's about all.

True, we did get some wages when we dug the ore and cut the trees, yes, 30c. an hour, work that has to be done by unskilled labor, but it was the American mechanic who got the cushy 90c. and $1-an-hour job, and he gets it because we allow him to do work that we could do equally as well, and in many cases better than he can.

And the pathetic part of it all is that when it comes to bargaining, Canada has it over the U.S. like a tent, and yet in spite of this we find our "statesmen" (?) allow themselves to be gyped by astute Yanks every time There are numerous things that Americans must get from Canada unless they are willing to pay freight from the other side of the world. Canada is dependent on the U.S. for nothing. It is true we buy a lot of Pennsylvania coal, but we've got just as good coal in Canada, and lots of it.

When we read reports from the Commerce Department of the U.S. Government such as we have commented upon, is it not time that the people of Canada demanded a better showing from the legislators of this country.

Why it is that your son and my son has to go south to earn a living? Why is it that a young country like Canada has a big unemployment problem? Why is it that many of our factories are closed? Why is it that Canada is not attracting the number of immigrants that such a vast country should? Why is it that Canadian manufacturers are loath to launch into new enterprises? These are only a few of the vital questions that must be answered, and answered soon, or Canada will not be an "extension" but will forever remain what a one-time President of the U.S.A. once called a "mere adjunct."

THE TARIFF AND BRANCH AMERICAN PLANTS

Protection and the establishment of branch industrial plants in Canada by firms having their headquarters in other countries is one of the results of the Tariff. Let no one think otherwise. There would be little purpose in an American manufacturing firm opening a branch plant in Canada if it could ship in its products free of duty. For the same reason there would be no purpose in a British firm opening a branch plant in this country.

So if Canada is to retain what branch plants she has, and is to get more of them, she must retain her Tariff. No argument is required to demonstrate the truth of the statement. It is obvious to any one who gives the subject the slightest consideration. Even a free trader must admit that without protection the number of branch plants established in this country would be few.

Fully 700 branches of American industrial firms have been located in Canada during the last 25 years. These represent an investment of over $700,000,000. Everybody admits that this has been a wonderful thing for the country. It has provided employment for thousands, and has distributed hundreds of millions of dollars in wages. It has put on their feet towns and cities that were languishing. It has caused other places to grow rapidly from small communities into large cities.

This branch-factory building has been the most marked development in the industrial life of Canada during the last quarter of a century. It accounts very largely for the rapid industrial expansion that has taken place. On this point there is not the slightest dispute. The person who seriously argued that these branch plants were not good for the country would be derided.

This subject is bound to receive more consideration because of the return of the Conservative party in Great Britain. As is well known, it is committed to the adoption of a certani amount of Protection. The best evidence of this is to be seen in its preferential trade proposals, which are sure to be adopted. On this matter Premier Baldwin is committed.

In proportion as the British Preferemce is applied within the Empire to products manufacturing therein, the greater the inducement will be on the part of the American firms to establish branch plants in Canada. For in doing so they not only are assured of getting into the Canadian market on a better basis than if they manufactured wholly in the United States; but they are also permitted to get into the British Empire market on equal footing with other British firms. Next possibly to the United States, the British Empire market is the best in the world.

From this it follows that the wid er the applicatio nof the British Preferential trade policy by other portions of the Empire the better will it be for Canada; for to that extent has she a better chance to produce manufactures for these other portions. The trouble to date with this policy has ben that, for Canada, it has been a case of giving much in the way of a preference and getting very little out of it. But in proportion as Britain goes in for it, the more will Canada's position be improved.

This brings one back to the principle that Protection is absolutely necessary to the adoption of a truly preferential trade policy, and that Canada stands to secure branch factories in proportion as this takes place. Even a lower tariff would kill the movement of branch factories to Canada, to say nothing of the effects that are sure to follow the full fruition of a policy, which, its supporters say, "sounds the death knell of Protection."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Daily Ontario, in reporting the E. Guss Porter meeting on Friday night, forgot to publish that part of Mr. Porter's speech announcing that Byron O. Lott was travelling with the Liberal Returning Officer, picking out deputies and polling clerks.

The feinting Daily Ontario should remember when making sly insinuations about a fool and questions which have not been answered that there is a Pikers' Paradise.

To-day's Smile

"My father," she said, "is always saying that he would give $5000 for me never to see you again."

Press Opinions

BRICKS AND BRAKES

(London Daily Telegraph)

It becomes every year more obvious that health of mind and spirit is not to be maintained by those who are always "in city pent." Men and women need to go out into "the wind on the heath," to come in contact with the open country and the life of the wild creatures there. Some of the most enfeebling ailments of the body politic in our time arise from ignorance in town bred people of any manner of life but their own.

LIBERALISM SUPERANNUATED

(Manitoba Free Press)

If the British Liberal Party is a spent force in English politics the reason is not that it has failed in accomplishing its prinicples; the reason is that it has succeeded, and succeeded in the most complete way; succeeded so well that it has now no conspicuous principle to champion or propagate. It has done its work; and if it is withering it is because all its original vitality has been translated into actual practice, and it has nothing else upon which to nourish itself and draw to itself members and votes.

Letters to Editor

Ottawa, November 13th, 1924

To the Editor:

Dear Sir,—An application was made recently to the Board of Railway Commissioners for a reduction in freight rates on the ground that the wages of railway workers had been increased out of all proportion in comparison with the increases received since 1914 by other workers, thereby permitting railway employes to live in a state of "wholly unjustified luxury at the expense of agricultural producers and workers in other industries." The statements made in this application are so unfair and so disregardful of the true facts tht we would appreciate the opportunity of conveying information on this matter from unbiased sources to your readers.

Since 1913 the average increase in railway freight rates has been much smaller than the average increase in the railway men's rates of pay have also been much smaller than in the case of wage rates in other representative Canadian occupations.

According to statistics gathered by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics the average increase in the wage rate of railway workers since 1913 has been 57.4%. The average increase for other occupations was 81.4%.

The average of the wage rate of the scheduled railway workers, associated with our Brotherhood is $3.70 a day or $22.20 a week. Against that set the Dominion Department of Labor's Budget for a family of five persons, which as of August 1924, required an expenditure of $20.57 on food, fuel, lighting and rent. This leaves a matter of $2.50 on the average for the purchase of clothing, education, medical attendance, insurance and other items essential to a decent standard of living. Surely no one could say that this constitutes "unjustified luxury" as the application to the Railway Commissioners states.

With reference to the relation of freight rates to the cost of doing business, a statement appeared in Hansard on April 29th, 1924, dealing with the increases in the cost of manufacture of agricultural implements. This showed that the increase for all factors in 1922, as compared with 1913 was 116%. The increase in freight rates for this period was 45%, and was the lowest of all factors.

Another point of importance in analyzing the relation of wages to freight rates is that the railway companies of Canada with 13,000 fewer employes were operating 36% more railway mileage in 1922 than in 1913.

All the employes having to do with freight traffic carried heavier responsibilities in 1923, than they did in 1913 because of heaver trains and longer average hauls, as well as because of reductions in staffs relative to the mileage in operation. In 1923 the average freight train carried 502 tons as compared with only 342 in 1913. In 1923, the average freight haul was 28[illegible] miles, as compared with 216 miles in 1913. In 1923, the railways carried 34 billion tons of freight one mile, as compared with 23 billion in 1913—and that with fewer employes.

Railway employes are today receiving relatively less remuneration than they were before the war. Wages and salaries today form a smaller proportion of the operating costs than they did in 1913. Official railway statistics show that the ratio of the pay roll to operating expenses in 1913 was 63.5%. In 1923, it was 60%.

When the salaries of the general officers are deducted from the average yearly earnings of $1,381, the ordinary employe's earnings do not allow for a fair standard of living—much less unjustified luxuries. And railway employes, unlike the workers in most other industries, have to put in a great deal of Sunday labor and night work to obtain their modest earnings. Again a great many railway workers are subject to risks to life and limb, not imposed on workers in many other industries.

In view of the information which we have presented from official Government sources, the fallacy of attributing the increased cost of doing business over 1913 levels to increases in freight and wage rates, will be readily seen.

Railway men seek only a wage that will permit themselves and families to live in decency and comfort. It would require a considerable increase over present rates to make this possible for the vast majority of employes.

Yours sincerely,
H. R. MOSHER,
President.

WILL NOT SELL HOLDINGS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 17.—Government is firmly resolved not to sell British holdings of the Anglo-Persian oil shares and will probably announce its decision when Parliament meets according to The Morning Post. It follows that there will be no merger of the Anglo-Persian and other companies.

SINCLAIRS

Very Much Trimmed with Fur

—are the winter Coats that fashion approves most heartily. Seal, Possum, Squirrel and Moufflon are lavishly used on coats of Velray, Marvella, Flamingo and Suedine and the colors, burgundy, crag, toast, penny brown, cocoa, mole, navy and black supply decided beauty. Canton crepe and satin de luxe linings complete the individual loveliness of each model. Prices from $32.50 to $125.00.

FROCKS are Charming in their Originality

Here again, fur wins a place of importance. Tunic frocks and straight beltless styles, all feature fur-trimming cleverly applied. Various crepes, bengaline and georgette in browns, blues, burgundy and black are very attractively fashioned, gaily contrasting trimmings being used, filmy laces and dainty pleatings. These are frocks that are truly unique, with prices ranging from $32.50 to $67.50.

SINCLAIR'S

gives a distinctiveness to the wearer that a cloth coat can never give. Its appearance, its lustre, beauty of design and gracefulness of form all appeal to the feminine eye. It gives more years of service and does not go out of style so quickly as a cloth coat, can be easily repaired, is much warmer, and in the end is more economical. Furthermore we give a service with the better class of coats that guarantees them against defects and wear. If you are looking for a coat that will fill these requirements you will find it at

URGE PURCHASE OF BUILDING IN LONDON, ENG.

To Properly House Ontario Government Representatives There

AT TRADE CONVENTION

Lieut.-Col. Ponton and Mr. John Elliott Will Attend

Out of twenty-two resolutions that are to be presented at the coming convention of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce six will be submitted by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. These follow up and maintain the good work that was done at the Tenth Congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire which was held in London at the beginning of July and where Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton and Mr. John Elliott made a deep impression by their splendid presentation of the four resolutions that had been forwarded from Belleville.

It is expected that the Belleville delegation to Toronto will include Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton and Mr. John Elliott both of whom are past presidents of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade. They will be accompanied by Mr. Ackerman, president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, Mr. C. M. Reid, vice pres., Mr. Jamieson Bone, past pres. Messrs F. S. Deacon, G. F. Ostrom and W. C. Springer, directors, and J. O. Herity, Manager.

The convention opens at the City Hall, Toronto, at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning, Nov. 20th, and will be concluded by a complimentary banquet on Friday night tendered to the visiting delegates by the Toronto Board of Trade

On the evening of Nov. 20th the delegates are tendering to the Lt.-Governor, the Hon. Harry Cockshutt, a complimentary banquet at the King Edward Hotel which will be addressed by some of the most prominent business and public men of Canada.

The six resolutions to be submitted by Belleville follow:

The first suggests the desirability of better accommodation for the Ontario Government Quarters in London, Eng., and is worded as follows:

That this Association urge upon the Government the advisability of purchasing in Central London a building and site worthy of the dignity, magnitude and potential progress of this great Province, so that our Representatives and Staff may be properly housed, and that an impression of permanence and stability may be made upon the minds of our British kinsmen and the capitalists of the world's centre, that our resources may be properly displayed, our progress and prosperity properly exemplified, and a satisfying sense of security and confidence may be established. In the opinion of this Association the present London quarters at 163 Strand are wholly inadequate and unworthy of this great Province and do not give scope or do justice to the energies and willing enthusiasm of our Representatives in London.

This resolution will be moved by Mr. Ackerman and seconded by Mr. Elliott.

Development of Mineral Resources

The second resolution reminds the Provincial Government that there are important mineral areas in the eastern part of the province as well as in the north. The resolution proceeds to say:

That this Association request the Government to encourage the development of our mineral resources, not merely in the north, but also in other parts of the Province, by exploring and prospecting systematically and efficiently large areas by Government prospectors and experts, so that science and skill and government aid may be given not merely to our industries, but also to the latent wealth which this Association believes exists in abundance in our Province, and only requires capital and skilled effort and power to develop for the use of our people and to assure our prosperity.

This will be moved by Col. Ponton and Mr. W. C. Springer.

Upkeep of Highways and Aid to Tourists Traffic

The third Belleville resolution is as follows:

That this Association, while commending the Government of the Province for their continued interest in good roads, would respectfully urge that a better ad more efficient system be introduced in connection with repairs and with rebuilding, so as to avoid as far as possible long and difficult detours which are so discouraging to tourists and travellers and further that all possible means be adopted to encourage and develop the great and lucrative tourist traffic of our Province by liberal regulations, by the establishment of parks by judicious and widespread publicity, by official as well as public welcome, and by opening up new areas and resorts, so that our scenic, sporting and healthful attractions as in other countries, may be made a source of revenue, wealth, population and pleasure.

This will be presented by Mr. Jamieson Bone and Mr. John Elliott.

Exportation of Raw Materials

Another important resolution which is to be presented by Mr. Geo. F. Ostrom is as follows:

That this Association memorialize the Government of the Province and urge that such measures be enacted and if necessary such embargoes be enforced, as will discourage and so far as possible prevent the exportation of the resources of this Province in the form of raw material to any foreign country, providing the same can be manufactured to advantage within

THEATRE CROWDED FOR FINE MEETING

Rev. G. S. Buckingham Extends Hearty Thanks to Helpers

Rev. G. S. Buckingham addressed a large crowd of people who attended the Daily Vacation Bible Class Rally, in Griffin's Opera House last night, illustrating his talk by means of lantern slides.

His Worship Mayor W. C. Mikel, who acted as chairman, opened the meeting with a few remarks, pointing out what a great benefit the Vacation classes were as a preventative of crime, in keeping children otherwise unoccupied, from doing mischief. Mr. Fred Sprague sang a solo, Mr. G. Griffin led the community singing and Miss Moore played the piano. Miss Jean Gibbons read the Bible Story of David and Goliath.

Mr. Buckingham wished to convey his warm thanks to Mr. Glintz, for the use of the theatre, also to the Y.M.C.A., W.C.T.U., the City Mission, the churches, newspapers, the Mayor, the teachers, those who generously contributed to the collection, the Girl Guides, prizes and judges, and to the following list of those who gave voluntary teaching service:

Miss Beatrice Jones, Miss Mildred Lloyd, Miss Gwen Lazier, Miss Anna Madden, Mrs. Nettie Farley, Miss Ina McAuley, Miss Maude Reeves, Miss Stella Huddleston, Mrs. Miles Huddleston, Miss Eva Bull, Miss Edna Hannah, Richard Sidenius, Miss Maria Firth, Miss Jean Baker, Miss Jessie McIntosh Miss Mary McIntosh, Miss Margaret McIntosh, Mrs. Eva Francis, Miss Alice Laney, Miss Edith Moore, Miss Laura Cole, Miss Greta Madden, Mr. J. H. Wills.

It is estimated that there are 2,000 neglected children or children unprovided for after they have been released from school in the summer. This leaves a field for the Vacation Bible School, and this work is being undertaken for the good of the children.

OFFICIAL RETURNS AND IS PRESENTED

A reception was held on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Stephenson, East Moira street, in honour of the return of Mr. A. F. Wesley, general foreman of the J. & J. Cash Co., Belleville, who has just returned from a tour in the Old Country. The occasion was marked by the presentation to Mr. Wesley of a beautiful gold watch chain. Mr. H. Middlemiss gave a short address which endorsed the good feelings of all who are employed under Mr. Wesley. Mrs. Nellie Binns making the presentation, the rest of the evening being spent in games, singing and dancing, songs being rendered in fine style by Mr. H. Middlemiss, also Mr. A. F. Wesley. Mr. W. Edwards, (of George Roby fame) was in good form. A very enjoyable evening concluding by a hearty vote of thanks being tendered to the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stephenson for the excellent party enjoyed by all.

DEBATING CLUB IS PREPARING FOR FEED

Oh-Yes! The Wharf street Debating Club is very much alive and making great preparations for the coming municipal elections. They are anxiously waiting to have the coming candidates at their club and they will be readily told what they think of them as the 1924 Council will be attacked on every side for money which has been misspent. The club is making big preparations for the annual bun feed and members are paying their dues so they can have their name placed on the new board. If you haven't got your dues paid you can't take part in any of the debates. Some of the members think there is something wrong with the Treasurer's books at the club, and they think they will have to get a government auditor to get them squared away.

KING WILL SPEAK HERE ON FRIDAY NOV. 21

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—In addition to his meeting at Trenton on the eve of the West Hastings by-election, Premier Mackenzie King will speak at Belleville next Friday evening, November 21st. The Prime Minister will also give an address at a luncheon of the Montreal Women's Liberal Club, next Saturday.

Rotarians Hear of Statesmen of Old

F. E. O'Flynn is Speaker at Weekly Luncheon To-day

For a brief half hour to-day, the Giants of Confederation Days came to life, under the spell of the eloquent tongue of Mr. F. E. O'Flynn, who was the speaker at the Rotary luncheon. It was the first of a series of Educational talks which the Rotary Clubs have planned in the interests of better citizenship.

Mr. O'Flynn told of meeting many of the Fathers of Confederation in his younger days and related interesting stories of Sir John A. MacDonald, Sir Oliver Mowat, the Hon. George Brown, Sir George Cartier, and other great leaders of Canada's early days.

"The jealousies of the various provinces and of the small factions in which provinces were the greatest obstacles to overcome" said Mr. O'Flynn and he cited as one of the first things in history the making of personal dislike between John A. MacDonald and George Brown in the interest of Confederation.

Rotarian Owen Herity expressed the club's appreciation of Mr. O'Flynn's talk. The only club business was the announcement of Ladies' Night being fixed for December 2nd and the appointing of a strong entertainment committee.

Rev. Winters of Madoc will preach in the same hall next Sunday.

LAW WHICH AFFECTS JAPANESE IS PASSED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Tokio, Nov. 17.—Imperial ordinance was published yesterday, directing the enforcement, beginning December 10th of a law abolishing the dual nationality of Japanese born in Canada. United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru. The revised law provides that Japanese born in foreign countries where birth gives citizenship, is always their Japanese nationality for birth unless formal action is taken to preserve their rights to Japanese citizenship.

BREAD GRAIN SHORTAGE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The world has an estimated bread grain shortage of 574 million bushels comprising 401 million bushels of wheat and 173 million bushels rye. For Erope alone there is estimated to be a bread grain shortage in comparison with last year of 340 million bushels. These comprise a decrease of 172,500,000 bushels of wheat and 167 million bushels of rye.

turns of the international institute of The estimate is based on official reagriculture run from all important countries of the world except Russia, and shows increased deficiency compared with previous estimates. Recent estimates of European requirements, says T. K. Doherty, commissioner of the Institute of agriculture, "have ranged from 600 to 650 million bushels of wheat."

Brother Foreigners Treat Him Rough So Law Binds Them to Keep Peace

Hamilton, Nov. 17.—Pete Borko, Mike Kochul and another foreigner hurled rocks at Steve Trachek, chased him with clubs, threatened him with guns and stood outside of his house and smashed his windows. All of this Steve testified to in police court Saturday morning, when he had the two named up on a disorderly charge and he brought a huge array of witnesses to state that the pair were a nuisance and a menace to the safety of those in the Hess street north district. The prisoners were bound over to keep the peace in the sum of $200.

SETTLE POINT AND DISPUTE IN SMALL CASE

Trust Company Sets Aside $200,000 For Sisters And Widow

ARRANGE FOR COSTS

Which Will Be Taken From The Estate

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 17—What may prove the concluding chapter in the dispute over the estate of the late Ambrose Small, theatrical magnate and millionaire was settled in the chambers of Mr. Justice Lennox this morning when his Lordship granted an order to counsel for his sisters, Florence and Gertrude Small, directing that two hundred thousand dollars be paid into court on their behalf by The Capital Trust Corporation and Mrs. Theresa Small. It was generally agreed that there was no reason existing now why the original order made in the spring should not be obeyed. Acting for Capital Trust Corporation, N. W. Rowell, K. C. explained that the delay since spring was necessitated by reason of litigation against the estate by other parties. Costs for all parties will come out of the estate.

CONSERVATIVES IN CONVENTION TODAY

Delegates Represent Every Province in Dominion at Toronto To-day

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 17.—J. L. MacNicol of Toronto and J. A. Lamarr of Montreal, were appointed chairman and secretary respectively of the Liberal-Conservative National Convention, which opened here this morning. Delegates from every Province in the Dominion attended. Preliminary speeches and appointment of special committee to draft proposal for organization of national organization occupied the morning. The convention adjourned early to permit of delegates assembling at luncheon as guests of the Ontario Conservative Association.

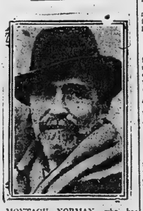
Right Hon. Arthur Meighen was given an ovation when he entered the conference chamber. Mr. MacNicol as temporary chairman called the meeting to order and gave a brief outline of the movement which had resulted in the convention being called. Each province had approved the proposal for such condition and had sent delegates vested with authority to speak for various Provincial organizations in deliberation, in which to decide whether National Association of Liberal-Conservative party should be formed or whether the nominational committee should be named to proceed in a more leisurely fashion with the work of organization.

The committee appointed to consider the proposal for the National Association, consists of two delegates from each of the western and maritime provinces and four delegates each for Ontario and Quebec. Speeches were made by Hon. George Cruise, Saskatchewan and Dr. M. R. Blake for Manitoba. Mr. MacNicol in his remarks also declared that Ontario suggested that steps might be taken to build up a Conservative press in Canada. On a larger scale than had existed since the days of Union Government. A fund for Provincial organization in a general way set apart from special purposes of elections, was also suggested by Ontario.

HEAR INSPECTOR AT STEWART TRIAL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 17—That he had been prevented from making inspection of the foreign department of the Home Bank was evidence given this morning by E. A. Kemp, formerly chief inspector of Home Bank at the trial of J. F. M. Stewart, Home Bank director. Mr. Kemp said that he had just started the inspection of the foreign branch in 1923 when he was sent to Montreal by the General Manager on other business and the inspection had been made by another official. Later on going over the books of the department with A. E. Calvert he found a loss which he estimated at $150,000 in the foreign department. Mr. Kemp also stated that he had never received instructions to make inspection of the Toronto branch of the bank from which most of the big loans were made.



MONTAGU NORMAN, who has been recommended for re-election as the governor of the Bank of England. This will make his sixth consecutive year in office; honor never previously conferred on any banker, the usual term being two years.

PIERPONT MORGAN'S WIDOW PASSES AT RIPE AGE

Sightland Falls, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Frances F. Morgan, widow of J. Pierpont Morgan, died at her home here last night. Mrs. Morgan who was 82 years of age was reported to have suffered a stroke ten days ago followed by pneumonia. Her son, J. P. Morgan, is now on the Atlantic and is expected here Friday.

RIFLE LEVER JAMMED SO MAN FIGHTS BEAR

Canadian Press Despatch)

Fort William Nov. 17.—Further details of the death of the Finnish trapper, A. Waino, killed by a bear seven miles from English river station, are to hand with the return of Coroner Dr. Boyd with the body. Before the doctor reached the scene, the bear, which was monstrous black one, had been killed by a brother and two brothers-in-law of the dead man, who found the brute had returned to the body of Waino and was gnawing at the remains. The flesh had been pulled from the body and the scalp torn off, while of the face nothing was left but the eyes. The first shot roused the animal to attack the three men, but the second shot dropped him in his tracks. It was found that his face and neck were covered with porcupine quills which may have accounted for the bear being in a dangerous and irritable mood. Waino's rifle was found with one shell discharged, while the lever had jammed in ejecting it, thus accounting for man and bear having had to fight.

STRENGTHEN POLICE SINCE RECENT VOTE

Toronto, No. 17.—The question of O.T.A. enforcement bulked large in the general conference on law enforcement which General V. A. S. Williams, Commissioner of the Provincial Police, held on Friday and Saturday at the Parliament Buildings with his provincial inspectors and other executives of the force. Various methods of coping with the problem were canvassed and general instructions given upon the subject. The provincial police force, since the recent plebiscite vote, has been increased in its membership and additional men are continually being recruited.

THIS OLD LADY HAS VERY CLEAR MEMORY

Dunnville, Ont. Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Elizabeth Blott, Dunnville, is 101 years old, but she clearly remembers when, at the age of eight years, she arrived in Canada from England, the wooden boat taking six weeks for the journey. "On arriving in Montreal we found that town suffering from a plague of cholera. We were quarantined there for some weeks. I remember it so well. My father took us to a big house, four stories high. He took us to the top of the house and brought us some soap and clay pipes, telling us to blow bubbles and not leave the house. When we looked out of the window we could see the people falling on the streets from the dreadful disease which was raging."

Despite her great age, Mrs. Blott went to Buffalo by automobile last August and drew the party's attention to several places in the Lundy's Lan district she still remembered and recognized.

IMPROPER DANCING BANNED IN WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Nov. 17.—Sentimental couples may well reserve their embraces for places other than dance hall floors. Furthermore, keeping moving is an important part of the proceedings. These two deductions are drawn from a regulation which has been recently sent out to proprietors of city dance hlls by the license department, which deals in very specific regulations, and outlines in close detail exactly the kind of motions dancing couples may engage in, the to which they are allowed to stand still and where their hands must be placed.

The man's hand must be placed at the middle of his partner's waist and her left arm must not encircle his neck.

The regulation was sent as a form letter written by F. Kerr, city license inspector, as a result of complaints received by him of improper dancing in certain city dance halls. The adherence to the code of action set out, he contends, will keep all dancing up to a high standard of morality.

MAY CHANGE DATE OF VISIT

Mayor Mikel advised The Intelligencer late this afternoon that he had wired His Excellency Baron Byng of Vimy, the Governor General, that it would be greatly appreciated by Bellevillians, if it were possible for him to change the date of his visit here from November 24th to December 3rd, 4th, or 5th. As yet no definite reply has been received.

As November 24th is nomination day and the day before the bye-election, it is hoped that the date of the interesting visit may be changed.

FIRE SCARE THIS AFTERNOON

Stove pipes becoming disconnected in a room in the Carman Block, Front street this afternoon, caused considerable smoke and an alarm of fire was the result. Fortunately the services of the brigade were not required.

JOSEPH CAILLAUX, to whom the French senate may decline to grant amnesty, despite the favorable action of the chamber of deputies. By special ordinance Caillaux was permitted recently to return to France from exile to attend the funeral of the great author Anatole France.

WINDS AND SNOW ANNOUNCE WINTER

Was Within 13 Points of Zero Mark During Night

Jack Frost paid an unexpected visit to Belleville and vicinity over the week-end and made his biting presence felt. Flurries of snow Sunday with high winds which approached the blizzard variety, cleaned the streets and proved citizens to shelter of homes and fireplaces or heavy winter clothing. Lowering clouds also went to make Sunday a typically late November day. To-day the call is for winter clothing and the merchants have a merry twinkle in their business eye.

Local garages are doing a land-office business with frozen and broken radiators, many cars sending in the "Tow Call" during the night. Fuming radiators and trickling water cause peevish motorists to regret their carelessness. Anti-freeze and cold weather money car accessories are the day's order.

Fresh northwest winds will continue to-day, according to the Weatherman who states that the weather will be 'Fair and very cold then much milder He explains Sunday's weather as follows: "Last night a deep depression developed over the Great Lakes and has since moved east in the St. Lawrence Valley. High pressure with severe cold has come in rapidly from the north. The weather is very cold in Manitoba, but further west it continues mild."

In Belleville during Sunday night it registered 17 degrees below freezing point and only 13 degrees from zero. The temperature for Saturday and Sunday and for the same dates last year were as follows:

Nov. 15, 1924—44 32.
Nov. 16,1924—42 17
Nov. 15 1923—42 29.
Nov. 16, 1923—33 16.

MRS. BURNSIDE DIES AT MADOC TO-DAY

Mrs. Annie Burnside, wife of Mr. T. Burnside, well-known resident of Madoc, passed away at eight o'clock this morning after a lingering illness. She had lived all her life in the vicinity of Madoc, and was beloved of all who knew her, for her unfailing kindness and gentle nature. She was an active worker in the church and the local societies there.

She leaves to mourn besides her husband, a daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) F. Nichol of Merrickville, a son Robert, who is attending Toronto University, a brother, Chas. A. McCoy of Remington and three sisters, Mrs. Emma Blair, Mrs. Archie Thompson, both of Madoc, and Mrs. Muffitt of Coe Hill.

Deceased was a member of the Methodist Church.

POOR OLD MAN GOES TO HOUSE OF REFUGE

An aged man named McComber of Huntingdon Township, who has passed the three score years and ten this morning applied at the police station for help as he had no home. It appears that McComber came to the city to secure admittance into some institution. Mr. W. H. Nugent, County Clerk interested himself on behalf of the unfortunate man with the result that McComber was placed in the County House of Refuge.

RESISTS GUNMEN WHO KILL DETROIT MAN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Detroit, Nov. 17.—Fred Kazres, resident of Hamtamck, suburb, was shot and killed instantly here last night when he resisted three gunmen who entered his residence in the north part of the city where Kazres and his companions were. One man killed Kazres and others in the residence held down the man who was grappling with Kazres, but other gunmen escaped. The bandit gave the name of John Eulcwski of Ford City, Ontario, when arrested. He is held on a charge of murder.

Deer Travel in Herds Near Bon Echo So Local Hunter Relates on Return

"We could have killed 25 deer for they are very plentiful," was the unusual statement of A. F. Jackson local hunter who returned Friday night last from Bon Echo with a party of four other hunters.

"We each got a deer and hunted but one day, though we were back in that country three days," he said. Jackson's trophy of the hunt is a fine 210 pound buck.

The deer were shot at a point in a 1000 acre block of woods, 53 miles north of Belleville and three miles south of Bon Echo. The party stayed at Frank Neil's home in the settlement where all modern conveniences of north land are given for $1 per day.

"My trip cost me $3," smiled the happy hunter.

Hunters are scarce in that particular district as most hunters unwisely went too far north. Owing to fine and dry weather the deer have gone right out into the settlements this year.

Settlers are killing them with shot-guns so plentiful are they.

DRAWS STRONG POINTS FROM STEWARD TEXT

Rev. A. H. Drumm, Former Pastor, Preaches Anniversary Services

AT JOHN ST. CHURCH

Splendid Musical Service and Large Crowds Add To Success

Rev. A. H. Drumm, a former pastor of John St. Presbyterian Church, was the speaker at the 77th anniversary services held there yesterday.

At the morning service Mr. Drumm chose his subject from the first nine verses of Luke 16.—the parable of the steward. "Some people wonder," he said, "that Jesus would pick out such an immoral character for the purpose of teaching a moral lesson." He explained this by saying that there is some good in everybody, and we should learn to see the good that lies hidden in the apparent evil things.

Continuing to explain the parable, Mr. Drumm said that our position in life was that of stewards, not owners. We brought nothing into this life and we shall take nothing out of it. Soon we will lose our positions. Looking back over twenty-two years, Mr. Drumm said that he could name the people who had occupied those pews and could picture the long procession of those who had passed over to the Great Beyond. We should look forward with prudent forethought to the future, as the steward did.

Then we should use our money to make friends. Mr. Drumm was reminded of a story he heard of a minister who was soliciting for funds and when a saloon keeper offered him five dollars with the remark that he supposed the minister would not want to accept it from such a source, the minister took it quickly and said that it had been in the service of the devil long enough, it was time it was put to better use.

Every dollar of a poor man is not honest just because the man is poor, neither is every dollar of a rich man, tainted money.

The parable showed faith in human gratitude, and we ought to have the same trust and also faith in Christ, who has said that "Inasmuch as ye do it unto one of the least of these, ye do it unto Me."

Christ knew that if he could get men to do things for him that it would draw them nearer to him, and so he asked Peter for the use of his boat, and so on. Over all was His loving kindness, which we should imitate, and serve one another.

In the evening Mr. Drumm took as his theme "The Title on the Cross.".

Mr. J. D. Bankier sang solos at both services, the male quartet sang, and the choir contributed anthems. Mr. Nicholson gave a short organ recital after the evening service which was much appreciated. Large congregations filled the church both morning and evening with St. Andrew's taking part in the evening.

JOYRIDERS STEAL CAR THEN ABANDON IT

Joy riders it is thought were responsible for theft of a car which was stolen here Saturday evening and subsequently recovered by Sergt. of Detectives J. Truaisch and Police Constable W. Franks. The car, a McLaughlin, owned by Mr. W. Hutchison of Corbyville, was parked on Victoria avenue but later when the owner was ready to go home it was missing. The police were notified with the result the officers found the auto abandoned on a street in West Belleville.

SARLES TRIAL POSTPONED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Oshawa, Nov. 17.—The trial of Alvin Sarles on a charge of criminal negligence resulting from the death of B. C. Clifford here some months ago, was today postponed to December 9, when it will be heard at the criminal assizes. Clifford's death was due to his heart being displaced when a compressed air tube was placed against his body.

FORGED 'SCRIPT' AND IS HEAVILY FINED

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 17.—Admitting that he forged a doctor's name on a prescription for a bottle of whiskey, from the Ontario government liquor store, Clifford Nattrass, of Peterboro, was fined $200 and $2 costs, or three months in jail, by Magistrate Hopewell in the police court, for attempting to obtain liquor illegally.

"A friend of the doctor's, whose name is Rankin Cooper, of Dundila, Ont., told me that it was no harm for me to sign the doctor's name on the blank scription," said Nattrass."

"This is a more serious offense than having liquor, but I will fine you $200 and costs, or three months in jail."

Nattrass was arrested last night by Inspector William Russell, of the Ontario Provincial police.

It was found that he forged the script, gave it to a friend, who went to the Government store on Kent street, and presented it. The script was discovered to be a forgery, and no liquor was given out. The police were advised, and Nattrass was arrested, when his friend confessed.

The case, the police say, is one of the most unique here in prosecution under the Ontario Temperance Act.

LOCAL TRAIN KILLS PETERBORO BOY

Peterboro, Nov. 17—Fergus Crough was instantly killed Saturday afternoon when a train on the Canadian National Belleville line ran over him at the corner of George and Romaine streets. The boy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Crough, 27 Park street south, formerly of Ennismore. He was 13 years of age.

An eye-witness of the tragedy says the boy was riding on the side of a freight car and in getting off he slipped under the train. His body was cut in two by the wheels.

Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young, Sgt. Deannard and Constable Wheeler were quickly on the scene of the accident and the body was removed to Lane & Eano's undertaking rooms.

MAN SELLS GRAVES FROM DOOR TO DOOR

Toronto, Nov. 17—Cemetery lots are now being peddled by door-to-door canvassers in Toronto. During the past week residents in the modest sections of the Hill district have numbered amongst the many callers, with something to sell, a soft-spoken man in quiet garb who intimates that he has his disposal graves to fit families of all sizes in attractive surroundings and at advantageous terms. His whole manner is in keeping with the nature of his mission and he secures a surprised hearing even from housewives who are in the habit of shooing all sorts of canvassers away in summary fashion, on sight.

"When I grasped what it was he had to sell it almost took my breath away so I let him go on to make sure that I had heard him aright," relates a Hill lady who was much impressed by the novelty of family burial plots being offered for sale in that manner. "I get called to the door so often during the day that I am rather impatient with peddlers as a rule and never buy anything from them because I do not want to encourage them to come again but one has to answer the ring of the door bell.

FOUR KILLED IN WRECK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Wabasho, Fla., Nov. 17—Four persons were killed and eighteen injured two seriously when rear coach of southbound Florida East Coast Railway train was derailed near here last night. Coach travelled three hundred feet after leaving rails before it toppled over hurling passengers through windows, or pinning them within car.

REVOLVING GARAGE NEWEST INVENTION

London, Nov. 17—One of the chief difficulties of putting a car in a crowded garage is getting it out again several hours later. There is soon to be in the West End a revolving garage, from which any of 600 cars can be withdrawn in two minutes. J. B. Mitchell of Knightsbridge, who designed the garage in conection with which a private company is now in formation, explains the system:

"The first new garage, the site of which has been acquired, will be a four story building. Each of the five floors will be divided by three rings three concentric circles. On the inner and outer circles will be stalls for cars, and the central ring will be a track which will revolve.

"When a car is driven into the garage it will be put on one of the revolving sections (taken to the upper floors by lift, if necesary) and the revolving section will turn until the car comes opposite a vacant stationary stall, into which the car will be driven. The revolving floor which will run on ball bearings can be turned around completely by two men in 30 seconds. To get the car out, the process is merely reversed."

STARVING BOY IS FOUND IN COUNTY

Toronto, Nov. 17—With blood stream ing down his face, a boy, who claimed he had been beaten and otherwise illtreated by the farmer for whom he worked, was found by a party of Harvie avenue men on a hunting trip in Hastings County recently. The lad, who said he had run away, was almost starved and ravenously devoured the food which the hunters gave him.

He told them he had an uncle a returned soldier, in Christie Street Hospital, and that he intended to make his way there. The name which he gave them was Blair but he was too frightened to tell them any other particulars.

The Dawn of Better Times

CANADA has safely weathered the acute business depression following the war.

The Dawn of Better Times is breaking across the Dominion.

$200,000,000 More

The West has harvested a good wheat crop. It is being marketed at the highest prices since 1920.

Add the revenue from coarse grains, field crops, livestock, dairy and poultry products to the value of the wheat crop and Western farmers will receive over $200,000,000 MORE than in 1923.

The influence of TWO HUNDRED MILLION MORE DOLLARS received by the West will be felt through the arteries of trade all over the Dominion. It will be a stimulus to brisker trade. It will strengthen confidence in the present situation as well as in the future.

In addition to the West's rich yield is the bountiful harvest of Ontario and Eastern Canada, from which the farmers will receive the best money returns for several years. Farmers are now receiving high enough prices to make farming pay and to restore their buying power which was curtailed during the recent period of lower prices for farm products.

People More Confident

Another factor is the morale of the Canadian people, which is at a favorable point for good business. This year there have been no runs on banks—no wild rumors—no panics—no hysteria. The nation has settled down to a calmer, more confident state of mind. The soundness of Canada's financial structure has been proven. The Canadian Dollar is worth par. The record-breaking way in which the recent issue of Dominion Government Bonds was taken up is another indication of the financial health and strength of the Dominion.

Another good sign is that Failures for the first eight months of 1924 have been 2½ per cent. less than for same period of 1923. Our exports to date are 10 per cent. greater. They exceed our imports by $238,893,976 for the year ending Aug. 31st, and give us a very favorable trade balance.

Our pulp and paper production snows a gain. Immigration is increasing. There is increased activity in Ontario's gold fields, which promise to surpass the famous gold fields of California.

The situation in Europe is clearing, too, and will result in an improvement of trade conditions throughout the world, and the opening up of larger markets for Canadian exports. Trade with the Orient is increasing, also, and in years to come the Orient will be one of the greatest markets for Canada's products.

Altogether there are good and sound reasons for Canadian business men to feel more cheerful, more hopeful, more confident than for several years past.

A New Normal

The worst is past. The sunshine of better times is on the horizon. While no boom is to be expected, healthier business—a new normal—is indicated.

But with better trade conditions, strong competition also seems certain. Domestic industries will have to battle with commercial invaders from Britain, United States, Europe and other foreign countries.

Now is the time for the domestic manufacturer to take vigorous action to secure a stronger, more dominant position in the home market.

Old outlets should be strengthened. New outlets obtained. New consumers started using the goods. More frequent turnovers secured.

Strong Publicity Will Help

Advertising that is strong, convincing, creative will help the Canadian manufacturer to strengthen his position, to obtain new outlets and new consumers, and to secure a generous share of the increased business better times will create.

The services of our large, strong advertising organization are at the disposal of manufacturers who desire to strengthen and extend their position in the Canadian market and reap a good share of the harvest of better times. Are you one of them?

☛ We will gladly supply Business Houses with copies of this advertisement to send to their travelers or to the trade. Limited numbers gratis. Larger quantities at cost.

Blue and White Go Down To Defeat

McGill Closes Intercollegiate Seasons by Winning 18-8

Montreal, Nov. 17—Unrestrained joy reigns on the campus at McGill for on Saturday the Red and White tamed the University of Toronto squad, defeating the old-time rivals in the closing Intercollegiate Rugby battle of the season, 13 to 8. The win broke the losing succession of the local university and sent them into a tie with Varsity for the second and cellar position in series, each having won a game while Queen's came through with an unbroken record.

The curtain descended on a game, which for good, hard fought Rugby has not been equalled locally this season. And it did not lack in its thrilling moments as the tide of battle first favored the Red and White—then Varsity and finally McGill again, when with the score 8 to 6 against them in the final period, they rallied and evened the count on two kicks for rouges.

ARGOES OUTCLASS OTTAWA HOME-BREWS

Toronto, Nov. 17.—One of the best games of the local senior season to watch was the closing engagement of the interprovincial Union, in which the Argonauts shattered the hopes of the home-brew Ottawa aggregation to tie the Double Blue for second place in the standing by inflicting a 12-to 6 defeat on the Eastern invaders. Ottawa, with two successive victories to their credit over the Montreal squad, were in a position to climb up on the second perch with the Scullers, and they were confident they could do so, but on the play of the afternoon there was no doubt as to which was the better team.

The Oarsmen deserved a greater margin in the final score to give a correct indication of the play, but the margin of only a converted touch down kept interest sustained to the last. The game was witnessed by one of the smallest crowds of the year, but those who were faithful to the Fall sport saw an excellent game, of the open-play variety. There were numerous smashes at the line, but there were also lots of attempts to round the ends and to advance the ball by the aerial route, and all these tended to give the spectators almost a continual view of the ball.

ST. PATRICK SQUAD TAKE ICE TO-DAY

Toronto, Nov. 17.—Hockey practices at the Arena got under way Saturday, with St. Patrick's taking the ice at 12 o'clock noon and working out for an hour. Varsity followed from one to two. The Irish had fourteen players out, including their two newcomers, Bert McCafferty, of the Granites, and Reg. Reid, of Seaforth, and also Lockhart the pro goal-tender, who will be used while the team is preparing for the opening of the season: John Ross Roach, Bert Corbeau, "Red" Stuart, Jack Adams, Reg. Noble, "Babe" Dye, "Shrimp" Andrews, Holway, Speyer, Arbour and Jackson. St. Pats play their first game, an exhibition affair, with Calgary at the Arena next Saturday night.

SWIMMING TESTS HELD AT "Y" POOL

The preliminary swimming test for the Prep Class was held on Saturday morning, when a large number of the class passed the different tests. Three tests were tried, as follows:

Two lengths of the pool, one length, and across the pool, with the following results:

Two lengths—W. Lynch, R. Sidenius, D. Ridley, M. Moorman, C. Blackburn, N. McKechnie, C. Boulter, J. Graves, B. Ritchie, F. Fisher, C. High.

One length—W. McLaurin, C. Yerrow, G. Pepper, C. Kelleher.

Across Pool—G. Fisher.

Buttons will be awarded and further tests held from time to time so that those who improve will be given credit. The long plunge for Preps was won by W. Lynch, 30ft. 8 inches; D. Ridley, 24 ft. 9 inches; C. Blackburn, 23ft.

ROWING CLUB OUST BALMY BEACH TEAM

Hamilton, Nov. 17.—Rowing Club had the satisfaction of trimming Balmy Beach, O.R.F.U. winners, in the final game at Scott Park Saturday afternoon. The count was 16 to 10, and the Toronto team didn't make a very impressive showing. The brand of rugby displayed will not do in the championship play-offs. Long runs featured the play, the poor tackling of both teams being largely responsible for such bursts of speed. The Hamilton team had the best of the sprints. Both lines were wide open during the greater part of the game.

NORTHERN ONTARIO DEVELOPMENT

The constant development which is taking place in the mining areas of Northern Ontario is inviting more and more attention every day and has justified the building of additional railway lines in the new territory by the Ontario Provincial System of Railways (T. and N. O.). The Canadian National Railways served this new territory with through trains from Toronto via North Bay. Standard sleeping cars and coaches are operated between Toronto, Englehart, Timmins and Cochrane, connecting with trains for all points in that district, including Larder Lake and South Lorrain branches.

This territory is also served from the East and West by the "Continental Limited" Canadian National's crack transcontinental train.

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"I must go," she said, as if suddenly awakened to a sense of the situation.

"Ah no," he breathed; then he leaned toward her with half-timid eagerness. "Will you come to-morrow?"

The footsteps came nearer.

"I promise—nothing," said Doris, her brows coming together, and with a half glance at his earnest face she glided away from him.

Lord Neville rose and looked after her with the expression which encompassed the desire to follow her; but in that moment a hand fell lightly upon his shoulder, and a voice exclaimed:

"What, Cissy!"

Lord Neville swung round.

"Hallo, Spencer!" he said. "Why, what on earth brought you here?"

CHAPTER VIII.

SPENCER CHURCHILL.

The new comer was a man apparently of middle age; I say apparently, because opinions on that subject were extremely conflicting. Some persons regarded Spencer Churchill as quite a young man, others declared that he had reached the meridian of life, and there were some who were inclined to think that he was, if anything, on the verge of old age. His appearance was singular. He was of medium height, with a figure that was either naturally youthful or admirably preserved. He was fair almost to effeminacy, and he wore his hair long and brushed back from his face; and he was close shaven. But it was not the length of the hair that lent him his singularity, but the expression of his face and his manner.

If he was not the most amiable of men, his countenance belied him. There was always a smile, soft and bland and good-tempered in his eyes, on his lips, and as the Irishman said, "all over him." The smile, in conjunction with the fair face and long hair, gave him so confiding and benevolent expression that the world had long ago come to the conclusion that Spencer Churchill was the epitome of all the virtues.

Most women were fond of confiding in him; most men—not all—trusted him; he was regarded by crossing-sweepers, waiters and beggars generally, as their natural prey, and so effective was his smile that even when he did not bestow his alms, he always received a blessing from the disappointed ones.

Whenever his name was mentioned, some one was sure to say:

"Oh, Spencer Churchill! Yes! Awfully good-natured, fellow, you know. No end of a good soul. Share his last crust with you. Kind of a cherub with legs, don't you know."

But, if strict inquiry had been made—which it never was—it would have been difficult to bring forward evidence to prove the benevolent Spencer had ever shared anything with anybody, or that he had ever been liberal with anything, excepting always the smile and his soft persuasive voice.

Of his past history, and indeed, his present mode of life, the persons who were always ready to praise him knew very little—or nothing, and yet he was always spoken of as one of the best known men in society.

You met him everywhere; at the first reception of the season, at the meeting of the Four-in-Hand Club, at the smoking-room of the "Midnight," sauntering in the foyer at the opera, seated in the stalls of the fashionable theatres, in county houses of the most exclusive kinds, on the shady side of Pall Mall, in the picture galleries, at the big concerts, at dinner parties. His neat figure always most carefully dressed his countenance always serene and placid, as if the world were the most charming of all possible places, and had been specially created for Spencer Churchill; and with the benedictory smile always shining.

He was rich, it was supposed; he was a bachelor, it was thought; he was connected with half the peerage, so it was stated; and that was all concerning his private life that any one knew. But, if little was known about him, Spencer Churchill knew a great deal about other people; some said, too much.

Lord Neville's surprise at seeing him was quite uncalled for, because Spencer Churchill was in the habit of "turning up" at the most unlikely places, and at the most unlikely times and whatever surprise you might feel at seeing him, he never expressed any at meeting you.

Now, as Lord Neville stared at him, he blandly and placidly smiled, as if he had parted from Neville only a quarter-of-an-hour ago, and held out his hand as if he were bestowing a bishopric by the action.

"Why the last time I saw you was at Nice!" said Lord Neville, with a laugh. "And here you are at Barton! What on earth brings you here? Don't make the usual answer about the two-twenty five train and your legs——"

"I wasn't thinking of doing so," said Spencer Churchill, softly. "What a charming spot!" and he looked round with a soft rapture beaming on his face. "Charming! So rural! That brook—those trees—the clear, spring sky—the songs of the birds—didn't I hear human voices, by the way?" he asked; and it is to be noticed that he didn't break off to put the question abruptly, but allowed it to form portions of his softly-gliding sentence, as if it were the most innocent and careless of queries and he let his eyes fall with a gentle, beaming interrogation on the handsome face.

Lord Neville looked aside for a moment. Cherubimic as Spencer Churchill was, Lord Neville did not quite care to answer the question.

"I daresay," he said; "but you haven't answered me yet, Spencer. What brings you here?"

"A deeply-rooted love of the country, my dear Cissy; from a child I have reveled in—er—the green meadows and the purling brook. I always fly from town at every opportunity. And you?"

"I am staying at Barton," said Cecil Neville, rather shortly.

Spencer Churchill raised his pale eyebrows with a faint surprise.

"With the marquis—with the uncle?" he said, softly.

"Exactly. You are surprised; so was I when I got the invitation."

"No, really? Ah, I am so glad! It is so nice to see relations living together in harmony——"

"But we don't live in harmony!" broke in Neville, in his impetuous fashion. "We have only met once or twice and have nearly quarreled on each occasion."

"Oh, come, I don't think the dear marquis could quarrel with you, his nephew."

"No, you're right," said Neville, with a rather grim laugh. "The dear marquis doesn't quarrel, he's too highly polished to do anything so vulgar; he only carries on until one is driven half mad by the longing to pitch him out the window——"

"My dear Neville! Always the same wild recklessness. Pitch the marquis out of the window!" and Spencer Churchill laughed—a kind of dove-like coo. "Now, that is strange! I always find the marquis so delightfully charming——"

"But so you do everybody," retorted Lord Neville, laughing.

"Well, most people are aren't they?" said Spencer Churchill blandly.

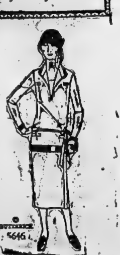
"Jiggs and Maggie" Drawing Crowds

Will Hold the Boards at Griffin's Wednesday

The only complaint the theatre managers have to make regarding "Bringing Up Father" is that they haven't enough seats in the theatre to hold the crowds. Surely—an attraction could not play to such business unless it had merit. Likewise could a cartoon strip in the "Funny Page" of a thousand newspapers from China to South Africa, last for so many years as "Bringing Up Father" has held the attention of the public, if there was not unusual merit to the drawings and comedy presented. The name of George McManus is on the tongue of millions of both grown folks and children as the creater of the most famous cartoon series the world has ever known. "Bringing Up Father in Ireland" is the newest vehicle for the stunts of "Jiggs and Maggie" and their immediate family. They come to the Griffin Opera House on Wednesday, Nov. 19. They bring a beautiful scenic production with adequate light effects, a chorus of snappy femininity, handsomely gowned. Some new and extremely catchy ditties, with accompanying dances of a superior order. Altogether, it is an entertainment that will please everybody who can be pleased. It was created for laughing purposes only. And in that regards it has proven to be a miracle. The fact that has kept this attraction constantly before the public, is that it is absolutely new every year. No hold overs either in scenery or actors, a new cast of superior performers is offered each year. With new and pretty faces in the chorus. New songs and incidental music, as well as new and up-to-date gowns for the ladies. "Bringing Up Father In Ireland" will prove to be a pleasing innovation at the Griffin Theatre.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



The two-piece frock with a tuck to break the straight skirt at the side is the French idea of the correct day dress for la jeune fille.

Though not every boarding-school insists on a uniform, the best finishing schools demand a uniformly simple type of dress for school hours. The two-piece frock has replaced the middy dress and is really a trimmer, a smarter version of it. Young girl like it for it is not too miss-ish since women, if they are sufficiently slender, wear the same garconne style. It is made in jersey tubing, soft cashmere dress goods or light-weight flannel and can be trimmed with stitching, contrasting bands, collar and cuffs. Brown is smart with henna and navy blue can be stitched or trimmed with scarlet, emerald green, toky blue or rose.

Social Items

"Gunner" Arnott, who has been visiting his relatives here, returned to Preston to-day and will turn out with the Preston hockey squad for practice at Hamilton to-night.

Rev. Dr. W. S. MacTavish leaves today as a representative appointed by the Belleville Prohibition Union to attend a meeting in Toronto in the interests of prohibition.

Mr. Thomas Wills, sanitary inspector of the city, is confined to the house through illness.

Dr. E. N. Baker of Albert College was unable to be present at the services in Tweed, yesterday where he was to speak, and one of the students took his place.

DIVERS REASONS FOR INSANITY TROUBLES

Toronto, Nov. 17—Last year there were 45 more men than women admitted to insane asylums in the province but there are more women than men at present confined to institutions, as the men either recover more easily and are discharged, or die from their illness more quickly than do the women. These unfortunates included 14 women and 8 men broke down under the mental worry of love affairs; 50 men and 69 women to whom overwork and worry proved too much; five men and 16 women driven insane by religion, and five men and seven women who fell victims to fright.

Those persons so saddened by unfortunate love affairs are indeed pathetic, but in most cases are not incurable. There is a young lady in an Ontario institution who mumbles night and day because Thomas Meighan, the movie actor, does not come and marry her. Two others loathe the sight of men and scream in hatred if one approaches them.

Inmates of hospitals for the insane suffering from grandiose opinions of themselves seldom, if ever, imagine themselves heroes or heroines of the opposite sex. For instance, in the asylum in Toronto is a lady of middle age who demands homage from all who approach her, for she is the "Queen of Toronto" and a right majestic figure she imagines herself to be.

FAMOUS BAND LANDS AT QUEBEC TO-DAY

Quebec, Que., Nov. 17—The band of the Princess Patricia Light Infantry having concluded their special engagement at the British Empire Exhibition are proceeding to their headquarters at Winnipeg, having landed at Quebec this morning off the Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Scotland. The success of the band in London exceeded all expectations and so pleased were the authorities of the Exhibition with the performance given that they engaged the band for a further two weeks making an engagement of six weeks in all. The Empress of Scotland which was delayed several hours by a heavy snow storm on the way up the St. Lawrence river carried besides a large general cargo for Quebec, nearly 5,000 bags of mail for Canada and the Orient. Seven cars were needed to take this shipment of mail, which is considered the largest of the season out of Quebec.

"Lovers' Lane" Life Proves Unusual

As Shown in Pictures at Griffin's During First Half

The name, "Lover's Lane," never fails to awake tender feelings or memories even in those of us who are least inclined to sentiment. It means a path where lovers meet and spend many happy hours. Yet, there is another meaning, a still bigger meaning that is the theme of the film version of this Clyde Fitch stage play, "Lover's Lane," which is to be shown at the Griffin Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Lover's Lane," is the path of heart's desire, that symbolizes something different to each of us. To some it may be love; to others it may be self-sacrifice and service; still to others it may be just a mad search for pleasure and fun.

The story is of a young man who has chosen as his "Lovers' Lane" life of service as country doctor, even at the sacrifice of love,—and a girl who has given up the man she loves in her search for happiness away from the secluded life fo the country. Both have sacrificed love, but only one has sacrificed it to a noble purpose. It is not long, however, before the girl realizes that a life of sacrifice and love is the goal to ultimate happiness, that a life of selfish pleasures will lead to discontent and unhappiness.

The cast of brilliant players, headed by Robert Ellis and Gertrude Olmstead, includes Frances Dale, Craufurd Kent, Bruce Guerin, George Periolat, Maxine Hicks, Charles Sellon, Ethel Wales, Kate Toncray, Aileen Manning and Dorothy Vernon.

Phil Rosen directed this Warner Bros. Screen Classic. Dorothy Farnum adapted the stage play to the screen.

"Hollywood" Picture At Belle To-night

Story of "Home of the Movies" Should Prove Interesting

Directing a director! It's not many directors who get such an assignment.

Therefore, in "Hollywood," James Cruze stands distinctive, as Cecil B. De Mille is one of the most notable players in this unique screen novelty which discloses nearly a score of the most famous persons in filmdom.

Mr. Cruze found his director-player exceedingly easy to handle, however, for long before he became a director, Cecil B. De Mille was a stage player, his last success being sixteen years ago in "The Prince Chap."

Mr. Cruze filmed Mr. De Mille playing himself, in other words signing players to a contract in his famous office in the presence of members of his staff. Thus for the first time the world will be shown the famous room in which Pola Negri, Thomas Meighan, Gloria Swanson, William S. Hart, Agnes Ayres and many others were changed in a minute from leading players to famous stars.

"Hollywood," which was written by Frank Condon and adapted for the screen by Tom Geraghty, comes to the Belle theatre tonight. It shows the experience of ambitious persons trying to become film players, it flashes Hollywood's boulevards on the screen, the luncheon places, Hollywood Hotel and scores of other places made famous by the most talked of city in the world. It is a James Cruze production for Paramount.

our own borders; this Association believing that without advocating any cliquish or exclusive doctrine of "Canada for Canadians", it is now the immediate and urgent duty of our Government to encourage immigration of the best British citizenship to people our vast and rich areas, and to furnish constant and productive employment to our people in the creative development of our boundless resources.

St. Lawrence Waterway and Power Development

A subject of vital interest to this section of Ontario will be presented by Mr. C. M. Reid and Mr. J. O. Herity. The proposed resolution explains itself.

That all Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in Ontario should each in its own community and collectively in association, give the weight of their educative influence towards securing a united public opinion in favor of the immediate development of the St. Lawrence water power and the increase of facilities for deep water navigation from and to the Great Lakes, and this Association urges upon the Government the necessity of stern action to prevent the piracy and wrongful diversion of the waters of the Great Lakes and of Niagara.

Imperial Tariff Preference

Lt.-Col. Ponton and Mr. F. S. Deacon will submit the sixth resolution which is as follows:

That while foreign countries build and maintain a formidable tariff wall against the products of our Canadian fields and industries reciprocal measures should be passed to protect the productive wealth of this Province and of the whole Dominion and further that every effort should be made to foster and encourage mutual inter-imperial trade between Canada, the Mother Country and our sister Dominions Commonwealths and Colonies, through a generous system of preference, and the continuous employment and subsidy of our merchant marine, low freight, postal and telegraph rates and such further facilities and aids to the interchange of commerce and commodities as may be devised, in order to make the British Empire, so far as practicable, one economic unit. And that the Governments of this Province and the Dominion be memorialized accordingly.

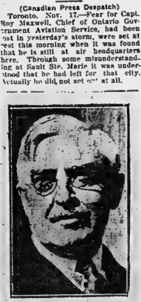
AVIATOR SAFE AT HOME

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 17.—Fear for Capt. Roy Maxwell, Chief of Ontario Government Aviation Service, had been lost in yesterday's storm, were set at rest this morning when it was found that he is still at air headquarters here. Through some misunderstanding at Sault Ste. Marie it was understood that he had left for that city. Actually he did not set out at all.



J. M. BUTLER, appointed U. S. senator in succession to the late Henry Cabot Lodge.

CAPTAIN GRASS FOUNDED KINGSTON

Mayor Mikel Has Incorporated His Letter in U.E.L. Book

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 17.—Few men are entitled to the credit of founding a city, but the late Capt. Michael Grass is conceded to be the founder of the historic old city of Kingston.

Capt. Grass was a British soldier during the wars between Great Britain and France on this continent. He was taken prisoner by the French and kept in captivity for two years in the old colony of Quebec. During this time he learnt of the fertile soil and other advantages of the district at the head of Lake Ontario, and the junction of the four waters, Cataraque River, Bay of Quinte, Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence. Capt. suggested this to the British comander on his realease, with the result that seven shiploads of United Empire Loyalists set sail from New York on Sept. 8, 1783. On their arrival Capt. Grass selected as his portion the land where Kingston now stands. The others went further west and settled on the shores surrounding the Bay of Quinte.

Mayor W. C. Mikel of Belleville, who is preparing a United Empire Loyalist "Book of Remembrance", has obtained possession of a letter written by Capt. Grass to the Kingston Gazette in 1811, in a reminiscent strain.

"Seven and twenty years, Mr. Printer, have rolled away since my eyes for the second time beheld the shores of Cataraque. In that space of time how many changes have taken place, in the little circle in which fate had destined me to move. How many of the seats of my old associates are now vacant. How few of them, alas, to mourn with me the loss of the companions of our sufferings, or to rejoice with me at the prosperous conditions of this our land of refuge; yet will I not repine, they are gone I trust to a better land.

"Yes, seven and twenty years ago scarcely the vestige of a human habitation could be found in the whole extent of the Bay of Quinte, not a settler had dared to penetrate the vast forests that skirted the shores. Even on this spot now covered with stately edifices, were to be seen only the bark thatched wigwam of the savage, or the newly erected tents of the hardy loyalist. Then when the Ear heard me, it blessed me for being strong in my attachment to my sovereign and I was raised high in the confidence of my fellow subjects. I led the loyal band, I pointed out to them the site of their future metropolis and gained for persecuted principles a sanctuary for myself and followers, a home."

Two of his grandsons are still living in Belleville.

WILD WHITE SWANS 'CALL' ON JACK MINER

Kingsville, Ont., Nov. 17.—(Canadian Press)—Jack Miner's bird sanctuary here was the calling place recently of a flock of about 200 wild native white swans on their way south for the winter. The manoeuvres of these birds on Lake Erie near the Miner farm, were witnessed by many interested bird lovers. White swans, which in their wild state were almost extinct in Canada a few years ago, regularly make the sanctuary a port of call on their way north in the spring, but seldom stop on their way down. It is thought that the unusually mild weather, combined with the well-known—to them—table board at Jack Miner's place induced this detachment to drop in for a day or two on an autumnal surprise visit.

Are your NERVES Normal ?

FROM THE MAIN LINE

or spinal column, your nerves branch out, connecting with all parts of the body, head, arms, legs and vital organs, etc. Anything the matter with any one of these, affects whatever part this nerve leads to. Chiropractic methods operating from the spine remove these troubles and nature does the rest.

OUCH! LUMBAGO! RUB BACKACHE AWAY

Kidneys cause backache! No! Your backache is caused by lumbago, rheumatism or a strain, and the quickest relief is soothing, penetrating St. Jacobs Oil. Rub it right on your painful back, and instantly the soreness, stiffness and lameness disappears. Don't stay crippled! Get a 35 cent bottle of St. Jacobs Oil from your druggist. A moment after it is applied you'll wonder what became of the backache or lumbago pain.

In use for 65 years for lumbago, backache, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism or sprains. Absolutely harmless. Doesn't burn the skin.

Restore Gray Or Faded Hair

Look Young, Bring Back Its Natural Color and Gloss With Sage Tea

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gay. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time: by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Annual Convention Of "Y" at Preston

Vitally Important questions Applicable Here, To Be Discussed

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Preston, Ont., Nov. 17.—The fourth national convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Canada will be held here on Nov. 28, 29 and 30. As this is the first national gathering called since 1920, it is a vitally important one to the association, and among those present will be delegates from many of the associations throughout Canada and and five internationally-known "Y" workers. These are: Dr. John R. Mott, general secretary, international committee Y.M.C.A.; H. Lightbody and Dr. David Yui, general secretaries of the national committees of Scotland and China respectively; D. A. Davis, senior international secretary of the Y.M.C.A. of Europe, and E. C. Carter, special secretary of the World's Alliance Y.M.C.A.

One of the most important matters to be threshed out at the convention is the question of Y.M.C.A. work in the smaller Canadian cities—of the 25,000 population and under. Another prominent subject will be the report of the committee on revision of the constitution of the convention of the Canadian Association and the National Council. R. F. McWilliams of Winnipeg is chairman of this committee. In view of the organization of a national council in the United States as well as the necessity of more direct leadership in general agencies, some important changes in the constitution are declared to be absolutely necessary. The convention will discuss in general the present status, improvement and expansion of association work in Canada and its relationship and obligations toward the U.S. and world associations.

Another subject of importance is the report of the commission on membership basis, of which Dr. E. M. Best of Montreal is chairman. Since the last Canadian convention the associations of North America have made some adjustments on this matter which the convention will consider, and it is believed that a better interpretation of membership than that now existing can be obtained.

Only three previous Dominion-wide conventions have been held, the first being when the Y.M.C.A. was organized nationally at Winnipeg in 1912. A second convention was held at Ottawa in 1917 and the last one at Toronto in 1920.

Deaths And Funerals

ELIZABETH BUTLER

Miss Elizabeth Butler, well-known and highly esteemed lady in the city passed away on Saturday after a lengthy illness. Deceased who was 60 years of age was born in Deseronto, being a daughter of the late Tobias Butler. For many years deceased had resided in Belleville where her friends were legion. She was a member of St. Michael's church.

An aged mother and two brothers survive. The brothers are Mr. E. J. Butler, barrister of this city and Mr. M. J. Butler of Ottawa, who is Deputy Minister of Public Works. This morning the body was conveyed to St. Michael's church, where Rev. Father C. J. Killeen celebrated requiem mass, after which interment was made at Deseronto. Many mass cards were tokens of sympathy. Bearers were Messrs L. P. Hughes, J. Donovan, C. Whalen F. P. Carney, T. J. Hurley and W. N. Belair."

WILLIAM G. PEARCE

As the result of a paralytic stroke, William G. Pearce of Hamilton passed away at the General Hospital here on Sunday. Deceased was 68 years of age and was born in Hamilton, but was known to many in this city where he resided at one time. Mr. Pearce was a C.P.R. telegraph operator. Deceased was a bachelor. Three brothers and one sister survive. The brothers are Fred and Arthur of Toronto and R. S. of Belleville. The sister, Mrs. J Kramer resides in Chicago. The body will be taken to Hamilton for interment.

WILLIAM S. C. PIKE

Following an illness of about one month, William S. C. Pike died on Saturday at his late residence, 436 Avenue Road, Toronto. He was in his 76th year and came to Canada from his birthplace at Maidstone, England, more than 70 years ago. Settling at Belleville, he made his home there for over 25 years thence going to Toronto, where he has resided ever since. He was a member of the firm of John Leckie, Limited.

Surviving are his wife, two brothers and two sisters. Mr. Pike was well known in Belleville and whilst a resident here was much interested in yachting, being at one time part owner of the sailing yacht "Sylvia", a fast craft. The body was brought here today for interment in Belleville cemetery.

Mr. Pike was a veteran of the Fenian Raid and for some time a member of the 15th Argyle Light Infantry of this city. At Belleville cemetery Ven. Archdeacon Beamish conducted the committal services. Bearers were Messrs. A. Gillen, J. K. Borbridge, J. A. McFee, F. B. Smith, D. M. Waters and Dr. Clinton.

He leaves to mourn his passing two sisters, Mrs. J. F. Jones and Mrs. J. Bates, both of Toronto, and two brothers, Thomas of Toronto, and Fred of Spokane, Washington.

GETTING IN FARM ICE

Harvesting This Good Winter Crop In the Best Way

Success Depends on Ten Conditions—Ice-Houses May Be Cheaply Constructed—Harvesting the Crop—Maintenance of Farm Work Horse.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

It is now none too soon to make preparation for the winter harvest of the ice crop. Some may be for the first time planning to harvest some ice this winter, and they will in all probability need to construct some sort of a building or bin in which to store it. Those who have regularly stored ice may have to make some alterations or repairs to the old ice storage. In any case it is a good policy to make the necessary preparations early, and so have everything in readiness when the time comes to cut and store the crop.

Success Depends Upon Ten Conditions

The style of ice storage really does not count provided the following conditions are fulfilled:

(1) That the ice be cut from a body of clean water and be free from weeds and sediment.

(2) The cakes should be cut regularly, and all of a size. The ice should be at least 12 inches thick.

(3) The ice should be stored on a cold, dry day.

(4) The cakes should be packed together as closely as possible without any sawdust or other material between them. Any spaces between the cakes may be filled with finely broken ice or snow.

(5) Plenty of dry sawdust, at least 12 inches, should be packed between the mass of ice and the walls of the enclosure, and even a greater depth below and above the ice.

(6) The top of the ice storage should be provided with good circulation for air in order to prevent accumulation of warm, stagnant air over the ice. This point cannot be emphasized too strongly.

(7) The ground below the ice pit should be well drained in order to readily carry off the waste from the ice.

(8) The wall around the bottom should be air-tight.

(9) The ice should be kept well covered with dry sawdust all summer after each time ice is removed.

(10) As far as possible the ice storage should be out of the direct rays of the sun, but yet in a place where there is good circulation of air.

Ice-Houses May Be Cheaply Constructed.

It is possible to secure most of these conditions in a very cheap and simple construction, and therefore the storage of ice need not give one much concern. The better style of ice-house is usually constructed of a wall consisting of one layer of boards on each side of 2 x 4 studs, the space between being left empty.

Ice can be kept successfully in various sorts of storages: A large bin made of single boards nailed on ordinary studding or cedar posts and located inside some other building, as a shed or barn; or outside as a simple lean-to on the shady side of a large building; part of a hay-mow; an old silo; or a more costly and attractive building usually called the ice-house or cold storage building.

Most of the ice stored on farms is used for cooling milk and cream and keeping it sweet for short periods. When both milk and cream are cooled it is necessary to store 1½ tons per cow kept, this amount covering a reasonable waste by meltage in the storage. If a refrigerator is used in the house or adjoining the storage where foods for the table are kept, 2 or 3 tons extra should be stored.

Harvesting the Crop.

This crop is not the pleasantest one the farmer has to handle, as it is usually pretty cold and wet work. Lots of good company while working at the job is a great help, and therefore co-operative effort should be carried out in this line of work. The job can be done more efficiently, quickly, more economically and under more pleasant conditions than by the single-handed method. The job is worth while, and, if gone about in a sensible manner, is not too objectionable—certainly not nearly so bad as standing at the tail-end of a threshing machine.

The Department of Physics, O.A.C., Guelph, will gladly supply bulletins and blue-prints describing ice-houses, small cold storages and refrigerators, and describing in detail how the harvesting is done. Write us early. —R. R. Graham, O. A. College, Guelph.

JAPANESE MARRY QUIETLY

Toronto, Nov. 17—A marriage license recently taken out in this city set a precedent for the Japanese here, as S. Tacaba of Toronto University and Ito Sacamoto are the first of their nationality to follow Canadian ways. "Our wedding will be quite plain," said Miss Sacamoto before the event. "In Japan, the bride is required to change her dresses three or four times during the afternoon and evening. I want my wedding to be like any other Canadian girl's." She left Japan for Vancouver when a child. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. E. H. Morley of St. Paul's Anglican Church.

THIRD FIRE VICTIM DIES

Owen Sound, Nov. 17—Number of deaths as result of the disastrous fire here early Wednesday morning rose to three this morning when Mrs. Fred Featherstone, grandmother of two children who were burned to death, died at General and Marine Hospital. Transfusion of blood had been made and she appeared to be making good progress towards recovery, but the change for the worse occurred during the night and she died suddenly this morning. She had been badly burned in fire which destroyed her home.

PREPARE FOR ANNUAL SCRAP MUNICIPALLY

Reserve City Hall For November 25th for Municipal Candidates

PASS 2 BY-LAWS

Will Take Immediate Action Against James Lynch

No new legislation was introduced at a regular meeting of the City Council held last evening.

Members present were: Mayor Mikel Aldermen W. R. McCreary, A. E. La Roche, S. H. Treverton, W. H. Patterson, A. Robinson, D. V. Ketcheson, H. W. Greenleaf, G. E. Foster, R. P. White and A. H. Ketcheson.

Many accounts were recommended to be paid by the various civic committees and three recommendations were passed.

Claims Damage

Mr. Benjamin Simpson addressed the Council relative to a railway siding which had been placed adjacent to his property on Bay street. He had to cross two tracks to get to his home. Mr. Simpson also complained that a water main was placed across his property without his permission. He claimed that the water main had no right to be placed across his lots and he claimed damages to his property from the city to the extent of $500.

Mayor Mikel—"The matter will be considered by the Council and something done to relieve Mr. Simpson."

Mr. Simpson—"If the railway would fix the crossing it would be better for me."

It was decided to refer the matter to City Engineer C. Campbell to investigate and report upon it.

Raise Official's Salary

The recommendation to increase the salary of Mr. E. T. Austin Manager of the Water Works Dept., to $150 per month, to commence December 1st, 1924 was passed without discussion.

Wood For Sale

The Parks Board asked the city to accept a quantity of wood that was cut on property now being converted into a recreation ground and that the wood be distributed by the Indigent Committee of the Council.

A motion prevailed that the offer be accepted.

Girls Hire Hall

The use of the City Hall was granted to the Girls' Athletic Society of the Belleville High School for the holding of an entertainment.

Water In Cellar

The Council was notified by Mr. George Dutton, residing on George St. that water in his cellar was causing him inconvenience. He claimed a city drain was responsible for the trouble.

The matter was referred to the City Engineer to investigate and to give relief to Mr. Dutton.

Asks About Overdraught

Ald. White asked the chairman of the Executive Committee what provisions were being made in reference to an overdraft in the Public Works department.

Ald. McCreary—"The overdraft in the Public Works Department would no doubt be considerable."

Ald. La Roche chairman of the Public Works Committee stated that there was a credit of some $1,500 due the Public Works. He did not think there would be an overdraft.

Pass Two Bylaws

Ald. McCreary introduced two bylaws: namely a by-law to confirm the construction of certain concrete sidewalks in the city under section 9 of the local improvement Act; also a bylaw to amend a by-law relative to the salary of the Manager of the Water Works Department.

The by-laws were passed through their various stages and numbered. Ald. Patterson was chairman on Committee of the whole on by-laws.

Municipal Candidates Prepare

Ald. McCreary moved, seconded by Ald. Treverton that the use of the City Hall be reserved on the night of November 28th for the use of municipal candidates for 1925.

Gus Porter, K.C. Mr. Meighen came in from Toronto, where he addressed the big Liberal-Conservative Convention this morning.

The welcome visitor will speak at Springbrook this evening, the start of a whirl-wind finish to vindicate the courageous action of Mr. Porter in the House last session. He will be at Marmora on Wednesday and Stirling on Thursday.

THREATEN STRIKE IN OLD COUNTRY

Railway Companies Asked To Live Up To Agreement

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 18—Locomotive engineers and railwaymen threaten that there will be a general stoppage of railways of the country next January unless the railway companies live up to the terms of the settlement of the last strike whereby engineers and railwaymen were to receive increased pay beginning in the new year. The cause in the settlement contained the words "unless in the meantime it is agreed otherwise" and this is regarded as the possible obstacle to an increased wage.

London is threatened with a stoppage of work in power houses in the London area, as a result of the claim of workers in barking the super power house for wages equal to those paid in London. There is a difference of six pence per hour.

Lord Beatty Will Resign Is Report

Morning Newspapers Announce Vice-Admiral Sir Osmond Brock Successor

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 18.—Admiral Lord Beatty will resign his post as first Lord of the admiralty at the end of the year, according to some of the morning newspapers. It is recalled that rumors of his resignation were current about one year ago when it was suggested he was retiring, due to dissatisfaction with certain governmental schemes. There is no suggestion of this kind on this occasion. Apparently there is no special significance in his resignation as Lord Beatty's term of office has already nominally expired. Naval circles expect that his successor will be vice-admiral Sir Osmond de Brock, Commander of the Mediterranean station since 1922.

JAPS BORN HERE LOSE NATIONALITY

Tokio, Nov. 18—An imperial ordinance was published yesterday directing enforcement beginning December 1 of a law abolishing dual nationality of Japanese born in Canada, the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru.

The bill requiring the Japanese national university law so as to do away with dual nationality was passed by both Houses of the Japanese Diet, in July of this year. Under the old law a male Japanese born in a foreign country was permitted to denounce his Japanese citizenship up to the age of 17. If he failed to renounce his Japanese citizenship before that time he was subject to certain Japanese law including that of compulsory military service. The revised law provides that Japanese born in foreign countries whose birth give citizenship, shall lose their Japanese nationality from birth unless formal action is taken to preserve their rights to Japanese citizenship.

PEOPLE SEEING KING HAS LEFT THE SAFE ROAD

Liberal-Conservative Leader Gives Convention His Observations

SPOKE BUT BRIEFLY

Mr. Meighen Had to Leave Early to Get Into West Hastings

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 18—With nearly a thousand delegates and guest delegates in attendance, the annual convention of Ontario Liberal and Conservative Association opened here this morning with J. R. MacNicol, its president in the chair. The morning session was devoted to the reading of reports of the secretary and the treasurer and to an address by Right Hon. Arthur Meighen

The Conservative leader spoke briefly on national policy and the progress which he found Conservatism was making in Canada. He believed that Canadians everywhere were beginning to discover that the departure from protectionist policy was jeopardizing Canada's business life and that the only safe road to follow was that of the national policy of Sir. John A. Mac Donald.

J. R. MacNicol, president of Ontario Association and president of the new National Association was in the chair. He outlined the organization work done in the various parts of the Province during the past year J. Earl Lawson, treasurer, delivered his report explaining that the extra funds needed in connection with the national meeting yesterday were raised by the Ontario Association through the publication of a booklet "Canada and the Tariff." Mr. Lawson showed a balance on hand in the bank to the credit of the Ontario Association of £3,426 and in addition said that good debts due for advertisements in the booklet totalled $1100.

Expressing his satisfaction with outcome of yesterday's national conference of Conservative leaders here Right Hon. Arthur Meighen addressed the convention of the party at its commencement this morning. His speech was brief because the Conservative leader had to leave at noon for a speaking tour of the West Hastings riding

In his recent tour of the West, Mr Meighen said he had found people not at all satisfied with the achievments of present Government. He made special reference to the taxation conference which he said had proved abortive because the Government disavowed responsibility. The Government, said Mr. Meighen, had taken away the protection on which national industry depended and offered nothing in return

Canada needed not an "expensive shibboleth" or any new business nostrum, but it needed only to get back or to the rock of "common sense of the national policy" and to profit by the experience and tradition of fifty years of prosperity.

Daylight Saving Will Be Question

Aldermen Draw Up Question Following Receipt Of City Solicitor's Letter

At the approaching municipal elections the electors will have an opportunity of voting for or against daylight saving for 1925.

City Solicitor S. D. Mason K.C. wrote the City Council last evening in reference to the procedure to be followed in the matter. The council he stated, should submit to the electors a question as to whether they were in favor of the project or not. If the vote was favorable, a by-law could be prepared later. The following motion relative to the matter was unanimously adopted.

Ald. Robertson moved seconded by Ald. La Roche that the following question be submitted to a vote of the electors at the Municipal Election on Monday December 1st.

Are you in favor of the passing of a by-law authorizing daylight saving for the city of Belleville for the year 1915.

And that the City Clerk be instructed to publish a notice of the taking of the vote and the question to be submitted in the daily newspapers.

Wanted Just a Temporary Marriage License to See if it Worked Out

Winnipeg, Nov., 18.—The bride was willing, and the best man had his Sunday suit on, and the groom had the proverbial smile, but Magistrate F. Richards was not enthusiastic when a Central European applied to him for a "temporary mariage" license yesterday. The application was made at the Central police station, and the marriage, so it was explained, was to be for three years—if the test was unsuccessful "all "bets" would be called off." "Apermanent license" was the only solution, the magistrate explained, and the interested parties retired in conference with the groom declaring "some arrangement could be made."

ALEMITE MEN TALK BUSINESS AT THE QUINTE

Representatives from whole Dominion Are in Convention Here

WORDS OF PRAISE

For E. W. Rowsome, Energetic General Manager

Representatives of Alemite Products of Canada Limited who have come from western and eastern extremities of the Dominion entered upon the second of their three day convention here at the Quinte Hotel this morning.

The morning session today took the form of a private discussion among the representatives in their gaily decorated headquarters, and doubtless much which was profitable resulted.

Commencing Monday morning and concluding Wednesday evening with a banquet at Hotel Quinte, the big Alemite Products of Canada Limited three day convention, is now in full swing. Representatives of the great Alemite family are here from as far west as Calgary, and as far east as St. John. Mostly young men, the representatives in convention here are live business men, and their object is to increase efficiency in distribution of Alemite products, according to the opening remarks of Mr. Quattrocchi. Export Manager of the Bassick Manufacturing Company.

General Manager E. W. Rowsome of the Alemite Products Company of Canada officiated as chairman.

Mayor W. C. Mikel, in tendering an official welcome to the convention visitors, paid high tribute to Mr. Rowsome whom he designated as being one of Belleville's most progressive citizens. Outlining varied and substantial industries of Belleville, the chief Magistrate referred to the Canada Cement Company, The Consolidated Industrial Distilleries Limited and the happy medium between the "dry" and "wet" industries in Alemite products the real lubricant.

Mr. J. O. Herity, Industrial Commissioner here, announced that this was the first convention of the kind ever held in Belleville, and also congratulated Mr. R. J. Graham and Mr. E. W. Rowsome on having secured a Canadian branch of the Bassick Company in this city.

"Even when there has been an industrial depression, explained Mr. Herity, "the Canadian Alemite has been going right ahead. This was a happy and unusual experience of industrials, and largely due to the energetic and businesslike Canadian manager, E. W. Rowsome.

The Bassick Company is now manufacturing radio sets here, and soon the company will begin the manufacture of casters and furniture hardware

During a recent visit to Washington, D. C., and other American points, Mr. Herity has noted that there is a tendency now in the United States to get away from large cities when they select sites for their plants. Great economic loss in high wages, and equally great loss of time in transportation owing to heavy traffic and long distances in large cities, was the reason for their seeking out smaller centres He also told of the keenest interest existing in the Dominion of Canada among the executives of American industries here.

Mr. J. Adams, sales manager of the company then took charge of the convention, and Mr. Prier of the Bassick Manufacturing Company of Chicago paid highest compliments to the administration of the Belleville Alemite Products plant. Pointing out superior methods of handling material in Canada as over against the United States Mr. Prier referred to the superior cost system employed in Canada.

Referring to show boards, displayed and made up by Mr. Young of the local plant, Mr. Prier stated that they were better than he had ever previously seen.

"They will be used as models for boards to be exhibited at the National Power Show in New York city," he assured.

ROYAL TAILORS HAVE ENTERED NEW HOME

The Royal Tailors, formerly located at 285 Front street, have moved into their new store at 236 Front street formerly occupied by H. O. Stewart. Alterations have been made to this store and it has been divided, the south side being now occupied by the Royal Tailors.

Herb A. Fish, manager, will be pleased to have his old friends and customers and any new ones come in and look the new store over, where a complete line of Fall and Winter suitings and overcoatings is carried in stock. An opening sale is being featured this week and customers will save money by taking advantage of it.

Ketcheson Ward—Mrs. Agnes McFee.
Baldwin Ward—J. W. Cook.
Bleecker Ward—Frank Potter.
Coleman Ward—C. E. Hanna.
Murney Ward—G. T. Woodley and P. Harrison.

Trustee Harrison had one year more to serve when he resigned, therefore his successor will be selected for the year while all others retiring if selected will serve two years.

The City Council of 1925 will have to appoint two High School trustees. Col. W. N. Ponton's term of office expires this year and some one will have to be selected to take the place of the late Mr. J. G. Moffat, who was a High School trustee.

Final Meeting And Warden's Banquet

Final Session of County Council Begins December 2nd

On Tuesday, December 2nd, the final County Council session for 1924, will commence in this city and continue for a week. The business to be transacted will not be voluminous as the bulk of it for the year was transacted during the June session.

Thursday afternoon's session will be of interest as it will be of an oratorical nature. Pupils from rural schools who have been selected will present papers in competition for Warden Rollins' prize. His Honor will give a silver cup to the girl and boy who are selected by the judges as competition winners.

Thursday evening, December 4th, Warden Rollins will entertain the members of the Council and others at a complimentary banquet at Hotel Quinte. This promises to be a most pleasant event.

MAYOR & ALDERMAN NAMED AS DELEGATES

At Toronto, on Wednesday November 26, a meeting of representatives of various municipalities will be held to discuss the St. Lawrence deep waterways scheme and other water power problems. Other matters vital to municipal government will be considered. Belleville City Council was requested to send one or more representatives to the meeting.

A motion prevailed that Mayor Mikel and Alderman Robinson be a deputation to attend the meeting.

HENRI BOURASSA CANDID AT LEAST

Would Vote Every Time for Independence He Declares

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, Nov. 18—"I would vote every time for absolute independence for Canada but I would work my hardest to see that, as an independent country, she had the happiest relations with Great Britain and the United States." declared Henri Bourassa, editor of "Le Devoir," during an interview here last night. "While I would prefer to see Canada an independent country, I am in no way inclined to be unreasonable but I do most assuredly consider that she should be one or the other, either an independent country or a country which has a say in various problems which confront the Motherland."

BELLEVILLE MAN KINGSTON PREACHER

Kingston, Nov. 18.—The Rev. S. F. Maine, professor of Religious Education at Albert College, Belleville, occupied the pulpit at Princess Street Methodist church yesterday morning and was also the special preacher at Sydenham Street Methodist church in the evening. During the afternoon he delivered an address to the Sunday school of Queen Street Methodist church.

At Princess Street Methodist church Prof. Maine took for his text "Thou Shalt Call His Name Jesus, And He Shall Save His People From Their Sins," his address being in the form of an analysis of our Lord's position regarding sin. In his discussion of sin the speaker pointed out that from a religious point of view sin is not so much the actual transgression of the law, but lies rather in the motive behind actions which are regarded as sinful. He stated that our Lord when on this earth reversed the general opinion which was prevalent regarding sin, stressing that the greater sins were sins of omission rather than of commission, and that a strict compliance with the law did not automatically save one from committing sin.

Large congregations were present in both churches to hear Prof. Maine, who is a most able and fluent speaker, and whose addresses were most inspiring and instructive.

Clemenceau Denies Having Challenged Lloyd George to Duel Over in Paris

Paris, Nov. 18—Very lively discussions but no actual laying on of hands or threats of duels characterized the Big Four's peace treaty discussions, then Premier Clemenceau declared.

He had been asked about the charge made by Wickham Steed, former editor of the London Times, that he had accused David Lloyd George of "insecre[illegible]sies," that the British Premier seized the "Tiger" by the throat that President Wilson separated them and that Clemenceau then challenged the little Welshman to a duel.

The old "Tiger" lifted his grey-gloved hands in astonishment as the story was told and opened his eyes until the shaggy brows above them almost repeated under his skull cap.

"We often had very lively discussions," he admitted, "but things never went so far."

Asked if he meant to deny or affirm Steed's story, he replied:

"Quote me for exactly what I say. The matter with Steed is he is beginning to let fancy run away with him.

IT'S TIME FOR A CHANGE

When Premier King barters away Canada's protection against great organized industry in the United States, not because he believes in Free Trade, but because he must placate Progressives of the West in order to stay in office,

x x x

It's time for a change.

x x x

When men, entrusted with the honor of Canada, can deliberately excuse the dishonor of a Cabinet Minister for the sake of the preservation of the Liberal party,

x x x

It's time for a change.

x x x

When a Minister of Labor can become so undignified as to tell Union men out on strike that they can "stay out until Hell freezes over",

x x x

It's time for a change.

x x x

When a Government can buy a two million dollar club in London and a three million dollar hotel in Paris without consulting parlament,

x x x

It's time for a change.

x x x

When thousands of good young Canadians depart for the United States because the Government of Canada can not provide work for them here,

x x x

It's time for a change.

x x x

The by-election in West Hastings on Tuesday next is held for one reason and that is to give electors of West Hastings the opportunity to give an unbiased verdict on the charge laid against James Murdock, Minister of Labor.

x x x

However, when The Daily Ontario chants "It's time for a change" in a desperate effort to obliterate the real issue of the election from the minds of the voters, it can be pointed out incidentally that it is time for a change.

x x x

More than that, victory for the Liberal party would do much to delay that change.

WHERE THE TWO PARTIES STAND

The electors of West Hastings are confronted by the fact that the Liberal candidate, Mr. Hanna stands for a policy, which in the words of Honorable Chas. Stewart uttered in the budget debate during last session of Parliament, sounded the "death knell of Protection". On the other hand, Mr. Porter, the Conservative candidate, stands for a policy of adequate Protection.

There is no use trying to beat around the bush on this issue. The business interests of this country might just as well know what they are up against. The tariff changes of last session gave them a rude shock; but there is good reason for saying that the worst is yet to come. it is not the tariff to-day that the business interests have to fear, it is the tariff of to-morrow, if the Liberals and Progressives have their way.

What has Mackenzie King been doing in the west? He has been appealing strongly for Progressive support. He has practically been saying to the Western Progressives: "There is no need of you maintaining a third group in the House. You and the Liberals stand for the same things. Come right in with us; let us make one big party." In a sense the appeal is logical, for the Liberal tariff platform is really that of the Progressives.

Now Mackenzie King knows just as well as anybody does that he cannot get the support of the Western Progressives, nor the support of any considerable body of Western opinion, unless he agrees to make further reductions in the tariff. The Progressives have made it clear that what they got last session was only the first instalment. And no wonder they said so after hearing the Minister of the Interior boldly assure Parliament that the policy announced sounded the "death knell of Protection."

Knowing the direction in which the Liberals are moving the electors of West Hastings are asked to give Mackenzie King authority to do as he likes, as far as they are concerned, with the tariff. If the proposition of the Liberals in this contest means anything, it means this. If the Liberals should win, Mackenzie King would almost certainly come out next morning wtih the claim that West Hastings had endorsed his tariff policy.

There is no other course for West Hastings to take, but to stand by the Protection, as it has done for the last 35 years. This is what the business interests the world over are doing. And there is a good reason why. They are tired of the uncertainty that is produced through frequent changes in the tariff and other unsettling measures. They want to know where they are at.

The country knows where Mr. Meighen and the Conservative party is at on the tariff and on every other public question. Neither he nor his party preaches low tariff doctrine in the West and adequate protection in the East. Mackenzie King found out early this year that the policy of pretence would not do any longer, and so he came out boldly for tariff reduction. Now he can't turn back, for the Progressives, whose support he must have will not allow him to do so.

There is but one thing for the electors of West Hastings to do, and that is to stand by E. Guss Porter and the Conservative party, for those who have anything at stake should know where they are going.

WEST HASTINGS RAILWAY MEN REMEMBER

(From the Mail and Empire)

A garbled account of Mackenzie King's part in the settlement of the Grand Trunk Railway strike of 1910 is being rendered by Grit stumpers in West Hastings. Their aim is to trick railway employes into voting for his candidate in that riding. They have dug up the mess he made of the matter. The facts must not be falsified.

Mr. King was Minister of Labor in Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government when the strike took place and he and his colleague, the late Sir Frederick Borden, intervened in the dispute in the hope of bringing about an agreement between the parties. Finally they succeeded in having a memorandum of agreement signed by the late Charles M. Hays, then president of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, and the heads of the railroad brotherhoods. That memorandum in its opening section declared "the company will put back as soon as possible the men other than those who have been found guilty or may be found guilty of acts of violence or disorderly conduct." The men, naturally, were not prepared to accept so indefinite a term as "as soon as possible." Therefore it was agreed that "as soon as possible" should be interpreted as meaning within three months. That fact was announced in a telegram in which Mr. King stated that Mr. Hays had given "an undertaking that the men will within three months from this date be taken back into service and within that time be placed in their former positions." From the agreement sprang two causes of complaint by Grand Trunk employes. First, the company was dilatory in reinstating some of the strikers; later, it contended that the strikers had broken the continuity of their service and forfeited pension rights. Strangely enough, Mr. King did not seem to have thought it necessary to raise the question of pensions rights in discussions with Mr. Hays. The Laurier Government went out of office and Mr. King out of Parliament in 1911. Mr. Hays lost his life at sea in 1912. The Borden Government brought pressure to bear upon the Grand Trunk, even holding up its private legislation in 1913, to force it to carry out the pledge to its former employes. The Borden and the Meighen Governments were both hampered by lack of written evidence of Mr. Hays' pledge to restore the strikers to their old positions within a definite period.

In 1919, Mr. King returned to Parliament, and in 1920, ten years after the settlement of the strike, produced a supplementary memorandum, signed by the late Vice-President William Wainwright, by authority of Mr. Hays. That document contained the pledge "the men will within three months from this date be taken back into service and within that time be placed in their former positions. Mr. King explained that it was to have been treated as confidential unless needed to compel the Grand Trunk to observe its agreement. Had Mr. King handed that weapon to his successor in the Labor Department in 1911 he would have served the Grand Trunk employes better than he did by allowing it to lie hidden in some old files until 1920. Railway men in West Hastings will not forget this perfidy to their fellow-workers.

TWAIN'S PRESENCE OF MIND

(The Argonaut)

Mark Twain once sat in the smoking room of a steamer and listened for an hour to some remarkable stories. Then he drawled.

"Boys, these feats of yours that you've been telling about recall an adventure of my own in Hannibal. There was a fire in Hannibal one night and Old Man Hankinson got caught in the fourth storey of the burning house. It looked as if he was a goner. None of the ladders was long enough to reach him. The crowd stared at one another with awed eyes. Nobody could think of anything to do. Then all of a sudden, boys, an idea occurred to me. "Fetch a rope!" I yelled. Somebody fetched the rope and with great presence of mind I flung the end of it to the old man. 'Tie her around your waist!' I yelled. Old Man Hankinson did so, and I pulled him down."

THE POPULAR AGE TO MARRY

(Vancouver Province)

Looking through the last volume of Vital Statistics of Canada (1921) it is found that 24 is the magic age — brides more young ladies having married at that age than any other. The total for eight provinces of Canada—the exception being Quebec—was 3.74

Next in popularity is 25 which was the given age of 3,650 brides, and 2[illegible] a close behind with 3,642.

Of all persons seeking licenses to marry in Canada less than two per cent. are unable to read and write which is a record none may feel ashamed of even in modern times of high education.

Eastern maidens marry earlier than those from British Columbia and the prairie provinces, according to the statistics. The age 24 is most popular for all Canada and is also leader in the provinces of Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Ontario while more girls were married at the age of 21 in Nova Scotia than in any other, and 27 leads the field in Manitoba.

Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia all show 25 as the most popular age for milady to marry.

A superstitious man who found a spider on his paper, wants to know if it is a bad omen. The spider was merely looking over the columns of the papers to see what merchant was not advertising, so that it could spin its web across his door and be free from disturbance.

The largest advertisement in the world is in the shape of immense flower beds on the side of a hill near Ardenlee, Scotland. The beds are each gigantic letters 40 ft in length, the whole forming the words "Glasgow News." The total length of the line is 132 ft; area covered by the letters, 11,845 feet. The letters can be distinctly seen from a distance of four and one-half miles.

THE COMMON GOLD

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

The open season is at hand for the common cold. The health authorities say that this common cold is extremely communicable. That is why it is so common in cold weather. There is closer contact of people in public buildings and less ventilation when the temperature goes down. Under such circumstances few people coughing and sneezing would be liable to spread disease in every direction.

This Lassie Has Her Colds "Rubbed Away"

The mother of this attractive little girl, Mrs. E. E. Emmans, of 215 Seventh Ave., N. E., Portage La Prairie, Man., is one of the many Canadian mothers who are enthusiastic about the vaporizing salve, Vicks VapoRub, for treating children's colds. Mrs. Emmans writes: "My little girl had croup at night pretty badly and Vicks did her a lot of good. I have also used it with very satisfactory results for head and chest colds."

Vicks is just "rubbed on" for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup or deep chest colds. When so applied, Vicks has a double direct action: internally medicated vapors are inhaled while, at the same time, externally, it is absorbed through and stimulates the skin.

WHEAT PRICES ADVANCE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Reports of frost in Argentina, together with higher quotations at Buenos Aires and Liverpool, sent wheat prices here upward today during early dealings. On advance, however, some recent buyers turned to selling side. Volume of transactions was fairly large and sentiment rather more evenly divided than has been the rule of late opening. Prices which ranged from 1-2 to 11-4c higher, were followed by slight further gains and then moderate temporary sag. Corn and oats were responsive to wheat strength and to wintry weather. After opening 1-2c and 1c up, corn market receded somewhat, but rallied again soon. Oats started unchanged to 1-2 higher and later showed general up turn. In provision market, effect of lower quotations on hogs was more than counter-balanced by rise of grain values.

Teachers Meeting Was Big Success

Officers For Ensuing Year Were Elected at Annual Meeting

On Saturday, November the fifteenth, the Ontario Secondary School Teachers of the Kingston district held their annual meeting in the Belleville Y. M. C. A. Representatives from the secondary schools from Brockville to Brighton, some fifty in number, sat down to a dinner provided by the local teachers. It was a happy occasion, and community singing led by Mr. A. L. Stillwell was as bright and snappy as that of the Rotarians or Kiwanians.

After dinner, the routine business of the district was discussed and officers were elected for the coming year.

Honorary Pres.—Mr. W. Bellamy, B.A., Brighton.

Past President—Mr. A. L. Stilwell, B. A., Belleville.

President—Mr. A. J. Husband, B. A., Brockville.

Vice President—Mr. D. M. Halpenny, B.A., Stirling.

Secretary-Treasurer — Mr. W. M. Shurtleff, B. A., Kingston.

Councillor—Mr. W. M. Shurtleff, B. A. Kingston.

Representatives to the Provincial Conference—Mr. W. P. Williams, B.A., and Miss H. Farley, B.A.

After the business was disposed of the teachers had a real treat in listening to Dr. E. A. Hardy, head of the English Department of Jarvis St. Collegiate, Toronto. Dr. Hardy is one of the leading educationists in the Dominion, and knows thoroughly the history of the various teachers' associations in our own and other lands.

Dr. Hardy spoke of the past, present and future outlook of the teaching profession. There are in Canada to-day eleven separate federations of secondary teachers, nine of which are affiliated with the Dominion wide federation, known as The Canadian Secondary Teachers' Federation. The teachers in our land to-day have established a place for themselves and won recognition of their importance. In fact, it is only recently that teaching has won the status of a profession. Indeed there are still steps to be taken to assure autonomy of our profession as in the other professions of law and medicine. He pictured the future of Canada, and the part teachers would be privileged to play in shaping its destiny. As he rapidly surveyed the great change in attitude towards education in the last decade and its influence on the future, one felt that there would indeed be a greater, finer civilization, and thrilled with the thought of what it means to be a teacher in times like these.

In seconding the vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. R. Whyte, of Trenton, Mr P. C. MacLarin said that it was a pity that so fine an address should be heard by so few. He suggested that in future the teachers should not keep these good things to themselves, but admit all citizens interested in education.

One interesting feature of the meeting was the presentation of a life certificate to Mr. Bellamy, of Brighton, who has completed forty years of service in teaching. In accepting the certificate, Mr. Bellamy said he was proud to be a teacher. He was also glad to say that during his forty years' teaching he had not missed a month, adding all his days together, through illness. Mr. Bellamy still seems to be in the best of health and will probably be able to teach for several years yet.

FUR FARMING IS PROVING POPULAR

Ottawa, Nov. 17—Fur farms in operation in Canada in 1923 totalled 1,240 comprising 1,179 fox farms and 61 farms raising fur bearing animals other than foxes, according to a report on fur farms of Canada issued recently by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Although the fox have proved most suited to domestication other kinds of fur bearing animals are being raised in captivity—mink, raccoon, skunk marten, fisher, beaver and muskrat. Karakul sheep, from which are obtained the furs known as "Persian lamb", "astrachan" and "broadtail" are being raised successfully in Canada as are also chinchilla rabbits. In 1923 the number of miscellaneous fur-bearing animal farms was 61, compared with 49 the previous year. These are farms raising other than foxes.

The total value of fur farms in 1923 was $8,434,964, an increase of $634,860 over 1922. The total number of all fur-bearing animals on the farms at Dec. 31, 1923 was 40,125, an increase over 1922 of 9,343. Sliver foxes increased from 22,318 in 1922 to 25,186 in 1923. The total value of all fur-bearing animals on the farms was $6,325,663. The value of the silver foxes on the farms was $6,119,651, an average value per fox of $243.

Record is made by the Bureau for the first time of farms for the raising of chinchilla rabbits and of coyotes or prairie wolves. Increases in number of fur farms are shown by all of the provinces except Saskatchewan, but the largest proportionate increases are in Ontario and Alberta where the numbers of fur farms have almost doubled.

Can't Close Up Montreal Houses

Chief of Detectives Claims Police Have Not Good Support

The police of Montreal are powerless to close apartment houses which are known to be the hangout of persons of loose character and where immorality exists to a great degree because there is something wrong with the law, according to Inspector Egan, Chief of Detectives, who was the sole witness at the judicial police investigation this morning. The Chief added during this testimony that when many of the cases were brought to the Court one judge took a different view and rendered a different judgment to another and that the police did not know where they stood. The only remedy against the evil, in the opinion of the witness, was to make continual raids in an effort to have the occupants of such houses discouraged.

The Chief was questioned about the Bradford Apartments on St. Denis street and admitted in reply to a direct question that in 1923, when he was Inspector, he had made many raids on this place but he had found it impossible to close it up. The house was known as a rendezvous to persons of bad character and girls had been caught soliciting for it, but though he made cases, he never had succeeded in having it closed.

BOYS BREAK MANY WINDOWS OF SCHOOL

Montreal, Nov. 18—They didn't assign any real reason, but a group of five boys, all under fifteen, admitted to Judge Lacroix in juvenile court yesterday that last Monday, Thanksgiving day, they broke $20 worth of windows in the McVicar Protestant school in the east end.

They might have had a grudge against that particular school, or didn't like one of the teachers—or maybe it was just boyishness, but anyway they hurled several dozen stones at the structure, hitting more windows than they missed.

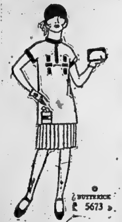
Judge Lacroix ordered their parents today to pay the damages, and to keep closer watch of the youngsters.

"We are determined to stop these glaring offences against the law on the part of juveniles," declared an official of the court to-day. "In the case of those who are truant from school we shall do all in our power to show them the error of their ways."

Dr. F. S. Fairweather has been appointed lecturer in Chemical Pathology at Leeds University. He has been in general practice in Ellesmere Port and has experience of industrial chemistry.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



The juvenile edition of the tunic blouse costume boasts the Mah Jong Chinese collar, tile trimmings, a plaited skirt, and is very smart in wool materials.

A Mah Jong frock for the Four Seasons is quite adorable in dark-blue wool crepe with the little Chinese collar, cuffs and tiles of rose or old-blue flannel, in mustard-yellow flannel with the skirt of green and mustard plaid, in soft green cashmere trimmed with bronze-colored flannel or in a dozen other combinations of wool materials and new colors.

In making your daughter's clothes don't make them too long on the theory that she'll grow into them. By the time they are a smart length, they will have lost their freshness. Make them short enough to be fashionable and as she grows they will simply look a little more French.

Saved From Years of Headaches.

MRS. HONORE VALIQUETTE

The wonders of the famous Fruit Treatment are only revealed when you read a letter like this, which comes from Madame Valiquette, 1133 Notre Dame St. W., Montreal.

"For three years, I was troubled with bad Headaches, Nervous Dyspepsia and Liver Troubles. Then, I began taking "Fruit-a-tives". Very soon my condition improved, and thanks to these wonderful fruit tablets I am once more entirely well".

"Fruit-a-tives" is the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, intensified and combined with tonics—and forms a complete fruit treatment for Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Skin Troubles.

WOMAN GOVERNOR TO DO DAY'S WORK

Austin, Texas, Nov. 18. (Canadian Press).—As yet Governor Mrs. Ferguson has given little thought to the social side of her position. There are certain tasks that she will have to perform, but for the most part the duties of hostess of the Executive Mansion which are most exacting and tiresome, will be left to her daughter Dorrace. There will be no great outlay of wardrobe by the new Governor, she has told her friends. She will provide herself with a few work dresses for office wear. She expects to put in full working hours every day at the office. As to whether or not she will show a preference of women in her appointments to office she has nothing to say at this time. She is acquainted with the fact that there are many positions coming within her appointive power which women can fill as capable as men. The anti-nepotism law prevents her from appointing her husband her secretary, even should the Legislature remove the impeachment against him which is still standing. It is expected, however, that Mr. Ferguson will serve in the capacity of unofficial adviser, without pay.

HOME BANK PEOPLE ASKING FOR RELIEF

Ottawa Nov. 18— The Depositors' Committee of the Home Bank are coming to Ottawa in about a fortnight to press upon the Government provision at the next session for their relief. J. E. Weldon one of the committee has been here making arrangements. The difference between the probable recovery from the assets is placed at about nine million dollars. One dividend of 25 per cent. has been declared and Mr. Weldon states that about 12 per cent more is in sight.

The situation is that following the Royal Commission's report, the House unanimously concurred in the Banking Committee's conclusion that the depositors have a "Moral Claim in Equity," to be reimbursed from the public treasury. One reason why the question was deferred was that it was the end of the session, and more particularly because the liquidation process was not far advanced. It is said that this will take five years yet, and there is to be an active campaign for substantial relief next session.

Actors Engaged In Fist Battle

Quarrelled Over Introduction to Girl Playing in Show

New York, Nov. 18— Lowell Sherman, one of New York's best known matinee idols, engaged in a fist fight with George Baxter, also an actor, at the Actors' Equity Association ball, which ended at the Hotel Astor early Sunday in a turmoil of fighting, it was learned.

The quarrel between Shedman and Baxter was caused by Sherman's refusal to introduce Baxter to Miss Lillian Foster appearing in a current Broadway show, according to Baxter. The fight started in Sherman's box, which he occupied with his mother and Nora Bayes. Ethel Barrymore occupied an adjoining box. Both Sherman and Baxter bore marks of the conflict. There was no complaint to the police.

NOVEMBER 13 IS SMITH'S BAD DAY

Kingston, Nov. 18—It looks as if the thirteenth of November is Peter Smith's unlucky day. It has just been learned here on looking up dates that the former Pdovincial Treasurer, who was brought here to serve a term of three years was sworn in as Provincial Treasurer November 13th, 1919, and it was November 13th 1924, he arrived at the prison to serve his sentence. At the prison this morning it was stated that he had not been assigned to work as yet as he is still undergoing treatment in the hospital for a minor ailment. One report has it that he is likely to be given a job in the prison library.

Found His Girl Wrapped in Flames

Six-Year-Old Montreal Girl Was Playing in Kitchen

William Bartlett heard a child's cry from the next room where his babies were playing, but for a few moments thought nothing of it. When the crying again attracted his attention he entered the kitchen to find his six-year-old daugher, Irene, rolling on the floor, her nightgown a mass of flames.

It only took an instant for the father to smother the blaze, but as he removed the garment parts of the flesh came away with it and it was evident that the child's condition was serious. She was taken from 90 Colborne street to the Montreal General Hospital at six o'clock Saturday afternoon and died there at five this morning.

A verdict of accidental death was given by the Coroner this morning and an autopsy will be held as doctors who attended her believe that a chronic trouble and shock contributed to her death.

"Exhausted Nerves and Palpitating Heart"

Mrs. L. Whiting, 202 King St. West, Brockville, Ont., writes:

"I took very sick with my nerves and stomach, and seemed to be all run down. At times my heart would flutter and palpitate so and I would take such weak spells in the pit of my stomach that I sometimes thought I would never get better. I tried several doctors, but it seemed nothing they gave me helped. I had almost given up hope when a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I tried it, and can say it certainly has done wonders for me. I did not stop until I had taken twenty-five boxes."

Change Rules For Lake Yacht Racing

Judge Wills of Belleville Elected to Association Office

Toronto, Nov. 18—The Lake Yacht Racing Association held its annual meeting at Hamilton Saturday, with Commodore C. H. Pook, of Hamilton presiding.

Changes in the rules discussed are summarized as follows for recommendation to the Y.R.U.:

1. Permanently curved masts are prohibited, but this rule shall not apply to yachts Marconi rigged prior to the passing of the rule by the union.

2. Definition of close hauled and free: Close hauled—A yacht is close hauled when sailing by the wind as close as she can lie with advantage in working to windward. Free—A yacht not so sailing is sailing free.

3. A yacht with the wind on the port side shall keep clear of a yacht with the wind on the starboard side.

4. When both yachts are free and have the wind on the same side the yacht to windward shall keep clear.

5. A yacht to prevent another yacht from passing her to leeward after the leeward yacht has established an overlap must never bear away in such manner as to compel the leeward yacht to alter her course to avoid risk of collision. The leeside to be considered that on which the leading yacht of the two carries her main boom. The overtaking yacht must not luff until she has drawn clear of the yacht she has overtaken.

The rule passed last year that the winner of the George Cup automatically became the representative for the Yacht Racing Cup for Lake Ontario was rescinded and a new plan is to be devised for selecting the Lake Ontario contender. The Toronto Canoe Club, the present holders of the cup, will defend next year in Toronto.

The Genesee Yacht Club and the Buffalo Canoe Club were admitted to membership in the association which now has ten clubs on its roll.

The meet of the association will be held next summer at Big Bay (Bay of Quinte) under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, Aug. 5, 6 and 7. The Freeman long-distance-run will be held on Aug. 4 from Toronto to Presqu'ile.

Officers Elected

The officers and council for 1925 are as follows: President E. Barrows, Rochester Yacht Club; Vice President T. A. E. World, Queen City Yacht Club; Honorary Secretary, Blake van Winckle, Queen City Yacht Club; Council, John T. Mott, Oswego Yacht Club; D. E. Marsh, National Yacht, Club; Mr. Hyland, Toronto Canoe Club; Judge Wills, Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

One council member from each of the following clubs will be appointed to the sailing committee of the respective clubs: Royal Canadian Yacht Club Crescent Yacht Club, Kingston Yacht Club, Royal Hamilton Yacht Club; Genesee Yacht Club, Buffalo Canoe Club.

The Delegates

The following yachtsmen represented the various clubs: Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, Judge Wills and T. Y. Wills; Rochester Yacht Club, Messrs. Christie, Faxton and Mabett; Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, Messrs. Pook, Robertson and Hancock; Crescent Yacht Club Commodore Ed. Lansing; Queen City Yacht Club, Messrs. T. A. E. World Farquharson and Ewing; Toronto Canoe Club, Messrs. Bailey, Reilly and Hyland; Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Messrs. Benson, Wade and Major Windeyer.

WATCHING ST. PATS AT FIRST PRACTISE

Manager Powers worked two forward lines this morning. Noble, Jackson and McCaffery opposed Andrews, Holloway and O'Leary.

John Roach and "Bouncer" Lockhart guarded the nets during the "pro" work-out.

Reg. Noble surprised the fans with his speed and dead-eye shot. It appears as if the Collingwood boy has been in training for some weeks.

Bert Corbeau was out on the ice as speedy as ever. He gave the "Rookie" wing men several severe bumps.

St. Pat's are taking no chances of their goalie, John Roach, being forced out of the game through head injuries this season. While in Baltimore recently, Mr. Paul Cerel discovered a new safety headgear that will protect the Irish goalie from future injuries.

The players expressed appreciation this morning, when it was learned that each senior team and St. Pats would have separate dressing rooms. Aura Lee, after sharing with St. Pats for several seasons, moved into the old St. Mary room.

Roach is Captain

After a half hour skating practice, the players adjourned to their dressing room and elected John Roach as their captain for the 1924-25 season.

Manager Powers placed two teams on the ice.

The "Hot Dogs" lined up as: goal, Roach; defence, Corbeau and Holloway; forwards, O'Leary and McCaffery with Andrews at centre.

The "Apples" had Lockhart in goal, Jackson and Spiers as defence with Noble, Adams and Dye on the line.

John Klesch of Cleveland was given the decision at the end of the scheduled eight round boxing bout at Toronto last evening when he met Fred Snell of Birkenhead, England.

Soldier Loses Medals

New provisions in the King's Regulations state that when the insignia of British orders, other decorations and medals are lost by a serving officer or soldier through unavoidable circumstances arising out of the service, they may be replaced at the public expense.

PHIL BROCKEL MADE CAGE CONVENOR

Mr. P. F. Brockel, physical instructor at the Y. M. C. A. has been appointed convenor for central Ontario district of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association. The district includes Peterboro, Kingston, Oshawa, Belleville and any other places where a team may be selected. Belleville team this year is composed of some new blood and a good team will be in the game. Tomorrow evening a full team practice will be held.

Another Gerhard Heintzman Phonograph Leaves for Distant Land

Ordered by Dr. C. J. Cooper for His Home in Hamilton, Bermuda

The fact that the extraordinary musical qualities of the Gerhard Heintzman Phonograph are winning favor for this excellent instrument far beyond the borders of Canada is again proven by a recent order for one received from Dr. C. J. Cooper of Hamilton, Bermuda, British West Indies

Other shipments within the year to India and New Zealand demonstrate that no distance is thought too great, nor the fact that they must sometimes wait many weeks before receiving their phonograph is not considered, by those whose musical abilities can only be satisfied with the Gerhard Heintzman Phonograph, whose sterling musical qualities have earned it the honor of being the only Canadian-made Phonograph to win the Gold Medal in open competition.

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"I don't know," replied Lord Neville. "I'm afraid I must be getting back. I'm due at lunch." He pulled out his watch, but instead of looking at it, glanced in the direction Doris had taken.

"Looking for any one?" inquired Spencer softly.

Lord Neville started rather impatiently.

"No," he said, "oh, no. Where are you staying? I'll look you up——"

"I'll come with you," said Spencer. "The walk will be delightful, and I am glad to see you."

"All right, come on then," said Lord Neville, and the two started in the direction of the Towers.

Spencer Churchill did most of the talking—it was almost like singing, so soft and bland and unobtrusive was the voice; Lord Neville listening rather absently, and making answers rather wide of the mark at times—for he was thinking of Doris—and when they reached the entrance to the avenue he stopped.

"I'm sorry I can't take upon myself to ask you in to lunch, Spencer," he said, with a laugh; "but my uncle might—and probably would—consider it a liberty, and have you, possibly both of us chucked out; and, though I shouldn't mind it, you mightn't like it, you know."

"I really think I'll take the risk," said Spencer. "The marquis and I are such old friends, that I—yes, I'll chance being expelled."

"All right," assented Lord Neville, as before. "Come on, then; and don't blame me if the consequences are as I suggested."

"No, I won't blame you," said Spencer Churchill.

They made their way to the hall and the groom of the chambers and the footmen received them as if they were royal visitors.

Lord Neville said:

"Tell the marquis that Mr. Spencer Churchill has arrived, please."

The groom did not look surprised, but merely bowed as he departed.

The drawing-room was empty and the two men stood talking for a minute then the groom came and led Mr. Spencer Churchill to wash his hands, and Lord Neville went up to his room. As he came down the luncheon bell rang and he led Spencer Churchill into the dining-room.

The marquis was already seated, and Lord Neville was about to explain Spencer's presence, when he saw the marquis give a start, and as he rose and extended his hand Neville fancied that he noticed a peculiar twitch of the thin colorless lips.

"Ah! Spencer," said his lordship, and he spoke, Lord Neville thought, with something less than his usual cold and biting hateur, "this is a surprise! Pray be seated," and he himself sank into his chair, with no trace of the mental disturbance in his face or manner, if there had, indeed been any.

"Yes, it is a surprise," said Spencer Churchill, softly, taking his seat, and unfolding his napkin, as if he had been lunching at the same table for months past; "I was so fortunate as to meet our Neville in the—er—fields I may say, where he was roaming in happy and poetic solitude, and he was kind enough to assure me of a welcome if I came on with him."

"His assurance was—on this occasion—justified," said the marquis; with a cold glance at the young man.

Spencer Churchill smiled, as if the taunting and exasperating speech were one of the most amiable.

"Thanks," he murmured; "and you are well, I hope, marquis?"

"I am never ill," replied his lordship as if he were quite incapable of such vulgarity.

"Ah, no, that is always so delightful of you!" said Spencer. "Our dear Neville enjoys the famous Stoyle constitution also; he is never ill, are you, Neville?"

"No," said Neville, grimly, and without lifting his eyes from his plate.

"I have always been given to understand that the possession of rude health is the privilege of the fool," remarked the marquis. "Of course, we are the exceptions from the rule."

"Exactly," murmured Spencer again, as if this were the most charming of compliments. "Some of us, alas, have become convinced that we have hearts and livers!"

"Not all of us—so far as the hearts are concerned," said Neville, curtly.

The marquis almost smiled; to goad any one into a retort made him as nearly happy as it was possible for him to be.

"Where are you staying? You will come on here, of course?" he said.

Cartoon Show Will Be Bright Offering

Maggie Rules Supreme with Rolling Pin Here Wednesday

Bigger, Brighter and better than ever before, fairly bristling with novelty, comes "Bringing Up Father in Ireland" to the Griffin Opera House Wednesday night, Nov. 19. This is the tenth season of this very remarkable cartoon review, with an entirely new production at every visit. The "Bringing Up Father" series of plays, has become the greatest laughing show the theatrical world has ever known, through the extraordinary popularity of Mr. George McManus of the New York American and Journal. More than a thousand newspapers throughout the entire civilized world, feature this series in their Sunday "Funny Page". The tenth consecutive year will be very much on the order of a celebration for those inimitable characters "Jiggs and Maggie" not forgetting our old friend "Dinty Moore" without whom this would be a dry old world for "Jiggs". Since "Maggie" bought a slice of stock in the rolling pin trust, she is never at a loss for an argument. In fact she invariably presents a very solid argument, and Jiggs will substantiate the fact, if his head had not already proven the fact that he was substantial, we would have been all out of "Jiggs" long ago. This year's offering will have the usual number of pretty girls, wearing the latest creations in gorgeous gowns. Special music of the snappy sort has been furnished, with novel dances to lend zest to the entertainment. All together, there will be nothing better in this vicinity this entire season. It is always advisable to order seats early for this attraction, as capacity houses are general at every visit.

Griffin Picture Pleased Crowd

"Lover's Lane" Has Fine Combination of Plot and Cast

It was a very pleased audience that left the Griffin Theatre last night after the showing of "Lovers' Lane," film version of Clyde Fitch's famous stage play.

Perhaps Phil Rosen was to blame, for he directed it. Then, again, it may have been the story, or even the cast. It is very difficult to determine which factor really was responsible for making this such a thoroughly enjoyable picture. Most likely, it was the combination of all of them.

"Lovers' Lane" is a heart interest drama of rural life, done with simplicity and reality, yet sparkling with a certain something that shows us more than the commonplace and the ordinary in the incidents that are portrayed. To one who appreciates the beauty of the country, the exterior scenes in this production are a real treat.

Robert Ellis and Gertrude Olmstead portray the leading roles of Dr. Tom Singleton and Mary Larkin with sincerity and unquestioned ability. Had these two well-known players never been heard of before, this picture would have brought them to the foreground. Under the circumstances, it simply sets them a little higher.

It is a Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, directed by Phil Rosen, famous for his direction of "Abraham Lincoln" and "Being Respectable."

Enough Stars For A Dozen Pictures

In "Hollywood" Fine Production Showing at Belle Theatre

Enough stars and notables to make a dozen pictures—all in one! This fact obtains in James Cruze's new Paramount production, "Hollywood," the picture which is scoring heavily at the Belle theatre. Besides the ones who play the "strangers in a strange land"—including Luke Cosgrave, G. K. Arthur, Ruby Lafayette, Harris Gordon, Bess Flowers, King Zany and others the picture shows more than a score of famous screen folks. These are the ones the heroine, a girl from the middle west, finds when she visits the studios seeking work, or notices at the hotels or on the boulevards: Cecil B. De Mille, Pola Negri, Thomas Meighen, William S. Hart, Agnes Ayres, Jack Holt, Walter Hiers, Leatrice Joy, Jacqueline Logan, Nita Naldi, Betty Compson, Lila Lee, May McAvoy, Theodore Kosloff and 40 other celebrities. The story is by Frank Condon, adapted by Thomas Geraghty.

EXCHANGE RATES

New York, Nov. 18.—Sterling Exchange steady demand rates in cents Great Britain 461 7-8, Canadian Dollar at par.

CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, Nov. 18.—With lower quotations at Liverpool and Buenos Aires, wheat market here showed downward tendency to-day during first part of Board of Trade session. Despite declines here however, commission house buying became broader and material rallies resulted. Opening which ranged from 1-2 to 1-8c lower was followed by numerous fluctuations within limits of about 1 1-2c. Although corn and oats showed sympathy with wheat, weakness, corn market later developed some strength. Sellers of corn were relatively scarce. After opening unchanged to 3-8c off corn market underwent moderate general sag and then rose all round to above yesterday's finish. Oats started at 1-8 to 3-8c lower and later continued easy. Provisions were firmer.

FIRE TRUCK CRASHES

Lindsay, Nov. 18.—Passing Lindsay street on the way to a chimney fire at James Godin's, 52 Ridout street, about eight o'clock Sunday night, the fire truck was struck by a Ford touring car driven north on Lindsay street by a Mr. Archer who lives about two miles out of town on the Bobcaygeon road. The truck, which was struck on the right running board and rear fender, slewed under the impact and the left wheel was completely shattered on striking the north-east curb. There were four men on the truck, but only one, Geo. Preston, who was standing on the rear, was injured. He was caught between the truck and a telegraph pole on the corner, severely injuring his left arm.

The Ford car was almost completely wrecked, but none of its occupants were injured beyond a few minor cuts and scratches.

Hospital Gutted

The old Military Hospital, facing the lake on Barriefield Common, was completely gutted by fire yesterday morning, and nothing now remains except the walls. The fire was first discovered at about 10 a.m., word being immediately telephoned to Military Headquarters, who instructed the O.C., R.C.H.A., to send a detachment of men to the scene of the fire in order to prevent it from spreading. Twenty-five men from the R.C.H.A. Brigade were immediately sent, and this party successfully prevented the flames from spreading to the other buildings in the vicinity, and through the grass to the bush, then men and a non-commissioned officer being still at the scene of the fire at the time of going to press.

Reception of Lord Byng

There will be no official luncheon given on the occasion of the visit of Lord and Lady Byng to Oshawa on November 26. A meeting to complete arrangements for the reception of the distinguished visitors will be held in the near future.

Stock Theft Charged

Port Hope, Nov. 18.—Fred A. McLean, charged with stealing twelve shares of stock from Alma Christie on May 8th, amounting in value to $800, appeared before Magistrate Campbell yesterday morning, and on being asked whether he wished to be tried by the Court yesterday morning, Mr. F. W. McMahon, appearing for the defence, elected to be tried at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

Lights Failed Him

While on his way from Port Hope on Saturday night Dr. Beatty, of Gardenhill, when near the Welcome Corner, something went wrong with the lights of his car, and failing to see where he was going, the car went into the ditch at the corner and was badly smashed. Neither Mrs. Beatty who was in the car, nor the Doctor were hurt.

Real Cold

According to a statement of a Bobcaygeon man the thermometer registered five degrees below at that village yesterday morning.

MacGaughey to Hang

Peterboro, Nov. 18.—Fred McGaughey, now in the death cell of Lindsay jail, will hang on the morning of December 5th as per sentence at his recent trial, for shooting Beatrice Fee. His attorney, Leslie Frost, of Lindsay, has returned to Lindsay after an unsuccessful appeal for commutation of sentence made to the Department of Justice at Ottawa.

DESERONTO NEWS

Deseronto, Nov. 18.—The Kenmore Girls will offer a splendid program of entertainment and are billed for appearance at the White Hall on Tuesday, Nov. 18th, under the auspices of the Women's Citizens League. An invitation is extended to all, who are assured of a high-class entertainment for the evening.

A delightful dance was held at Camp Summerside on Friday evening under the auspices of the C. and C. Club. Ben Hokea's orchestra, which is so favorably known in this territory, rendered delightful for dancing, many pleasing remarks of appreciation being heard. The dance was favored with a good attendance. The C. and C. Club intend repeating the event at a future date.

The death is reported from Rochester, N.Y., of Jessie Margaret Stewart Carmichael, who leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Fred W. Bolz; one son, Fred W. Stewart, and five grandchildren. Funeral services for the departed on Friday, Nov. 14th, after which the remains were conveyed to Mount Hope cemetery, Rochester, for interment. Prior to her second marriage the deceased was the wife of the late William Sewart, a brother of Thomas A. Stewart of the Stewart House, Deseronto, Ont.

Mr. William Dale of the Trenton Cooperage Co., Trenton, was a business caller to Deseronto on Saturday. Buyers were numerous, and the visiting farmers found ready sale for their offerings. Many nearby farmers visited Deseronto in the evening for shopping purposes, the merchants welcoming their visit and report good business for the city.

MRS. B. H. HART SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Women to Know How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cornwall, Ontario.—"I am now giving your medicine a fair trial and it surely is doing me good and I am going to keep on taking it. I used to feel so tired in the morning that I didn't want to get up, but that feeling is leaving me now. I also sleep better and feel more like working. For seven or eight years I have had headaches, tired feelings, pains in my back and across my body. I read letters in the newspapers saying what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done others. My husband says I quit too soon, but I am not going to stop taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine until I am better and haven't an ache or a pain. Isn't that the right way? I have great faith in your medicines. They must be good when those who take them speak so highly of them. I am recommending them to my friends and I will gladly answer letters from women asking about them."—Mrs. BURT H. HART, Box 1081, Cornwall, Ontario.

Mrs. Hart wants to help other women and is willing to answer letters from sick women asking about the Vegetable Compound.

RAWDON RALLIES TO SIDE OF RIGHT

LARGEST POLITICAL MEETING EVER HELD IN THE TOWNSHIP ACCLAIMS PORTER STAND

Meighen Ably Marshals Counts Against Minister Of Labor

TIME FOR A CHANGE

Conservative Leader Points to Dangers in Government Pathway

The largest audience which ever assembled in Rawdon township for a political meeting, greeted Right Honourable Arthur Meighen, leader of the Liberal Conservative party, when he hurled the first bomb shell into the rapidly demoralizing Liberal camp at the first of his series of five meetings which are to be held in this riding before Tuesday next—voting day. The meeting was held at Springbrook.

Many in the audience were Liberals who were especially appealed to by J. R. Cooke, M.P.P., their member, and the ex-Premier. There was not one dissenting voice and the attention which was given speakers by the large audience was remarkably fine. Other speakers were W. A. Boys, M.P. Chief Conservative Whip of Barrie, and Candidate E. Guss Porter, K.C.

Reeve Walter Draycup of Rawdon presided very capably, and Reeves James Moore of Elzevir, Reeve W. E. Wiggins of Faraday, Reeve James Haggerty of Huntingdon and Reeve Charles Thompson of Madoc township were present.

Appealing to the electors on the real issue of the bye-election, the Murdock charges, which he proved beyond a shadow of a doubt, Hon. Arthur Meighen the main speaker, also carried the argument to the issue which will be used at the next general election—probably next Autumn—the tariff and protection issue. This was done defensively to meet the Liberal cohorts who evade the real issue—the Murdock charges—and talk Dominion politics.

A Hint For Others

Stating that the tolerance and vindication of Murdock's conduct as a Minister of the Crown, by the electors of West Hastings Tuesday, would mean the signal for a wild scramble for money on the part of public men, the speaker gave the most concise, clear and accurate account of the real issue ever heard in the riding.

That Mr. Duncan Marshall, paid Liberal organizer has not the first grasp of the truth in the matter, was the opinion of Mr. Meighen, who also stated that Marshall having been illegally appointed, had himself illegally withdrawn thousands of dollars from the treasury in the past, though the real fault lay with the Government which appointed him. Marshall speaks aside from the truth on the issue.

Commenting at length on the Liberal statements that the country is better now than ever before, deficit reduced, and that a surplus over all expenditures exists, the ex-Premier proved by facts and figures with which he had armed himself before leaving Ottawa, that the statements were untrue in their entirety. He showed how reduced protection, and increased taxes had made the cost of living higher, the cost of machinery higher, reduced the revenue, and depopulated Canada at an alarming rate. Three years have shown that the issue on which the Conservatives appealed to the people at the last General election have been vindicated and established sound and right, he said and there is now no strain on its honor, no mark on its record.

Up to West Hastings

In an issue like the Murdock charges, it was pointed out that the Opposition in the house is not empowered to ask for a general election, but must be satisfied by the verdict of the electors of the riding represented by the man making the charges, in this case the electors of West Hastings who sent Mr. Porter to Ottawa to represent them. It is important then, that these electors know the issue, shorn of all attempts of misrepresentation and mis-information and get the undisputed facts.

"As there are a number of Liberals in the audience", smiled the Ex-Premier, "I will produce documents which I have and I will ask you to follow with care, knowing that your decision on Tuesday will have a decided effect upon Canadian history."

The foolish question being put by Liberal speaker. "Would you not do the same as Murdock did", is meaningless, it was pointed out, for Murdock being a Cabinet minister is not in the same class with an ordinary citizen For as a member of the Government, especially a Cabinet Minister, he cannot use his position to his own individual advantage. This is a cardinal principle.

As to whether or not Murdock actually did what he is accused of, no one this side the walls of Bedlam or the nursery will deny, after having read the evidence. Whether he is a rich or poor man is immaterial, and where the money ($4,050) came from means nothing to the issue. It may have been his indemnity—it matters not, but if any man who has drawn the indemnity to which he was justly entitled for the number of years he has, he should be ashamed to have speakers telling from the public platform, how poor he is. They have no better defense to offer for the man who has drawn between $60,000 and $70,000 in the past few years as indemnity.

Murdock Missing

Recalling the hurried meeting of Home Bank directors at Ottawa when they asked government help in the form of deposits, after expressing their position—having called upon the Finance Minister and then the Premier, Mr. Meighen told of the Cabinet meeting which was subsequently called, and which Murdock attended. Following the meeting, a delegation was sent to the Bank of Montreal to solicit co-operation—but Murdock was missing. In twenty minutes from the time the meeting closed he had $4,050 cash drawn from the Home Bank, and deposited it the Royal bank in his stenographer's name. He said he drew the money to pay a mortgage. This was untrue as no mortgage was due, and it is on the records. When the facts were made known to the liquidator of the Home Bank, Murdock was afraid to stand before the courts of the country and defend his conduct. Then it was that "He did not want anyone to suffer through any act of Jim Murdock", the thread worn alibi of Liberal speakers, in their flimsy defense.

"Why did he not think of that when he withdrew the money six months before," asked the speaker.

Mr. Porter Was Asked

Mr. Porter is not on trial," he continued." It is Murdock who is on trial, and it was I who asked Mr. Porter to take the task of laying the charges, as it is my sworn duty to see that the Opposition held the Government to the honourable charge of their duty. I chose Mr. Porter because he was best qualified by training, equipment and record. A partisan majority was against him, however, and now he returns with an appeal to you to seek vindication. Mr. Porter had nothing to gain, but any government that says it was not worth while resigning over, is not a safe government to have.

Wishing other things to intervene, the Liberals were very late in issuing the writ for the bye-election. They wished to pile up majorities in the Quebec bye-elections in the hope that they might influence West Hastings. The tide turned against them in Quebec however, where by purely racial appeals they were successful in winning the counties, but turned many votes against them.

If the conduct of Murdock is condoned Tuesday, the riding will have a reputation in the Dominion. Day after day public men, by virtue of their office know of commercial situations. In forming the budget and fixing the tariff on products, if a public man were allowed to use knowledge which others cannot obtain, he could make thousands of dol-

SAID LAST NIGHT

"No one this side the walls of Bedlam or the nursery, can deny Murdock's guilt when the evidence is read."—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen.

"If no person was ever to suffer by any act of Jim Murdock, why did he not think of that six months before he made this statement—when he drew the $4,050 out of the Home Bank."—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen.

"You are in truth a jury."—W. A. Boys, M. P. of Barrie.

"If any of the 2,900 people in my riding, who lost between one and twelve thousand dollars each when the Home Bank crashed, had known what Murdock knew by virtue of an oath, they too could have saved their money."—W. A. Boys, M. P.

"The Liberals granted licenses to seventeen distilleries and breweries in the very faces of the temperance forces."—J. R. Cooke, M. P. P. for North Hastings.

"If Hanna cannot see what I have done for West Hastings, he must be blind as well as dumb."—E. Guss Porter.

"Mr. Duncan Marshall is paid $6,000 a year by the Liberal Government as their organizer. He is a "hired man," who is trying to earn his money these days. Murdock put the money in his "hired girl's" name—now the "hired man" is trying to get him off. The country will soon be run by "hired girls" and "hired men."—E. Guss Porter, K. C.

"Even Hanna's election cannot wipe out the deep scar on Murdock's soul."—E. Guss Porter.

A POOR WITNESS
(An Editorial)

A few of the people of West Hastings, composing a part of the jury to render a verdict on the charges laid against James Murdock, Minister of Labor, heard an unexpected witness last night—the defendant himself.

Under the cloak of secrecy, which is now decidedly becoming to the man, Murdock slipped into Belleville late yesterday to speak to a Hanna rally in the City Hall.

His visit was almost entirely unannounced. As the evening shadows began to close in, hand bills were distributed huriedly throughout the city, and a last minute flash appeared in the Liberal organ. Liberals as well as Conservatives were surprised that the Cabinet Minister had the nerve to spek in his own defense, so consistent has his attitude of silence been when opportunities were afforded the man previously for telling the whole truth.

x x x

The jurors of West Hastings might well have expected some important evidence from this witness in the case. They would have been pleased to hear at least either a denial or confirmation of the charge that he received the information concerning the impending failure of the Home Bank at the meeting of the Cabinet held on the same day he withdrew his money. Some explanation as to why this man Murdock deliberately gave three different versions of the reason for his withdrawal of the money, would have been satisfying, when the public knows that only one of these three could have been truthful. The jurors might have expected a full and exhaustive discussion of everything relating to the charges.

But what happened?

As has been pointed out, Murdock arrived in the court of West Hastings slyly. He knew before arriving here that the hasty nature of his visit would prevent an opportunity for cross-examination. He realised that with just a few of the jury men present, practically all supporters of Hanna, he would be able to get away with a bluff.

Murdock is to discover that West Hastings folk knew good and bad evidence when they hear it. Electors of this riding cannot be satisfied with garbled truth.

x x x

Murdock held before his audience a copy of The Daily Intelligencer which contained a complete story of what he did from the time he first heard of the condition of the Home Bank at the Cabinet meeting until the present moment. He admitted that the article "Guilty or Not Guilty" had been brought to his attention. Without a shadow of a doubt he read every word carefully.

Yet, knowing that everything in the article had been consumed by the public and that there stood against him a most definite resume of all that Mr. Porter has charged, Murdock was willing to dismiss it with an observation that it contained nothing but "innuendoes and insinuations."

Murdock did not deny that he received the tip that saved his money from the Cabinet Council.

x x x

Murdock did not deny that he rushed from that meeting of the Cabinet direct to the Home Bank to make sure that he cashed in before the crash came.

x x x

Murdock did not deny that before he left that Cabinet meeting, he knew he would be doing wrong to profit by the information supplied the Government.

x x x

Murdock did not deny that he demanded bills instead of a marked cheque from the cashier of the bank.

x x x

Murdock did not deny that he rushed back to his stenographer and placed the four hundred ten dollar bills in her hands with instructions to bank it in the Royal Bank in her name.

x x x

Murock did not touch on these points, knowing that they would indeed prove embarrassing for him.

Instead, this man Murdock stood proudly before his audience, praised himself for all the good things he thought he had done during his life time, and announcing with melodramatic force that his conscience was not bothering him.

There is such a thing as not having any conscience.

x x x

Any explanation that Murdock offered last night was smeared with vagueness. He brazenly told about the manner in which he was tipped off by a fellow six days before the failure of the bank. Apparently he expected the jury of West Hastings to swallow this version with the help of the explanation that he was too busy during the following days to take advantage of this tip.

He may have been busy. But here is a point to keep in mind. Following the Cabinet meeting at which the Government was informed of the condition of the Home Bank, Cabinet Ministers were faced with a great deal of business to be done in a hurry. One of the most important items for James Murdock's attention was to hurry down to Montreal with his fellow members of the Cabinet to see what could be done by the bankers' association to avert the impending tragedy.

That was a time when James Murdock should have been exceedingly busy to do whatever he could to help prevent the loss of the life savings of thousands in Canada, depositors of the Home Bank.

But James Murdock forgot Government business then. He forgot everything but James Murdock and his four thousand dollars. His feet and his Government motor car could not get him to the Home Bank fast enough.

The Cabinet Minister forgot, among many other things, to mention that he hesitated for some time to tell where he obtained his alleged "tip" that he found it most inconvenient to explain to the committee of the House that he obtained his advice through G. N. Gordon, deputy speaker, from President Daly of the Home Bank. That is, it was most inconvenient until the morning after the late Mr. Daly died. Then he could tell everything.

Murdock made a poor witness indeed. He presents a sorry spectacle at best. His appearance on the stand is distressing.

The disgraced minister will learn to his sorrow, and we hope to his benefit, that West Hastings' people have too keen a regard for simple honesty and straight dealing to appreciate his slippery attitude toward the honor of a Cabinet Minister's position.

Happy Concert At Bridge St. Church

Local Young People Present Most Pleasing Program

The Sabbath School entertainment at Bridge Street Church was an unqualified success. Mr. C. M. Reid acted as chairman.

The first part of the program was put on by the members of the Junior League and displayed not only cleverness of the entertainers but splendid training by Edna Berkley their leader. The first part of the programme consisted of prayer song by the juniors, piano solos by Miss Helen Ackerman, Miss Eleanor Mulott, Miss Isobel Wallbridge and Miss Leonore Stafford. Recitations by Masters Floyd Henry, Ernest Mouck and by Misses Velma Martin, Loreen Adams and Barbara Holton.

There was also a vocal duet given by Miss Lorna Ridley and Miss Margaret Stuart and a playlet by four boys and two girls.

The secondpart of the programme consisted of readings by Miss Gertrude Madden, Miss Maud Sine and a pantomime by Miss Doris Ventress with song accompaniment by Miss Eva Colclough and piano accompaniment by Professor Hunt. Mrs. Dr. Stobie gave two splendid selections, a Scotch ballad entitled "Laddie" and an Irish ballad "The Top of the Morning". Both of which were received with great applause. Mrs. Stobie was at her best and her contribution was very much appreciated.

The pantomime given by Miss Doris Ventress was something new to the school and while it was being given the effect was enhanced by the colored lights thrown on the scene by the lantern of the school, manipulated by Mr. Carl Sills and Mr. Ronald Blakley.

The audience was a large and appreciative one. The whole entertainment went forward with a charming swing and was enjoyed by everyone. At the close the Superintendent announced that after the new year a splendid musical number would be put on by the scholars under the training of Professor Hunt.

JAMES SHOWS HIS CONSCIENCE EASY TO SOOTHE

Murdock Slips Into West Hastings With Evasive Evidence

CITY HALL SPEAKER

Is Careful to Leave Out All Embarrassing References

James Murdock, unheralded and unexpected, arrived in the city last night in an endeavour to vindicate himself in the eyes of the people of Belleville, but after a prolonged statement of the facts connected with the withdrawing of his money, side-tracking to his connection with railway men he could offer no convincing explanations of his actions, merely stating that his conscience was clear and that he was on speaking terms with his conscience, and had been before and since.

Speaking before Mr. Murdock, Col. Roscoe Vanderwater said that it had been stated on that platform that they were afraid to bring Mr. Murdock on that platform. They were not ashamed or afraid, and there he was. The charges laid against him were nothing but a puff ball which would be exploded on the 25th. The opposition said there is but one issue—a purely moral one, but yet they introduced the tariff into it. Col. Vanderwater wanted to know why the Conservative party hadn't raised the tariff when they were in power.

Hon. Jas. Murdock was then introduced and commenced by saying that doubtless the people there had heard the slander and villification of Mr. Porter. The Intelligencer had come under his notice, and holding Monday's copy in his hand he read his own indictment.

"Guilty or Not Guilty?" West Hastings electors comprise jury to render verdict on one of the most important cases ever put to people of Canada, the evidence is conclusive. Let conscience be your guide!"

A Fine Exhibit

"Now," he said "The Intelligencer can announce that Exhibit One is in evidence."

"It was true," he went on, "that as early as March 15 1924, he saw an article in Mail and Empire that a member of the Cabinet was going to be charged with withdrawing his money from Home Bank."

On May 21st Mr. Porter made charges against him of violating his oath as a Minister of Crown. It was a long story to go into. The matter was put into the hands of a committee of which Mr. Porter was one to investigate the charges. Mr. Murdock understood that when such charges were preferred against a member such a member was in duty bound to leave the house and remain out until the charges were proved or disproved. The charges were disproved and he returned.

Wouldn't Stand It All

He wished to call the Intelligencer's attention to the fact that he did not intend to read all the "slush and nonsense" printed in it, but he claimed that the newspaper had made typographical errors in printing and had changed the meaning of the printed words, so that the actual text was not given.

"What is there to the dishonorable transaction?" he asked, and proceeded with a lengthy account of his twelve years on the railroad and as Vice-President of the Brotherhood of Railwaymen In 1919 he was in Cleveland, when he received a letter asking him to come home, because the Government were anxious to obtain influential and confidential men on Board of Commerce, and urged that he should accept the position at $8000 a year. He didn't want a political job, but saw that there was a pronounced and necessary work for him to do in his own country. He took office in 1919, and spent the first three months in dealing with profiteers with indifferent success. Mr. Meighen would probably accuse the government of not doing what they had promised to do, and no one in the country could present a better case than Mr. Meighen but he was prepared to go before a jury and swear that they had been prevented from doing so because they were dealing with profiteers. He resigned because he was accepting money under false pretenses, but came back in the general election and was appointed Minister of Labour.

His Explanation

Getting down to the real issue he said that he did have some money in the Bank and when he was warned by a fellow, who was experienced in money affairs, to take out his money because the Bank was shaky, he thought it was time that he placed his money in a safe place. He did want to use it for a new house and could show a receipt for it for the benefit of The Intelligencer. Mr. Porter had asked why he did not withdraw his money before and in regular banking hours. He (Murdock) had a busy week, meeting morning and afternoon. He supposed he could have found time if he had been unduly alarmed. He gave the money to his private secretary who for two years had handled his cheques. He didn't know if that was the proper thing to have done, but he did it.

Then he read the original oath to which he swore when he entered office and challenged any to find where

COULD NOT FIND DECENT LIBERAL

So Chose Hanna Who Went Back on His Principles

"This is your fight," said Mr. E. Guss Porter K. C., Conservative candidate at Springbrook last night. "I am your spokesman, sent to you to represent you at Ottawa. I spoke as I know you would speak if you were there in my place."

Explaining the delay in the election, Mr. Porter stated that they could not find a respectable Liberal oppose him and fight the cause. They did get a Tory who went back on party and principle, and he has not yet said much to attract attention.

In appealing to the ladies, many of whom were present, he told them that they were now given an opportunity of vindicating the giving of the franchise to them, by their ability at deciding moral issues. This was a moral issue.

The candidate told of inaugurating rural mail delivery through out the township of Rawdon.

Liberals Bring In Temperance Issue

So J. R. Cooke M.P.P., Tells Springbrook Audience Real Facts

When Mr. Porter spoke to electors at Springbrook last night he told of Hanna's speakers having appealed to the Rawdon electors on the prohibition issue. Rawdon is a Conservative stronghold and gave a majority of 700 for the O.T.A. at the recent vote. Hanna's men it is alleged represented Hanna as a tetotaller—Porter as heavy drinker. That is why J. R. Cooke M.P.P. devoted his speech last night to the prohibition issue which the Liberals have introduced.

Comparing the deceit and treachery of the Liberal party to temperance versus the fidelity and square dealing of the Conservative party in the issue, Mr. Cooke drove home truth after truth with such convincing force that everyone sat spell bound.

Carrying his hearers back to 1917, Mr. Cook the member for North Hastings told how the Conservatives under the leadership of Sir William Hearst had taken their political lives in their hands when they passed prohibition, which has resulted in happier wives, mothers and children right in Rawdon township. The act was later sustained, but the Liberals joining hands with the whisky interests crucified the man who gave them prohibition. Five years later, and just a few weeks ago, the Act was again sustained and Premier Howard Ferguson has even pleased the old Globe newspaper by his action following the plebiscite vote.

Reading from a Globe clipping of recent date, Mr. Cook read of the praise which the Globe had for W. F. Nickle, the Attorney General for his straightforward action in connection with the O.T.A. The speaker then named seventeen distilleries and breweries and gave the amounts at which each was capitalized—all of which were granted licenses to operate in Canada by the Liberal Government in the very faces of the temperance forces.

Mr. Cooke who knows the north country as few men do predicted an overwhelming majority for Mr. Porter in that township on Tuesday in conclusion.

Toronto—Farmers of Ontario will re-organize party under name of Progressive with leadership vested in E. C. Drury and Manning Doherty.

London—British Government requests League Secretariat not to place security and disarmament protocol on agenda for next meeting, will consult Dominions.

TELLS ELECTORS THAT THEY ARE JURY IN CASE

W. A. Boys, M.P., of Barrie Strong in Condemnation

ATTACKS MURDOCK

Delves Into Protection Issue and Temperance Question

"You are in truth a jury", exclaimed W. A. Boys, M.P. of Barrie, Chief Conservative Whip in the House of Commons, when addressing Rawdon electors at Springbrook, last night, in the interests of Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C.

"You must decide this paramount issue which affects the honor and integrity which men of the House of Commons hold and especially as Ministers of the Crown.

"If Murdock did right when he withdrew his money, why did he return it when the liquidator got after him?" asked Mr. Boys. "Think of that point when marking your ballot," he reminded. The money was returned under compulsion, and if Murdock was to be vindicated and again "whitewashed" on such conduct, it was an invitation to Ministers to be careless in the House of Commons.

"But if you want to show integrity your opportunity is at hand," entreated the speaker.

"Tell the Globe", advised a voice.

"The Globe knows it, and every honest citizen in Canada knows it", retorted Mr. Boys, "but the double-dyed Grits in the House of Commons would vote for him if he stole in front of them." It was an absolute breach of his oath of office, a dishonorable, dishonest, and discreditable act.

Previously Mr. Boys had said that the temperance question was not an issue in the election at all, but he reminded that the Liberals had been fooled by Premier Ferguson, for they said if he were returned to power he would overthrow the O.T.A. He also told of the Conservatives being opposed to the importation of liquor into Ontario except for sacramental purposes back in 1921, and reminded the people that Ferguson and every Conservative member in the Provincial house could do nothing in the way of upsetting the O.T.A. without the will of the people who put them in power.

The main issue of Dominion politics was also before the Rawdon people, Mr. Boys felt, and so he delved into the great Protection question, and showed that the farmer, as much as any other class of people needed protection. Last year $227,779,504 worth of agricultural products were

A PAPER TARGET

What great fun the Daily Ontario is having, putting up a tissue paper target and jumping through it!

The target is a mythical attack on the character and ability of Charles Hanna, the liberal candidate, which the Ontario breaks with all the ability of a circus clown.

Unable to put a hole through the facts which convict Murdock of grossly misrepresenting to the world a Canadian's standard of honesty, the Liberal sheet proceeds to fly at an imaginary persecution of Charles Hanna, manufactured to provide false campaign national.

The Intelligencer of late as in 1921 has had good words for Charles Hanna, as a citizen of Belleville. Most of the staff of this newspaper have numbered him among their good friends. In many ways, he has been of good service to the municipality.

Strong objection to Charles Hanna as a candidate in this by-election is taken because he champions a Cabinet Minister who is unworthy of the support of a Canadian zealous of his country's good name and because he has forsaken the ranks of the Conservatives, U. F. O's and independents for a Free Trade King-Progressive policy.

Falsely, to make out that friends of Charles Hanna are maligning his character seems the epitome of political meanness.

LUCKLESS PLEADERS IN WEST HASTINGS

(From the Mail & Empire)

Are the Government stumpers in West Hastings altogether to blame for the extremely small potatoes of their political discussions? They are not. They are doing the best they can. We are not saying that they are men of any largeness of view, we are not denying that piffle and back-biting may be congenial to them, but we do say they would be capable of a higher grade of criticism and of more creditable defensive work if they had a better cause to speak for. If the King Government had a strong man in the riding capable of presenting big issues, what could he say? Certainly nothing in favor of the Government. Its platform campaigners in the riding are obliged to stoop to methods that would better become the village gossip. It can be truly said that they encumber the Government candidate with their help. Handicapped as he is by his own mediocrity and by the disfavor that must always attach to a man who becomes a renegade to his own party so far as to take nomination from the opposite party, we believe he would make a less futile fight were he without platform aid from Ottawa. Not only is he burdened by this discouraging assistance, but he has also to carry onus that ought properly to be saddled upon the Minister of Labor and the Cabinet colleagues who "vindicated" him. Mr. Hanna in himself is of no particular consequence one way or another, but when he is offered to the riding as the scape-goat of the Government, he ought truly to feel sorry for himself. No Government more bankrupt in reputation and in public confidence ever presented a candidate in a by-election. It was so destitute of character that it could not find within its own party ranks a man to stand up for it against Mr. Porter. It had to induce someone of former Conservative profession to undertake that forlorn hope. Forlorn, indeed, will its candidate be when the polls close if the Conservatives of West Hastings are true to the responsibility that has been laid upon them to uphold the best traditions of Parliament and the honor of their constituency. Let them remember that the King Government itself sought refuge in the secrecy of the Cabinet when the question came to be answered whether or not the impending fate of the Home Bank was discussed there within the hearing or knowledge of the Labor Minister. The people of West Hastings must refuse to make themselves the excusers of the Labor Minister's rush to save his deposit.

CHOOSING BAD COMPANY

Most obvious, yet ever interesting is the fact that politics does make strange bedfellows. Wrapping its arms lovingly about a Cabinet Minister, The Daily Ontario, introducing him to its reading public, says:

"Good old Jim Murdock!"

The Daily Ontario has on more than one occasion urged higher standards of public life though its editorial columns. It has used its influence to help secure square dealing for Canada above all else.

The pages of the Ontario back files must curl up with scorn these days at the spectacle of such good natured aproval of a Cabinet Minister who used the methods of a crook to conceal from the public the withdrawal of his money from the Home Bank a very few hours before it failed.

A CAMPAIGN OF SUGGESTION

The character of the campaign being conducted on behalf of James Murdock and Charles Hanna is most interesting, though not necessarily new. Apt disciples of the famous Doctor Coue, they are employing a system of suggestion, repeating over and over again.

"Hanna will win. Hanna will win. It's time for a change. It's time for a change."

Then amplifying this, the imagination is again called into play and suggestion after suggestion is made that fear and alarm lurks in the ranks of Mr. Porter's supporters; that Conservative West Hastings is now preparing for the most bitter opposition ever offered; that the North has been swinging away from Mr. Porter, and that Hanna is receiving the deserters.

Of course the wish is father to the thought expressed. Mr. Porter's supporters and the good people of the North get nothing out of it, but a smile.

It is to be noted, however, that the chant, "Every day in every way I am getting better and better", has become a real joke and that Dr. Coue has dropped from the lime light.

An open letter to the Young People of the Bay of Quinte Conference
Dear Young People

The approach of the Winter Season will naturally bring to your minds thoughts of the Bay of Quinte Winter annual session in Cobourg during the week of January 12-19, 1925.

Every effort has been put forward to secure a staff which will uphold the high traditions of the School and the program being arranged is one that ought to appeal to every young man and every young woman, desiring a week of intensive training in Mission and Bible Study, and the problems of leadership among girls and boys and young people.

Among those who will greet the students at this coming session will be Rev. Prof. Maine of Albert College, Rev. W. Harold Young of Peterboro, Rev. Frank Langford, Toronto; Miss Mary B. Allison and Mr. Taylor Statten. A returned missionary will lead the group in the study of Foreign Missions, while Rev. W. R. Tanton of Napanee will lead the group in Home Missions. Rev. Mr. Tanton will also give the closing messages to the delegates on Sunday, Jan. 18 at 11.00 a.m. and 7.00 p.m.

Splendid evening entertainments are being provided on Mon. Jan. 12 Rev. H. B. Kenny will give a lecture on Great Women of the Past and Present. A splendid musical program is being arranged by Rev. F. J. Horwood, Mus. Bac.

A week of rare opportunity and enjoyment is thus presented to you. Embrace your opportunity and meet with us in Cobourg on Mon. Jan. 12 1925. Fees—Registration, $2.00; Board and Room, $7.00. Miss Alice Scarfe, Cobourg, Registrar; Rev. E. Harston President; Rev. H. A. Bunt, Secretary

Murdock Called Ally Of Capital; By Labor Leader

Draws $14,000 Himself and Pays His Subordinates Big Salaries

IS TURNED ON BY FELLOW LABOR MEN

King Government Is Gambling with Future and Carrying Canada to Crisis

Judging by the size of the staff and the money paid in salaries, the Labor Department at Ottawa, of which Hon. James Murdock is the chief, must do a great deal of business. Here are some of the highest salaries:

James Murdock, minister	$10,000
James Murdock, indemnity	4,000
F. A. Ackland, deputy	6,000
C. H. Brown, assistant	4,500

Under these chief officials are upwards of 150 others some of them receiving as high as $3,000 a year. All unnecessary officials were to be disposed of when Mr. King took office.

At London, Ont., on Sept. 15th, the Hon. Jas. Murdock, Minister of Labor, was described by Delegate Buck, of Toronto, at this afternoon's session of the Trades Congress of Canada as "a fast ally of the capitalistic class" and "a man who has caused the Labor movement to suffer by his trickiness, because he has been whitewashed by Labor Congress conventions in the past."

Mr. Buck urged those present to take a firm stand against "this tricky capitalistic politician." His description of the Minister was endorsed by Delegate Marsh, also of Toronto, who declared that Mr. Murdock "should be relegated to the class of Judas Iscariot," and called on Labor men to ignore him in future.

Delegate McLeod, representing Glace Bay Miners, went further with a statement that the ..Nova Scotia miners would "hang all the Cabinet Ministers to a sour apple tree."

Censure Is Carried

Delegates Ermie Ingles, of London, and Jack McDonald, of Toronto, were among those who attacked the Minister.

A resolution was passed by an overwhelming majority censuring Mr. Murdock for his attitude during the past year toward organized and unorganized labor.

The Resolutions Committee recommended that a phrase accusing the Minister of hypocricy in his dealings with labor be struck out, but this recommendation was defeated after a debate on the floor.

"Labor generally," said Jack McDonald, "is clearly opposed to James Murdock. Unless we pass this resolution as it stands, our enemies will translate it as approval of his actions in regard to labor."

Delegates Marsh and James Simpson, of Toronto and Gustave Frank, of Montreal, opposed the hypocricy clause, but all agree with the general opinion of Mr. Murdock.

Tom Moore Speaks Out

Mr. Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Council, whom indeed the King Government made a C.N.R. director, protested that the unemployment situation in Canada now amounts to a crisis and demanded a special session of parliament this fall to deal with it. Unemployment and consequent privation are worse far than when the 300,000 who have left Canada were still with us. Does anyone imagine this situation can be taken care of by forcing the erection of public works and thus adding further to our deficits. This plan would not give work to 5 per cent of those who must have work.

CLASH OF COUNSELS AT STEWART TRIAL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 19.—More light was thrown on the liquor running trips of the steamer Vaudreuil, pledged to the Home Bank as security by C. A. Barnard, one of the bank directors, at the trial of J. F. M. Stewart, another Home Bank director before Judge Coatsworth this morning. J. C. Austin who managed ships for British Dominions Corporation, which was the holding company for the bank, said that "Vaudreuil" on her first trip in 1922 with liquor from Glasgow, discharged part of her cargo at Halifax. The remainder was discharged at the Sea off New York. The Vaudreuil made a second trip with liquor to some where off New York and accrding to witness lost $25,000 n two trips. The loss was paid by the bank. On two ships "Vaudrell" and "Paipoonge" which bank held the total loss was about $250,000 he said. Percy C. Bonham, marine engineer of Montreal said that in 1922 and 1923 the value of the ships was only that of scrap metal or few dollars a ton.

The trial this morning was also featured by hot clashes between N. W. Rowell for defence and D. L. McCarthy fo rthe Crown, which Judge Coatsworth described as "displays of temper."

BANK MESSENGER TELLS OF HOLD-UP

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, Nov. 19.—J. M. Thibodeau for 27 years messenger in employ of Bank of Hochelaga and who was in the car held up and robbed on April 1st last for which crime, four men were recently hanged at Bordeaux jail, and two others were sentenced to prison for life, gave evidence this morning before Mr. Justice Coderre in police probe. He declared that the collection car had been under the protection of five city detectives for a fortnight before the hold up, but they were not always the same men.

Three bandits had been pointed out to him on the car's round, before the hold up, at a certain corner and he had been told the car passed too quickly for fulfillment of their plans. When he asked Detective Belanger why the bandits were not arrested if known, he was told that men like Serafini and Nieri would be immediately released on payment of ten dollars fine and that the real case would have to be made out against them. Belanger had not explained how he knew that the men on the corner contemplated holding up the car. His companion Lucien Brunet replaced him in witness box and corroborated testimony.

James Shows

he had violated that oath as a citizen or a minister, in trying to protect those whom he had promised to protect. He realized that he was in politics when he read the Mail and Empire, who had no love for Jim Murdock. He stated that he didn't fear dirty politics and was ashamed of nothing he had done.

On May 7th Mr. Clarkson sent him a letter, which he read, and which said that he must return the money which he had received after banking hours, or the matter would be brought before the Board. Later he claimed that Mr. Clarkson on oath said that he didn't have any authority other than the press for saying that the money had been withdrawn after banking hours.

A Philanthrophist

Many people had told him that he had made a mistake when he sent back the money. He wrote to Mr. Clarkson saying that in view of what was in the letter he was returning the money, so that no one might suffer, and especially in view of the fact that he was a minister of the Crown. He was not scared into doing it. He believed that railway men and widows would never believe he was a crooked, politician. The only reason he gave back the money was so the people would have confidence in someone, and no one but a "silly lawyer" ever suggested that he had any other reason for returning the money.

"Anyone who is in politics, and I say this with regret, must expect that someone is trying to put up a job on him, and they may catch him," he said

Mr. Murdock asked what Mr. Porter had done at Parliament, saying that he didn't know, but the electors should know. "Probably," he said, in a sarcastic manner, "his time is taken up in seeing that the honor and dignity of Parliament should not be encroached on."

He called on the audience for questions and immediately someone asked him to explain his attitude in regard to the Postal strike.

Mr. Murdock went back to the railway strike of 1911 and told of his party's action in regard to regard to that affair.

In April last, the postal strikers sent an ultimatum to the Government. The situation was investigated by Civil Service Commission. When possible settlement was on the way the news came that the postal employes were out on strike. His friend in the audience doubtless referred to a phrase which he had used. Mr. Shea had come to him and said that the postal employes were out 100 per cent. strong. Mr. Murdock said that was unfortunate and unfair to those representing them. Mr. Shea said they were all out and were going to stay out. "How long?" asked Mr. Murdock.

"Until the Government gives us what we want?"

No Apologies

Mr. Murdock said he would be equally frank.

"You can take a message from Jim Murdock to the laboring men that they can stay out till Hell freezes over," he returned.

He said that he wanted to save them from themselves, that he did not exaggerate, had no apologies to offer, the only thing was that he might have used more diplomatic language.

"Now," he said, "I have told you the story, but not as the Mail and Empire and the Intelligencer told it."

Mr. Meighen would probably ask what the results were of his party's activities in trying to control combines of profiteers, and no police court lawyer was more capable of proving black was white than Mr Meighen. He went on to tell of the Combines Investigation Act.

Mr. Porter he said, had in company company with him a gentleman connected with moneyed firms who urged protection and Mr. Murdock believed that that meant "Protect me."

"Leaving entirely the question of whether Jim Murdock is a crook or not," he concluded, "You will be doing a splendid thing as a citigen, etc."—thereby casting aside the real factor in the case.

Frank and Honest!

Mayor Fraser, of Trenton, approved of the "frank, honest way" that Jim Murdock had appealed his case. The Murdock charges are a herring across the trail, he claimed, for this is a straight bye-election, and the only reason Mr. Porter brought the "charges against Mr. Murdock was because he thought that he had the biggest conservative riding in the province.

Duncan Marshall followed and accused Mr. Porter of exaggeration when he said that Mr. Murdock had withdrawn "thousands" of dollars a "few hours" before the failure of the bank, when as a matter of fact it was four thousand and fifty dollars and the time was forty-eight hours.

Mr. Marshall claimed that Mr. Porter never accused Mr. Murdock of violating his oath of office, on the floor of Parliament. In Parliament, he had said that Mr. Murdock violated his obligations as minister of the Crown. Mr. Marshall did not think that Mr. Porter is justified in talking of upholding the honor and dignity of Parliament and then calling Mr. Murdock a thief.

JAPANESE PARTY WAS HAPPY EVENT

A pretty Japanese party was given for the ladies of the Tabernacle Church at the Home of Mrs. Marion Wood-Alyea, Moira Street, Tuesday afternoon. The rooms were becomingly decorated with 'mums and Japanese lanterns, and the girls who served were in Japanese costumes. Mrs. Alyea interpreted Madame Butterfly in costume, which made a very striking effect. Mrs. Singer contributed two solos. Mr. Waddell and his son entertained very pleasingly on musical instruments. Miss Winnie Marsh gave a reading, and Miss Florence Davis presided at the piano.

It was a very delightful and successful social affair.

DO NOT DEFINE ATTITUDE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 19—It was stated in British official circles this morning that British attitude towards the Geneva procol on security and disarmament had not yet been defined by new Baldwin cabinet nor late Labor Government's request that action on protocol be postponed until after the coming meeing of the League of Nations council in Rome was made, it was stated in order to give Cabinet time to place the matter before the British Dominions and allow new Ministers of Great Britain time to investigate protocol, as it will affect Grea Britain. Government, it was added, favorably regards any attempt by League of Nations to settle disarmament and security question and present protocol so far as Government understands it will form sound basis for International conference

DISMISS MATTHEWS APPEAL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 19—After argument lasting fifty minutes, the Appelate Division dismissed the appeal on behalf of C. A. Matthews, Jr., former assistant Provincial Treasurer from his conviction on a charge of breach of trust, affecting the public upon which he had been sentenced by Mr. Justice Mowat to two years imprisonment. The Crown was not called upon.

Social Items

Mr. Harry Eaves, who has been working in Montreal has returned to his home here, on Ridley street.

The Presto Music Club met last evening at the home of Miss Wrightmeyer. A delightful programme of music of the Italian School was given. Plans for a costume programme, to be given in the near future, were discussed. Mr. Arthur Herity was the host for the evening.

Deaths And Funerals

WILLIAM G. PEARCE

Funeral services for the late Mr. William G. Pearce were held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. R. S. Pearce, 303 Bleecker Avenue, a brother of deceased. Rev. H. B. Kenny, Pastor of the Tabernacle church conducted the services which were attended by many relatives and friends. The body was this morning taken to Hamilton for interment.

WILLIAM G. PEARCE

(From Hamilton Spectator)

William George Pearce, who died in Belleville, was well known here and to telegraph men throughout Canada and the United States. For many years Mr. Pearce was with the Postal Telegraph Company in Chicago coming to Toronto in 1912 to work for the C.P.R. He was superannuated a year ago. His parents at one time resided on York street road, and his brother, Prof. E. Pearce, was organist at the Church of the Ascension till the time of his death. Surviving are one brother, Roland, of Belleville, and one sister, Mrs. George Kramer of Chicago. Two cousins, George and Arnold Clapham of this city also survive. The remains will arrive here from Belleville on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock and will be taken to Hamilton cemetery, where services and burial will take place.

MRS. WILLIAM GREATRIX

Mrs. William Greatrix a former well known citizen passed away in Toronto last evening. Deceased had been residing in the Queen City for some time. The remains will be brought here Thursday for interment in the family plot Belleville cemetery. A husband and son and two daughters survive. Mrs. Greatrix had a number of friends in this city who will regret her passing.

Society Girl Is Given Surprise

Left Buffalo For Philadelphia To See Football Game

MARRIED INSTEAD

College Fraternity Participate; It Was a Rude Struggle

Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—Miss Elizabeth Collins, Buffalo society girl, got fooled Saturday. She came into Philadelphia secure in the belief that the trip was only for the purpose of seeing the Pennsylvania-Penn State football game. Instead, she was married. And she was kissed by the whole Omega Chapter of the Delta Sigma Pi fraternity at Temple University.

The bridegroom is E. Hallie Sutton, 24-year-old sophomore at Temple. In his double capacity as husban and member of Delta Sigma Pi he got two kisses. And Dr. Russell H. Sonwell, president of Temple, who performed the ceremony, collected an osculatory demonstration for himself, too.

The marriage was performed in the study of Dr. Conwell's home at 2020 North Broad street. It came after the most exciting morning the two young people ever had.

Pleaded in Reading Terminal

At 7.48 Sutton met Miss Collins at the Reading Terminal. Right off the bat he proposed that they marry at once. She demurred. He pleaded his case in the crowded waiting room. Two hours later they got the license.

When Dr. Conwell entered his study, where the couple was waiting for him, he saw the Delta Sigma Pi chapter gathered in the rear of the room.

"Why the crowd?" he asked.

"Fine," he commented after explanations.

The simple ceremony proceeded without a hitch, although Sutton swallowed audibly a couple of times After the magis "man and wife" words the clergyman said:

"Mr. Sutton, kiss your bride."

"I will now take advantage of the holiest opportunity that comes to me as a minister."

Whereupon he kissed the bride. That done, the minister turned to the fraternity brothers.

"Gentlemen," he said, "Kiss the bride. If any one of you doesn't take advantage of this opportunity, I'll do it for him."

It was not necessary for the clergyman to do any pinch-hitting.

After the ceremony the couple set out for the football game.

Early Saturday morning at the station Sutton pleaded his case with enough fervor to put the perfect lovers of all ages 'way in the background. He begged, promised stormed a bit and smiled cajolingly, and finally he got Miss Collins to say "Yes, but—

The "but" was indecisive.

Miss Collins arrived with her sister, Joan. With Sutton was his sister, Miss Edna Sutton, a Buffalo sub deb, who is attending the National Park Seminary at Washington. And here's what went on:

All kissed. Then Sutton accepted his cue.

"Come on in the waiting room for a moment. I've a real surprise for you," he said "I want to tell you something before we go to breakfast."

Elizabeth (of course Sutton calls her Betty) wasn't suspicious. She followed, only moderately curious.

Sutton selected an unoccupied bench in the centre of the commuter's rush. He took Betty's hand in his and said:

"This will come as a surprise to you, but I've made all arrangements for us to be married this noon."

"What!"

"I've made all arrangements."

Betty was a study. She was pleased and fussed and displeared and indecisive and * * *

"Oh! you must be fooling!"

"I'm not!"

"But how about mother?"

"What's your mother got to do with it? I'm marrying you, not her."

Then Sutton continued, "Listen dear, I haven't slept for a week, I've been so busy arranging this wedding Play square and go through with it."

"But how about your school?" Betty asked. Any spectator could see she was casting about for arguments, perhaps a little afraid she might find a good one.

Presses His Arguments

"That's all taken care of. I'm going to get a job. And my allowance will take care of you."

"Oh I can't go through with it!"

Betty had a sudden fear. She appeared to be considering a little seceding. But she only considered it.

"You afraid?" demanded Sutton.

"No, but what would mother think?"

"Oh bother! I'll send her a wire."

Sutton reached for her luggage.

"I'll check these and then we'll get the license," he said.

"But I'll have to go home We can't be married this way."

The boy grew quietly argumentative. "Why do you have to go home he wanted to know. "Surely there's no need of it.'"

"I love you Bette and you love me Isn't that enough? We've been engaged four years now and I'm tired of waiting. I'm lonely. Why, you don't know how much I've set my heart on our marrying today. I've arranged with Dr. Cronwell to perform the ceremony."

"But my family will be so cross!"

The boy tossed his head. "My family won't mind," he said, and the "my" was stressed. "They'll be proud to have you for a daughter-in-law."

He paused a moment for the compliment to sink in. It did. Betty smiled up at him.

"Let's get a license," he suggested.

"Why a license" demanded Betty.

"Well, that's the first thing we have to have."

Sutton started to the check room. There was confidence in his carriage. Betty appealed to her sister and her prospective sister-in-law.

"What would you do?" she asked.

The two girls, suddenly changed from spectators to participants, grabbed the opportunity. They told her to go through with the wedding. They pointed out that any one with half an eye could see Sutton was terribly lonely..

When Sutton returned from the bag-checking expedition he asked:

"Will you go for the license?"

And Betty surrendered. "Yes, but—" he said.

Get Marriage License

After breakfast, the party went to the Marriage License Breau, where a good line was had by all. The couple took a place at the end of the line, arm in arm. Marriage License Bureau, where a good line the line "moved up one" until, when she and Sutton were at the license clerk's desk, any one would have guessed they were sweethearts.

Betty answered all the clerk's questions in the usual firm voice and she was immensely interested in the red tape necessary for those who would wed in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. After Sutton paid his $1.50 the party left for his apartment at 2012 North Broad street to await the hour of the ceremony.

In these quarters, consisting of a living room, bedroom, bath and kitchenette, the couple will live two years when Sutton will have completed his finance course in the School of Commerce. Then they'll go to the Orient for a honeymoon. At least, that's the way Sutton has figured it out.

The bridegroom is president of his class in the School of Commerce at Temple, in which there are about 400 members, and a member of the Owl Honorary Society to which campus leaders only are eligible.

IS CHARGED WITH KILLING SIX MEN

St. John's Nfld., Nov. 19.—The trial of Leonard Reid, member of a prominent Newfoundland family, on a charge of manslaughter, arising from the automobile accident on September 16, when the automobile he was driving ran into a group of persons and overturned, killing six men, is now in progress. After After his arrest, Reid was given his liberty in $200,000 bonds, half of which he furnished himself. He was committed for trial at a preliminary inquiry on October 30. The trial is expected to last three days, since 47 witnesses have been summoned.

Two of the men killed were in a group of fourteen veterans of a Newfoundland regiment, who were about to enter a bus when Reid's machine struck them. They were Captain G. J. Whitty, winner of the military cross, and Lieut. William King.

The automobile, after running into the crowd, swerved down an embankment, killing four of its passengers. They were Lieut. Commander D. P. O'Callaghan and Lieut. Burroughs, of H.M.S. Constance; George Harrison, of Chatham, N.B., and Clinton Duder, of St. John's.

CARDINAL LOGUE IS DEAD IN BELFAST

Belfast, Nov. 19—Cardinal Logue Primate of Ireland, died at six this morning at his residence, Ara Coeli in Armagh. There had been no previous intimation of the Cardinal's illness and news of his demise caused great shock throughout Ireland. Archbishop O'Donnell, Cardinal's coadjutor who lives at Dundalk, was immediately advised and left for Armagh

Cardinal Logue expressed satisfaction upon the conclusion of the Anglo Irish treaty in 1921, declaring that he thought the settlement terms just He repeatedly appealed for unity, peace and charity in Ireland. Cardinal Logue was known as "Grand Old Man" of Roman Catholic Church in Ireland. He had tiny frame but unbounded courage of which he frequently had needed during the period of strife in Ireland. He celebrated his golden jubilee as priest in December 1916.

ENGLISH GENERAL WOUNDED AT CAIRO

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cairo, Nov. 19—Two bombs, one of which exploded, were thrown at Major General Sir Lee Stack, Sirdar of the Egyptia army while driving from the Ministry of War to-day. General Stack was also attacked with revolver shots and badl ywounded in the stomach. He was removed to hospital.

The three or four assailants in the affair eventually escaped. They first threw the bombs which failed to explode and afterwards fired several several rounds with revolvers, hitting Gen. Stack, his aide de camp, his chauffeur and a policeman. Gen. Stack's condition is serious. He is suffering from shock and has three bullet wounds in the stomach, hand and foot, respectively.

Major General Stack who attained his ranks in British military service was appointed Governor General of Suban and Sirdar of Egyptian army in 1919. Efforts made only recently by Premier Z-Aghloul Pasha to have Egypt entrusted with her own defense were unsuccessful British Government claiming it was impossible to relinquish control of Suez Canal defence.

PARENTS DIE TRYING TO SAVE THEIR BABY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 19.—Father, mother and their three-months-old daughter were burned to death early this morning when fire of undetermined origin destroyed their home at Perrysburg. They were Mr. and Mrs. William Donaldson and baby's name was Betty Don. A son, a twin with the baby girl, was grabbed from its father's arms and rushed to safety by Mrs. E. McMillen, a neighbor. Another child Kathleen, aged three, was rescued after she had crawled part way to the front door. The mother and father perished while endeavoring to rescue the twin girl.

GRAIN MARKETS TO-DAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, Nov. 19.—Wheat Nov. ½ lower at 1.65, Dec. 5-8 lower at 1.61. May 7-8 to 1-2 lower at 1.65 to 1.65 3-8 Oats, Nov. 1-4 lower at 59 1-4, Dec. 1-8 lower to unchanged at 59 7-8 to 60, May 1-8 to 1-4 lower at 64 3-8 to 1-4.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—All grain underwent something of a setback in prices today at the opening and then continued to show weakness. Principal bearish influence was a down turn in wheat quotations at Liverpool where large stocks of wheat on hand were reprted, and pressure to sell on account of liberal prospective arrivals. Besides, Rotterdam advices indicated a let up in continental demand. Wheat opening prices here which ranged from 3-8 to 1c lower and were followed by moderate further setback. Corn and oats receded with wheat. Many of yesterday's buyers of corn became sellers. After the opening unchanged to 1-4c off, corn market underwent general sag to about one cent under yesterday's finish . Oats started at 1-4c lower to 1-4c advance, later all months showed decline. An upturn in hog values helped to steady provision market.

Made from the finest wheaten flour, and containing a suitable proportion of "Ovaltine", these deliciously crisp dainties are much more tasty than biscuits—much more wholesome and nourishing than ordinary rusks. Ideal for teething infants, growing children, invalids and convalescents. A welcome addition to anyone's diet.

"Ovaltine" is a natural food compound, prepared from rich, creamy milk, fresh eggs, and ripe barley malt, flavoured with cocoa. All the health-building food values of these natural tonic foods are supplied by "Ovaltine" in easily-digested form.

Growing children thrive rapidly on "Ovaltine." Men and women actively engaged find its tonic properties of inestimable value. Elderly people are fortified against many of the ills common to old age.

Serve "Ovaltine" to all the family with meals instead of tea or coffee, and on retiring to ensure sound restful sleep.

AUTHOR CHARGES KING SERIOUSLY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Nov. 19.—A manifesto by Vicente Blasco Ibanez, famous author, published to-day in France, Great Britain and the United States against King Alfonso of Spain, charges the king with responsibility for the Spanish military disaster in Morocco in 1921, in which thousands of Spanish soldiers were killed and thousands made prisoners. Alfonso is charged with betraying France by giving secret information to Germany during war. The title of manifesto which covers one hundred pages is "Alfonso unmasked."

A. J. Stough, well-known manufacturer, passed away at his residence, at St. Thomas, Saturday morning after a lengthy illness. Bowlers Win Out In Their Games

In a league fixture at the Association Alleys last night, the Kiahoyas forced the Bowlers to go a little better than the limit in order to pull out with a win. At the end of the first string the Kiahoyas were down just twelve points, but they managed to recover this loss and obtain a small credit balance in the second round. The third and final stanza was their undoing. The Bowlers driven to it sailed in right merrily with the result they not only pulled "the fat out of the fire," but also broke the alley record for a single game, which was previously help by a former Bell Telephone quintette. The Bell team rolled 1092 to establish an alley record the Bowlers bettered this score by just two points.

DISCOVERED IN 1513

Four hundred and eleven years ago an intrepid Spanish explorer and adventurer, Juan Ponce de Leon, by name, first set foot on a land of luxuriant sub-tropic growth known today as Florida.

Since that time Florida has become perhaps the most alluring Winter Resort in the world. A warm-watered ocean offers bathing at its best; a few miles off-shore the monstrous and sporty Tuna and Tarpon wait the more adventurous disciples of Izaak Walton; a marvellous beach fringed with exotic palms broad motor highways, scores of green, velvet-smooth golf courses—the whole steeped in glorious sunshine and perfumed with the fragrance of fruit blossoms and sub-tropical flowers.

Nature has lavished her bounties on Florida, and man has moulded them for his convenience. There are facilities for every summer recreation—surf-bathing, deep sea fishing, boating, golfing tennis riding motoring, beautiful hotels, splendid apartments and bungalows house the visitor in luxurious comfort.

Canadian National Railways can offer a splendid service in helping you plan your visit. Any agent will gladly supply full information and make your reservations.

The death toll in the fire at Owen Sound, Wednesday morning rose to three yesterday, when Mrs. Fred Featherstone, grandmother of the two children who were burned to death, died of burns. A transfusion of blood had been made in an effort to save her life.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN: SERIAL: THEATRES

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"I am staying at the hotel at Barton. I think they call it the 'Royal.' It would be quite too charming if it did not smell so strongly of stale tobacco and coffee.' Thanks, yes, I shall be very glad."

The marquis looked at the butler, the look meaning: "Send for Mr. Spencer Churchill's luggage." The butler glided from the room.

"You find us quite a merry party," said the marquis. "We have another visitor besides Neville——"

"Who can scarcely be counted a visitor," murmured Spencer.

"Really, that is scarcely fair," said the marquis blandly. "Neville has his faults but he is not quite the nonentity you would represent him."

Neville raised his head, stung to a retort, when the door opposite him opened and Lady Grace entered.

She was charming, perfectly dressed looking like a vision of one of Lippo Lippi's angels.

"I'm afraid I'm late——" she began, lightly, then her eyes fell upon Spencer's smiling face, and her own paled. For a second she stood still and put out her hand as if seeking something to support her, then her face resumed its usual serenity, and with a smile she came forward.

"Mr. Spencer Churchill! Really! What a nice surprise!"

"How good, how kind of you to say so!" he sang, as he bent over her hand.

"I am always good and kind; I can't help it. Well, Lord Neville, how have you been amusing yourself?" she went on, as he rose and arranged her chair for her.

"Under melancholy boughs in the woods musing in moody meditation, mentally morbid!" said Spencer Churchill. "I found him beside a purling brook, composing sonnets, Lady Grace."

"Or dreaming of last night's Juliet?" she said smiling.

He looked up quickly, but her eyes seemed full of unconsciousness and innocence.

"You did go to the theatre last night didn't you?" she asked. "They told me so."

"Yes, I went," he replied.

"And it was 'Romeo and Juliet,' wasn't it?"

He nodded.

She made a little grimace.

"Fancy 'Romeo and Juliet' at a country theatre, Mr. Churchill!—the Romeo striding about, all gasps and sighs, the Juliet fat, fair and forty! Poor Lord Neville!" and her silvery laugh rang softly through the room.

Lord Neville knew it would be the better, wiser course to smile and shrug his shoulders, but he could not.

"It was quite the reverse," he said, and his voice sounded short and almost grim. "The play was well cast and admirably staged. The Romeo didn't gasp or strut, and the Juliet—" he stopped, feeling that his voice had grown more enthusiastic, and was betraying his. "Oh, she played very well," he said.

"Indeed! Really!" exclaimed Lady Grace. "Oughtn't we to patronize the local talent, marquis?"

He raised his cold eyes to her lovely face.

"I am too old to commit mental suicide," he said; "take Neville's recommendation, and go, if you like, and be sorry for it."

She shrugged her shoulders.

"After all I don't think I could venture on it; it would be—forgive me, Lord Neville—too awful. And so you have come to Barton, Mr. Churchill. And from whence, pray?"

They talked together in this light, careless, half-indifferent blase manner which is now—Heaven help us!—the fashion; and Lord Neville finished his lunch in silence.

"I promise nothing!" rang in his ears; "I promise nothing!" It was a strange answer. Most girls would have said: "Yes" or glanced at him, so to speak, indignantly; but, "I promise nothing!" she had said, in her sweet, grave, penetrating voice. Would she come? And if she did, how much the happier would it be? What on earth had come to him, that he should be unable to think of anything but this lovely, bewitching girl, so beautiful in face and great in genius?

He woke with a start as the marquis rose, and bowed to Lady Grace, who was quitting the room.

"Come with me and smoke a cigar," said Lord Neville to Spencer Churchill.

"Mr. Churchill will do nothing of the kind," exclaimed Lady Grace, stopping and looking over her shoulder, not at his smiling face, but at the opposite wall. "How inconsiderate you are, Lord Neville; you forget that I am dying to hear all the latest news."

"I thought you'd heard it all," he said, with a smile.

"Not half!" she retorted. "I shall be on the terrace, Mr. Churchill."

He bowed and smiled; then he turned to the marquis.

"There used to be a very fine old port, marquis," he said.

The marquis glanced at the butler, who went out and returned presently, carefully carrying a bottle in a wicker frame, and Mr. Spencer Churchill sipped the famous wine with angelic enjoyment.

"There is nothing like port," he murmured. "Nothing. Yes, marquis, you look the picture of health. Ah, my dear Neville depend upon it that the moralists are right after all, and that, if one would enjoy life at its fullest, the thing is to be good!" and he smiled beamingly at the marquis, who had for a generation, been called: "Wicked Lord Stoyle."

Lord Neville glanced at the pale, cold face of his uncle, expecting some cutting retort, but the marquis only smiled.

"You were always a moralist, Churchill," he said. "But your advice comes rather late for Neville, who has, I'm afraid, made acquaintance with the prodigal's husks pretty often."

"And now comes back to find the fatted calf killed for him," sang Mr. Spencer Churchill, sweetly.

The marquis rose.

"Don't let me interfere with your port," he said.

Neville looked after him.

"I think I can stand about another day of this," he said quietly.

"After that you would really not be able to resist the temptation to throw him out of the window, eh? Fie, fie, my dear Neville!" murmured Spencer Churchill with a smile. "Shall we go and join Lady Grace? She won't object to a cigarette, I suppose?"

"I don't know; I never asked her," he said. "I'll go and get some cigars," and he sprang up and left the room.

Spencer Churchill's bland smile followed him for a moment or two, then the expression of his face wholly changed. His lips seemed to grow rigid, his soft, sleepy eyes acute, his very cheeks, usually so soft and rotund, hard and angular; and he sat with his glass held firmly in his hand, peering thoughtfully at the tablecloth.

Then he rose, and, carefully examining the bottle, poured the remains of it into his glass and drank it slowly and appreciatively and then stepped through the open window on to the terrace.

A slim and graceful figure leaned against the balustrade. It was Lady Grace; her hnds, clasped together, were pressed hard against the stone coping, as if they were trying to force their way through it, and the face she turned towards him was pale and anxious, the face of one waiting for the verdict; of one expecting the dread fiat of a judge.

With a benign smile, more marked than ever, perhaps intensified by the famous port, he slowly approached her.

Canadian society will miss Mrs. Basil Weld from events of the late fall and winter season, for Major and Mrs. Weld have left for the old country. It will be remembered that while His Royal Highness was in town the Prince of Wales danced several times with Mrs. Weld at both the York Club and "Strathrobyn." At the York Club Mrs. Weld was the first person to catch the eye of the royal visitor, who although he had not seen her for five years, recognized her instantly and walked across the ball room floor to personally greet her.

Uncle Tom's Cabin Coming Next Week

Old Story, Ever New, Will Appeal To All

Tucked away somewhere in the innermost conscious of every man and woman is the memory of the first performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" they ever saw. It was undoubtedly the Stetson Company which is now making its fifty-fourth annual tour of these United States and which is announced to be the attraction at the Griffin Theatre, for matinee and evening performances, the matinee commencing immediately after school dismisses, on Tuesday, November 25th.

How vividly, when one of the old recollections are recalled, does the memory of that great epochal period come back? The days of preliminary expectation; heightened by the curiosity arousing newspaper announcements; the early morning arising so you could beat your chum down to the theatre so you would be in time to lead one of the dogs in parade, thereby getting the document that would admit you to the still unknown world of wonders. How vividly one lives it all over again. What a glorious page it makes in the life story of days forever gone.

Is it any wonder, then, that the coming of the Stetson Company stirs the community to its foundations? It is the oldest dramatic attraction touring on this continent. To the children it means the unfolding of new delights, while to those of mature age it is a promise of a renewal of pleasure, of sight and sound that have long been forgotten. In addition there is too the educational side of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which appeals instinctively to both young and old.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" never grows old. There runs through it a vein of pathos peculiarly touching and sweet. Like the kiss of a child it conquers by the very innocence of its breath. Who does not cherish in memory some sweet, angelic child, who touched this Earth only as a transient visitor, who passed away with the dew of childhoods morning, too good, too pure for us? Was there ever a child like Eva? Yes, there has been, but its name is always found engraved on tombstones. This good, old fashioned play is unique because it is the only one ever written that portrays such a character as Eva.

Jiggs and Maggie Are Here To-night

"Bringing Up Father" Production is Entirely New Show

Many a time you've heard someone ask what they would recommend as a cure for the blues. "The Quebec Chronicle" seems to have had the right idea when their dramatic critic came to see "Bringing Up Father" at the Russell Theatre in that city. He said "Bringing Up Father" is a sure cure for the blues." That's a wise tip.

"Bringing Up Father in Ireland" comes to the Griffin Theatre tonight.

We have even heard it remarked that "Bringing Up Father" was a good cure for family trouble. For the man, he sees how much worse off he might be if he had "Maggie." And for the wife, she sees how much more trouble she would have if she had "Jiggs" and his everlasting shadow "Dinty." All in all, it's a mighty good evening's entertainment any way you take it. There's a chorus of course, not the sort of a chorus you usually see, but genuine "Chicken" of the "Cutie" kind. Not one of them has yet seen the age of 18. That is, not often. The management finds that it is absolutely necessary to have a young chorus, as "Jiggs" works a great deal better on that account. Just imagine—a chorus of "Maggies." You'd never see "Jiggs" at all, he'd be invisible or unconscious all the time. The entire production is new this season. Being the tenth consecutive year of these inimitable cartoon plays, the visit to Griffin's tonight will be a memorable occasion. Mr. George McManus, the clever artist of the New York American and Journal, who draws the "Bringing Up Father" series for the "Funny Papers" wants to make this season a sort of celebration, or a "Tin" wedding as it were. "Jiggs" says he's satisfied to make it tin, as the last wedding anniversary he had was the wooden wedding and that's when "Maggie" learned to wield a rolling-pin. Tin is softer he says.

Women Who Give At Belle Theatre

Most Thrilling Sea Story Presented This Season

"Women Who Give", Reginald Barker's latest Metro production, which comes to the Belle Theatre tomorrow, is heralded as the season's most thrilling story that deals with seafaring men and their wives and sweethearts who patiently await the return of their loved ones who go down to the sea in ships. It is an adaptation of that famous classic, "Cape Cod Folks," by Sarah P. McLean Greene and has been directed with all the noted skill of Mr. Barker, who engaged a most impressive cast to enact the leading roles.

The two prominent feminine characters in the photodrama are played by Barbara Bedford and Renee Adoree, two particular favorites of the motion picture fans of this city. Robert Frazer enacts the leading male role, that of a young captain of the fishing fleet, and this popular young actor has never been seen to better advantage. Then there is Frank Keenan, who needs no introduction to the theatre-going public, and Joseph Dowling, who made such a distinctive hit in the title role of "The Miracle Man." Others who round out the superb cast include Margaret Seddon, Joan Standing, Victor Potel, Eddie Phillips and William Eugene.

"Women Who Give" has numberless exciting and thrilling scenes among which might be mentioned a desperate battle with a huge swordfish in which the players nearly lost their lives, the most realistic shipwreck scene ever filmed and the firing of a cottage by the lighthouse keeper. This last episode pictures the desperation of the keeper when the big light fails and he realizes that a ship with his son aboard will go on the rocks if not properly guided by the light. He sets fire to his own home as a substitute for the broken down beacon that for years has guided the fishing fleet safely in to port.

There are two distinct love stories running through the plot of "Women Who Give," so taken all in all, this Louis B. Mayer-Metro offering contains the elements of universal appeal, everything that goes into the making of a thoroughly worth while photodrama. It ranks with the very best ever shown at the Belle Theatre and is said to outdo Mr. Barker's remarkably successful production of "The Eternal Struggle," which scored such a decisive hit.

The majority of the scenes for "Women Who Give" were made at Cape Cod, in the exact locations described in the original story. Some remarkable shots of the storm-swept coast add interest to this photoplay and of course register the proper atmosphere.

"Women Who Give" is a Reginald Barker production for Louis B. Mayer-Metro. It is based on "Cape Cod Folks" by Sarah P. McLean Greene with adaptation by Bernard McConville and J. G. Hawks and scenario by A. P. Younger. It was photographed by Percy Hilburn with art direction by Jack Holden.

Laxatives do not overcome constipation

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only. Their continued use leads to permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Physicians advise lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt the habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

Lindsay People Claim Raw Deal

Say Central Ontario Areas Not Partaking in Surplus

Lindsay, Nov. 19—At the recent meeting of the Board of Trade, the relation of the Hydro Commission to the town of Lindsay was discussed at some length. There is a feeling among a great many of the citizens that the town is not getting a square deal in the matter of rates from the Hydro and that the municipalities in Central Ontario area are not partaking of the surplus which is credited to the operations of the Central Ontario Power System.

One speaker made the statement that the surplus of the operations of the Lindsay utility went to pay the deficits on certain utilities owned by the Hydro-Electric, such as the Peterboro Street Railway. Another speaker quoted figures to show that Peterboro enjoyed more favorable rates for domestic and industrial power than did Lindsay but his attention was drawn to the fact that the Electric City owned its distribuing plant. It was further asserted at the meeting that on the occasion of a power shortage Peterboro profited at the expense of Lindsay.

The history of the power situation as it affects Lindsay is an interesting one. Some years ago the services of an engineer were secured to bring in a report relative to the possibility of developing power at Fenelon Falls His report was not considered very favorable, and the scheme was dropped. Some time later a local company was formed for the purpose of acquiring Fenelon Falls water power for developing electrical energy .The services of an engineer were secured and he reported the possibilities for electrical development were very promising. The new company operated for a number of years under the name Lindsay Light Heat and Power Company, and supplied Lindsay with power for street, industrial and domestic purposes. The company finally sold its rights to the Seymour Power Company, which controlled the Central Ontario system, Lindsay later had the opportunity of purchasing its distribution plant from the Seymour Power Company, but turned down the offer. Those who opposed the proposition at that time realize today that a serious mistake was made.

SECRET OF KEEPING YOUNG

Why is it that some women look older at thirty-five than others do at fifty? Why is it that so many women are always run-down, weak, pale, nervous, irritable and unhappy? Health, vitality and freedom from pain and disease alone can prevent the signs of age from fastening themselves upon women. All over this country women are awakening to the fact that the ills, aches and pains of women may be relieved by Lydia E. the result is renewed life, energy and the glow of health. In fact, the secret of keeping young is to ward off all internal ailments that cause premature old age, which is easily accomplished by this remarkable root and herb remedy.

The regular meeting of the St. Thomas Kiwanis Club Monday noon will be cancelled because of the joint banquet of the Kiwanis club and the Chamber of Commerce at 6 o'clock which will mark the opening of the membership drive to be staged by the chamber. The speaker will be R. L. Brackin, M.L.A., of Windsor.

Simple wool frocks of rep and cashmere are worn with a coat of the same material, often made short enough to show the dress beneath.

The very simple wool costume is given such exquisiteness of finish that it achieves a certain elegance through a very inexpensive medium. For example one of the greatest French dressmakers uses black wool rep for a frock of this type, binds its tiered front with black silk braid, and uses a shade of sea blue that is almost green for the buttons, the Georgette frill at the neck and the kasha lining of the seven-eighths-length coat. A brown cashmere costume with a tan kasha lining, buttons, etc., would be very smart.

HUNTERS FIGHT IT OUT

Hamilton, Nov. 19.—A duck-hunting feud ended Saturday morning last in two well-known hunters engaging in deadly combat. The scene of the conflict took place on the bay shore along Kenmore boulevard and had its beginning when one hunter accused the other of taking his rendezvous. Blows were exchanged and the battle ended when one fellow was knocked into the bay from a well-directed punch.

imported into Canada, despite the fact that almost the entire quantity of products imported could have been produced right in Canada, with the exception of grape fruit and lemons and a few other fruits. Canadian farmers cannot sell their products to the United States because the Fordney tariff of that country closes that country to us. The war has curtailed the central European market for Canada, and the country is in a bad way.

"No butter should be allowed to come into Canada", emphasized Mr. Boys" as there is a duty of six cents per pound on U.S.A. butter against ours which has but between 3 and 4 cents duty. The same is true of Canadian cheese, which is recognized not only here but in Europe to be the very best.

Cheese is imported to Canada, though 22,019,000 pounds are exported annually. There is 23% duty on Canadian cheese going into the States, but their cheese comes into Canada with but from 2 to 3 cents per pound duty against it. Similarly with eggs, 3,652,000 dozen of which are exported annually, but 7,759,000 dozen of which are imported. There is 8 cents per dozen duty on ours, but only from 2 to 3 cents per dozen against those coming in.

It was pointed out that Western Progressives—advocates of free trade—voted against the Conservative resolution for increased protection, but the bulk of Liberals think as the Conservatives do. "Of course the Liberals, in order to hold office, bow down to the Progressives", he added.

In asking for the hearty support of Rawdon electors for Mr. Porter on Tuesday, Mr. Boys reminded that though G. N. Gordon had said that Mr. Porter would have done the same thing that Murdock did, he or any other Hanna speaker had not yet been brave enough to say that they would have done it.

Mr. Boys was justly surprised to hear a man holding the high office of Deputy Speaker in the House to say such a thing of Mr. Porter. "He has not the faintest idea what Mr. Porter or any one else would have done under the circumstances."

PORTER SUPPORTERS ARE WORKING HARD

Ladies and gentlemen in Ketcheson and Baldwin Wards who are supporters of Mr. E. G. Porter turned out in large numbers last evening at the Committee rooms east Robertson block. Considerable work was accomplished in checking over the voters' list and making preparations for the getting out of the vote on Tuesday next. This evening the ladies and gents of Bleecker and Coleman ward will meet at the Committee Rooms.

Kidneys Need Lots Of Water

Drink Freely and Often, also Take Salts if Your Back Hurts

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. All excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

ELEVATOR FOR MOUNTAIN

Hamilton, Nov. 19.—Specifications and plans for the proposed elevator up to the Mountain to be situated somewhere near the hospital are nearing completion, stated ex-Ald. H. A. Martin Monday morning. The cost of the structure will be in the neighborhood of $365,000, of which amount approximately $50,000 would be spent in labor. Mr. Martin proposes to have local firms alone do the work and provide the material. He is only waiting for a tender from the Otis Fensom company to go ahead and put a definite scheme before the city council.

Auction Sale

Brisk business was done in the sale by auction of household effects and farming stock, the property of Mr. George Stanley, conducted by Mr. Fred Johnston on Saturday afternoon. Prices obtained for cattle were medium whilst for sheep prices were good. High prices were realized on articles of furniture. Favorable comment was heard on all sides on the manner in which the new recruit to auctioneering handled his third sale.

Tricked By Moon

The rising moon o'er Eastern Marmora on Sunday evening about 9 p.m. when a cold wind was rising was mistaken by some anxious folk as a conflagration at a well-known farm. A little distance was covered before the mistake was detected. This goes to prove that moonlight can play tricks upon the imagination as well as moonshine.

CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Material set backs in the price for wheat and for other grains took place to-day. Down turns in wheat quotations at Liverpool acted as the chief depressing factor. On decline of wheat values, however, good buying developed, owing in some degree to the announcement that exports of domestic wheat are turning out to be much larger than was generally believed. Opening prices which ranged from 1 1-8 to 2 1-8 cents lower were followed by a decided further drop and then something of reaction general selling, part of which was of forced character to stop losses pulled down corn. After opening at 3-4 to 2 1-8 cent off, corn sagged little more and then showed power to rally. Oats started at 1-2 cent to 1-4 cent lower and continued down grade. Provisions were easily affected, principally by weakness of grain.

MUCH CREDIT GIVEN TO MRS. LEO. RIGGS

The Yonkers Herald Says:- The beautiful home of Mrs. William H. Taylor, 375 North Broadway, was the scene Tuesday of one of the most delightful meetings ever held by the Chaminade Club. The afternoon, enjoyed by some 200 members and guests, was however, distinctly bittersweet in character as the program was the last to be arranged by the efficient and capable chairman of the Chaminade's program committee, Mrs. Leo Riggs, who is soon to take up her residence in Canada.

On behalf of the club, Mrs. Homer Hanson, in the absence of Mrs. Leon O. Fisher, the president, told in a delightful way of the club's appreciation of Mrs. Riggs' faithful and untiring services in a most unenviable position during the past seven years. She then presented Mrs. Riggs with a diamond and sapphire pin as a token of the high esteem and affection in which she is held by her fellow members. Mrs. Riggs responded and asked the club's hearty co-operation in assisting the new chairman, Mrs. Martha Fine.

After a short business meeting presided over by the vice-president, Mrs. Thomas B. Lawler, a most enjoyable program was given by Miss Mildred Dilling, the well-known harpist, and Walter Mills, baritone. Miss Dilling, with her gracious manner and exquisite and masterful playing, is always a joy to Chaminade audiences. Mr. Mills, who made his first appearance with the club yesterday, was enthusiastically welcomed. Besides a magnetic personality, he possesses a rich, powerful voice and his diction is excellent. The program.

As an encore to his second group of songs Mr. Mills appropriately responded with "There Is No Death" by Geoffrey O'Hara.

After the program refreshments were served by the hostess of the day.

HAVE NEW WINTER SPORT FOR WEALTHY

Winnipeg, Nov. 20.—The lure of the "dude trap line" which Donald "Curley" Phillips, expert guide, is operating this winter as a means of providing new thrills for "tired business men," is bringing hundreds of inquiries from wealthy citizens in the United States, according to a letter received by the Canadian National Railway here.

Plans are being made by some of them to spend one or two months on the trail with Mr. Phillips this winter in the foothills of the northern Rockies.

The plan presented to prospective winter holiday-seekers is that of accompanying experienced trappers over a long stretch of trap line.

Both men and women are included among those who have made advance reservations for the "hike" which starts from Dalehurst, Alta.

UPHOLD STANDARDS OF PUBLIC LIFE

MEIGHEN ISSUES STIRRING APPEAL TO WEST HASTINGS IN HIS SPEECH AT MARMORA

He Urges People By Their Decision Not to Tolerate the Shattering of British Traditions

CROWD WAS MOST ENTHUSIASTIC

Seven Hundred Farmers and Townsmen Gathered For Meeting; Are Going Almost Solid Conservative

More than seven hundred people heard Right Honorable Arthur Meighen shatter previous Liberal arguments in Marmora and district last night when he was the chief speaker at Marmora in the interests of Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C. Other speakers were Hon. Dr. Manion of Fort William, Major R. D. Ponton and D. V. Ketcheson. Mr. Porter also spoke.

The specious hall was crowded, and each excellent address was heard with wrapt attention. This section, which is almost solid Conservative, will give Mr. Porter the greatest majority yet, it is conceded.

As has been impressed upon electors of West Hastings throughout the whole campaign, it was again pointed out with emphasis last night that in this bye-election, there is but the one issue, and that is whether or not Ministers of the Crown must live up to British standards of our fore-fathers, or if the responsibilities of office are to be permitted to fall into degeneracy and decay. That was the tenor of a fighting message which the leader of the Conservative party brought out last night, when he appeared in the interests of Mr. E. Guss Porter. Mr. Meighen pointed out that there are normally many important matters at issue, so far as the King Government is concerned, but the circumstances which surround the by-election in West Hastings are peculiar and unusual. The election, he recalled, was the result of the charges which Mr. Porter brought in the House of Commons against the Minister of Labor, and since a majority of the committee members saw fit to "whitewash" Hon. Mr. Murdock, Mr. Porter had resigned, and now the duty fell upon the electors of this riding to give their decision, not upon the general policies of difference between the Conservative party and the Liberal-Progressive Government, but upon the general principles and standards of dignity and fairness which should be displayed by a Minister of the Cabinet.

CAN PRODUCE NAMES

Mr. Meighen declared that the Porter charges against Murdock were proved before the committee beyond all shadow of doubt," and he added that before the "whitewashing" took place there were Liberal lawyers who had said that the evidence against Murdock was complete and convincing. "And" he added, "if Murdock wants the names of the Liberal lawyers, I can give them."

The Conservative leader went on to declare that never before in the history of Canadian Governments had there been a Prime Minister who had called upon his members to whitewash one of his Ministers.

"There have been such incidents before," he recalled, "but other Prime Ministers have been big enough to weed such Ministers out of their Cabinet. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was big enough, and Sir Robert Borden was big enough, but it remained for the present Prime Minister to adopt another course and to call upon the members of his Parliament to assist him in whitewashing one of his Ministers, instead of condemning him when the evidence was conclusive against that Minister.

> "The people of all Canada are looking to the electors of West Hastings to uphold, by your votes, the standards of public life and to declare by your decision that you will not tolerate the shattering of British traditions," Hon. Mr. Meighen continued. "There is no other issue, so far as this particular election is concerned. If you would rather that your member would take the cowardly way and shirk his responsibilities, then give a vote for the Liberal candidate, but if you would prefer that he stand for the principles of fairness and honor his position of trust, there is but one thing you can do, and that is to give a vote for Mr. Porter. The verdict in the election is not one against Mr. Hanna, the Liberal, but it is a verdict in favor of the British standards which have stood in our Houses of Parliament from time immemorial."

"Mr. Porter was not only right in his charges," the Conservative leader declared, "but he was so emphatically right that one finds great difficulty in justifying any other discussion in the election. There is a duty which every member of Parliament and man of honor owes to his constituency. If he believes that there has been any unfairness on the part of any other member, then it is his duty to declare that belief, to make his stand, and to abide by the consequences. Mr. Porter had his beliefs, so far as the Minister of Labor was concerned; he pressed them in the form of charges before the House, and now that Mr. Murdock has been whitewashed, Mr. Porter is facing the consequences of an election. If I have been informed rightly, Mr. Murdock is appearing before the electors of this riding and is saying, in so many words, "I was vindicated by a majority, and that ends it." He is declaring by that that the people have no right to have a say in the matter at all; but that is absurd. The last count is the appeal to the people, in the face of partisan majorities or any other."

Mr. Meighen went on to declare that the Opposition had a duty to perform to the people of Canada, and one of those duties was to see that the Government was held to an honest discharge of its administrative tasks. If the Opposition failed in that, it should be dismissed; so he asked that the electors of West Hastings should decide whether or not Mr. Porter did right in pressing his charges. In dealing with the Murdock incident, in its relation to the withdrawal of $4,050 from the Home Bank, Mr. Meighen pointed out that if a private individual had money in a bank and learned that the bank was about to fail, it would be quite within his rights to withdraw that money, "consistent with his own conscience and the sound principles of morals and law," but with a Minister of the Crown it was another matter. For one of the first acts performed by a Minister was to take an oath of office to the effect that he would not profit personally by any information which came to him, as a member of the Cabinet.

MUST PRACTICE HONESTY

"It is only right that in every country there should be such standards of honesty or the Ministers of the Crown," he continued, "it is just as vital as civil and religious liberty, and any Minister who takes a step to lower that stand, takes upon his shoulders a terrible responsibility. The standard is that no Minister shall use information for his own advantage. Do you think he should? Could we conduct the affairs of Government if such things were permitted? If that were to be permitted all members of Cabinets could be rich within a month. Take this for example: In 1919, when Sir Robert Borden was Premier, the Government decided that there should be bounties for the treatment of certain lead and zinc ores, and the direct result of this was to help a smelter in B.C. The point was decided some time before it was to be made known to the public, through the budget, and every member of the Cabinet knew that the immediate effect of such an announcement would be to inflate the stock of the smelter in question. So all any Minister would need to do would be to profit by the information which came to him as a member of the Cabinet and tell his broker to buy up the stock of that company.

TOWN COUNCIL WOULD TIE CAN ON LIQUOR ACT

Sturgeon Falls Councillors Send Recommendation Along

TO POLICE CHIEF

Instructions Are Not to Enforce the O.T.A.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Sturgeon Falls, Nov. 20.—If the chief of police of Sturgeon Falls accepts the recommendation of the Town Council, he will refuse to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act here. The Council at its regular meeting passed a resolution last night as follows:

"That in view of the fact that the residents of the town of Sturgeon Falls, according to the last referendum, are not in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act and that our constables are put to extra duty to enforce the said Act, that the chief of police be instructed not to enforce the said law and not to do any provincial work in this connection and that a copy of this motion be sent to the Attorney General".

In the plebiscite held on Oct. 23, last Sturgeon Falls electors voted 1,040 for Government Control against 109 in favor of the continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Alemite Results Gratifies Those at Convention Banquet Here

With the serious business of the three day convention behind them the representatives of the Alemite Products Company of Canada Limited made merry at a farewell banquet in the Quinte Hotel last night. From practically every part of Canada business men have been in Belleville since Monday last to exchange ideas on "Alemite" promotion under the genial guidance of Mr. E. W. Rowsome, General Manager and Mr. J. Adams, sales manager and last night was the happy wind up.

Mr. Henley Prior, of the parent Company in Chicago who was in Belleville to assist in the Convention, made an excellent chairman, keeping everybody keyed up to the proper spirit of fun. From eight o'clock until close upon mid night he did not permit a dull moment.

Co-operation has been the prevailing spirit of the Convention, as it is a cardinal principle of company's method of doing business and this feeling was exemplified last night by the nice things the distributors had to say of the company's executive and the praise given the distributors by the officers of the company.

General Manager Rowsome was eulogized by Mr. Prier for his splendid work during the past three years in building the Company's splendid success in Canada and received enthusiastic applause from the men when he rose to reply. He was visibly touched by his reception and the nice things said about him, but generously gave his staff credit for the splendid way he had been supported.

Pleased With Results

Mr. Quattrocchi, export manager of the Chicago Corporation gave a brief talk on "Super Salesmanship" and Mr. R. J. Graham, vice president of the Canadian Company and the man responsible for bringing this importnat industry to Belleville expressed his gratification at the success of the Company, but the real business of the evening was to have a good time.

Many prominent Belleville citizens were guests of the company. Mayor Mikel again expressed his pleasure at welcoming to this city such an important convention. Mr. J. O. Herity, Manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said that Belleville would do all possible to co-operate with such an industry as the "Alemite" Company, who were such an asset to the city's growth. A lot of fun was created by the Chicago men's expressed ignorance of Canada and Mr. Herity gave some startling figures to emphasize the importance of Canada and the Canadian market.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the fine program put on by the young ladies associated with the Alemite organization. Miss Austin was dainty and charming in her dancing and Miss Baker sang with wonderful effect. So effective was the entertainment that one of the guests laughingly suggested that they must be in New York.

The happy crowd broke up with the singing of the Canadian and United States National anthem and Auld Lang Syne.

The Chicago men repeatedly expressed astonishment at the wonderful development of the Canadian end of the Alemite business and the possibility of Canadian growth. They promise to spread Canadian optimism when they return home.

American participation in the World Court to promote peace was advocated by the Board of Temperance and Welfare of the Disciples of Christ Church, in its annual report to the international convention of the body in session at Cleveland, Ohio, October 15.

SIDNEY PEOPLE SHOW INTEREST IN THIS ISSUE

Three Hundred Men and Women Approve Mr. Porter's Stand

SITUATION IS BRIGHT

Looks Like Unprecedented Majority For Conservative Candidate

More than three hundred people crowded Sidney Town Hall to the doors last night to hear speakers who vindicated the action of Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., in the Murdock charges and assailed the Minister of Labor and his defenders in the riding There is every indication of an unprecedented majority for Mr Porter in this district of high minded people, on Murdock's judgment day—next Tuesday.

Another encouraging feature was the great number of ladies in the audience who listened as equally seriously as the men to speakers who held their large audience spell-bound until 11.30 o'clock. Mr. C. Ketcheson was the efficient chairman.

Speakers were Hon. Senator W. H. Bennett of Midland, Mr. Donald Sutherland, M.P., for South Oxford. Mr. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. of Trenton, Mr. W. A. Boyes, M.P. for South Simcoe and Mrs. Howard Fallis of Peterboro.

Before motoring out to Sidney, Mr. Sutherland gave a spirited twenty-minute-talk to Mr. Porter's committee workers in the committee rooms, Robertson block, which was one of the best and most enthusiastic messages received there for some time.

Mr. Sutherland, who always was a farmer and still conducts one of the best farms in the Province, is a real interesting speaker as well, and made a decided hit with the audience.

Of course, the paramount issue in this bye-election, the Murdock charges, were discussed by each speaker, and both Senator Bennett and Mr. Sutherland also delved into the great Dominion issue—the tariff and protection problem. Both speakers also referred to the days of the bogus ballot boxes in this riding and their effect in defeating the Ross government

Would Re-Echo

The physcological effect of the recent British elections and the landslide in the United States, would reechoe in West Hastings, Tuesday, speakers stated, as well as in the general election which may not be far off.

That no stone is being left unturned by the Liberals in this bye-election, was evidenced by the presence of four Cabinet Ministers in Belleville. They are making the most strenuous efforts.

Exception was taken to the sneering attitude of Hanna's champion, G. N. Gordon, deputy speaker for his campaign work in the riding. He should not make too much capital of his position, for ability to say the word "carried" is all that is required of deputy speaker, who however is supposed to be unbiased.

As for Duncan Marshall, the Grit organizer it was stated that he was "shoved" into office at a high salary of $6,000 per year. He takes trips to England, Paris and the United States and the dear public pays for the trips

Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.P.P., for North Hastings was the principal speaker at another meeting held at Deloro last night, while other small meetings were held throughout the riding. All proclaim Mr. Porter, the winner on Tuesday.

BUN FEED COMING, ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

For some years past the members of the Wharf Street Debating Club have held an annual bun feed at their quarters on South Front street This event will be repeated on Wednesday evening next, 26th inst. Candidates for Mayor and Aldermen for 1925 will be invited to attend and give them views as to their platform for civic administration for the coming year.

FIRE CLAIMED FIVE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Plymouth Pa., Nov. 20—Five lives comprised the toll of a fire which destroyed seven frame buildings in the business section here to-day. The dead are Mrs. Martin Sherake, her niece, Emily Petroski, eleven years of age and three unidentified boarders in the Sherake home. Another boarder, Edward Alexton was taken to Wilkesbarre Hospital in serious condition. Loss was estimated at more than seventy-five thousand dolars.

Mayor Mikel To Offer Himself To Electors For Second Term As Chief Magistrate Here

Mayor W. C. Mikel, K. C., announced to-day that he will offer himself to the ratepayers of Belleville as Mayor for the year 1925. He is just completing his first year in the chair.

With Mayor Mikel's in, there are now four candidates in the field for the Mayoralty. Ald. W. R. McCreary said last night that he had definitely decided to throw his hat in the ring.

The other two are ex-Mayor G. A. Bennett and Ald. H. W. Greenleaf. It looks like a great fight.

GIVE PRAISE WHERE PRAISE IS DUE

Much has been said by the Liberal campaigners in this riding about the wonderful work that Charles Hanna did for the U.E.L. Celebration last June. They have tried to make out that Hanna and Hanna alone was responsible for the success of the celebration.

Without detracting from Hanna's efforts and freely admitting that his work for the celebration was well done we would point out that others did far more—AND DID NOT GET PAID FOR IT.

There would have been no U.E.L. Celebration in Belleville at all if Mayor W. C. Mikel hadn't worked untiringly and unselfishly for more than a year before the celebration was to be held. Even after Mr. Mikel got the proposal under way, the plan of the U.E.L. Celebration Corporation was to hold a U.E.L. dinner with a few prominent speakers and this dinner would probably have taken place in some Toronto hotel.

Mr. Mikel spent days and weeks in travelling, wrote hundreds of letters and spoke to scores of gatherings before he secured the celebration for Belleville. Without placing value on his time and the work his actual money expensese were hundreds of dollars.

Mr. Mikel neither asked nor expected to be reimbursed for even money spent—let alone for his time. He gave freely for the good of Belleville and to keep alive a fine spirit of patriotic pride in the U.E.L. descendants.

Contrast Mr. Hanna's record in this connection. Mr. Hanna was chosen as the head of the Citizen's Committee in charge of the carrying out of the plans for the U.E.L. Celebration. The city was roused to the importance of the event—he had enthusiastic support from scores of prominent men in Belleville—the really hard preliminary work was done.

For his work in the final weeks Mr. Hanna was voted a grant of $150. In addition there were some pleasant trips for which the U.E.L. Celebration Committee paid all expenses. One motor trip in particular on which he was accompanied by his wife and a friend and his wife to Peterboro, Lindsay, Toronto and other points could not have been any great hardship. The Committee paid all expenses.

There is no reasonable quarrel with Mr. Hanna's conduct in connection with the U.E.L. Celebration. But his work then, for which he was paid, is no reason why the electors of West Hastings should feel obligated to vote for him now as their member for the Dominion House of Parliament, and thus apply a second coat of badly needed white wash to Jim Murdock.

HOT SHOTS

It was Liberal speakers, who were afraid to discuss the Murdock charges who first introduced the tariff and other irrelevant matters into this bye-election. They cannot deny it.

"Jim Murdock the trainman," hokum will not be swallowed on System street where they talk, "cold turkey."

No one ever said Murdock's money was not his own—also irrelevant.

Will it be, "Don't murder Murdock" or "Make Canada safe?"

Maybe union men should stand together, but ten different men have announced that Labor will not in this by-election.—There's a reason.

"Hugh Guthrie changed his clothes" —says the Onlooker in the Daily Ontario. Hanna has made more changes than a chorus lady during the progress of a musical comedy show.

MUST ADMIT IT

E. Guss Porter, K.C., is a brilliant lawyer.—The Daily Ontario.

Murdock is not the victim of a political plot. He is the unfortunate target of his own arrows.

Onlooker cannot "smooth it over" for labor here, though he try as diligently as Gordon did nomination day. It would be impossible even with a flat iron.

THE LATEST BALLAD

"When Hell freezes over, Jim Murdock, we'll come back to you."

How about labor's britches in 1911—Did Murdock sell them.

Onlooker is an accomplished little overlooker, and the 1924 public are very intelligent.

Murdock is voluable but evasive—just like King.

Mr. Porter's record shows he is a worthy representative.—Could be depend on Changeable Charlie?

TWO AUTOS CRASHED AT UPPER BRIDGE

A McLaughlin car the property of Mr. D. W. Rollins, 339 Dundas street, was damaged to some extent last night when it was hit by a car driven by G. F. Badgley of this city. Mr. Rollins was driving off the upper bridge on to Station street when his car was hit. Mr. Badgley acknowledged that he was to blame in the matter and has offered to pay all expenses incurred in making repairs.

The de facto military government of Pekin has issued a decree providing that titles be abolished in the household of the deposed Manchu dynasty, that the imperial allowance be reduced from $4,000,000 annually to $500,000, with certain additional sums for the establishment of factories for Manchu retainers to work in, and that the boy emperor may live where he chooses, under the guardianship of the government.

Two Leaders to Talk With Boys

Mackenzie King and Arthur Meighen to Attend Banquet

Everything is "All Set" for the big Father and Son Banquet at the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow night at six thirty Word was received this morning from the speaker of the evening, Rev. Gordon Gauld of Westminster Presbyterian Church that in addition to speaking, he will assist in leading the singing. Rev. Gauld is an ex-University song leader, so we are assured of a real live sing-song.

An additional feature at this Father and Son Banquet will be the presence for a few minutes of Right Honorable Mackenzie King, the Premier and the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen the leader of the opposition. These men will in a few words extend their greetings to the boys, and their fathers who are present.

LIBERAL SHEET IS GROWING DESPERATE

The "hand" organ of the Liberal party—The Daily Ontario, was late entering the political fray, and is evidently attempting to make up for valuable time lost. Last evening they held a "cabinet meeting" with newsboys, and after ascertaining the number of Intelligencers each boy carried, they issued to him an equal number of Ontario newspapers free of "tariff"—but that is not all. For each Ontario the boy would deliver, at Intelligencer homes, he received one cent.

The questions are:—Was this a contribution to the Liberal party? and Did the boys carry the deal through?

GENERAL STACK IMPROVING

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cairo, Nov. 20—Major General Sir Lee Stack, Sirdar of the Egyptian army, who was wounded by assassins yesterday, passed a good night and there was some improvement noted, but his condition this morning was still very serious. It is now stated that six or more gunmen using both guns and automatic pistols, were concerned in the attack.

Under orders from the Federal District Court, prohibition agents began the destruction, October 1, of $500,000 worth of beer-making machinery of the Valley Beverage Company at Sutterville, Pa. Pumps, boilers and vats were destroyed and will be sold as junk. The court also ordered the destruction of 2,245 barrels of beer and a quantity of beer-making material.

MUST PROTECT CANADA'S OWN MANUFACTURES

Observation Made at Chamber of Commerce Convention

RECORD GATHERING

Most Representative Meeting in History of Organization

Toronto, Nov. 20.—A standard of living exists in Canada today which is too high to be maintained, M. P. Byrnes of Collingwood told delegates to the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in convention here today.

Mr. Byrnes who was delivering his address as retiring president, dealt with problems facing Canadian industry today. Adjustments would have to be made in economic conditions. Unless Canada could keep pace with the wage standards of United States she should lose population, but it had to be admitted that the United States were "quite some time ahead of us in economy."

For these reasons, every encouragement should be given to Canadian manufacturers, he said. Citizens would have to buy goods manufacured at home in preference to any other goods. To compete with other countries Canada had to manufacture in bigger quantities. A lower cost of production could only be achieved by means of a bigger turn over.

A Good Gathering

Measures for increase and betterment of wholesale and retail business in Ontario and Legislation to that end were under dscussion today. This morning's registrations indicated one of the most representative gatherings in the history of the organization. There were delegates from every part of the province. The program of the opening session this morning included the address of M. P. Barnes, of Collingwood, Provincial President of Associated Boards and the address of welcome presented by Mayor Hilts of Toronto and representatives of Ontario Government. This afternoon will be taken up with the consideration of resolutions. The evening will be taken up with a complimentary banquet which will be tendered to Lieut. Governor of Ontario, Col. Harry Cockshutt.

Legislation is being planned in British Columbia to cut down the horse racing season.

THE DETOUR NUISANCE

Peterboro Examiner

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce has submitted half a dozen resolutions to be discussed at the annual convention of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, and among them is one in regard to Provincial road building and theelimination of the detour evil as far as passible that the Examiner hastens to support.

The Highways Department has failed to give this detour problem the attention it deserves.

Take one important road alone, the Kingston highway, and the records show that for months during paving operations between Oshawa and Bowmanville and between Port Hope and Cobourg the traffic has had to be taken care of by detours over roads that were never intended to carry such a number of cars.

It is a miracle indeed that there has not been a series of bad accidents on these detours, considering the narrowness of the roads and the extent of the traffic over them.

The motoring fraternity have to be convinced that it is necessary to tie up all traffic on a principle artery simply because it is under repair, or at least fail to see why the operations could not be speeded up very materially.

The problem might profitably be studied by the department during the winter with a view to improved conditions when out-of-doors work recommences in the spring.

WEST HASTINGS

From the Kingston Standard

If the electors of West Hastings are true to themselves and stand steadfast to the tradition that public office is a public trust they will return E. Guss Porter on Tuesday next to the Dominion House by an overwhelming majority.

Mr. Porter voluntarily gave up his seat in defence of a principle—the principle, that is, that a Cabinet Minister should not use his position for his own personal advantage. As will be recalled, just two days previous to the collapse of the Home Bank, Hon. Mr. Murdock, Minister of Labor in the King Government, withdrew his deposit from the bank—this following a meeting of Government officials when the tottering condition of the bank was disclosed. Later when threat was made to bring suit against him Mr. Murdock repaid the money, but denied absolutely that he had been prompted to withdraw his money because of any "inside" information that had come to him. This contention of his was upheld by the committee investigating the case, but since it was manifestly a partisan committee Mr. Porter refused to accept those findings and promptly resigned his seat that the people themselves might be given an opportunity to sit in judgment upon the matter. This they are now doing and their judgment will be delivered at the polls on Tuesday next. That it will be in favor of Mr. Porter goes without saying.

By some people the specious argument is advanced that Mr. Murdock did merely what any private individual would have done had similar information come to him. This, admittedly, is true; but it is to be recalled that there were thousands of innocent depositors and shareholders who never received such information, and that it is manifestly wrong therefore that a Cabinet official should benefit at the expense of these hundreds of uninformed depositors. Apart, however, from this special argument again Mr. Murdock there are other reasons why any supporter of the King Government should fail in West Hastings. The iniquitous tariff policy of the Government closing many of our industries and forcing nearly half a million Canadian workingmen to cross the border in search of the employment they could not find here; the failure to hold our own markets; the compromise policies which the Government has entered into at the dictates of the Progressive bloc in the House of Commons; the sorry financial and industrial condition in which the country now finds itself in—these and many other reasons are so impelling and convincing that none but an intense partisan can possibly close his eyes to them.

The country looks to the electors of West Hastings to speak in no uncertain tone on Tuesday next in favor of Mr. Porter and against the King Government and its nominee.

LABOR'S FRIEND?

James Murdock starts on a lonely journey when he sets out in the West Riding off Hastings to represent himself as a great friend of organized labor. He is doing this apparently in an effort to ward off the unpleasant charges which constitute the sole cause of this by-election.

There are not many so ignorant of the life history of Murdock that they can support him sincerely in this misrepresentation.

James Murdock is the type of man who has done so much to hurt the just claims of organized labor in recent years. He is similar, after a fashion, to the insincere socialist who would divide the world's goods equally all around until he comes into some real money of his own. Then his view point changes.

No one doubts but that James Murdock was a good fellow while he was a trainman. So was Peter Smith when a farmer.The desire for money led them both into trouble. Smith ran foul of the criminal code. Murdock not only attached a stigma to his own name, but besmirched the honor of one of the highest positions in Canadian public life.

It was when Murdock commenced to use his former fellow workman for his personal advancement that the present Cabinet Minister lost his right to call organized labor his friend.

There is a good type of Union official. He's the man whom card holders like to see call around, the man who is wrapped up in his work of creating good fellowship in the ranks of the organiation and of zealously guarding the rights of his brothers, the man who thinks more of what the wages others shall get than what his salary is as an official.

Murdock has been identified with labor bodies for the benefit of Murdock His career shows his desire to see what he could get out of labor, not what he could put in. Wherever good job salaries were waiting to be picked up, he was Jimmy on the spot. Conciliation Boards paid him well as did international.

Board of Commerce at $8,000 a year was good enough until he saw an opportunity to get $14,000 a year and expenses as a Cabinet Minister. By falsely accusing the Conservative Government of holding his hands on the Board of Commerce, he made splendid political capital for the Liberal party just before the last election and earned his place on the present Cabinet.

Murdock a friend of organized labor now? This does not indicate it:

"The Trades Congress of Canada met in London, Ontario in September. A resolution was passed by an overwhelming majority censuring Mr. Murdock for his attitude during the past year toward organized and unorganized labor."

One member of that Congress said Mr. Murdock "should be relegated to the class of Judas Iscariot." By another, he was styled a "fast ally of the capitalistic class".

Murdock's sympathies are reserved for James Murdock. Others may beg for that sympathy "until hell freezes over".

ABOLISH THE SENATE

Peterboro Examiner

A resolution to be voted on at the U. F. O. convention calls for the abolition of the Senate. This question recalls Mark Twain's reference to the weather in which he complained that everybody talked about the weather but nobody ever did anything about it.

REQUIRES HARDER WORK

Sarnia Canadian Observer

Reports from many places in Canada are to the effect that trade is slowed up somewhat.

That is a condition that must be encountered periodically in business and there is just one way to fight it, that is by forcing business just as a furnace is subjected to a stronger draft when the weather is extra cold.

There are about the same number of people round about and they must all still eat, drink, wear clothing, find entertainment and do a certain amount of travelling. They may curtail their buying for a time, but they can't keep it up for ever. The business man's task is therefore to put increased energy into his selling efforts, to make suggestions to his customers and to paint attractive pictures of his wares in his advertising.

Any theory that money is scarce is pretty conclusively answered by the saving banks' statements. There is still a lot of cash in Canada available to provide people with food, raiment and other requirements. A farm crop that will put hundreds of millions of dollars of new money into circulation in Canada, should promite optimism. There ought not to be ground for pessimism in contemplating that circumstances.

A SHIPPING REGISTER

(Montreal Gazette)

That there should soon be a revival in the shipbuilding industry of the world is to be inferred from the records set out in the report of Lloyd's Register of Shippinp for the year 1923-24 which ended on June 30 last The Society's classification is recognized in the great maritime countries and the statistics of its work give a measure of the state of the industry throughout the world. Shipbuilding has been depressed for three years, following the unhealthy boom that succeeded the armistice. In the year that lately closed the tonnage of new vessels classed by the society was the lowest in fifteen years, with the exception of the second year of the war during the latter part of which special conditions ruled and led to a relatively large construction. That the bottom of the depression has been reached the report does not venture to say. Some facts bearing on the situation suggest that it has

NO GRIEVANCE

(Hamilton Herald)

A day or two after the recent by-election in Yale B.C., which resulted in a victory for Grote Sterling, the Conservative candidate, a story was circulated to the effect that the successful candidate had received from Premier Baldwin a cablegram congratulating him upon his victory. The story reached the ears of Premier King, and evidently it "gave him furiously to think" So much was he disturbed that he cabled to Mr Baldwin enquiring whether he had sent such a congratulatory message. Promptly came back a reply from Mr. Baldwin's secretary, stating that there was no truth in the story and requesting Mr. King to give it "an emphatic denial."

Things were looking far from good for the prisoner in the dock Witness after witness had been called against him, and yet he could not produce one man who would say a word on his side.

The prisoner brightened up.

"Yes, m'lord," he said. "There is the chief constable of the town

The chief constable rose in indignation.

"But m'lord!" he exclaimed, "I don't know this man at all."

"Now, m'lord," broke in the man in the dock, "I have lived in this place for 20 years, and if the chief constable doesn't know me I should think that is character enough."

Deaths And Funerals

JOHN FOX

The death is reported from Rochester, N. Y., of John Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Fox, of Deseronto. Just a few days ago the serious illness of the late Mr. Fox was reported to his relatives in Deseronto and his father and sister, Nora, left at once to be with him. His death is a heavy blow to the whole community, where he was known by a very wide circle of friends. Particularly heart-rending is the affliction which this family has suffered, as the deceased is the third son to die within two years, and all the deaths have occurred in Rochester.

The late Mr. Fox lived his early life in Deseronto, where he was educated in the public and high schools. Some years ago he moved to Rochester, where he has been in the flour and feed trade, later having purchased a business of his own. By patience and perseverence he had built up a large and thriving business.

Besides his aged parents he leaves to mourn his loss in Deseronto two sister, Mary and Nora, and in Rochester his wife and four children and one brother, Michael.

Particulars of the funeral will be announced later.

MRS. M. A. VANDERWATER

On Tuesday, Mrs. Mary Ann Vanderwater wife of Mr. John Vanderwater of Thurlow Township was taken ill and passed away at an early hour this morning. Deceased was born in Thurlow in 1850 and had resided in the Township all his life. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Gilbert. Mrs. Vanderwater had been for many years a member of the Methodist Church. In addition to the husband one son, George, of Thurlow survives.

Not less than three months or more than two years less one day in the Ontario reformatory was the sentence imposed on N. Lynch, a former resident of London, at St. Thomas, charged with beating and deserting his wife while they were living on a farm at Middlemarch. Mrs. Lynch had gone to Scotland following her spouse's desertion and Lynch had made no attempt to make recompense or to contribute towards her upkeep.

Station officials and passengers at the St. Thomas M.C.R. depot yesterday were astonded to see nearly a hundred young men cavorting in the snow on the station grounds, when a regular east bound train passed through en route for the Falls. The party had been attending the second annual railroad conference at Detroit, and had come from all states of the union, many of them seeing snow for the first time in their lives.

Meighen Issues

Then when the budget was anuqunced the price of the stock would go up and he would make a fortune. Do you think it would be right that such a thing could be? I venture to say there is no right-thinking man or woman in Canada who would agree that Ministers of the Crown should be permitted to abuse their privileges in such manner; for the man who did that would be guilty of perjury; he would be false to his oath of office. There is no one outside the nursery who would say otherwise. That is the standard which has been built up by British tradition through the generations. Are you, by your vote, going to say that we should establish any other standards; if you do, then in the years to come Canada must pay the price. It is you, the people of West Hastings who must pass upon the standards of public honesty in administration."

Porter Gains Nothing

Speaking of Mr. Porter, personally, Hon. Mr. Meighen declared that during his whole acquaintance with the West Hastings ex-member, he had never known him to seek anything for himself in Government circles. His whole aim had been service to his country and to the riding.

"If he had been the other type of man, there would have been much more for him in public life." Mr. Meighen added.

The leader went on to point out that when the Murdock incident first came to his attention through the columns of a Toronto newspaper he had looked about for one of his followers who would handle the situation with dignity and honor, and he did not know of a man more capable than Mr. Porter, or one who would more cheerfully abide by the consequences. And the Conservatives had played fair from first to last. They had selected a riding where there were no sufferers from the failure of the Home Bank. If they wanted, they might have turned to Mr. Boyes' riding to the north, where there were 2,000 sufferers from the failure; or they might have turned to Fernie, where there were three times that number; and he ventured to say that the results of a by-election in either of those ridings would never be in doubt for an instant. There would be few who would vote for a follower of Mr. Murdock.

"One thing I ask you to remember is that Mr. Porter is not on trial," Hon. Mr. Meighen continued, "he didn't have to bring the charges against Mr. Murdock. He had nothing to gain by doing it; he did it at my personal request."

So far as Mr. Murdock's withdrawal of his $4,000 from the Home Bank was concerned, Hon. Mr. Meighen recalled that every time one man beat out the bank failure by withdrawing his account, it meant that much more suffering to be spread over others.

Tried to Cover Up

"Where one man profits another suffers," he continued, "and there is uncontradictable evidence to show that Mr. Murdock withdrew $4,050 from the Home Bank, and that he paid it back only when the liquidators threatened to sue him. While he got his money, there are thousands of others who were suffering. There were widows and poor workingmen whose all was wiped out by the bank's failure; and yet Hon. Mr. Murdock got his. There was evidence to show that some hours before the bank failed the members of the Cabinet were appealed to by the directors of the bank, and that appeal for help was refused. And Mr. Murdock admits himself that he hurried with all speed to the bank and withdrew his account. He would not even take a marked cheque; and when he got his $4,000 in cash he hurried with it to his stenographer and told her to deposit it in the Royal Bank in her name. If the evidence had stopped there, it would have been complete, no matter what decision a partisan majority might give. But that is not all.

When we find a man doing what he knows is not right, we find him trying, in ninety-nine cases out of 100 to cover up. That is generally accepted in the courts of law as evidence of guilt. If Mr. Murdock had done the right thing, he would have stood up and told the facts, he would not have attempted to cover-up. But what did he do? He took the cash from the Home Bank and walked right past a branch of the Royal Bank to give it to his stenographer to deposit in the Royal Bank in her name. Why did he do that? It was taking only half the chances of being found out.

Misrepresented Facts

"And then again, when the story first leaked out, what did Mr. Murdock do? What did he say? When all the Ministers but himself had denied withdrawing money from the Home Bank, he confessed, and first he said it was quite regular and that he had withdrawn it to pay a mortgage. But later according to his own evidence, he did not use it pay off a mortgage, for that was not due until some months later, and even then he used only a portion of it. Why did Mr. Murdock lie? Would any person suggest that there could be any reason but the right one? That he was trying to cover up. And then later, when Mr. Porter's charges were made in the House, would Mr. Murdock not have stood up and told the whole facts if his conscience was clear? But what did he do? He got up and read a letter from the liquidator demanding the money back; and he read his answer to the liquidator saying he would return the money. And then he left the House. And in the end, why did he return the money? Because the liquidator was threatening to sue him and because he knew he had to give it up or have the matter go before the courts where the facts would be disclosed against him. For it must be remembered that at the time Mr. Murdock decided to give back the money, he did not know that any charges were going to be made against him. No, he didn't want the facts to be disclosed so he returned the money. And now he comes before you, and he asks you to pass upon his generosity.

"When asked why he had given back the money his answer was that no widow or orphan would suffer because of him. How does it come about that his solicitude for the widows and the orphans came only after he had been threatened by the liquidator? How is it that his heart began to bleed for them the moment he got that letter? And now it is his generosity in returning the money that he is asking you to condone, through a vote for Hanna, the Liberal candidate. If he had been big enough to get up before the House of Commons and admit that he was wrong; if he had said frankly that he got his fingers on the money and did not want to loosen them until they were pried off, then Parliament might have been generous and forgiven him. But when he did not do that; when he twisted and turned and evaded took advantage of every loophole, and when he comes before you and asks that you give your verdict in his favor by voting for one of his followers, is it not time that you, the people, the last court of appeal should take a stand and say that the British tradition must be maintained and that there must above all things, be fairness and honesty in Government?"

Mr. Meighen touched briefly upon the general fiscal and tariff situation in Canada, and he asked such districts as Marmora and Deloro to decide for themselves whether or not population and employment are increasing in this portion of Canada. The evidence was all to the contrary; and he pointed out that the only hope for Canada's future was a sane tariff population, which would give Canadian markets to Canadian workers and Canadian industry.

Address by Candidate

E. Guss Porter, the Conservative candidate, dealt with the Murdock situation in the same manner, and he was supported by a number of other speakers.

Mr. Porter pointed out that, so far as he was concerned, the election in West Hastings had become a moral issue and it is one to which the people of all Canada are turning. The issue is whether or not a Minister of the Crown can take the solemn oath of office and then be whitewashed because his case is heard before a favorable committee of the House. The ex-member stated that when the matter of Mr. Murdock's withdrawal of the $4,000 from the Home Bank first came to his attention he had hardly been able to believe that a Minister would be guilty of such an act, in view of his oath of office. He had inquired, and had learned that the thing was true. Mr. Murdock had withdrawn his money, and after that there was only one thing which he, as an honorable member of an honorable riding, could do, that was to bring the charges. Mr. Porter reminded the constituency that he had not pressed the charges in his own name, but in the name and in the honor of the people of West Hastings. It was the only thing he could do and feel free to face them again.

"It is true that Mr. Murdock has been whitewashed by a partisan committee," he continued. "But the thing I want you to decide is whether or not I was unjust in my estimate of the people of my riding. Did you want to uphold your honor, or did you not? Your votes will be the answer."

Ford Motor Company Stage Real Contest

Sixteen Sedans and Tractors Are Offered as Prizes

Excitement is reaching high pitch throughout rural Canada today as enrollments of Farmer Ford-owners come flooding into the branch offices of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, from every parish and township of the Dominion that boasts a plough-share, like ballots into the boxes at a hotly contested election

The Ford-Owner Contest, staged by the dealers of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, has thrown open the entire Dominion to what is probably the most spectacular selling idea ever staged.

Convinced that their best advertising is the word-of-mouth recommendation of the satisfied users, these dealers have given to every Canadian farmer who owns a Ford car or truck or Fordson tractor and to the members of his family the opportunity of becoming during the life of the contest an authorized Ford agent in his township or parish, but the proviso that only the first three farmers who enroll in each township shall be chosen as agents has injected spontaneous life into the project and robbed the autumn-post harvest days on the farm of all dullness and inactivity.

Each farmer-owner entering the contest enrolls with his nearest dealer and mails his enrolment to the nearest branch office of the Ford Motor Company, Limited, where the successful applicants are selected by priority. They are then to sell Ford products to their neighbors, their selling arguments based on their own personal experience and satisfaction. The contest closes December 30th, and on January 15th the farmer with the highest selling score in each of the eight branch territories will be presented with a new Tudor Sedan completely equipped delivery charges and 1925 license paid for. The runner up will be given a new Fordson Tractor completely equipped with fenders and belt pulley attachment, while all contestants will each receive a cash prize amounting to 3% of his total sales.

Only a small number of townships and parishes have not yet registered their representatives since the contest opened a few days ago.

This unique contest has already reached the proportions of a huge election, while enthusiasm in those townships where the first applicant has been notified of his candidacy as a competitor is mounting to fever heat. In other districts where the enrolled farmer-owners have not yet been notified as to which of them sent in the first applications, suspense reigns, though in most cases all are working for the good of whoever of their number may be the lucky men, and so that their's may be the prize-winning township.

THIS MOTORIST WAS VERY CONSIDERATE

Hamilton, Nov. 20.—"To the police: This car will be called for in the morning. 'Nobody was hurt in the accident.'

Tied to the steering wheel of the automobile which he found in the ditch near Waterdown last night, was this note, which convinced Highway Constable Shanks that all motorists are not enemies of the police. While on his beat he discovered the car, badly wrecked, but with nothing to identify the owner. It looked as though he was to spend the balance of the night investigating an accident.

"The note certainly saved me from spending the night on the road," the constable stated. "If all motorists were as considerate as this one it would make life a lot pleasanter for the constable."

The auto was owned by B. G. Forsythe, 132 Bold street, Hamilton.

Hepworth, Nov. 20—A little path leading from the bank of the Saubie River, wending its way over hills, and valleys, across sandy plains, through a grove of pines and balsams leads to a small frame house inhabited by an old Indian lady, Mrs. Thompson, Bruce County's oldest resident, who is celebrating to-day her one hundred and fourth birthday.

The past 41 years of her life have been spent on the shores of the Sauble River. Her husband died 15 years ago, leaving her to spend her declining years in loneliness.

The Hepworth Women's Institute and a local newspaper have undertaken to provide her with the necessaries of life by means of a relief fund which has just been opened.

Dr. Haffner's 712 Was Not Enough

Bowlers Beat Wanderers With Total Score Of 3008

One ladies one junior and one senior game provided the program at the Recreation Parlors last evening. In the ladies league, the Ramblers played the Ever Ready team and won by 326 pins. Miss V. Blaind and Mrs. Salsbury were the best bowlers for their teams. In the junior game the Fruit Merchants played the Cyclists and won by 489 pins. This team has yet to taste defeat and it is up to some team to hand it to them.

For the Fruit Merchants T. Quattrochi was high three string with 648 and had high single with 231 and for the losers Baker was high.

SENIOR LEAGUE

In this game the Bowlers played the Wanderers and won by 144 pins on the total. The Wanderers could not get the breaks in the first two games and were down 240 pins. They came back with a real Wanderer finish but could not overcome the Bowlers first lead. Dr. Haffner was right in form for the Wanderers and hit them for 712 three string with a single game of 288. For the winners Palmer rolled 655 three string and 237 single.

TIGER SQUAD IS FEELING CHEERFUL

Hamilton, Nov. 20.—The Hamilton N.H.L. club has practically closed with Jimmy Gardner, former Montreal Wanderer star, to coach the Yellow-and-Black squad.

He was expected here this morning to close the deal and take charge of the crew, but failed to turn up. It is almost a certainty that he will be on hand for Thursday's drill.

Today's workout was, like that of yesterday, quite extended. The boys hustled for 90 minutes. And Ken Randall, the last of the squad to sign his contract, was on the job. Ken explained that he had been working at the Toronto Arena and was retained a few days longer than he expected. The Toronto boy showed a lot of speed on his first appearance and gave indications of having a big season.

"Shorty" Green predicts that Charley Langlois, the new defense player of the Hams, will be a star in "pro" company. He says the French Canadian, when down to weight, will dazzle the fans with his speed and puck carrying ability. Langlois is a sturdy boy and a stiff body checker. He and Jess Spring ought to pair up well. Both can hand out the jolts.

34 th to Drop Out Of Quinte League

Possibility That Another Team May Be Entered Here

It was announced definitely to-day that the 34th Battery would not enter a team in the Bay of Quinte Hockey League this season.

The League officials will meet in Napanee on Monday next at eight p.m. to settle on plans for the year.

It is thought possible there may be some other team to represent Belleville in the league this season. Some talk has been heard about the Canadian National Railway men getting their feet wet, or there may be some other body coming in at the last minute.

CORNWALL MAY JUMP THE O.H.A.

Cornwall, Nov. 9—The annual meeting of the Cornwall Hockey Club was held in the King George Hotel on Tuesday night with a good attendance. The last year's operations were most successful, the club being able to give the players souvenirs and show a cash balance.

The question of whether Cornwall would remain in the O.H.A. or join a new league, in which the clubs would be M.A.A.A. and McGill of Montreal and Brockville and Cornwall, was discussed at some length, and it was the consensus of opinion that the new league would be a drawing card, and the secretary was instructed to get further information before any definite action is taken.

CURED HIS RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 472 L. Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N.J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Ramblers Take Fixture Easily

They Blew Breezes All over The "Y" Alleys

The Ramblers got away to a good start in their game with the Breezes at the Y Alleys last night and were leading by over three hundred points at the end of the first string. The second game saw the Breezes pull up a little but the Ramblers added considerably to their lead in the final game.

NEW HOCKEY LEAGUE

Montreal, Nov. 19— Reliable information here is to the effect that an announcement is forthcoming shortly of the formation of a new intercity hockey league, which will include teams from Cornwall, Brockville, M.A.A.A. and McGill University.

Arrest Ku Klux Organization Man

Had Enrolled Several Hamilton People; He Carried a Revolver

Hamilton, Nov. 20.—Charged with carrying a loaded revolver Almond Charles Monticth, Niagara Falls, was arrested as he was in the act of swearing in two local women as members of the Ku Klux Klan.

Cards found in the prisoner's possession showed that 32 members, men and women, had been enrolled locally during the past five days. No indication could be secured from data in his possession as to the total number of members already enrolled in this city.

He Admitted It

Monteith frankly acknowledged that he was an official organizer of the KKK, according to police. He had come to Hamilton to secure members, he told the detectives.

In a memorandum book found in his possession was one entry for two "burning fiery crosses." These he was charging to expenses at a combined costs of $20.

Asked if he had been responsible for the three fiery crosses recently lighted on the mountain side, Monteith only smiled and would vouchsafe no reply.

Women Joining

Detectives Gillespie and Bleakley took the organizer into custody at a hall he had rented. He was surrounded by a bevy of women each paying $3 membership and receiving her card in the order. These cards explain that candidates must be "white, Protestant Gentile and British born."

Taken to the police station he gave his address as 177 James street north, where he had been boarding.

Tipped off that the organizer was carrying a loaded revolver, the two detectives entered the hall where the meeting was taking place and accosted the speaker, asking him if he carried a gun. He replied that he did, according to the detectives, but stated that it was in an anteroom in a valise. The detectives followed him to this ante-room, where, they state, he produced a six-chamber revolver from his hip pocket, fully loaded, and handed it over.

One item in his expense-book, recorded during the past week, was for 3 white robes with hoods, such as are used by the members of the order.

Police know very little of the history of their prisoner other than that he is thought to hail from Niagara Falls, N. Y., although giving his nationality as Canadian on the police roster, and also that his wife resides in Kingston, Ont.

Adjourned For Week

In Police Court he was charged with carrying a loaded revolver, and at the request of the Crown remanded for one week. Bail was fixed at $1000 in the form of two sureties, but up to press time had not been produced.

Prisoner was represented by Howard Yates as counsel.

Police are very non-committal over the case, declaring that, aside from the fact that the prisoner was carrying a loaded gun, he had broken no law of which they were aware. There was no law against organizing orders, so long as they were not admittedly criminal in nature, and there was also no law against erecting "fiery crosses," or such symbols, providing they were not erected by persons who were committing trespass in the act, or committing a public nuisance.

OSHAWA ENTERED TWO O.H.A. TEAMS

Oshawa, Nov. 19—The secretary of the Oshawa Amateur Athletic Association today forwarded an application to Secretary Hewitt of the Ontario Hockey Association for permission to enter teams in the intermediate and junior series respectively for the 1924-25 season.

The application was accompanied by registration fees.

Hockey prospects in Oshawa are not quite as bad as were at first believed, in fact indications are that two strong aggregations will represent this city during the coming winter. Nothing definite is forthcoming as to the exact material available but there is every reason to believe there is a host of players to choose from. With the advent of cold weather all thoughts of the sporting public have turned to the favorite winter pastime and interest in the game should be at a higher level than in previous years.

Sunday School Cage League Is Formed

Officers Selected at Y.M.C.A. Last Evening; Representative Group

At the Y.M.C.A. building last evening the Sunday School basket ball league was reorganized for the season. Nearly all Sunday Schools in the city were represented. Officers selected were as follows:

Hon. President, P. C. McLaurin; president, P. F. Brockel; vice-president, A. Herity; secretary-treasurer, W. Deroche. The above officers with Norman Edwards and Miss N. Merry will form the executive.

On Monday next at the Y, a meeting of the officers will be held for the purpose of receiving entries and drawing up a schedule.

BOY SCOUTS MEET AT THE "Y" TO-NIGHT

Members of the Boy Scouts of Troop No. 1 will meet at the Y. M. C. A. at 7.30 o'clock to-night, according to Dr. Mallott, Scoutmaster. This meeting is usually held on Fridays, but has been advanced one day because of the Father and Son Banquet.

Fire, which broke out about 5 o'clock in the dry kiln of the Asquith & Son apple evaporator factory Alvinston, destroyed that section of the plant and did some damage to the other buildings. For a time it was feared the entire plant would be burned. The loss on buildings and stock is placed at about $4,000.

The death occurred at St. Louis, Mich., of John W. Sykes, of Petrolia, a retired farmer of Moore township. Mr. Sykes had left three weeks ago for St. Louis to visit his daughter, and became ill while there.

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"What an exquisite view," he said, softly, an dextending his hands as if he were pronouncing a benediction on the scenery; "now that nature is in her spring-time. How refreshing, how inspiring, how vernal! I cannot express to you, Lady Grace, how deeply this beauteous prospect moves me! One must have a hard and unimpressionable heart, indeed, who is not moved by such a landscape as this; so soft, so—er—green——"

Her clasped hands grew together more tightly.

"Why have you come here?" she said suddenly, in a strained voice.

He raised his pale eyebrows.

"Here—on the terrace, do you mean, Lady Grace?" he said, in a voice of an innocent unsophisticated child; "surely you forget. You, yourself, asked me!"

"Why have you come here?" she repeated.

Without changing his expression or his attitude of bland, serene enjoyment, he murmured:

"I came because I thought you wanted me—and you do!"

CHAPTER IX.

A SECRET COMPACT

"I came because I thought you wanted me, and you do," said Spencer Churchill, softly.

Lady Grace looked at him, with an expression of dislike and fear—actual fear. It displayed itself in every line of the fair, perfectly-formed face, in the expansion of her clear eyes, in the tight—almost painful—compression of her slim, white hands.

"Why do you think so?" she demanded, in a low voice.

He smiled, until it seemed as if he meant it for his only reply, then he said, in a dulcet voice:

"A little bird whispered——"

She made a movement of impatience.

"Is there anything you do not know? Is there anything one does or says that does not reach you?"

He shrugged his shoulders, not cynically, but still with the amused gesture with which one meets the petulance of a spoiled child.

"I believe there is no secret in any of the lives of the men and women who call you friend—friend!—that you have not become possessed of. How is a mystery!"

"It is a question of sympathy, my dear Lady Grace," he said. "Nature bestowed upon me a large and sympathetic heart——"

Again she made a movement of impatience.

"Spare yourself the trouble of trying to delude me!" she said, in a kind of quiet despair. "There are many who fully believe you to be what your face and voice and manner, and reputation make you appear, but I am not one of them—I think I have known you from the first."

"You have such keen penetration," he murmured, as if she had paid him a delicate compliment.

"I see you without your mask—that mask which presents the appearance of a smiling, benevolent goodwill! You cannot impose upon me, Spencer Churchill!"

"Do me the credit of admitting, dear lady, that I never tried," he said, softly.

"No," she said; "it would have been useless. Others you may deceive; me you cannot. Therefore, I ask you plainly, why you came here? Of course I know that you were aware I was here!"

"Oh, yes, I was aware of it," he admitted; "but think, dear Lady Grace, such knowledge does not prove much astuteness on my part. Lady Grace Peyton's movements are one of the social events which are duly reported——"

"None of the papers said that I was at Barton Towers," she said sharply; "you got your information from other source!"

"What does it matter?" he remarked soothingly.

"No," she said; "it does not matter, excepting that it proves what I say, that there is nothing you do not know. And now, once more, why have you come? I put a plain question, I expect a plain answer."

"If we always got what we expected!" he murmured, mockingly.

She colored and bit her lip.

"You do not mean to answer? It was from no love for or goodwill to me. I know you do not—like me, Spencer Churchill!"

He looked quite shocked, and whispered:

"My dear Lady Grace, you hurt me; you do, indeed! There is no one in the charming circle to which you belong whom I more ardently admire and respect! Oh, really, you wound me! Not like you!"—he held out his soft, plump hands reproachfully—"Lady Grace Peyton possesses the whole of my esteem; and if I could do her a service——"

"You would do it!" she broke in, abruptly, with a bitter, scornful laugh.

He sighed and looked up at the sky with an injured air of patience and long suffering.

"How little you know me! How cruelly you wrong me! Alas! it is always thus! One's best effort on behalf of others is always met with scorn and incredulity—"

"There is the marquis," she said, as if she had been thinking deeply and had not heard his pathetic appeal. "What do you know about him? How have you got him in your power?"

"Got the marquis in my power! My dear Lady Grace——"

"Pshaw!" she said. "Do you think I am blind that I cannot see how different he treats you to others? Is there any other man who would come to Barton Towers, and be received as you have been? Is there any other man who would dare to brave him—yes, and taunt him—as you have done today? You know something about him—you have some hold upon him. I don't ask what it is—oh, no," she added quietly, as he smiled, "for I know that you would not tell me or would palm off some smooth falsehood——"

"Oh, Lady Grace, Lady Grace!" he answered ,plaintively; but there was a flicker of self-jubilation and satisfaction on his smiling face.

"It is so, or why should he, who is civil to no one else, be civil to you? You know why I am here?" she said, abruptly, as if to throw him off his guard. But the ruse failed utterly; he turned his smiling face to her, suavely.

"I can guess," she said, softly.

Her face flushed, then grew hard and defiant.

"Of course you can! Guess? You know! I am here because I was 'commanded' by the marquis; I am here because his mightiness pleases to wish that I should——"

He glanced over his shoulder warningly.

"Is it wise to speak so loudly, my lady?"

She made a gesture of impatient self scorn.

"What does it matter? Why should I care who knows it? I am here that I may learn to regard myself as the future wife of the future marquis! And you know it."

He looked at her quietly, with a frank benevolent regard—just the look one bestows on an irritable child.

If your eyes are normal

You should be glad to learn the fact. If I say to you after an examination—"You do not need glasses"—it ought to please you greatly, because few people are so fortunate. But if I find that glasses would help you, you should be pleased to learn that fact also, so that steps can be taken to have the errors corrected.

Renee Adoree Has Had Varied Career

Star Appearing in "Women Who Give" at Belle Theatre

With her appearance as Becky Keeler, the delectable little New Englander, in Metro's "Women Who Give," now playing at the Belle Theatre, Renee Adoree makes her second appearance under the direction of Reginald Barker, having played the leading feminine role in "The Eternal Struggle" which Barker directed recently.

Miss Adoree was born in France where, at the completion of her education, she became a dancer. Her fame abroad spread so rapidly that she was offered an engagement to come to the United States and appear before American audiences. Moreover Miss Adoree had an ear for music which she had used to good effect on several previous occasions to write her own scores to dance numbers. She now resolved to develop her musical bent; so she took up song writing. As a result of her varied talents, she was offered leading roles in several musical productions and a bright future was predicted for her by newspaper critics.

Got the Movie "Bug"

However, Miss Adoree wanted to go into the "movies"; and consequently she applied at the various motion picture studios for a chance to appear in pictures. Goldwyn engaged her to play opposite Tom Moore whom she married a little later. The casting director at the Fox studios gave her one of the leading roles in "The Strongest," a story built around Georges Clemenceau. This was followed by her appearance in "Monte Cristo," "A Self-Made Man", "West of Chicago," "Honor First" and "Mixed Faces."

Universal then placed her under contract to appear in "The Six-Fifty" Just about this time Reginald Barker was looking for some one to play the part of Andree Grange, a carefree, fearless girl of the Northwest, in "The Eternal Struggle." Vivacious Miss Adoree with her fair complexion, soft, brown hair, wistful blue eyes combined with a marvelous grace of movement induced Barker to give her the role.

Hurt During Filming

Her work in this picture prompted Barker to sign her up for the role of Becky Keeler in "Women Who Give" In the midst of the filming of this production, Miss Adoree was injured in an automobile accident which sent her to the hospital with five broken ribs and a number of bruises and cuts on her neck and shoulders.

"Women Who Give" is presented by Louis B. Mayer through Metro. It is based on Sarah P. McLean Greene's famous story, "Cape Cod Folks" adapted to the screen by Bernard McConville and J. G. Hawks and scenarized by A. P. Younger. Percy Hilburn was the cameramman.

RECOLLECTIONS OF OVER FORTY YEARS AGO

An event that takes the writer back to his childhood days is announced for the Griffin Theatre, for a matinee and evening performance, the matinee commencing immediately after school dismisses, on Tuesday, November 25th, when the original Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company will hold the boards. This was the first show I ever saw and how well I remember counting the days from the time the paper went on the boards announcing the coming of the show until the parade went down the main street of the burg where I was born, with yours truly leading one of the dogs, for which good natured Leon W. Washburn, always the kiddies friend, gave me a pass for the performance, and as I already had the coin to buy my ticket, I spent it for peanuts, rushed a front seat in the front row of "Nigger Heaven" and spent one of the happiest evenings of my young life, laughing at the funny sayings of Lawyer Marks and Topsy, and crying my young eyes out at the pathetic death of Little Eva. And Uncle Tom, Phineas, Aunt Ophelia. Bless them all. How they stir the memories of boyhood days when we, first saw them in the old village opr'y house.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" speaks the universal language of the heart, it reflects, like a prism, the innermost phases of the human emotion. It is more than a play, being one of those rare classics which you so seldom see. It argues for two of the greatest themes that can enthuse the mind, liberty and immortality of the soul. Notwithstanding its frequent presentation by many small and inferior companies, it is only when one of the Stetson companies, which have been touring the country constantly for over fifty years, is announced to appear that the public know they are going to see a production worth while. This season it is like meeting an old friend after many years absence, as it is the first time in over a decade that this, the original Number One company of the Stetson Enterprises has been in this immediate vicinity, conditions caused by booking arrangements having kept it in other sections of the English speaking world during the past ten or twelve seasons.

Viscount Cecil, long known as Lord Robert Cecil, has been elected Rector of Aberdeen University, in succession to Sir Robert Horne.

Many were in attendance last evening at the monthly progressive euchre and dance held in the I.O.O.F. Hall under the auspices of the I.O.O.F. Society. In the early part of the evening card playing was indulged in for prizes and the successful competitors were as follows:

Ladies—First prize, Mrs. George Lee; second prize, Mrs. Storm; consolation prize, Mrs. S. Sprague.

Gentlemen—First prize, P. Harrison second prize C. R. Belnap; consolation prize, C. Woodcock. At the conclusion of the contest refreshments were served, after which the floor was cleared and dancing indulged. Appropriate music was furnished by the Sprague Orchestra. The evening was in every respect one of rare enjoyment.

Griffin's Packed When Jiggs Came

"Bringing Up Father" Scored Big Hit Last Night

Bright, snappy music, colorful chorus original stories, and splendid ensemble, all helped to make "Bringing Up Father in Ireland," the big success that it was, when they played to a capacity house in Griffin's Opera House last night.

Jiggs himself was there in life size, with his pal Dinty Moore and Maggie and Kitty, all true to the comic strips. Then there were Patsy Moore, Kitty's sweetheart and Dinty's nephew, Eugene Mendoza, lady-in-waiting to the queen, and erstwhile lunatic, Sandy MacPherson, Scotchman, and Steve McKenna captain of a coal barge.

The scene opens in Ireland where the fairies are dancing and changes to Lady Margaret's mansion, showing Maggie Jiggs on "The ould sod," thousands of miles away from "Dinty". Maggie believes. But a telegram comes announcing Dinty's arrival and it is followed by Dinty himself. He is permitted to stay there though because he poses as Sir Edward Moore, Dinty's twin brother, and Maggie is deceived.

The plot is carried on with many laugh-raising stunts to the trip on the way to Spain with Maggie in search of a title. Jiggs is supposed to be Adam, the gardener and in order to get the title, Lady Eugene insists upon Maggie marrying the gardener. Jiggs refuses to be married the second time saying that the first time was "twice too many."

It all works out to a satisfactory ending and "they all lived happily ever after"—maybe.

The chorus girls are all pretty and young who do some nice dancing, and the songs were all good. "Hinkey Dinky Parlez-vous," and Maggie's Speciality, bringing special encores. Judging by the enthusiastic applause the entertainment was much enjoyed.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head; soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.

The Tenth Woman Film Worth While

Beverley Bayne and Jane Marlowe Are Together; Good Story

"The Tenth Women" which is the feature at the Griffin Theatre, is a productions that can be included in the class of the unexcelled. It is an adaptation from the novel of the same name by Harriet T. Comstock. James Flood is the director.

The entire photoplay has that finished touch throughout, that fineness of construction which gives it a certain distinction. The photoplay is excellent; the sets beautifully arranged, the direction flawless. In fact, "The Tenth Woman" is a bit of work of which both director and producer can be proud.

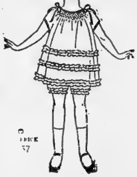
Even if the picture had nothing more to recommend it, it would be worth seeing because of the unusual combination of stars. June Marlowe who shares stellar honors with Beverly Bayne, although very young, is one of the most promising stars on the screen today Beverly Bayne is as charming as ever even though she has not been in the limelight for a good many years. Others who give notable characterizations are John Roche, Raymond McKee, Charles "Buddy" Post, Gilbert Holmes, Alec Francis and Edith Yorke.

There is still another feature, a very important one, which cannot be overlooked. The story is excellent. We shall not venture to say that it is entirely new, for every plot is old, but it is handled with such deft touches of originality, and it is so cleverly arranged in detail, that it appears to be something quite extraordinary to the spectator.

There could not be much more to say about any production. See this Warner picture. It is excellent entertainment.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



The very small woman of the world takes her first step into society in a much-ruffled frock of shell-pink crepe de Chine.

With smocking above, bloomers below any many ruffles in between a party frock makes a brave showing for so brief a thing. These little embryo ensemble costumes are made in the fine lingerie materials such as batiste, organdy and fine cotton voile, which may be found in delightful colors. Many mothers, however, prefer crepe de Chine and taffeta. They look partified and are in many ways more practical than the fine cottons, for they don't crumple and keep fresher looking. Pale pink smocked in rose or Nattier blue, madonna blue smocked with coral color, apple green, white or lilac, yellow smocked with green or pale green with yellow make enchanting frocks.

"Liver Trouble so Severe I Had to Quit Work"

Mr. Thomas Honey, Brantford, Ont., writes:

"I was a great sufferer from enlargement of the liver for ten months, and finally I had to quit work. I would wake up in the mornings with a bitter taste in my mouth, had frequent headaches, yellow complexion, and pain in my right side, and between the shoulder blades. It was almost unbearable, and terribly weakening. I could not sleep at night and my heart also bothered me. But the whole trouble has now left me, thanks to that wonderful medicine, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

The death occurred in Sarnia of Miss Letitia Dixon, a resident of that city for 60 years. Miss Dixon, who resided on Maria street, was aged 78 years, and came to Canada from Ireland when 18 years of age.

Mrs. Anna C. Banks, Bright street, Sarnia, lies in hospital with severe injuries to her head and body, sustained in a collision between an automobile driven by her husband and one driven by W. Smith of Sarnia. The accident occurred shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Following a parlytic stroke, some days previous, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts died at the Charlesgate Hospital, on Nov. 8th, in his seventy-fifth year.

Here is the latest photograph of Miss Helen Jacobs, 18-year-old girl of Berkley, Calif., who is the national tennis champion of the U. S., having recently won that title at Philadelphia.

IS YOUR SHADOW IN THE WAY?

A HOME half lighted is like a home half warm—poor economy at the high cost of comfort. Particularly when light costs so little.

Shadows, for example, are needless annoyances. White or frosted Edison Mazda Lamps, in portable floor or table lamps, overcome this condition, and greatly increase the cheerfulness of your rooms.

To obtain the best results, choose lamps with wide shades that throw the light upward as well as downward. In ceiling fixtures of pendent or shower type, put 50-watt white or frosted Edison Mazda Lamps, or 75-watt lamps if the fixture is a translucent bowl.

Near you is an Edison Mazda Lamp store, recognizable by the yellow and blue cartons. There you can obtain real information about good lighting.

EQUIPMENT FOR TESTING EYES

THE optometrist is an "eye-measurer". To assist him in his work, he has delicate instruments with which he is able to determine the exact focal state, or seeing quality of the eye, and to measure the strength of the muscles that control it.

Knowing these things accurately, he is able to prescribe glasses which will correct any defects in refraction.

Our optical department is equipped with the best modern apparatus for examining eyes. The work is done by an optometrist of long experience and high professional standing.

It is an economical and safe place to buy glasses.

Eczema Skin Is Healed By This Sulphur

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream

LAYMAN ARRESTED AT DOOR OF CHURCH

Toronto, Nov 20—While Rev. S. Banks Nelson, D.D., of Hamilton, prominent anti-church union leader, pleaded with Rev. H. S. Clugston, pastor, to admit those who sought to enter Fairbank Presbyterian Church, corner of Eglinton avenue and Dufferin street, to hear the joint debate between Dr. Nelson and Rev. H. J. Pritchard, pastor of North Broadview Presbyterian Church, a constable at the door of the church was arresting E. W. Murray, a prominent Presbyterian layman, who tried to enter the church. Admission to the meeting was by ticket only and although the church was only half filled, Rev. H. S. Clugston, the pastor, refused to allow anyone but those who had been sent tickets to enter. Rev. Mr. Clugston is strongly for union.

The sensational incident at the door at the opening of the meeting, far transcended the debate itself in public interest in the locality as it became known. Several ladies were in the party of Presbyterians whose attempt to enter the Fairbank Church was prevented by force.

District News

Most Ungrateful

Trenton, Nov. 19.—'Tis not only the much abused housewife who is chided severely when her cooking does not measure up to the expectations of friend husband, for trouble sometimes comes to the most expert of chefs. The local police received a call on Sunday to the effect that the driver of an American car bearing a license number 757-121 stopped at a Trenton restaurant, beat up the Chinaman who operated it, broke the plate glass window and drove off without even saying excuse me or thank you. Evidently the driver did not come through this city as no trace of him has been seen in this vicinity.

To Be Well Entertained

Oshawa, Nov. 19.—Lord and Lady Byng will be well entertaned on their visit to the city on November 26, some of the arrangements having now been completed. The visit will be featured by a drive around the city when their Excellencies will view Oshawa's splendid school system, factories and unique War Memorial.

Official Opening

Oshawa, Nov. 19.—Oshawa's huge new water tower will be officially placed in commission on Friday of this week, according to a statement by G. D. Conant, chairman of the fire and Water Commission. Mr. Conant has been out of the city for the past week and on returning stated that a meeting of the commission would be held Friday and the Tower placed in operation that day.

Make Clean-up

Oshawa, Nov. 19.—Making a general clean-up of alleged bootleggers, police gathered in six persons all charged with selling liquor in contravention of the O.T.A. All appeared in police court and asked for an enlargement for one week.

Harry Ballet, Athol street, west, was first arrested. John Fialka, 112 Olive avenue, next fell into the toils. Vladimie Baluk, Olive Ave., was next in line. Annie Galech, Ritson road south was the first to be arrested yesterday afternoon, and Eva Rutka and Harry Rutka, 612 Albert street, were the next two. Two more were arrested late at night and further arrests are probable.

Joy Destroyed

Kingston Nov. 19.—The question, "When is a liquor script not a script?" has perhaps been solved to the satisfaction, if costly, of one citizen, who though finding himself rich with liquor orders just couldn't get a drop of liquor as much as he wanted it.

It is understood that a few weeks ago a doctor in the county was suspended by the Attorney-General's Department for issuing too many prescriptions. At the same time the doctor had a few orders left in his book, and coming to the city last week, he proceeded to get rid of them. Ten were sold to one man for the modest sum of $15 and the purchaser, with visions of a well-stocked cellar, wended his way to the Ontario Dispensary, only to find that the orders were no good, but the money he paid for them was.

Going to Brockville

Lindsay, Nov. 19.—Mr. Harry Brimmell, who is a member of the firm of Dundas and Flavelles, Limited, has severed his connection with that firm and with his brother, Mr. Frank Brimmell, who was formerly in business in Peterboro will conduct a gents furnishing store in Brockville. The senior member of the new firm has been associated with the Flavelles for twenty-three years. He is a president of the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario, ex-President of Lindsay Board of Trade and a former member of the town council. He leaves for Brockville about the first of December.

Gallant Officer Dead

One of the most gallant members of the 21st Battalion died in Ottawa when Lieut.-Colonel Donald Hector Maclean, registrar of the County of Carleton passed away after a brief illness.

Col. Maclean was one of the first officers to enlist in the 21st Battalion Previous to the war he had served as a private with the Queen's Own Rifles at Toronto, rising to the rank of lieutenant. Later he joined the Governor General's Foot Guards and rose to be senior major of the corps.

Truck Wrecked

Peterboro, Nov. 20.—The Peterboro Cereal motor truck was badly wrecked when a large shunting engine struck it at the railway crossing at Douro street in East City. The car, which was traveling at a moderate rate of speed, was hit broadside by the huge engine, making almost a total wreck out of the truck, but the driver escaped unhurt.

Wolves, Bears Plentiful

That wolves are a menace to young stock at Apsley, 35 miles north of Peterboro, and that bears are also more plentiful than for many years, is the news brought back by Steve Fisher of Peterboro and his son, A. Fisher of Collingwood. These men have just returned from a deer hunt with a party that worked from Grassy Lake to Copper Creek, ten miles north of Apsley. They report that the howling of the wolves disturbed their sleep at night.

Many sheep in that country have been killed, and one night the wolves pulled down and ate a steer. On another occasion a calf was killed half a mile from camp.

Hunters at an adjacent camp had their hounds chased by the wolves, but managed to kill one of the pursuers. This party also got a mother bear and two yearling cubs.

MANITOBA WETS AFTER GLASSES NOW

Winnipeg, Nov. 20.—The executive of the Manitoba Moderation League was instructed at the annual general meeting, held here to consider the advisability of having legislation introduced at the next session of the legislator to provide for the sale of beer by the glass.

F. W. Russell, president of the league, reviewed the results of the recent plebiscite in Ontario, declaring:

"Prohibition is dead in Ontario. All five parts of the province voted overwhelmingly in favor of Government control. The 'stagnant' parts of the province reversed the vote of the live and growing parts. There will be some relief before long."

PAINS ACROSS THE BACK

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mitchell, Ontario.—"I have taken your medicine for a number of years. I do not take it steady all the time, but I am never without it. I always keep it in the house. I took it first for pains in the abdomen and bearing-down pains, headaches and pains across the back. I have my home to look after and many a day I could not get up at all. I saw the advertisement in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Mrs. John Miller told me about it, too. Every time I take it, it makes me feel better and I always recommend it to my friends. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about this medicine and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. F.J. WASSMANN, Mitchell, Ontario.

The merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is told by women to each other. Many women know by experience what this medicine will do and they are anxious for others to know.

Such testimony should cause any woman suffering from the troubles so common to her sex to give this well-known medicine a fair trial.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial. C

SOCIAL AT ZION HILL SCHOOL

A very pleasant evening was spent at Zion Hill School on the evening of November 7th, when the pupils and teacher held a box social in aid of the Progress Club funds.

In spite of the disagreeable weather, most of the people in the community attended, in addition to many outsiders.

An enjoyable program was offered which consisted of songs, dialogues, readings, banjo and guitar music by George and Farley Faulkner of Belleville, Clarence Ashley of Madoc Junction, Roger Rose, Jack Cole, Richard Cranston, Walter Naylor Misses Irene Haley, Eva Stevenson, Mildred and Annie Elliott and the teacher Miss Marjorie Ketcheson and pupils.

After the program was over, the boxes were sold by Mr. Frank Spencer of Holloway, the net proceeds being about fifty dollars.

STIRLING CROWD OVERFLOWS STREET

MR PORTER'S SPEAKERS HAD TO ADDRESS THREE MEETINGS TO ACCOMMODATE EVERYBODY

Arthur Meighen Sweeps Community With Directness of His Attack Against the Dishonorable Actions of James Murdock at Ottawa

CHALLENGES MINISTER OF LABOR

To Appoint Royal Commission and to Back up With Proof His Vague Insinuations Against Former Government

Determined to lay the cold, true facts before the intelligent electors last night, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative chieftain, made three addresses last night, two of which were made indoors and the third on the balcony of the Whitty hotel to an overflow audience of the Stirling meeting.

Plans made yesterday were that a strong line-up of speakers would start a meeting at Frankford and Stirling at the same time. As a speaker finished at one town, he was rushed by motor car to the other town, and so the speaker alternated until both Stirling and Frankford had heard "the true message." Then came the unexpected. The Empire theatre at Stirling was packed to the doors. The aisles were filled, the crowd extended through open double doors into the street, and three hundred rated electors, too late to gain entrance entreated that they be not deprived of an opportunity of hearing the speeches. The result was that Mr. Meighen, Dr. Manion and E. Guss Porter addressed the overflow out of doors, amid cheers and exhultations.

Deathlike Silence

There were Liberals in the audiences at Stirling, but though Mr. Meighen pointedly asked questions which he invited Liberals in the audience to answer, and waited amid a breathless hush for replies—there was but deathlike stillness until he again proceeded. There was no possible come back. The only demonstrations were three cheers and a tiger for Meighen when he was introduced by chairman Charles McGuire, Reeve of the town. Then the audience sang, "For he's a jolly good fellow". Throughout the meeting loud applause and co-operative demonstrations resulted when fine and convincing points were driven home.

In conversation with prominent Stirling men, the Intelligencer was assured that Mr. Porter would pile up a majority in that town and district.

"There is no truth in the Liberal rumor that it would be fifty-fifty here then," suggested the Intelligencer.

"Do not worry. It will be more like 90—10 for Porter," was the answer and the applause justified such a statement.

The patriotic Stirling folks had their theatre well decorated for the occasion, and it proved to be one of the cosiest meeting places in the riding.

Splendid Reception

Mr. Meighen was given an ovation that lasted at least five minutes when he appeared before his audience.

At one point in his address Mr. Meighen dealt with a claim by Murdock, recently repeated, that after being appointed to the Board of Commerce (formed to establish control over prices) in 1918, he had resigned because the government would not permit him to perform his duty. Mr. Meighen branded this as absolutely false. Mr. Murdock had resigned from the Board of Commerce, he asservated, as a cheap attempt to get into politics. He had put his letter of resignation in the hands of Mackenzie King and made in it only cowardly insinuations, not daring to specify any person or definite deed. "I challenged him in the House at that time," he stated, "to formulate one definite charge, promising him if he did so, that there would be an investigation started in ten minutes. He did not dare do this, however, for he knew that his insinuations were false and that he would have lost his seat in consequence. But he and Mackenzie King made the widest possible use of these insinuations in the press in an effort to impress the public. "Up to the time he resigned and a good while afterward I had never seen James Murdock to know him. And I defy and challenge him again to place this matter before a Royal Commission."

Undoubtedly True

The speaker then showed that the charges laid by Mr. E. Guss Porter against Murdock that he had violated his oath and made use of knowledge gained at a Cabinet meeting to save his money in the Home Bank were undoubtedly true. The committee that had disallowed the charges was made up of seventeen Liberals and three others. While Cabinet Ministers had a right to refuse to tell what had been said in Cabinet, Mr. Meighen contended that they had no right to refuse afterwards to tell what subjects had been discussed.

According to the evidence any rightly constituted mind could not help but believe Mr. Murdock guilty.

Three directors of the Home Bank had waited for a reply from that Cabinet meeting—at which Mr. Murdock was present—as to what the government would do. And immediately after the meeting an emissary of the government had left for Montreal to see what could be accomplished through the Bank of Montreal. And straight from the cabinet meeting, on his own evidence, Mr. Murdock had rushed to the Home Bank and demanded his four thousand odd in cash. Then, passing the Royal Bank's door

HOT SHOTS

Porter will win—The Ontario Crystal glass is purely imaginary.

Charles Hanna's voice has given out. This should be no handicap inasmuch as he said nothing while he had it.

It is time for a change.—Hanna has made his last change.

One of the many proofs of the soundness and reliability of charges laid against James Murdock is the fact that the Daily Ontario has not had the courage to take the details in hand and discuss them.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, Dr. Manion, M.P., and many other public men have declared that E. Guss Porter, K.C., is one of the most dignified and yet modest members in the House of Commons. Such statements belie the "small town" pipe dream propaganda advanced by Liberals that he is absent from his seat in the House two-thirds of the time

Murdock stands challenged by the Conservative chieftain regarding misstatements made by him in his own defense at the City Hall here Tuesday night. Will he accept the challenge? He will not.

The Daily Ontario may attempt to reconcile labor with Murdock, but even threats of resigning by Murdock if statements made cannot be proved, regarding his association with labor in 1910 during the railway strike; will avail him nothing. Labor 's set here as it is in Montreal and Toronto following the postal strike.

There is more evident need for higher standard of honesty in public life today than ever before. Evidences of the need are on every hand. West Hastings electors are not going to be found faltering when their opportunity to speak out on a moral issue presents itself Tuesday.

Bandsmen; lodge men and members of other associations with which Charles Hanna is affiliated, should put Honor before local loyalty on Tuesday next.

Porter represents honor in Canada—a vote for Hanna is a vote to "whitewash" a Cabinet Minister. Porter should get the vote. Therefore it is NOT time for a change.

WIT IN ABUNDANCE

Long Term Not Mr. Porter's Fault; People Wanted Him

Another indication that the ladies of Belleville are taking a most active part in the election on Tuesday and that they are strong in their condemnation of the conduct of James Murdock, was to be observed at the Conservative rally in the G.W.V.A. Hall yesterday afternoon where a large number showed much enthusiasm.

Those present has the pleasure and privilege of hearing two of Canada's eminent statesmen, Dr. the Hon. R. J. Manion, and Senator W. H. Bennett, K.C., in the G.W.V.A. auditorium, yesterday afternoon.

In introducing Dr. Manion, Mrs. Kinnear who occupied the chair, expressed her gratification at seeing the meeting so well attended, and reminded the ladies that by their vote next Tuesday they were approving or disapproving of the honor of Parliament.

Many Friends Here

Dr. Manion was pleased to be in Belleville where he had met many fellow soldiers with whom he had served in the 21st Battalion, and further it was a pleasure to come in support of Mr. Porter, although he considered that it was superfluous and unnecessary to argue in favor of a man of Mr. Porter's ability and distinction.

Briefly, he touched on the moral issue, which he stated clearly and in a straightforward, impressive manner. The affair of the imminent failure of the Home Bank was discussed at the Cabinet meeting. That was evident, because although a member of the Cabinet may not tell what was discussed at a meeting, they may say what wasn't discussed, and no one had yet made the statement that the Home Bank situation was not discussed. Further, why did not Mr. Murdock get a marked cheque, instead of asking for the cash, thereby inconveniencing hte banker? If such conduct were to be sanctioned, what was that to prevent any minister from taking advantage of any knowledge he may get at a meeting for his personal benefit, he asked. To vote in favor of Mr. Hanna meant favoring a breach of honor. It would be injecting into the Civil Service almost a permisson to take advantage of inside information.

"Murdock says he is a poor man. He received $14,000 for the three years in which he held office in Parliament; $42,000 ought to keep a man out of poverty. He never got less than $7,00 a year from labor unions before that. Mr. Murdock claims that the charge is a plot on part of Conservatives to put Jim Murdock out of office. He is flattering himself. I hope he stays in office, because he is an anchor on the neck of the Liberal party. Do not let personal sentiment influence you. The question is actually a plebiscite as to whether you believe in maintaining the honor of Gverment officials or not.

Mr. Manion then proceeded to give other reasons for the support of Mr. Porter. The Liberal Government had been in power since 1921. Their type of legislation was always poor—useless if not actually harmful. Their first piece of legislation which they promised was the creation of a wheat board. Mr. Meighan told Mr. King that it would not be a success, but it was put on, and finally dropped because no man could be induced to accept the chairmanship.

Several Failures

Mr. Manion went on to point out the failure of nearly each thing they attempted. The Lake Port legislation did a great deal of harm and drove away every American grain boat from Canadian lakes, until at last, Hon. T. A. Low invited them back and told them to ignore the legislation. He mentioned the committee which was formed to investigate the embargo on pulp wood, which wasted $75,000 in travelling around and investigating and then had no solution to the prob-

Auto And its Occupants Spent Night On Scow in Middle of Ottawa River

Montreal, Nov. 21.—With the temperature nearly at zero, and a bitter wind blowing down the Ottawa river, two motoring parties spent the night in mid-river off Ste. Anne de Bellevue, on a ferry-scow.

The two cars, coming from the West on Ile Perrot, one of them owned by Mr. MacLean, of Dragon, Que., and the other from Cornwall Ont., ran onto the scow at 9.15 Sunday night, to wait for the arrival of the motor tug from the St. Anne side which was to take them across. No sooner had they braked their cars securely onto the barge, than it broke from its moorings and drifted to a mile below St. Anne de Bellevue, where it stuck on a mud-bank at Baker's Dam.

E. Lauzon, the owner of the ferry arrived from the Ste. Anne side to find his scow gone; he took a small boat and scoured the stream in an effort to locate it. Finally he found the missing boat and the half-frozen motorists where they had stuck. His brother, B. Lauzon and Ed. Kent, Jr., of Ste. Anne, went out to the spot and brought the marooned persons to shore at 6.30 Monday.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—Statute revision commission of Ontario has sent out notices to various municipalities, associations and corporations interested in law revision requesting them to send to the commission, a statement showing in detail amendments which they think should be made in the assessment law. After these statements have been received by the commission they will proceed to hold public meetings.

Toronto, Nov. 21.—The advisability of demanding legislation prohibiting export of Canadian timber in its raw state will be considered by a special committee of association boards of trade and Chambers of Commerce of Ontario to be appointed by the president. The committee will make it's special report to executive of the Association. This decision was arrived at this morning when delegates to the convention resumed the discussion on the resolution introduced yesterday by Guelph Chamber of Commerce advocating an embargo on pulpwood.

Haney's Manager Testifies At Stewart Trial To-day

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 21.—At the trial of J. F. M. Stewart, Home Bank director this morning, the affairs of M. J. Haney Companies were dealt with. Andrew Harnwell who was manager of Haney's Companies, atted that the Point Anne quarries were worth $400,000. He said that loans to this Company by the Bank were amply secured, and that interest on various loans to Haney Companies was paid by being added to the account.

MANUFACTURER, CLOSED UP BY LOW TARIFF, CHALLENGES W.R. MOTHERWELL TO DEBATE

Is Busy Now Moving Plant to The United States

REFERS TO TRENTON

Where Another Industry Found Government Policy Hard

Dyed-in-the-wool Liberals laugh in the face of serious remarks made by the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighan and others that the low tariff policy of the Liberal Progressive combination is seriously harming the country. They pooh-pooh the facts which show over a quarter of a million Canadians leaving their native land for more prosperous U. S. A. protected by a very high tariff. With figures, they seek to cover up the statements that manufacturing concerns have been compelled to close down because of the hardships imposed on them by the Liberal government policy.

The Editor of the Daily Intelligencer received a letter to-day which will be hard to laugh however. It comes as direct corroboration of what Mr. Meighan has been pointing out, from a manufacturer of high standing who is busy now moving his plant to the United States. The letter, with the enclosure, which follows, is self-explanatory. It is from D. N. Sampson, president of the Dominions Linens Limited, which has closed down in the city of Guelph.

The Letter

"I enclose herewith a copy of the telegram I have to-day sent Hon. W. R. Motherwell, and Mr. William Berry, vice-president of Dominion Linens, Limited, and myself are prepared to meet Mr. Motherwell and Mr. Robb upon the public platform before the electors of West Hastings constituency and to discuss this matter and give the electors the facts. I can assure you that I am writing in the interests of the public spirit and have no selfish motives to serve as I am through as a manufacturer in Canada, now being engaged in moving my plants to the United States.

But to the thinking men and women, who have sons and daughters who will perhaps grow with the Dominion, I think there is food for thought that it is 57 years since confederation and we are still struggling along with eight and a half million people in the Dominion and less people than we had in 1921. I am fully acquainted with the number of our people who go to the United States. I have discussed this recently with immigration officials in Buffalo. The Hon. Mr. Meighen is right, but if you would read the Toronto Globe, which I do, you would find an attempt to lead people of Canada into thinking that conditions are very much improving. Hence their article on the front page re Woodstock and a few days ago in regard to Campbellford, Ontario, and other towns, all of which boosting bunk, "slang words", but very expressive.

Yours truly
D. N. SAMSON

MRS. HARDING IS DEAD

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 21.—Florence Harding, widow of the late President Warren Harding of the United States died here this morning. The end came at White Oakes sanitarium of Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, where she has been fighting for life for the last few weeks Her death was due directly to kidney trouble from which she suffered for years.

VITAL DISCUSSION AT TRADE MEETING

Belleville Well Represented at Annual Trade and Commerce Convention

Many matters of interest were considered by the Associated Boards of Trade and Chamber of Commerce of Ontario at the first day's session of the annual meeting yesterday at Toronto. Mayor W. W. Hiltz welcomed the delegates as did also Premier Ferguson at a luncheon at the Sunnyside pavilion. Belleville is well and ably represented at the meeting.

A resolution from the Belleville Chamber of Commerce urging the Ontario Government to purchase a building in London Eng., worthy of the dignity of the province aroused some discussion, it being felt by some members that Canada should follow the example of Australia and house her Agents-General in one building, and the resolution was amended to embody this suggestion.

A resolution not on the agenda, introduced by F. Newman, of Picton, that a duty on American magazines, proportionate to the amount of advertising they carried should be imposed before they were allowed to enter Canada, was referred to the Executive Committee several members speaking in favor of it.

Considerable discussion resulted on a resolution introduced by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce urging the Government "to explore and prospect systematically and efficiently" not only the North, but other portions of the Province. There was some fear expressed that this was an invitation to the Government to do something better left to private enterprise, and that it would be paving the way for numerous Government positions. Ultimately the resolution was amended, asking the Government to carry out geological exploration and to map, systematically and efficiently, large areas of the Province. The opinion was expressed that the Government was continually losing its mining experts to private companies, which paid larger salaries, and a rider was added to the resolution that the Government shoul pay salaries on a scale commensurate with the services rendered.

Highways and Tourists

Belleville Chamber of Commerce successfully sponsored a resolution urging the Government to introduce a more efficient system of repairing and rebuilding roads, so as to avoid long and difficult detours and that the tourist traffic should be encouraged by every possible method.

Another resolution dealing with the protection of vehicular traffic at railway crossings and calling for legislation making it compulsory for all drivers to come to a complete stop within fifty feet or some such distance was referred to the executive.

Lieut.-Col. W. N. Ponton, of Belleville, expressed the view that the object to be aimed at was the abolishing of all level crossings, but other speakers expressed the view that on account of the excessive cost this was impracticable.

Gradedo Export Trade

A. J. Young, of North Bay, as one who had been in the lumber industry for years, maintained very strongly that injustice would be done the farmers if an embargo were enforced, on pulpwood.

Lt.-Col. Ponton of Belleville however declared that farmers would be inconvenienced only for a year or perhaps two, by which time industries demanding the wood would be established on Canadian soil. "Instead of losing 300,000 people," he said, "we could keep our boys at home by creating employment for them."

Tell Stirring Story of shipwreck After Last Minute Rescue By ship

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Boston, Nov. 21.—Stirring story of shipwreck, long exposure in an open boat, hungry and thirst and distress that some time comes to women and men who go down to the sea in ships, was told to-day by Mrs. L. B. Bishop of Malden, the seagoing wife of the skipper of the stern schooner "Susan B" with Miss Katherine Woodworth of Rockport. Her 18-year-old niece, Captain Bishop, John Bishop, their son who was the schooner's mate and three members of the crew. The sixty-year-old woman who has been to sea 27 years, was landed here after her first shipwreck by the steamer "City of Atlanta" which had picked up the party from a yawl 150 miles off Virginia Capes. The little group of seven huddled in an open boat for 53 hours with food rendered uneatable by salt water saturation, attracted the attention of their rescuers by waving a blanket. Three times previously, other vessels had passed them, their lookout failing to see skirts and petticoats waved by women. "We could not have stood it much longer" Mrs. Bishop said.

Let there be harmony in things essential—liberty in things not essential—Charity in all

A GOOD OUTLOOK

The enthusiasm of the electors of West Hastings in and around Stirling, Marmora and Springbrook in the past three days—enthusiasm for the stand Mr. E. Guss Porter is taking—must hurt the Liberal campaigners who have been making wild statements concerning alleged disaffection of Conservatives to Mr. Porter's cause in these areas.

Some Liberals have been cocky as the result of fair attendances at a few of their meetings in rural districts with such crowds as have gathered to hear Mr. Porter's side and have remained to cheer, there would be no holding them now.

From every side of the riding there comes most encouraging reports to Mr. Porter. Thanks to his many friends, the veteran representative has been able to acquaint city and country people with all the facts surrounding the Murdock charges. And when a man learns the complete evidence, there is no doubt as to whether or not he will support Mr. Porter.

GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP

Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., who is carrying on a fine winning fight in the by-election, took on a man sized job when he told Mr. Meighen he was willing to shoulder the task of fighting in his riding the battle of the entire Conservative opposition in the House of Commons.

It would have been much easier for Mr. Porter to pass the buck. He might easily have suggested that some member, whose riding was peopled with Home Bank sufferers, take on the proposition.

The veteran representative of West Hastings was willing however, to shoulder the responsibility. He volunteered to take a chance on ending one of the longest political careers a Canadian member of Parliament has ever had.

Notwithstanding the slurs that outsiders are throwing on the judgment of West Hastings people in the last twenty-five years, electors on Tuesday will show Duncan Marshall, G. N. Gordon and others that they appreciate sportsmanship and the commendable courage of their representative.

LOYAL TO TRADITION

United Empire Loyalists and their descendents pride themselves in always having been loyal to Britain and Her traditions—and justly so.

On Tuesday, every man and woman descendant of the Loyalists will be given an opportunity to cast their lot in favor of the continuance of those traditions, which have been built up with Canada. British and Canadian parliamentary traditions have always been distinct. There must be honor and integrity in public life.

A POOR EXCUSE

Once again James Murdock has been given an opportunity to explain to West Hastings why he has not prosecuted profiteers as he promised Canadian people he would before his election. He spoke at Trenton last night.

When Murdock was a member of the Board of Commerce, at a salary of $8,000 a year, he claimed that Mr. Meighen and the Conservative government in power then tied his hands. He whined that the reason he had not been able to accomplish anything in regulating prices was that the big interests had control of the Government.

At that time Murdock was evading responsibility as he is in West Hastings to-day.

Murdock promised, as an election blind to hide his own inefficiency, that should he be elected he would see to it that these profiteers were prosecuted. He did skin into power. Murdock became a prominent member of the government. He had a wide open field to play in. All the resources of the judiciary were at his command. On his own profession, the "big interests" had no grip on his government.

Yet Murdock has not had one prosecution of a profiteer to his credit after three years in office.

The Labor Minister in this instance proved himself to be what a trainman might call a "four-flusher".

It is this type of a man who asks people of West Hastings to swallow a flimsy denial of charges against him.

To-day's Smile

A negro lad had been brought into a Virginia police court for the fifth time charged with stealing chickens. The magistrate determined to appeal to the boy's father.

"See here," said his honor, "this boy of yours has been in this court so many times charged with chicken stealing that I am quite tired of seeing him here."

"I don't blame you, jedge," said the parent, "an' I's tired of seein' him here as you is."

"Then why don't you teach him how to act? Show him the right way and he won't be coming here."

"I has showed him de right way," said the father, "but he jest don't seem to have no talent for learning, jedge; he always gets caught."

ONTARIO PROGRESSIVE PARTY

The remnant of the Farmers' Party in Ontario held a meeting in the Toronto Labor Temple on Tuesday, and emerged from the conference as the Ontario Progressive Party. Mr. Drury, naturally is the leader of the Progressive group.

It is possible that Mr. Whitney, if he were living, might prefer some other law to the O. T. A., but if he came into power and found the O. T. A. the law of the land and freshly endorsed by a majority of the voters, is there any reason to doubt that he would enforce the law?

See Big Swing Toward Union Side

Speakers at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Review Situation

Two most instructive addresses were delivered last evening in St. Andrews Church in a meeting arranged for by the session of the church in the Union situation. Rev. Dr. Denoon, minister of Avenue Road Presbyterian church gave a historic survey of the movement from its inception, pointing out the fact that two votes were taken in the Presbyterian church on the matter and on each occasion a majority was given in favor of Union. The courts of the church acted in the verdict of the people and authorized the Union. Parliament has acted upon the decision of the church courts and the United Church becomes an established fact on June 10th, 1925. Dr. Denoon saw that congregations would have the opportunity of voting concurrence or non-concurrence and that congregations voting non-concurrence would separate themselves from the historic mother church. They would cut themselves adrift from precious fellowship [illegible] our great Home Mission work as well as the Foreign Work that has been so successfully carried on for so many years. He stated that at least 80 percent of the Foreign Missionaries of the Presbyterian Church were in favor of Union.

The Rev. H. J. Pritchard of N. Broadview Presbyterian Church drew attention to the fact that recent indications are that ministers and congregations hitherto opposed to Union are becoming uneasy for fear they find themselves in a little struggling minority and are announcing themselves definitely as going out Union with the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Rev. Dr. Wilson, when here, the speaker said, is reported to have said that not more than 25 or 35 ministers

Toronto churches were in favor of Union. Mr. Pritchard told of a survey of Toronto Presbytery made within the last fortnight. Out of 120 possibilities there are 14 vacancies, five Foreign Missionaries, five away from the city and could not be reached leaving 96 to be interviewed. Of these [illegible] signed a declaration that they were going into Union regardless of what their congregations did; 10 indicated they were going into the Union but that the time was not yet ripe for them to declare themselves; one of these has already announced his decision to go with the Union. Three said they would take no part in the Secession but go whichever way their congregations went and at least two and probably all three will go into Union. 85 out of a possible 96, there were 81 ministers of Toronto Presbytery going into the United church. In Toronto Presbytery there was a veritable landslide towards Union. Similar reports were coming in from Presbyteries and Synods east and west.

Overwhelming Majority

Six Synods have had meetings within the last six weeks and all of them have given overwhelming votes for Union.

The Synod of the Maritime Provinces Montreal and Ottawa, for Union 68, against 17; Synod of Toronto and Kingston for Union 186, against 36; Synod for Manitoba for Union 91, against 6; Synod of Saskatchewan, for Union 139, against 1; Synod of Alberta for Union 76; against 3.

Leaders, who have been pronounced opponents of Union, are now throwing in their lot with the Union. This is true with such men as Myers of Perth MacIntosh of Pembroke Sedgewick of Hamilton and Wilson, Superintendent of Missions for British Columbia.

Rev. Mr. Pritchard said that the Rev. Stuart Parker in his speech before the Private Bills Com. spoke truer than he knew, when he said "If our judgment in this matter goes against us, we have no church. You see how heavily the dice is loaded against us."

Speaking of the name (Presbyterian) he said "We are exceedingly anxious and worried about our name. Having the name, we have the identity, but we are connected nowhere. If our name goes we lose our connection with the Presbyterian Church in Canada. "We shall be," he said "small isolated bodies who vote ourselves out into the wilderness as it is called." Parliament listened to this plea and then passed the bill specifying that the Anti-Unionists must not call themselves the "Presbyterian Church in Canada. Consequently, Mr. Parker's description will fit exactly the anti-Unionists after Union takes place, "small, isolated bodies connected nowhere, without name or lineage, no church."

Mr. Pritchard emphasized the fact that congregations going into the Union retain all that is essential to Presbyterianism and that those which vote non-concurrence separate themselves from the mother church.

The addresses were listened to with close attention and created a marked impression.

Appointed Director Canadian Pacific

Ross Huntington McMaster

The recent election of Mr. Ross Huntington McMaster to be a director of the Canadian Pacific, filling the vacancy created on the board by the death of the late Lord Shaughnessy, is a recognition on the Company's part of his long-proved ability. Mr. McMaster is already vice-president and director of the Steel Company of Canada and director of the Northern Electric Company, as well as the Canadian Explosives Company. Born in Montreal in 1880, he has lived practically all his life in that city. He was educated at the Montreal High School and Collegiate Institute. His business career began with the Sherwin Williams Co. of which he became assistant to the vice-president and general manager in 1897, a post he held until 1903. In the latter year he was made assistant to the vice-president and general manager of the Montreal Rolling Mills Company. On the formation of the Steel Company of Canada he was appointed manager at Montreal.

SAID AT STIRLING

There is no way in the world to pierce the truth of the verdict against Murdock.—Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Never did a man commit himself more faithfully to the duties before him, than the man from West Hastings E. Guss Porter.—Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Murdock stated at Belleville, according to the press that I interfered with his work when he was a member of the Board of Commerce. Here and now I defy Murdock to go and appoint a committee, and institute a Royal Commission, now that he is a Minister and his party is in power, to find out if I, or any other member of the government interfered with his work—Hon. Arthur Meighen,

Since parliament prorogued I have addressed audiences from the eastern coast to British Columbia and everywhere I have heard condemnation of Murdock—Hon. Dr. Manion, M.P.

When a member from Prince Edward Island was mixed up in a certain sale of lands, and was called to task for it in the House, he arose like a man, and admitted that he had been involved in a deal which he believed, benefitted the people he represented. There was never another word said about it. Why did Murdock not make an honest admission?—Brigadier General Ross, M.P.

I do not believe that the people of West Hastings will wish to look upon the distinctly outlined map of Canada in all its purity on November 26th and see a black, blotch-marked West Hastings,—the constituency which does not stand for a high standard of honesty in public men—E. Guss Porter, K.C.

Woodstock, Nov. 2[illegible]—Billy Bean, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bean, met his death by drowning in a water cistern in the backyard of a neighbor's home, late this afternoon. Apparently the child had pushed the top off the cistern and had toppled in.

It was some time before he was found there, as his mother went along the street looking for him before she found he was in the cistern. Ben Gale a neighbor, secured a ladder and brought the boy to the surface and strenuous efforts were made to revive him, but without success.

Mr. Bean is one of the partners in the manufacturing firm of Bean and Westlake, and the sad tragedy has elicited sympathy throughout the city.

HOT SHOTS

What is comic opera to "Onlooker" in the Daily Ontario (Mr. Porter's attitude in the Murdock charges) will be the finale scene of a melodrama Wednesday next—with all the usual concluding scenes in melodramatic offerings.

Evidently Duncan Marshall objects to being a "hired man." Maybe he will resign if Mr. Porter does not stop "kidding" him. Mr. Porter has been "working for" West Hastings at their Ottawa branch for twenty years and over—has never asked for promotion and his only ambition in the words of Mr. Meighen is to do well the work which is required of him by those people who sent him there.

Is it a case of thick head or evasive mind or both which causes "Onlooker" in the Daily Ontario to misinterpret the widely displayed assertion made by Mr. Porter at Springbrook. That attitude never did change votes, "Onlooker."

Charles Hanna has been making five minute speeches during his campaign and has "lost" his voice. His Master's voice is still strong though, so it is up to the "hired man" to carry on.

Mrs. MacPhedran of Toronto, speaking here for Hanna urged women not to be party bound but to vote for the best man as only in that way could the type of men treading Parliamentary Halls be improved.

When Mrs. MacPhedran made that statement she was making a strong bid for Mr. Porter. A vote for Mr Porter is a vote for a higher standard of honesty and integrity among all members treading Parliamentary halls.—Mrs. MacPhedran "dipped a bucketful."

PEPS

Colder weather soon finds out any weak spot in throat or chest, and neglected colds simply invite bronchial trouble. Peps ward off cold and chill dangers. They invigorate, strengthen and

HIS FIRST OFFENCE

On a charge of selling liquor, John Goslin of the city was this morning adjudged guilty by Magistrate Masson. Mr. J. O'Flynn, who appeared for accused made a strong plea for his client, claiming there was a doubt in the case, which doubt the accused should have the benefit of. Magistrate Masson stated that there was no doubt in his mind that the accused did sell a bottle of liquor. Being a first offence, the minimum fine was imposed namely $200 and cost or in default, three months in jail. The fine will in all probability be paid.

3 W. BRIDGE OPP. McLAUGHLIN GARAGE

Mr. Porter

he took the money to his secretary and had her deposit it in her name in the Royal Bank so that when the Home Bank failed the Royal Bank employees would not connect the incident with him.

"He later said he had drawn it on the behest of his wife," smiled Mr. Meighen, "that is, he drew it on the behest of his wife and deposited it in the name of his stenographer." (laughter).

The first statement Murdock had made to reporters, the speaker informed his audience, was that he had drawn the money out in the natural course of business to pay a mortgage, though this mortgage was not due for a couple of months. Then he had said he had drawn the money because six or eight days before a friend had told him the Bank was in a very unstable condition.

This friend, Mr. Gordon, had gone into the witness-box to substantiate him and had laid the blame for the telling on President Daly, who had told him, he said, about the condition of the bank about a week before it had failed.

Died Day Before

Would the president of a bank, knowing the conflagration that would result, do any such thing? asked Mr. Meighen. Daly had died just the day before the evidence was given. The story was such, suggested the speaker, that Murdock and Gordon had to place the responsibility for it on a dead man. Murdock had returned the money only when the liquidator had threatened him with court action. If a Minister of the Crown could violate his oath in such a manner, then it would be all right for a cabinet minister who knew that a certain stock was going to be protected by a duty to buy thousands of share of it from the public who did not know on the market on margin and cash in a fortune when it went up. If such things were to be permitted, he avowed ,there could be no standard of honor in government and the standards which had prevailed in this country and in England must be forever lost.

Not Personal Fight

"I have nothing to say against Mr. Hanna," stated Mr. Meighen. "It is not an issue of Porter and Hanna—but whether these standards our fathers and forefathers set down as essential to democracy in Canada shall be kept. It is an issue, I repeat, of honor in public life in Canada."

In the initial part of his address, Mr. Meighen portrayed the conditions brought about by the Mackenzie King government. These conditions, he asserted, had wholly vindicated the Conservative protectionist policies in the minds of the people. While Mackenzie King had so far dared only to give samples of free trade, the effects had been drastic. The full program, as announced in 1921, was free trade on one half of seventeen great classes of imports. The Progressives were in favor of their program. If Mackenzie King desired to put it through, he would, with the 65 Progressive votes, have 80 per cent of the House to support him. But he didn't believe in it all himself. His motto was, "If you haven't confidence in our policy, have condence in our duplicity." So he bartered the prosperity of Quebec and Ontario for the Progressive vote of the prairies—a bribe that had not benefited the West. And to keep in power he must needs go on doing this.

"Are the people in Canada going to let him?" asked the speaker. Despite three years of the best harvests the country had ever seen, Canada under the Mackenzie King administration had suffered terribly.

A Contrast

As a result of the Fordney tariff in 1921 by which many industries were given greater protection, the United States, the highest protectionist country in the world, had realized a cycle of prosperity greater than had ever before come to her. She had receded a little last spring, but was on the way to the top again with an advance of 30 per cent in steel producton and 40,000 more men employed in New York State last month than the month before.

But under the free trade policy of Mr. King, even in spite of the price of wheat—created by world demand, Canada had not experenced a single reflex of property. During the year ending June 1, 1922, there were 62,000 Canadians left Canada for the United States; the year following there were 117,000; last year 182,000; and since June 1st to the present date 124,000; in all 350,000, without acknowledging perhaps as many again who did not pay head tax and of whom there was no record. These 350,000 pointed out Mr. Meighen, would have spent in Canada, on a low estimate, $250,000,000 mostly with the farmers for living purposes. Do you like to see them spend this amount of money with the farmers of the United States?" he asked of the farmers present.

Fifteen per cent had been taken off the duty on agricultural implements, ten per cent on textiles, and all on fertilizers.

These were just a sample. The result was that of 70,000 textile workers in Canada one half were unemployed, 24 implement factories had closed, and Canada had now the distinction of being the greatest purchaser of American goods in the world. "We have taken the honor from Mexico who had it four years ago," added Mr. Meighen satirically.

Every year when the budget came up, he said, the promise of the government to the progressive wing was—"Well we have done so much for you this year—it isn't a great deal—but just wait till next year and we will do better.

"Do you expect people to invest money in Canada under conditions of that kind," he asked, "when they do not know what is going to happen? People of intelligence simply will not do it. That is the reason industrial bonds cannot be sold in Canada. Confidence is gone."

Candidate Speaks

E. Guss Porter, the candidate, made a short address in which he enlightened his audience in full detail as to the circumstances and evidence against the Minister of Labor in the Home Bank matter. "The eyes of all Canada will be pon West Hastings on Tesday," he declared. "For this riding is being asked the question whether it stands for the honor and dignity of Parliament or denies these things.

Canada Watching

Hon. Dr. Manion M.P., of Fort William assured the audience that the moral issue in the Murdock charges was being watched throughout the length and breadth of Canada, over which territory his actions have also been condemned. Mr. Porter's attention to duties at Ottawa as representative of West Hastings was lauded to the skies by Dr. Manion, who has known Mr. Porter at Ottawa for eight years. He represented a riding which had been one of the most patriotic and heroic of any riding in the Dominion during the Great war, the speaker having had many happy meetings during the past few days with members of the famous 21st Battalion, with whom he served in France.

"The Grit Government in power today, is the most inefficient government which ever held the reins in Canada", emphasized the fiery speaker. "No legislation enacted by them has been of any use and much of it has been harmful."

Naming harmful legislation to substantiate this statement, Dr. Manion called attention to the formation of the Wheat Board for the Prairie provinces which Mr. Meighen had cautioned would be useless. So useless was it that King could not get a practical grain man of the west to accept the chairmanship. Lower Lake Freight rates drove every American freighter off the great lakes away from the grain trade and Hon. Thomas Low had to send Leslie Boyd of Fort William to coax the boats back in disregard of the law passed.

Throwing Money Away

The Pulp Wood Commission spent $75,000 of the public money travelling about investigating and did not answer one question put to them in the matter. One million dollars have been spent on commissions.

The French Treaty was a wonderful treaty for France but harmful for Canada as it costs great revenue to Canada. The tariff issue has depopulated Canada, 182,000 having gone to the United States—there has been industrial depression and industrial leaders will not increase their plants.

"They have made and broken more promises than any other government in the history of Canada", avowed Dr. Manion.

Enumerating broken promises, he told of their broken promise in not giving a cash bonus to war veterans, and how veterans find greater trouble in receiving justice and fair dealing than ever before.

The doubtful hero—Murdock had promised to put trusts, combines and mergers out of business. There has been no interference whatever with them. Murdock, "the poor trainman" has received as Cabinet minister $14,000 each year for the past three years. Fifteen years previously he had held high offices in labor organizations, never drawing less than $7,000 per annum.

Not Responsible

The Liberal government it was proved, had not reduced the cost of living—another promise—and had failed to prove themselves a responsible government which they accused the Conservatives of not having been, though since 1876 until King took office there had been Responsible government in Canada.

They said they would cut down expenditures. The revenues for the first six months of the past fiscal year—March 31st to Sept. 30th have been less by $26,000,000, as compared to the previous six months, and the expenditure increased by $1,518,000.

The Paris hotel purchased for $3,000,000 and the Union Club in London, Eng., as well as the $20,000 voted for the Whips of the Liberal and Progressive parties, so that they might "see" the Wembley show, were regarded by the speaker as ridiculous expenditures.

"A vote for Hanna then is a vote for extravagance and a vote for dishonor", concluded the speaker.

General Ross Speaks

Brigadier General Ross, in touching on the Murdock charges said that he for one would have forgiven him if he had manfully admitted on the floor of the house that he had made a mistake and wished to right it.

Further exemplifying Dr. Manion's explanation of the foolish legislation of the Liberal government, he told of the expedition to Herschel Island for the murder trial of two ignorant Eskimos. On the boat which was to plough through the icy waters of the north was the Judge, a commissioned hangman and the gallows. Then when the party had arrived, a messenger was sent after them to order the stay of justice. (This story drew loud laughter.)

With nomination day less than a week distant, little interest has been shown in candidates at Chatham. Two of three retiring aldermen, W. Murdock and Stanley Thomson, have announced their intention of seeking re-election. Mrs. Sabina Watson, who was defeated in the aldermanic race last year, also intends to be a candidate.

Peddlars Ot Dope To Receive Lash

If Criminal Code Amendment Should Go Through

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 21—To flog or not to flog, created a thick fog of discussion in the legislature here, when Major Gus Lyons, a Conservative member for Victoria, presented a resolution calling for an amendment to the criminal code to authorize the lash as a penalty for convicted traffickers in narcotic drugs. Attorney-General Mason was the seconder and the motion was passed.

F. A. Brown Labor, Burnaby, considered that if flogging would alleviate the traffic in drugs, the traffic in strong drink could be alleviated by flogging the brewers.

"Do you believe in flogging women? the Burnaby member asked the mover of the resolution.

Major Lyons' answer was a vigorous negative.

"I won't be a party to any resolution that means the flogging of women," he said. "The resolution contains a clause providing that the applications of the lash penalty is in the discretion of the judge."

Mr. Browne said such a view was inconsistent. "I am heartily in sympathy with the spirit of the resolution," he declared, "but I do not favor the lash, and I don't believe discrimination should be shown as between the sexes. I think the honorable lady member for Vancouver will agree with me in that regard."

Would Flog Women

Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith endorsed the Burnaby member's supposition. "We can't make punishment too heavy for men, and women, too, who traffic in narcotic drugs," Mrs. Smith said. "Would you flog women?" The question was asked by P. P. Harrison Independent Liberal, Comox.

"Why not?" retorted the lady member. "I hold no brief for either sex. If a woman breaks the law she should get the same punishment as a male law-breaker."

Ibanez Unmasks King Of Spain

Charges Him With Guilt in 1921 Morocco Affair

Paris, Nov. 21—Vicente Blasco Ibanez's manifesto against King Alfonso of Spain, a pamphlet of 101 pages, published in France, Great Britain and the United States, today charges the King with being directly and personally responsible for the Spanish military disaster at Annual, in Morocco in 1921 in which General Silvestre and several thousand Spanish soldiers were killed and thousands of others made prisoner.

The noted Spanish author also charges King Alfonso with betraying the French by giving secret information to the Germans during the war.

Ibanez accuses Alfonso of having written General Silvestre a letter commanding the Moroccan army to "do as I say" and adding "Don't bother about the instructions of the Minister of War who is an imbecile."

General Silvestre advanced against the advice of Madrid, says Ibanez an was surrounded and his army annihilated.

Concerning the alleged betrayal of the French, Ibanez charges that King Alfonso, who has boasted of being a war situation with the French military attache, and afterward, when the French had discovered the secret of Germany's code, it was found that a German agent had reported verbatim everything that the French attache had said to the King.

The French attache subsequently gave the King a test, adds Ibanez, information which had no foundation, and this was found to have been transmitted within a few hours to Berlin by the German ambassador.

The title of Ibanez's book is "Alfonso Unmasked."

Conservative

lem. The French treaty was another distinct failure. We imported more goods with lower duties and a loss of revenue. The tariff laws were driving our young people to the most highly protected country in the world, the United States. No less than 182,000 people had left in search of work. As Hon. C. Stewart said it was the death knell of protection. The Liberal party's career was one of broken promises. They promised practically everything that anyone wanted. They said that they would prosecute profiteers through their Trust, Combine and Merger Act. Every profiteer was still in Canada the same as before, and there was not one prosecuted.

Then they promised economy—that they would give an economical government. Mr. Manion had seen the official financial statement for the first six months of the fiscal year—that is from 31st of March to the 30th of Sept. This report showed that the revenue was $26,000,000 less than it was for the previous year, but expenses were $1,518,000 more. One of these expenses was a trip to Wembley of the Liberal Whips when they voted themselves $20,000 for the expenses. All Conservatives, 52 in number except one voted against the trip. But the Liberals went and spent the money considerately and well and returned to tell the people what a fine time they had had on their money. Another unnecessary expense was the auditor whom they brought from Montreal, Geo Gauntier, and paid him $15,000 a year whereas before no auditor had ever received more than $6,000 a year.

"It was the Conservative party who gave women the right to vote. You would be endorsing free trade, and broken promises and driving your sons to expatriate themselves if you voted against Mr. Porter."

Senator Bennett

Senator Bennett, who has the enviable record of having represented the people of South Simcoe since 1882 then addressed the ladies.

He had thought it would be a nice quiet election, merely giving the people the chance to justify Mr. Porter's action, but here he found Mr. King all ready to slap Mr. Meighan on the wrist, on the last day when he will have the last word. Mr. Bennett didn't think that Mr. King had ever gotten over the shock of finding himself a leader. He believed he has to pinch himself to realize that he is drawing $19,000 a year. And what is he giving in return?

"There are Liberals" he said, "who will vote Conservative in this election because they are sick of the way the Government is mishandling affairs. I see by a poster that Charlie Hanna is not a Liberal candidate. He is the People's candidate. Somebody probably took him aside and said, 'Don't say you are a representative of King or a supporter of the Liberal party or you will surely fail'. You will remember that Andy Gump was the people's candidate also.

"Mr. Murdock, wants to be called dear old Jim. He has some staunch supporters. There is Mr. Gordon who is being fed on a promise of becoming a Cabinet Minister, and Mr. Marshall who is feeding at the crib also.

"What are some of the reason's given why Mr. Porter should not be re-elected? They say he has been in power too long. That is not his fault. The people gave him the nomination and voted for him. They wanted him, so it is their fault.

Not Human?

"He is a good citizen. He lost his son at the front, when he might have given him a safety-first position. I heard that in Trenton, Duncan Marshall made the remark that Mr. Porter wasn't a human man, and that one day when Charlie Hanna was walking up the street, five dogs were following him, so Hanna was a human man. Such pin head arguments! Such twaddle! Why wouldn't they follow a Liberal candidate? The Liberal Government was going to the dogs anyway. And they introduce such nonsence when there is a great issue to be discussed.

"Mr. Robb said to look at the trying position in which Mr. Murdock found himself. He withdrew the money at his wife's behest. Trying to blame his wife was an old story dating back to Adam. I can conceive of no man being so low as to try to blame his wife when he was at fault. Mr. Murdock, further put the money in his stenographer's name for one reason, that his own name might not appear on the Royal Bank books. Talk of hypocrites and humbugs! Barring Mr. King, Mr. Murdock is the champion humbug of this country. First he claimed one thing then another. What kind of decencies are we going to have? Are we to tell the boy that it is right to lie, that it is proper to deceive, in order to save money?

Brilliant Leader

"The conservatives have a leader of eminence and brilliant attainments, a man who is the soul of honour and integrity in spite of the malicious and cruel slander of the Globe to the contrary."

Senator Bennett went on to tell of German immigrants and other undesirables who come to this country, and closed with an appeal to the ladies to exercise their votes in favor of Mr. E. Guss Porter.

An effort is to be made to upset the conviction Magistrate Arnold at Chatham registered against Jungo Lee, Chinese manager of the Plaza Cafe, Windsor. He was found guilty, with Charlie Sing, on charges of violating the opium and narcotic laws. Both were fined $200 and costs and sentenced to six months' imprisonment. The sentence automatically necessitates deportation.

Maple Leafs Defeat Baby Shoes at Recreation Last Night

Only two games took place at the Recreation Alley last night, one in the ladies league and one in the junior league. In the former, the Maple Leafs beat the Baby Shoe by 197 pins. For the Maple Leafs, Miss A. Ethier was high and for the Baby Shoe Miss H. McDonald.

In the junior game between the National Castings and Hi-Li was one of the closest games ever played at the Recreation Alleys. Only two pins separated the two teams at the end of the 3 strings. For he National Castings J. Ethier was high 3 string with 622 and a high single of 240. For the Hi-Li, Fleming was best three-string with 567 with a high single of 290.

Figured in Historic Sod Turning

This antique looking wheelbarrow and spade do not appear capable of very hefty service now, but nearly half a century ago they carried the weight of a very important event — the ceremony marking the commencement of the construction of the Canada Central Railway through Pembroke, Ontario. Following the ceremony, the spade with which the first sod was turned and the wheel-barrow into which it was shovelled in the presence of a very enthusiastic crowd, were presented to Miss M. P. Moffat, daughter of the Reeve of the village, the lady who performed the ceremony of the naming of the road and christening it with a bottle of champagne. They recently passed into the hands of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which company took over the Canada Central lines in 1881, and will be added to a museum of relics connected with the early days of the railroad which is being formed in Montreal.

So much for the actual ceremony. The Pembroke "Observer" for September 3rd 1875 says: "The assembly then adjourned to a spacious booth that had been specially erected for the occasion, where champagne and beer had been provided for the purpose of drinking several toasts which had been previously agreed upon, by the committee; but a number of individuals, apparently more intent on drinking champagne than doing honor to any toasts, took possession of the tables, and the regular order of the programme had to be abandoned. The Pembroke Brass Band was present and performed some popular airs."

HOCKEY PICTORIAL A "MASTERPIECE"

The editor has received a copy of the Hockey Pictorial which has just been published, and which is at once the handsomest and most complete publication ever produced in the world for any single sport. It is a marvel of good taste in artistry and industry of achievement. It is impossible to speak too highly of it.

The book represents years of effort, typographically and pictorially, it is a "masterpiece." From cover to cover it is embellished with group pictures of championship teams from 1888 to 1924, in fact, the history of Canada's Great National Winter Sport is told in pictures.

Old-timers will be interested in the handsome halftones of the teams who were prominent a generation ago, while the younger enthusiasts will enjoy the reproductions of the more recent winners.

The book is not only lavishly illustrated, but is literally crammed with much interesting information regarding individuals, clubs and leagues throughout the country.

Local hockey fans will find a very interesting group picture of the Canadian Olympic Hockey Champions of 1924 on the front cover and also a complete history of the players and records right to the finals.

The book sells for $2.00, and can be secured by writing to the Hockey Pictorial, 84 Victoria St., Toronto.

GIVES HER IDEA OF A GOOD SPORT

At the Y.M.C.A. building last night the Hi-Y girls held a meeting and completed their organization for the season. After the business session, Miss Madeline Young gave an address, her subject being "A Good Sport." A good sport, she stated, plays the game well, plays the rules of the game, plays fair, plays for the game's sake, and does not dispute the umpire's decision even though she thinks it is wrong. A good sport is a good loser and is also proud of the efforts of her team to win. A good sport should also be a gracious winner and not any way reflect discredit upon the opponent. A good sport will extend all these rules into the class room and even into the real game of life. The address was both interesting and well thought out, creating a most favorable impression upon all who were present.

Whistles Defeated Them Handily at Association Alleys

Whistles left the Country Kids at the bottom of the heap last night at the end of their league fixture at the Associaton Alleys. Neither aggregation were in danger of shattering any records on the showing they made but the Whistles were able to produce the winning punch licking, the Country Kids. E. Rutherford with 583 was the leading scorer of the both teams with his 583.

CY. POOK INTENDS TO JUMP AMATEUR

St. Thomas, Nov. 21—The inability of boxing promoters to secure opponents for Cy Pook, amateur heavyweight champion, will force the favorite of Elgin County to enter the ranks of pro. fighters. Last minute efforts to secure opposition for Pook at the last regiment tourney, Thanksgiving Day, were unsuccessful, the field being apparently limited.

Pook was approached about the matter early in the season, and stated that he would turn "pro" just as quickly as he secured a big enough offer.

Pook's career has been watched with interest by hundreds of ring fans in Western Ontario. Beginning in the school of experience which every boy goes through in his life time, he later developed a liking for the padded gloves, and as a side line worked and trained without any particular tutor. Soon public attention was directed toward the comer, and under the colors of the Elgin Regiment, he entered the Dominion championship bouts at Winnipeg. There he won the light heavyweight title, but was put out of the running for the heavyweight honors.

MANY CROSSING SEA FOR CHRISTMAS

(Special to the Intelligencer)

Montreal, Nov. 21.—More people from Western Canada will spend Christmas and New Years in Great Britain this year than at any time since the war, according to R. C. Creelman, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways, Winnipeg, who was in Montreal on business yesterday already according to Mr. Creelman, sufficient applications have been received from the three prairie provinces to warrant the operating of at least two special trains, and as the last boat does not sail until a few days before Christmas, he is of the opinion that probably four special trains would be required to care for the large numbers of passengers who will make the Trans Atlantic trip during the holiday season. Mr. Creelman attributes this increase in ocean travel at Christmas to the fact that while the farmers have not grown as much grain during the past season, they are receiving better prices for their crops, and are in reality, better off than they were last year, with a record harvest. This explanation would seem to be logical as reports from the central region of the Canadian National.

The Minneapolis inventor of a tractor-operated soil tiller in which revolving knives cut and grind the earth claims that it does more work than three men can do with two tractors and five plows and harrows.

She Walked In On Her Own Wake

New York Women Fools Friends Who Identified Her

New York, Nov. 21.—Mrs. Margaret Sheridan, [illegible] years old, who interrupted mourners at her wake by marching into the undertaking rooms of Patrick Ahren, continued to inform her friends today she was "worth a thousand dead ones."

"They had me all nicely laid out," she told those who called to congratulate her at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Johnson, "but they couldn't keep a good woman down."

After an unidentified woman had been killed by an automobile, Patrick Sheridan, a son, and Mrs. Johnson visited the morgue and picked out the body as that of their mother because of a peculiar scar on the neck.

Ahearn who has known Mrs. Sheridan more than 20 years, also identified the body; other friends viewed the body and shook their heads mournfully. "It's Maggie," they said.

Twenty friends were gathered in Ahren's funeral parlors Friday night for the wake when Mrs. Sheridan opened the door.

"So you're burying me," she said to the speechless mourners. "And look at all the flowers! Ain't it too bad now I can't accommodate?"

After her friends had wept and laughed with her, Mrs. Sheridan explained she had heard of her death from a grandchild when she returned to her daughter's home after giving up a job as a restaurant cook.

COUPE TURNED OVER AT PINNACLE TRACK

A very quiet accident occurred at the corner of Victoria avenue and Pinnacle street, around midnight last night, when a coupe, engaged with a railroad track, was united with the street pavement wrong side up. The accident was unattended, no other cars being in the immediate vicinity.

As near as can be learned the driver of the coupe turned short when rounding the corner to go north on Pinnacle street.

The vehicle thereupon turned over on its side, throwing the occupants from their seats.

All of them escaped injury in spite of broken glass. They righted the machine and sped away within five minutes of the spill.

The Chatham city authorities have received a communication from the department of highways suggesting that the proposed stop traffic system, which must be delayed pending a discussion of the principle of the system at a conference in Toronto.

ADVERTISE IN THE INTELLIGENCER

Although she vehemently denied she was anything but white, declarations have been found in which her father and sister admitted, under oath, that they were colored.

Arthur Agar, a well-known Dover township farmer is in the public general hospital at Chatham suffering from serious injuries to his chest, sustained when he was thrown from his wagon as his run-away team made a quick turn from Victoria avenue to Grand avenue. He was unconscious when admitted to the hospital.

Some 70 photographs can be made in an hour with a German camera designed to copy printed matter, each being taken separately on a reel of sensitized paper and then cut off for development.

Showing Number of Canadians Leaving Canada For U.S.A.

Ottawa, Nov. 21.—In the seven months ending with October there has been an increase in the number of Canadians returning from the United States and a small decrease in the number of Canadians going there.

The number of the latter is still very heavy, however, and the department of immigration is not making public the figures. For the seven months ending with October 31 the total number entering Canada from the United States was 30,366. Of this total 25,385 were born in Canada, 3,026 were British subjects with Canadian domicile and 1,955 were naturalized Canadians.

While there was a decrease in general immigration to Canada for the past seven months, there was an increase for the twelve months of about six per cent.

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"And is that so distasteful?" he asked. Her face crimsoned, and her eyes drooped, and his smile grew broader. "Not distasteful, I should say," he murmured; "quite the reverse. Lady Grace, let me return you a compliment. You praised me for my power of acting; yours is a great deal higher! You wanted me to believe that the marquis idea was repugnant whereas——" he chuckled, smoothly.

Her face had grown crimson again, and she turned it from him for a moment, then faced him again.

"Well!" she said, "and if I do wish it, what then? Is it so unnatural? Are there many better matches, many better men than Cecil Neville?"

"Few, if any!" he assented, blandly. "He is young, handsome, popular, brave, and—a future marquis!" She picked at the moss in the crevice of the stone coping. "A very good match indeed, and Lady Grace is worthy of such a partner truly!"

"And you mean to do your best or your worst for the match?" she said swiftly.

He took out a cigarette.

"May I?" he asked, then lit it, and leaning on the railing, surveyed the beautiful scene as if he were quite absorbed in peaceful contemplation, and had quite forgotten his companion and the subject of their conversation. Then he turned his head, and smiled at her. "No," he said, slowly and softly, "I mean to do all I can to further the idea."

She started slightly and her lips parted in a faint sigh.

"You do! You—you mean to help me! and why?"

He was silent again, smoking with placid, serene enjoyment for a moment or two, then he replied:

"If I were to answer that I am prompted solely by a desire for your happiness——?"

She made a movement of impatience.

"You see!" he said, reproachfully. "You would not believe me; so what is the use? Suppose that we do not go into my motives. Let us, if it please you, decide that they are utterly selfish and bad, abandoned and wicked ones—will that do? Very well! After all, what do my motives matter? If I can help you, and I think I can, do not seek to go beyond the mere solid fact of my assistance. Leave the reasons alone. They can't matter much, can they?" and he looked into her eyes with the bland and innocent gaze of a child.

She moved restlessly.

"If I could trust you!" she said, uneasily.

"I thought I had already proved myself worthy of confidence," he said, simply; but there must have been some hidden significance in his words, for they brought the blood to Lady Grace's face and then left it pale and white to the lips.

"I—I——" she faltered.

"Oh, do not say anything of the past," he murmured soothingly. "Let us think of the present. We will speak plainly. It is the dear marquis' wish that you should marry Lord Cecil Neville; you being gratified by his choice and willing to fall in with his views, an old and tried friend offering his services to you do not hesitate to avail yourself of them: I am the old and tried friend."

The last words were more softly and cooingly spoken than any that had preceded them, but Lady Grace started up and looked at him suspiciously; he, however, met her scrutiny with his bland and innocent smile.

"If I really thought you would help me," she said doubtfully.

"You may think so, for I will," he answered. "As I said, never mind my motives—they concern only myself. And how goes the business? Has our dear friend Cecil—eh?"

She frowned slightly as if the question touched her self-love and vanity.

"Our dear friend does not at present seem much smitten by your humble servant's charms," she said, with a short laugh, which only barely hid her vexation.

He smiled and nodded.

"Our young friend is rather spoiled, you see. One cannot be the favored of the gods in the matter of youth, and strength, and features, without paying the usual penalty. Cecil is the most popular man in London. Believe me, there are twenty young ladies—I could give you their names"—and his lips curled—"who are, if not dying, living in love of him."

"I know," she said, with hardly restrained impatience. "Of course there has been a dead-set at him. That is very natural, is it not? But—but I don't think——"

"That the sultan has shown any partiality, that he has not yet thrown the handkerchief," he finished for her. "No," thoughtfully; "I don't think he has. His lordship has, indeed, been so very impartial not to say invulnerable, that I have sometimes wondered whether there was not some young lady hidden away, eh?" and he looked at her questioningly.

She started, and colored.

"Then there is?" he said at once.

"I—I don't know," she replied musingly. "There may be. Last night I dined away from the Towers, at the Thurltons, you know?"

"I know," he murmured pleasantly. "Thurlton's grandfather was transported for forgery; his wife's sister ran away with young Lengard. I remember."

"Of course, you know all about them every shameful secret in the family for generations back?" she said, with a sigh.

He laughed.

"I have such a dreadfully good memory, dear lady. Well, you dined there——"

"Yes; and coming home I passed down the High street, and saw Lord Cecil. He was standing at the door of a fly, opposite the theatre, talking to a lady, a girl."

He nodded and puffed at his cigarette placidly, with half-closed eyes, looking, indeed, almost asleep; but his next question proved that he was very much awake.

"Was she pretty, Lady Grace?"

"I only saw her for a moment. Yes," she admitted, reluctantly.

"You did not know her?"

She shook her head.

"No. She was not one of the daughters of any of the county people; besides, it was a fly. It was opposite the side entrance——"

"She was an actress," he interrupted quietly.

"How do you know?"

"My dear lady! It is so simple! The fly was the only one there, or you would not have seen her so plainly; it was at the side entrance; she was unknown to you. Oh, plainly it was an actress. And it was she who was with Lord Cecil this morning."

"Then you have seen her?" she exclaimed eagerly.

He shook his head.

"No," he said, "only heard her. I met our dear Cecil in the woods. As I approached, I heard two voices, though he of course, denied it. One was a woman's, and, though I am not in the habit of laying wagers with ladies—for they never pay when they lose—I would bet something considerable that the voice belonged to the young lady whom you saw talking to Lord Cecil outside the theatre last night!"

She bit her lip, and the look came into her eyes which indicates the first approach of the green-eyed monster—jealousy.

"Some worthless actress, painted and powdered. Some woman old enough to be his mother, though made up as a girl——"

He shook his head and laughed with serene enjoyment.

"No, no: such an experienced bird as Lord Cecil is not to be caught with such chaff, my dear lady! Depend upon it this girl is young and pretty."

She twisted her handkerchief in her hands, then smiled contemptuously.

"It must be the Juliet of last night!" she said.

"Perhaps."

"Well"—she drew a long breath—"I think I am a match for a common actress though she be young and pretty." and she raised her head and turned to him defiantly.

He looked at her with the calm eyes of a connoisseur.

"Yes, I should think so," he said blandly. "Certainly, I should think so. A match for half-a-dozen of them. Forgive me if I say that I don't think there is a more beautiful woman in England than Lady Grace Peyton or a charming one."

If your eyes are normal

You should be glad to learn the fact. If I say to you after an examination—"You do not need glasses"—it ought to please you greatly, because few people are so fortunate. But if I find that glasses would help you, you should be pleased to learn that fact also, so that steps can be taken to have the errors corrected.

Mr. John McGie who has had a position in Deloro for some time, is visiting at his home on Bridge St.

Mrs. P. G. MacTaggart and baby Elaine left on Tuesday with Mrs. W. G. Crerar to visit friends in Toronto.

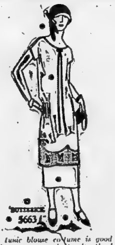
One of a series of social evenings given by the Knights of Columbus was held last night in their council room. A euchre contest occupied the first part of the evening. The winners of the ladies' prizes were Mrs. F. Allore and Mrs. J. Fahey, consolation prize, Mrs. J. Lafferty The gentlemen's prizes were won by Mr Frank Corrigan and Mr Frank Macauley, with Mr. Charles Dolan taking the consolation prize. Messrs. Phil Bennett nd Tom Bennett contributed a step dance which was followed by refreshments and dancing. A good crowd attended and all spent an enjoyable time.

WOMEN A BUNDLE OF NERVES

"Everything irritates me.—I am a bundle of nerves. I ache all over and cannot sleep and am so despondent." This extract from a letter written from one woman to another describes the condition of many women who suffer from feminine ailments. Nothing will relieve this distressing condition so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs. For fifty years it has been restoring sick and ailing women of the Dominion of Canada to health and strength.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



The tunic blouse costume is good for all women, even better for the business woman and best of all for the thrifty who need several frocks in one.

The new long tunic blouses are so smart and pretty that one is apt to lose sight of their practical virtues. If you face the lower part of your slip with material to match your coat, you have the makings of a complete daytime wardrobe. Suppose your material is chocolate-brown kasha and your coat lining a printed silk crepe with an amber ground. A simple blouse of the same crepe makes a suitable frock for general wear and a more elegant blouse of amber-colored silk crepe beaded or embroidered in dark brown, crystal and silver will take you to any wedding, luncheon or reception.

Oldest Company World Has Known

Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" on Road Since 1870

An old but ever welcome organization, the oldest theatrical attraction the world has ever known, known as the Stetson "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company, is announced to make its appearance in the Griffin Theatre, for matinee and evening performances, the matinee commencing immediately after school dismisses, on Tuesday, November 25th.

This is the first time in over a dozen years that the original Number One Company of the Stetson Enterprises has been seen in this city. It was born in the year 1870, making its first appearance on February 17th, of that year; many years before many of the present day generation were born. Since the date of its first appearance there has never been a day when it has not been appearing in some section of the English speaking world. Mr. Leon. W. Washburn, the present owner of the organization, is the manager who organized it and he is still the active pilot of the attraction. Mr. Washburn is one of the very few managers who have always born the reputation of presenting just what they advertise; and the mere fact that the Stetson Enterprises have been able to attract the public for fifty four years is proof conclusive that the public think they have always received an even run for their money.

Will the time ever come when "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will loose its power to charm the rising, as well as the present day generation? Judging from its present freshness its alluring power will be perennial. There is something in the skilful combination of the pathetic and humorous that never fails to fascinate and the story that it tells about the poor slaves appeals to the finest sensibilities of the soul. Such plays are better than sermons, they teach us lessons in thoughtfulness and charity and they impress on our minds the precips of the golden rule. Mrs. Stowe's book is one of the greatest works of modern literature, and the play, itself, is one of those simple masterpieces that can never die. If it does no more than keep alive the memories of one of the greatest iniquities that history deals with it will not have been written in vain.

Veteran Actor Is Fond Of His Work

Belle Theatre Star Tried to Retire; Couldn't Stand It

Frank Keenan of the all-star cast of "Women Who Give" playing at the Belle Theatre tonight, says:

"Work is the elixir of life. Not long ago I decided to retire. I settled down into a nice old carpet-slippered gentleman. All I did was read, smoke and sit on the veranda. It was a relaxation for awhile, but soon I began to feel out of sorts. I got crabbed, gradually my health began to fail. I wasn't enjoying life. Nothing seemed right. Then finally one day it dawned on me that what I needed was work. I had been sitting around just waiting to die. Getting back into the swing of the studio was like a new lease of life. Now I feel like a young man again."

Frank Keenan is undoubtedly one of the best-loved actors appearing before the public. Because of his remarkable portrayal of the Sheriff in Belasco's "The Girl of the Golden West" when it held the stage a few seasons back, his name has become familiar to all theatre-goers and now that he is appearing before the camera his legion of admirers has been greatly increased.

In "Women Who Give" Mr. Keenan enacts the role of a grouchy, old fish packer and needless to say he plays it to perfection.

Reginald Barker made "Women Who Give" for Metro-Louis B. Mayer presentation. It was adapted from Sarah P. McClean Greene's "Cape Cod Folks" by Bernard McConville and J. G. Hawks with scenario by A. P. Younger and photography by Percy Hilburn.

In addition to Frank Keenan, the members of the cast include Barbara Bedford, Renee Adoree, Robert Frazer Joseph Dowling, Margaret Seddon, Joan Standing and Victor Potel.

Clever Dialogue At Griffin Theatre

Vaudeville and Motion Pictures Make Good Bill

An interesting bill is presented to the patrons of Griffin's Theatre for the last half of the week. The Dolger Duo, offering an act of clever dialogue and humorous songs, well merited the excellent reception which they were given at the initial performances last evening.

The feature presentation entitled "The Tenth Woman" is a picture instruction as it is interesting, for it aims to bring out that in life, selfish interests must be submerged, and cooperaton and mutual understanding are to be sought for, that harmony may be preserved.

The story concerns a young Easterner, Barry Compton, who has recently gone West and taken up ranching. By good fortune, he is enabled to save the life of Whella Brookes, who had become discouraged at her failure in life's struggle and was attempting to end her life.

Meanwhile, in the East, Jimmy Breitard and his young wife, Ann Rose—the latter an old friend of Barry's—are finding the matrimonial path somewhat thorny, due to the selfish ideas of Ann Rose. Time goes on and a definite break comes when Barry on a trip East ,renews his friendship with Ann, who, becoming angered because her husband resents an all-night escapade with Barry, follows the latter to his Western ranch. Arriving ahead of Barry, she is none too well received by Whella Brookes, who, since her rescue by Barry, has remained at the ranch.

But given time to reflect, Ann Rose is made to realize the folly of her hasty action in leaving her husband and a reconciliation is finally brought about, and Barry, who has come to love Whella during her stay at the ranch makes her his wife after her second thrilling rescue by him from a runaway team of horses.

Sunlight—for your Washing Machine

A WASHING machine is made to wash your clothes without rubbing or boiling — and it succeeds just in proportion to the value of the soap you use.

Sunlight Soap dissolves quickly and completely in hot water and works up into an abundant suds. This is very necessary so that its rich cleansing ingredients may search through and through the meshes of the clothes and dissolve the dirt and soil spots. Then, when rinsing comes, all dirt and soapy matter runs entirely away, leaving your clothes sweet, fresh and snowy clean.

The pure lather of Sunlight Soap cleanses the clothes naturally, not chemically. The $5,000 Guarantee of Purity is stamped on every tablet of Sunlight Soap.

Pare half a cake of Sunlight into hot water in your machine and stir into generous suds. Put in the clothes and operate the machine—your clothes will be clean.

CHEESE BOARDS

Kingston, Nov. 21.—There were 243 boxes of cheese boarded on the Frontenac Cheese Board this afternoon. Sales were made at 15 3-4 cents. The board adjourned for the season.

CHICAGO MARKETS

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Although the wheat market, opened with something of downward tendency to-day prices soon rallied to above yesterday's finish. Offerings were readily absorbed and traders took notice of the fact that overnight sales to Europe were in excess of one million bushels. On the ther hand new export business this morning was said to be slow in developing. Initial prices which varied from unchanged figures to 5-8 cent. lower were followed by little further sag and then by gains all around. Corn lacked aggressive buying support. Assertions that hog feeding perations would be unprofitable had considerable bearish effect.

After open 1-2 to 1 cent lower market recovered somewhat but then declines again. Oats were easier, influenced by corn weakness, starting unchanged to 3-8 cent. lower, oats continued to average lower, Provision had downward tread in line with corn and hogs.

The Human Eye

Is a miracle of efficiency if normal. But the sad truth is that most eyes are abnormal to some extent. Abnormal eyes mean strained eyes, and strained eyes mean headaches and a dozen other troubles. Nothing but glasses can make abnormal eyes function normally. Give your eyes proper attention by having them examined here.

One of the most finished riding performances seen at the opening night of the horse show in the Coliseum, Toronto, was that of Miss Doris Batchelor, who had the mount of Mr. R. R. Grimshaw's "The Flirt," and sent him over the stiff course with the loss of but three points. Miss Batchelor is but 14 years old and only forsook her ponies for more stalwart mounts two years ago. Since that time she has annexed 14 cups, and at least two score ribbons for the excellence of her own riding and the showing of her mounts.

Here and There

During the past season the Canadian Pacific Railway used on all its lines approximately 6,500,000 ties, according to a report just issued. The woods used include British Columbia fir, hemlock, tamarac, jack pine, spruce, maple and birch.

Tourist traffic in New Brunswick during the past summer left nearly $3,000,000 in the province, an amount almost equal to the total provincial revenue, according to an estimate of the New Brunswick Tourist Association. Approximately 70,000 tourists visited the province.

One thousand British Columbia rose bushes are being shipped to Portland, Ore., "the Rose City." Portland, famous all over the continent [illegible] the varieties produced in British Columbia because they are the hardiest and best suited for growing in North America.

Silver production in Ontario for 1924 will not vary materially from that of 1923, judging by figures available for the first nine months of the year from the reports of several operating companies, though some increases will be shown. Production to date has amounted to about $19,500 a day.

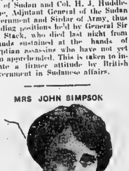
Caribou have been seen in very large numbers this season in the northern part of Yukon territory. Old-timers say that the main [illegible] must have numbered tens of thousands, while in some of the smaller herds that had broken temporarily from the main herd there were hundreds and sometimes thousands.

APPOINTMENTS FOLLOW SIRDAR'S DEATH

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 21—It was announced today that Wasey Sterry, legal secretary of the Sudan Government has been appointed acting Governor General of Sudan and Col. H. J. Huddlestone, Adjutant General of the Sudan Government and Sirdar of Army, thus dividing positions held by General Sir Lee Stack, who died last night from wounds sustained at the hands of Egyptian assassins who have not yet been apprehended. This is taken to indicate a firmer attitude by British Government in Sudanese affairs.

MRS JOHN SIMPSON



Do You Need Help? This Advice is Well Worth Reading!

Kirkton, Ont.—"I have found Doctor Pierce's Anuric Tablets to be an excellent medicine. I have been troubled with inflammation in the neck of my bladder for about eight years. I doctored but failed to get cured, so I decided to try Doctor Pierce's Anuric (anti-uric-acid) Tablets and they have relieved me greatly.

"I also can recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for expectant mothers. I have a fine, big baby boy. My nurse asked me what I ate to make him so strong. He looked like a child four or five months old when only three. I certainly would advise every prospective mother to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—Mrs. John Simpson, R.R. 1.

Send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont., for trial pkg. of any of Doctor Pierce's remedies and write Doctor Pierce, President Invalids Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for free, confidential medical advice.

The very first aerial stowaway ever known was discovered recently aboard a plane in the Laurentide Air Service, Limited, operating on its Rouyn gold fields service in association with the Canadian Pacific Railway. The serious effect of the extra weight on the flying powers of the machine was so noticeable that it led to the man's discovery. As he had hidden himself with a desire to see his sick wife and child, he was not punished.

The enormous contribution to the wealth of Canada made by the Canadian Pacific Railway was alluded to by E. W. Beatty, K.C., Chairman and President of the Company, when, speaking at Welland, Ont., on November 7th, at the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the building of the first Welland Canal, he stated that the company in 1923 dispersed in the Dominion $202,000,000 in wages and materials, and $7,000,000 in taxes of all kinds.

November 7th was the 39th anniversary of the driving of the last spike in the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, an event which completed the Dominion's first transcontinental railroad, fulfilled the terms of Confederation and made Canada a nation. A stone monument now marks the spot at Craigellachie, in the Rocky Mountains, where Lord Strathcona (then Sir Donald A. Smith) wielded the hammer which united East and West.

ACIDS MAKE KIDNEYS HURT

DRINK WATER FREELY AND OFTEN, AND IF BLADDER BOTHERS TAKE SALTS

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

SUGGESTING NAME FOR NEW CHURCH

Toronto, Nov. 21.—"Shall the Presbyterian Church that is to continue when the United Church of Canada is consummated be named "The Presbyterian Church of Scotland in Canada?" Such was the suggestion put forward at a largely attended meeting of the congregation of Chalmers Presbyterian Church, in the Royal Templars' Hall, Queen street east, by Dr. J. T. Fotheringham, C.M.G., in the course of an address in favor of continuing the Presbyterian Church in the Dominion of Canada. After the General Assembly had met and the church had been consummated, Dr. Fotheringham said, it might be found worthy of consideration to follow the example of the Church of England in Canada and call themselves the Church of Scotland in Canada. It was only a suggestion, the speaker said, and put forward as such.

ENGLAND ASKING PENNY POSTAGE

London, Nov. 21.—An insistent demand is being made for the restoration of penny postage in this country, and it is believed that the demand proceeds from an intelligent surmise that the postal revenue will now permit of such reduction and that the Postmaster-General, Sir William Mitchell-Thomson, accordingly will be quite agreeable thereto.

Four years ago, after a spell of the two-penny rate, the then Postmaster-General declared that it would cost £6,000,000 a year to go back to even a three-halfpence rate of postage, and it would cost £11,000,000 annually to resume the penny rate.

Since then, however, the telephone service has brightened considerably and the telegraph and cable service has also been conducted with commendable enterprise and resultant financial improvement, these services all being in the Postmaster-General's Department of the Government. Consequently the new Postmaster-General comes into office with an encouraging balance, which leads to the hope that the return of penny postage may come soon.

New Lamp Burns 94% Air

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. B. Johnson, 246 Craig St., W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Canada Book Week First of December

Aim is To Boost Works by Canadian Writers

"Canada Book Week" which is to commence December 1, will have as its aim not only the boosting of works by Canadian writers, but the encouragement of all worth-while reading, Mr. Justice E. Fabre Surveyer, president of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Authors' Association, informed members of the American Women's Club.

Even on the score of advertising, "Canada Book Week" could be justified, the speaker declared. Life was such to-day, he said, that people no longer blazed trails to find the man of merit hiding himself in the recesses of the forest. Advertising was the rule, for books as for automobiles.

Various means would be taken to help popularize book week, Mr. Justice Surveyr said. A speakers' committee had been appointed, also club, schools, radio and book sellers' committees. Those in charge of the work hoped to interest the Rotary, Kiwanis and other clubs in Book Week by having speakers address these organizations on its aim and scope. In the schools the desire was to stimulate reading among the pupils, the reading of Canadian books, if possible, but at any rate good, sound reading. No child could read too much, in the speaker's opinion, though he might be harmed through reading trash.

In addition to Mr. Justice Surveyer's talk there were two readings from Canadian authors by Miss Melle Hanson and poem recitations by Harwood Steele, young Canadian poet. The meeting was held in the Blue Room of the Windsor, with Mrs. Edward B. Luke presiding.

Margaret Pixleox, a 16-year-old Port Alma girl, who disappeared about a week ago, has been located, according to scant information which High Constable George Peters of Kent has received.

MUTINY OF TOWN CAUSES NO WORRY

Toronto, Nov. 21.—"It is the sworn duty of every officer to enforce the laws of the province, as well as the laws of the municipality by whom he is employed," stated Attorney-General Nickle yesterday, when his attention was drawn to the report that the Town Council of Sturgeon Falls had passed a resolution ordering the chief of police not to enforce the O.T.A.

"I had heard of the action of the council," stated Mr. Nickle. "All I can say is that one volunteer is worth at least three conscripts."

The Attorney-General indicated that he was not worrying over the action of the town, and was confident that the law would be enforced as usual.

Town council's action, of course, has no effect on the operations of the provincial police.

BOUGHT TAXI CAB TO CROSS BORDER

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 21.—Congressman Albert Johnson, of Washington stepped into a taxicab at Seattle and directed the driver to speed over the international boundary to Vancouver to make connection with a train for Montreal.

Canadian Customs officials refused to allow the cab to proceed without a bond, a procedure which would have required several hours. Having only an hour to make the train, thirty miles away, Johnson purchased the taxicab on the spot for $2,000. As owner of the machine, Congressman Johnson was free to proceed without the bond required from an occupant of a rented machine.

George Thurloy, who died in Windsor from burns sustained in a gasoline explosion, was a former well-known citizen of Woodstock, and engaged for some years in the grocery business. BARBERS BOYCOTT VALENTINO FILMS

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Because Rudolph Valentino has grown a beard, the convention of the Associated Master Barbers adopted a resolution that its members "be pledged not to attend a showing of his photoplays as long as he remains bewhiskered."

The resolution expressed the fear that the "male population of America is very likely to be guided by Valentino to the extent of making whiskers fashionable again," and that "such a fashion would not only work harmful injury to barbers but would so utterly deface America, as to make American citizens difficult to distinguish form Russians."

BUSINESS TURNS CORNER, PROSPERITY'S SUN RISES

Detroit, Nov. 19.—Business has turned the corner; hard times are over, and the sunshine of industrial activity is rising over the land. This is the concensus of opinion expressed to-day by half a score of Detroit's leading bankers, manufacturers and wholesale and retail merchants who were asked for their views on the general trade outlook.

Rome, Nov. 19.—Deputy Eugenio Chiesa and Signor Tamborini, member of the Florentine Legion volunteer militia, this morning fought a duel with swords. Deputy Chiesa was challenged by Tambourini in consequence of attacks by the former on the militia which were published by Voce Repubblicana. The duel continued fourteen rounds and neither was wounded. Doctors ordered a suspension of the conflict, despite Chiesa's protest. There was no reconciliation.

PREMIER KING FAILS WEST HASTINGS

HIDES DAMNING EVIDENCE UNDER COVER OF SPLENDID BUT FUTILE ORATORICAL FLOW

King Supposes Murdock Obtained Information From Cabinet and Then Condones Labor Minister's Conduct

SKIRTS DISCUSSION ON VITAL CHARGES

Creates New Issue to Make Laughing Stock of His Cabinet Ministers Who Have Preceded Him

Right Honorable MacKenzie King issued one of the most unfair political speeches ever delivered by a Prime Minister of Canada, at the Griffin Opera House in Belleville last evening. By the employment of brilliant oratory, Canada's first citizen deliberately skipped high over the most glaring evidence against James Murdock, his Minister of Labor, in an attempt to draw the attention of his hearers from those points which most certainly prove that James Murdock did wrong and knew he did wrong.

The Prime Minister's effort last night was one that would have brought a frown to the forehead of that great leader, whose favorite MacKenzie King once was, the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The late Sir Wilfrid above all else was a statesman. Forgetting for a moment the fact that he would never have sacrificed the good names of Parliament to vindicate a Minister of the Crown who had fallen from grace, and supposing that Sir Wilfred had been on the Griffin stage last night, this much is certain. The late leader of the Liberal Party would have been frank at least. The calibre of the man would not have permitted him to avoid purposely the most damning portions of the evidence against the Cabinet Minister.

MacKenzie King revealed to the electors of West Hastings who heard him last night a lack of that backbone common to soldierly men, fear of getting into grips with his opponent, which in part make him the weak Prime Minister he is.

* * *

Hundreds of men and women flocked to the Griffin Theatre to hear the Prime Minister's version of the serious charge laid against James Murdock. Before seven-thirty o'clock even standing room was at a premium and by eight o'clock three or four hundred had gathered in the armouries for the overflow meeting. All were eager to listen to what MacKenzie King had to say about the evidence entered against Murdock.

The speaker of the evening failed his audience.

Astonishing as it may seem to thoughtful folk of the riding who were not present, it remains a fact that Mr. King said not a single word on Mr. E. Guss Porter's charges proper, other than to repeat parrot-like what all other Murdock defenders have been saying, that G. N. Gordon tipped off the Minister to the condition of the Home Bank six days before it failed.

The Prime Minister made no attempt to explain why Murdock neglected to take advantage of this inside information until immediately after the Home Bank was discussed at the Cabinet meeting. He offered no comment on the fact that Murdock demanded ten dollar bills from the Home Bank cashier, when a marked cheque was suggested. Nor did he inform his hearers why Murdock felt it was necessary to conceal his transaction from the world by putting the money in the hand of his stenographer and having her deposit it in the Royal Bank under her own name. Evidently he felt there was no need to tell the crowd that Murdock was caught telling different stories when pressed to give some light on his conduct.

Mr. King touched but one point relating to the whole situation, that the deputy speaker, G. N. Gordon, had befriended the Labor Minister, and even in this, he saw to it that no mention was made of the fact that Gordon in turn did not divulge his source of information until the morning after the night that President Daly, of the Home Bank, died, when it was announced with triumph that it was the late Mr. Daly who was the benefactor to Murdock.

Among other results of the Prime Minister's speech was that of making a laughing stock of his cabinet ministers who have been doing the spade work up to the present in West Hastings. These men have caught at all sorts of issues in their wild scramble to defeat Mr. Porter at all costs. They accepted the real issue, that of Mr. Murdock's guilt. They took up the tariff. They played for a while with the proposal that the best man should be elected.

But Mr. King comes into the riding at the last minute and tells them they are all wrong. The real and only issue for West Hastings to decide, he intimates, is a moral issue true enough, but one which calls upon the electors of West Hastings to decide whether or not Parliament is dishonorable, leaving James Murdock as an individual and everything else out of the question.

His argument last night was along this line. Mr. Porter had made serious charges against James Murdock on the floor of the House. The Government in its wisdom could have ended the whole affair there and then. However, being fearful that such a move would create a bad impression in the country, it was decided to use a standing committee to take all the evidence to be offered on oath. This was done. Then the committee reported to the House in favor of Mr. Murdock and the House adopted the report by an overwhelming majority. Practically

FATHERS AND SONS LISTEN TO LEADERS

Both Premier King and Mr. Meighen Address Annual Gathering

NON-POLITICAL TALK

Discuss Greatness of Country and Parental Duties

Never before in the history of the local Y.M.C.A. have such notables attended a father and son banquet as those who were present at that annual function last evening. For a few minutes the large number of fathers and sons present were privileged to hear the Rt. Hon. A. Meighen, ex-Premier and Rt. Hon. M. L. King, Premier of Canada. Their remarks were brief but interesting. Both Hon. gentlemen were accorded a warm welcome.

The aspirations of youths should be to be a credit to their parents, was a statement made by Rt. Hon. A. Meighen, in speaking briefly. He was a firm believer in fathers and sons being kept close together and the father and sons movement had his deepest support. The young man was handicapped who did not have the counsel of his father, he said. It should be the desire and ambition of every father to be an example to help his children in future life, he thought. Every son should strive to be a credit to his parents as it counted for real achievement in life. It was the duty of parents to assist their children in leading a helpful life and devoting their time in doing things that would advance them in life. This desire on the part of parents was universal in the British nation and has resulted in much good being accomplished.

By carrying such service, success was assured. A young man was handicapped in life's struggles for attainments if he was not encouraged by those who should do so. It should be the desire of father and son to be a credit to one another. He hoped the father and son movement in Canada would prosper even more in the future than in the past.

Premier Speaks

Memories of Belleville were dear to him stated Rt. Hon. M. L. King, as his father spent some time in the city when a lad, and it was a pleasure to be a participant in such a remarkable gathering as a father and son banquet. The speaker referred to the influences of a father's life upon that of his children. Father and son should share mutual inspiration by being together. The Premier referred to his recent trip through the western part of Canada and grew eloquent in describing the country's natural resources. It was a country much larger than any European country excepting Russia and twelve times larger than the British Isles. The variety of our resources were not only great but rich. How few however are the people who inhabit this country when its area is considered, he said. In New Ontario, with its fertile land there was only one inhabitant to the square mile. To make our country greater, there should be an influx of the right kind of immigrants. From all parts of the world many had come here and had become Canadianized. It was an inspiring sight to see Canada grow. One verse of O Canada should be our national song, he said, and God Save the King a symbol of our life as Canadians and true British subjects.

Holloway Young People Please

In "Who's Who" Presented at City Hall Last Night

The young people of Holloway St. Church drew a well-filled house when they presented their play 'Who's Who' last night in the City Hall. The play which was a signal success was put on under the direction of Miss Jessie Tuite and much credit is due to her for the selection of the beautiful gowns worn, and the successful acting. Marjorie Hudgins as Constance Darcy and later as "Norah" was exceptionally good, but all performed their respective parts with considerable ability.

The plot concerns Ann Delevan and her daughter Mildred, who in an attempt to provide themselves with Paris gowns, run a tea shop. It is a failure though, until Constance Darcy comes to their aid. Cruger Blainwood played by Jack Andrews, as hero, helped to make the tea shop a success by bringing his aritocratic mother and sister to patronize it. Celeste, a French girl and Susan Ruggs are kept in the tea room in an attempt to give it a distinguished appearance. Susan, who is fond of talking about funerals who has her own epitaph written and who always opens a newspaper at the "Death's Column" provides much amusement.

Constance Darcy does some clever detective work in her role and exposes the villain, Ralph Hastings (William Woodley), by finding in his valise a stolen necklace and bonds.

The cast included, besides those mentioned, Muriel Hurst, Irene Woodley, Winifred Black, Gladys Parry, Arthur Herity, Charles Doolittle, Bessie Holsey, Theda Mott, Thelma Hicks, Beatrice Vanderwater and Leslie Woodley.

Miss Valera Wrightmeyer and Messrs. Arthur Herity and Jack Deacon contributed fine solos between acts.

PERAMBULATOR BAN BY CARDIFF POLICE

Cardiff police are prosecuting mothers who monopolize the pavements with perambulators.

Four women appeared at the police court, and were dismissed with a caution, and warned not to repeat the offence.

Ten prams, it was stated, were lined up together when the "raid" was made but six of the mothers escaped.

Born in the Tower of London, John Charles Pope, of Harefield, whose death was announced was the son of a beefeater, and the youngest of 17 children.

He used to recall the difficulty his mother had in getting so many children to bed.

At night she paraded them in single file and counted them off as they passed her!

CRUEL ATTACK MADE BY KING IN OLD QUEBEC

Mr. Meighen Bares Insidious Propaganda of Recent By-Election

SPLENDID MEETING

Speakers Sweep Trenton Crowds With Fairness Of Attack

In a seathing criticism of the King administration since having taken power, and a fair, clear and well received explanation of the Murdock charges, Hon. Arthur Meighen embellished past speeches made by him during the past few days in this riding and swept 3 audiences off their feet at Trenton last night.

Outlining King's policy in Quebec, where he has attempted to show that Mr. Meighen is against the French race and religion, the speaker told of King's recitation of Meighen's fiendish cruelty in sending their sons to the Great War.

Mr. Meighen was painted as the "Hangman of Quebec, whose every fingers are dripping with French Canadian blood". That was the policy which carried Quebec for the Liberals and which won the Rimouski bye-election recently.

King carried the Maritimes by giving back to them the old Intercolonial Railway, where everyone travels on a pass, on a railway which is losing money steadily.

In Western Canada lower tariff was trenched to suit the western Progressives and in industrial centres, secret assurances were given that the industries would not be injured.

"Time and again I have challenged them to definitely name any public or private speech I had ever made, which would justify them telling Quebec about my attitude," explained the ex-Premier. Ten per cent of the promises made by King had not been kept.

Has Faith

"I was born in Canada and intend to live in Canada," explained speaker. "I know of all our resources and I do not despair despite the debt and hopeless situation now existing."

In outlining the Murdock charges Mr. Meighen reminded that there were two courses to take in laying such charges. One was a definite, fair, reasonable and decent British way, the manner in which Mr. Porter had laid them. The other was an indefinite, cowardly way of writing a letter to the press vaguely telling of some cabinet minister doing something which he should not have done, but failing to state what his misconduct had been or specific dates on which it occurred.

In 1918, a Board of Commerce was appointed and Murdock with two other men was appointed to it. Murdock wrote a letter in a cowardly manner on that occasion scattering innuendos, stating that he was powerless to act owing to interference by Mr. Meighen who had armed him with "a wooden gun." This cowardly and vague propaganda he later used in his election campaign and was elected on the strength of it and was subsequently made Minister of Labor. That was the cowardly way of laying charges.

Again Mr. Meighen challenged Murdock to now appoint a Royal Commission to investigate and see whether or not he or any other member of the Government interfered with his functioning on the Board of Commerce.

Mr. Meighen made a strong finish on

TRENTON PORTER SUPPORTERS TOO MANY FOR TWO LARGE AUDITORIUMS LAST EVENING

Theatre, Committee Rooms Packed; Hundreds Hear Open Air Meeting

LIBERAL IS ARRESTED

Created Disturbance in Theatre; Mayor Fraser Also a Disturber

Liberal-Conservative meetings in this riding have been epochal in nature especially since Right Hon. Arthur Meighen came into West Hastings, but last night's meeting at Trenton was the most encouraging indication to E. Guss Porter, K.C. imaginable. Trenton too is going strong for the representative they have always supported since West Hastings has been West Hastings.

As early as six o'clock last evening, crowds began to stream into Weller's theatre and one hour before scheduled "zero" hour, the large playhouse was crowded to the rafters. It is estimated that fourteen hundred people were there. A competent orchestra held the attention of the people until William Ireland, M.P.P., the popular chairman opened the meeting long before schedule. There was a reason.

SAID AT TRENTON

"There is a steady swing of right thinking Liberals to the Conservative side of right in this election."—Mrs. Howard Fallis.

"Conductors of eight years seniority are breaking and engineers of longer standing are firing, while telegraphers are on the spare list and out of work, owing to King's low tariff policy. The country is not manufacturing products and the railways, not being busy, do not need men and are losing money each month at an appalling rate."—Senator Gideon Robertson.

"When you come down from the north, you bring a Porter majority with you which increases as you near Belleville."—Major Belford, M.P.P.

"Why did Murdock put the money in his stenographer's name? If he can satisfactorily answer that question, I'll do what I can for Hanna."—Major Belford, M.P.P.

"Is the Trenton fertilizer company closed?"—Mr. Meighen.
"It sure is."—a voice.

"I have nothing to say personally against Charles Hanna."—Both Mr. Meighen and Mr. Porter.

Nominations Take Place On Monday

Mayoralty Candidates Will Speak From Eleven To Twelve

Civic nomination will take place in the City Hall on Monday next and no doubt considerable interest will be attached to them. From the hour of 10 to 11 o'clock, Mayoralty candidates will be named and from 11 to 12 o'clock the candidates nominated will have an opportunity of expressing their views on matters on civic administration.

From 12 o'clock until 1 p.m., Aldermanic candidates and Public School Trustees will be named. It is probable that the majority of the present members will seek re-election, while no doubt new candidates will present themselves for Aldermanic honors.

THE WEATHER

Lower Lakes and Georgian Bay—Strong winds and moderate gales west and northwest showery. Sunday—Northwest winds and somewhat cooler.

KEEPING IT DIRTY

With the unparalleled interest manifest in the present by-election, at a time when West Hastings is stirred up as it never has been before, one is not surprised that here and there mean tactics develop. This has been most noticeable in the Daily Ontario.

But the most regrettable feature of these hectic days is the campaign of whispers conducted by some unprinciple supporters of Charles Hanna.

Just a sample:

One man met another on the street.

"Have you heard the latest," he said. And with all the attributes of the gossip, he spilled this:

"Porter says he doesn't give a damn if he doesn't get one Catholic vote."

The utter falsity of the remark, the absurdity of it, passes for nothing. The spurious allegation is passed from mouth to mouth until some fresh bit is manufactured by Hanna's supporters and is sent on its way.

GOVERNMENT AFRAID?

Is the government afraid of the railway vote in the city? This is the question which arises as a natural consequence of advance poll arrangements.

At all former elections, railwaymen were given the whole day in which to cast their votes, and were not required to go to the trouble of obtaining a certificate to vote from Judge Deroche. Announcements in this election are that railwaymen must first obtain a certificate personally from the senior Judge of the County at the court house between the hours of 7 and 9.30 o'clock in the evening. Friday, To-night and Monday night are the only evenings on which the certificates may be obtained and between the hours above specified.

The advance poll then is only open between the hours of 7 and 10 o'clock in the evening on Friday, Saturday and Monday, with the result that many railway men will be unable to vote because of their having to leave the city on their respective "runs".

TWO MAYORS

The spectacle of the Mayor taking part in a Liberal raid on a Conservative open air meeting in the streets of Trenton last evening is a sorry one. It speaks ill for the Liberal section of that community on the canal.

Contrast what took place in Trenton last night with what occurred in Belleville yesterday afternoon.

Mayor Mikel is a strong Conservative. There are few stronger. But when Premier King arrived in the city to take part in a fight against the Conservatives, Mayor Mikel went to the station and tendered an official welcome to the Prime Minister of the country.

Mayor Fraser of Trenton lost votes in his town for his party by his ungentlemanly conduct.

MERELY MISGUIDED

W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., of Trenton said last night that Belleville ladies were going to Trenton and asking ladies in that town to put their names in a book as Hanna's supporters.

The good ladies who have been doing this are not to blame in all probability. Women of Canada have not been in politics long. And it is only natural that a few of them lacking experience, should become the misguided creatures of unprincipled Liberal politicians.

Press Opinions

THE OLD WAY AND THE NEW

Kitchener Record

Children often wonder why they have to go to school and learn so many things that they'll never use directly in later life.

The answer is that the purpose is to develop the power to recognize, understand, analyze and value. That is the goal, rather than filling a brain with dates and facts like pouring gasoline into a motor car.

POWER OF THE PRESS

Financial Post

Canada's High Commissioner in London, Hon. P. C. Larkin, speaking to the Canadian Club in Toronto, paid a distinct tribute to the press. He had recounted his experiences in gaining the sympathy of the cabinet ministers in London, anent the embargo against cattle. "But there is a greater medium to affect public opinion than even a cabinet minister, and that is the press," he paused to stress.

SUBSTANTIAL CITIZENS

Omaha Bee

The farmer who owns his land or his tools is independent, because he works for himself, employing his own capital as well as his own labor. While this condition prevails in America, the Republic is in very slight danger of revolution, for citizens so substantial as these are not given to revolt. They may combine to effect changes, but they do not strike at the foundation of liberty.

EDUCATION'S PURPOSE

London Daily Herald

It does not matter how we sharpen a razor—whether on an expensive strop or on an old leather belt, or on the side of one's shoe. The great thing is to get a good edge on the razor. So it is equally immaterial what methods of education are used: the important matter is to put a keen edge on the mind. Every kind of study is permissable, excepting only the kind that dulls the pupil's intellect and deadens his imagination.

WISE, BUT TIRING

E. W. Howe's Monthly

About the wisest thing I have ever seen in print was written by Joseph Conrad: "Every sort of shouting is a transitory thing. It is the grim silence of facts that counts." But generally I do not admire Conrad as a writer. My objection to him is this: I bought a set of his books, having been impressed with the cheering of critics. I have not been able to read one of them entire. Somehow his tale-telling is not agreeable to me his manner of construing sentences tires me.

Fewer People On Market To-day

Eggs Advance to Sixty Cents Per Dozen

The inclement weather today had the effect of lessening the attendance upon the market. Prices for all produce offered for sale showed but slight changes over those of a week ago.

Fresh eggs are advancing in price selling at 60c a dozen. Basket lots brought 55c a dozen. The ruling prices for butter were 42c to 45c per pound.

Dressed fowls were quite plentiful especially chickens, the latter selling from $1.25 to $2.50 per pair. Ducks sold at $1.25 and $1.35 each. A few geese sold at $2.50 and $3 each.

There were no changes to note in the price of vegetables, excepting potatoes which sold at 75c and 80c a bag.

To-day's Smile

The new customer from the country, Giles by name, had given a fairly large order, and the courteous senior member of the firm was conducting him over the establishment. A desk telephone interested him particularly, for he had never seen one before.

"It is a great convenience," explained the senior partner. "I can communicate with all our departments without moving from my seat."

"My, that's wonderful!" said Giles. "May I try it?"

"Certainly."

The visitor had himself switched on to the packing room.

"Have the goods for Mr. Giles, of Murbury, been sent off yet?" he inquired.

Back came the answer:

"No; we haven't packed 'em yet. We're waiting for a telegram from his town; he looks like a slippery customer."

NO QUORUM

Owing to counter attractions in the city and the absence of some members from the city, a sufficient number of the members of the Board of Education could not be secured to get a quorum, hence no meeting was held. The members present were as follows: Messrs. G. T. Woodley, chairman; G. B. Smith; F. Potter; W. Harvey; A. McGie; W. H. Gilbert; F. H. Chesher; Mrs. Agnes McFee and Mrs. J. Boyes.

Over 50,000 Canadian families alone, now enjoy a Gerhard Heintzman Piano.

FIRE IN KITCHEN

At 4.35 yesterday afternoon, the fire brigade was summoned to Mr. James Griffin's residence on Grier street, to extinguish a blaze which threatened to destroy the building. A lighted torch in the hands of a plumber, who was examining a hole he had made in the wall to insert a pipe is alleged to have caused the blaze. The kitchen of the building was damaged to a considerable extent. The loss sustained is covered by insurance.

There is a style of Gerhard Heintzman Piano for every home.

Trenton

ton seat more people than the G.W.V.A. hall here. The rooms were filled. Then there was an overflow crowd on the highway in front of the Gilbert hotel corner numbered in hundreds—both audiences entreating to hear Mr. Meighen and other speakers. They heard them too, for each speaker went from one meeting to another until all had heard the message.

This was a strong sight for the "jealous minded" Grits, and while Senator Gideon Robertson was addressing the crowd in front of the Gilbert hotel, a small minority of the Trenton Grits, led by no less a personage than Mayor W. A. Fraser, appeared and heckled and shouted until Senator Robertson was advised to stop speaking.

The Senator had not intended mentioning the Murdock charges until someone asked him to delve into them. Then it was the Grits, not caring to hear the truth in the open air, introduced the first real mean and low election trick. Mayor Fraser came nearly being "punched" and his few followers chased river wards but Senator Robertson chose rather to "leave it to their ignorance".

Returning to Weller's Theatre he told the audience there, which was solid for Porter, about the experience. Later Mr. Ireland apologized on behalf of the town. He was surprised to hear of the Chief Magistrate being involved in such a small practice, but hoped that should the Liberals have an overflow meeting Monday when Premier King was there, that no Conservative would interrupt him or any of his speakers but give them the free speech which all should have. (This announcement brought the greatest cheers and applause of the evening).

Major Belford, M.P.P., who opened the meeting at Weller's was challenged once from the audience, the occurrence culminating in the arrest of a Trenton Liberal, Thomas Potts, cleaner and presser. In speaking of Murdock's attitude towards labor in 1910, Major Belford asked if there were railroaders in the audience.

"Yes," came a voice.

"Well how did he use you then."

"Fine," answered the man who was evidently a Hanna "plant."

"It is easier for you to say that in the audience than come up here with me on the stage and prove it. Come on up. Come on up here. I see you."

But the Liberal "flunked."

Then Potts who was standing near a box seat chirped in about his ability to tell Major Belford about the returned men. He invited himself to the platform, but was fighting mad when he reached the wings where he was lifted out of the theatre by the ever watchful Chief Constable William Bain, who hurried him over to the "cooler."

It grew very warm in the big theatre and just shortly after Mr. Meighen commenced to speak, there was a great rustle in the audience on the north side. Many hurriedly jumped up hundred turned in their seats—there was confusion—the speaker stopped.

"There has been no accident—just a misfortune," quietly announced the next Premier, "a man has fainted." The prostrate form was carried out a side exit, and the people settled back in their seats to hear with utmost stillness the gem speech of the evening.

Weller's stage was a bloom garden last night, thanks to the decorative ability of the Trenton Conservative women, and with brightly colored lights, made a real happy setting for the speakers.

A Trenton orchestra furnished music and three soloists greatly pleased the audience. Mrs. W. H. Gill sang "Rule Britannia," "Tell Me Dear Heart," and an election song which augured well for Mr. Porter's success and which brought down the house. Mrs. James Grant of Belleville also gave two songs in her usual finished manner, one being that cute number, "Icicle." Mr. George Cobbley also pleased with his rendition of "Boy of Mine."

Both Mr. Meighen and Mr. Porter were given a tremendous ovation when they came upon the stage. Cheers and applause ensued for five minutes. Then came three cheers and a tiger. When each speaker had concluded, the same was repeated.

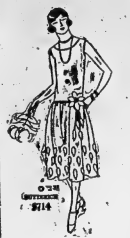
Deaths And Funerals

MRS. REV. E. O. SEYMOUR

After an illness of some weeks, Mrs. Evelyn Elmina Seymour, wife of the Rev. E. O. Seymour, passed away this morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Scantlebury, College Hill. Deceased who was in her 33rd year was born here and all her life was spent in this vicinity. Mrs. Seymour was a lady highly esteemed for her many womanly qualities and her passing will be deeply regretted by a large circle of friends. She was a member of the Methodist church. In addition to the husband a daughter, Marian survives, also the parents, and one brother and three sisters. The brother, Harry, resides here and the sisters are Mrs. L. B. Morrison, of Toronto, and Misses Helen and Marjory at home.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



Fortune-telling petals of pale magnolia pink are certain to give the answer "He loves me" to a frock of equally pale pink Georgette.

A slim little bodice, a full skirt scattered with petals and a great flower at the hip is the latest French version of the bouffant frock for the young girl. On dresses of Georgette and crepe de Chine the petals are made of changeable taffeta with the center of the flower of ribbon of a darker tone. All the shades of rose from the very palest tea-rose pink that is really a creamy flesh tone to the vivid velvet-like red of the Jack rose are very smart. The mauve, orchid and lilac shades comes next in popularity, the pale greens are adorable in Georgette, yellow is used a little and white a great deal.

DEATHS

SEYMOUR—Died on College Hill, Thurlow Township, on Saturday, Nov. 22, 1924, Evelyn Elmina Scantlebury, wife of Rev. E. O. Seymour, in her 33rd year.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her father, C. B. Scantlebury, College Hill, on Tuesday, 25th inst. at 3 o'clock. Service in the home at 2.30 p.m. Interment Belleville Cemetery.

Mothers!
Why go around feeling tired, played out, with aches and pains all over and with a mother's troubles of every woman today? You are just shortening your life by doing it. Make it your business to come in and have me examine your spine. Nine chances out of ten the trouble is there. We all have to take time to die, then take time to have health and happiness while you are living.

I can sincerely say that my own mother would have never been here to enjoy the privileges of to-day, had it not been for these treatments. In fact that is why I am practising.

Don't put it off until to-morrow, come in and have a consultation.

"Eczema All Over Arms Suffered for 12 Years"

Mrs. Murray Hough, Wiarton, Ont., writes:

"I had eczema for twelve years. Every once in a while it would break out and spread all over my arms. I tried all kinds of treatments to relieve it, but without success. One Spring it broke out and nothing gave me relief, even the salve I got from the doctor did no good. At last I tried Dr. Chase's Ointment and it healed the eczema in a short time. That is over a year ago, and I have had no return of the trouble."

Letters to Editor

FROM A SOLDIER

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—In one of the local papers we have read a great lot of news as to what the Liberal candidate did for the returned men during the last two years of the war.

Now, as the war broke out in 1914 and the candidate was only 30 years of age, why did he not go, if he had only done as one of his greatest supporters did who went with the 2nd Battalion from Belleville, went into battle at Ypres and when the shells and poison gas was coming over started running and never stopped till he got back to Canada. If he had instead of being plain Charlie, he might have been Major, Colonel or even General.

The soldiers' wives must remember that if there had been a few more thousand like the candidate and his friends, they might be widows now.

I myself was 40 years of age and went over and had to go back to the front each time for three times after being wounded, as I was only a private.

There are thousands of good Canadian returned soldiers who would like to have had a bomb proof job, such as Charlie had and then they would have cultivated as good a smile as he has, if they could have pulled the wool over the public eyes as he has done.

The returned men, his wife and their friends, and the widows, ought to remember that the Conservative member's son is still overseas where he gave his life.

I notice that Conservative electors have got the name of being fools for the last 22 or 23 years, and are now wise and are going to vote for the Liberal candidate, but I think that there will be a large majority who will say that they prefer to remain foolish, if it is wisdom to vote for the present Government.

Hoping I have not taken too much space of your valuable paper.

EX-PTE. 2ND BN. C. E. F.

AN INDIVIDUAL'S VIEW

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir,—I sincerely hope no Conservative man or woman will allow themselves to be stampeded away from the real issue in this coming election. The real issue is not Porter or Hanna, neither is it the Murdock charges, as serious as they may be, but the real question is, are we going to have adequate protection or sell ourselves to the Yanks by pulling down the wall piece by piece, bit by bit. As an illustration let me draw the attention of our people to how our fruit growers and gardeners suffer for want of protection.

In the spring and early summer the Americans find a ready market in Canada for their early fruit and vegetables their stuff ripens full three weeks sometimes four weeks sooner than ours and they ship strawberries in here by the carload and sell them for 25 to 40 cents per box, reaping enormous profits. Our people in consequence get fed up on berries to a certain extent before our berries ripen and become more or less indifferent to them. Take early cabbage and potatoes the same, and other fruits and vegetables of all kinds. Is this fair to our gardners and fruit growers? Ought we not to make our people wait for our own fruit and vegetables and thereby keep many thousands of dollars in our own hands. In other words save it instead of throwing it at the Yanks and in reality getting almost no value for it as their early stuff is miserable, insipid, soft, mushy stuff in comparison to our luscious firm produce. Compare our big luscious berries and our big hard heads of cabbages with theirs and then you will realize that you are getting many, many times the value for your money by waiting a few weeks for ours. For the Government to protect us in this respect would not entail a particle of hardship to anyone and Oh, what a difference it would make to our finances collectively and individually.

Now, in conclusion, my Conservative brothers and sisters, if you vote Liberal this election, you vote for free trade against that enormously wealthy nation across the line and you vote to deplete our rapidly depleting treasury and our individual pocketbooks. Why do the Yanks prosper so? Simply because they have the good sense to look out for "Number One", and we apparently do not; when under Liberal rule, anyway. Don't you remember how Sir Wilfred Laurier tried to give us away bag and baggage, body and breeches to the Yanks in 1911.

Charlie Hanna—we all like Charlie, he is one of the nicest, and there is no doubt in my mind that had Charlie waited just one more year he could have had the Conservative nomination, instead of selling himself to the opposite party and becoming their goat. What a pity! In conclusion let me in a few words draw comparisons between the two party leaders and show the different calibre of the men. The Liberal leader at the last election was afraid to run in his own constituency and hunted around for a soft spot in another good strong Liberal riding where he was sure of election.

The Conservative leader, like the game bonny little fighter he is, went out West to his own riding right into the heart of the Progressive party and bearded the lion in his den, knowing that defeat was inevitable and went down to a glorious defeat like a patriot and a MAN. Now, my Conservative brothers and sisters, are you going to turn your back on this game little man who not only is a man to the core but who also has the brains of the Canadian Parliament.

Yours respectfully,

THE COOK MEDICINE CO.

Toronto (formerly Windsor)

ABLE TO DO HOUSEWORK NOW

Sick a Year. Got Great Benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomington, N. S.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and backache, also for nervousness, sick headaches and sleeplessness. I was troubled in this way for over a year, and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to take it. I must say I have received great benefit from it and am able to do my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound myself and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonal."—Mrs. WILLIAM MORSE, Bloomington, Annapolis County, N. S.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Mrs. Morse is simply another case of a woman receiving "great benefit." Women suffering from the troubles so common to their sex should listen to what other women say who have experienced the same sufferings and found relief. Give this dependable medicine a chance—and at once. It is sold at all drug stores. C

Constipated Children

Constipation is one of the most common ailments of childhood and the child suffering from it positively cannot thrive. To keep the little one well the bowels must be kept regular and the stomach sweet. To do this nothing can equal Baby's Own Tablets. They are a mild but thorough laxative; are pleasant to take and can be given to the newborn babe with perfect safety. Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones but Baby's Own Tablets. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OWNER WAS PROUD OF HIS NEW CAR

In a side turning in the City of London a number of vehicles were held up by a solitary motor car. At last one of the drivers went forward to investigate.

He found the car (a new one) empty, and came upon the owner seated on the kerb on the further side, peacefully scraping some mud off one of the back wheels with a pair of nail scissors.

Free to Asthma and Hay Fever Sufferers

Free Trial of Method That Anyone Can Use Without Discomfort or Loss of Time.

We have a method for the control of Asthma, and we want you to try it at our expense. No matter whether your case is of long standing or recent development, whether it is present as Chronic Asthma or Hay Fever, you should send for a free Trial of our method. No matter in what climate you live, no matter what your age or occupation, if you are troubled with Asthma or Hay Fever, our method should relieve you promptly.

We especially want to send it to those apparently hopeless cases, where all forms of inhalers, douches, opium preparations, fumes, "patent smokes," etc., have failed. TIGERS AND QUEENS FIGHT IT OUT TO-DAY, BIG CROWD EXPECTED; PRINTERS TAKE ANOTHER

All Seats Sold For To-day's Game

Tigers and Queens are After Ontario Championship

Toronto, Nov. 22.—Everything is in readiness for the big Tiger-Queen's game to-day. Hamilton reports all they had were disposed of, and Queen's sends along the same word.

Reports from the two camps yesterday strengthened the Tiger support and lessened that of Queen's George Tuck will be ready to start at inside wing. Definitely it is learned that "Red" McKelvy will not play for Queen's. Airth will replace him at middle wing. The loss of McKelvey will hurt Queen's chances, even though Airth may be a high-class substitute. Main will be unable to start for Tigers at outside wing, though Awrey had never figured he would be available anyhow, as his knee is badly injured.

From Hamilton it is said Tigers will adopt the policy of "Keep the ball away from Leadley and Batstone." By that they mean to kick out of touch whenever possible. However, also it is learned they will shorten up on kicks also to give their wings every opportunity to get down and be at wait to bring down the ball carrier. If Awrey has devised a system of keeping "Bud" Thompson from getting down the field, as he usually does, then the Tiger backfielders might have some success in getting away on runs. For this boy Quinn can run once in his stride.

PLAN TO BANQUET TEMPERANCE FOLK

The regular monthly meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon, when plans for a banquet to be given the Temperance workers, were made. The holding of a rummage sale was also discussed. It was decided to hold the banquet on December 4th and the rummage sale in the near future.

Mrs. Pearsa[illegible] occupied the chair in a capable manner. Mrs. Duff sang a delightful solo and Miss Reeves gave a reading.

Mrs. Malott read the Bible lesson. Mrs. Baker reported on her department of scientific temperance and advised the organizing of competition in the schools for the writing of essays on temperance. A sum of money was voted for this purpose and Mrs. Baker was given authority to proceed. Mrs Farley reported on the mothers' meetings, and her work was warmly commended by the society.

FRUIT TREATMENT FOR CONSTIPATION

Quick and Permanent Relief By Taking "Fruit-a-tives"

What a glorious feeling it is to be well! What a relief to be free of cathartics, salts, laxatives and purgatives that merely aggravate constipation and are so unpleasant to take and so weakening in their effect!

What a satisfaction to know that the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes will absolutely and permanently relieve constipation. By a certain process, the juices of these fruits can be concentrated and combined with tonics—and it is these intensified fruit juices that correct constipation, relieve headaches and biliousness, and make you well and keep you well.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold everywhere at 25c. and 50c. a box—or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

Desert Story is Coming to Belle

Actors Had Unique Experiences in Producing the Picture

Desert heat, thunder storms and roadless canyons confronted 200 members of a Paramount motion picture company as they left Flagstaff, Arizona, for Lee's Ferry, Southern Utah.

The caravan faced hardships of the pioneers they imitate to secure authentic locations and local color for Zane Grey's "The Heritage of the Desert," which will be the feature at the Belle theatre on Mon., Tues. and Wed. next.

Canyon roads obliterated by recent thunder storms were repaired as the party advanced. Motion picture players, road engineers, packers and a tribe of Navajo Indians were included in the train, the trip to location taking a week.

Lee's Ferry is at the head waters of the Colorado, an inspiring desert location described by Zane Grey in his well-known novel. The story deals with the primitive warfare between God-fearing pioneers and the bad men of the desert for the possession of water rights. To-day the same fight has been changed to a legal conflict affecting national life.

"The Heritage of the Desert" is the third Zane Grey story to be pictuized by Paramount. Irvin Willat was the director while featured in the cast are Bebe Daniels, Ernest Torrence, Noah Beery and Lloyd Hughes. Albert Shelby Le Vino made the adaptation.

Being 150 miles from civilization, the party was forced to live primitively. Camp was moved nearly every night and the caravan had all the characteristics of an original "covered wagon" expedition. Part of the journey was along a 62-inch road built on the sheer face of a narrow canyon. A motion picture actor's life is not all it's cracked up to be.

COW'S JOURNEY SEEKING CALF

A cow purchased at Northampton Cattle Market had its calf taken from it before it was removed to Holcot, 10 miles away. The next day it was found at the market gates. It had escaped from a field remote from the road and wandered 10 miles in search of the calf.

Put Scrub Bull On Mock Trial

Interesting Stunt Pulled Off by Waynesboro Farmers In States

The mock trial of a scrub bull recently at Waynesboro, Pa., drew an audience of more than a thousand persons. The Advertising Club of the Chamber of Commerce, the Franklin County Farm Bureau and the County Agricultural Agent had charge of arrangements. The trial was conducted according to an outline given by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Local legal talent made the court proceedings realistic. The Sheriff and his force of deputies "arrested" the bull and otherwise aided in conducting court order. For the convenience of busy farmers the trial was held at 7 o'clock in the evening. The merchants of Waynesboro held a "dollar day," which was widely advertised, with the scrub-bull trial as an auxiliary attraction. Twenty-five hundred card invitations were mailed and 500 posters advertised the event.

The trial took place on an electric-lighted platform in the ball park. Band music added to the entertainment, and the services of the Boy Scouts were enlisted to handle the traffic. A dairy cattle specialist from the Department of Agriculture acted as expert witness for the prosecution.

A jury of twelve men rendered a verdict of gilty after hearing the evidence laid before the court of bovine justice. The prosecution showed the detrimental effect which scrub bulls have on the dairy industry. It then described the prosperity and other benefits brought by pure-bred bulls, and pleaded forcefully for conviction.

The defense consisted largely of oratory, aided by music and poetry, as vain resorts to save the prisoner from doom. One witness for the defense failed to impress the jury when he testified that the scrub bull was a great labor-saving device, in that the daughters of such a sire gave less milk, required fewer pails and cons, and were more quickly milked.

Chance To Renew Childhood Days

When Uncle Tom's Cabin Comes to City on Tuesday

We can all of us remember, with childish glee, how we used to delight, in our younger days, at the announcement of the coming of Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company. The opportunity to turn back the pages of time is here, become kiddies once more, go and see the original "Tom" show, the favorite of over half a century ago, which is announced to appear in the Griffin Theatre, for matinee and evening performances, the matinee commencing immediately after school dismsses, on Tuesday, November 25th.

This is the organization which is owned by Leon W. Washburn, known and revered by those who know him as the "Dean of American Showmen," which has been constantly touring the country since the year 1870, and, today it is conceded to be the oldest touring dramatic company on this continent. Many of the present day generation can go back to childhood's time and have none but pleasant recollections of this company; here is a chance to renew old acquaintances, the first you have had for many years, you may never have another go. During the fifty-four years that this organization has been on the road it has been under the same management, who, on account of square dealing with the public, making good every promise and delivering the goods just as represented, has built up an enviable reputation. For many years it has been the recognized leader of all "Tom" shows, the performance always having been maintained at a high standard of artistic excellence. This, combined with the introduction of several refined vaudeville stunts, thoroughly in keeping with the drama, goes far towards making a pleasant evening's entertainment.

The scenic equipment is large enough to fill the most spacious stage; it could not easily be improved on. Those representing the Ohio river in winter, the St. Clair plantation, the New Orleans Leeve and the concluding setting The Celestial City, are all most notable works of the scene painters art.

WHITING BITING AT WORTHING PIER

A shoal of whiting paid a surprise visit to Worthing.

Anglers on the pier had scarcely had a bite until about 4.30.

Then for about two hours the fish were landed as quickly as the anglers could bait and throw their lines.

Some anglers landed two and three at a time, and catches of 50 to 60 were made while the bait held out.

FAILED TO DO IT JUSTICE

Despite the efforts of song writers to sing the glories of California, they have failed in giving an adequate description of this land of remarkable loveliness. It is a land of perpetual summer, of romance and beauty, of rest and play. Cool inviting mountains, sun-steeped slopes and vales, balmy breezes carrying the tang of growing fruit, bring the glow of health to the cheeks of the ailing. The world-weary find rejuvenation on the sunny bathing beaches, in motoring, riding, bowling, dancing, tennis or golf, while deep sea fishing, surf-riding or aqua-planing keep the more active entertained.

There are two splendid routes to California, the first via Chicago reached by the famous "International Limited" of the Canadian National Railways, also by late evening daily connection observation sleeper from Toronto. The "International Limited" is of course a daily train and offers a service unexcelled for speed, comfort and convenience. At Chicago connection is made with all the crack trains for the South and Southwest.

The other route is by the "Continental Limited" leaving Montreal daily and "The National" from Toronto daily via Vancouver and Victoria. This "All Canadian" route is very popular with the regular tourists to California. It takes you through the world famous Jasper National Park and Mount Robson Park and the white mantled mountains are beautiful description. At Vancouver connection is made with Rail and Steamship lines serving all destinations in in California.

Any Agent of the Canadian National Railways will gladly give you literature, complete information or make through reservations for either route.

DOG STOWAWAY ON AEROPLANE

A French aviation company was summoned at Croydon Police Court for permitting a dog to be landed from an aeroplane at Croydon without an import license.

Mr Martin Page for the company, called evidence to show that nothing was known of the animal being on board the aeroplane. It was not "declared" by the passenger before embarking, nor did he pay for its passage.

It was apparently carried in the passenger's coat pocket and taken out soon after landing. The hearing was adjourned.

Sinical Sadie Says

AN OLD TOAST BROUGHT UP TO DATE

Here's to E. Guss Porter,—
The HONORABLE E Guss Porter!
And he that will his health deny,
Down among the dead men let him lie.

A merciful Providence fashioned Murdock hollow,
On purpose that he might his principles swallow.

THE PEOPLE'S CANDIDATE

It was a case of "Hobson's Choice—Take That or None."

For what was James Murdock profited if he saved his $4,000 and lost his honor and the respect of his colleagues?

A SONG

(By Charlie Hanna)

A charge to keep I have—
Murdock to glorify:
The Liberal party to sustain,
And learn to speechify.

The more I see of the other party the more I love my own.

"Murdock did what was proper and right and natural under the circumstances."
"Who says so?" ....
"Murdock!"

Every man has his gift, and Hanna's seems to be that of the Chameleon.

MURDOCK GUILTY!

'Tis true, 'tis pity,
And pity 'tis, 'tis true.

West Hastings, was honored when E. Guss Porter made them a jury to sit in judgment on James Murdock.

What do you think?
There's a fellow
Called Hanna,
Wants
Porter's job!
Don't know
Who he is,
But he has
Lots of Nerve.
He says
A Cabinet Minister,
IF HE BE A LIBERAL,
Can violate his Oath of office
And do things
Dishonorable!
He says Murdock did
What you or I would do,
But neglects to add
That you and I are not Cabinet Ministers,
Under oath of office!
He says Murdock did
What you and I
Would NOT do,
When he gave back
The money.
Again he forgets to tell
WHY Murdock gave back
The money.
Hanna and Murdock
Do not tell
Their "follow-afters"
That Murdock received
Letters from the Liquidator of the Bank,
Demanding the return
Of that Money!!
Charlie E.
Hanna he
Would have returned
The money under the Same circumstances.
And so would
We all!!

This Lassie Has Her Colds "Rubbed Away"

The mother of this attractive little girl, Mrs. E. E. Emmans, of 215 Seventh Ave., N. E., Portage La Prairie, Man., is one of the many Canadian mothers who are enthusiastic about the vaporizing salve, Vicks VapoRub, for treating children's colds. Mrs. Emmans writes: "My little girl had croup at night pretty badly and Vicks did her a lot of good. I have also used it with very satisfactory results for head and chest colds."

Vicks is just "rubbed on" for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup or deep chest colds. When so applied, Vicks has a double direct action: internally medicated vapors are inhaled while, at the same time, externally, it is absorbed through and stimulates the skin.

"Surely a man is either drunk or he is not drunk?" asked the Sheriff at Ayr. He received the reply.

"There are four clearly defind stages or states of drunkenness: the jocose, the bellicose, the lachrymose, and the comatose."

Answers to Correspondents

M.P.—The irritation you describe may be a nervous disorder, and if so, any building up of the health will tend to do away with your trouble. We do not pretend to do any diagnosing in this column.

M.E.G.—You brought your bulbs out to the light too soon. The best thing to do now is to cover the pot with a dark paper funnel with a tiny hole at the top which will admit a small ray of light. The bud will grow quickly in its effort to reach the light.

T.M.—If you will send me your name and street address, I can attend to the matter for you. Your kinds words anent the Page are appreciated. It is not necessary to apologize, as this column was created for just such questions. The quotation mentioned is by Robert Browning in his "Epilogue to Asolando" and I am repeating it for you:

"One who never turned his back, but marched breast forward,
Never doubted clouds would break,
Never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong would triumph,
Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better, sleep to wake."

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

She took no notice of the compliment; to her ears there rang a tone of mockery behind the smooth phrases.

"What—what is to be done? What do you advise?" she asked, after a moment's pause, and with an affected indifference, which made him smile.

He puffed a thin line of smoke from his sleek lips and watched it with half-closed eyes.

"Nothing," he said.

"Nothing?" she repeated.

"No," he said. "Nothing, so far as you are concerned. Just go on being beautiful and charming—as you cannot help being—and leave it to me to do the rest. If this is not a serious business if his lordship is really only scratched, why ——." He laughed lazily. "If, on the contrary, he is badly hit, and means business, means to make her the future Marchioness of Stoyle, why we must deal with the young lady herself."

"Deal with her?" she asked, with an eager interest she did not attempt to conceal.

He nodded at the scenery.

"Yes. There are two ways of going to work, each suited to the subject we are speaking on. Money and moral suasion. It may be money in this case. If so———"

"I am rich," she said, in a quiet undertone. "If the creature requires to be bought; if———"

"You will do it? Exactly. But the moral suasion?"

"I will leave to you, who have so much of it," she said, with a half-sneer.

He laughed softly.

"So they all say, dear lady, but, alas, I am so tender-hearted that I can never bring myself to use it. I am all heart, all heart!" and he laid his hand on the spot in which the organ is situated, and beamed at her. Then, without moving a muscle, he went on: "And so, dear Lady Grace, we had the poor children to an evening party, and gave them tea and buns and I am sure you would have been melted to tears at the sight of their overbrimming happiness."

Lady Grace looked round in astonishment and saw that Lord Cecil had stepped from one of the windows. Spencer Churchill's quick ear had heard him, and hence the swift change in the topic of conversation.

"Mr. Churchill begging again, Lady Grace?" said Lord Cecil. "Beware of him; he never comes near you without an attempt on your purse. What's it for now, Spencer; the 'Indigent Washerwomen,' or the 'Chimney Sweeps' Orphans?' He's chairman or secretary of half-a-dozen charities—aren't you, Spencer?—and he won't let you rest until you've put yourself down for lady patroness for half of 'em!" and he laughed the short, frank laugh which was so refreshing a contrast to Spencer Churchill's oily one, that Lady Grace felt as if it washed the other away.

"It's the Indigent Basketmakers' Children,' my dear Cecil," said Spencer Churchill, smoothly. "Dear Lady Grace has consented to become one of our patronesses, have you not, Lady Grace?"

"Oh, yes," she said indifferently; "and now having hooked me, I'll leave you to go for Lord Cecil," and with a nod and a smile to the latter she turned and entered the house.

Spencer Churchill looked after her with a rapt gaze of benevolent admiration.

"What a beautiful creature!" he murmured softly; "and as good as she is beautiful!"

"Eh?" said Cecil, seating himself on the balcony, lighting an immense cigar and offering his case to Spencer Churchill, who shrank back and put up his hands with a gesture of alarm.

"I never smoke anything so—er—huge and strong. But is she not as good as she is beautiful, now?"

"She is beautiful, certainly," said Lord Cecil carelessly; "as to her goodness, why, yes, I suppose she is good enough. All women are good, especially pretty ones."

"I—see," murmured Churchill, with his head on one side; "you'd say that—er—there was a faint sign of, shall we say, temper in dear Lady Grace? Well perhaps—but—oh, really you must be mistaken, my dear Cecil; so charming a creature!"

"Why I didn't accuse her of temper!" said Lord Cecil with some astonishment and an amused laugh; "it was you yourself!"

"No, really? Did I? I'm sure I had no such intention. But I see you think—eh?—perhaps a little inclined to jealousy? Well, there may be a touch of that in her composition, now you speak of it."

Lrd Cecil stared at him with a half-amused smile.

"Terrible thing, jealousy, Cecil! My poor father—I don't think you knew him?"

Lord Cecil shook his head, as he thought. "And no one else that I ever heard of!"

"My poor dear father," continued Spencer Churchill, with a plaintive air of reflection, "had warned me against that peculiar temperament. 'Never, my dear Spencer,' he would say, 'never marry a jealous-natured woman. You had better throw yourself into the first horsepond!'"

"And you never have done either?" said Lord Cecil, knocking the ash off his cigar.

"N—o," said Spencer Churchill; "and do you really think dear Lady Grace has a jealous disposition? Now, really, Cecil, I think you must be mistaken——"

THE BEWILDERED ARTIST

Among many delightful anecdotes recounted in "Thackeray and His Daughter," the letters and memoirs recently compiled by Miss Hester Thackeray Ritchie of her famous mother and more famous grandfather, one of the most amusing has for its chief figure an insignificant unknown—an artist, to be sure, but an amateur of no exceptional skill.

"The Trollopes, Sir John Millais and his wife, Anne Thackeray and several other friends had formed a pleasant party for a summer-time drive followed by a woodland ramble," writes Miss Ritchie. "As they were strolling leisurely through the lovely woods near Knole they came upon the artist under a tree; he was busily but by no means successfully endeavoring to paint the scene. Naturally, they glanced at his work in passing, and Millais, whose artistic soul was moved to impatience or compassion or both at what he saw, stopped dead. 'Why,' said he to the painter, 'you have not got your lights right. Look, this is what you want.' And he took the brush out of the painter's hand and made a line or two on the picture and then nodded to him and walked away.

"They all went on a few steps; then Anthony Trollope laughed and said, 'The man looks bewildered; he ought to know it is Millais.' And he ran back and told him. As he rejoined the others Anne Thackeray laughed and declared, 'He ought to know it is Trollope!' And she ran back and told him, only to be greeted on her return with more laughter, and the cry from another of the party as he started back toward the dazed artist. 'He must be told that that was Miss Thackeray!'

"So the artist was told that too, but the question that remained unsettled was how much of what he had been told did he believe? Did he accept it as fact that two distinguished novelists and one famous artist had occupied themselves for no particular reason with his unimportant self? Or did he suppose those hilarious strangers to be playing a practical joke? Or slightly tipsy? Or possibly escaped from a lunatic asylum? It would not be astonishing if as he resumed his brush it was in the nervous expectation of seeing more strangers pop out from the bushes to proclaim themselves Raphael and Shakespeare!"

EARLY ADVANTAGES

Probably in nine out of ten Canadian homes the parents are giving or are hoping to give their children advantages of education and association that they themselves did not have in their childhood and youth. Throughout the country expensive private schools are flourishing; the increase in the number of college trained boys and girls in the last twenty-five years is out of all proportion to the increase in general prosperity or in population.

If fathers and mothers who are making sacrifices in order that their children may have advantages that they did not enjoy were to be asked, "Why do you do it?" they would probably say, "Because we want our children to have as full and interesting and successful lives as possible." And no doubt nine times out of ten the early advantages that parental love obtains for the child are truly an advantage to the child. There are, however, some children for whom, as subsequent events prove, early adversity would have been kinder than early advantages.

Although no normal parent is going to impose a life of hardship on his child, there is a growing appreciation that it is not good for young people to lead entirely sheltered and shielded lives. For most of them an education in school and college needs to be supplemented with active employment during summer vacations; the boy needs to feel that he is to some degree self-supporting, and the girl needs to feel that she is not merely a family incumbrance. Parents and educators are together finding ways of securing to the child some of the benefits that in other times were usually to be acquired only in the school of hard knocks.

Nevertheless, however widespread higher education becomes, there will occasionally arise instances to confound all theories of education. Those parents who with the utmost will in the world are yet unable to provide their children with opportunities may take comfort in the thought that sometimes, as in the case of Abraham Lincoln, the greatest advantage a human being can have is to have no early advantages at all.

JUST IN PASSING

IT IS TO LAUGH

The women of our local Conservative organization must have been amused at the statement published on the bills advertising a Liberal meeting for the women. It ran thus "women stand for a good government and honest parliamentary representation". We certainly thought that is what our sex stood for, and we cannot understand the women who are working in the Liberal cause. Of course the facts of the cause of this election are being garbled and the women who are too busy to keep in close touch with public affairs are being gulled by the apologists for Mr. Murdock.

Every women owes it to herself to intelligently study the principles involved in this election. And if she does, her ballot for "good government and honest Parliamentary representation", will not be marked for Mr. Hanna.

HOME-MAKERS

So many women seem to think that to be a doctor or an architect is to be something superior to the home maker. We have heard this note so many times recently that we took the trouble to get hold of the views of Miss Margaret Bondfield, who gave an immensely educative speech along this line not long since. She did not desire to restrict woman in any direction in which her capacities could find an outlet, but in her judgment the great mass of women would to the end of time be concerned for the greater part of their lives in the business of home-making—that is to say, they would be housewives first, and mothers of families first, and any other occupation would be of a secondary nature and would absorb a very small portion of their lives. It was therefore from the standpoint of women as home-makers that their services to the community would be judged..

"A very strong indictment can be drawn up against the modern woman in her attitude towards the important function of home-making.

"The most vocal section of womanhood appears to think that to be an architect or a doctor is to be something superior to the home-maker. I hold entirely the contrary view.

"The woman who fulfils the function belonging to her sex, who builds up the life of the family around her, who recognizes the importance of bringing to the service of the home every development of science, who realizes that her job is to create an environment for every child and such an influence, particularly for the potential fathers of the world as to raise the whole line of civilization to a higher plane—that woman is doing the greatest work in the world.

"The ordering of a home, the bringing up of children, the insistence of bringing to the home the best possible help that modern achievment can provide require not merely the greatest intellectual effort, but the most sustained effort of service, that infinite capacity for taking pains which amount to genius.

"The fact of the matter is that a large number of women are not fit to be home-makers because they have never addressed their mind to it as a vocation.

"They have regarded it far more as merely an opportunity to satisfy instinctive cravings to express themselves and to have a husband who will give them a good time.

"Yet race progress depends far more upon women than upon men. It is the mind that the woman brings to bear upon the child upon the making of the little life with her own, upon the influence with which she surrounds her boys and girls, that has the most profound influence upon the trend of civilisation."

NATURE LORE

By

Wallace Havelock Robb

GOLF AND THE BIRDS

As a game, golf did not seem to appeal to me, at least for a time far longer than the average person takes.

To me, added to the usual lack of understanding of how a sane man can chase a white pill over the country, was the added argument against golf, that it took too much of my time away from the observation of Nature and Birds, etc.

Not being one of the old time naturalists, I began a few irreverent variations of a naturalists customary life.

To begin with, I tried to mix golf and the birds and found that they work fine. Once in a while, if a bird flies just as I am about to swing, I naturally take my eye off the ball and make a mess of the shot but I have learned to keep the nature stuff under control and have it up my sleeve to entertain me as I walk down the fairway. It is much more relief from business, to swat the ball and follow it with pleasant nature observations until again in position than to tear down the field thinking about next winters coal or the general rottenness of business. It is surprising how quickly and how eagerly the average inside man will join in on this nature type of time passing, when going down the fairway.

One golfer in Montreal, told me that he was standing on the tee preparing to drive and in the silence, just before the stroke, he heard some low noises in the bushes close by. Now, it happened to be very early in the year, so early that a woodcock was still on her nest in that clump of bushes.. Can you imagine a golfer so nutty that he is on the course before the winter is really gone? Well here was one, in fact two, for he was not alone. Well, as I said, the silence betrayed a noise and the golfers went into the bushes to see what bird or animal made it. They found a woodchuck on her nest and the eggs so nearly hatched or the young so young, I forget which, that the mother would not get off the nest and she let them get almost on top of her.

It seems silly for me to state the thing you naturally expect, that is, these two golfers woke up to the wonderful treasure house of nature they were in, for the usual run of golf courses are

Men and women have come to me, right on the grounds sometimes coming over to me on some putting green or tee, to point out something of mutual interest or to ask what some bird is.

This game of golf works both ends against the middle, for it not only turns golfers into lovers of birds and all Nature but it turns all but the most hopeless naturalists into lovers of golf and all golfers, for that is what it has done to me.

From a naturalist, too busy to waste time on golf, I have become a golfer, fully awake to the fact that golf makes Nature lovers and I find there, on the golf grounds and in the club house, men who seem to take much pleasure in a review of what they have seen that day. One man drove off and a moment later, saw his ball dropping short in a queer way and a bird fluttering to the ground. All other players yet to drive forgot the game for a moment and they all ran down to the bird. It was dead! The ball had hit it! That little incident made bird protectors of that whole foursome, for they had to know what kind of a bird it was and by the time they got through looking into the matter, they were too pleased with their new found feathered friends to give them up.

One day, one of the grounds keepers, the man who runs the roller, came over to me and told me where to find a Junco's nest. He did not know the kind of bird it was and wanted to know. The nest was close to the Professional's shanty and these birds would stand for all sort of monkey business from men they knew but the moment I went near the nest there was a terrible row. When I told this man that he could get sets he alone knew it, a family of blue birds of coloured pictures of birds and all the information from the Government, for about fifty cents, he was delighted. He promptly took me over to a dead tree and pointed out one of his secrets, for in a hole in a tree, right on the fairway. "Don't stand looking at it, every one will know and p[illegible]erhaps scare them" I respected his wish. [illegible] "I wait till early morning", said he, "then I get friends with them when onl[illegible] workmen are here and I can tell you [illegible] a nice story about those strange bird[illegible] of mine too." I suggested that ne[illegible]t Saturday morning would be a good [illegible] time for me to come over to the Golf [illegible] Links. "Fine, I will show you that I [illegible] know birds, even if I don't know thei[illegible] names", said he. So next week we [illegible]ill have "Those White Flash Birds."

POEMS Old And NEW

PROFITS OF WAR

Whene'er contending princes fight
For private pique or public right,
Armies are raised, the fleets are manned,
They combat both by sea and land.

When, after many battles past,
Both, tired with blows, make peace at last,
What is it, after all, the people get?
Why, taxes, widows, wooden legs and debt."

Jas Russel Lowell

FACES IN THE STREET

They lie, the men who tell us in a loud, decisive tone
That want is here a stranger, and that misery's unknown;
For where the nearest suburb and the city proper meet,
My windowsill is level with the faces in the street—
Drifting past, drifting past,
To the beat of weary feet—
While I sorrow for the owners of those faces in the street.

And cause I have to sorrow in a land
so young and fair
To see upon those faces stamped the look of want and care,
I look in vain for traces of the fresh and fair and sweet
In sallow, sunken faces that are drifting through the street—
Dr[illegible]ifting on, drifting on,
To [illegible] the scrape of restless feet;
I can so[illegible]rrow for the owners of the faces in t[illegible]he street.

Henry Lawson.

TH[illegible]E UNKNOWN FRIENDS

E. A. Guest

We ca[illegible]nnot count our friends, nor say
How [illegible] many praise us day by day,
Each [illegible] one of us has friends that he
Ha[illegible] yet to meet and really know,
Who [illegible] guard him, wheresoe'er they be,
F[illegible]rom harm and slander's cruel blow
The[illegible]y help to light our path with cheer,
Although they pass as strangers here.

T[illegible]hese friends, unseen, unheard, unknown,
Our lasting gratitude should own.
[illegible]hey serve us in a thousand ways
Where we perhaps should friendless be;
They tell our worth and speak our praise
And for their service ask no fee;
They choose to be our friends, although
We have not learned to call them so.

We cannot guess how large the debt
We owe to friends we have not met,
We only know, from day to day,
That we discover here and there
How one has tried to smooth our way,
And ease our heavy load of care,
Then passed along and left behind
This friendly gift for us to find.

Hides Damning Evidence

all those who opposed the report were conservatives.

Now, argued the Prime Minister, Murdock had had his trial in a court where evidence was taken under oath. He was found not guilty. To hold another trial of Murdock in West Hastings was a serious reflection on the honor of the House of Commons.

The speaker then asked if West Hastings folk thought for a minute that all the Liberals and Progressives in the House would vote to sutain Murdock, if they felt that the evidence was convicting. And he concluded that it was up to West Hastings, on that score, to uphold the traditions of Parliament with a vote for Hanna.

The implication was that all the Liberals and progressives were honest about the matter and all the Conservatives were dishonest. All the Liberals and Progressives were convinced by the evidence. All the conservatives disregarded the evidence and went out to collect Murdock's scalp.

In other words, the Prime Minister was asking Belleville people last night if they really believed that his party would do such a thing as to "whitewash" Murdock. And at the same time he was suggesting.

"Don't you believe rather that the Conservative party would be just the sort of a party to 'blacken' Murdock?"

Yes, the Prime Minister was real cute last evening. He brought into play every talent he had as an orator to swing sympathy to Murdock on the ground that someone was trying to get him. The pity of it was that such a shallow treatment of the issue should come from a Prime Minister.

Most disappointing of all was Mr. King's statement that supposing Murdock did get his information from a meeting of the Cabinet, what wrong was there in that.

The Premier pretends to be idealistic. With a hushed voice, meant to be impressive, he quoted from the Bible to show that man should be careful in judging his fellow man. Yet he stood up unblushingly and suggested that it would be alright for a Cabinet Minister, sworn to make no profit from confidential information he receives, to do as Murdock did.

It is no wonder that but little public confidence is placed with the present Prime Minister.

In line with the unfairness Characterizing his entire address was his observation that since Mr. Meighan had entered West Hastings, he had talked most of the time on matters foreign to the Murdock charges. One but needs to take any newspaper report of the three meetings held to see that, quite the other way, Mr. Meighan has spent most of his time on the real issue of the Campaign.

People who in all fairness have been waiting to hear first hand explanations from the Premier have been indeed disappointed.

Premier King will have no one to blame but himself on Tuesday night.

Cruel

the moral side of the issue and asked that if electors were in favor of a higher standard of honesty and integrity in public men, that they vote for E. Guss Porter.

Mr. Porter in a neat speech, appealed to the ladies to justify the franchise having been given them by argument of their power to decide moral issues being finer than men. This was a real moral issue.

Changed His Attitude

He told of Murdock personally congratulating him for the upright and honourable course in presenting the charges against him, but he had evidently changed his attitude very recently.

Speaking of character references which may have been made in the campaign, Mr. Porter said, "I do not profess to be a saint, but I do not acknowledge that I am a hypocrite. I never made a promise yet unless I knew that I could reasonably and fairly carry it out, and I have never solicited a vote on a promise which I knew I could not carry out."

That did not matter however. It was a moral issue. Speaking of Hanna, a man against whom he holds nothing, the candidate said that he was a warmed over Tory, who changed over without ever divulging the inducement offered.

"Probably it is just as well that we do not know what that inducement was," he added.

As that was the last time Mr. Porter would address a Trenton audience before election day, he made a final request that his good friends of the past stay with him again on Tuesday.

"If you again send me down to represent you, and especially if we soon get into power, I will see what I can do for you again in fulfilling any reasonable and fair request you may make."

Mr. Porter again told what he had done for Trenton, Belleville, Frankford and the whole riding during his [illegible] as their representative, though [illegible] been in power but ten years of his long term at Ottawa.

W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. told of women from Belleville visiting Trenton in the interest of Hanna, asking women to sign their name in a book which would say that they would vote for Hanna.

"I am glad we have not had to go to this end," he assured. "These people come here to tell you how to vote after you have passed on Mr. Porter for more than 20 years."

Major Belford, M.P.P. took a rap at the Trenton Courier Advocate which has been trying to show him up because he happens to be a clergyman. Hanna, in the Major's opinion, is a goat used by the Liberals, after two Trenton Liberals who would just "love" to represent West Hastings if they had a chance of winning, had refused to stand. Apart from probably not having the mentality that others might have, the member for Northumberland believed Hanna to be O.K. but had something "wished" on him.

Comparing King with Mr. Meighen, the speaker said that Meighen was THE statesman of Canada—the real leader of the real thinking people—while "Willie" King would make Canada an annex to the U.S.A.

King's war record was reason enough for anyone to vote against Hanna, and he said, it must be hard for patriotic descendants of United Empire Loyalists to sit under his premiership.

Murdock was forced into the riding at the last minute when he was probably told that the case was hopeless unless he did come in. He violated his oath of office and anyone should vote for Mr. Porter on that issue whether they personally liked him or not.

Senator Robertson and Mrs. H. Fallis spoke briefly, the Senator who is head of the 8,000 Telegraphers in this country and widely acquainted with railway men for the past twenty years, showing how railway business was steadily falling off owing to industrial stagnation; unemployment existing with other unsavoury conditions under the King Government.

Mrs. Fallis made a brief but very effective appeal to the women electors

A SAFE RELIEF FOR WOMEN'S DISORDERS

10 DAYS' TREATMENT FREE.

Orange Lily is a certain relief for all disorders of women. It is applied locally and is absorbed into the suffering tissue. The dead waste matter in the congested region is expelled, giving immediate mental and physical relief; the blood vessels and nerves are toned and strengthened; and the circulation is rendered normal. As this treatment is based on strictly scientific principles and acts on the actual location of the disease, it cannot help but do good in all forms of female troubles, including delayed and painful menstruation, leucorrhoea, falling of the womb, etc. Price $2.00 per box, which is sufficient for one month's treatment. A free trial treatment, enough for 10 days, worth 75c., will be sent free to any suffering woman who will send me her address. Enclose three stamps and address:

Fire at Portland

Brockville, Nov. 22—The joint work of the fire departments of Smith's Falls, Westport and Newboro, Wednesday night prevented the destruction of the central portion of the village of Portland, on the Rideau as the result of an outbreak in the livery stable of James Seward, through spontaneous combustion. This building, as well as a shed adjoining the house of Seward and a barn owned by Albert Gallagher was burned before the blaze was brought under control two hours later. The premises of the Union Bank of Canada and the nearby residence of Dr. J. G. Greegan, as well as several other houses, barns, and sheds in the immediate vicinity, were scorched and in danger of destruction, while bucket brigades carried water from Rideau lake several hundred feet distant.

R. E. Convention

The 35th annual convention of the Ontario Religious Education Association for Grenville County was held in the Methodist Church at Spencerville. There was a large attendance of delegates and visitors, helping to make the convention a great success. There were three sessions, morning afternoon and evening and each session was packed full of information and inspiration.

Escape Frustrated

Whitby, Nov. 22—That an attempt at jail delivery was underway in the county jail here was disclosed Wednesday when on inspection it was found that one bar in a small window in the corridor was sawed through and another bar was partially sawed. It is thought that the discovery will frustrate what may have been a wholesale exit of prisoners.

Jailer Steiner stated yesterday morning that no trace of the instrument used had been found, nor do the authorities know how it was smuggled into the building. There are many prisoners in the jail at present serving sentences varying from three to six months, while others are being held in custody and will shortly appear in court on serious charges.

Elections at Gananoque

Gananoque, Nov. 22—Municipal nominations are to be held on Monday evening in the fire hall. So far very little interest seems to be taken in municipal affairs. It is reported that several of last year's councillors are going to drop out of public life and no new blood is offered so far but Monday night will likely see men in the field for office.

Organizer at Napanee

Mr. J. A. Halpenny, organizer for the Canadian Order of Foresters, arrived in Napanee Thursday, where he will remain for a couple of weeks in the interests of the local court. As the regular meeting of the court is to be held on Monday evening next, it is anticipated that there will be a large turnout of members to greet Mr. Halpenny. Mr. R. F. Kitchen of the Quinte Glass Co., Deseronto, was a business caller in town yesterday.

PHILLIPS—CULKEEN

Campbellford, Nov. 22.—A wedding took place on Tesday morning at seven o'clock, in St. Mary's church, when Miss Cecelia Culkeen, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Culkeen, of Seymour West, was married to Mr. Fred Phillips of Brighton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Phellan of St. Mary's church. After a wedding breakfast at the birde's home, the young couple motored to Brighton, where they went by train to Toronto and other points for their wedding trip. For the last year or two Miss Culkeen has lived in Lindsay.

Pale Anaemic Girls

FIND NEW HEALTH THROUGH THE USE OF DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

There must be no guesswork in the treatment of pale, anaemic girls, and children. If your daughter is languid, has a pale, sallow complexion, is short of breath after slight exertion or on going up stairs, if she has palpitation of the heart, a poor appetite or a tendency to faint, she has anaemia—the medical name for poverty of the blood. Any delay in treatment may even result in consumption, that most hopeless of diseases. When the blood is poor and watery, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, coupled with nourishing food and gentle out-of-door exercise. The new, life-giving blood which follows a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills stimulates the nerves, increases the appetite and brings the glow of health to pale cheeks. Mrs. W. Armour, Havelock Ont., says:—"My little girl got into a very poor state of health. She was weak very much run down and as the doctor did not seem to do her any good, I thought I would try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking six boxes of the pills she got nice and rosy and strong again. I would recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone weak and rundown."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A NATIONAL ASSET

As the greatest transportation company in the world, the Canadian Pacific Railway has maintained a national service in the Trans-Canada Limited which is second to none and on the conclusion of the summer schedule of this crack train has transferred the equipment to the Vancouver Express which leaves Toronto every night at 10.10 p.m. on its trip across the continent, via Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, the spiral tunnel, Sicamous and parts of the Canadian Pacific Rockies famous throughout the world, on its way to Vancouver, where the travellers are unanimous in their praise of the service of the Vancouver Hotel. The Canadian Pacific also operates a steamship service to Victoria, the Mecca for winter tourists.

Not only does the Vancouver Express carry tourist and standard sleepers, but it also carries a compartment-observation car complete in itself, while a parlor car is added from Revelstoke to Vancouver.

Added to this national service is a feature service from Toronto to Montreal via the Lake Shore Line, which has been entirely reballastd with crushed rock and relaid with 100 pound rails, insuring a maximum of comfort for travellers at night as well as an absence of dust in daytime. Trains leave Toronto Union Station at 9.00 a.m. daily, 10.00 p.m. daily except Saturday and 11.00 p.m. daily. Arriving at Windsor Station, the traveller has the benefit of immediate facilities in the women's rest room, lunch room and barber shop, which cannot be duplicated in any other station in Montreal. An added convenience is offered those who wish to travel to Montreal from North Toronto in the 9.45 p.m. train, daily except Saturdays from Yonge Street Station.

Canadian Pacific agents will gladly make your reservations and supply you with any information you require. They are fully qualified to offer a "second to none" service to the public.

PACKERS WILL WANT MORE BACON HOGS

Toronto, November 22.—Stating that the packers of Ontario would like to see a hundred per cent. increase in the production of bacon hogs within the next year, General John A. Gunn, of Gunn's Limited, accompanied by representatives of other packing houses, placed the views of the packers before the special agricultural committee of the Legislature. The education of the farmer to the point where he would realize that he would profit by raising a high type of bacon hog rather than "smooth fat" grades, was also advocated and taken under consideration by the committee.

Complaints raised by farmers, and transmitted to the packers through the committee, that many hogs marked selects when sold were later placed in a lower grade, were also dealt with by the meeting. It was stated that out of 100 "selects," when dressed only about 75 or 80 would come through in that class. This was due to careless handling in transit.

MANUFACTURER ASKS WIN FOR PORTER

MR. E. GUSS PORTER CLINCHES MURDOCK CHARGES SECURELY WITH THE AID OF HANSARD

Convincing Evidence Driven Home to Labor Meeting Saturday Night

ALL WERE WITH HIM

Enthusiastic Endorsation for The Action Mr. Porter Took

Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., clinched the Murdock charges on Saturday night before an audience which overflowed the City Hall into the council chamber and down the stair way as far as his voice was audible. His audience was made up chiefly of labor men and their wives and they were of one accord. They will vote Porter Tuesday, there is no doubt.

Standing on the same platform from which he challenged Murdock to a public debate on nomination day, the Liberal-Conservative candidate Saturday night again repeated the challenge to the Minister of Labor to meet him anywhere at any time to argue the matter in public.

He asked any man or woman in the audience, in the city or in the riding who were doubtful, to come forward after the meeting, and receive a copy of Hansard in which the whole investigation is printed verbatum, so that they might read the evidence in full and decide for themselves.

Then he proceeded to prove by Hansard which MUST be correct that Murdock was guilty. Turning up Hansard he read a question put to Murdock on the stand by himself.

"Then it would not be correct that you drew money from the bank to pay on a mortgage?"

Murdock's answer — "It would not be so".

Then turning to the pages which told of G. N. Gordon, the man who Murdock stated "tipped" him off as to the bank's condition, it was shown by Hansard that Gordon could not recall one word of the context of the conversation which he and Murdock had had about the matter. Similarly Murdock on oath could not recall one word of their conversation.

Does that appear as though it was Gordon who acquainted Murdock of the Home Bank's condition?

Murdock has never denied the charges not even since he came into the riding. He excuses himself by saying that the majority of the committee voted for him in exoneration. Mr. Porter believe he was "whitewashed". West Hastings knows he was "whitewashed".

KINGSTON GIRL DIES FROM POISONED FOOD

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Kingston, Nov. 24.—One girl is dead and two are ill of ptomaine poisoning with which they were stricken on Saturday evening apparently caused by some food they had eaten. Of the trio who became ill shortly after arriving at a dance, Margaret Morrison aged 15, daughter of Dr. C. A. Morrison, died last night. Her elder sister Mary is in the hospital critically ill but will recover. A girl friend from Toronto visiting the Morrison's is less seriously affected with the same complaint. An investigation is being made.

HOT SHOTS

Vote Porter—You will never regret it.

Hanna cannot win—Right always has prevailed.

Vote early for E. Guss Porter on Tuesday, then work for Porter until the polls close.

United Empire Loyalists descendents—Let your conscience be your guide.—Do not do something your ancestors would not tolerate were they alive.

Make Porter's majority ring out from coast to coast Wednesday morning.

Vote Porter—who though not a Saint, is strong for honor.

Dirty insinuations and deliberate repetition of absolute untruths will never win an election for Hanna. It is indeed difficult to believe that Charles Hanna as Belleville knew him, could tolerate such behaviour among his lieutenants.

He has been tried and trusted. He has justified the confidence of West Hastings, so vote again for Porter.

The eyes of Canada are upon you Let your verdict be "right."

Hanna is on an unfortunate ticket—He is being "used".

Murdock has been condemned from coast to coast.—What verdict will be expected?—vote for Porter.

Will the veterans of West Hastings who fought Canada's battles in the name of honor, not vote for honor Tuesday?

If in doubt consider. King's war record. Then you WILL vote for Porter.

If you value the traditions of the Greatest Empire in the world and the foundation of christianity, vote for Porter. He stands in this bye-election for honor, honesty and integrity.

Murdock's secretary, the young lady who deposited the $4,050 in the bank in her name at his request is one of the most respectable young ladies in the city of Ottawa. During the investigation, Mr. Porter told her on the stand that she was altogether too respectable to be involved in a matter so unsavoury.

She has been referred to as a "hired girl" because in the English language any girl who works for wages is a "hired girl," and any man who works for wages is a "hired man."

Are the many church spires which mark the approach to any city, town or hamlet in West Hastings or throughout Canada, to mean less by the result of Tuesday's vote?—Vote Porter and honor, and make them mean infinitely more.

Ladies remember that you were granted the franchise chiefly because of the argument that you are better able than men to decide moral questions. Make a decided decision Tuesday, and when voting for Porter, remember that Porter voted for you. He voted in favor of extending the franchise to women in the Parliament at Ottawa.

Premier King ADMITTED that it is a moral issue which is paramount in this bye-election. There are but two sides to any moral question. Porter stands for right—vote Porter.

Murdock would not accept Mr. E. Guss Porter's challenge to argue the charges at the nomination meeting here. Mr. Porter was willing and is still "game." Murdock "slipped" into the riding as a last resort after Mr. Porter had made all his speaking dates and when it would be impossible for him to again issue the challenge which Murdock is not man enough to accept.

West Hastings is not going to fail the veteran statesman who has not one mark against his public life—who bravely, fairly, justly and in the regular British way, spoke for the electors he loves as he would expect they would speak individually if any one of them had been sent to represent the constituency in his stead. Vote Porter.

Electors of West Hastings form a jury on Tuesday. In ordinary cases in the law courts, municipal, lodge, club, social or, any other type of affiliation does not enter into the unbiased minds of the twelve jurymen, while they weigh the evidence against the defendent. Murdock is the defendent in this trial of the ballots. Any local prestige Hanna may have, should not be used or considered in getting out votes to "whitewash" the defendent again.

Vote Porter and you cannot be wrong.

On the eve of the by-election in West Hastings, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen has received a most interesting letter from a prominent manufacturer of Belleville, bearing strongly on the great need for a Conservative majority to-morrow. W. C. Springer, president of the Springer Lock Manufacturing Company, enters a strong plea for protection in telling of the harm King's low tariff policy is doing in Canada. The letter which follows is self-explanatory:

Belleville, Ont., Nov. 22, 1924

"I have been following with interest the discussion in the present campaign. If for no other reason than on account of the tariff policy of the Mackenzie King Government and the damage it has already done this country, its candidate in this election should be defeated. Anybody with eyes to see can witness what is going on. The Government by its perpetual attacks on the tariff, which was already too low, attacks both by speeches and pledges, as well as by budget reductions has closed factories, reduced employment and so seriously impaired confidence that Canada, which ought to be growing and prosperous, is actually diminishing. There is no sense in boosting about exports when these exports consist of raw Canadian products such as pulp-wood and big harvests, the result of good seasons. The trouble is we are buying more and more manufactured goods, the making of which requires labor and makes homes and we are selling our estate.

I draw your attention to the case of the manufacture of Builders' Hardware. This class of goods now has to compete with the same goods from countries where wages paid the men who make them is half or less than half what is paid in Canada and the duty is only 15% British preferential. Manufacturers in other countries have their representatives taking orders here, picking up all lines that show a reasonable profit and Canadian producers are left with only cheap lines to struggle with. If this is allowed to continue much longer a good many more Canadian factories may just as well close down.

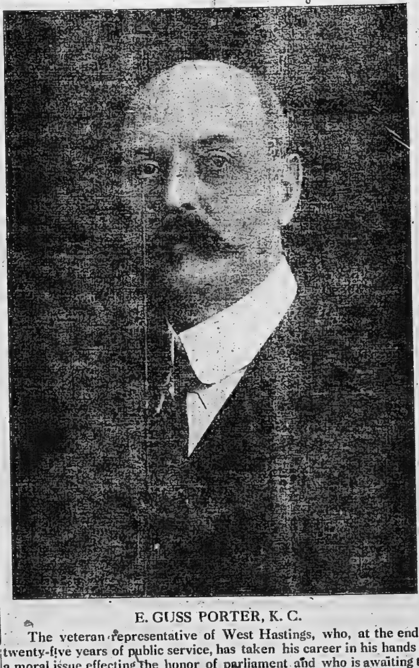
Besides we have sales tax, increased heavily in the last three years, to contend with. This necessarily adds to the workers' cost of living, the result is the Canadian factory is driven either to close down, or be turned into a sweat shop and this Canadian workmen will not tolerate; they want to live like human beings.

Factories are just as important to a country as any other business. Everything you can add in the way of business in a country helps that country just that much and makes it just that much better and bigger. The Government is wrong; it is strangling the industries of the country, the industries that provide work and hold population—and it should be told so.

W. C. SPRINGER, President
The Springer Lock M'f'g Co., Limited.

Mr. Springer's statement is well worth the most serious consideration. He has done much for Belleville and has been the medium through which many city people have gained a livelihood.

Coming here as a young man, he worked until he had built up the present Belleville Hardware plant, and then leaving that concern he moulded his present concern into the flourishing establishment it is.



E. GUSS PORTER, K. C.

The veteran representative of West Hastings, who, at the end of twenty-five years of public service, has taken his career in his hands on a moral issue effecting the honor of parliament and who is awaiting the verdict of his constituents as to whether James Murdock, Minister of Labor, did right or wrong in profitting by his position in the government. It is confidently expected West Hastings will stand by him.

LABOR OFFICIALS TELL LABOR TRUE STORY OF MURDOCK'S UNFAITHFUL STEWARDSHIP

HOT SHOTS

Laughing stock is listed high to-day. It has been since the King administration took over the reins.

Let your conscience be your guide, and vote Porter.

"Poor Jim Murdock, the trainman", never was so poor as he was after the labor meeting at the City Hall here Saturday evening. After Senator Robertson and Mr. Shea finished their speeches it certainly was "Poor Jim."

The result of this bye-election will be an impression in the pages of Canadian history. It will make fine reading for our children's children.—Right must prevail.

Do not be misled by last day insinuations and scurrilous whisperings. Mr. Porter is prepared to take a solemn oath that he has never—at any time—in any place—in any address and before any audience ever said anything derogatory of Charles Hanna. Do not believe prattle to the contrary and remember an oath is regarded by Mr. Porter as being a very serious matter.

Mr. E. Guss Porter's only son fought for honor to the death. Is that worthy of any consideration on Tuesday?

Railway Men and Postal Workers Shout Their Approval

LIFE OF DECEIT

Frank Shea Calls Murdock "Ignoramus" and Inconsistent Minister

The Labor meeting held in the City Hall last Saturday night in support of Mr. E. Guss Porter, K. C., was in many respects the most successful meeting ever held during the campaign. Two or three outstanding reasons are obvious. Firstly it was the largest crowd that probably ever appeared for admittance at the historic old hall, and, of course many were forced to leave after the council chamber and the stairway had been filled as far down as the speakers' voices were audible. The second reason of the meeting's success was the surprise packet in the form of an unexpected treat, for Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, who was not billed, addressed the audience for more than one hour. The third reason of the unique nature of this successful meeting was the unmerciful but justly deserved "rimming" which "Jim Murdock, the trainman" received at the hands of almost each and every speaker.

Hon. Senator Gideon Robertson told the true story of the railway strike of 1910 in which Murdock was involved and Mr. Frank Shea, secretary of the Postal Employees Union at Toronto, the man whom Murdock told over the telephone last June that the Postal employes could stay out on strike, "Until Hell had frozen over" was the bomb shell which will wreck Murdock Tuesday.

Frank Discussion

Mr. Shea was very frank in his description of Murdock, and the audience were with him to a man. Righteous indignation at Murdock's attitude and many voices from the audience hurling verbal hand grenades into Murdock's camp and urging Mr. Shea to "go on" and tell more about him. Twice, the speaker was finished but twice the crowd demanded more about Murdock. It would have been unsafe to have uttered one word in favor of "trainman Jim" in that audience which should, if Murdock had been fair, been with him to a man, for the audience was for the most part made up of labor men, for whose benefit the meeting was held. A remarkable feature of the meeting was the large number of women in the audience who remained until the last word had been spoken. It appeared as though every man brought his wife along with him.

Another unanimous indication was the fact that a very prominent railway man, ex-alderman R. Wensley was chairman of the meeting.

Railway men in the audience heard the true story in connection with the strike from Senator Robertson, ex-Minister of Labor. About 162 men had not been restored to the service when the Liberals went out of power, in September 1911. The late T. Crothers, then Minister of Labor, immediately renewed negotiations with a view of re-instating them and came to the Government with a request. As a result of the good work of Mr. Crothers,

A LYING CAMPAIGN

Mr. E. Guss Porter did not at any time say that he did not care for the Catholic vote. The statement was manufactured by Hanna supporters and assiduously spread by Hanna men.

Such despicable campaign work is on a par with the Liberal campaign in the Quebec bye-election when they told people there that Mr. Meighen was the man who sent their sons to be slaughtered at the war.

LIBERAL TACTICS

Further evidence is at hand that Liberal supporters of James Murdock and Charles Hanna are afraid of the truth. As the culmination of a Liberal campaign crammed with inconsistency, marked with evasiveness and tainted with insincerity, Liberals are doing everything in their power to prevent Conservatives from giving the public the facts surrounding the Murdock charges.

In Trenton on Friday night, the mayor of the town, who is the head of the Liberal Association in the riding, was a leader in breaking up a Conservative open air meeting.

And Saturday Hon. Arthur Meighen was to have spoken in Bancroft. But the Liberals scurried around and hired every hall in order to prevent a meeting. Fortunately here, however, they did not reckon with the determination of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, who went up this afternoon to speak in spite of the fact that he will be required to speak at least twice this evening.

The cheapest trick of all, however, has been left to Liberals in Belleville.

When Premier King spoke on Friday night, the Griffin Theatre did not begin to accommodate those who would hear him. Hundreds had to go into the Armouries to listen to the speakers there. It was then Murdock supporters realized just how interested people had become in the issue and then that Liberals caught an idea of the numbers who would want to hear Mr. Meighen tonight.

And having observed how convincing the truth is when delivered by Mr. Meighen and others with him, they straight way engaged the Armouries through the influence of Cabinet Minister. Then not content with that effort to handicap the Conservatives in the event of overflow meetings, they grabbed the City Hall for the night, not for a meeting but that they might use the City Hall chairs at the Armouries.

No dog in the manger was ever meaner.

Fortunately, however, sufficient pressure was brought to bear on authorities to secure the Armouries for an overflow meeting.

The insincerity of the Murdock defense could have no better substantion than this bare-facde attempt to hamper Mr. Porter's colleagues in the West Riding of Hastings.

UP GOES THE EXPENDITURE

In the light of the latest statement issued by the Finance Department the professions of the King Government that it has practised economy look ridiculous. On this subject rarely has profession and practice been more at variance. Instead of spending less money than it did last year, the Government has been spending more.

At this time last year a demand for economy went up all over the country. This was quite natural. Confronted by the action both of the British and the United States governments in cutting expenditure to the bone, and thus paving the way for reduced taxation, the people of this country naturally wanted the same thing. As they were not getting it, they made vigorous protest. In fact they so alarmed the Government that it decided it must do something to appease the clamor.

When the main estimates were submitted to Parliament last session it was announced that as they were $46,000,000 less than those of the preceding session, there was to be a 10 per cent. reduction in expenditure. The Government's propagandists made much of this; but in the light of subsequent events it was "much ado about nothing". The claims then made are now seen to be the hollowest sham. Expenditure for the first seven months of the fiscal year, at least, has not gone down; it has gone up.

Here are the facts as set forth by the Deaprtment of Finance in its October statement. Current expenditure for the seven months ending October 31, 1924, $152,385,204; capital expenditure, $10,892,964; total $163,278,168; Seven months ending October 1923, current expenditure—$154,769,583; capital expenditure $6,541,431; total $161,311,014. In other words the total expenditure during the first seven months of the fiscal year was $1,967,154 greater than it was for the corresponding months of last year.

The question is—how is it that with estimates reduced by $46,000,000, the expenditure is actually higher? The reason is this:—During the preceding fiscal year Parliament voted a large sum of money for certain purposes, which was not spent Along the Government came this year, and having made no provision for such expenditure, the claim was made that money to this extent was being saved.

The public has to learn that cutting estimates does not necessarily mean cutting expenditure. But the whole Liberal claim to economy this year is based on the assumption that they mean one and the same thing This is merely a piece of deception, that's all.

In the federal administration the word "economy" has become a byword. Sir Henry Thornton told the Canadian Club of New York the other day that one of the jokes in Canada now was, "Join the Cabinet and see the world". Of course he did not say it in criticism, but there was more truth than fiction in the remark.

Talk of tax reduction in Canada just now is a farce. Taxes cannot be cut as long as the Government spends as freely as it does. How great the farce is was revealed by the recent Tax Conference held at Ottawa, between representatives of the Federal and Provincial governments. Was there any thought of reducing taxes? None whatever. The federal government said: "What we have we hold", and the provincial governments said: "What we have we hold too, and want a little more."

A THOUGHT FOR BELLEVILLE

The question before the electors of Belleville in this by-election is, are you in favor of a tariff policy that brings American branch factories to Canada, or are you in favor of one that would leave them in the United States? Belleville has secured several of these branch factories and if Protection is retained, stands a good chance of getting. But, if the tariff is to be cut away, as the Progressives would cut it, what object would there be in American firms building branch plants in this country?

Fully 700 branches of American industrial firms have been located in Canada during the last 25 years. These represent an investment of over $700,000,000. Everybody admits that this has been a wonderful thing for the country. It has provided employment for thousands, and has distributed hundreds of millions of dollars of wages. It has put on their feet towns and cities that were languishing. It has caused other places to grow rapidly from small communities into large cities.

This branch-factory building has been the most marked development in the industrial life of Canada during the last quarter of a century. It accounts very largely for the rapid industrial expansion that has taken place. On this point there is not the slightest dispute. The person who seriously argued that these branch plants were not good for the country would be laughed to scorn.

Now Canada, and Belleville, desire more of these branch factories. But there is only one way by which they can be secured, and that it by retaining the policy of Protection. The Americans have placed these branches over here because, owing to the Tariff, they cannot ship in their goods and compete on an equal footing with Canadians. They would not have placed them here to anything like the extent they have, had it not been for the tariff.

Obviously the thing to do is to keep them coming. This is common sense policy. But how long will they continue to come under a policy that "sounds the death knell of Protection". Not very long. Mackenzie King has been wooing the western Progressives by telling them that Liberal Policy is the same as theirs. Everybody knows what their policy it. It is to eliminate the principle of Protection from the Tariff. Branch plants do not figure in their calculations at all.

West Hastings and Belleville in particular does not want that kind of a policy. In these days when the average business man finds it hard enough to get business, this constituency wants a policy that will provide work at good wages. Plainly the thing to do is to support a policy that will encourage factory building—one that will bring more branch plants from the United States, rather than one that would drive them away.

BRAVADO

Mayor Fraser who incited Liberals of Trenton to break up an open air Conservative meeting in that town last Friday night, has offered to donate one thousand dollars to charity if any one can prove that he organized the affair.

Will Mayor Fraser make the same offer if for the word "organized" there should be substituted the words, "encouraged, or took part in?" Will he give one thousand dollars to charity if it can be proved that he was one of the interrupters at that open air meeting?

ALL CANADA WATCHES

No by-election ever held in the Dominion of Canada was of such national importance as the vote in West Hastings to-morrow. Never has there bee such Dominion wide interest shown in what the electors of one riding have to say. Newspapers from coast to coast have been covering the news of the campaign fully and Canadians are eagerly awaiting the verdict against James Murdock.

With the voters of this riding there has been entrusted the honor of representing the whole of Canada in deciding upon the Murdock charges.

Canadians know little about Charles Hanna, his work for the United Empire Loyalist Celebration, or his municipal career. They are not interested in that. Canadians see citizens of West Hastings acting as a jury to find whether or not Cabinet ministers may get away with dishonorable conduct of profiting through their positions.

Conservatives of Canada are banking on Conservatives of West Hastings to give Mr. Porter of West jority that will leave no doubt in the minds of the Dominion government as to what the Canadian people think of the "whitewash".

West Hastings will not fail its fellow citizens.

"Doin' any good?" asked a curious individual on the bridge.

"Any good?" answered the fisherman in the creek below, "why I caught 40 bass out o' here yesterday."

"Say, do you know who I am?" asked the man on the bridge. The fisherman replied that he did not

"Well, I'm the county fish and game warden."

The fisherman after a moment's thought, said, "Say, do you know who I am?"

"No," replied the officer.

"Well, I am the biggest liar in Northern Indiana," said the crafty fisherman with a grin.

Letters to Editor

(From Peterboro)

To The Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

Dear Sir—

All Canada looks upon the West Hastings fight not from a wet or dry nor a tariff standpoint, but is Murdock guilty or not guilty? Mr. O'Flynn has said that the woman's vote of Canada is going to be a factor in cleaning up the politics of Canada. We agree with him as Agnes McPhail the only woman member in the house has said by her vote that Murdock was guilty. Agnes McPhail has stood true to principle all through her Parliamentary life. Let the electors speak emphatically.

Yours,
W. H. MUREL,

Will Not Be Dismissed for Supporting Mr. Porter

Threats and intimidation having been used by Mayor Fraser, of Trenton, and others supporting Charles Hanna in this contest that persons would be dismissed if they supported the candidacy of Mr. Porter, which many of them are doing, and the matter coming to the attention of Mr. Porter, he wrote Sir Henry Thornton for information as to whether such was the policy of his Company and whether threats of intimidation would be permitted to be used or sanctioned by his Company, to which has been received the following reply:

"I have your letter of November 20th in connection with the contest which is taking place in West Hastings, and I have to advise you as follows:

"It is not only the right but the duty of every citizen of the Dominion of Canada to exercise his right of franchise in accordance with the dictates of his conscience and in that fashion which in his judgment, best promotes the welfare of the Dominion. It is also the privilege of every citizen of Canada within reason to express his own opinion with respect to political issues, and likewise reasonably interest himself in such elections as many from time to time occur. Such activities, however, must be limited to the individual as such, that is to say no officer or employee of this company should use his official rank with the company, or any authority or responsibility which may come to him thereby, for the purpose of bringing pressure to bear upon others. This represents the general principle upon which we are proceeding and I think its accuracy cannot be challenged.

Without Authority

"You have referred to certain threats which are alleged to have been made with respect to certain employees of the company who may possibly favour your election. I can only say that any statements to this effect are made without the authority of the company, and will certainly not in any respect be countenanced by this administration.

"In short, every officer and employee of the system is expected to exercise the unalienable right to citizenship and as long as he keeps within these bounds has nothing whatever to fear. This applies to all parties without prejudice, and you are at liberty to make this public if you desire.

Yours faithfully,
H. W. THORNTON,
President."

The above letter speaks for itself that the threats and intimidations used by Fraser and others on behalf of Charles Hanna are entirely unwarranted and contrary to policy of the President and the Canadian National Railways and without any authorization.

Lost Barn, House Front of Sidney

Burnham Mallory Suffers By Blaze on Trent Road

Fire of undetermined origin, but believed to have been started by tramps sleeping in the barn, completely destroyed the barn on the farm owned by Mr. Burnham Mallory, front of Sydney, as well as the house, after ten o'clock Sunday night.

The house and barn destroyed are not the buildings occupied by Mr. Mallory himself, but buildings at the north end of the farm. With the barn between 800 and 1,000 bushels of grain were destroyed as well as twenty tons of hay. Five horses which were tied in the stable, were turned loose and saved.

Henry Mainpiece and Philip Robinson, tenants of the house burned, lost everything with the house and they carried no insurance on their contents, though Mr. Mallory had both barn and house insured.

Mr. Mallory is county treasurer.

ORGAN RECITAL IS MUCH ENJOYED

In the deepening twilight of Saturday, Professor Hunt held a large audience spell-bound by his skillful manipulation of the organ of Bridge St. Methodist Church. The quiet of the sacred edifice, the dusk, the lowered lights all helped to tune the spirits of the listeners to the exquisite tones evoked by a master musician.

The first number (Toccata in G. Major by Dubois) was a revelation of the power of the instrument in contrast to its more tender and subtle tones. Gavotte (Parde Martine—1700 A.D.) was fairy-like in its delicacy of tone and movement, and in the wedding music from Wagner's Lohengrin, the full majesty of the magnificent organ sounded forth.

The other musicians of the hour were Miss Valiere Wrightmeyer, contralto; Alan Ker, baritone; Mr. Myran Young, violinist; Mr. Glen Elliott violoncellist; and each helped to make this a fine musical treat for Belleville music lovers.

Liberal Conservative Association Overflow Meeting ARMOURIES TO-NIGHT

RT. HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN

A vote of E. Guss Porter, K.C., at the polls to-morrow will be a vote for Mr. Meighen, the Conservative party, the national policy of ample protection for Canada's industry, and a mark of disapproval against the dishonorable conduct of a Cabinet Minister in using his position for his own profit.

LABOR OFFICIAL

the Conservative Minister of Labor, 125 of the 162 men were returned to duty after an absence of more than two years.

The late Mr. Crothers is the man who G. N. Gordon now says did nothing for the railway men, when he knows that he is dead and cannot answer for himself.

Later when the new subject arose over the pension dispute, Crothers did good work while Murdock who headed the Brotherhood of Railwaymen did nothing whatever. Any man who had not been absent from the service for more than one year from any cause did not lose his pension. The balance of the 162 had been out of the service more than one year, but that was the railway company's fault. They were debarred from enjoying the pension. The Department of Labor was approached in 1918 to see if this recognized injustice could be righted. The government agreed and the necessary legislation was put through parliament and the matter it was decided, should be settled by arbitration. Murdock, who was in charge of the Brotherhood of Trainmen never approached the Government, but two representatives of two distinct railwaymen's unions did so. These representatives wished the history of individual cases investigated. They finally received the money which was distributed among the men.

In 1918 however, the pension money had been dissipated and pensions were drawn from current revenues though there were no legal funds for them to lay claim to. The temporary Board of Management was appointed and headed by Sir Joseph Flavelle, and then it was that Hon. J. A. Stewart became Minister of Railways, and proved himself to be one of the fairest and most broad-minded man who ever met the Board.

In April 1920, Col. Currie, M.P. for Simcoe asked that pension status rights be restored to employes who were penalized on account of the strike, and on the Government taking over the railway that the pensions be made a debt of the Government. Debating on the resolution the present Premier said referring to the 1910 situation that the company should reinstate all striker employes not guilty of any act of violence as soon as possible. The company was asked to do this. When the question was asked, "What does as soon as possible mean?" the company would not say what it meant. Finally it was agreed that it would mean three months, but King did not make any change in the wording of the resolution, and later said that pensions had not been discussed.

Crothers Restores Men

In April 1920 following a debate in the House of Commons, Judge Baron of Perth was appointed to find out what men were guilty of violation of the law. The Judge found that 138 of the number were not guilty, but still the company refused to reinstate the men.

By dint of the good work of Mr. Crothers, however, all these men were finally taken back—some however, not receiving the position they held prior to the strike.

When Labor Department estimates came up in the House of Commons on June 30, 1920, following this discussion, Mackenzie King asked leave to make a statement and submit a document re the dispute between the G.T.R. company and employes in yard and service. He brought out the fact that these men were to have been re-instated "Within three months," but as this letter had never been filed, Mr. Crothers had not known of its existence.

"King was over in Yankee town."—voice. (applause and laughter).

King's Sly Action

Mr. Morphy of Stratford (an important railway centre) asked King [illegible] in 1910 or attached to the file on why this letter had not been submit[illegible] the matter at that time. King's answer was:

"This phase of the agreement was confidential."—(applause and laughter).

King admitted however, that it was not marked confidential.

The result was that these boys [illegible] than two years, and had not enjoyed pension rights which were lost until they were restored, whereas if this document had been on file, 138 men would have been restored to the service within three months instead of over two years.

(Loud cheers and applause.)

Unemployment Increases

Fifteen thousand less men are employed on the two great Canadian railway systems now than there were one year ago, as a result of industrial stagnation following King's low tariff and free trade policies. Conductors of long standing are brakemen, engineers of equal standing, are firemen, and telegraphers—the latter branch which is now headed by Senator Robertson, there being 8,000 in Canada, are out of work and on the spare list.

"The continuation of such a government then, should not be supported," added the speaker.

Railway earnings are falling off, and the railways must reduce railway traffic especially self maintained railways like the C.P.R. and the only way they do it is by cutting down the number of their employees.

Building Trade Less

The building permits issued in Canada this year are $47,000,000 less than they were last year, and the Labor Gazette independently says that the labor tendency in Canada is downward by a greater extent than 1923. All Provinces in all classes of employment show a great slump. Though 300,000 Canadians have left Canada for the United States in the past year, there are still 200,000 unemployed here now and low tariff is the cause.

As a result of the United States Fordney tariff bill of 1921 (the year the conservatives went out of power) the export of farm produce from Canada to the States has fallen off greatly owing to the high tariff wall which is up against Canadian products. In 1921, $159,000,000 worth of Canadian products were shipped to the States but up until September 30th, 1924 from the first of the year, it was reduced to $64,000,000. The cheese tariff is raised against our cheese and our cheese eaters are in the United States (300,000 of them having gone over last year)

"Hot Shot" For Murdock

Mr. Frank Shea, secretary of Toronto Postal Employees Union, told in emphatic tones the sordid story of Murdock's actions leading up to, and during the postal strike last summer, affecting 1,700 men in Toronto. Mr. Shea told of receiving the message over the telephone from Murdock, when he said that they could stay out, "till hell freezes over", after he had told the Minister that the men would stay out until they received a reasonable remuneration, which would decently support themselves and their families.

The speaker characterized Murdock's deferment notice as "tommy rot," and related about Murdock having told Mr. Jackson of Toronto, head of the postal employes, "Jackson, you bluffed, but you did not bluff far enough."

"We called his bluff though", indignantly shouted the speaker. "And had he lived up to his agreement we would have gotten what we were after". On returning to work on June 29th, the postal workers were promised everything they requested, but soon afterwards 37 employes were dispensed with in Toronto, all of whom are war veterans. They are no-pensionable men with families and are walking the streets of Toronto yet, many of them almost ready for the poor house.

"All this through the ignorance of that ignoramus Murdock," exclaimed the Toronto man.

"Go on boy—Tell us more about him, Stay with it," howled the crowd.

"Does Murdock hold a card in the Brotherhood of Railroad trainmen?" he asked.

"Yes but if he received his dues, we should have taken it off him years ago," came back a voice from the audience.

Later, Mr. Shea pointed out that 37 more postal employes were "let out", by this "just and generous man", (Loud laughter and applause.)

Life of Deceit

"Murdock's life has been one of deceit and deception," continued Mr. Shea and he is unable to look upon the humane side [illegible] He is John Na[illegible] am right—the wo[illegible] I am only an ordinary [illegible] but I can speak in a [illegible] I am sorry I cannot say that much for Murdock the cabinet minister."—(The greatest applause ever, greeted Shea when he concluded.)

Mr. Donald Sutherland M.P. reminded the audience that nearly all members of the Government are in the riding, and that the Minister of Militia has been "wired to rush to the rescue." He criticized the attitude of Mayor Fraser and other Liberals who denied Senator Robertson British free speech, and described Motherwell and Marshall as being typical examples of free trade artists who would like to accomplish with one sweep what King is trying to do by degrees.

Marshall was never legally appointed Commissioner of Agriculture, Mr. Sutherland stated, and Mr. Meighen has challenged the Minister of Justice in the matter of Marshall drawing $6,000 per year being not legally appointed.

Speaking of the campaign tactics of the Liberals, the speaker did not wish anyone to try and tell him that the days of Byron Lott and his gang were gone forever. "It is men like Porter who are needed to clean up this rotten mess" he added, (amid cheers and applause). Honor and a higher moral standard was needed.

Mr. Sutherland told of deputy speaker Gordon's unfairness as chairman of the committee of the whole house in discussion of the Murdock matter.

Mr. Meighen Speaks Out

The next Prime Minister of Canada was of course given a great ovation when he arose, and he substantiated every word which Senator Robertson had spoken.

"King held that document which he later said was "confidential", just so the incoming conservative party could not benefit by the use of it in forcing the railway company to take back the employes," emphasized the Conservative Chieftain.

"The Liberals are using a high pressure method in this campaign," he explained, "by introducing from two hundred to four hundred "heelers" into the riding, who are unknown here, and who are now scattering scurrilous whisperings and sly insinuations about the Conservative candidate. They will not discuss their side of the indictment on the real issue however, but try to force these mis-representations into the minds of electors."

Mr. Meighan very carefully and clearly outlined the Murdock charges, and again explained Murdock's unfair attitude towards the speaker in his vague and uncertain charges in 1918 in continuing [illegible]

BRANDS ATTACK MOST DIRTY OF ENTIRE CAREER

E. Guss Porter Raps Hanna Supporters For False Utterances

NAILS DOWN A FEW

Knows Little of Hanna's Life; Cares Little About It

"Never in the history of my political life, has there been such unscrupulous attacks made as have been made by the opposition in this bye-election," exclaimed Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C. Saturday night at the City Hall.

"The mis-representations, villifications and mis-conceptions used by them seem to be worse than a human being would be considered capable of" he continued.

"I have never uttered at any time during the campaign, nor implied on any platform, one statement which Hanna's speakers state that I have made."

Then the candidate nailed down just a few of the many scurrilous allegations.

They say that I have publicly stated that Charles Hanna is an illegitimate child. This is absolutely and utterly false. I never at any time in any place, before any audience or to anyone publicly or privately made such a statement and may that end it. If you are not satisfied to take my word for it I am prepared to take my oath that I never made such a statement. I do not know his parents and I know nothing about his life."

"I am also charged with stating that Hanna did not take care of his father mother and another relative"—(loud and absurd laughter). "I never said it I do not know where he lives, how he lives or any thing about his life."

No Disgrace

They also say that I stated that Hanna's mother "took in washing". I never said it. I do not know whether she did or not but even if I did say it, that is no disgrace. A woman may make her living by taking in washing and still be as respectable as any other woman in the community".

Then commenting on the 'hired girl' and 'hired man' matter of which the Daily Ontario has made so much, Mr. Porter explained that Murdock's stenographer was one of Ottawa's most respectable young ladies—too respectable to be mixed up in such a mess as the Murdock charges, I may have referred to her as the 'hired girl' I have also referred to her as the 'stenographer'. She is a hired girl, because any girl who works for wages is properly known in the English language as a 'hired girl', and any man who works for wages is also a 'hired man' They would have you believe that I speak disparagingly of girls who are stenographers or who may be maids in order that they may cause them to work against me. I said nothing against any girl.

Referring to one of the "Bob-Tail Club"—or rather Booster Club community songs, Mr. Porter smiled and the audience enjoyed convulsive laughter.

To the tunes of a well-known song, they sing,

"Porter and his cohorts will never win again
On the bonny, bonny banks of West
Hastings."

"If Charlie has another 'spasm' like this, it will obliterate any existence he might have had", commented the candidate, who also reminded that the sole idea of such propaganda was for a wicked purpose.

E. GUSS PORTER DESERVES SUPPORT

Vicious attacks have been made on Mr. E. Guss Porter K.C., the Liberal-Conservative candidate in this bye-election campaign. Seldom is a political candidate in Canada compelled to force such personal acrimony, such malice persecution as that which Mr. Porter has been subjected during the past two weeks. The abuse showered on this veteran member for West Hastings would have been sufficient to drown scores of weaker candidates than Mr. Porter.

He has been held up to ridicule for charging James Murdock. He has been charged with insincerity in his effort to keep cabinet ministers honorable. Followers of Charles Hanna have made nasty insinuations on his character. Lying lips have told West Hastings audiences that he has done nothing for the riding during his long term at Ottawa. Liberals have seized on anything and everything which in their minds would discredit Mr. Porter personally. Nothing has been too low for them to reach.

On his own admission, Mr. Porter is no saint. He is not posing before the electors of West Hastings as a "holier than thou" person. Indeed it is scarcely necessary to tell West Hastings the sort of man he is. Standing in the public eyes for a quarter of a century the majority of residents have had ample opportunity to size up his character faults and attributes.

With all sincerity, the Intelligencer says this. If within the entire period of his twenty-five years of membership in the Canadian House of Commons, he had done little more than to call the Government on this dishonorable act of James Murdock, his service would have been worth while. But when Mr. Porter takes such action as he did in the last session, it comes as a crowning touch to years of service rarely equalled in any riding of the Dominion.

Is it not something to be admired, this undertaking of Mr. Porter's? Here is a man no longer young measured in years. In twenty-five years, Parliaments have changed, governments have passed. Great political problems of national moment have stirred the country to its foundations. Yet session in and session out, he has always had his seat in the House. In twenty-five years, he had never known defeat. He was about ready to retire at the next general election with one of the most unique records in the political history of the Dominion. It is a record of which any man might well be proud and many a politician would have hesitated long before placing it in jeopardy.

Mr. Porter did not. A fighter to the last ditch, and impressed by the seriousness of James Murdock's offence, he was willing to sacrifice his place in parliament to the duty off the hour. Even after Liberals had urged him not to resign, when Murdock had been whitewashed, Mr. Porter stuck to his sense of honor thoroughly convinced by the evidence given before the investigating committee that the minister of Labor was guilty.

Does not that arouse pride in the hearts of West Hastings people whom he represented?

* * *

His opponents say he has done nothing. What a prodigious statement to make against a man who has been returned to office by his constituents time and time again! Are West Hastings folk such fools as to be fooled for twenty-five long years?

Mr. Porter was one of the keenest fighters against reciprocity in 1911. Was not that worth while?

Mr. Porter supported conscription in 1917, when men like MacKenzie King and James Murdock were willing to allow war weary veterans overseas carry on without further help, while slackers remained at home. Was not that worth while?

Mr. Porter has for twenty-five years been upholding that great protection policy of Sir John A. McDonald. Was not that worth while?

Year in and year out, he has been one of the most valuable counsellors of the Conservative Party.

And while Mr. Porter has been handicapped by the fact that the aggregate number of years in which the Conservative Government has been in power during his career has been but ten, the member for West Hastings can most emphatically stamp out the mean charges that he has done nothing for West Hastings.

It is to be noted that the following partial list of what he has done contains benefits for the riding which could be obtained only by a man with considerable influence at Ottawa.

Secured every rural mail delivery in the West Riding of Hastings with the exception of one granted recently by the King Government, suddenly generous with bye-elections in progress;

Obtained for Belleville free mail delivery, a convenience not enjoyed by most places of the size of this city;

Had a mineral survey made of Hastings to encourage the development of natural resources;

Arranged for the steel bridge at Frankford;
Bought property from C.N.R. for a park at Frankford;
Saw to it that the armouries in Belleville were completed;
Was responsible for Battery Headquarters here;
Set machinery in motion to have the bay dredged for large boat traffic;
Connected up Prince Edward County with Hastings by a first class bridge;
Obtained a bridge for Trenton.
Put in a Government dock instead of the Municipal dock at Trenton.

Decidedly in Porter's favor, is the fact that he has never boasted about what he has done. Nor did he review his past efforts until forced into it by the unprincipled supporters of Hanna who deliberately stated that he had done nothing.

Mr. Porter asked why he should boast about what he accomplished. It was merely his duty.

West Hastings owes it to Mr. Porter to support his long and honorable career by sending him back to Ottawa with a substantial majority.

Points to Remember

Murdock knew he did wrong—his every action shows it.

He hurried from the cabinet meeting to the bank.

He refused a marked cheque though he said he withdrew the money in the ordinary course of business.

He passed the Royal Bank and walked away back to Parliament Hill in order to have his stenographer deposit the money in the Royal Bank in HER name.

That was his consideration for his wife whom he blamed for continually asking him to withdraw the money.

He did not return the money until he had received two letters from the liquidator of the Home Bank—the second one being a demand.

He saw the law court and British justice staring him in the face.

He first said he drew the money to pay on a mortgage. He swore at the investigation that this statement WAS UNTRUE.

G. N. Gordon said that he "tipped" Murdock off and Murdock says so too. Why could neither one of them remember the context of the conversation which they had held WHEN THEY WERE ON THEIR OATH and under examination by Mr. Porter?

Why did Gordon first announce that President Daly had told him of the Bank's condition, after Mr. Daly had died.

WHY DID EVERY CABINET MINISTER DECLINE TO GET UP AND DEFEND MURDOCK'S ACTION IN THE HOUSE WHEN ASKED TO DO SO BY MR. PORTER?

Now they are in the riding asking you electors to do what they refused to do themselves.

Why did Murdock NOT ACCEPT MR. PORTER'S CHALLENGE to fight the issue out on any platform at any time and preferably at the nomination

He came into the riding after Mr. Porter had arranged all his speaking dates and it was impossible to hurl the challenge at him when he WOULD HAVE TO accept it.

HE HAS NEVER DENIED THE CHARGES THOUGH GIVEN OPPORTUNITIES TIME AND AGAIN.

He complimented Mr. Porter personally as did other Liberals for the fair and just manner in which he laid and presented the charges.

He evaded the REAL issue is every speech he has yet made in the riding.

Thirty Years Ago

Col. Lazier of Belleville was in Napanee on Sunday.

Mrs. Marshall Parliament, who lived near Zion Hill, in Thurlow, died yesterday afternoon.

On Thursday afternoon games were held at the D. and D. Institute, and in the evening a reception was given the students in the dining room. The children were treated to light refreshments and candies and had a general good time.

Dr. James Lucas, a graduate of Edinburgh University, has been practising in Winnipeg for some time, but with poor success. On Tuesday he visited the office of the Free Press, offering for sale a two column article called "The Story of a Suicide." Lucas told the editor if the story was accepted he would commit suicide, as described in his sketch. The editor thought the man was intoxicated but promised to look over the manuscript. Dr. Lucas then went to his room, and after taking a dose of opium, hung himself from the ceiling by his braces. The body was found [illegible]

Ald. R. Gardiner by Ald. W. R. McCreary and Ald. R. J. E. Graham.
Wm. Boyd by John H. Hanna and D. G. Bleecker.

Mayor Mikel was the first speaker following the mayoralty nominations. He told of many approaching him to stay in the field for another year and said that the present year had been a very busy one for him by reason of his association with the United Empire Loyalist Celebration which proved to be such a success.

This year's council, he pointed out, had erected the Corby Baths, a power committee of the council had also been appointed (which the Mayor deems wise legislation and efforts were made to secure cheaper rates on fire insurance.

Mayor Mikel said he plans to develop Belleville's endowment by deepening the waters of the bay and augmenting water power. He was also strong for a tourist camp he intimated.

He also reminded those present that the Old Boy's Re-union planned for the next summer would be an event of distinction.

The Mayor had many good words to say for his council of the present year, who had accomplished some good work, and he made reference to the erection of the proposed soldier's monument. It would be an assured thing for next year, he felt.

The drawing of some money from the sinking fund and investing it in securities was a matter of diversified opinion.

Ex-Ald. G. F. Ostrom signified that he would drop out of the contest, if four nominees remained in the field. If, however, one or more retired, he would remain in the race, he said.

Mr. Ostrom told of his services for many years as an alderman and laid his municipal record before the electors.

Ald. H. W. Greenleaf told of being Belleville born and a life long resident here. By request of many friends after a service of two years as Alderman he had been asked to stand for the Chief Magistrate's office.

Deaths and Funerals

MRS. M. A. VANDERWATER

On Sunday afternoon the body of the late Mrs. John Vanderwater was consigned to the tomb at Elmwood cemetery after services at the home in Thurlow Township, Rev. E. Farnsworth of Canifton circuit conducted services at the house and grave. Many relatives and friends were in attendance at the obsequies. Bearers were Messrs H. Gerow, C. Osborne, E. Huggins, W. and B. and W. H. Gilbert.

MRS. ELIZABETH WILSON

One of the most highly respected citizens of West Huntingdon in the person of Mrs. Elizabeth Badgeley Wilson wife of Mr. James A. Wilson, passed away at the family home on Sunday, November 9. She had been ill for about eight weeks with septic poisoning. Mrs. Wilson was a daughter of the late John A. Badgely and was born on the 5th concession of Thurlow a little more than 43 years ago. During her girlhood she attended High School in Belleville, but since her marriage she has lived in Huntingdon. She was a woman of sterling worth and was an active worker in the Methodist Church, taking a leading part in the W.M.S. of which she was a life member, the Mission Band and the Sunday School, as well as promoting the cause of Temperance. In politics she was a Conservative and was also active in the Women's Institute of Ivannoe.

Besides her husband she leaves one daughter, Evelyn, and one son, Clarence. Miss Evelyn was a nurse-in-training at Kingston General Hospital and received the following letter from her classmates there:

"Dear Sister,—We are very, very sorry to hear of your sad bereavement caused by the death of your mother. We all extend to you our heartfelt sympathy. Signed on behalf of your classmates, F. Muronghan."

Mrs. Wilson also leaves to mourn her loss, two sisters, Mrs. Miller of Syracuse and Mrs. Zeigler of Rochester and two brothers, John of Thurlow and William of Toronto.

The funeral was held on Tuesday, November 11 and was one of the largest that was ever held in Huntingdon in a long time. The service was conducted by Rev. J. F. Lane.

The pall bearers were Messrs. Sam Fargey, George Rupert, J. Haggarty, S. Donnan, George Cook and Howard Ashley. Interment was made in Luke's cemetery.

DAVID PRICE

One of the most highly esteemed and worthy citizens of Belleville passed away Sunday evening at the General Hospital in the person of ex-Alderman David Price. Mr. Price had been ailing for some weeks but the end came quite suddenly, following a severe heart attack.

Deceased was born in England some eighty-six years ago, and came to this country when but a young man. A resident of Belleville for about fifty years. Mr. Price's first venture was in the hardware business; some time later he became a commercial traveller in the same line, being connected for many years with the Montreal firm of Coverhill & Learmont, and was one of the best known commercial travellers in the province.

Later in life Mr. Price acted in the capacity of City Treasurer, holding this position for twenty-three years.

In politics, Mr. Price was a staunch Liberal. In religion, a Methodist and one of the oldest members of Bridge street Methodist church. Mr. Price was, as well, a past master of Moira Lodge A.F.&A.M.

Deceased is survived by two sons, Harry at Maryfield, Saskatchewan, and Frank, Manager of the Molson's Bank at Norwich Ont.

Funeral notice will appear to-morrow.

Queens Too Good For The Bengals

Trounce Yellow and Black Easily 11-1 at Varsity Stadium

Toronto. Nov. 24—Queen's University, three times collegiate champions and twice Canadian title-holders, overcame what was considered their greatest obstacle in their hunt for their third Dominion title on Saturday afternoon at Varsity Stadium, when they defeated Hamilton Tigers, Interprovincial winners for the last two years by 11 to 1 and so thoroughly out-played the Tigers that the Big Four champions did not appear to be in the same class. Earlier in the season the Tricolor was far from impressive in its victory over Toronto and McGill, in the Inter-collegiate Union, and were extended to the full to get down in front but against the Interprovincial champions the Kingston team was always better, and seemed to be playing well within themselves all the way.

Tigers tried hard all the afternoon and fought right to the last, but it was early seen that only a complete collapse of the University machine would give the Bengals a chance for victory The winners scored six points, two field goals by Leadley, inside the first five minutes of the game, and from then on played a steady and safe game keeping Tigers beyond scoring distance on all except one occasion, and adding points to their total whenever the opportunity offered. Only once during the game was the ball behind Queen's goal line, and that was when Gibb attempted a field goal in the second period and it went wide, Batstone being forced to rouge. In the last period Tigers were never in possession on their opponents' side of centre field and Queen's very seldom had to pull the ball in play in their own half of the field.

Queen's Are Best

The Tricolor's victory was the most convincing one they have scored in a championship fixture this season, and was decidedly more emphatic than the 13 to 5 defeat they administered to the Bengals in the Eastern Canada final a year ago. Tigers only superiority was on the line but this was more than off set by Leadley's well nigh perfect kicking. The champions' captain was responsible for the eleven points secured by his team, scoring three field goals, sending the ball to the deadline on his other attempt for three points, when he missed the objective by inches and then kicking over for a rouge. Only some pretty running by Quinn and K. Walker in the last quarter kept him from increasing his total.

Tigers can rightly claim credit that they held the Leadley-Batstone combination in check better than any other team has this season, Queen's who made yards out six times during the game, made five of their gains through the line, the other success being secured when Leadley let Gib McKelvey away for fifteen yards on a long pass out in the third period. As far as carrying the ball when in possession, the Queen's back division was far from prominent, and Gib McKelvey was always the means of gaining the distance. In addition to the previously mentioned dash, he gained 25 yards on three criss-cross plays which ended by him spurting through the centre of the line.

While on the defensive Leadley and Batstone had better opportunities to carry the ball and they both tore off some good gains. In the first period, Batstone ran the ball back 32 years, while Leadley produced the feature run of the game in the third period when he picked up a bounding ball while under full speed and was not crossed until he had clicked off a 45-yard gain. These two runs were the outstanding ball-carrying activities of the two star backs.

Pleaded Guilty To Ritchie Theft

John Salty Wilson Brought From States; Police Court News

John "Salty" Wilson, wanted on burglary charges is in custody here today. Sergeant of Detectives John Truaisch brought Wilson to Belleville from Windsor on Saturday.

Wilson was quietly arrested by Detective Miller of the Detroit police department in a Detroit street late last week and was held for local police. Later he was held in custody by Chief Thompson of the Windsor department until officer Truaisch arrived.

Wilson pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering the Ritchie Co. store and the Belleville Shoe Co. and was remanded to jail for one week for sentence. E. J. Butler is defending him.

Reckless Driving Charge

The first arrest on a reckless driving charge ever made in this city, resulted this morning when Harry Graves, aged 22, was taken into custody following a serious accident on Station street. When he appeared in court this morning, the accused was remanded to jail for one week.

As a result of the crash, A. L. Greatrix, R.R. No. 6 and his seven-year-old daughter were thrown from his machine and injured. His new car was also badly damaged when it was turned right over on the boulevard.

Greatrix was driving west on Station street this morning and Graves driving Ben McConnell's car, was going east. Some obstruction caused Graves to apply the brakes, his car swerving sideways on the street the other car a broadside, toppling it over. Both cars were badly damaged. The accident occurred in front of A. Sate's place.

Settle Family Quarrel

Magistrate Mason listened to a detailed and humorous story of a real old family squabble this morning and in the finish bound over both complainant and defendant, who are neighbors to keep the peace.

Upset on Trent Road

As Beverley Gribble drove his car west on the Trenton road Sunday, at a point nearly opposite the Ontario School for the Deaf, it left the highway and crashed into a pole. The car was badly damaged, but fortunately the driver escaped almost unscathed.

Crash on Front Street

When Kenneth Deline, 110 Station street, turned his motor car in Front street opposite the T. Blackburn store at 10 o'clock this morning, W. H. Brooks, 98 Murney street, who was following him, crashed into him. Brooks was driving north. Deline will settle for damages to the Brooks car.

SPECIAL MEETING

Hanna's scrutineers are requested to meet at the club rooms at 7 p.m. to-night, also all parties volunteering cars and drivers are to meet at 7.30 p.m. for instructions.

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"Confound it!" said Lord Cecil. "I never said anything of the kind! Don't put words I never used into my mouth, please, Churchill!"

"Didn't you? Then how did I get the idea, I wonder?" responded the other, looking gravely troubled. "Surely not from Lady Grace herself? Oh! no—no!" and he looked extremely pained. "I should very much regret giving you a wrong impression of my opinion of that charming young creature, my dear Cecil! Most charming! Ah! what a wife she will make! You don't agree with me—no? Well, perhaps—er—yes, I understand you. Beauty, however charming it may be, is not the best possession a woman can boast of ? No! after all, perhaps, as you think, a young, unsophisticated girl unaccustomed to the intoxication of constant admiration, would prove a more valuable companion for one's life. These London belles are—er—like the well-known Oriental fruit, more beautiful to the eye than the touch, and——"

Lord Cecil broke into a laugh.

"What on earth are you driving at?" he demanded.

"I driving at!" exclaimed Spencer Churchill, opening his eyes with an innocent stare. "What do you mean, my dear Cecil? What on earth do you mean?"

Lord Cecil clasped his hands round his knees and looked at the round smooth face and extended eyes with faint amusement.

"You'd make an excellent Chinese puzzle, Churchill," he said. "If what you mean is to warn me against marrying Lady Grace——"

"My dear Cecil," broke in the soft voice pitched in a tone of strained horror.

"You can spare yourself the trouble, for I haven't the least intention of doing so—at present."

Spencer Churchill's thick eyelids quivered almost imperceptibly; but beyond this faint sign, no other trace of any emotion was visible at this frank announcement.

"Really?" he said; "I thought—But, my dear Cecil, don't you consider her a most beautiful and charming woman? and—er—come now, after all, you would find it difficult to discover a more suitable partner, eh?"

Lord Cecil frowned.

"Let us change the subject," he said curtly.

"Well, perhaps you're right after all," said the other, with a bland promptitude. "Yes, no doubt, you are right! That sort of woman is better in a picture, eh? Yes, we'll change the subject! What time do you dine here?"

"Eight," said Lord Cecil. "I don't dine at home to-night—at the Towers," he corrected himself. "I have an engagement."

"Really? I am so sorry! Can't you put it off—for my sake? Write and tell the people that you are too good-natured to dine out when an old friend turns up."

"I'm not going to dine out," said Lord Cecil, absently.

"No; really? Now, where can you be going?"

"I think the marquis was inquiring for you," said Lord Neville curtly; "I'll tell him you are here," and dropping from his perch, he sauntered into the house.

Spencer Churchill leaned over the balcony and smiled.

"Going to the theatre again!" he murmured. "Yes; I haven't been to a country theatre for some time; I really think I should like to go and see what it is like!"

CHAPTER X.

FOR HIM ALONE

Doris went home, her heart throbbing with an emotion which was half pain, half joy.

Lord Cecil Neville had asked her to meet him to-morrow. "I promise nothing!" she had said, and when she said it she fully meant that she would not come; and yet, now, as she walked hurriedly to the lodgings, she knew that when the morrow arrived, she would feel drawn to the spot as the steel is drawn to the magnet.

But if she had promised nothing, he had promised. He had said that he would be at the theatre that night, and she remembered how her heart had leaped at his words; even now they rang sweetly in her ears.

Heaven only knows with what delight she dwelt upon the thought that he would be present, listening to her as she spoke the passion-laden words of Juliet.

All this was joy, but the pain came on. Alas, that all our joy should be attended so closely by that grim companion.

"Love's feet are softly shod with pain," says the poet.

For the first time in her young life she had a secret from Jeffrey. It had been difficult to tell him yesterday of her acquaintance with Lord Cecil Neville; she felt now that it would be impossible to tell him, for she knew that she could not recount the incidents of their meeting without letting him know how interested she had become in this young nobleman, whose head had rested on her knee, and whose face haunted her night and day.

And she knew that once she had told Jeffrey, he would forbid her even to see or speak to Lord Neville again. And this seemed too dreadful for her to bear.

Yes, it had come to this; that the great actress, with the heart and purity of a child, had become so interested, so fascinated—if that is the right word—with this stranger, that the thought of not seeing him again, or hearing his voice, was intolerable.

Her steps grew less hurried as she neared home, and her thoughts had crystalized into this shape.

"After all, where is the harm? He is good and kind, and I have so few friends—no one, excepting dear old Jeffrey!—that I cannot afford to lose him. Besides, I shall act better if I know that he is in the theatre. I don't know why that is, but it is so. And Jeffrey ought to be glad of that. Oh, if I could only tell him! But I cannot!"

Once during the day she did make the effort; she began to talk about the fields and the beautiful on-coming of spring, but Jeffrey would not listen. He was full of the business of the theatre, full of expected offers from the great London managers, and paid no attention to what she was saying, merely remarking that, after all, the open air was the place to study in.

To study in! Yes, she knew that! It was in the open air that she had first seen Lord Neville, and learned the way to speak Juliet's "Good-night!"

She did not leave the house again that day, but spent it studying her part. There were one or two points that she had missed, so Jeffrey said, and she went over them again and and again.

And how do you think she mastered them? By imagining that Lord Neville was the Romeo, and it was for love of him she suffered and died!

"It was wrong?" Yes, but life is full of wrong, and it is not until youth is passed; and experience is gained, that we learn to distinguish the wrong from the right.

The night came, and with it the fly to carry them to the theatre.

There was an immense crowd collected outside the pit and gallery doors and the manager met them with the glad tidings that all the reserved seats were taken.

"An immense success, my dear Miss Marlowe. You have hit them hard!" he said, smiling and nodding.

That he had only spoken truly was patent from the welcome which she received when she made her first appearance. A roar went up and shook the very chandelier, as the slim, graceful, girlish figure entered from the wings.

As is usual, I believe, with actors, for some minutes she could not see beyond the footlights; but presently she began to distinguish faces in the hazy glow, and she saw the handsome, tanned face she had expected—and longed for!

He had come then, as he had promised!

Informal Reception Planned For Leader

Public Invited to Meet Mr. Meighen at Armouries To-night

An informal reception will be held in the Officers' Mess at the Armouries after the Public Meeting tonight for the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, M.P. An invitation is extended to all persons to be present to meet the leader of the Conservative party in Canada.

Social Items

Mr. Austin Walters of Queen's University spent the week-end [illegible] his home on Catherine Street.

Mr. J. D. Blue, of Crookston, is a visitor in town to-day.

Darkens Hair So Naturally No One Knows

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy

Bebe Daniels Is An Indian Girl

In "The Heritage of the Desert" at Belle Theatre

Adopted by a Navajo squaw during the filming of Zane Grey's "The Heritage of the Desert" which Irvin Willat produced for Paramount, Bebe Daniels now possesses full right to the ancient privileges of the tribe.

While the company of over three hundred players was on location in southern Utah Miss Daniels became a prime favorite with the Indians and the adoption followed. Henceforth she will be accorded the protection of the Navajo Medicine Men against sickness, evil spirits and the designs of her enemies.

When the lengthy and somewhat trying ceremony of adoption was concluded, the squaw "mother" looked triumphantly at Mrs. Daniels, who accompanied the players on location, and said, "She is not your daughter mother."

The featured players in "The Heritage of the Desert" are Bebe Daniels, Ernest Torrence, Noah Beery and any more. She my daughter. I her Lloyd Hughes. The picture opens at the Belle Theatre to remain for three days, Monday Tuesday and Wednesday.

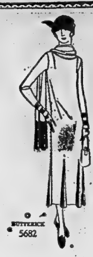
UNCLE TOM'S CABIN

Apropos to the coming of the Leon W. Washburn production of the original Stetson "Uncle Tom's Cabin" to the Griffin Theatre for matinee and evening performances, the matinee commencing immediately after school dismisses, on Tuesday November 25th, a short story of the original cabin and location of same may be of interest. The people round Natchitoche, La., have long insisted that Robt. McAlpine of that immediate vicinity, was the original Simon Legree. His house and plantations were the only ones, on or near the Red river fitting the description in the book, and, he the only person who "filled the bill". He was intemperate and merciless having died before the war, leaving a reputation for brutality, which even now, sixty-five years following his death, is mentioned with horror. It is a well-known fact that the late Mrs. Stowe visited this immediate section of the country shortly previous to writing "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and the presumption is that she came in contact with McAlpine, during one of his brutish moods, when he was abusing some poor slave and she, then and there got her idea for Simon Legree.

On his place lived a faithful old slave, known as Uncle Tom, who was sold from Old Kentucky, who suffered everything but actual torture to death at the hands of McAlpine. Mr. S. Chopin, the present wealthy owner of the former McAlpine estate, has preserved the cabin in which Uncle Tom is believed to have lived and died in the confident belief that it will in time become an object of great curiosity to future generations. The cabin, though small, having only three rooms is well and strongly built, covered with heavy cyprus boards, and it is in an excellent state of preservation and, as an object of slavery days, it is a very interesting spot to visit. The plantation is wide open, at all times, to visitors from the north, who are always welcome and who will be furnished with a competent guide, capable of pointing out all the interesting spots, including the grave believed to contain the body of McAlpine.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



BUTTERICK

The lady and the godet, the short skirt, and the floating scarf are obviously of the long sleeve, the slender silhouette
French extraction.

It is fortunate that as far as styles are concerned there is no fixed quota that France may fill but not overflow. Otherwise following so many new fashions this Autumn the godet might have been denied admission. It is very new very smart and very becoming, for it has the effect of easing the sheath silhouette without actually widening it. The narrow frock is retained under the godets so that the foundation remains excessively slender. The present styles to be smart must be worn at least ten inches from the floor and must be fitted closely at the hipline.

- Whites 4 eggs
- 1¼ cup fruit sugar
- ¾ lb. shelled almonds
- ½ lb. dates
- 1 tspn. vanilla

Blanch almonds and stone dates and put them through the meat chopper together. Beat whites of eggs until stiff. Add ½ the sugar, gradually beating all the time. Flavor, then fold in lightly the almonds and dates mixed with the remaining sugar. Turn into a shallow buttered pan and bake in a slow oven one hour. Cut in bars while hot, then remove from pan. This amount makes from four to five dozen.

Election Results Flashed On Screen

Watch for Results on Screen Across from "The Intelligencer"

The Intelligencer has again planned to announce the results of the bye-election on Tuesday night by flashing the returns on a screen hanging on the wall of the Wm. Thompson & Co. furniture store directly across the street.

The service will be commenced about 6.30 o'clock, and everyone is invited to attend the out-door meeting which will be the culmination of one of the "hottest" election campaigns ever staged in West Hastings.

LARGE GROUP

"I will have more to say at the meeting on Friday," he concluded.

Ald. W. R. McCreary had no apologies to offer for aspiring to the position of honor.

"For nine years," he explained, "I have served citizens in an official capacity—five years as a public school trustee and four years as an Alderman."

This candidate referre dto his casual and recent conversation with the Mayor during which he stated that he would not be a candidate if Mayor Mikel stood. He had the best to say for Mayor Mikel's record as he had been gentlemanly and courteous at all times. He had had reason to change his mind after his conversation with the Mayor, he said.

Ex-Mayor G. A. Bennett said he was in the field because promises made by the present Mayor had not been fulfilled

"Mayor Mikel, he explained, "Assured us last year that be would not be a candidate for the Mayoralty more than one year.. He has had one year to get something for Belleville in the way of cheaper fire insrance, but he has not done so."

Speaking of the old Boys Re-Union, he stated that Belleville had had successful re-unions in the past and would have in the future.

"My thoughts and sympathies," he went on, "Are for those citizens who are heavily burdened by taxation, and who are not benefitted by the sinking fund, which is their money."

Mr. Bennet said he had served Belleville for eighteen years, thirteen years on the school board and five years on the city council. Mayor Mikel had not given a square deal to labor men in the city, he charged. He claimed that he had shirked responsibility which should have been borne in the mind of the Chief Magistrate.

The speaker then asked Mayor Mikel to present a financial statement of the expenditure of the U. E. L. Celebration. The paving of the market sqare, he felt was an expensive proposition, when a cement pavement might have filled the requirements. In this way too Belleville would have been employed.

Taxes in the city had gone up two and a half mills with no benefits and the public works department had exceeded its appropriation of $27,000.

Ald. McCreary declared that the Public Works department was about up to its appropriation, but that the department would benefit by returns on account of work done. There would be no overdraft this year.

The council had built a drain for the Mead-Johnson plant, costing $1,600 which was not provided for in the appropriation.

The U. E. L. Commitee returned two thousand dolars and the city's expenses were twelve hundred. All the money that was voted to the U. E. L. Celebration was not returned to the city.

Though efforts were made by Mayor Mikel and Ald. McCreary to have the provincial government assume all the expenses of the city's share toward provincial highway government had left a great debt to be wiped out.

As a result great sums had to be paid to the Ontario Government as the city's share.

A voice—What about the reduction of the assessment on the Hotel Quinte?"

"I will explain that at the public meeting on Friday night", answered the speaker.

Mayor Mikel in replying to Ex-Mayor Bennett, felt that the public would not take seriously such petty charges. Mr. Bennett's criticism had resulted he said because he as the Mayor had signed debentures in his office. They were legally signed and signed in the office for the sake of convenience, he said.

Why did Mr. Bennett not buy a paving plant when, he was Mayor asked Mr. Mikel.

He had presided at every meeting of the council this year, he said.

The insurance rates in Belleville were cheaper than in many cities he pointed out and referring to the U.E.L. Celebration charges Mayor Mikel said that he gave freely of his time and money and never was paid one cent for his services.

"I hope that the electors will return the members of this year's council who seek re-election," he said.

School Trustees

In five of the seven wards of the city, public school trustees were elected by acclamation. In Coleman and Murney Wards more were nominated than is required and possibly a contest may take place. Those nominated were as follows:

Foster Ward—F. S. Anderson, proposed by G. T. Woodley, seconded by H. W. Greenleaf. Samson Ward—F. B. Smith, proposed by G. T. Woodley, seconded by J. W. Davison. Ketcheson Ward—A. McGie, proposed by G. T. Woodley, seconded by W. J. Diamond. Baldwin Ward—John W. Cock, proposed by F. Potter, seconded by S. Sprague. Bleecker Ward—F. Potter, proposed by Wm. Fairbairn, seconded by Robt. Gardiner. Coleman Ward—Geo. Sprackett, proposed by R. W. McCreary, seconded by D. G. Bleecker; C. E. Hanna, proposed by G. T. Woodley, seconded by J. Bone; Wm. J. Looker, proposed by H. W. Greenleaf, seconded by Robt. Gardiner. Murney Ward—E. A. Geen proposed by S. H. Treverton, seconded by G. F. Ostrom; Geo. F. Cole, proposed by G. T. Woodley, seconded by S. H. Treverton; A. R. Schryver, proposed by G. T. Woodley, seconded by S. H. Treverton; W. A. Woodley, proposed by G. F. Ostrom, seconded by G. A. Bennbtt.

CHICAGO MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Sharply higher quotations at Liverpool association more or less with proposed landing of British troops on seizure of Custom House control in Egypt, led to fresh upturn to-day in wheat price here. Fact that world shipments of wheat were below expectations tendered also to lift value. Opening quotations which ranged from 1-4 to 1 5-8 cent higher were followed by slight further gains and then something of re-action corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength. It was pointed out that for 35 years back corn market has invariably reached top prices later than November. After opening at 3-8 cent to 1 1-8 cent to 5-8 cent up and like corn kept relatively firm despite lower quotation, hogs, provision market reflected advance of grain values.

PRESENTATION EXERCISES AT QUEEN VICTORIA SCHOOL

A very pleasant hour was spent in the Assembly Room of Queen Victoria School on Friday afternoon by the Pupils, Staff, Members of the Board of Education and many of the parents, when the prizes and trophies won by the school during the year in competition with the other city schools were presented. This year the school won the Harvey Silver Cup for Soccer Championship and the Marsh Silver Cup for having the most proficient Cadet Corps. The Governor General's Medal awarded each year to the pupil of twelve years of age or under taking the highest marks at the Entrance Examinations in this city was won by Miss Lillian Naylor, a pupil of this school who tied with a pupil from Q.A.S. Both pupils will be presented with their medals by the Governor-General in person when he visits Belleville if the Chairman of the Board succeeds in making this arrangement. Pupils from this school have won the Governor General's Medal ten times in thirteen years. Under the direction of Miss Irene Rankin, the following splendid short program was provided:

Chairman's Address—Mr. A. Jones, Chairman of Q.V.S. Committee.
Opening Chorus—The Maple Leaf—By the School Choir.
Health Song—By Four Primary Pupils
Presentation of the Strathcona Prizes for Marksmanship to the four winners by Mr. Sidenius of the Y. M. C. A.
Song—By Sylvia Tett and Chorus.
Presentation of the Strathcona Prize for Physical Culture to Miss Karahman's Class by Mr. Don Bleecker.
A Folk Dance—By the Senior Girls.
Presentation of the Marsh Cup for proficiency in Cadet Drill, by Mr. John Cooke.
O Canada—By the School Choir.
Presentation of the Harvey Cup for Soccer Championship by Mr. Wm. Harvey, the donor of the cup, who announced that a medal for each player on the team would come later.
Address—By Mr. G. T. Woodley, Chairman of the Board, who made the announcement re the Governor General's Medal.
Song—By Harry Harris and Chorus.

The program was ended by singing the usual school closing song followed by God Save the King.

Gang Tears Down Election Bills

Hanna Supporters Show More Evidences of Poor Principles

More dirty and unfair Liberal campaign work came to hand this morning.

Posters advertising Mr. Porter's Saturday night meeting and tonight's monster meeting at Griffin's theatre, have been torn from bill boards since they were put up and in two places Hanna's picture has been pasted up in their stead. Some eight or ten bills have been torn down, and it appears to be the work of an organized gang.

UNIQUE SERVICE AT NEW YORK CHURCH

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 24—With blue incense smoke spiralling from censers on either side of the pulpit at the Episcopal Church of St. Mark's, in the bowery, two Indians in native costume intoned songs, prayers and other tribul rituals at "Indian Service" yesterday. Dr. Guthrie at the close of the service said he had received no word from Bishop Manning in regard to the ceremony and that even if he had "received word, expressing disapproval of the service, the program would have gone on as scheduled just the same" He added that his program "would not be modified during the coming year."

HINT SOME CANDIDATES DISQUALIFIED

VOTE IN 1923 MAY DISTURB MAYOR'S RACE

When One Mill was Applied To Reduce Principal Levy

LAW IS DEFINITE

Those Voting Cannot Hold Office For Two Years

There is a rumor that some of the Mayoralty candidates may be disqualified from running owing to the fact that they voted for the by-law adopting the estimates, August 20th, 1923, by which an amount of 1 mill on the dollar $9271.32 of the Sinking Fund was applied generally to reduce the levy for principal, sinking fund and interest on all debentures, instead of applying it to the particular debts as to which it was earned, contrary to Sec. 302, S. S. 1, Subsection 5 provides that those who voted for this are disqualified for two years.

Sirdar Shooting Stirs the Empire

Dissolution of Parliament in Egypt is Hinted

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 26.—The British Government is going to withold further action in Egypt to allow the new Cabinet there time to reconsider British demands, only a part of which the Zaghloul ministry agreed to. It is stated the British Government has hopes that the Cabinet of Ziwar Pasha will be able to see its way clear to agree to the demands in which case the assassination of Sirdar will be considered closed as far as the diplomatic relations of Great Britain and Egypt are concerned.

Cairo, Nov. 25.—An improved atmosphere prevailed in Cairo to-day following yesterday's sensational political developments resulting from the course taken by Great Britain in consequence of the assassination last week of Sirdar, Sir Lee Stack. British paraded the streets again this morning but otherwise there were few signs of the unusual. Students in educational institutions who had struck in protest against British demands, returned to schools but refused to take up their work. Ziwar Pasha's new Cabinet discussed the situation today with ex-Premier Zaghloul Pasha and it is learned the new Government's program will be submitted to the chamber of deputies this evening. If an immediate vote of confidence is not forthcoming, it is understood the Ziwar is prepared to recommend prorogation of Parliament or even dissolution.

MUSICIAN KILLED IN HAMILTON STREET

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 25.—Gelmar Dornheim, 241 East 86th Street New York City, a member of the orchestra of the "Thief of Bagdad", playing at the Grand Opera House, died in the general hospital at 9.30 o'clock Monday night, from injuries he received when struck on Main street by an auto driven by George Burke, 192 Locke Street south. Burke was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence, and it was intimated that a more serious indictment might be preferred against him. His touring car was seized by the police and taken to patrol station.

Dornheim suffered terrible injuries when he was struck by the car as he attempted to cross Main street at the intersection of Emerald street while on his way to report for duty at the opera house. The accident occurred at 7.45 o'clock, and the injured man breathed his last at 9.30 o'clock without regaining consciousness.

Barnard Is Guilty Awaits Sentence

Home Bank Director is Convicted on Three Counts

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 25—C. A. Barnard, K. C. of Montreal, one of the Directors of the defunct Home Bank of Canada was this morning found guilty on three counts in connection with the collapse of that institution. Charges were briefly, making false statements to the Government on the Bank condition, unlawfully using such statements and negligently concurring in false returns. Another Director, Lieut-Col. Clarence Smith is awaiting sentence on convictions regarding bank cases, also two officials of Bank.

Statements referred to in each case is the annual report of the Bank's affairs for its fiscal year ending May 31, 1923 to the Minister of Finance. With those previously convicted, Barnard will be sentenced on Dec. 1. He is the first of those tried to have been found guilty on all three charges made by the Crown. R. H. Robertson, who is counsel for Barnard asked for a certificate for appeal. Judge Coatsworth will give his decision on the application Friday, until his sentence is allowed same bail as he had during his trial. As in all other Home Bank cases the Judge found that the annual statement for 1923 contained false statements.

In passing judgment, His Honor commented in part as follows "though accused neglected Directors' meetings he was actively mixed up in business of the Bank throughout, and did not neglect any opportunity of using its funds for his own purposes and those of his companies. In the meantime he must have known that enormous debts concerning which he interceded with the Minister of Finance, had, instead of being paid or reduced, piled up higher and higher until all control was lost. Accused was deeply involved in all wrecking transactions either by direct participation or actual knowledge and cannot now plead ignorance. His visit to the Minister of Finance in 1916 showed knowledge of large bad debts of Bank which never improved."

FIERY CROSS BURNS NEAR TORONTO NOW

Toronto, Nov. 25.—Sunday's double "fiery cross" burning was followed last night by the setting afire of another cross on the Kennedy Road, West Toronto, a little east of Runnymede School. The cross was a wooden affair about seven feet high, and, according to people in that vicinity who saw it brightly illuminated it must have been composed of the usual inflammable oil-soaked rags. The cross was stuck in the ground on the edge of a ravine, and the fire burned some of the scanty grass thereon. The reflection of the blaze could be seen for a considerable distance. However, neither the firemen nor the police were notified of the affair. The firing of the cross was similar to the burning of the one on the old belt line bridge, at Yonge and Merton streets, in that there was no white-robed ceremonial accompanying it.

Police Probe Case Of Unusual Nature

Valuable Heifer Owned in Prince Edward County Is Found Dead

Provincial police officers of this city, working in conjunction with Prince Edward county officers are still investigating a very unusual case which has been brought to their attention, but as yet the investigation has not brought out definite facts.

The case in question is the unusual killing of a two-year-old heifer belonging to Amos Huff of Hallowell, near Picton. Mr. Huff found the hide head and tail only of the animal in a field, the meat alone being missing. The heifer was a descendant of the famous May Echo and was valued at $200

OSHAWA PLANS FOR EMPLOYMENT EARLY

Oshawa, Ont., Nov. 25.—Last night the City Council passed a motion which directed that application be at once made to the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners to apportion the cost of a subway under the Canadian National Railway tracks at their crossing on Simcoe Street. It is estimated that the work will give employment to at least 100 men for all the Winter.

More Scandal is Adduced Today At Montreal Police Probe Resumption

Montreal, Nov. 25.—One of the first witnesses to take the stand this morning at the local police probe in Justice Coderre's Court, was Constable Joshua Robert, for three years a member of the traffic squad, who declared that his superior, Lieut. Trudeau of number two police station was "frequently intoxicated while on duty." Another witness was Jean Montmarquette who told of his difficulties when he applied for a job on the police force last autumn. He swore he was told by a certain officer that the only way for him to get on the force was to see an alderman and slip him something. The Chief of Police had finally told him to go and see Alderman Brodeur and when he had followed these instructions the alderman was so angry he "nearly threw me out," said witness.

RECORD VOTE IN EVIDENCE HERE TO-DAY

Fleets of Motor Cars Carry Electors to the Polls

WEATHER IS IDEAL

Promise of Plenty of Action in City This Evening

November 25th and election day at last.

Today West Hastings electors must choose whom they will send to Ottawa. It resolves itself into a "choice of the Edwards." One Edward Guss Porter, K.C., has continuously represented this riding since the riding was formed 23 years ago. After this election, West Hastings will be no more. The other Edward is Charles Edward Hanna, ambitious young business man.

There is every indication in Belleville and other parts of West Hastings that the largest vote ever polled in the riding will be polled today. Fleets of motor cars have been shooting about the city streets since the polls opened at eight o'clock this morning and will continue until they close this evening. Each car is evidently attempting to earn the fifty dollars which is reported to be the election prices paid to committee cars, many of whom were offered by surrounding towns until the demand was exceeded.

A feature of the election is the intense interest which is being taken by women, whose voting power will bear reckoning, by the way. Having taken an unprecedented interest in the campaign, local women have been working indefatigably since morning in getting their sisters' vote out.

Lull in Business

There is a noticeable lull in business and all sundry activity which does not deal with the bye-election. All minds are centred on the decision which will be given by electors on the real issue of the election—the moral issue.

Ideal November weather greeted those who this morning knew they had a full day's program today—rain or shine. Cool and dry is the weather—very "dry" for election day. Everything is being conducted in the most quiet and orderly manner, friction being unknown as yet.

There is every promise of action a-plenty this evening when suspense-stricken Belleville citizens will gather wherever "the gathering is good" for the earliest returns of this unique election.

SIR ARTHUR CURRIE IS WELL SATISFIED

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—General Sir Arthur Currie has no intention of entering public life. "I am perfectly happy where I am," Sir Arthur told the members of the Professional Institute of the Civil Service at their luncheon here Monday in opening a two days' convention, which is the annual meeting of the institute. Sir Arthur made reference to an article he had written for a magazine, and said that when he published that article a certain section of the super-sensitive press said he was about to enter public life. "Nothing was further from my thought," Sir Arthur told his audience.

ANCIENT ESTATE ON THE MARKET

Sir John Leigh, Bart., has decided to sell the estates of Lilleshall and Woodcote.

They cover 3,000 acres, and Lilleshall, once a seat of the Duke of Sutherland, is reputed to be one of the finest mansions in England.

The history of the property goes back to the time of Domesday.

In the Civil War Lilleshall was besieged its towers battered down, and its defenders killed.

The ruins of the historical abbey, which adjoin the grounds will be included in the sale, as well as the mansion and about 23 farms.

SMALL SISTERS GET THEIR $200,000

Toronto, Nov. 25.—A cheque for $200,000, signed by Mrs. Theresa Small, wife of the missing Ambrose J. Small, was paid over to Lawrence Boyd, accountant of the Supreme Court of Ontario, at Osgoode Hall yesterday. The amount goes to the credit of Mary Florence Maude Small and Gertrude Mercedes Small, sisters of A. J. Small. In compliance with an agreement entered into with Mrs. Small, each is to receive the annual income from $100,000. Interest on the $200,000 since April 29th last, the date of the agreement, was also paid into court.

DINNER RAFFLES PENNY CHANCES

Penny raffles for Sunday dinners are the vogue in some London week-end markets. Chickens and side dishes are the lure that have drawn even some prominent society women and their maids to the market places.

APPROVE OF RESOLUTIONS FRAMED HERE

Belleville Delegates to Big Convention Accomplish Much

DEBATE PROBLEMS

Noteworthy Matters Ably Discussed by Local Men

The Belleville delegates to the convention of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, held last week at Toronto submitted six out of the twenty-two resolutions that were taken into consideration during the two days' sittings and had the great satisfaction of seeing the whole six approved by the convention. Three were carried practically as first drafted while the three others were amended but endorsed in principle.

The fate of the Belleville resolutions was in marked contrast to that of some of the others which were either defeated or withdrawn after meeting the destructive criticism of the delegates.

The most interesting and vigorous debate during the entire convention was occasioned by the Belleville resolution calling for a generous system of trade preference within the British Empire. This resolution was proposed in a masterly address by Col. Ponton and seconded by Mr. John Elliott. The resolution was considerably amended because of the insistent appeals of Sir James Wood and W. F. Cockshutt, M.P. Our Belleville resolution has been the subject of an able leading editorial in the Globe of the 24th inst.

Mr. Jamieson Bone gave a very able address in support of the resolution he introduced favoring immediate action in regard to the deepening of the St. Lawrence and the consequent development of water power and denouncing the piracy of the Chicago Lake Canal.

The first resolution in regard to the procuring of more commodious quarters in London, Eng., for the Ontario Government office was introduced by Mr. H. W. Ackerman and Mr. John Elliott and carried almost with debate.

The more systematic development of our mineral resources, especially those of eastern Ontario, also occasioned a most profitable discussion. Col. Ponton and Mr. Ackerman sponsored the resolution which was carried after being slightly amended.

Messrs. Bone and Elliott moved another resolution which met the instant approval of the delegate. It called attention to the difficult detours and urged upon the department of highways to let contracts as early as possible in the year and to use more efficient methods in regard to detours.

The sixth Belleville resolution in regard to the exportation of raw materials and recommending that embargoes be enforced where manufacturing of the finished goods could be carried on to advantage in Canada was introduced by Col. Ponton and Mr. W. C. Springer and carried after being amended.

MANY AT FUNERAL OF THIS AGED MAN

Campbellford, Nov. 25.—One of the largest funerals ever held in Campbellford took place on Sunday afternoon, when friends and relatives from far and near gathered at the home of the late Edward Emanuel Stephens to pay their last respects to a man, who, had not only the distinction of being the oldest citizen, but whose life had been a great example of one who chose the straight and narrow path. Mr. Stephen had reached the age of 94 years, 3 monthes and 24 days. He had never used tobacco or liquor, was a staunch Liberal, and retained his faculties to within two days of his death. Services were conducted by the Rev. Wesley Elliott at the Tabernacle Church, and the remains laid to rest in the Eighth Line Cemetery.

ARENA NEARLY READY

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 25—The work of installing the artificial ice plant at the new Jock Harty Arena was completed on Saturday. The testing of the plant, which usually takes about five days, was commenced this morning. The nine miles of pipe which covers the playing surface are being tested by the city water pressure.

SERAFINE'S WIDOW ACQUITTED TO-DAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, Nov. 25.—Mary Serafini, widow of Guiseppe Serafini, hanged recently at Bordeaux jail in connection with the murder of Henri Cleroux, Hochelaga bank chauffeur, was acquitted this morning by a jury in court of King's bench after only four minutes deliberation. She was charged with the same crime for which her husband was hanged. Ten minutes later after the jury had deliberated half a minute she was acquitted on a charge of having received stolen goods.

FOUR QUALIFY FOR MAYORALTY

At 3 o'clock this afternoon four candidates for the mayoralty race had taken out necessary qualification papers with City Clerk J. Wilfred Holmes, at the same hours, five Aldermanic candidates had qualified.

For Mayor, the three who qualified are Mayor W. C. Mikel, K.C., Alderman W. R. McCreary and Alderman H. W. Greenleaf, and George Albert Bonnett.

Aldermanic candidates who have qualified are: R. J. E. Graham, W. H. Patterson, Philip Harrison, A. H. Ketcheson, A. Robinson.

All candidates placed in nomination have until 9 o'clock this evening in which to file their qualifications.

Blaze in London Imperils Lives

Prominent Canadians in Empire Club Have Narrow Escapes

(Associated Press Despatch)

London Nov. 25—A party of Canadians had a thrilling escape from being burned to death early this morning in a fire in annex to the British Empire Club, Piccadilly street, which is used as residential quarters for overseas visitors. The housekeeper, a woman, lost her life but all visitors escaped unharmed although early editions of the London evening papers state that other lives were lost in the fire. Canadians in the burning building who managed to get out in safety were, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Meighen Government; H. B. Thomson, former Canadian Food Controller, now permanently engaged in business in business in London and Herberte Otto Friend, Vancouver, B.C. Mr. Stevens was awakened by roaring flames at one o'clock this morning. He found that fire had enveloped the elevator shaft and staircase. At once he roused the rest of the inmates. They threw up the windows and all called for help. Night workers and policemen quickly gathered at the scene of the fire and in a few minutes the fire brigade equipment with ladders, arrived.

FORMER BANK CLERK IS FOUND GUILTY

Montreal, Nov. 25.—Edgar C. Raymond, former bank clerk, was found guilty and Joseph Girard was acquitted by a jury in the Court of King's Bench Monday afternoon after trial on the charge of implication in the hold-up and theft of $1,780 from the Cote des Neiges branch of the Molsons Bank on February 14 last.

Sentence was postponed until the end of the term.

The jury was out only three minutes.

HUNDREDS DO HONOR TO LATE MRS. HARDING

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Under a leaden November sky, Florence Kling Harding was buried in Marion Cemetery yesterday beside the mortal remains of her husband, whom she helped to rise from country editor to the Presidency of the United States. Grouped around the grey vault with heads bared hundreds paid a last tribute to the widow of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth Chief Executive of the nation.

GOMPERS IS RE-ELECTED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 25—Samuel Gompers, leader of American Federation of Labor since its organization in 1881, to-day was unanimously re-elected to the Presidency for the coming year. There were no other nominations.

Second Sister is Dead at Kingston From Alleged Ptomaine Poisoning

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Kingston, Nov. 25.—Mary Morrison, elder sister of Margaret Morrison who died on Sunday night at Hotel Dieu Hospital from Ptomaine poisoning, succumbed this morning, making the second death in the tragedy. Mary was reported as improving yesterday but last night a change for the worst took place. Miss Isobel McDonald, a friend of the girls, who also took some of the poisonous substance is reported to be doing very well.

INTELLIGENCER GIVES ELECTION FOR EVERYONE

Count Will be Flashed on Screen and Extra Issued

BY TELEPHONE ALSO

Call Numbers 1248 or 36 From Six-thirty O'clock

In an effort to give its readers and many friends as complete a report on the results of the by-election in West Hastings quickly, and as completely as possible, the Daily Intelligencer has arranged to give two services this evening.

Starting at six thirty o'clock or shortly after, a lantern service will be given on Front street opposite The Intelligencer building. Details of the voting will be thrown on the screen as quickly as returns come in. This service will be kept up until the election is no longer in doubt.

The Intelligencer will also publish an extra edition this evening containing the latest available figures. These papers will be for sale at the Intelligencer office and newsboys will be on hand to get them around to portions of the city for shut ins and others unable to get down town.

In addition to this, information as to the progress of the count will be given over The Intelligencer telephones. Call either 1248 or 36.

Kiwanians Start Christmas Drive

Secure Co-operation of Belleville Artists For Big Popular Concert

Plans were announced at the regular meeting of the Belleville Club at noon today for a high class Kiwanis Club concert on Wednesday, December 3 at the St. Michael's Academy Hall. The treat is being given the public to secure funds for Christmas Cheer funds.

The remarkable feature of the announcement made was the co-operation the Club received from the city generally in planning the program. The best of city talent rallied to the call for help.

The Academy auditorium, was donated free for the worthy cause. Piano, decorations and practically everything required was offered the club without cost.

A crowd of seven hundred people is expected and if the expectation is realized many children are going to have a happier Christmas than they ever dreamed.

The speaker today was Rev. Dr. Fred Malott who gave a most interesting address on Lord Durham who paved the way for Confederation.

KINGSTON OBJECTS TO GUN'S SILENCE

Kingston, Nov. 25.—The people of Kingston and the farmers of Pittsburg and Kingston Townships are not satisfied with the order of the Department of Militia to terminate the firing of the 9.30 p.m. gun at Fort Henry on Nov. 30, and the department will be requested to continue for night gun, which has been fired for more than seventy-five years. It costs only $30 a year for the ammunition.

A NORTHERN EXTENSION

The "Canada" number of the Reports of the United States Department of Commerce is probably the most indiscreet document published since the Taft-Roosevelt letters in which Canada was described as an adjunct to the United States. It says that "economically and socially Canada may be considered as a northern extension of the United States."

Canadians resent that statement most certainly. Yet who will deny that United States people have no grounds for saying such a thing?

Cousins across the border see the King Government lowering the barriers for United States manufacturers in face of their own high tariff. They know that Canadians by the tens of thousands are going down to live with them. On the statement of C. G. MacNeil, Dominion Secretary of the G.W.V.A., they hear that about one third of those who served overseas with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces are now domiciled in the Republic. Every night thousands of Canadians radio owners listen to political and other speeches made in the United States. Throughout the Dominion, young folk are dancing to the ragtime of United States composers' and singing the jazz tunes of United States.

Canada will continue to be a "northern extension" of the States until the Government of Canada adjusts matters so that Canadians pay very dearly, for the products of the United States.

LEVEL UP, NOT DOWN

John Spargo, the socialist, says that when he finds working men living in their own homes and going to and from work in their own autos, he is forced to the conclusion that socialism has no mission in the United States. More than this, he is convinced that the economic system and government that will enable the working man to own his home and ride in his own car is entitled to his approval and support.

The fact is, the better condition of the American working man has always been apparent to all except those who would not see. There has been too much effort to make exceptions the rule. Much better would it have been long ago to note exceptions to the rule and try to lessen these, instead of attempting to level down. It's leveling up that really brings betterment to those who most need it.

HONESTY THE BEST POLICY

The Liberals, especially the Right Honorable Mackenzie King, criticize the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen very severely, but on some questions of policy they have to accept his position. Take the question of freight rates, the Conservative leader has always said that these should be fixed by the Railway Commission specially created for this purpose as the only body competent to do so. This position he took in 1922, and he has maintained it.

The King Government has not had the courage to follow such a course. It has had its eye on the political side of this matter just as much as on any other. With it the question has not been what, in the eyes of competent experts, is a fair rate, but what it will get by politically. This explains why the Government has been dodging the freight rates' issue since it entered office.

It was lack of courage to take a stand on this subject that got the country into all the trouble over the Crow's Nest Pass commodity rates this year. The Government was told what would happen, but it took a chance and the business interests of the country suffered. During all this time the Government did not offer a single constructive idea for the solution of this vexed problem. They acted as though it was no concern of theirs.

But the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen did not dodge the issue. He met it squarely. In effect he said:

"You can't afford to allow the situation as respects freight rates to continue, for it will be fatal to business. We have a Railway Commission appointed to deal with freight rates, and the only course to take is to turn the whole matter over to it. Until this is done there will be nothing but dissatisfaction. In the meantime you will have to cancel the rates that are causing all the trouble."

The shippers recently took the question to the Railway Commission which promptly adopted the course which Mr. Meighen said would have to be taken. The Commission ordered the withdrawal of the rates that have been causing the trouble and asserted its right to deal with the whole subject of rates.

Dodge as he might the Right Honorable Mackenzie King and his Government have had to face this problem. They have done all the dodging they can get away with, and now they have to face the music. And what did the Premier say at Vancouver recently? Why, he had to take the position assumed by the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen long ago, and admit that the Railway Commission was the only body competent to deal with railway rates.

HAILEYBURY HONORS FALLEN SOLDIERS

Haileybury, Ont. Nov. 25.—The formal ceremony of the unveiling of the memorial erected to the town's citizen soldiers who fell during the Great War was performed here yesterday morning by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario. Mayor Summers, W. A. Gordon, Rev. Canon Hincks, Father Csiller, Norman McCausland and J. O. Watts participated in the service. The school children sang "O Canada," and the Englehart Pipe Band was in attendance. Mrs. Geo. Bailey unveiled the tablet on the monument.

Major Bouzan and Adam Keddie placed wreaths at the foot of the stone.

TRICKS OF THE TRADE

A company parade was ordered by the sergeant-major at the local barracks. When all were in position the N. C. O. called out: "All men who are fond of music take two paces forward."

Instantly half-a-dozen soldiers, with visions of playing in the regimental band, stepped forward.

"Now," he roared "you six men bring that piano down from the officers' quarters on the fourth to the sergeants' mess in the basement."

Press Opinions

WHEN CONSTABLES FLY

(London Daily Telegraph)

One hundred and twenty-six constables of Boston, Mass., will be trained to fly and will form an aerial police patrol. The imagination of novelists has suggested that the aeroplane may be employed both for the detection and arrest of malefactors who are so foolish as to ply their trade in open country. But even if the winged police of Boston can persuade their foxes to break cover, we have no notion what they will do next. Is it contemplated that the fugitive shall be bombed? or, perhaps the flying constable will go low and use the machine gun? Perhaps it is hoped to marry the methods of the cowboy to the aeroplane and lasso the quarry from on high. Let the scoffers remember that if policemen may fly the strangest things can happen.

LIBERALISM SUPERANNUATED

(St. Thomas Times Journal)

If the British Liberal party is a spent force in English politics the reason is not that it has failed in accomplishing its principles; the reason is that it has succeeded, and succeeded so well that it has now no conspicuous principle to champion or propagate. It has done its work; and if it is withering it is because all its original vitality has been translated into actual practice, and it has nothing else upon which to nourish itself and draw to itself members and votes.

THAT PROPOSED INCREASE

(The Farmers' Sun)

It has been semi-officially announced that the Legislature will be asked to add $3,000 to the salaries at present allowed each of Premier Ferguson's colleagues. This would bring the remuneration of these Ministers up to $9,000 each. In addition to the salary allowed each Minister, in common with other members of the Legislature receives his sessional indemnity of $1,400, plus free transportation by rail within the province.

Ten thousand, four hundred dollars a year, with perquisites added, may not be more than these Ministers could earn in private employment; it may not be more than their services are worth to the province, but it is more than the people of Ontario should be called upon to pay. When all classes in the community are feeling the pinch, and when relief measures for unemployment are being considered, even in advance of snowfall, is no time for an increase in salaries of public officials.

Premier Ferguson will not show the political wisdom he is generally credited with if he brings before the Legislature what has been outlined in the press.

Senior King's Pilot Retires

A. H. Callen, Senior King's Pilot at Sheerness and Deputy Assistant King's Harbormaster, has retired after 44 years in the Admiralty service.

Thirty Years Ago

Rev. D. G. Harrison, of Albert College Belleville is enjoying a few days visit in Peterboro.

The harbor was coated with ice this morning.

Many nail heads are sticking up in the sidewalk on the east side of Front street, south of the market.

Mr. H. C. Wrinch, of Toronto, the Recording Secretary of the Alliance, is at present in attendance at Albert College. He intends next year to enter a medical college and take a full course in medicine, preparatory to going to the foreign field as a missionary.

A boy was noticed knocking the tops off the pickets of Mrs. Nathan Jones fence this morning. He was put in the cells for a few hours as a lesson.

A Kingston paper in commenting on the poor theatrical business of Belleville, says the poor attendance at good plays is counter-balanced by the good attendance at poor plays.

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE BANK OF MONTREAL.

We have compared the above Statement with the Books and Accounts of the Bank of Montreal at the Head Office, and with the certified Branch Returns. We have checked the cash and verified the investments and securities at the Head Office, and at several of the principal Branches of the Bank at the end of the financial year. We have likewise, at various dates throughout the year, checked the cash and verified the securities at several important Branches.

We have to report that: (a) we have obtained all the information and explanations we have required; (b) in our opinion the transactions of the Bank, which have come under our notice, have been within the powers of the Bank, and (c) in our opinion, the above statement discloses the true condition of the Bank and it is as shown by the Books of the Bank.

QUEBEC SUFFERED FROM HEAVY FLOODS

Quebec, Que., Nov. 25.—The residents of Baie St. Paul and the surrounding district who were threatened with severe losses as a result of the floods brought on by the heavy week-end rains, are breathing more freely, reports to hand now being to the effect that further serious menace has passed, and that damage is much less than was at first anticipated.

Four bridges have been carried away by the floods, and a large piece of land inundated. One of the bridges is at Baie St. Paul, which suffered so extensively during the course of the floods last month, while the other bridges swept away were at St. Urbain a nearby parish. The four of them were temporary constructions, erected to replace those carried away last month.

GLASSES make old eyes young

OLD sight, or presbyopia as the optometrist calls it, normally comes at about the age of forty. The cause is a natural one. The inner lens of the eye loses some of its elasticity. It cannot focus for near vision without strain.

Here your eyes are examined with scientific care. Then lenses are made which enable the old eye to see like a young one at close range. It is exceedingly important to have such glasses when old sight sets in.

If the letters blur, you close your eyes for a short rest, or hold your book or paper at arm's length, you ought to consult our optometrist at once. Those are the signs of presbyopia.

VERMIN IN LIVE STOCK

Much Injury Done by Lice to Farm Animals

Vermin Multiply Rapidly—Treatment for Cattle, Horse and Hog Lice—The Louse a Robber of Profits—Soft Bacon.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Thousands of dollars are lost each year by stock owners neglecting to take the necessary measures to destroy the lice that infest the stock. Millions of these busy little insects make life a misery to the animal, and they also make the animals a source of loss to the owner. The keeping of live stock as a medium of support for lice never made any money for the farmer. It is unprofitable. Many people neglect, for reasons best known to themselves, to apply the simple remedies that destroy vermin and prevent losses on live stock operations.

Lice Multiply Rapidly.

Lice multiply most rapidly in dry, cold weather, and are found in greatest abundance on long-haired, old and poorly cared for stock during March and April. Spring rains tend to reduce the numbers of vermin on animals that are exposed to the weather, and the lice become less numerous as the season progresses. A few seem to survive the summer and show their presence in the late autumn or early winter when their progeny have increased to millions, and bring torment to the unfortunate animals that support them. Rub and scratch is the practice, until the hair is off and the louse is either crushed or pushed further along. Bare patches are noticed on side of neck, breast, head and back, wherever the animal has been able to reach—evidence of vigorous attempts at relief from the tiny tormentors. Animals that are tied and not free to rub themselves have a harder lot than those running free.

Treatment for Cattle Lice.

All animals should be given a good grooming with brush and curry comb to remove scurf, loose hair, and any vermin that may be off guard, then apply the following:

Soft soap	1 quart
Hard soap	½ pound
Coal oil	1 pint
Water	2 quarts

Mix the quantities of soap and coal oil together first, then add the two quarts of boiling water. This will make an emulsion if thoroughly mixed, to which a gallon of warm water must be added before applying to the animals. An ordinary stable brush is a good instrument with which to apply the emulsion. Care should be taken to saturate the skin over the entire body. Repeat the treatment in ten days; another brood will be up and doing by that time. Sheep dips prepared by reliable manufacturing chemists are available and very useful in destroying cattle lice. There are three species of lice attacking cattle, viz: the long-nosed louse, the short-nosed louse, and the biting louse. Herds that are regularly groomed during the winter suffer but little from lice.

Treatment for Horse Lice.

If the weather is warm enough so that it is safe to wash a horse, the kerosene emulsion given for cattle is very effective. If the weather is cold, the animal can be given a good grooming, and then either sodium fluoride or pyrethrum powder should be well dusted on the skin, and the horse blanketed. Raw linseed oil can be brushed into the hair quite easily and with good effect. A good brush and oil are death to the mites. Any treatment given should be repeated in ten days, since the powers of multiplication are wonderful. There are two kinds of lice infesting the horse, the biting and the suctorial.

Treatment for Pig Lice.

Raw linseed oil applied with a brush to all parts of the body is very effective. The formulae for kerosene emulsion can also be used to advantage. An oil rub, always accessible for the use of swine, will do much to keep the vermin down. The practice of having a machine oil can handy at feeding time and giving each pig a squirt along the back once a week is a good one. It will make conditions unhealthy for a pig louse. The pig louse, "Haematopinus suis," is a big one, almost as long as its name, and can easily be seen.

Do not let the louse rob you of your season's profits, and do not let it annoy your animals. A little soapy or greasy material will stop its breathing for all time. Why not get after the louse to-day?—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Soft Bacon.

Experimental work at the Ontario Agricultural College has proven that soft bacon comes from pigs that have been fed heavily during early life on fattening feeds while enclosed in pens or yards so small as to prevent proper exercise for the animals. O. A. C. experiments have also proven that pigs grown to 125 pounds weight on mixed feeds well balanced with skim milk (2½ pounds milk to 1 pound of meal), or tankage up to 10 per cent. in the ration may be furnished on corn or barley and still produce a firm, high quality product. Dairy by-products tend to offset the trouble arising from lack of exercise, but both exercise and skimmilk are better than either alone.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Cow testing separates the good from the poor and lays the foundation for a good herd.

It is always a good plan to save a piece of nice clover or rape on which to refresh the breeding ewes, just prior to the mating season.

BANK OF MONTREAL STATEMENT REFLECTS ECONOMIC SITUATION

Total Assets Stand at $748,836,088; Liquid Assets Equal To 68.85% of Liabilities to Public; Deposits Gain

The Bank of Montreal Annual Statement, which is always looked forward to as giving a representative reflection of the economic situation in Canada, has just been issued to the shareholders. The Statement shows that for the fiscal year ending October the assets stand at $748,836,088, as against $699,382,109 at the end of the previous year. Of this amount liquid assets total $468,516,028, at which level they are equivalent to 68.85 per cent of liabilities to the public; as compared with $391,227,837 or 62.55 per cent a year ago.

The principal gain has been under the headings of Government securities and railway bonds and stocks, indicating that due to lessened commercial activity throughout the country, there has been an endeavour to keep as much as possible of the Bank's funds profitably employed. Dominion and Provincial Government securities now stand at $91,612,453 up from $63,185,-[illegible]; railway and other bonds, debentures and stocks $6,385,569 as against [illegible]986,061; Canadian Municipal securities and British, Foreign and Colonial public securities other than Canadian [illegible]2,592,715 as compared with $37,001,-[illegible]. In cash holdings the Bank reports [illegible] Subsidiary Coin Current and Dominion Notes $94,996,723 up from $81,5[illegible]8,631, and deposit in Central Gold Reserves $14,000,000 compared with $17,000,000.

From month to month the Bank has been reporting gains in deposits and at the end of the fiscal year deposits amounted to $636,869,521, as against $579,056,783, a gain over $57,-00,000 during the year. These figures indicate a substantial increase in savings accounts and it is also probable that a portion of the large gain is accounted for by Government deposits that were being accumulated in anticipation of the payment of loans maturing on November 1st.

Total loans of $254,259,290 compare with $276,968,496 at the end of the previous year. The principal accounts in this classification are current loans and discounts in Canada, which now stand at $214,565,215 as against $236,-256,284; and loans to cities, towns and municipalities of $15,432,780 in comparison with last years figures of $21,703,848.

Net profits for the year, after deducting charges of management and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, were $4,454,504, as compared with $4,406,416 for the previous year. The profits added to the balance carried forward brought the total amount available for distribution up to $5,114,086. This was distributed as follows: Regular dividends and bonus $3,915,000; provision for taxes Dominion Government $412,500; reserve for bank premises, $125,000; leaving the amount to be carried forward to balance of Profit and Loss at the end of the year $761,586, as compared with 659,592.

The report will be submitted to the shareholders at the Annual Meeting, which will be held on Monday, December 1st.

Great Excitement On Election Eve.

Estimated Thirty-Five Hundred Heard Speeches in City Last Night

Without a shadow of a doubt the by-election campaign which closed in the West riding of Hastings last evening was the most exciting and interesting ever conducted in this historic old constituency.

As a climax to scores of meetings from the Bay of Quinte to the far north, came four meetings in the city last night which must have been attended by upwards of thirty-five hundred men and women. At the Griffin Opera House, every seat and standing room was taken up to hear the Liberal-Conservative candidate Mr. E. Guss Porter K.C., Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, Senator Gideon Robertson, former Minister of Labor and William Ireland, conservative member in the provincial House. These same speakers at the over flow meeting in the Armouries were heard by over five hundred people. Then at the City Hall, where James Murdock and his friends were holding forth the place was packed, with scores hanging around the adjoining hall ways and rooms, and an overflow meeting was conducted for the Liberals at the G. W. V. A. Hall.

The meeting at the Griffin Theatre is best described as impressive. Seldom is such earnest attention given political speakers as was extended in that auditorium last night. Mr. Meighen spoke in a low voice, and so hushed was the crowd, those in the furthest corners heard without difficulty.

One was impressed also with the remarkable fairness shown by Mr. Meighen in his address. He pointed out to his hearers that though he was talking on the very eve of the election and no one would be able to reply to him before the electors went to the polls, he would not take advantage of the situation. And he did not. There were no wild statements made. He made no appeals to the emotions. Mr. Meighen's address was a calm appeal to a man's reason.

The Theatre was most tastefully decorated for the occasion and the program was graced by two splendid musical selection from Mrs. W. H. Gill, of Trenton, and Mrs. Grant of Belleville.

Mr. Porter pointed out, as he has done on previous occasions that it is the honor of West Hastings which is at stake and not his honor alone, and that if the electors listen to the whisperings and forget the main issue they will have to put their seal upon the future deeds of cabinet ministers who seek to use their positions of trust for their personal gain and not for the protection of the interests of the people of Canada. He did not believe that West Hastings could approve of such actions and because of that he made his appeal for the support and the honor of the riding.

In an address before hundreds of Belleville citizens Mr. Meighen drew one striking contrast of the honorable manner in which Mr. Porter went about his charges and the "vague and insinuating" manner adopted by Mr. Murdock in his charges in connection with the Board of Commerce. Mr. Porter, he recalled, stood up fairly against the whole Government, made his charges, and when the Minister of Labor was whitewashed by a majority committee he resigned and went to his people.

Mr. Murdock Was Vague

"But, did Mr. Murdock do anything as honorable as that when he was a member of the Board of Commerce?" Mr. Meighen asked. "You know for yourselves that he did not. On the contrary Mr. Murdock wrote a long letter complaining that as member of the Board of Commerce he had been sent out to shoot with a wooden gun. It seemed to him at the time that it would be a good political stroke; but did he come out fairly, like a man, as Mr. Porter has done, and name any member of the Conservative Government who was interfering with his work? He did not but he contented himself with that sort of vague and unfair charge which cast suspicion but which did not imperil himself in any way.

Mr. Murdock then went stumping about the country saying that if ever he had an opportunity he would bring somebody to task, and Hon. Mr. King stood up in the House and read the letter in a magnificent voice. I told them at the time that if they would name a single member of the Government as having interfered with the Board of Commerce, they would get the investigation before they sat down; but did they do that? No, they dare not. It has now been three years and though I have challenged them time and again to make direct charges they have not dared to do so. That is the way Mr. Murdock went about his work of casting suspicions, as compared with Mr. Porter's manly way of standing up in the House and naming one man and then facing the consequences."

A Final Warning

Senator Gideon Robertson threw out his last warning to the electors to bear in mind the industrial depression of the Dominion and to remember that conditions cannot improve so long as there is a great emigration of Canadian workmen to the United States. Speaking as the representative of an official labor union, he viewed with regret the conditions which have driven upwards of 200 000 Canadian workmen to seek a livelihood in another land, but what else could the electors of West Hastings expect when Canada is governed by a body of men who place the love of power before the love of country?

"The King Government," he said, has tinkered with the tariff in the fond hope of clinging to office, and that, since the advent of the present administration, has closed the doors of upwards of a thousand factories. So what hope is there for the workers of Canada as long as a barter government remains in power? A blow in the right direction and for the future prosperity of Canada would be a vote against any candidate of the Government, based upon sound reasoning and not upon whisperings.

Verdun, Montreal, Quebec. — "I am one of thousands who have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have great faith in it. I can safely say it has relieved my troubles and I shall never be without a bottle of it in my house. Since my last baby was born I suffered from pains and backache and would feel so tired I could not do anything in my home. Since I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine I feel so different. I recommend it to all my friends and hope it will cure other women who are suffering from the troubles I had."—Mrs. THOS. H. GARDNER, 821 Evelyn Street, Verdun, Montreal, Quebec.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for the new mother. It is prepared from roots and herbs, contains no harmful drugs and can be taken by the nursing mother.

Its worth in restoring the mother to normal health and strength is told again and again in just such letters as Mrs. Gardner writes.

A recent canvass of women users of the Vegetable Compound shows that 98 out of every 100 women taking the medicine are benefited by it. They write and tell us so. Such evidence entitles us to call it a dependable medicine for women. It is for sale by druggists everywhere. C

TREASURERS STATEMENT

To the Editor of the Intelligencer,
Dear Sir,—

My attention has been called to an article in a local newspaper, issued on Saturday last, referring to the U. E. L. Celebration.

In justice to Mr. W. C. Mikel may I be permitted to say, that Mr. Mikel did not receive anything for his services, nor was he presented with any gift by the U.E.L. Celebration Corporation.

No doubt a statement of receipts and expenditures will be published in the near future, but I might mention that of the $3,000 received from the Ontario Government, $1,900 was paid to the 49th Regt. of Highlanders, $1,000 to the Citizens Committee and the balance of $100 was applied to the general expenses of the U.E.L. Celebration Corporation 1924 and the movement.

ORTHODOXY AND CHURCH UNION

To the Editor:—

A number of letter have appeared in the press in which the attempt is made to make orthodoxy versus heterodoxy the issue in the present Church Union situation. Some have attempted to make this the issue all along, but they have signally failed in their purpose. But the attack has been launched with renewed vigor recently, in the hope, it would seem, that simple and sincere people may have the real issue clouded and be stampted into voting against Union in order that by so doing they may preserve for themselves a sound creed and a pure Church.

I absolutely deny there is any such issue before us in the coming vote. Nor can anyone honestly make it an issue who is acquainted with the facts. If this were the issue, I know where I myself should take my stand; it would be among those who believe the Bible to be the infallible Word of God, those who accept the creed of historic Christianity. My position in matters theological is well known to many of my brethren throughout the Church. I can heartily subscribe to the five doctrines which the General Assembly of the United States in 1910 affirmed as essential to the Christian faith, namely, first, that the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are infallibly inspired; second, that our Lord Jesus Christ was born of the Virgin Mary; third, that He died to satisfy Divine justice and reconcile us to God; fourth, that He was very God, of very God, and fifth, that He wrought the miracles attributed to Him in the New Testament.

I hold these doctrines and yet I am going into the Union. I am a premillenialist—not the narrow kind—and yet I am going into the Union. If it were true that there were no modernists in the Presbyterian Church and that such teaching abounds in the Methodist Church, then, and only then, could we make orthodoxy versus heterodoxy an issue. If it were true that all modernists in the Presbyterian church were going into Union, and all who held the faith uncorrupted were staying out, I know with which company I should identify myself. But this is not true. I venture the assertion, which can easily be proven, that there is a larger percentage of those holding the modern view of the Bible staying out of Union than there is going into it. The most prominent minister leaders in the anti-Unionist ranks are modernists.

Of course in all fairness, it must be said there are different shades of modernism. I know many on both sides who hold modern views in varying degrees, and yet they are faithful ministers of Jesus Christ. Whom am I that I should sit in judgment on men who may hold a different view of inspiration, for example, to me, but who know Jesus Christ in a heart experience an trust Him as Saviour and Lord, and whose ministry God owns and blesses?

As I see the members of our Church lining up just now, I see a number opposing Union because they think the Ark of God is in danger. I see a much larger number equally devout, reverent, sincere, holding the doctrines of our evangelical faith as firmly as any, going into the Union. When therefore, men try to make the membership of our Church believe that the issue is one of sound versus unsound doctrine, they are giving an exceedingly misleading impression, and they are saying what is not true. It simply cannot be made an issue.

"CHURCH UNION" HALF-TRUTHS

To the Editor of Intelligencer:

Sir:—If "a half truth is the biggest un truth" your readers can judge the size of the following samples.

(1) A statement signed by Dr. James Pedley, Dr. Chown and Dr. George Pidgeon, and broadcasted recently in the Canadian Press, quotes the opening sentences of three of the twenty Articles of Faith in the "Basis of Union", each Article beginning—"We believe". These men declare those twenty Articles to be "the Faith of the three Churches"—"mutually agreed upon and accepted both by their Courts and their people". But they do not tell—or even hint—that while these Articles of Faith are in the Basis of Union, nobody in the "United Church" subscribes to them, nor is asked to do so.

The case is made worse by the fact that in the first draft of ordination vows laid before Assembly (See Minutes, 1907), there was a vow in which ministers were asked to declare acceptance of these Articles of Faith, but that vow was dropped, to please those who did not wish to view acceptance of any definite Christian Truth, and now the Ministers of the United Church are not asked to declare acceptance of any of the Christian Truths in the Basis of the Union. All that is required of them is that they shall "satisfy" some one who may happen to be examining them, as to their "essential agreement" with these Articles of Faith.

A man asks for a position of trust in a railway, where human lives are at stake. Are you a total abstainer? Are you fit to be trusted with it?" "Yes, I've taken the pledge." "Let me see it" He shows a beautiful pledge. "But you have not signed it." No, but I'm in "essential agreement" with it! Here are men entrusted with a work where human souls are at stake. Here are the Truths upon which the welfare of those souls depends. What must be said of the pretence of claiming that the "United Church" stands for these Truths, when no one is asked to subscribe to them, to declare that he accepts them?

(2) Another half-truth, constantly echoed, is that "A congregation can call its minister and the Presbytery induct him, just as at present." But they obscure the fact that between the so-named "call" and the induction, between the congregation and the Presbytery, and above both of them, is the Settlement Committee, a power unknown in the Presbyterian Church, an arbitrary, supreme power, responsible to none, and that this Committee may appoint whom it will, regardless of the so-named "call", a thing impossible in the Presbyterian Church.

They quote the first part of a sentence from the Basis of Union, as follows;—"Any pastoral charge, in view of a vacancy, may extend a call or invitation to any properly qualified minister or ministers," and they usually fail to quote the remainder of the sentence, which is "but the right of appointment shall rest with the Settlement Committee, which shall report to the Conference, for information only."

(3) A frequent half-truth is the "Loyalty" cry. They quote the pledge "to submit to the discipline of this Church and to follow no divisive course". But they carefully omit the remainder of the sentence, which pledged them—"to submit to the discipline of THIS CHURCH, and to follow no divisive course from the present order established therein."

The Unionists, in Assembly and other Courts of our Church, are following a "divisive course from the present order therein" and the duty of every loyal member of the Church is to "maintain and defend" the Church, and to resist to the uttermost this "divisive course from the present order established therein". If any wish change they can leave the Church for some other.

These three are samples of the "half-truths" that abound in recent "Union" propaganda. What must be thought of a Movement that inspires and permits and uses "half-truths"? How are "half-truths" judged in business life? Think of "half-truths" in the Church of Christ, and in His Name! What of the effect on men outside the Church, when they see "half-truths" in the Church? What confidence can be placed in any other statement on the question, by those who use "half-truths". Let us hope that with many it is because they do not know. But even that does not lessen the tragic result.

"Pep" Leadley Has Scored 202 Points

Foot of Queen's Star Has Been Working Overtime

Kingston, Nov. 25.—"Pep" Leadley's feat of scoring every point in the game Saturday against Hamilton Tigers was the fifth time in the past three years that the star half-back has turned in that performance and when he raised his third field goal over the posts in the third quarter it marked the 26th time he has successfully tried a drop since coming to Queen's. Incidentally it brought the number of points he has scored in three years up to 202 out of 426 scored by his team.

Just to show that "Pep's" foot has been working overtime it is interesting to note that of the 202 points he kicked 187; the other 15 points being scored on three touch-downs he made.

The first time Leadley scored all the points in a game was on November 12, 1921, when, in the last game of the season here Queen's beat McGill 4 to 3. "Pep" got a field-goal, his first for the Tri-color, and kicked three times to the deadline.

Pro. Hockey Is Creating Interest

Looks Like Successful Season For the Salaried Loop

Hamilton, Nov. 25—If the enthusiasm shown by the fans and the rush for season tickets can be taken as a criterion, the salaried hockey loop is in for a very successful season.

All over the circuit the same thing is reported. Large crowds of fans out to the workouts, steady streams of subscribers for the best seats in the arena and everywhere a steady stream of conversation and "fanning" bees that all combine to make the outlook very promising.

The many star amateurs in the league this year, two additional teams in the circuit and indications of real battles of grey matter, all helps to further enthusiasm. There will be plenty of strategy from the bench. The locals have Jimmy Gardiner, former Montreal star and a man with worlds of experience; Ottawa has Petie Green at the helm, and he will have more opposition in a tactical sense than he has had to face in years.

Eddie Gerard has decided to stay out of hockey this year, so Green will have opportunity galore to put into action many of his pet theories. Toronto has Eddie Powers another strategist, and reports from the Queen city have it that he has entirely revamped his system and is putting his men through their paces in a manner calculated to reduce any waistline. Canadiens have Leo Dandurand, a man who hasn't done badly with his coterie of high-class players, and the new Montreal team will rely on Cecil Hart, who has demonstrated frequently that he knows considerable about the game from all angles.

Winners of the two groups to play off. Schedules in the Boys sections will be drawn as soon as the entries come in.

Where Baseball Falls Flat

(Montreal Herald)

If the managers who took their baseball clubs to Europe to play exhibition games had the hope that the venture would be profitable financially, they are disillusioned. If they went as missionaries simply to reveal the nature of the game to folks in whom interest had not yet been aroused, the success was not much greater. The obstacle chiefly encountered lies in that Europeans do not understand the game and apparently do not greatly care to try to comprehend its fine points. They have their own games and are satisfied with them.

The effect of a listless, non-understanding, small crowd on the players may be imagined. Not to be subjected to jeers as well as applause must have made them feel like strangers in a strange land, as they were literally. The result offers no promise that baseball will speedily gain a foothold in Europe. It is a North American game and as such it will remain, probably. It has a marvelous grip on this country. It is a success here. But that fact does not argue that it is impossible to thrust it on lands across the water, where it bewilders rather than enthuses.

That individual who appreciates baseball in the fullest in most cases is one who as a boy played in the vacant lots or in the back streets and absorbed the spirit of the game as he grew up. Baseball is a part of a boy's education here, hence the great interest later in life, and it is such who fill the grandstands at the big games. None of that spirit is present abroad and it would be a stupendous if not impossible job to create it.

"PEP" LEADLEY AND "RED" BATSTONE, the stand-out performers of the champion Queen's team against Tigers Saturday. For all round skill their like, perhaps, has never been seen on a Canadian gridiron. The proud position that the Kingston University occupies in football is largely due to the sensation play of the firm of "Pep and Red."

HUNTERS ARE KEEN TO GET AFTER WOLF

Sault, Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 25—Already Ontario hunters are expressing a desire to line up for an Algoma wolf hunt, and queries are pouring in asking for more information on the subject. The consensus of opinion seems to be that action along this line has been too long delayed.

Wallace Grexton of Midland says he has already decided to lead a party of hunters into the North in quest of wolves during the Winter, and is anxious to line up with any local organization formed for the purpose.

One hundred Bar River farmers will join the big drive in a body, they say, and the securing of a pack of wolf hounds is now being arranged

Canada's Strong Man Dead At 38

He Wrote Book on "Why Athletes Die Young"

Toronto, Nov. 25— Frederick Herbert Beasley, world famous strong man, died Sunday at his home, 79 Strathcona avenue. As a teacher of physical culture he was able to restore health and vitality to a number of invalids. He wrote a book entitled "Why Athletes Die Young." He died in his 39th year.

Mr. Beasley was born in Toronto, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Beasley, 154 Queen street east. At school he found that he was stronger than other boys, and his muscles were further developed at the Yonge Street Y. M. C. A., now Eaton's clubrooms. People told him that he ought to make some use of his strength, and he found his way into the theatrical business, and soon reached a front rank place as a strong man.

One of his feats was to lift twelve or fourteen men. At Toronto University he once lifted 20 students on a plank. Other feats were to break a horse shoe and to tear the corner off double pack of cards.

Mr. Beasley was in the show business for about fifteen years and travelled all over the world as "Canada's Strong Man." In Toronto he showed at Shea's, Gaiety, Star, the Island and Scarboro Beach. He was a member of several theatrical societies, including the "White Rats."

Twelve years ago Mr. Beasley married Miss Ivy Fripp of Toronto and gave up the stage. He taught physical culture and by his dieting and exercises restored health to several cases given up by the doctors.

Four years ago he became associated with his father's canning business and continued with it until his death. He had a keen active mind as well as body was always inventing new devices for the jam factory. He was associated with Metropolitan Methodist church.

BRACKENBOROUGH IS AFTER THE O.H.A.

Hamilton, Nov. 25.—John Brackenborough, former Tiger hockey star but now of Galt, is in Toronto to-day for the purpose of finding out from Secretary Hewitt of the O.H.A. just why he has been barred from playing hockey with Galt this winter.

"Brack" was tipped off yesterday that the ban had been placed on him, and he is anxious to find out the reason for the move. He states that the alleged complaint to the hockey body came from Hamilton. He says he is not anxious to play hockey, but he has his fighting togs on, and plans to have a showdown with the O.H.A.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN: SERIAL: THEATRES

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

He was in the box he had occupied on the preceding night; leaning forward, his hands clasped on the velvet edge, his eyes following her every movement.

She lost all consciousness of the rest of the audience, and played only to those rapt, attentive eyes.

Every word she uttered she spoke to him, every glance of the blue eyes—which grew violet when she was agitated—though beat upon the Romeo on the stage, was meant for the one face in the vast audience.

She played, if anything, better than she had played last night, and the manager came to her to tell her so.

"Better and better, Miss Marlowe!" he said, bowing and smiling. "If you go on like this——"

"The house is crammed," said Jeffrey, who was standing near the wings with a shawl to throw over Doris's shoulders, for like that of most country theatres, the Barton one was rich in draughts.

"Yes," said the manager, "and a first-class audience. Did you notice those two side boxes?"

Jeffrey nodded.

"They have got the curtains drawn," he said.

The manager laughed.

"Yes. They have been drawn like that since the first scene. I expect that a London manager is behind each, eh, Miss Marlowe? Ah, I shan't be able to keep you long!"

Doris smiled absently and passed on to her dressing-room.

But in the next act she happened to look up at the right-hand box, and she saw that the curtains had been drawn aside.

She glanced at it with the pre-occupied look of an actor and saw that the only occupant of the box was a young and very beautiful, girl, with dark, flashing eyes, and bright, golden hair.

The other box remained screened, and the occupant invisible.

The play proceeded, and then came the shower of bouquets.

Now, Barton is not a floral town by any means, so that the bouquets which fell at the feet of the girlish Juliet must have been procured at some pains and trouble. The Romeo filled his arms with them, and one only remained lying on the stage.

It was a magnificent bouquet of white and purple violets, and as it fell, Doris, looking up, saw the handsome face of Lord Neville close to the stage in the orchestra stalls.

She stooped and raised the bouquet and glanced at him, but this time she did not lift the flowers to her lips.

As she passed off, the manager touched her arm.

"I've found out who it is that's got the box on the prompt side," he said; "it's Lady Grace Peyton, the great London beauty. She's staying at Barton Towers, the Marquis of Stoyle's place, you know."

"At Barton Towers!" said Doris. Then she went to the side of the proscenium and looked at the box in which Lady Grace's face was just visible. "How beautiful she is!" she murmured.

"Yes, I should think so!" said the manager. "Why, she's the professional beauty of the season; it's an honor to have her in the theatre! And who else do you think is here?" he added, exultingly.

"I don't know," said Doris, moving away.

"Why, Lord Cecil Neville, the marquis' nephew and he was here last night. What do you think of that? It isn't only the pit and gallery that have gone mad over you, Miss Marlowe, but the gentry, too! Just as I said last night! Lord Cecil Neville; I daresay you never heard of him, but he's the best-known man in London. I wish I knew who was in the other box, but I can't find out."

"Perhaps it's the marquis himself," said Doris, with an absent smile.

"Oh! no!" said the manager; "he'd be with Lord Neville or Lady Grace! No, it's not the marquis!"

She went and dressed for the last and great scene, and when she came out found Jeffrey pacing up and down.

"Better than last night, Doris," he said nodding, and glancing at her under his thick, frowning brows. "You have made all the points to-night; that's right! Keep cool! Don't let your head be turned by the applause and the bouquets. What! Violets again to-night? Very kind, very characteristic! Let me hold them for you," and he held out his hand for the bouquet, which, unthinkingly, she had brought out with her.

She extended them to him when, her eyes dwelling on them, she saw a mark of white among the purple blossoms.

Then she gave them to him, saying hurriedly, "Take care of them; they smell so sweet," and went and took her place at the wing, crushing the piece of paper into the bosom of her dress.

She had to wait some few minutes, and with a quickly throbbing heart she took out the paper and glanced at it.

A scribble in pencil ran across it:

Will you meet me in the fields to-morrow? I must speak to you.
Cecil Neville.

That was all! She replaced the paper in her bosom, where it seemed to burn like a living thing and went on the stage.

If her performance in this scene on the preceding night was good, this, to-night, was much in advance of it. Her voice seemed to thrill the vast audience, and, with her face moved them to tears.

But Doris was conscious of only one spectator and auditor; the one who leaned forward in the centre box, with the rapt attention of a devotee at a shrine.

The curtain fell amidst a thunder of applause, and, pale and quivering, she was led on by the Romeo to receive the enthusiastic expression of approbation and delight.

"Wonderful, Miss Marlowe!" said the Romeo. "Miles ahead of last night and that was good enough."

She was about to acknowledge the frank and generous compliment when she felt her arm seized, and saw Jeffrey standing beside her.

His face was white and drawn, the sunken eyes blazing with passion.

"Doris! Doris!" he gasped.

"Jeffrey!" she said, half frightened. "What is the matter?"

"Look, look!" he panted hoarsely, and he drew the edge of the curtain back and pointed to a box on the right-hand side.

Great Variety Of Artisans There

When Zane Grey's Picture at Belle Was Filmed

The widest variety of artisans ever included among the members of a motion picture company made up the party which went into Southern Utah to film Zane Grey's "The Heritage of the Desert," it is claimed by Irvin Willat, the producer.

Besides these actually engaged in making the picture, there were representatives of the following vocations: Horse wranglers, cowboys, teamsters, blacksmiths cooks and helpers, packers, road engineers and road builders, carpenters, plasterers, well-diggers, lumber packs, axemen, bridge builders and scores of other specialized callings.

These men were necessary owing to the difficulties of the trip. Roads which had been washed out by recent storms, had to be rebuilt, bridges constructed and in some cases highways built over the barren desert. The entire company suffered the hardships of pioneer life, moving camp practically everyday just as the early settlers did in crossing the desert in covered wagons.

"The Heritage of the Desert" which is now at the Belle theatre, is the story of a war for water rights of the upper Colorado River fought by pioneers 45 years ago. During this intense conflict a whole village was wiped out. This gigantic spectacle is shown in the picture, the entire town being built by carpenters and lumbrejacks through almost super-human efforts.

Featured in the picture are Bebe Daniels, Ernest Torrence, Noah Beery and Lloyd Hughes.

FASHIONS & FOIBLES

On the general utility coat a large button takes the place of the impassioned clutch that holds the more elegant coat not to the heart but to the hip.

For the coat you wear when you're shopping, strap-hanging, driving your car with one hand, and keeping your youngest from a nose dive with the other, a big button means more than all the style of the clutched-and-held coat closing. The practical coat of plaid, stripes, homespuns or camel's-hair should have the button, though the same coat of corded silk or cashmere coating is rather smarter if held on the hip. A coat of the utility type should be full length so that one can wear it over any frock or suit. The pocket and panel arrangement on the hip is new and French.

DRANK MEDICINE; YOUNG GIRL DEAD

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 25.—The death of Miss Margaret Morrison, fifteen-year-old daughter of Dr. C. A. Morrison, in the Hotel Dieu Hospital last night, was a shock to the community. On Saturday she, in company with her sister Mary, and a visitor, Miss Isobel McDonald, were planning to attend the inter company rugby match at the R.M.C. and the dance there the same evening. Previous to going they felt out of sorts, and at the Morrison home all drank from a bottle which they supposed to contain medicine. At the dance in the evening all were taken ill and were rushed to the Hotel Dieu, where Margaret, the second oldest girl, died.

Miss Mary Morrison is in the Hotel Dieu yet, but she is said to have passed the crisis, and Miss McDonald has almost completely recovered. Ptomaine poisoning was stated by the doctors as the cause of their illness.

Charles Larson, his wife, Esther and Helen Larson and Rev. Mr. Larson, all of St. Catharines, were injured yesterday when the car which Charles Larson was driving, was struck by a street car at the intersection of York and Dundurn Streets.

A fiery cross 14 feet high was found flaming on the river bank at Guelph on Saturday night. Police quenched it but found no one in the vicinity.

A report presented on Saturday by the M.O.H., showed that the death rate in St. Catharines was 11.8 per thousand of population.

Beloved Story Unfolded To-day

Uncle Tom's Cabin Here; Darkey Sextette is Feature

If press criticisms count for anything and we have every reason to believe they do, the original Stetson's production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin", which, after many years absence from this city, will be seen at the Griffin Theatre, for matinee and evening performances, the matinee commencing immediately after school dismisses to-night, has caught the public fancy. The different theatres where the offering has been presented are said to have been crowded at every performance, and no reasonable doubt remains but that the season's gross business will reach a figure that will astonish the theatrical world. For a play holding the stage for over sixty years, within which period not a single season has clapsed when it has been entirely absent from the theatre, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" still exhibits wonderful vitality. Scorned ridiculed and rejected by the elite of the more important theatres a few years ago, it is now enscorned in the very homes of art and refinement and thousands are weeping and laughing at its various incidents nightly.

There has never been so lavish and adequate a production of this well known drama as that which the original Stetson company will bring to this city. The reputation of Mr. Leon W. Washburn, the manager, as a promoter of big productions is well known by most theatre goers but few are aware of the fact that this season's production of the late Harriet Beecher Stowe's immortal masterpiece is one of the most massive ever sent on tour. So many actresses and actors of pleasing reputations and personality have never before been seen in any presentation of this well known and perennial play. The company numbers about thirty persons, including a sextette of real southern darkies, who have been especially engaged to render their old time southern melodies which are so essential for a satisfactory production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

MOTHERS LIKE TO TREAT COLDS WITH VAPORS

Direct Treatment with Vaporizing Salve Immediately Reaches Inflamed Air Passages.

It is no longer necessary constantly to dose the children in treating croup, bronchitis, sore throat, or deep chest colds. Many Canadian mothers now use the "outside" remedy, Vicks VapoRub, for the cold troubles of all the family, because it is just rubbed over throat and chest—there is nothing to take. When so applied Vicks gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled directly into the inflamed air passages, loosening the phlegm and making the breathing easier.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed and stimulates the skin like a liniment or plaster and thus aids the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion.

MEDIAEVAL FIND IN NORFOLK CHURCH

Remarkable discoveries have been made at the 14th century church of St. James, Great Ellingham, Norfolk, which is now being restored.

Partially preserved frescoes have been revealed under the whitewash on the wall in the south side.

A large unusual mediaeval niche, which had been completely walled up, and of which no record existed, has also been found.

The niche is brilliantly painted in blue and red, and the gilding on the vaulting is almost as bright as when it was put on.

There is a painted angel at the head of the niche in a perfect state of preservation.

Energy for Men in Fry's

A DAILY cup of FRY'S Cocoa will do wonders in giving that energy of body and clearness of mind, you need for a good day's work.

To read the analysis of FRY'S Cocoa is readily to believe the claims of Dr. Andrew Wilson, F.R.S.E., Dr. Robt. Hutchison and many other scientists, that it is the nearest thing to "liquid energy" that exists in the world to-day. Food for every department of the human body, and Nature's kindliest stimulant for heart and nerve—theobromine—is found in FRY'S. Tea and coffee are mere flavours but FRY'S is a complete food.

FRY'S has that delicate "chocolaty" flavour that comes only from a blend of the choicest cocoa beans and the experience of 200 years.

GETTING IN FARM ICE

Harvesting This Good Winter Crop In the Best Way

Success Depends on Ten Conditions —Ice-Houses May Be Cheaply Constructed — Harvesting the Crop — Maintenance of Farm Work Horse

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

It is now none too soon to make preparation for the winter harvest of the ice crop. Some may be for the first time planning to harvest some ice this winter, and they will in all probability need to construct some sort of a building or bin in which to store it. Those who have regularly stored ice may have to make some alterations or repairs to the old ice storage. In any case it is a good policy to make the necessary preparations early, and so have everything in readiness when the time comes to cut and store the crop

Success Depends Upon Ten Conditions

The style of ice storage really does not count provided the following conditions are fulfilled:

(1) That the ice be cut from a body of clean water and be free from weeds and sediment.

(2) The cakes should be cut regularly, and all of a size. The ice should be at least 12 inches thick.

(3) The ice should be stored on a cold, dry day.

(4) The cakes should be packed together as closely as possible without any sawdust or other material between them. Any spaces between the cakes may be filled with finely broken ice or snow.

(5) Plenty of dry sawdust, at least 12 inches, should be packed between the mass of ice and the walls of the enclosure, and even a greater depth below and above the ice.

(6) The top of the ice storage should be provided with good circulation for air in order to prevent accumulation of warm, stagnant air over the ice. This point cannot be emphasized too strongly.

(7) The ground below the ice pit should be well drained in order to readily carry off the waste from the ice.

(8) The wall around the bottom should be air-tight.

(9) The ice should be kept well covered with dry sawdust all summer after each time ice is removed.

(10) As far as possible the ice storage should be out of the direct rays of the sun, but yet in a place where there is good circulation of air.

Ice-Houses May Be Cheaply Constructed.

It is possible to secure most of these conditions in a very cheap and simple construction, and therefore the storage of ice need not give one much concern. The better style of ice-house is usually constructed of a wall consisting of one layer of boards on each side of 2 x 4 studs, the space between being left empty.

Ice can be kept successfully in various sorts of storages: A large bin made of single boards nailed on ordinary studding or cedar posts and located inside some other building, as a shed or barn; or outside as a simple lean-to on the shady side of a large building; part of a hay-mow; an old silo; or a more costly and attractive building usually called the ice-house or cold storage building.

Most of the ice stored on farms is used for cooling milk and cream and keeping it sweet for short periods. When both milk and cream are cooled it is necessary to store 1½ tons per cow kept, this amount covering a reasonable waste by melting in the storage. If a refrigerator is used in the house or adjoining the storage where foods for the table are kept, 2 or 3 tons extra should be stored.

Harvesting the Crop.

This crop is not the pleasantest one the farmer has to handle, as it is usually pretty cold and wet work. Lots of good company while working at the job is a great help, and therefore co-operative effort should be carried out in this line of work. The job can be done more efficiently, quickly, more economically and under more pleasant conditions than by the single-handed method. The job is worth while, and, if gone about in a sensible manner, is not too objectionable—certainly not nearly so bad as standing at the tail-end of a threshing machine.

The Department of Physics, O.A.C., Guelph, will gladly supply bulletins and blue-prints describing ice-houses, small cold storages and refrigerators, and describing in detail how the harvesting is done. Write us early. —R. R. Graham, O. A. College, Guelph.

CHICAGO MARKET

(Associated Press Despatch)

Chicago, Nov. 25—Absence of any important new buying brought about price declines in wheat to-day during the first part of the Board of Trade session. The fact that the Liverpool market had made only an indifferent response to yesterday's advance on this side of the Atlantic was evident and a handicap to friends of higher prices here.

Opening which range from 5-8c to 1 3-8c lower, was followed by slight further setback and then by moderate rally. Commission house selling was of sufficient volume to ease down corn and oats. After opening at 1-2c to 1c decline, corn market sagged little further but then recovered most of loss. Oats started unchanged to 1-2c off and later receded a trifle all around. Provisions were without decided change.

"I'll Be Home Soon, Mother Writes Samm

Sammy is a keen little lad. [illegible] looks much younger than he is—o[illegible] sixteen—and he has much more w[illegible] dom than is usual at his age. [illegible] two years he worked in a found[illegible] doing a man's work. His fath[illegible] worked beside him and helped hi[illegible] master the art of pouring molte[illegible] metal. One day Sammy complaine[illegible] of a sore side but his people didn't worry much. "It'll be all right i[illegible] the morning," mother said; "go and take a rest." But it wasn't all right in the morning, nor the morning after, no, nor a week after. It was then time for a doctor to examine Sammy. The doctor looked him over several times, then took him to a specialist. Both medical men agreed that Sammy was consumptive and both held out some hope if he "took the cure" at once.

Sammy is quite a favorite up in the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives. He keeps the other patients in good humor with his pleasant smile and his quaint stories of French Quebec where he spent his boyhood days. "Tell the folks I'll be home soon," he wrote in his last letter; and he probably will be, for he is making splendid progress.

The Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives, the Haven of the poor afflicted with tuberculosis, is in large measure reliant upon pu[illegible] generosity for its funds to carry its work.

"Now Feeling Fine and Able to do my own work"

Mrs. Walter Grieves, Coe Hill, Ont., writes:

"I was in such a weakened, run-down condition that I could not take care of my household duties. I was unable to sleep at night, and the doctor told me I was anaemic. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and to-day I am feeling fine and able to do all my own work.

"My little girl had eczema, and different remedies took no effect whatever. We got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and that one box relieved her."

Seaplane Lost

Kingston, Nov. 25—Lost while on the way from Ogdensburg to Oswego Sunday morning, a big seaplane, carrying a pilot and one passenger was Monday being searched for up and down the American and Canadian shores. Absolutely no trace of it could be found.

Early yesterday morning two seaplanes set out from Ogdensburg for Oswego on the first leg of a flight to Florida. In the first plane were Jos. Raxbach, owner of both planes, together with a pilot named Talbert, while Harry Grobey was the pilot of the second plane and had as a passenger Harry Bionne, all four being from Ogdensburg.

Was Fined $400.

Peterboro, Nov. 25—In County Police Court Monday afternoon, before Magistrate O. A. Langley, James Akey charged with having liquor for sale on his farm in North Monaghan was acquitted and William Eastland, who faced the same charge, was fined $400 and costs or three months in jail. The liquor will be confiscated.

Two Would Be Mayor

Two contestants will fight it out for the Mayoralty of Kingston this year. At nominations held there Monday, Mayor T. B. Angrove, C. C. Nash and R. J. Bushel were nominated. Bushel retired.

Forty-nine candidates were nominated for the City Council, and four trustees were elected.

Makes Denial

Port Hope, Nov. 25.—Denial of a published statement that there was fresh gravel on the Highway east of Brighton, the presence of which might have contributed to the accident last week in which Morris Kayled, of Toronto, was killed, is made by J. M. Empey, Port Hope, resident engineer of the Ontario Department of Public Highways. He says that the road at this point is in as perfect condition as any gravel road could be, the contour is proper, and the roadbed itself as smooth as pavement with a small amount of grit scattered on the surface. This grit at any point within one thousand feet of where the accident occurred did not exceed one-half inch in depth.

PLAINCLOTHESMAN IS RUDELY SHOCKED

Toronto, Nov. 25.—A York street storekeeper, with a sense of protection against unwanted intruders or housebreakers, fixed an electric battery to his front door-knob that nearly knocked down a plainclothesman when he tried the door last night.

The battery was attached to the door-knob by wire and the storekeeper switched off the "juice" when he was letting any one in or out. Consequently, when the plainclothesman visited the place last night, he was nearly knocked off his feet.

Crown-Attorney Armour communicated the occurrence to Attorney-General Nickle and the man was ordered to take the battery off.

Boy of 15 Years Saves Own Life

Used Remarkable Presence of Mind Following Shooting Accident

Kingston, Nov. 25.—Presence of mind and pluck of the rarest kind on the part of Carl White, son of Robert White near Jones Falls, saved his own life on Saturday night while he was duck hunting. The lad went out alone Saturday to hunt ducks and after putting his boat up on shore, went about half a mile by foot, to a point about half a mile away. He stood his gun up against a tree, but it fell down, the full discharge of the gun striking him in the right leg and carrying away an outer portion of the leg below the knee joint, splintering the outer bone and severing two or three arteries.

The boy was in a very serious condition, but had the presence of mind to take his coat, and cut bandages with a knife that he had and he bound up his leg, making a tourniquet with the aid of a bit of stick. Despite the fact that he was suffering intense agony the boy walked a half mile to his boat on one bone of the leg, instead of two, he often having to straighten the leg back in place. He reached his boat and then rowed for two miles to a hunting party, where he was taken in charge and a doctor called. He was later brought to Kingston and placed in charge of Dr. I. G. Bogart in the General Hospital, where it is reported he is doing well.

Dr. Bogart stated that had he not made the tourniquet he would have bled to death in ten minutes.

Trenton Chief Is To Be Inspector

Resigns Present Position to Join Provincial Police Force

Trenton Nov. 25.—Chief of Police William Bain, who has been the chief guardian of the law for the past five years here, and who has purged the district of the bootleggers and thieves who came here to operate, has resigned his post to accept a position as inspector of Provincial Police under Commissioner General Victor Williams. The organization of the provincial force is under way and the best police officers in the province are being engaged to put down the crime and rum running that is reported from many places.

Chief of Police Bain is a native of Caithness, Scotland, and on coming to Canada a few years ago joined the police force at Ottawa, from which he resigned to accept a position as sergeant on the police force of Sudbury, where his good work recommended him for the position of chief of police here. He declined to accept the position as chief of Belleville, on the reorganization of that force a couple of years ago, under pressure of the council here to remain at considerably increased salary.

Chief Bain served three and a half years overseas and was badly wounded from which he has totally recovered. He has been associated in his work here with Detective John G. White, who was Sudbury's best sleuth, and has been the terror of the evil-doer. He is 34 years of age. The expectation is that Detective White will be promoted to the position of chief of the Trenton force.

RANSACKED HOUSE

Toronto, Nov. 25.—Another case of bold housebreaking occurred Sunday night when the home of Mrs. W. G. Probabilities—Colder on Thursday

HANNA WINNER BY ABOUT 450 VOTES IN ALL

Belleville and Trenton Turned Down E. Guss Porter

EXCITEMENT HIGH

Victors' Supporters Loosened Barriers For Joy Flood

After one of the hottest election campaigns ever staged in the riding of West Hastings, and following the heaviest vote ever polled in the riding, during the twenty-three periods in which the riding has been West Hastings, Charles Edward Hanna, the Liberal candidate and local hardware merchant, was elected yesterday by a small majority over his Liberal-Conservative opponent E. Guss Porter K.C., Ex-M.P.

At eleven o'clock this morning with almost complete returns from the whole riding, the figures showed a majority for the Liberal candidate of 450 votes. Complete returns are expected from the riding before evening by Returning Officer Walter C. Boardman at his headquarters in the County Court House building.

Of course the remote northern subdivisions of the riding are the points from which authoritative figures have not yet been received, though the correct majority for each candidate from a number of them is known.

The result of this widely watched bye-election is indeed a great turnover. A Conservative stronghold for years and formerly an absolutely safe constituency for E. Guss Porter K.C., the defeated Conservative candidate during the past 20 years, West Hastings yesterday reversed a Conservative majority for Mr. Porter in his contest with A. D. McIntosh in December 1921 of 1,171 to a majority for the Liberal candidate estimated at between 450 and 500, which is a great turnover.

Women's Vote Heavy

Though the women voted in the Porter-Intosh election their vote did not even compare with the woman vote yesterday. Never in the history of the riding was there such an interest taken in the election by women who turned out to vote throughout the riding. Then of course there were more names on the voters' lists for this bye election than there were for the election in 1921.

The Liberal candidate piled up a comfortable majority in Belleville where it was believed he would win; but by a much smaller majority than the figures show to-day.

Belleville gave Hanna a majority of 627. Hanna lives in Coleman ward, which gave him the greatest majority of any ward in the city. He polled 550 votes and had a majority of 168 in his own ward. Bleecker ward, where the majority of railwaymen vote, gave him the next largest majority of any ward in the city, showing that despite scathing denunciation from the platform during the campaign here, of Murdock's actions as Minister of Labor the railwaymen supported Hanna, his representative. The majority in Bleecker ward for Hanna is 144: Hanna carried every one of the seven wards, Baldwin ward being the closest approach to a win for the Conservative candidate when Hanna received a majority of one. Hanna carried the advance poll for railwaymen also by 40 votes. Mr. Porter lives in Murney ward, and here Hanna also received a majority of 38 votes.

Eclipses Former Records

The total vote in Belleville yesterday eclipsed all previous records by a long way. When the ballots were counted here last night, 6,119 people had voted in Belleville it was found—3,370 of whom voted for Hanna. In the Porter McIntosh election of 1921, 4,795 votes were polled in the riding, and that was considered a record vote at that time. Yesterday 1324 more people voted than at the 1921 election.

Summing up, Belleville and Trenton elected Hanna, piling up a total majority of 732 votes for him. Then again in the northern part of the riding Hanna received majorities in Bangor Wicklow and McClure townships, was given an even break at Marmora and a small majority at Bancroft, one vote majority at Wollaston and Herschel, a comfortable margin in Faraday. Mr Porter's strongholds were Frankford Huntingdon township, where he had a 300 majority, a majority in Marmora town, and a majority of 195 in Rawdon township. Stirling and Deloro also went for the Conservative candidate, though the former fell off from an 23 majority in 1921 to 66 yesterday.

Begin to Celebrate

When returns indicated that Hanna was in the lead, the 15th Battalion band, of which he is a member, turned out in the streets and followed by hundreds of cheering followers and his "Booster Club" members the bandsmen paraded Front street to the strains of "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More." Then Hanna was driven to Trenton and followed there by many, where another demonstration was staged. From Trenton he went to Frankford and across to Stirling, and it was nearly morning when they returned to Belleville.

There were no disturbances, though joy reigned supreme in that city. Hundreds "flocked" to Belleville from the surrounding country and there was a stir in the old city which called back the happy days of the past United Empire Loyalists' Celebration.

Rooms Were Crowded

Committee rooms of both candidates were crowded to the doors throughout the evening, where eager eyed followers waited the word which would say which man West Hastings decided should represent the riding at Parliament Hill next session. Until E. Guss Porter made his speech about 10.30 o'clock at his committee rooms, the faithful followers remained, in expectation that further returns might swing the tide in his favour. Mr. Porter announced that he conceded the election to his opponent by a small majority however, and the crowd then melted into the street where throngs already held sway.

By Wards

Following is the vote by wards in Belleville:

	Hanna	Porter
Foster	326	206
Samson	383	319
Ketcheson	391	345
Baldwin	465	464
Bleecker	399	255
Coleman	550	382
Murney	768	730
Advance	88	48
Total	3370	2749

Majority for Hanna—621.

Voters Elsewhere

In the township of Sidney, Hanna polled 902 votes, while Porter polled 829—Hanna majority —73. In Frankford Village, Porter polled 279 and Hanna 241—Porter majority 38. Trenton gave Hanna 1421 votes, Porter 1310—Hanna majority 111. Faraday gave Hanna a majority of 123. Wollaston, 1, while Herschel gave Hanna 167 votes to Porter's 46, or a majority of 121. Huntingdon went conservative by 300 votes.

At Marmora village Porter got 286, and Hanna 180 giving Porter a majority of 106. Marmora and Lake was an even break with the vote not sent in—just result. Bancroft gave Hanna a majority of 13, while Bangor, Wicklow and McClure gave him a total majority of 174. Rawdon Township, a conservative strong hold gave Porter a majority of 195. Stirling gave Porter 66 of a majority and Deloro gave him 82 of a majority.

Visits Intelligencer

At 2 o'clock this afternoon, Charles E. Hanna, the member elect walked up in to the editorial rooms of the Intelligencer; the newspaper which has been his political enemy during the past month and a half. He shook hands with members of the staff, and accepted their congratulations.

"I told you I would come up here after the election and shake hands with yo people over a victory", said the successful candidate in a low hoarse whisper, election speeches having taken toll of his voice.

"You did, but we never believed that you would come up a winner after the election," was the rejoinder.

"Well boys I am in a hurry and I will not detain you longer either", he added and walking from the offices, received the congratulations of other members of the staff who left their work to reciprocate the good sportsmanship of their newly elected representative

Majority of One

The result makes a change in the line-up in the House of Commons. Including Temiscouata, the Quebec riding for which two Liberals and no Conservatives are running in the by-election, made was necessary by the death of Charles A. Gauvreau, the standing in the House now is:

Liberals, 118.
Conservatives, 51.
Progressives, 64.
Labor, 2.

This gives the Liberals an actual majority of 1, whereas in the past three sessions of Parliament they have been in a nominal minority.

Premier's Comment

CITY ALDERMEN ENTER OFFICE WITHOUT VOTE

Of Thirty-nine Nominated Only Twelve Qualified Yesterday

FIVE NEW FACES

R. J. E. Graham Likely Choice as Chief Committee Head

Of the thirty-nine persons nominated for Aldermanic seats in the Council of 1925, only twelve filled out their qualification papers. At the hour of 9 o'clock last evening, when the time required by law for filing the necessary qualification paper was up, City Clerk Holmes declared the following twelve as Aldermen for 1925.

George W. Dawes, Samuel H. Treverton, Joseph J. C. Manley, Philip Harrison, Allen H. Ketcheson, Robert J. E. Graham, Walter H. Patterson, Caniff A. Ruttan, Albert Robinson, George E. Foster, William J. Parish, Albert E. LaRoche.

Of the above Aldermen-elect, seven are members of this year's council: S. H. Treverton, A. H. Ketcheson, W. H. Patterson, A. Robinson, G. E. Foster, R. J. E. Graham and A. E. La Roche.

Messrs. Joseph C. Manley, C. A. Ruttan, Wm. J. Parish, Geo. W. Dawes and P. Harrison will be the new members. They have never occupied that position before.

Occupations of the Aldermen-elect is as follows:

G. W. Dawes—Boilermaker.
G. E. Foster—Smelting Engineer.
R. J. E. Graham—Barrister.
P. Harrison—Reporter.
A. H. Ketcheson—Manager.
A. E. LaRoche—Insurance Agent.
J. J. C. Manley—Contractor.
W. J. Parish—Laborer.
A. Robinson—Merchant.
C. A. Ruttan—Mechanic.
S. H. Treverton—Gentleman.
W. H. Patterson—Contractor.

It is expected that previous to the inaugural meeting of the Council a caucus of the Aldermen-elect will be held for the purpose of selecting chairmen of the various standing Committees. The probabilities are that Ald. R. J. E. Graham will be selected as chairman of the executive committee thus becoming the leader of the Council.

Aldermen A. H. Ketcheson, A. E. LaRoche and R. J. E. Graham are just completing their year in Council. Aldermen A. Robinson is without doubt the dean of the Council having served as Alderman for a number of years. Alderman S. H. Treverton is next in line of service. Ald. G. E. Foster has served four years in the Council and Alderman Paterson two years.

School Trustee

In Coleman Ward there will be a contest for public school trustees to take the place of Mr. C. E. Hanna, M.P.-elect. The candidates are Walter Looker and George Sprackett.

Murney Ward will have two new trustees to take the places of G. T. Woodley and P. Harrison, who retired. Their successors are E. A. Green and Allan Schryver.

Mayoralty Candidates

The contest for the position of Chief Magistrate of the city promises to be interesing, despite the fact that there will not be one for Aldermen. Four are aspiring for the position of Mayor namely, Mayor W. C. Mikel, K.C., ex-Mayor G. A. Bennett, Ald. W. R. McCreary and Ald. H. W. Greenleaf.

"I'm in the fight to the last," said Mr. Bennett to-day and with Mayor Mikel as the strongest contender, the fight should be a hard one.

MAIL-SORTER IN SERIOUS TROUBLE

Hamilton, Nov. 26.—Trapped by decoy letters containing money, Norman Berg, 87 Gage Avenue South, a mail-carrier in the Post-office, was arrested yesterday. His arrest followed investigations made by Inspector Eggleston and Gibson of Toronto. Letters containing money have been disappearing for some time at the local post office, it was stated. Two letters with money in each, were inserted in a bundle of mail which Berg was given to sort. A subsequent investigation showed that these two letters were missing.

Berg was asked to make an explanation. In doing so he broke down and admitted the theft of letters, postal authorities stated. While being taken to police head-quarters he bolted, but was captured in the cellar of A. C. Bain's grocery. He was standing in front of a furnace there and is alleged to have destroyed some letters he carried.

Chief of Police Didn't Know Whether To Arrest Boys Or Get After Dogs

Welland, Nov. 26.—Being in a hurry to reach school yesterday morning nearly cost the life of Cyril James, a Major street schoolboy of ten years. Two dogs, attracted by the speed of the lad, ran after and attacked him, bringing the boy to the ground.

Two other lads, seeing their companion's plight, and hearing his screams, rushed to the rescue and beat off the curs, but not before the clothes were literally torn from the lad in shreds. Even the gloves he wore were torn from the boy's hands, the dogs making off with their retreat.

Owing to his heavy clothing, young James escaed with practically no wounds, but had he not been rescued the result might have been far more tragic.

Chief of Police Crabb, discussing the incident, called to mind the outcry raised in the summer when the "poor dogs" were ordered to be confined.

"I am wondering whether I had better arrest the lads who interfered with the dogs' pleasure yesterday or to go after the dogs", said the chief "Perhaps it would be interesting to take a vote on that question."

LUCKY BABY BOY RECEIVES SPOON

St. Thomas, Nov. 26—Jack Edward Taylor has the distinction of being the first baby born in the maternity ward of the new Memorial Hospital, and in recognition of the fact Mrs. Taylor has been presented with an engraved spoon by Flower City Chapter, No. 91, Order of the Eastern Star.

THORNTON PRAISES THE NEWSPAPERS

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Nov. 26—The need for Canada to establish closer trade relations with the West Indies, and promise of the Canadian National Railways to support to the fullest measure of its ability any such trade program, and a tribute to the newspapers of Canada for the support they have accorded him personally and officially since he accepted the Presidency of the company, were the outstanding features of an address delivered before the Boar of Trade of Charlottetown by Sir Henry Thornton

COBOURG GREETS GOVERNOR-GENERAL

Cobourg, Ont., Nov. 26—The town of Cobourg was honored Tuesday afternoon by His Excellency Lord Byng of Vimy, Governor-General of Canada paying a very brief visit in an official capacity. Lord Byng was accompanied by Lady Byng, Miss E. Sandford, private secretary, and Capt. C. S. Price Davies, aide-de-camp.

The distinguished guests were met at the Canadian National station at 2 o'clock by a reception committee and driven to the Public school, where the school children of the town were assembled and sang "O Canada." Here Lady Byng was presented with handsome bouquets of chrysanthemums. The party then proceeded to Victoria Hall, where a platform had been erected. An address on behalf of the town was read by Mayor Boggs.

GRANTED BAIL ON CAR THEFT CHARGE

Harry Titterson of Foxboro appeared this morning on a charge of theft of an auto owned by Wilbur Johnston in June last. The car was hired by Titterson and a companion from Johnston who conducts a motor livery here. It was never returned, and recently the car was located at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Accused was granted bail this morning when the case was enlarged until December third.

STAGE WOLF DRIVE FOR SHEEP'S SAKE

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 26.—Unless early and drastic measures are taken to exterminate wolves in the Barriver Section the farmers of that area must discontinue sheep raising, say a number of prominent farmers of that neighborhood, who are behind the proposal to stage a wolf drive in the district.

KINGSTON HAPPY IN MUNICIPAL WAY

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 26.—Kingston's citizens are already assured of one good thing in 1925, a lower tax rate. This year one mill was knocked off the former rate, and next year another mill is to go. Old debenture debts are maturing and disappear, and new paving can be undertaken without any tax increase for that purpose.

SERVES 30 YEARS, IS GIVEN LEAVE

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 26.—The City Hall staff here will undergo almost a complete reorganization, the city treasurer's and tax collector's offices alone remaining unchanged. Col. H. F. Leonard, city clerk for 30 years, who was given four months' leave of absence during the summer months because of ill-health, will be given a three-months salary allowance.

ELECT BELAND CHAIRMAN

Geneva, Nov. 26—Hon. Dr. Beland, Canadian Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and delegate from the Dominion to the Geneva Opium Conference was Tuesday elected Chairman of the committee dealing with the manufacture and sale of narcotics.

MAYORS ELECTED

Brockville—Mayor W. B. Reynolds
Ford—Cleveland Mousseau.
Gananoque—W. J. Wilton.
Port Colborne—William Steed.
Simcoe—A. C. Burt.
Windsor—Mayor Frank J. Mitchell (re-elected).
Woodstock—Mayor Rea (re-elected).

According to a London dispatch, the position reached in the negotiations for a commercial treaty between Great Britain and Germany may be stated as follows: The British delegates had asked for the most favored nation treatment in regard to British imports. The Germans offered to concede this if the following three conditions were accepted: 1, German banks to be allowed to open branch offices in London immediately; 2, employment of German sailors and stewards to be permitted in British ships; 3, the 26 per cent duty on German exports to be modified. Later the Germans asked for complete abolition of the 26 per cent. duty, arguing that unless it were abolished it would be impossible to obtain ratification of the commercial treaty by the Reichstag.

"NOT PRESENT" SAY McCREARY AND GREENLEAF

In Regard to Disqualification Point on 1923 Vote

BENNETT WAS THERE

But Mayoralty Candidate Declares He Was in Right

Considerable interest has been created among the ratepayers of Belleville by the announcement in the Intelligencer last evening that some of the candidates for Mayoralty honors may be disqualified by reason of a vote taken in the City Council last year on August 20, when in the estimate by-law was passed providing for what is alleged to be the illegal withdrawal of money from the city's sinking fund for the benefit of general funds.

The Intelligencer gives below the section from the Municipal Act which is claimed to have been coutravened.

The Law in Point

S 301 Municial Institutes Act:

Every council shall keep a separate account of every debt and shall also keep two additional accounts in respect thereof, one for the interest and the other for the sinking fund or the instalments of principal, and both to be distinguished from all other accounts by a prefix designating the purpose for which the debt was contracted; and the accounts shall be kept so as to exhibit at all times the state of every debt, and the amount of money raised, obtained, and appropriated for payment of it. Sec. 301. Chap. 72, O. S. 1922.

S. 302.

(1) If in any year, after paying the interest and appropriating the necessary sum to the sinking fund, or in payment of the instalments there is a surplus properly applicable to such debt, it shall so remain until required in due course for the payment of interest or for the sinking fund, or in payment of the principal.

(2) No money collected for the purpose of a sinking fund shall be applied towards paying any part of the current or other expenditure of the corporation.

(3) If the council applies any such money in paying current or other expenditure, the members who vote for such application shall be personally liable for the amount applied which may be recovered in any Court of competent jurisdiction.

(4) If the council, upon the request in writing of a ratepayer, refuses or neglects for one month to bring an action therefor, the action may be brought by any ratepayer on behalf of himself and all other ratepayers.

(5) The members who vote for such application shall be disqualified from holding any municipal office for two years.

(6) The treasurer of a municipality in which any sum is required by law to be raised for a sinking fund, shall prepare and lay before the council in every year, previous to the striking of the annual rate, a statement showing what amount will be required for that purpose

(7) For every contravention of subsection 6, the treasurer shall incur a penalty not exceeding $25

(8) If the council neglects in any year to levy the amount required to be raised for a sinking fund, each member of the council shall be disqualified from holding any municipal office for two years unless he shows that he made reasonable efforts to procure the levying of such amount. Sec. 302. Ch. 72. O. S. 1922.

Admits Presence

On inquiry as to who of those who are contesting at the polls this year took part in the vote last year, Mr Bennett is the only one who admits he was present.

But Mr. Bennett says that he is convinced that nothing wrong was perpetrated and that the city benefitted greatly by the transaction. He would be qite willing to se the matter come up for judgment.

Ald. McCreary told the Intelligencer that he was out of town that day. He did not attend the meeting of the council in question.

Ald. Greenleaf said he left before the by-law was adopted. He said he became disgusted with the proceedings and went away

When questioned as to whether he had given advice to the council last on the matter, City Solicitor Masson said he had nothing to say for publication.

The minutes at the City Hall show that the following members of last year's council were present:

Mayor Bennett, Aldermen Adams Donohue, French, Greenleaf, Lynch Robinson, Thompson and Treverton. The allegation made is that the clause "Less profit on investment over sinking fund requirements — $9,271.32" which was included in the estimates by-law and which the 1923 Council adopted was illegal.

FINAL FIGURES IN FOR O.T.A. VOTE

Toronto, Nov. 26—Final and official figures on the recent Ontario Temperance Act plebiscite show that there was a majority of 34,031 votes cast for the continuance of the present liquor legislation. The total vote cast was 1,137,3?1, of which 585,676 were in support of the O.T.A. and 551,645 in favor of Government control of the sale of liquor.

THE VANQUISHED

CAMPBELLFORD IS SCENE OF STORM

When Town Council Becomes Excited Over Police Appointment

Campbellford, Nov. 26.—Campbellford's town council supplied fire works here last night which faded the West Hastings' bye-election incidentals into the background, when the matter of apponting a new Chief Constable for the town was up for discussion and settled.

The hottest discussion which probably ever occurred in the council chamber, resulted with personalities, and a street fight after the meeting. There was every need of a chief constable.

Finally Ex-Chief Constable John Brown of Port Hope was chosen from 167 applications, as Campbellford's new chief at a salary of $1,500 per yead. He will succeed Chief Charles Duncalfe who will retire, but remain in Campbellford, when Chief Brown takes over on January 1, 1925.

The trouble pot commenced to seethe when Mayor Meyers and one alderman held out most persistently for the appointment of a local man. They want to have Robert Cole appointed.

Lively discussion which ensued, culminated in Reeve Davidson asking Mayor Meyers to vacate the chair if he did not care or intend to proceed with the business of the meeting. This was almost the signal for a riot, and Town Solicitor I. A. Humphries was called to restore order from chaos. It was suggested that Mayor Meyers vacate the chair in favour of Police Commissioner George A. Kingstone. Order was finally restored.

On the vote, seven were in favor of the outside appointment and two for the local appointment.

Chief Brown comes with the highest qualifications, and recommendations. He has had police experience in the land of his birth, Scotland, as well as Peterboro, Orillia, Sudbury and Port Hope.

Keeps Firm Hand On Danger Spots

Populace of Cairo Seething With Indignation Over Replacements

Cairo, Nov. 26.—Hopeful that the establishment of a moderate government under Ziwar Pasha will end the crisis, Great Britain nevertheless kept a firm military grip on Cairo and other danger spots yesterday.

British airplanes swooped low over Port Said when crowds gathered threateningly there, and dispersed the natives without trouble.

The poplace of Cairo still was outwardly calm, although seething with indignation as Egyptian employees in the customs and telephone and telegraph administrations were replaced by British Troops in trench helmets with fixed bayonets patrolled the streets. A few Greek troops and some Soudanse with antiquated arms, also were on duty in the city.

Britain sent more troops to Egypt yesterday. A regiment of East Lancashires was ordered from Malta to Cairo, while a border regiment was to leave latter.

The East Kents are coming from Gibraltar on Saturday.

Marines and sailors were in evidence at strategic points in Alexandria, guarding the customs houses which were seized as a first punitive measure for Egypt's failure to meet all Britain's demands for reparation for the murder of Sir Lee Stack last week.

Lord Allenby, British high commissioner, who is in constant communication with London, indicated the British government will refrain from further punitive measures or demands until Ziwar Pasha, who succeeded Zaghloul Pasha, has had an opportunity to establish a moderate government.

Acts Within Rights

London, Nov. 26.—The Contention by some foreign newspapers and public ists that the Egyptian trouble ought to be referred to the League of Nations is received with considerable impatience in those quarters here which support the British government's action following the assassination of the sirdar.

The "Times," while holding that "no great good nor any particular harm" would be likely to result from reference of the matter to the league, strongly maintains that the British government is acting within its clear rights and that the British case is "thoroughly sound in law, justice, in the interests of Egypt and the world."

MURDOCK SAYS CHARGES FAIL BY VERDICT

Issues Official Statement at Ottawa This Morning

JOY IN CAMP

Government Regards Hastings Victory as Most Outstanding

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—"Charges made against me in the House of Commons of May 22 last and later developments in connection therewith, also the bye-election just held in West Hastings was believed to be in May last, and is now proved to have been directly result of an attempt at personal vindictive retaliation by leader of the Opposition," declared Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, in a written statement handed out this morning.

Mr. Murdock claims that the charges made against him on the floor of the House of Commons resulted from a difference between him and Right Hon. Arthur Meighen when Labor estimates were before the House last May, when the debate between the two became acrimonious. Mr. Murdock claims that Mr. Porter brought charges against him at the request of Mr. Meighen, declaring that in recent campaign speeches the leader of the Opposition had stated this to be the case.

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—Jubilation over West Hastings result has not lessened today among Government supporters. Result is hailed as the most striking victory won by a Liberal for—unless there are further vacancies in the interval, the Government will now meet Parliament with 118 members including the speaker against 117 for all Opposition parties.

FOREIGNERS' FEUD HAS DRASTIC CLIMAX

Fort William, Ont, Nov. 26.—Roused by the hurtling of bullets through the walls and windows of their home at Roslyn Village at three o'clock yesterday morning Peter Pastuk and his wife awoke to the fact that they were attacked by a gang. The fusillade appeared to come from revolvers and rifles. The Pastuks, terrified, crept down the stairs into the hall.

The supply of ammunition failed the besiegers at this time and they started to hurl rocks and bricks. Mrs. Pastuk fell with a broken head. Villagers, awakened by the firing, swarmed to the scene, and the besiegers disappeared in the darkness.

Mrs. Pastuk was brought to the McKellar Hospital and Mike Rusnak is held by Provincial Police on a charge of attempted murder. It is alleged that there was a bitter feud in existence between the Pastuks and Rusnak. Police are searching for two or three men alleged to have been implicated in the assault on the Pastuk home along with Rasnuk.

THIRD GENERATION IN SAME SERVICE

Kingston Nov. 26—It was announced Tuesday that John Kennedy, Portsmouth, had been appointed messenger at the Provincial penitentiary, in place of his father, Michael Kennedy, who has been superannuated after 53 years' service. Mr. Kennedy is the third generation of the Kennedy family who have been on the staff of the prison. His grandfather was a guard and also messenger for years.

THE ISSUE IGNORED

To those who have been working for the election of E. Guss Porter, K.C., the result of the voting in West Hastings yesterday is most disappointing, not because of the fact that West Hastings is lost to the Liberal Conservative party but because the majority of the electors ignored the serious issue of the by-election, the charges against James Murdock, Minister of Labor.

"It is most evident from the nature of the vote that the constituents of West Hastings did not cast their ballots for or against Mr. Murdock. We believe now, as we did during the campaign that the evidence that has been presented by Mr. Porter was most conclusive and that a calm jury uninfluenced by high pressure campaigners from the Liberal cabinet at Ottawa would have brought no other verdict than "Guilty".

A part of this high pressure campaign was that of hints and promises given and made by the Liberal Cabinet members in the riding that West Hastings stood to gain more in a national way if Mr. Hanna were elected; that having a representative on the government side, there would be good chances of the spending of much money on government work in the riding.

Many business men and others were greatly influenced by this suggestion, without a doubt.

NO ABUSE OF POWER

There is no reason for enemies of Britain to charge that the British government is taking advantage of the opportunity presented by the assassination of General Stack, Sirdar of Egypt and Governor-General of the Sudan, to advance British interests in Egypt by the coercive exercise of power. No demand that the British government has made but is warranted by the Anglo-Egyptian agreement of 1922.

As the Hamilton Herald says, it should be considered that two years ago Britain granted Egypt its political independence. The concession was not wrung from the British government; it was made voluntarily in the hope that the Egyptians, after a long period of foreign tutelage, had made such political advancement that they could be trusted with the privilege of self-government. But Britain did not withdraw from Egypt. With the consent of the Egyptians she reserved to herself certain rights and powers. She undertook to protect Egypt from foreign aggression and to protect the lives and property of foreigners in the country, and she retained the right of exercising advisory authority ,through British officials, in regard to the judiciary, national finance and the public security. It was agreed that the dual authority, British and Egyptian, in the Sudan would be continued.

For 40 years Britain had held and governed Egypt as a trust for the civilized world. She could not lightly relieve herself of her obligations, and it was only ordinary prudence, when self-government was granted to the Egyptians two years ago, that part of the suzerain power should be retained as a guarantee of stable government and the safety of the lives and property of foreigners in the country.

But British magnanimity was misunderstood by the Egyptian politicians. They mistook it for pusillanimity. They could not understand how a strong power could voluntarily divest itself of authority, and believed that the concessions made were wrung from Britain by the threats of nationalist agitators. If partial national independence could be thus won, why should not complete independence be won in the same way? Why should not the British be compelled by agitation and terrorism to get out of Egypt, hand over the Suez canal to the Egyptians and relinquish all claims to share in the administration of the Sudan?

It was in the hope of accomplishing these results that Zaghloul Pasha, the head of the Egyptian government, encouraged anti-British agitation and winked at the murder of British subjects. It seemed that no outrage could disturb the patience and forbearance of the British government. Then came the assassination of General Stack. That could not be condoned. It became necessary— a matter of duty—to exert the authority which had been relaxed. This has been done. The heavy fine imposed on the Egyptian government has been paid; but Zaghloul Pasha, rather than agree to other exactions, has resigned, and a new ministry has been formed. Meanwhile Egyptian troops have been ordered out of the Sudan, and in future Britain alone will assume responsibility for the government of that region.

Politically, almost all the ancient eastern peoples are in a state of childhood. They have no conception of real democracy and know little about self-government. For ages they have been accustomed to associate political power with military force inexorably exerted, and when there is no visible manifestation of such force they infer that political power has decayed and is not worthy of respect. In the government of such peoples it is a mistake to assume that in a few years they can be politically educated to the point where it is safe to entrust them with all the rights of democratic self-government.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Daily Ontario jumped on the band wagon just in time. Liberal readers will rejoice. Conservatives who saw in The Ontario a new champion for Conservatives, have had their eyes opened.

HANNA WINNER

months ago," said Premier King in commenting on the Government victory in West Hastings last night. "St. Antoine was regarded as the stronghold of Conservatism in the Ontario . In the case of each the bye-election was occasioned by the resignation of the sitting member to test popular feeling toward the present Administration. In Montreal the issue was avowedly that of the Government's fiscal policy. In West Hastings the Rt. Hon. Mr. Meighen and his associates sought to make the fiscal issue even more conspicuous than the moral issue involved.

"In West Hastings, the battle ground, according to his statement, was chosen by the Opposition Leader himself. It was thought that, as West Hastings had been Conservative since Confederation, and had never been represented in the Parliament of Canada by a Liberal member, the seat had only to be opened to permit of a score being made against the Government. Under the circumstances, it will be difficult for the Opposition to explain the result. Today's victory is an emphatic expression of the confidence on the part of the electors in the Government and its policies. Having regard to the moral issue, which the Government kept constantly to the fore, Mr Hanna's victory over Mr. Porter will be hailed with delight as the expression of a wholesome sentiment on the part of Canadian citizens against hypocrisy and hypocritical behavior in our public life."

The New Member

Charles Edward Hanna was an Alderman, of Belleville, for three years—1918, 1919, and 1920—and served in the capacity of Public Works Chairman, and in 1921-22 was Mayor. During his regime Belleville embarked upon a wide scheme of streets paving. He is just 40 years of age, and has always lived in this city. As soon as he could blow a horn he joined the I.O.O.F. Band, and he still plays the French horn in the Argyle Light Infantry Band. He is a member of the Masonic Order., the I.O.O.F., Orange Order, True Blues and Woodmen of the World. He is a member of the Tabernacle Methodist Church. He was for nearly twenty years the owner of one of the first moving-picture houses in this city.

He is married and has two young daughters. He is a member of the firm of the Walker Hardware Company, having joined that firm as a youth and worked his way forward, until he was invited to become a partner.

Mayor Mikel has a definite policy for improving the city.

Are you drinking more tea? If not, you're behind the procession. The British this year are selling the United States 137 pounds of tea for every 82 pounds last year.

Such things do not happen by chance. In this case, the reason is advertising.

British interest have been advertising heavily, portraying tea temptingly, urging its use. Advertising talks to tens of thousands while the individual salesman talks to one.

FINISHING THE JOB
(Boston Transcript)

Mussolini's task was mainly economic. The black shirt was an incident. The job was to put the employment general and to remove the uncertainty and discontent bred, not only by the war, but from causes existing long before that outburst. It was unemployment and Government waste that gave the socialists and Communists in Italy much of their excuse for activities really destructive.

LARGE FAMILIES IN SMALL HOUSES
(Toronto Star

Sir Adam Beck keeps repeating his assertion that rates should not penalize the man who is forced, by size of family, to occupy a large house. It is upon this ground that Sir Adam defends the new rates which he is endeavoring to impose upon Toronto—rates which would lower the Hydro bills of large residences at the expense of the small home owner.

If size of home varied according to size of family, there might be something in Sir Adam's argument. But everyone knows that is not the case. The largest families are not to be found in the largest homes. The largest families are to be found in the smaller homes and these large families in small homes are the families most in need of a rate reduction, if a rate reduction were to be made.

FARM FIRE MENACE
(St. Thomas Times Journal)

Ontario farmers should be genuinely alarmed over the increasing losses from farm fires. Losses from barns burned annually in this province have doubled since 1918. Lightning, spontaneous combustion, sparks and careless use of matches are still fruitful causes of farm fires, but they are not responsible for such a terrible increase. According to George F. Lewis, deputy provincial fire marshal, the fire hazard has been greatly increased by the more general use of gasoline on the farm through automobiles, trucks, tractors and stationery engines.

He stated that his generosity was inspired because the detective had signed his book, allowing him to sell a man back his own property at 75 per cent. profit within twenty-four hours, instead of waiting the fifteen days prescribed by municipal ordinance. Witness said that the detective had not asked for the "tip."

Deaths and Funerals

THOS. DOWNARD

An aged resident of Hastings County in the person of Mr. Thomas Downard, passed away last evening. Deceased was 82 years of age and was a resident of Marmora Township nearly all his life. A family of five sons and six daughters survive.

MRS. E. O. SEYMOUR

On Saturday November 22, 1924, there passed away at the home of her father, Mr. C. B. Scantlebury, College Hill, Belleville, Evelyn Elmina Seymour, beloved wife of Rev. Edgar O. Seymour, pastor of the Havelock Methodist church.

Through long months of sickness and suffering, Mrs. Seymour kept faith and courage in the hope of a possible recovery. Through this long period she was not only sustained by the care and attention of those who so faithfully ministered unto her but also by the sympathy and prayers of a large connection of intimate friends and associates. Her patience and kind thoughtfulness was particularly manifested and her increasing reliance upon the Higher Power was a stimulation of faith both to herself and to those who, day by day, waged an unceasing battle against the Grim Reaper.

When at last the frail body could no longer be sustained, her spirit quietly took its flight back to the Father who gave it, there to enjoy fellowship wih the Christ whose life is hid in God.

The deceased was born and educated in Belleville an honor graduate of Albert College in Music, taking her A. A.C.M. and in Elocution. For years her training and talents were devoted to the Mission Band and Sunday School work in the University Sunday School. Her marriage eight years ago to Rev. Edgar O. Seymour introduced her to a still wider field of church and Sunday School activity.

Through these years she was a devoted wife and true helpmate in the congregations of both Bath and Havelock during the pastorates of her bereaved husband.

The funeral service was held on Tuesday, Nov. 25, 1924 at 2.30 p.m. from the home of her father.

The service was a very impressive one and bore eloquent testimony to the esteem and worth in which Miss Seymour was held, Rev. H. B. Kenny, a most intimate friend of the deceased, conducted the service and spoke from the text in St. Mark's Gospel, chapter 14, verse 8, "She hath done what she could," emphasizing the spirit of helpfulness and loving service. A lifelong friend in the person of Rev. Dr. Baker spoke a few appropriate words regarding her beautiful life and character.

One of the fine tributes of respect was the presence of so many ministers of the Bay of Quinte Conference, who assisted in the service.

The attendance of so many friends from Bath and Havelock circuits was a testimony of the esteem and regard in which the deceased was held. The many and beautiful floral tributes were a wonderful expression of the love and sympathy of many friends

Members of the Quarterly Official Board of Havelock in the persons of Messrs. A. C. Denike, Charles Roberts W. B. Ritchie, Edward Fennel, George Van Volkenburg and George Spencer, acted as bearers to lay away to rest in the Beleville Cemetery one whom they had learned to love.

Mikel made a good Mayor Try him again.

Philip Falcetano, alias Philly Lewis, a Newark pugilist, and his brother, Anthony, were convicted at Newark, N.J., of second degree murder by a jury before County Judge Porter. They were charged with the fatal shooting of Thomas R. Loan during the early morning hours of August 23 last. Sentence will be imposed December 1. The state charged that the shooting was inspired by the thought of robbery.

The total number of communicant Anglicans on the electoral roll in England is just over 3,000,000 according to the representation in the House of Laity which allows one member for every 20,000 electors. WHY NOT TRY CHIROPRACTIC?

You have undoubtedly tried a multitude of so-called cures in a keen endeavor to regain your health.

HAVE YOU SUCCEEDED?

You may be suffering with a chronic affliction such as Rheumatism, Asthma, Constipation, Neuritis, Sciatica, Indigestion, Deafness or Paralysis. You may be subject to periodical attacks of Tonsilitis, Lumbago, Hay Fever, Menstrual Disorders, Hemorrhoids, Bronchitis, Colds, Fevers or severe Headaches. You may be a "Nervous Individual" self conscious, irritable and miserable, not able to control yourself or appreciate the pleasures and comforts that belong to you. You may have a little child who is "backward" at school, is pale and delicate, has a poor appetite, stutters doesn't seem to grow and progress like other children, suffers with stomach, kidney or bowel disorders and whose condition in general is a constant source of worry to you.

Thousands of patients, many in your own vicinity, have been relieved of the above afflictions and who are to-day a living example of what Chiropractic can do for you.

Chiropractic is the Drugless Health Science of Removing the Predisposing Cause of disease by relieving Nerve Pressure or interference at the Spinal Column by a skilful method of cautious adjusting.

CHIROPRACTIC IS NOT A CURE-ALL

..or is the science of medicine, osteopathy or any other health science. They all have their necessary place in the great field of rendering relief to suffering humanity and, if I conscientiously feel I cannot help you, you will be quickly informed and referred elsewhere.

Pittsburgh Plans 52 Story School

"Cathedral of Learning" Will Cost About Ten Million Dollars

Pittsburg, Nov. 26.—A building of great height "to express the spirit of Pittsburg achievement with such force and such grasp of its sublimity that the whole world will understand" is the underlying idea, of the University of Pittsburg's 52-story "Cathedral of Learning" to be erected at the entrance to Schenley Park and near the site of present facilities of the institution. The cathedral will cost $10,000,000.

Chancellor J. C. Bowman expressed this idea as the principal purpose of the trustees in planning this radical departure in university building construction, pointing out that most educational buildings were long and low, modeled after the structures of ancient Greece and Rome. They suggest calmness and repose, he said, whereas the building planned for Pittsburg will suggest achievement and ambition for further achievement. Repose, he said, is a reward for labor performed and is not the atmosphere in which youth should prepare for the struggles of life.

Greatest of All

"The Cathedral of Learning," Chancellor Bowman said, "is to be the greatest structure ever erected by any community to tell its own living will. The Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial in Washington are the expressions of a nation, not of the city of Washington, but this building will be an expression of the spirit of Pittsburg. The building is to be high, not for the sake of being high, but for the power of inspiration and for the sublimity which great height, together with rich proportions, mass, lines, carvings, friezes and pointed Gothic arches can give. By its architecture and by its purpose the building is to record in an atmosphere of worship the effort of those who made Pittsburg what it is and to inspire to still higher achievement those who are to come. It is for this reason that there will be no tower on the building.

$2,000,000 Stadium

The "Cathedral of Learning" is but one of two ambitious building projects launched by the university. The other is the $2,000,000 stadium which will be ready for use next fall. It is being built of steel and concrete and covers a tract 450 by 600 feet. Its seating capacity will be 65,000.

The head-dress particularly appeals to the romantic Americans. It makes every traffic cop look like a "sheik". The wilderness is also emphasized by the generous beltful of cartridges shown on the right.

TWO BROTHERS IN SIMILAR ACCIDENTS

Galt, Nov. 26.—Two brothers lie in the Galt hospital both suffering from badly fractured legs. Last week while C. Halliday, an employee of the H. O. Cereal mill at Ayr, was engaged with other workmen in making repairs to a water wheel, his leg became caught in a gear and was badly broken in two places. This morning his brother, James Halliday, of this city, a Hydro lineman, fell 25 feet from a pole on which he was working onto a cement sidewalk, suffering a bad fracture of the leg. He was engaged at changing a cross-arm on a pole, when the snap on his body belt in some way became unfastened and he fell. He was rushed to the hospital.

LABOR IN REPUBLIC TO SHUN POLITICS

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 26.—The annual convention of the American Federation of Labor rejected by an overwhelming majority proposals for the support of a new political party, and re-affirmed adherence to a policy of strict non-partisan political activity.

Two resolutions asking the Federation's participation in a new party were unfavorably reported by the committee on resolutions. The committee at the same time recommended acceptance of the special report of the executive council urging continued non-partisan activity.

The resolutions committee report was adopted by a viva voce vote, in which only one opposing vote was recorded.

WAVE OF CRIME SWEEPS CHICAGO

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Major criminal depredations continued in Chicago yesterday, States Attorney Robert E. Crowe, announced that he would end "all violations and wipe this county and city clean."

Before the opening of a grand jury joint inquiry into the murder of Eddie Tanci, roadhouse owner, yesterday, and the slaying of Dion Obanion, florist gunman two weeks ago, the states attorney made this statement.

Last night two armed men forced George Heaney, 30, messenger for the Pantheon Theatre, out of a taxicab and robbed him of $6,000 in currency, which he was carrying to a bank three blocks away. The cab driver witnessing the hold-up, fled, and is being sought by the police.

Sam Masotossky and his son Benjamin were held up in their second-hand store by two men and robbed of $2,500 in jewels and $200 in cash.

Burglars broke into the Klein jewelry shop in the heart of the Loop district and made away with $50,000 in diamonds, currency and jewelry. Mounted gems valued at $150,000 were overlooked. The safe of the Pershing theatre was cracked and $3,000 in money taken. An unusual number of minor hold-ups was reported to the police.

TO ERECT A TWO MILLION MILL

Fort William, Nov. 26.—A. H. Black, President of the Great Lakes Paper Company, announced yesterday that a 280-ton daily capacity paper mill was contemplated for erection first thing next spring, or, at least, a 100-ton capacity paper mill, at an estimated cost of from $2,500,000 to $1,000,000. This will employ from 100 to 150 men. The plant is to be in operation by April, 1926. The company is at present operating a 125-ton daily capacity pulp mill here, employing 230 men. The power supply will be increased from 7,500 to 30,000 horsepower.

LIME WILL AID CLOVER

It Enables the Plant to Cope With the Winter

Acid Phosphate Good for Clover and Alfalfa—A Great Root Farmer—Nitrate of Soda Helps In Cold Springs—Poultry Pointers.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Did your clover kill out in the spring? If it did, you had better write the Department of Chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, for directions for taking a sample of your soil to discover the reason.

Reports from some districts this year show a good deal of winter wheat and clover killed out, states the Department of Chemistry, O.A.C. This is highly undesirable, and can be prevented by the use of lime and acid phosphate applied with the crop on which the clover is seeded. In some cases lime is not necessary, for the soil is not acid; but where acidity occurs lime is very essential. Phosphorus is a great root farmer, and it is the strong deep-rooted clover and wheat plant that withstands the alternate freezing and thawing of spring weather.

Result of Lime Phosphate Experiments.

In answer to a circular sent out last spring to the twenty-five co-operative experimenters handling our Lime Phosphate Experiment, the majority report that the clover on the half acre which received crushed limestone and acid phosphate in the fall of 1922 is in perfect shape, while in many cases the untreated section did not winter nearly as well and in one or two cases will have to be ploughed up.

If seeding is done with spring grain it is good business to use acid phosphate at the rate of at least 300 pounds per acre, and preferably 400. If the soil is acid, lime is also necessary to give a strongly-rooted clover and alfalfa which will carry it over the first winter, the most critical period of the life of the plant.

Nitrate of Soda Helps In Cold Springs.

In such a season as the spring of last year, cold and wet, the greatest need of the plant is for nitrates, says the Department of Chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. The ground will be so cold and wet that it takes a long time to warm up, and as a result bacterial activity is at a low ebb. As a result no nitrates are formed in the soil, and plants cannot make vegetative growth.

To correct this and enable the plant to get away to a good start, apply nitrate of soda one hundred pounds to one hundred and fifty pounds per acre at once. If bought in lots of several hundred pounds it can be obtained at a reasonable price, and its benefit is almost certain. Do not, however, apply if heavy rain threatens, as it is soluble and will be lost by washing.

Another benefit which will be derived is this that the nitrate of soda dissolves in the soil water and soaks down into the soil. The roots go after it, and hence the result is a deeper rooted plant more able to withstand the period of drouth which so often follows a wet seed time.

Poultry Pointers.

An ointment of lard and kerosene is a good one for scaly legs.

Nothing will more quickly make scrubs of your stock than scrub treatment.

The best tonics you can give your stock are fresh air, exercise and a variety of foods.

It is usually the best policy to keep the hens shut up on cold, rainy days. They are better inside than out during such weather.

"Bad luck" is nothing more than a penalty for mismanagement. Before you begin to complain, it would be better to investigate.

Fowls are naturally of a hardy nature. They can be kept so by good care and breeding only from the strongest and most vigorous specimens each year.

The poultry building should not be so wide that the rays of the sun can not reach the back of the interior of the house. Otherwise it will be damp. Fourteen feet is a convenient width.

Chicken mites do not feed to any great extent upon other hosts when chickens are at hand. They are carried about chiefly by the interchange of poultry and in crates and boxes in which fowls are shipped.

Poultry raising is similar to farming in that it is not so much the number of acres owned, but the number properly handled that gives the profits. Small, well cared for flocks always bring the best returns.

The hen's greatest profit-producing period is the first and second years, and unless a hen is an especially good breeder she should be disposed of at the end of her second laying season and before starting to molt.

Boys and girls should be encouraged to start in the poultry business. It requires little money to invest, and the current expenditure may be reduced in part by utilizing farm and home wastes. If the project begins with a laying flock the return begins early, especially by supplementing the food supply of the home.

Egg Production at O. A. C.

The average egg production of the one thousand pullets that were trapnested for the year was 168 eggs each. We are trying to improve the strain in size of body, size of eggs and color, rather than increasing the number of eggs. Five pens of ten pullets each were placed in laying competitions. The fifty birds averaged slightly above 190 eggs each. The high bird of those in the contests was 263 eggs, and the high bird of those on the plant was 296 eggs.—Prof. W. R. Graham, O. A. C., Guelph.

Random Notes

From the first returns it was evident that a record poll had been taken Sub-division after sub-division returned totals larger than ever before.

In the City of Belleville where Mr. Porter had majorities they were small and it was to be noted that Mr. Hanna's majorities were considerable individual polls going in his favour.

The poling sub-division in Bleecker Ward where a large number of railwaymen voted showed sizeable majorities for Mr. Hanna. This indicated the probability that many railwaymen stuck to their former leader, James Murdock.

Huntingdon complete gave Mr. Porter a majority of 23. Huntingdon always was a sure win for Mr Porter.

The far north people had not the best news for Mr. Porter's supporters but stated that the Liberal-Conservative Leader was holding his own. Herschel gave 34 votes for Porter and 115 for Hanna.

Bangor gave 125 for Hanna. Wollaston gave 1 majority for Hanna.

The vote in Coe Hill was just about fifty-fifty. Hanna got 168 votes and Porter got 167. In Faraday Porter got 76 and Hanna 179. In this Mr. Porter lost just 4 votes from the vote in the last general election.

Town of Marmora gave Mr. Porter majority of 106. Deloro gave him 83, and reports from Marmora early in the evening stated that Mr. Porter's majority in the township of Marmora would be considerable.

After many reports of a large majority for Mr. Hanna in Trenton the final official figure was stated to be 67 for the Liberals.

At 9 o'clock the following report was given from the Liberal-Conservative Committee rooms:

Belleville (with 8 polls to hear from) Hanna's majority 400.

Riding with 18 polls to hear from 50 majority for Mr. Porter.

Frankford gave about 50 of majority for the Conservatives.

Due to the big poll Deputy-Returning Officers were unusually late in getting in their returns. At 9 o'clock there were several sub-divisions to hear from in Belleville.

Long distance lines were hot all evening, electors from all over the riding were collecting results over the phone.

Hanna supporters paraded the down town streets in large numbers at 3.30 p.m. confident then that their candidate was elected.

They had the band out to celebrate and yelled derisively as they passed the Intelligencer office and the Porter Committee rooms.

Charles Hanna was seated high up on one truck while one of his friends waved a handkerchief over his head.

Bancroft—
Hanna 189, Porter 177, majority for Hanna 12.
Avondale—

Sidney, Avondale—
Porter 140, Hanna 130, majority for Porter 10.

Sidney Town Hall—Maj. for Porter 2

Stirling—Maj. for Porter 66.

When Liberals conceded a victory to Liberals, Charles Hanna was taken to Trenton for a celebration there. Boardman stated that the official majority for Hanna at the city of Belleville was 552.

At ten oclock this evening Conservatives conceded the bye-election of West Hastings to the Liberals.

The far north went against Mr. Porter.

Canadian Fans Report Hearing Different English Stations at Night

Regina, Nov. 26.—E. L. Delong, Star City, Sask., picked up the radiocast of the Sheffield, England, station during the international broadcasting hour on a three-tube regenerative set Monday night.

Sarnia Man Gets Cardiff

Sarnia, Nov. 26.—Jack Scarletta, local amateur radio fan, reported yesterday that at 11.30 o'clock Monday night while listening for European broadcasting he heard Station 5 W A, at Cardiff, Wales, signing off, following a speech which was too indistinct for him to determine its nature. Mr. Scarlatta said he heard the signing-off announcer quite distinctly. For the rest of the hour at which the European stations were sending out their programs Mr. Scarlatta heard nothing but howls, which seems to have been the experience of most of the local fans. He was using a four-tube set.

H. W. McRitchie, 177 Kathleen Avenue, got an English station between 11.20 p.m. and 11.31 p.m., but was unable to pick up the station's number. He heard the Guards Band playing a medley, and a soprano solo, and the announcer telling of an American artist who was with him last year. "American listeners-in," he said, "will be sorry that he is not with us this year." Mr. McRitchie has a home-made three-bulb set, and complained that the continuous howling interfered with his reception.

Birmingham Band Heard

London, Ont., Nov. 26—Last night Sergeant C. B. Handley of the District Military Headquarters, operating a four-tube set with fully charged batteries, enjoyed a band concert broadcast from a station in Birmingham, England. He was, however, unable to secure the code letters of the station. Other local amateurs report having had some degree of success in last night's transoceanic radio tests.

In Belleville the railway vote went Hanna and apparently the large number of friends of the successful candidate remained true to him against

Get rid of constipation by internal cleanliness

HEADACHES, biliousness, sleepless nights, heaviness, are Nature's warning that intestinal poisons are flooding your system. If this is allowed to continue, you may become a victim of serious organic disease.

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

BASKETBALLERS GETTING READY FOR ACTION ; HARRY WATSON JOINS PARKDALE CANOE CLUB

Chances Bright For City Team

In Ontario Basketball Association Group; May Be Change

Phil Brockel, physical director of the Y.M.C.A. in Belleville, stated to-day that in all probability there would be a team from the city entered in the Ontario Basketball Association this season.

There is some good material in two or three new men, he said and Belleville should make a fair showing.

Mr. Brockel is convenor for the district. He says that Queen's may not be in the group this year, but that there is a chance that the Kingston Y.M.C.A. may enter. Peterboro seems assured of a good team.

Big Leaguers Lost Heavily

Baseball Exhibitions in Europe and England Did Not Pay

Paris, Nov. 26.—Members of the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox baseball teams, most of whom have been touring Europe since the last of their exhibition games, gathered in Paris Monday afternoon preparatory to sailing for the United States yesterday aboard the Leviathan.

The baseball players' visit was a huge success from a sightseeing viewpoint but a big loser financially.

"We didn't expect to make any money," said Manager John McGraw of the Giants. "We wanted to give the boys a good time and try to introduce baseball in Europe . We succeeded in our first aim and time will tell whether we were successful in the second."

HARRY WATSON GOES TO PARKDALE TEAM

Toronto Nov. 26.— Harry Watson turned out with Parkdale last night, settling all controversy as to where the Olympic star would play hockey this Winter. Watson jumped into the game with all his old dash and enthusiasm and without a doubt his presence with the Paddlers will make them contenders for the senior O.H.A. championship. Alex Romeril also joined Parkdale last night, as did Ernie Collett, goal-tender with the Olympics, and Frank Sullivan, Mose Lount, Don Jeffery, Harold Applegath, Jack Cain, Bas Harrington, Bas Mogan, Jack Aggett, Fred Staines, all but Cain and Harrington of last season's team and a host of others were also in Coach Tom Melvill's squad and the workout was a clinker. Parkdale after several lean years appears to be coming into its own again.

DETROIT TAXIS GIVE FREE RIDES

Detroit, Nov. 26.—Free rides are the latest development in the price-war between Detroit taxicab companies.

Yesterday an independent cab displayed the following sign on Woodward Avenue: "Ride absolutely free. Just tip the driver."

Heretofore the cabs of the war-ring companies have been bedecked with signs stating that five persons could ride for the same price ordinarily charged one, as extra passengers were carried free.

Now it's free rides altogether.

SUGGEST NEW RINK FOR TORONTO CITY

Toronto, Nov 26—Hockey and skating at the Coliseum during the winter is now within the range of probabilites It was learned Tuesday that Finance Commissioner Ross and Parks Commissioner Chambers, who have been negotiating with a group of local sport promoters, will have a report ready to submit to the Board of Control within a few days. The promoters have managed to bring their offer up to what was demanded by the two commissioners, who acted as a board of management of the big Exhibition building.

The city will demand a guarantee of a stated rental for the season, and perhaps a percentage of the receipts if the venture develops into a success great enough to justify the taking of such an enterprise. An artificial ice plant would have to be installed.

If the undertaking proceeds a regulation sheet of ice will be made within the present ring, which is too large for a hockey rink. Temporary sideboards will be erected around the ice and seats will be placed between them and the sides of the present ring. In all, Coliseum could accomodate between 9,000 and 10,000 people.

Chinese Students Up Against It

Peking Government Cuts Off Allowances; Are Seeking Jobs

More than 400 Chinese students in schools and colleges in all parts of the United States face the necessity of giving up their studies and returning to China because they have been deprived of their allowances from the Peking government. For the first time in many centuries, because of the civil war, the Chinese government has defaulted in its monthly educational fund payment amounting to about $32,000.

In most of the larger cities of the country the Chinese have registered for jobs, hoping to earn enough money to tide them over and enable them to continue their school work. In addition, a number of charitable organizations and churches have announced that they will help if necessary.

Arrest Bean King Down in Tampa

Confidential Employe Broke Down and Told Whereabouts

Buffalo, Nov. 26.—Lewis E. Sands, the Albion, N.Y., "bean king" arrested in Tampa, Fla., will be brought back to answer grand larceny charges growing out of the $1,000,000 failure of his many bean companies scattered over the United States.

The arrest of Sands came within five hours after Mrs. Grace K. Gerks, of Rochester, his confidential employe, had broken down and furnished authorities here with the necessary information as to his whereabouts.

District Attorney Munson stated that the big swindle was accomplished by three methods: forging warehouse receipts, issuing false warehouse receipts and spurious bills of lading. The Orleans county prosecutor said the swindle was discovered when a New York city stockholder in the bean company went to Albion to investigate the finances of the company. The failure followed this inquiry.

It was disclosed the alleged defrauding of banks had extended over several years and had been so cleverly executed that the fraud had only been discovered by accident.

Sands' company was one of the largest of its kind in the world, having branches and subsidiaries in 17 American cities.

WORKMAN'S SLIP COST $50,000

Montreal, Nov. 26—George Coleman a civic employee, had an extremely narrow escape from death yesterday when he pulled the wrong switch on a 10,000-volt circuit at the new plant of the Montreal Water and Power Company in Ville St. Paul. Damage of $50,000 resulted from the ensuing short-circuit and practically every street car in the city was brought to a stand still at the height of the morning rush hour.

"Coleman ran when he saw the widening flame which foretold what was imminent," said an official of the plant "Had he not done so, there would have been nothing left of him—he'd have been burned to a crisp."

Coleman, it was stated was employed testing the new and powerful apparatus which is being installed in the plant. He had been performing the same duty every day for a month, but this morning he accidently "pulled the wrong switch" thus throwing the 10,000 voltage upon another circuit, already "loaded" to capacity.

Mayor Mikel's policy has given Belleville splendid publicity.

NO TRACE YET OF MISSING AIRMEN

Sacket Harbor, N.Y., Nov. 26.—Wreckage of the plane in which Pilot Call Groby and Harry D. Dionne of Ogdensburg left that city Sunday afternoon, and for which a search has been conducted, was washed ashore near Little Sandy, seven miles north of the Big Sandy life-saving station, late yesterday. No trace of the men was found by a life guard who discovered the wreckage.

The guard from the Big Sandy station who was on patrol along the Little Sandy shore, made an examination of the cockpit of the plane and of the vicinity, but could find no trace of the men He hurriedly communicated with the companions of the missing aviators, William Talbot and Joseph Rasbach of Ogdensburg, who left by automobile for the scene to aid in further search for the men. Talbot and Rasbach left Ogdensburg for a flight to Florida with Groby and Dionne Sunday afternoon, but finding flying conditions bad, made their first landing here. it is thought the other plane was forced down into Lake Ontario.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN: SERIAL: THEATRES

A Womans Soul

BY Charles Garvice

Doris looked and saw a fair, pleasant-looking man standing in the front of the box. He was watching the dispersing audience with a gentle smile, and his fat white hand was softly smoothing his long, fair hair from his forehead. He looked benevolent enough to be a bishop, and Doris stared from him to the white ashen face of Jeffrey.

"What is it, dear Jeffrey?" she asked.

"Look! look!" he repeated hoarsely. "There stands your greatest enemy, save one! Your greatest enemy in the world! look at him, Doris! Look at him and remember him!"

She turned her eyes to the box.

"That fair gentleman with the long hair, do you mean, Jeffrey?"

"Yes, that is him! Curse him! Curse him!" he muttered. Then suddenly he seemed to recover himself.

"Come away!" he said brokenly. "Don't pay any attention to what I have said. It—it is nothing!" and he let the edge of the curtain fall.

CHAPTER XI.

LOVE'S SUBTLE SPELL

At any other time Doris would have been alarmed at Jeffrey's sudden outburst of rage, occasioned by the sight of the amiable-looking stranger in the box, but she could think of nothing but the little white note lying hidden in the bunch of violets which Lord Cecil Neville had thrown to her.

It was the first note she had received in that way, and she felt guilty and unhappy.

If she had only told Jeffrey on the first of her acquaintance with Lord Neville! She would have taken the note to him, if she had done so; but she felt that to place it in his hands now would be to call forth one of his fierce outbursts of rage, in which it was quite possible he might seek Lord Neville and force a quarrel on him.

What should she do? The question haunted her all the way home. Should she write and tell Lord Neville that she could not meet him, and request him not to write to her again? This seemed the easiest thing to do, but she shrank from it for two reasons: One, because Jeffery had often warned her against writing to strangers, and the other because it seemed so stern a rebuke for so slight an offense.

For, after all, his sin was not so great. He had asked permission to call upon her, asked it respectfully and with all the defence of a gentleman addressing a lady his equal in position, and she had refused to grant him the permission. If he wanted to see her, what else could he do than write and ask her to meet him?

Once she nearly summoned up courage to tell Jeffrey everything, but as she looked up at him as he leaned back in the corner of the fly, with bent head and folded arms, she saw so stern and moody an expression on his face that her courage failed her; he was just in the humor to consider the note an insult, and seek to avenge it.

And somehow Doris could not regard it in this way. As she read the words, she seemed to hear Lord Neville's deep, musical voice pronouncing them, pleadingly, respectfully, with reverence rather than insult.

Doris was a great actress, but she was as ignorant of the world outside the theatre as a child; she had only her instinct to guide her, and that seemed to say that it was impossible Lord Neville could have meant to insult her!

But the result of all her thinking was this: That her acquaintance with him must cease. She must have no friends save those of the theatre; least of all, a young nobleman who tossed bouquets of violets, and begged her to meet him in the meadows!

Jeffrey's mood clung to him during the remainder of the night. As a rule, after their supper, which was an exceedingly simple one, he grew cheerful and talkative; but to-night he sat with bent head and frowning brows, apparently brooding over the past.

Once or twice she saw him look up at her with a half-troubled glance; then, as his eyes met hers, he compressed his lips and sighed; and after a while he said suddenly:

"You are happy, Doris?"

She started slightly and the color rushed to her face. It almost seemed as if he knew something was troubling her.

"Happy, Jeffrey? Yes," she said, and went and sat at his feet and folded her hands on his knee.

He looked down into her beautiful face—not into her eyes, for they were downcast.

"Yes," he said, moodily and absently, as if he were communing with his own thoughts rather than addressing her, "yes, you are happy; how could it be otherwise? All that I have wished for has come to pass. You are a great actress, you will be famous. The world will be at your feet—even as you are now at mine! It will hang upon your voice, watch with breathless interest your face, pour its gold into your lap. Great, famous; you are—you must be—happy!"

"Yes, Jeffrey," she said, "and I owe it all to you."

"To me?" he said. "Yes. But if you do, it is a debt that I myself owed. To you, to her——"

"To her?" she murmured, wonderingly.

"To Lucy, to your mother," he said, still absently.

"To my mother?" said Doris, with bated breath.

He was silent for a moment, then he seemed as if awakening from a dream.

"Doris," he said, gravely, and with visible emotion, "there is something I must tell you. I ought to have told you before this; but I put it off. I would put it off now—" his lips quivered—"for I hate the thought of it. But to-night my conscience has been roused. That man——" he stopped and his teeth clicked. "Doris!" he exclaimed with a catch in his breath. "Tell me, have I not been as a father to you? Could any father have striven more hardly for his daughter's good? Could any father have loved you better, and lived for you more solely and entirely than I have done?"

"No, Jeffrey, none!" she said, in a low voice, and laying her soft, white hand upon his rugged and gnarled one soothingly.

Many See Again Uncle Tom's Cabin

Company Presents Old Favorite to Good Crowds At Griffin's

Uncle Tom's Cabin, as played by the Stetson Co. in Griffin's theatre last night, brought anew to the people that old story of the slaves that won a place in everyone's hearts in their tender years.

Baby Lillian with her frail, childish manner moved the audience to tears, while H. R. Downing as Lawyer Marks supplied the lighter side of the play, and Topsy brought roars of laughter. Uncle Tom, the kindly old slave, whose spirit Simon Legree could not break, was the exact type from Harriet Beecher Stowe's novel.

Mr. Carey did some clever work in his dual part of George Harris and Alphonse St. Clair, acting both parts particularly well.

Miss Dot Williams as Eliza and her son Harry, crossed the ice in a very realistic manner pursued by the blood-hounds and aided by Phineas Fletcher. The whole was carried to a climax with Uncle Tom's death and vision of little Eva as an angel.

Between acts the darky quartette sang, and danced very acceptably.

The school children's matinee crammed the house to capacity and many were turned away, while the evening performance was also well attended.

After the selection was ended he was taken to his home in an ambulance. He is expected to recover.

Say Tarkington Has Never Failed

His "Cameo Kirby" is One Proof at Belle Theatre

It is claimed that Booth Tarkington, celebrated Hoosier author-dramatist, never wrote a failure.

Whether or not that can be substantiated, there is no doubt but that the author of "Penrod," "Seventeen," and other delightful stories of typical American life, has more successes to his credit than any living American writer.

One of Tarkington's greatest stage successes, "Cameo Kirby," which he wrote in collaboration with Harry Leon Wilson has been put into picture form and will be shown at the Belle Theatre for three days opening tomorrow.

John Gilbert stars in the title role, a dashing, square-shooting gambler of the old Mississippi river steamboat of the most exciting and entertaining dramas in which this popular star has ever appeared.

Gertrude Olmsted plays opposite Gilbert. The picture was produced by William Fox under the direction of John Ford.

OFFERED HERSELF FOR A MORTGAGE

"I knew Cecilia before her offer was made," said Ragin. "That night I proposed. Now she has accepted me, and we will be married soon."

The educational allowance for these students was the result of the Boxer rebellion, in China, 25 years ago. Several Americans were killed and the American indemnity bill amounted to $22,000,000. Half of this was raised and paid to the United States government.

During the Roosevelt administration it was found that $10,000,000 would pay all American claims, and the balance of $1,000,000 was returned to China. Out of gratitude, the Chinese government pledged itself to raise the other $11,000,000. Half of this amount goes to the American indemnity college in Peking and half to Chinese students in the United States.

According to statistics by Dr. S. Boucher, Director of Public Health, Montreal, less than half of the 62,310 school children examined there last year were found in a "satisfactory condition. It was also announced that out of every 1,000 pupils only 468 have perfect teeth.

Suicide Attempt Leads to Fame

The "White Moth" is Feature Picture at Griffin's Now

An attempt at suicide starts Barbara La Marr to fame and success on the Paris stage in her latest screen vehicle, "The White Moth," a Maurice Tourneur production in which she is being co-featured with Conway Tearle at the Griffin Theatre now.

Miss La Marr plays the role of a little Kansas choir singer who goes to Paris to study music. Failing to succeed with her music, she attempts to end her life in the Seine, but one, Gonzales Montrez, known as El Volcano on the stage, rescues her. El Volcano induces her to become his dancing partner and together they rise to undreamed heights of success.

As a dancer she becomes known as "The White Moth" and her male admirers become legion. It is while on the stage that she meets a young American millionaire who falls in love with her, but his brother marries her to put an end to this romance. From then on the complications pile up and make one of the most fascinating photodramas of a decade.

Conway Tearle, as the brother who marries "The White Moth" gives the screen one of his finest characterizations, and Ben Lyon, as the one who lost out, contributes an able performance.

A frock that is so clearly and smartly new as the tunic blouse costume calls for new materials, new colors and correct accessories.

Even among the new blouses there are degrees of newness and the very long, very slender blouse with two circular flounces at the bottom is clearly the last letter of the last word from Paris. It is smart made in the French fashion, of black crepe satin with the dull side for the blouse and the shiny side for the flounces, bands, etc. With an all-black frock, nude stockings and suede gloves and pearl beads furnish the necessary relief. The pumps may be black patent leather or black suede and the hat black or a color.

Two Sisters Are Supporting Ten

Two girls, one 20 and the other 18 years old, are supporting and caring for a family of ten younger children, their brothers and sisters, at New York City. Made orphans when their father was killed by a truck and their mother died from the shock of the tragedy, Mary and Elizabeth Dugan are facing the world with a determination to succeed. The sisters have sued for $100,000 damages as the result of their father's death, but the case will not be decided until late this month. In the meantime Mary and Elizabeth are carrying on.

Elizabeth, who left school when she was 16 years old, was earning $20 a week as a telephone operator when her father and mother died. She has given up her job and now is doing all the housework, in addition to making clothes for her ten younger charges. Mary is the "father" of the family, working from dawn to dark to make ends meet. The rest of the children are from 1 to 17 years old.

Mary and Elizabeth are determined to keep the Dugan home, which the father was buying at the time of his death. The sisters also are determined to give their younger brothers and sisters a good education.

"We can't give up the home; happy surroundings mean everything," said Mary. "We are determined to take the places of daddy and mother and rear the children just as they would have reared them. John who is 17, is eager to begin helping us. He is looking for a job now."

Use Sage Tea To Keep Hair Dark, Glossy

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

CONTROL COCKROACHES

A Reliable Method of Getting Rid of These Pests

Sodium Fluoride Will Do the Job—It Kills Both by Contact and the Mouth—How to Apply—Bot Flies—Fixed Proportions.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The kitchens in many restaurants, hotels and other institutions are so infested with cockroaches that if patrons could see them they would leave the place in disgust. Bakeshops are also much troubled with these insects.

Control Is Not Difficult.

In spite of their commonness control is not difficult. Sodium fluoride, a white powder, will kill any that come in contact with it. The writer, however, prefers to use a mixture of equal parts of sodium fluoride and cornstarch, as being superior to the fluoride alone. This mixture costs only about 50c a pound, and a pound will treat once a very large kitchen and usually would be sufficient for all the treatments for an ordinary private house.

The method of applying is to put the mixture into a can with a perforated lid, or into a salt-cellar, and then dust it moderately heavily along the floor beneath the water pipes and sinks, on the window sills, in the back part of the shelves of cupboards, and any other place frequented by the cockroaches.

Sodium Fluoride Kills Two Ways.

The substance kills both by contact and by being taken into the mouth. It apparently gets into the mouth by the roaches cleaning their feet and body to remove the powder when they happen to run over it.

A small dust gun or bellows, costing about $1.50, is an excellent thing to apply the powder with, and is much superior to the dusting can, as it enables a person to blow the substance into cracks and crevices where the insects may be hiding and where they could not be reached by the can.

How to Prepare for Treatment.

Before each treatment sweep the room well, and then leave the powder undisturbed for several days. Sweep up again and make another application. This may have to be repeated several times, and each time care should be taken to discover, if possible, overlooked areas and treat them. Usually two or three dustings will destroy almost all the cockroaches, even in a large institution, but sometimes it is so difficult to find all the hiding places that several applications will be necessary. All that is required, however, to eradicate the pest is care and perseverence. That the powder does kill the cockroaches will be shown plainly after the first treatment; for in a day's time numerous cockroaches will be found dead here and there over the floor.

The above treatment is the cheapest the writer knows, and much more effective than any spray that can be given, because it remains active as long as left on the floor, whereas the sprays are only effective at the time of application, and only if they hit the insects.—J. L. Caesar, O. A. College, Guelph.

Bot Flies.

Measures should be taken to prevent horses becoming infested with the larvae of bot flies by protecting them from the egg laying attack of the parent fly. The clipping of the long hairs from the region of the head, breast, shoulders and legs affords some protection in that it reduces the probability of the fly being able to attach its eggs. The areas where the egg laying fly usually deposits her eggs should be frequently soaked with oil or grease. This prevents the eggs from adhering to the hair. Pieces of cotton or cheesecloth fastened to the bridle and harness in such a manner as to cover the under surface of the jaws, the breast and forearms affords some protection and reduces greatly the possibility of the horse wintering a stomach full of bot larvae and suffering in consequence of such. A little attention to what may seem trivial to many makes the difference between the horses being thrifty and in good condition or unthrifty and hidebound. Swat the bot fly or at least prevent it from carrying out its destructive work.—L. Stevenson, O. A. College, Guelph.

Fixed Proportions.

There are a number of fixed proportions used in all recipes, and the following are standard:

One-half as much liquid as flour for muffin and cake batters.

One-third as much liquid as flour for soft doughs, as for biscuit.

One-fourth as much liquid as flour for stiff doughs, as for bread.

One-third to one-half as much butter as sugar for all butter cakes.

One to one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder to a cupful of flour for batters or doughs.

One-third as much shortening as flour for pastry.

One teaspoonful of soda to one pint of sour milk.

The scrub cow shivers when she sees the scales and Babcock tester.

The horse still plays an important part. He still furnishes a cheap source of power for ploughing, and is the most economical to use for short hauls.

Impure drinking water accounts for much sickness among hogs. The first consideration is to supply plenty of pure water for the hog lots. This is as important as good feeding.

Save the mangels for the calves and young stock. Nothing is more relished by a calf and nothing is better for its digestion than good, crisp juicy mangels. Silage is all right, [illegible]

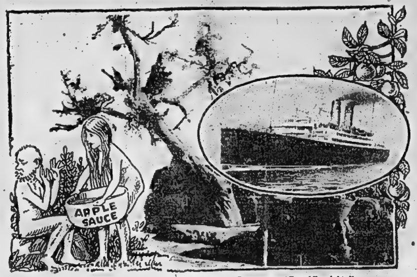
CHICAGO MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Uncertainty as to extent of December deliveries tended to weaken wheat market to-day during early dealings. Lower quotations at Liverpool counted also as depressing factor. On declines however, some aggressive buying developed and market rallied. Opening prices which ranged from 1-8 to 3-4 cent lower were followed by upturns which in some cases were temporarily little above yesterday's finish but were succeeded by another sag. Fine weather was effective in keeping corn and oats values easy. After opening unchanged to one cent lower corn recovered but failed to hold gains. Oats started unchanged to 1-4 cent off May 58 to 58 1-4 but later showed no great variation prices on hogs provisions market.

Garden of Eden—An Apple—A Canadian Ship



Above is photograph of tree designated by the British Government as "Tree of Knowledge."

An apple from the Garden of Eden arrived in Montreal this week aboard the Canadian Pacific steamship Melita. With it came the story of history repeated after six thousand years and a reprieve for sundry passengers who had been threatened with irons, trial in the admiralty courts and what not.

The apple came to Montreal with Robert J. Casey who was a passenger aboard the "Melita." Mr. Casey is a well-known member of the staff of the Chicago News and among the books of his authorship are "The Land of Haunted Castles" and "The Lost Kingdom of Burgaudy." He was on the way home from a trip through Syria to Damascus and Bagdad taken for the purpose of gathering material for another book.

Mr. Casey said that the apple was one of a pair brought from Quernah the traditional site of the Garden of Paradise at the junction of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers in Mesopotamia. It was placed in a stateroom with Babylonian bricks and other relics from the cradle of the human race and did not figure in the log of the "Melita" until the ship had been four days out of Cherbourg. Then it disappeared.

The owner complained to Commander Clews.

"I regret this unfortunate incident," said the Captain, "But of course you must have read the notice on the card given you as you came aboard: The company will not be responsible for apples and other valuables unless they are deposited with the purser. As it stands at present this looks like a matter for the appellate court. But of cours[illegible] shall see what can be done about it."

Th[illegible] men named Eve and a man named William Adamson from British Columbia were found on the passenger list and they fell under suspicion immediately. Attempts to establish alibis were as fruitless as they had been before Noah built the ark. Adamson admitted that he was the tenant of a cabin on the same deck as that occupied by the apple and he was summoned for an interview with the captain. He was a technical prisoner when the "Melita" reached Belle Isle and might have been landed in shackles at Quebec had it not been for an unexpected denouement. A room steward, penitent but brave appeared before the officers substituting for angels with flaming swords.

"If it's an apple you're looking for I think I can find it for you," he volunteered. "It looked like just an ordinary apple and what with the way the women passengers are always wanting things there was no way of telling about it — you know how it is. I had brought a dish of fruit into that cabin the morning all the fuss started and when I was taking out the dishes some time afterward it was only natural-like that I should have made a mistake. I picked up that apple......"

"And so it's lost," gasped the investigators.

"That's where you're wrong," declared the steward triumphantly, "It's found. As soon as I heard of the howl I traced that apple. I followed its trail back to the pantry and thence to the cold storage room. And this morning I discovered it. One of the chefs had been in just before me. But I was determined. I went right out after him...... And I found the apple...... It's in here...."

And with a magnificent air he lifted a napkin from a large pan of apple sauce.

Another apple, later found concealed in a locked trunk, will be presented to the Field Museum of Chicago. The tree from which the fruit was picked has recently been designated as the "Tree of Knowledge" by the British Government substantiating an Arab legend of long standing. The document authenticating the claims of Quernah as the site of Eden is a record of court martial, a copy of which was brought back with the apples.

The case in point was that of Thomas Rogers, a sergeant in the British Flying corps stationed in Iraq since the armistice. Rogers, climbing the tree to have his picture taken, broke off one of the branches and was arrested by the Arab police.

The verdict finds him "guilty of having broken a limb from the tree of knowledge in the Garden of Eden" and fixes his fine at "one month's pay," a lighter sentence than that visited upon his remote ancestor for a similar offence.

Drugs Excite The Kidneys, Drink Water

IF BACK HURTS OR BLADDER IS TROUBLING YOU, TAKE A LITTLE SALTS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

"Sickness Stalked Into This Happy Little Home"

When Jim Harrow moved into his pretty white-washed cottage he thought he had reached the height of happiness. His wife and his baby boy loudly voiced their pleasure, too. Everything seemed to be "breaking right" for Jim.

But the happy days didn't last long. Sickness fell upon Mrs. Harrow. "It's just a pain in my back, maybe rheumatism," she said. But Jim knew how a previous attack of pleurisy had weakened her, so he called in a doctor. The doctor hinted at "lung trouble" and advised a complete examination. Jim took his wife to a specialist, who quickly confirmed the first verdict. "Consumption," he said. Husband and wife stared at each other in hopeless misery, but cheer was forthcoming. "Don't worry," said the doctor, "a year's treatment at the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives will put Mrs. Harrow on her feet again; but she must go now—no delay."

A kindly neighbor is taking care of the baby boy while Jim is "keeping house" by himself. Every few days the postman leaves a letter which tells how kind nurses, and careful doctors all do their utmost to bring back the health that belonged to Mrs. Harrow. Shortly the letters will cease for she is almost ready to come back to the little white cottage.

Should you wish to have a hand in such worthwhile work as this, please send your contributions to Hon. W. A. Charlton, President, 223 College Street, Toronto, Ontario.

Divide All Ontario In Three Parts

For he Better Enforcement Of the Temperance Act

Toronto, Nov. 26—For the better enforcement of the Ontario Temperance Act, as outlined by Hon. W. F. Nickle K.C. Attorney General, the province has been divided into three districts—Toronto and vicinity, Western Ontario and Eastern Ontario. J. A. Ayearst has been named Chief Inspector for Toronto and district, Frank E. Eliott of Stratford for Western Ontario, and William Bain for Eastern Ontario.

Plans for the new enforcement campaign were before a conference held yesterday afternoon in the office of General V. A. S. Williams, commissioner of the Ontario Provincial police

Trenton Man on Staff

Inspector Bain is a new man on the Provincial police. For the past five years he has been chief of police at Trenton, and, it is said, has purged that district of bootleggers and criminals. He is a native of Caithness, Scotland, and has done police duty in Ottawa and Sudbury. He served three and one-half years overseas and was badly wounded, from which he has totally recovered

Frank E. Eliott while at Windsor and other points, has also been a terror to bootleggers. For the past few months he has been doing duty in this city,

J. A. Ayearst who will enforce the law around Toronto has been for 20 years actively associated in temperance work, enforcing liquor laws. He became a Provincial officer early in the days of the Whitney Government He was a Methodist minister and headed a deputation to Sir James to ask for better enforcement of the law in local option districts. The Premier explained to Mr. Ayearst some of the difficulties encountered and asked him if he would like to take up the work. Mr. Ayearst accepted Sir James invitation, and Mr. Ayearst has since been a Provincial officer. Within the past few years he has held several offices including membership on the Ontario License Board.

All three chief enforcement officers under the new scheme of enforcement are alert officers, who will probably show results.

POSTAL MAN FOUND GUILTY OF THEFT

Chicago, Nov. 26—William J. Fahy former postal inspector, and James Murray, politician, were found guilty on five charges of robbing the mails with a gun, five charges of robbing the mails, and a charge of conspiracy to rob the mails, each in connection with the $2,000,000 Rondout mail robbery, by a federal jury here.

Walker McComb, chauffeur for Murray, was acquitted. He was pictured as an innocent victim when he permitted a mail robber wounded in the hold-up to be taken to his apartment.

Ban Natural Ice

Oshawa, Nov. 26—Having secured a means of enforcing local dairy men to pasteurize milk, Dr. T. W. G. McKay, Medical Health Officer for Oshawa, has now turned his guns on the city ice supply, and at the next meeting of the local Board of Health will attempt to pass a resolution which will ban natural ice from sale for domestic uses. Following this announcement local ice dealers commenced an amalgamation of the business as a whole.

Welcome Byng

Port Hope, Nov. 26—To-day, the people of Port Hope and surrounding district are co-operating in making the reception to Lord Byng of Vimy, His Excellency the Governor-General, a real Royal welcome. As the King's representative, Lord Byng comes to-day, but the visit has a special significance as His Excellency's connection with the Canadian Army in the Great War brings him closer, and the visit therefore has a two-fold interest.

Plucky Boy Improves

It was reported this afternoon at the Kingston General Hospital the condition of Carl White the boy who was shot and saved his own life, was very good and he was showing much improvement.

Fishermen Object

Deseronto, Nov. 26—Those engaged in fishing in Hay Bay territory are not in accord with the action of the Provincial Government in repeatedly placing the Government pound nets at the mouth of Hay Bay waters Their claim is that the fish is being entirely shut off from entrance to Hay Bay, thus giving the fishermen no chance for a catch and that the enormous quantities being caught each year by the pound nets for spawning purposes is rapidly depleting the whitefish, and they consider that with the continued operations of the pound nets whitefish will in a few years be a scarcity at the location.

Oil Company Incorporated

With head office at Gananoque and a capital of $100,000, Federal letters patent have been granted to the St. Lawrence Oil and Supply Company Limited the incorporators of which are George Douglas Gilbert, manufacturer; Annie Isabel Gilbert, married woman; James Gordon Darling, commercial traveller; and John Arthur Jackson, barrister-at-law, all of Gananoque; and Thomas Amos Webster, of Lansdowne, commercial traveller.

Cross May Be Practical Joke

Some South Cayuga People Are Considerably Worried, However

Dunnville, Nov. 26.—The citizens of South Cayuga are wondering and a good many are worrying since the cross made its appearance on the side road between the house of George Stadelmair and the farm recently vacated by Warden George Montgomery. The cross in question was about 10 feet high and made of hardwood, and was held in position by a pile of stones. There has been no suggestion openly of Klu Klux Klanism in this community, and people are wondering whether it is a practical joke or if it is an intimation of the fact that there are least 25 members of the Klan in the district. Again, some are fearing a repetition of a disagreeable incident in evidence during the war, when certain of the South Cayuga citizens were forced to kiss the flag. Others again are wondering whether those same citizens are organized with a view to reprisals. In any case, it is causing considerable worry to the residents in that vicinity and all are waiting with more or less trepidation for further results.

NAPANEE WELCOMED LORD AND LADY BYNG

Kingston, Nov. 26.—Lord Byng, Governor-General of Canada, and Lady Byng arrived in Napanee Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, and practically the whole town turned out to welcome the distinguished party which was escorted to the Armouries where they were met by "B" Company of the Frontenac Regiment in charge of Lieutenant Harry Babcock, town officials and a great throng of people. Lord Byng then inspected the regiment and found among its number several men who had been overseas with him at Vimy Ridge.

After the inspection, Lord Byng, escorted by Mayor MacGregor and Lady Byng ,escorted by Mr. E. J. Sexsmith, M.P., proceeded to the platform and an address of welcome to Lord and Lady Byng was read by W. A. Grange, town clerk. Lord Byng replied, expressing his appreciation of the cordial reception and his pleasure at meeting veterans who had served with him overseas.

Lady Byng was presented with a gorgeous bouquet of flowers by the Girl Guides. After this a public reception was held and the people were given an opportunity to shake hands with these distinguished guests. They left again on the train at 11 o'clock.

SIX YEARS AFTER, WAR CLAIMS VICTIM

The death occurred in Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, of Edgar V. (Clifford) Patterson, aged 31, son of James M. Patterson of Vinemount as a result of gas and shell shock. He went overseas with the Wentworth contingent of the 1st Battalion, under command of the late Major Kimmins, of Winona, in 1914, and served continuously until August 1919. He was gassed and suffered shell shock and on his arrival home underwent treatment in several military hospitals, but his health was so far undermined that he did not respond to treatment. At the outbreak of war he was in business with his father, who dealt in paper. Besides his father, he is survived by four brothers and one sister, as follows: Dr. R. M. Patterson, Detroit; Dr. Leon C. Paterson, Lincoln, Neb.; Stanley J. Patterson, Flint, Mich.; Stratton Patterson, Detroit, and Mrs. Elmo Dunkin, Toronto. The funeral took place on to Queen's Lawn Cemetery, Grimsby.

MOTORIST CAUSED MUCH DAMAGE

Toronto, Nov. 26.—Dazzled by the bright lights of another motor car climbing the southern grade of the Black Creek Hill, abot 9 o'clock Monday night, the driver of a Ford car running north, ran over the side of the new highway now under construction crashed down on the main trunk sewer to Mt. Dennis lying exposed, smashing it in one or two places and allowing the waters to escape the rush in a torrent down the hill to the Black Creek.

Seeing that a crash was inevitable, the driver jumped escaping with a few bruises. The rush of waters was so great, that a hole four or five feet deep and 10 feet or more across was torn in the roadway. The York Township Waterworks Department was at once notified of the accident, and the emergency gang rushed to the spot.

SUFFERS TERRIBLE INJURIES

Montreal, Nov. 26.—Sister Marie Leopold, of Hochelaga Mother House, had both her feet amputated Monday by the wheels of a train from which she was stepping at Strathmore, several miles west of Montreal. The victim was alighting from the train when she slipped. It was stated at the hospital to which she was taken that she would recover.

DISMISSED ACTION FOR ALIMONY

Oshawa, Nov. 26.—Justice Kelly in the Assizes at Whitby, dismissed an action for interim alimony of $15 a week brought by Minnie Patterson, of Oshawa against her second husband, Richard Patterson, also of this city.

Plaintiff, who had three children, married the defendant with five, and from the evidence it appeared that much of the misunderstanding between the two arose because of lack of finances to feed and clothe the combined families. Plaintiff claimed neglect, ill-treatment and abuse at the hands of the defendant, and also that the latter had brought about her arrest and confinement to jail in Oshawa on a charge of cruelty and abuse to his children. She charged defendant with using profane langage towards her and with one assault, and claimed that she was unable to secure money from him to feed and clothe her fendant with using profane language towas in jail defendant had destroyed her personal belongings.

The defendant, giving testimony on his own behalf, absolutely denied the charges of ill-treatment and abuse as alleged, and claimed that he had endeavored by every means possible to keep plaintiff and her family, giving her such money as he could afford, on $110 per month, but which he claimed she did not make proper se of. He claimed that she did not keep the house or children. It was alleged that while she grumbling and finding fault with whatever he tried to do. He was willing, he stated, to live with the woman and make her comfortable in so far as his means would allow.

WATCHING ITALIANS

London, Nov. 26.—Allegations that Italians living in England were watched by Mussolini's agents, and if they spoke against government incurred grave danger should they return to Italy, were made by Dr. Angelo Crespi, of London University, at a meeting of the newly formed Italian opposition parties committee.

Dr. Chespi declared that Italians living abroad who opposed Mussolini were not sure of receiving their letters from Italy. Any change in their address was noted and their public speeches were reported in Rome.

Dr. Rondani, founder of the Italian socialist party, who is an exile from Italy, attended the meeting.

Memory Refreshed

Oshawa, Nov. 26—After spending the week-end in the county jail, Muriel Lindsay, who appeared in the local court on Saturday on a charge of being intoxicated and was given fine of $10 and costs and an additional three months for failing to disclose the name of the person from whom she got the liquor which caused her to be intoxicated appeared in court again Monday morning with her memory refreshed to such an extent that she was able to tell the exact house where the man lived who gave her the beverage and the man's first name

After taking 1000 ZUTOO TABLETS Says they are Harmless

Mrs. (Dr.) Shurtleff, of Coaticook, says "I must have taken 1000 Zutoo Tablets. After trying every remedy within reach, I discarded them all four years ago for ZUTOO, which I have taken ever since. I find the tablets a harmless and efficient remedy for all kinds of headache."

CITY SECURES ANOTHER GOOD NEW INDUSTRY

Branch of Large United States Firm Buys Property

TO BUILD IN SPRING

Massey Concrete Products Purchase University of Toronto Land

Negotiations have finally been completed by which Belleville has been chosen as the home for the establishment of another most important American branch industry. This is the third American corporation to select Belleville the present year and the seventh in a little more than a two-year period.

The latest acquisition is the Massey Concrete Products Company of Chicago the largest organization of its kind in the United States. The principal products turned out are the massive concrete culvert pipes used by railways sewer pipes, signal bowls, concrete posts and standards and a variety of kindred lines.

The company has secured a most advantageous site of twenty-two acres to the west of the Canadian National branch line that runs towards Peterborough and immediately to the north of the C. N. roundhouse. This acreage was a part of the holdings of Toronto University in that vicinity. Negotiations for the property were carried out by the representative of the company Ald. R. J. E. Graham, chairman of industries representing the city, Reeve J. G. Sills, representing the Township of Thurlow, and Mr. Douglas Ponton of Toronto, an old Belleville boy, representing the University.

It is now a little more than a year ago since Messrs. Paul Kircher, resident manager, and E. C. Alexander, chief engineer, of the Massey Concrete Products, arrived in Belleville on a tour of investigation to try to ascertain the most desirable location for their Canadian branch. They at once opened negotiations with our industrial department and were gratified to learn that at Shryver's hill in the Township of Huntingdon, A. W. Robertson Ltd. had established a great plant where the highest grade of washed gravel in America was being produced in inexhaustible quantities. Mr. H. F. Ketcheson motored the gentlemen out to the Robertson plant and a personal inspection of the immense deposits and the assorted gravel, as it lay in the cars ready for shipment, convinced the two experts that there was just the sort of raw material they had been looking for and finally discovered.

Just a short distance to the east of Belleville, it was pointed out, the company could secure the highest grade of cement at the plant of the Canada Cement Company at Point Anne.

Logical Location

Belleville, situated between these two sources of raw material, was the logical location while unsurpassed transportation facilities made the situation all that could be desired from these two most essential angles.

A subsequent visit to the city by Mr J. S. Hobson, president of the company, and Mr. Kircher served to confirm the choice that had been made and several later visits have resulted in the final transfer of the property.

The company will begin building operations on its new plant next spring and will be ready for manufacturing in the early summer.

The acquisition of this high-grade American branch without bonuses or special inducements of any kind marks another notable achievement for our industrial department and still another important forward step in the industrial progress of Belleville. As the company is strongly financed and is a highly prosperous condition, no stock will be offered for sale.

As stated above this is the third large American industry to choose Belleville as the location for its Canadian Branch the present year. The other two are the Carthage Machine Company and the Mead Johnson Company.

No other town or city in Ontario with less than 100,000 inhabitants, has made so excellent an industrial record during the present year, when all classes of manufacturers are curtailing expenditures and restricting expansion.

Belleville is now securely on the road towards vigorous growth and commercial prosperity and needs only the further continued co-operative efforts of forward-looking citizens to assume her proper place among the live industrial centres of the Province.

BANDITS AGAIN CREATE TERROR OVER IN CHINA

Two Young Ladies From United States Are Missing

MINISTER IS HELD

Want Hundred Thousand Dollars and Two Hundred Rifles

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Shanghai, Nov. 27.—Misses Elizabeth Borglund and Ingeborg Nystul, from Minnesota, U.S., attached to a mission at Juchow, Honan Province, were missing today after the capture of the town by Chinese bandits according to a message from Hankow. All other foreigners escaped to Kiassien, 25 miles away.

The bandits are holding Rev. Arne Anda for a hundred thousand dollars and two hundred rifles ransom since his capture at Sichwan, Honan, according to a message to Norwegian Consulate.

Mr. Anda was reported missing on November 21. Sichwan is 130 miles southwest of Juchow.

Want School Girl

Hankow, Nov. 27.—According to the Sichwan correspondent of the Central China Post, Rev. Arne Anda is being held until a mission school girl is surrendered to bandits. Bandits have disordered a British missionary at Kingstekwan, 35 miles northwest of Sichwan, to pay ten thousand dollars under penalty of death and the burning of the settlement.

Sir Gilbert Parker Struck By Auto

Physicians Announce That Condition is Not Serious, However

Aiken, S.C., Nov. 27.—Sir Gilbert Parker, the Canadian novelist, suffered severe injuries here late yesterday when he was struck and knocked to the ground by an automobile on one of the principal business streets of the city.

Sir Gilbert narrowly escaped serious injury when he was thrown heavily to the ground, the wheels of the automobile passing close to his body. He was removed to a nearby inn. Physicians announced that he received several injuries about the head and severe body bruises, but that his condition was not considered serious.

Sir Gilbert's attendant nurse, Miss Cashmere, also received painful bruises and lacerations when she was thrown beneath the machine. She was reported resting well, but suffering from shock.

MESSENGERS GET AWAY WITH $60,000

New York, Nov. 27.—Two brokers' messengers and $60,000 worth of negotiable bonds were being sought by the police last night at the request of two financial district brokerage houses. Both robberies occurred yesterday.

Rhoades and Company reported that Hugh J. Gillis, an 18-year-old messenger who had been in their employ but two days, had not been seen by them since noon yesterday when he left the firm's offices with $40,000 worth of bonds for deliver to various other brokerage houses. Inquiry of the consignees revealed that the bonds had never been delivered.

The second loss was reported by Jacquelin and De Coppett, who said that $20,000 in bonds given for delivery to Peter Smith, a messenger in their employ for seven years, had disappeared. Smith said he had given the bonds to another messenger whom he had met on the street as he started his rounds. The police credited his story, saying the procedure was a common one among brokers' messengers.

RUM-RUNNERS ARE BELIEVED DROWNED

New York Nov. 27.—Eleven members of a rum-runner's crew, their boat and its $400,000 whiskey cargo are believed to have been lost in one of the storms that have been sweeping the Atlantic coast for the past two weeks.

Fragmentary information reaching here today led shipping circles to believe that the tug William Maloney, formerly the Capitol, had gone down with all hands somewhere between New London, Conn., and Newport, R.I. a week ago Sunday.

The little craft was said to have 10,000 cases of whiskey aboard, purchased from a Rum Row vessel off Montauk Point.

Crowds thronged the London zoo recently to witness a battle raging between two colonies of ants. The incident was given great prominence in the press. Above, a remarkable picture of the battle. The picture, left to right, shows a casualty carried off the field on the back of his opponent: at death grips two against one; sparring for an opening: the end of a struggle: a victim: and an antgoing to the rescue. Below, the field of battle in the insect house at the "zoo":

SAYS DIRECTOR NOT TO BLAME

Defence Counsel Winds Up In Stewart Trial To-day

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto. Nov. 27.—N. W. Rowell, K. C., defence counsel for F. M. Stewart, Home Bank director on trial here, resumed his address to-day before Judge Coatsworth. He declared that Stewart was in no way responsible for loans made in British Columbia. He had tried to get these loans in better shape and had made investigation of timber limits and other securities. Counsel also contended that it was unreasonable to say that Stewart should have challenged statements of bank officials in whom he had confidence.

It is expected that trial of Stewart will be concluded this afternoon and that of R. P. Gough another director will be commenced immediately.

ARE READY TO BUILD BUFFALO ELEVATOR

Regina, Sask., Nov. 27.—Announcement was made Wednesday by F. W. Riddell, General Manager of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, Ltd., that contracts for the laying of the foundation of the "Co-op's" transfer house at Buffalo had been awarded to the Barnett & Record Company of Minneapolis and Buffalo.

The new storage house being erected will have a capacity of 1,100,000 bushels, and it is expected it will be completed in time to handle a portion of the 1925 crop.

The Buffalo plant will be used as a transfer house to receive grain from the terminals at the western end of the Great Lakes. From Buffalo it will be passed on to the Atlantic seaports.

FAITH HEALERS ARE IN TROUBLE NOW

Winnipeg.—Nov. 27.—Warrants for the arest of Robert Watson, W. Elder and David S. Robb were sworn out Wednesday afternoon on charges of manslaughter. This action followed the finding by the Coroner's jury Tuesday night in connection with the death of 12-year-old Doreen Esther Watson on Nov. 2 frof the effects of diphtheria.

The jury said there had been "gross neglect on the part of the parents," and that Christian Science practitioners had "committeed a breach of the Medical Act of Manitoba by ndertaking the cure of tfhe disease, contrary to the law."

According to the evidence of Dr. A. J. Fraser, a local physician, he had been refused permission to administer antitoxin to the girl. hTe father had objected to the treatment, having "faith in the Science practitioners."

The mother of the child contracted the disease, but is said to be rapidly recovering. She submitted to the antitoxin treatment at a local hospital.

TWO CHILDREN TRAPPED IN CELLAR

Hamilton, Nov. 27.—Three children had a narrow escape from death by fire yesterday afternoon in the cellar of W. Burridge's house at 25 Fairleigh Avenue North.

One of Mr. Burridge's children and two little playmates went down in the cellar to play. They got matches and set fire to a pine box, so city firemen stated. This spread to other inflammable material. Soon a large portion of the cellar was ablaze including the stairs, thus cutting off the children's escape.

Mr. Burridge, who was on the top floor of the hostile, heard their screams. He heroically rescued the children, and fought the flames with a garden hose until the firemen arrived. Damage of $100 was done by the flames.

The man arrested at Erieau some weeks ago has been identified as Frank Vaneck of Chicago, who escaped from the Dunning Institute for the insane at Dunning, Ill.

The four-passenger coupe, license No. 233-111, property of Dr. Fred Hall Chatham, was stolen from in front of the physician's office. No trace of the car has been found.

Sends Belleville's Name Across Continent Former Resident Is Engaged In Radio Work

Mr. Tom Robertson, of Charlestown, West Virginia, who is visiting relatives in this city, was recently heard here by his former Kiwanian friends over the radio from station KDKA at Pittsburg, Pa. By arrangement, local Kiwanians listened for the greetings and before Mr. Robertson commenced he called "Hello Canada, How's Belleville". Then he presented his musical programme with banjo, harp and guitar.

During the summer he has been broadcasting from Charlestown station in which city he has been residing.

General Election Slated for June Next as Result of West Hastings bye Election

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 27.—The Evening Telegram in a news item to-day says it is reported in political circles that there will be a Dominion election in June next, as a result of the West Hastings By-election result. It is also rumored that the Hon. Robert Rogers will run as a Conservative candidate in South Toronto in place of Dr. Charles Sheard, M.P., who may retire on a dissolution of the present House of Commons.

Charlie Chaplin brings Home his new Bride To Forty Room Castle at Beverley Hills

Los Angeles. Calif. Nov. 27—Charlie Chaplin sped through Hollywood by automobile to-day bring to his Beverley Hills forty room castle, the new bride, who until Tuesday morning was Lita Grey, his leading lady in films.

Chaplin left his special car in which they came from Empalme, Mexico, the wedding place, at Shorb, to avoid a public reception at station.

"Just tell everybody we are happy and thankful and glad to be home," Chaplin said.

Liquor in Transit Taken in Desoronto

This Will Be Test Case; Case Up December Fourth

An interesting case under the Ontario Temperance Act will be heard at Deseronto on December 4th as a result of a liquor seizure made at Deseronto station on Monday by Provincial officers. Eight kegs of whiskey making about one hundred gallons, were taken from a train there, the liquor being in transit from Montreal. The consignment was billed for Mexico via the state of Maine and was consigned to one named Dumain.

Dumain who will be summoned to answer a charge of violation of the O.T.A., says that he is an American citizen and is not known in this district. This will be a test case, and Dumain will fight the charge on December 4th.

Inspector F. Naphan who made the seizure is preparing the prosecution for Provincial police.

Provincial Men Give An Answer

To Sturgeon Falls Who Rebelled at O.T.A. Enforcement

Sturgeon Falls, Ont. Nov. 27—The answer of the Attorney-General's department to the defi of the town council, which ordered the town police not to enforce the O.T.A. became apparent Tuesday through the increased activity of the provincial police. Provincial constables Elliott and Robinson had a busy day. First they raided the home of Anatole Delorme and found a gallon tin of alcohol cleverly hidden in the back of the kitchen range.

Arraigned before Magistrate Cockburn he pleaded guilty and sentence was deferred to Saturday. He had previously been convicted of B.O.T.A.

Late in the day officers visited the home of Elzear Vallier and found a suspicious trunk in his bedroom. They were told it belonged to a young girl friend of the family but they decided that the gurgle it gave was not from perfume bottles and broke it open. It contained a dozen bottles of high wine. A young man named Saya came in admitted the ownership and when arraigned before the magistrate pleaded guilty and was fined $300 and costs or six months. He will take the free board. The previous night two strangers who were suspected of being spotters got rather rough treatment and were finally escorted out of town.

CLOTHES SAVED MAN FROM DEATH

Fort William, Nov. 27—John Jeffers millwright at Gillespie's elevator on the island, escaped from certain death last night when caught on the elevator shafting. His clothes were torn completely off his body as he was whirled around the belting and machinery. The ripping off of his clothing saved his life. The clothes were scattered all over the engine room, even one of his boots being stripped off. He sustained a wrenched shoulder, fractured arm and severe bruises and is now in McKellar Hospital.

VOTE TO DELETE THE WORD "OBEY"

London, Nov. 27.—The House of Clergy of the Church of England yesterday recommended after many years of agitation that the word "obey" be removed from the bride's ritual in the marriage contract.

The recommendation is subject to confirmation by the Church Assembly and to acceptance by Parliament.

In Fight to Last Mc Creary Says

Denies Rumor Being Circulated That He Was Dropping Out

Persistent rumors that Ald. W. R. McCreary was dropping out of the mayoralty race in Belleville, were vigorously denied by the candidate to-day.

The rumor had no foundation, whatever, the alderman told The Intelligencer. He was in the fight to the very last and hoped to make a good run of it.

Feared Attempts to Lynch Prisoner

Harry Williams Hustled to New Brunswick Heavily Guarded

Houlton, Maine, Nov. 27— Harry Williams, arrested early yesterday after Cynthia and Neotia Foster, sisters, 14 and 10 years old, had been found murdered in a shack occupied by Williams at Fosterville, N.B., on the Maine-New Brunswick border, was taken last night under heavy guard, to the York County jail at Fredericktom, N. B. The authorities feared that attemts might be made to lynch Williams, who had been threatened by an angry crowd today. The girls, his nieces, were found last night with their hands tied behind their backs, shot through the head.

Discovery of the double murder was made by Ward Foster, father of the children, when they failed to return to their home. Williams had taken homestead rights on a tract of land adjoining Grand Lake and it had been the girls' custom to go to the shack, about a mile from their home, to cook for him. They went to the Williams place as usual yesterday and in the evening, when they did not come home their father went in search of them.

He found their bodies, each with a bullet wound in the head.

Jail Guard Sent Down For 2 Years

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London Nov. 27—When parliament meets on December 9, Labor members who openly condemn some of the British demands in the Government's note to Egypt, consequent on the assassination of Sirdar, Sir Lee Stack, intend to challenge the Government's Egyptian policy by direct amendment to address in reply to speech from throne. Liberal policy with regard to the Egyptian matter has not yet been defined, but it is reported that Mr. Asquith who is in the east at present, has cabled to his colleagues endorsing steps taken by the Baldwin Administration. Certain anti-Imperialist Liberals however criticize Government's methods identification with Egyptian trouble.

CLAIMS HIS WIFE HAS FOOLED HIM

Scion of Wealthy New York Family Has Entered Suit

(Canadian Press Despatch)

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Alice B. Jones Rhinelander to-day is the defendant in a suit brought by her husband Leonard Kip Rhinelander, member of one of New York's oldest and wealthiest families for the annulment of their marriage The action is based on contention that the wife fraudently represented herself to be white and denied she had any negro blood.

Shortly after being served with paper in New Rochelle yesterday Mrs. Rhinelander engaged counsel.

Her family announced she would fight to retain her status as Rhinelander's wife. Rhinelander, according to his counsel and the legal representatives of his father Philiip Rhinelander, acted entirely on his own initiative in bringing suit. His family, these spokesman said, had no foreknowledge of the legal step but would be delighted to hear he had "come to his senses."

Directer's Trial Is Nearing Close

Crown Counsel Censures Stewart in His Address

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 27—Trial of J. F. M. Stewart, director of the defunct Home Bank on charges of making, using, approving and concurring in false statements of financial affairs of the bank was concluded yesterday afternoon. D. L. McCarthy, crown prosecutor finished his address to Judge Coatsworth in the morning and I. F. Hellmuth, defence counsel got well started. Mr. Hellmuth declared that Stewart had been deliberately and successfully decided as to the condition of the bank and that not one of big loans made by Daly or Mason had ever come before the Board of Directors for approval or disapproval. Mr. McCarthy contended that Stewart must have been in a position to have known much of what was going on, and what wrecked the bank. If he didn't know it was his duty as Director to have known.

PRINCESS IN ITALY DROWNED IN LAKE

Rome, Nov. 27.—The body of Princess Scipione Borghese was found to-day in the waters of Lake Garda. The Princess was drowned Tuesday when she fell in the lake while picking flowers.

The body of the Princess was located on the bottom of the lake, at a depth of about six hundred feet. A wound on the forehead of the dead woman is believed to have been caused by falling against a stone on the shore of the lake.

In consequence of the death of the Princess, several families of the Roman, Genoese and French nobility have gone into mourning.

ANTI-UNIONISTS SEE VICTORY IN B.C.

Victoria, Nov. 27.—Opponents of Church Union won what they hailed as a victory before the Private Bills Committee of the British Columbia Legislature here yesterday, when they succeeded in getting the committee to adopt the principle that the rights of minorities should be preserved in any legislation dealing wtih the disposition of church property between the two factions.

The principle that there must be in any legislation provision for a ballot on Church Union among the members of the Presbyterian Church in the Province, and that such a ballot shall be secret was also decided on without debate yesterday.

The two forces withdrew this afternoon to consider the position and to decide on what moves they would make next. The qestion will not come up again before the Private Bills Committee here until Friday at the earliest.

British Military Authorities Arrest Ministry of Interior Secretary in Cairo

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cairo, Nov. 27.—The British military authorities early to-day arrested Tekrashy Bey, Secretary of the Ministry of Interior, and Abdul Rahman Fahey, one of Zaghoul's close political assistants together with a prominent member of the nationalist delegation who visited London with the former premier. Men it is understood were surprised in their beds and were taken to an unknown destination.

According to an Exchange Telegraph despatch sent from here, Barakat Pasha, Minister of the Interior in Zaglouls Ministry has been arrested by British authorities.

REVIEW CITY WORK

Decision Is Made to Enlarge Famous Club Quarters

The Wharf Street Debating Club had another famous gathering last night. After Treasurer Cornell had collected the annual dues and declared the meeting open for business. Mr. Ben Sanford was elected Chairman. Chas. Hanna, the newly elected member for West Hastings broke away from another important appointment to express his thanks o the members and said he was prepared to help all alike, whether Liberal or Conservative and whether they voted for him or not. He apologized for the absence of his annual poem on the ground that he had been attending to the duties of an election.

Mayor Mikel who is a charter member of the Club, expressed his thanks for the splendid support he had always received from the members and from the electors of Foster Ward, and he believed they would again support his progressive policies that will put Belleville on the map and give plenty of work to all. He said he would not discuss the issues of the municipal campaign but he would read a poem entitled "By Quinte's Side" taken from a volume of poems composed by Marie Joussage, a Foster Ward girl who had become famous as a pootess. This was well received. Ald. McCreary gave a lucid explanation of the financial position of the city. Ex-Mayor Bennett said his record for 1923 was before the people, and Ald. Greenleaf gave a description of the work of the Park's Board and in answer to the Chairman said the privileges for selling soft drinks on the new grounds would likely be let by tender.

Ald. LaRoche described the work of the Public Works Committee. Robt. Macaulay and Tom Barrett of the Hanna Booster Club made speeches, boosting Belleville, and Ald.-elect Parrish made a seech and sang a song Ald. Foster described the difficulty which had confronted the Gas Plant and other members of the Club made short speeches. After the usual refreshments were served, the meeting closed by singing the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne.

It was announced last night that old headquarters were going to be enlarged. A twelve-foot extension is being planned.

The report of Dr. Ruttan, M. O. H. for Woodstock, shows a total of 132 deaths in that city during the year. The report states that the sources of milk and water supply to be excellent.

WEST HASTINGS

From the Kingston Standard

There is an old saying that there is nothing more uncertain than a horse race or an election. "Long shots" have in both cases an unhappy faculty of bobbing up and cantering under the wire unexpected winners, making the crowd, as a consequence, sit up and take notice.

Thus it is that when the news was flashed over the wires last night that E. Guss Porter, for years the member of Parliament for West Hastings, had gone down to defeat before Mr. Hanna there was a gasp of astonishment and almost unbelief, for, the riding is a traditionally Conservative one, and has always been carried by substantial majorities. In the last election Mr. Porter had 1,179 over his opponent, Mr. McIntosh, and no one supposed at the beginning of the contest just concluded that there was any doubt of his election. And yet now we see an adverse majority of approximately 500 piled up against him, an amazing turn-over, surely.

As to the reasons for the surprising result we no doubt will see many advanced—some near to and some far from the mark. Combining them all it will probably be found that the solid Canadian National railroad workers' vote—and there are many employees in Belleville—went to Mr. Hanna; that many Conservatives deserted Mr. Porter because of their feeling that after twenty odd years' service he might better have served out his term; and that not a few "wet" Conservatives, disappointed at the result of the recent Plebiscite, were, so to speak venting their spleen against the Dominion Conservative candidate.

But over and above all these was the fact that the electors refused absolutely to grow excited over the charges against Hon. Mr. Murdock because of the withdrawal by him of his money from the Home Bank a few days before its failure. They took the very human view that Hon. Mr. Murdock, a poor man, simply did what ninety-nine men out of every hundred would have done, and that while his action may have been impolitic, it certainly was not criminal.

Which leads to the crucial question why, if the Conservative Party wished to make an issue of this Murdock-Home Bank withdrawal, a constituency was not chosen where a branch of the Home Bank had been located and where depositors had suffered as a consequence of the shocking collapse of the bank. In such a constituency the issue would have been more impressive and the public interest more thoroughly awakened. In West Hastings, however, interest in the issue was not even lukewarm. The public simply refused to allow their "righteous indignation" to be aroused and hence Mr. Porter's charge became somewhat of a dud.

It would, undoubtedly have been otherwise had the constituency been one affected directly by the Home Bank failure. Which leads one to wonder why such a constituency was not chosen if it were felt necessary to make the issue at all.

THAT SINKING FUND

Leaving aside the suggestion made that certain members of the City Council of 1923 should be disqualified for having voted for an estimate by-law which took money from its rightful place in the sinking funds for general expenditures, it might well be impressed upon ratepayers generally and aldermen in particular that it most certainly does not pay to tinker with that sinking fund

Money laid to one side for the express purpose of meeting the obligations of the city as they become due, must be held rigidly in place for the security of the city's debenture holders.

If the letter of the law is not carried out, most assuredly the city's credit will be effected and markets less favorable than under ordinary conditions will obtain.

The advantages of taking money which should rightfully go to the sinking fund, to keep down or reduce the current tax rate are not apparent to the foreseeing ratepayer.

NOT THE BROOM, BUT THE WHITEWASH BRUSH

From the Mail and Empire

There is jubilation in the Liberal camp over the election in West Hastings. The King Government, its candidate, its campaigners and its sympathizers have good reason to be merry for the riding that was brought into their column by a substantial majority on Tuesday had held to the Conservative party throughout most of its history. If only their signal victory could by any stretch of language be described as a moral one, their joy would be unrestrained. As it is, black care behind the horseman sits in the triumphant procession, for the day was carried by a bad Government for a bad cause and by means of bad methods. Moral the victory was not in any sense of the word. The boast is made that the Minister of Labor was vindicated at the polls. The price of this "vindication" is a high one, and, unless the Government goes back on its election promises, the people of Canada will be taxed for large instalments of it. Practically all the Ministers in the Cabinet and the principal henchmen of their party organization were in this contest. To-day the Government side is entitled to hoist, not the broom of victory, but the whitewash brush of the stain coverer.

GLASSE make old eyes
young

OLD sight, or presbyopia as the optometrist calls it, normally comes at about the age of forty. The cause is a natural one. The inner lens of the eye loses some of its elasticity. It cannot focus for near vision without strain.

Here your eyes are examined with scientific care. Then lenses are made which enable the old eye to see like a young one at close range. It is exceedingly important to have such glasses when old sight sets in.

If the letters blur, you close your eyes for a short rest, or hold your book or paper at arm's length, you ought to consult our optometrist at once. Those are the signs of presbyopia.

Made by Government on Egyptians; To Move Amendment

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, Nov. 27.—For aiding Guiseppi Serafini in the latter's attempted escape from Bordeaux Jail prior to his execution for the murder of the Hochelaga Bank chaffeur, Jean Carpentier, aged 27, was this morning sentenced by Justice Demers to two years in prison.

Pronouncing sentence, Justice Demers said he would be failing in his duty to society if he was lenient, that the position of trust the prisoner held at the jail made the crime all the more revolting and he was even more to be condemned because he came of a good family and had a good bringing up.

Carpentier pleaded guilty.

"I'll Be Home Soon, Mother," Writes Sammy

Sammy is a keen little lad. He looks much younger than he is—only sixteen—and he has much more wisdom than is usual at his age. For two years he worked in a foundry doing a man's work. His father worked beside him and helped him master the art of pouring molten metal. One day Sammy complained of a sore side but his people didn't worry much. "It'll be all right in the morning," mother said; "go and take a rest." But it wasn't all right in the morning, nor the morning after, no, nor a week after. It was then time for a doctor to examine Sammy. The doctor looked him over several times, then took him to a specialist. Both medical men agreed that Sammy was consumptive and both held out some hope if he "took the cure" at once.

Sammy is quite a favorite up in the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives. He keeps the other patients in good humor with his pleasant smile and his quaint stories of French Quebec where he spent his boyhood days. "Tell the folks I'll be home soon," he wrote in his last letter; and he probably will be, for he is making splendid progress.

The Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives, the Haven of the poor afflicted with tuberculosis, is in a large measure reliant upon public generosity for its funds to carry on its work.

Deaths and Funerals

SAMUEL J. BATES

Samuel James Bates, infant son of Mr. an Mrs. John Bates residing on Wellington street, passed away yesterday afternoon. An attack of pneumonia was the cause of death.

DAVID PRICE

At Bridge Street Methodist Church yesterday afternoon, funeral services for the late Mr. David Price took place and were of an impressive nature. Many were in attendance to pay their last tribute of respect to the departed. Rev. Dr. F. E. Malott, pastor of the church was in charge of the service, during which he spoke of the deceased referring in a feeling manner to the loss the church and city had sustained in his passing. Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker and Rev. A. S. Kerr, pastor of St. Andrew's church, assisted in the service.

The late Mr. Price was a Mason and a number of the members of the craft were in attendance at the obsequies. Masonic burial services were taken by prominent members, namely, Wor. Bros. H. A. Thompson, A. R. Schryver, J. Newton, F. D. Diamond, R. McCrudden and J. Hall. At Belleville cemetery the body was laid at rest. Many beautiful floral tributes were mute evidences of sympathy. Bearers were Messrs. W. B. Riggs F. D. Diamond, J. Newton, H. W. Ackerman, C. H. Vermilyea and E. P. Frederick.

THOS. DESHANE

One of Hastings County's oldest residents, in the person of Mr. Thomas Deshane, passed away yesterday afternoon in Thurlow Township. He was 95 years of age and was born in Murray Township. The greater portion of his life was spent in Hastings County. Mr. Deshane was a member of the Methodist church. He was a widower and is survived by one son, Amos, of Roblin, and one daughter at Napanee. Two brothers, Oran of this city and James of Marlbank, and a sister, Mrs. St. Mary, of Petrolia, are living. At Tickell and Sons undertaking parlors burial services were conducted today by Rev. Capt. H. B. Kenny, of the Tabernacle church after which the body was interred in Belleville cemetery.

YOUNG—HAMILTON

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at nine o'clock in St. Michael's church here, when Miss Frances Hamilton, daughter of Mr. George T. Hamilton, 20 Albion street, was united in marriage with Mr. Lorne E. Young, son of Mrs. Matilda Young, of Perth, Ont. Father C. J. Killeen performed the interesting ceremony in the presence of some thirty guests.

Miss Amanda O'Regan, of Oshawa, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Terry Dolan, of this city was groomsman.

The bride was charmingly attired in a cut velvet dress of taupe and blue, trimmed with maribou and ostrich feathers and wore a black and gold hat and taupe fox fur. She carried a beautiful bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The gifts which the popular couple received were numerous and beautiful.

The happy couple left on the 230 o'clock train for Chicago on a honeymoon trip.

Mr. Young has been a member of the Intelligencer staff for more than ten years and Miss Hamilton before her marriage was supervisor at the General Hospital here.

The Intelligencer joins with their friends legion in wishing the young couple a long and happy married life.

Cobalt, Nov. 27.—John Bedforth, 41 years of age, a married man with two children, was fatally injured when struck by piece of falling rock in the Teck-Hughes Mine at Kirkland Lake. Time Has Changed Old Bowery Scenes

Notorious Sink of Iniquity Is Now Street of Poverty

New York, Nov. 27—"The Bowery, the Bowery, "They say such things and they do such things on the Bowery."

They did. But the days celebrated by the old song are gone forever.

Where there were, 25 years ago, no fewer than 300 saloons and dance halls on the three-quarter-mile length of the thoroughfare, there are to-day four mission halls and a few movies; no other avenue is there for excitement and pleasure.

Recently the Rev. Dr. John G. Hallimond celebrated the completion of 25 years spent in the activities of the Bowery Mission, an institution that has long been almost as famous as the Bowery itself.

"Everything is changed now," Dr. Hallimond said. "In the early days we dealt with a horde of what some called "old bums" Most of them carried tomato cans under their coats, which they used in getting the dregs of beer kegs that were piled outside the ubiquitous saloon. Among them, too, were many of the "knockout drops" men who carried on a traffic rarely if ever heard of nowadays. All in all, they were a hard crowd, and so poor that we fed a thousand nightly in our bread lines.

"Now the Bowery has been transformed from a sink of iniquity to a place where a woman can go at any hour and feel perfectly safe. From a street of vice, the Bowery has become a street of poverty."

Tired After Eating? Try This Simple Mixture

If you feel tired after eating, it is often a sign of gas and undigested matter in your stomach or bowels. Simple buckthorn bark, magnesium sulph. c.p., glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, helps any case gas on the stomach, unless due to deep-seated causes. The QUICK action will surprise you. Adlerika is wonderful for constipation—it often works in one hour and never gripes.

FIND GIRLS DEAD NOW SEARCH FOR MAN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Houlton, Maine Nov. 27—Cynthia and Nettie Potter, sisters 14 and 16 years old were found dead Tuesday night in a shack occupied by Harry Williams in the town of Fosterville N.B. 18 miles from this town, according to a report made to police here today. Williams, who was arrested after an all night search is being held by townspeople pending the arrival of the sheriff from Fredericton.

MORE GERMANS WORKING

Berlin, Nov. 27.—The number of unemployed, receiving government doles, decreased in the Reich by nine per cent from September 15 to October 15. On the latter date 408,000 men and 51,000 women were registered with the authorities, as receiving doles.

GREAT FRENCH ACTOR COMING TO CANADA

New York, Nov. 27 (By Canadian Press).—It has been announced here that beginning December 1, Firmin Gemier, celebrated French actor and a director of the Theatre National de l'Odeon, Paris, will begin a week's engagement in Montreal. His appearance in the Canadian city will be made it was said, at the express wish of Premier Herriot. Premer Herriot, it was said, is still enthusiastic over his visit to Montreal and Quebec, last year and before M. Gemier left Paris expressed a wish that the French actor include Montreal in his tour, for the especial benefit of the French-Canadian section of the population.

M. Gemier came to the United States at the invitation of a committee of prominent Americans, in reciprocation of the visit paid to France by James K. Hackett who played in Paris on the invitation of the French government. The invitation to M. Gemier went through the United States Department of State and the United States Embassy in Paris.

Princes of India Like Electricity

Many Have Been Erecting Generating Plants Recently

London, Nov. 27— Electricity has become so popular in India, particularly among the rulers and state officials, that contracting companies there are hiring scores of electrical workers in England and placing huge orders for goods with English manufacturers. Most of the palaces of Indian princes and nobles are entirely lighted by electricity and many villages, even in the remote parts of the country, have electric street lights and some of the stores are lighted by the same method.

Native leaders who have visited European states are largely responsible for this wide introduction of electricity.

A plant has recently been established at Chamba, 10,000 feet up in the Himalayas, which supplies power to some 250 towns in the vicinity and is entirely operated by a native staff.

The Raj Sahib of Wankaner employed English engineers to outline his palace with electric lights and the hundreds of lights may now be seen at night for several miles. This ruler also has placed a powerful searchlight on the roof of his palace with which he can illuminate the surrounding hillsides.

Electric fans, as may be supposed, are being rapidly introduced among the natives.

FIVE CONTESTS IN CITY OF KINGSTON

Kingston, Nov. 27.—W. H. Craig, Fergus O'Connor, T. A. Kidd, in Sydenham Ward, and J. E. Johnston, R. E. Kent, Geo. Boyd in Ontario Ward, were Tuesday evening elected by acclamation to the City Council, as the result of other candidates in those wards failing to qualify. In the other five wards there will be a contest, as well as for the mayoralty and the Utilities Commission, while in three wards there will be contests for the Board of Education.

In all thirty-three candidates for aldermanic positions qualified, Victoria Ward presenting the largest slate with seven in the field. For the Utilities Commission James Halliday was the only one of those nominated to fail to qualify.

Of this year's Council Ald. H. F. Richardson and Ald. A. B. Lawlor will not return for 1925. Ald. Kent returns to Council for his 29th year, truly a wonderful record in municipal affairs.

Claims Discovery Of New Products

Negro Scientist Gives Credit to "Divine Providence"

New York, Nov. 27.—Dr. George W. Carver, negro scientist who heads Tuskegee Institute's scientific research and experiment station, believes that his discoveries "through Divine Providence," of new commercial products from sweet potatoes, peanuts pecans and common clays will mean an economic revolution of the South.

Speaking recently in the Marble Collegiate Church in Fifth Avenue, Dr. Carver told an audience that he had developed 118 commercial products from the sweet potato, 176 from the peanut, 55 from the pecan and more than 200 from the common clay of his native South. His accomplishments in "creative chemistry" have won for him a fellowship in the Royal Society of Great Britain and in 1923 he was awarded the Spingarn medal given yearly to the American man or woman of Africa's descent who makes the highest achievement in any field of human endeavor.

The sweet potato, Dr. Carver told the audience, is the source of three or four kinds of flour that makes better bread than any cereal, and also coffee, vinegar, molasses, ink, shoe polish paints, dyes, tapioca, breakfast foods, starch, face powders and many other products. A large factory is now being erected outside Tuskegee where paint is to be produced from the sweet potato, Dr. Carver said. He announced that he had discovered "32 different kinds of milk in the peanut and richer than cows milk."

Divine revelation was credited by Dr. Carver for the discoveries he has made. He said he believed that with development his discoveries would bring about an economic revolution of the South. Explaining his discoveries Dr. Carver said:

"No books ever go into my laboratory. The thing that I am to do and the way of doing it comes to me. I never have to grope for methods; the method is revealed at the moment I am inspired to creat something new. Without God to draw aside the curtain I would be helpless."

Dr. Carver is the son of an ex-slave. He spoke before the Women's Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church of America.

The number of entries received from poultrymen indicate that the poultry department of the winter fair Chatham, which will open December 8, will be one of the largest ever held in this part of the province.

The Chatham collegiate will enter teams in the senior and junior Wosa series. The skating rink, after a lapse of several years, will be re-opened again this winter, and efforts will be made to organize city and county hockey teams.

CANADIAN SUCCEEDS IN MUSICAL WORLD

New York, Nov. 27.—Another name has been added to the list of Canadian artists who are gaining fame in the New York musical world. This time it is a young westerner, a former farmer and railroad employee.

Allen McQuhae, who would probably give his home address as Winnipeg, has recently attracted favorable comment following a series of recitals here. He is hailed as a tenor soloist of considerable promise.

McQuhae began life in Canada on a farm in the Qu'Appelle Valley, Manitoba. Later he served as a wiper and hostler in a Brandon round-house where he earned promotion to the position of assistant engineer. He first tried his voice in Winnipeg motion picture houses and with touring opera companies.

New York Becomes Very Reminiscent

Fifth Avenue Uniquely Celebrates Its Centennial

New York, Nov. 27—Miss New York of shops from Washington Square to short-skirted maid of 1924 on Fifth Avenue.

The Avenue is celebrating its centennial and has dressed itself in all its ancient and new splendors. In scores of shops from Washigton Square to Central Park the New York girl of 100 years ago is shown by crinolines and hoop skirts to which silk stockings and other features of to-day's modes offer a startling contrast.

Museums and private collections have yielded up their treasurers in honor of the event. Not only the costumes but also the manners and customs of old New York are depicted.

In one show window there is displayed a pair of slippers which were worn by Abram S. Hewitt, once Mayor of New York. Embroidered with the emblem of the city, they were given to the Mayor by an admirer.

A bank has on display nearly 200 lithographs prints, etchings, woodprints and photographs depicting the growth of the avenue from its infancy. In another collection is a woodcut showing a woodchopper cutting wood 100 years ago at Forty-fourth street, now in the heart of the exclusive shopping district.

Medical Men Study Case of Deaths of Kingston Girls

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Kingston, Nov. 27— The suggestion that an overdose of wine of ipecac caused the death of two girls named Morrison last week-end is scouted by medical men who are studying the case. They claim that wine of ipecac could not possibly have caused the deaths. A chemical analysis of the contents of the stomach of both girls is being made and the coroner is awaiting a report of the chemists before concluding the inquest. The bodies of the two girls who became ill at a dance Saturday afternoon and who died later, lie in state at the home of their parents in Kingston.

CAGE TEAMS START ; BOWLERS ARE GOING TO TORONTO : SOON MISS HARRIS ROLLL 302

Miss Harris Gets 302 in One Game

Come Close to Recreation Alley Record Last Night

After losing eight straight games, the Kiwanis won a game from the Wanderers, the much tooted hand-picked team of the city's leading bowlers. True, the Wanderers had most of the bad breaks, but that is what the Kiwanis have had to contend with in all their past games and last night with the Kiwanis getting the best breaks they finished 240 up, rolling their best score of the entire season. The old Captain himself was high bowler. For the Wanderers Dr. Haffner rolled the highest three string score.

Another feature of the bowling last night was the wonderful bowling of Miss P. Harris of the Belmonts team. Miss Harris spilled the maple for 302 in the second game only two pins down on the alley record and the second girl to bowl over the 300 mark on these alleys. The Belmonts won this game from the Hydro girls. In the first game the Belmonts were up only eight pins but in the second led by Miss Harris the Belmonts broke away and piled up enough pins to win the game for them.

Found Limburger Not Good Tonic

So Veteran Race Horse Driver Declares After Trial

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 27—Limburger cheese is not a good horse tonic. It may make a nag strong but not fast.

So says Mike McDevitt, veteran race horse driver, who tried it and knows.

The story is told by Jim Clark, editor of the Breeders' Journal.

Driver Mike liked limburger before a race. The odorous cheese was like a tonic to him. So before a race at Cranwood Track, near here, Mike gave his horse, Burrowlite, a mouthful of his favorite sandwich, hoping it would add speed to his nag.

As the horse lined up for the first heat, the other animals, whiffing Burrowlite's breath, snorted and otherwise signified they longed for the great open spaces, where the grass is green and limburger is unknown.

Burrowlite himself seemed uneasy and anxious to run. The race began. Burrowlite was flashing along in second place looking like he was going to come on to win.

Driver Mike claims he heard Burrowlite belch distinctly. The odor of limburger assailed the air. The gas attack befogged the horse. Burrowlite stumbled and broke but scooted past the judge's stand second.

In the next heat Burrowlite didn't show a thing. The cheese evidently was too strong for him.

Granites Won Postponed Game

Defeat Ramblers By Eighty Pins at Y.M.C.A. Alleys

Last night at the Y alleys the Granites and Ramblers came together in their postponed game and the Granites came through with a win by 80 pins. This game was to decide whether the Ramblers would take second place or be tied with the Granites providing they win from the O.S.D. on Saturday night. The Granites rolled their best game of the season with three of their players over the 500 mark. Miss Ross of the Ramblers was high single of the evening with 231 and Mrs. Sprague of the Granites captured the three string with 550.

Belleville Team Enters Tourneo

Hardware Bowlers Will Go To Toronto For December 8

The Hardware bowling team is going to Toronto on Dec. 8th to play at Karry's Alleys in the annual handicap tournament. The Hardware have practically cinched the senior league here and no doubt when they play in Toronto they should give a good account of themselves as they will receive about 300 pins handicap. Arrangements are being made to pick up another team or two tot ake part in the tournament also.

It will be remembered that last spring two teams went up, but fell down badly. This time should be different as the boys are keeping back of the foul line and this was a big handicap to them last year.

The remains of James Tolbert Pepper, of Woodstock, who died on Sunday evening, were laid to rest in the Anglican cemetery, Tuesday afternoon following a solemn funeral service in New St. Paul's Church, Woodstock. The service was conducted by Rev. Canon Appleyard.

Jack Graham and E. Tinlin, of St. Thomas, were arraigned before Magistrat Maxwell, along with Albert Berdan, and charged with the theft of goods from A. Miller of Southwold. Graham yesterday took county police to a location where some of the stolen booty was recovered.

COACH HUGHES SIGNS FOR THREE YEARS

Kingston, Nov. 27 — W. P. "Bill" Hughes, coach of the Queens rugby squads, has been appointed resident Athletic Director of Queen's University for a period of three years and he signed the contract Tuesday, accepting the position. The appointment is very popular in Queen's circles as well as in the city, where the Montreal football mentor has made strong friendships. It was in a measure, through the efforts of Mr. Henry Richardson, that the final arrangements were completed and Queen's are more than grateful to him for the part he played in having Mr. Hughes remain here as resident Athletic Director of the University. Mr. Hughes will move his family to Kingston immediately.

Reds and Whites Win Openers

Y.M.C.A. Senior Basketball League Off to Good Start

The first games in the Y Senior League were played, on Wednesday night when the White Sox lost to the Red Sox and the Black Sox won from the Green Sox.

The first game was a ding-dong affair with the issue always in doubt until the last minute the half time score was 22 all and the final 37-34. The second game was not quite so close, but was a strenuous affair and resulted in a score of 23-18 for the Black Sox.

LIVELY PROGRAM IN ROB ROY CAMP

The Sons of Scotland Camp Rob Roy No. 43 held a St. Andrews Concert and Dance last night in the I.O.O.F. Hall. Everyone enjoyed an evening of song and dancing. The concert lasted until 10.30 when a splendid lunch was served. After lunch the dancing program was started, directed by Mr. R. Browning with Mr. E. Sprague at the piano and Mrs. Geo. Brown violinist.

The following are the names of those who contributed to the program: Miss Bell, song; Mr. and Miss Browning, duet; The Misses Johnstone, Browning, Torrence, Meldrum and Kennedy, Highland Fling; Miss Givins and Miss Kennedy, Sailor's Hornpipe; Miss Jean Givins, Recitation; Mr. Bankier Song; Mr. Ker, Song; Prof. A. Johnstone, Bag pipe selection; Mr. Drummond, Mandolin selection; Messrs. Prof. Johnstone, Ingram and Foster led the grand march with bag pipes.

The witty remarks by Rev. Mr. Clare and Jno. McIntosh were much enjoyed. The singers were assisted by Miss Edith Fenn at the piano.

The committee in charge were Messrs. W. Givins, R. Browning, G. Ingram, R. Whyte, P. Duncan, Q. Boyd, who wish to thank all those who gave their assistance in making the evening such a grand success.

STEAMER SANK; ALL BUT TWO DROWN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 27—During a furious gale in the English Channel to-day, freight steamer Hartley, of two thousand tons, bound for Ghent, sank off Portland with all hands except two who were rescued by the Liverpool steamer Machson, says a despatch to Lloyds Shipping Agency from Weymouth.

At a meeting of the parks and street railway committee of St. Thomas, Tuesday evening, Superintendent Clarke of Pinafore park, reported one of the young swans to be in a critical condition as a result of having its beak bitten off by a turtle.

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"I call Heaven to witness that I have only had one thought, your welfare. When you lay, a little child, in my arms I devoted my life to you. Every hour of the day I have thought of you, and planned out your future. It was not my own happiness I sought, not my own ambition, but yours—I have lived and striven for one end—your success, and your happiness! And I have won! You are a great actress, Doris, and it is I—I!—who have taught and trained and made you what you are!"

"Yes, Jeffrey," she murmured, "I know it! and I am grateful—grateful!"

"But are you happy? Are you happy, child?" he demanded, and his voice sounded almost stern in its intensity.

The color came and went in her face.

"How could I be otherwise, Jeffrey?" she said. "Yes, I am happy!"

He drew a long breath as of relief, but went on—

"Compare your lot with others. I don't mean the poor and commonplace, but those others, the rich, the well-born, the titled. Would you have been happier, for instance, if you had been—let me say—the daughter of a nobleman——"

She smiled at the question, earnestly as it was put.

"I don't know any daughters of noblemen, Jeffrey," she said; "but I don't think I would exchange places with any of them."

He nodded, and laid his hand upon her head.

"No, no," he said, moodily.

"No," she said, with a faint laugh. "I would not exchange places with the highest lady in the land! To be able to move a theatre full of people to tears or laughter, that is better than being an earl's daughter, is it not, Jeffrey?"

He started.

"Yes, yes," he said, eagerly; "that is what I wanted you to feel! Any one can be an earl's daughter, but few!—how few!—the Doris Marlowe who wrought an audience to enthusiasm to-night?"

She smiled up at him.

"And what is this that you are going to tell me, Jeffrey?"

He started, and his hand fell from her head.

"I—I—" he said, uncertainly, "I don't think I'll tell you to-night, Doris; it will keep. I'm not certain that it would make you happier; I'm half inclined to think that it would only make you miserable. No!—I won't tell you. Go to bed ,and forget——" He stopped.

"Forget that pleasant-looking gentleman in the box, Jeffrey?" she said, with a smile.

His face darkened and the hand that rested on the table clenched tightly.

"You saw him!—you saw him!" he said with suppressed fury. "Remember him, Doris! He is a villain!—a scoundrel! He is your, and my, greatest enemy——"

"That smiling, fair-haired gentleman?" she said.

"One may smile, and smile, and then be a villain, Doris," he said, quoting "Hamlet."

"And you won't tell me who he is and all about him, Jeffrey?"

"Not to-night," he said, knitting his brows. "Go now, Doris. Some other time——"

She touched his forehead with her lips, and stole away from him quietly and went upstairs.

She slept little that night. The roar of the crowded theatre seemed to force its way into the white little room and with it mingled Jeffrey's strange words hinting at some fraud, and the words of Lord Cecil Neville's note.

The morning broke clear and bright and she came down, looking rather pale and grave.

Jeffrey ate his breakfast almost in silence ,and there was no trace of last night's emotions on his broad brow. As was usual with him, he went down to the theatre directly after breakfast and Doris was left alone.

The time had now arrived in which she must decide what she must do respecting Lord Neville's note.

She opened her writing-case, and, after sitting before it for half-an-hour, wrote an answer in which she declined a meeting with him; and it gave her satisfaction for a few minutes, at the end of which she—tore it up!

No answer she could pen—and she tried hard—seemed satisfactory. Some were too familiar, others too stiff and haughty.

"I shall have to see him!" she murmured, at last, as if in despair—"for the last time!" A thrill of regret ran through her at the words; they sounded so sad and significant.

Trying to frame some form of words in which she could speak to him, she made her way to the meadows, and as she went the beauty of the spring morning seemed to take to itself a new and strange loveliness, and, notwithstanding her difficult task, the thought that she was going to meet him again filled her with a vague, indescribable sensation that half-pleased, half-troubled her.

All the place was silent save for the singing of the birds and the babbling of the brook, and as she seated herself on the mossy bank she looked round, as one views a place rendered familiar and pleasant by associations.

Wherever she went ,whatever happened to her in the future, she thought she should always remember Barton meadows, the clump of elms, the silver brook, and—ah, yes!—the handsome face lying so still and white in her lap.

As she was recalling the scene dwelling on it with a singular commingling of pleasure and pain, she heard the beat of horse's hoofs, just as she had heard it the first morning; and Lord Neville came flying over the hedge, a little further from her this time, and still upon his horse and not upon his head.

He pulled the animal up on its haunches, and, slipping from the saddle, hurried toward her.

In the second that she raised her eyes, she took in, as if by a species of mental photography, the handsome face, with its clear and now eager eyes, the graceful figure, in its suit of gray cords that seemed to be part and parcel of the wearer, and the air—distinguished patrician, it is so difficult to describe it, which is the birth-right of the gentleman—the air which the parvenu, though he count his gold by the million, cannot purchase.

If your eyes are normal

You should be glad to learn the fact. If I say to you after an examination—"You do not need glasses"—it ought to please you greatly, because few people are so fortunate. Gay Night Life Of Paris Shown

In "The White Moth" Now Showing at Griffin

"The White Moth," a First National picture, which began a 4 days engagement at the Griffin Theatre last night offers exceptional screen entertainment and marks a signal achievement for Maurice Tourneur, the director, and the artists who enact it.

It is a beautiful, fantastic, absorbing piece of cinema entertainment revolving around the gay night life of Paris and the whirl of society in New York.

Barbara La Marr, as The White Moth, an American girl who becomes the dancing sensation of the Paris stage with a legion of suitors, was never better cast, and Conway Tearle, co-featured with her as a millionaire who marries her to stop the romance of his brother gives a powerful performance.

The White Moth in reality is a little choir singer who has left her home in Kansas to study music abroad. Failing to realize her ambition, she is about to commit suicide when Gonzalo Montrez, known as El Volcano, a dancer of the Folies Royale, rescues her and induces her to become his partner. Their subsequent success is beyond her wildest dreams, and at its peak the extraordinary romance with the two American brothers develops.

Ben Lyon gives a fine delineation as the younger brother, whose amour receives such an unexpected setback.

Charles de Roche is convincing as El Volcano, and the other players who contribute materially to the success of the production are Edna Murphy, Josie Sedgwick, Kathleen Kirkham and William Orlamond.

Izola Forrester wrote "The White Moth" and it first appeared in Ainslee's Magazine. It was adapted for the screen by Albert Shelby LeVina. Directed by Mr. Tourneur, it is presented by M. C. Levee, and it deserves to be listed as one of the best films of the year.

NERVOUS BREAK-DOWN

Pains in Back and Legs Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ford, Ontario.—"I had a nervous break-down, as it is called, with severe pains in my back and legs, and with fainting spells which left me very weak. I was nervous and could not sleep nor eat as I should and spent much time in bed. I was in this state, more or less, for over two years before Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me by my neighbor. Before I had taken five doses I was sitting up in bed, and when the first bottle was taken I was out of bed and able to walk around the house. During my sickness I had been obliged to get some one to look after my home for me, but thanks to the Vegetable Compound I am now able to look after it myself. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine in turn with the Vegetable Compound, and I certainly recommend these medicines to any one who is not enjoying good health. I am quite willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. SHEPHERD, 130 Joe. Janisse Avenue, Ford, Ontario.

Nervousness, irritability, painful times, run-down feelings and weakness are symptoms to be noted. Women suffering from these troubles, which they so often have, should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. All druggists sell this medicine.

Flavor of Romance In Cameo Kirby

Booth Tarkington Story Showing at Belle Theatre To-day

Perhaps future generations will look backward to this one as an era of picturesque events and people, just as we today consider those of the past. Be that as it may, there is an admitted flavor of romance in the colorful life of the Mississipi river half a century ago which still attracts us. Accordingly, it was to be expected that Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson would strike a popular chord when they collaborated on the drama "Cameo" Kirby.

William Fox has produced a picturization of this remarkable story of the river gamblers with John Gilbert playing the lovable role of "Cameo," a reckless, devil-may-care type of the duelling days, supported by a clever cast. The picture now at Belle Theatre.

Gertrude Olmsted plays the role of Adele Randall, daughter of a Louisiana planter, who shields the smiling-eyed young gambler, unaware that he is the man being sought for the murder of her father. Unjustly accused of two killings, "Cameo" faces more than the mere task of escape, for he is in love with the girl. He succeeds, thanks to his own ability and a lucky twist of fate, but his experiences combine to produce one of the most alluring pictures of the year, according to advance notices.

Director John Ford has found a way to present remarkable realism in scene after scene, recalling the picturesque life of the days when types such as "Cameo" Kirby were common. Infinite care has been exercised in the choice of costumes and every shot was taken with an eye to detail.

In addition, the plot is so full of action and so colorful at every turn, that it lends itself to the screen perfectly.

Covered Wagon Coming to Griffin's

Wonderful Story of Pioneer Days in the West

A magnificent epic of the early west is James Cruze's latest Paramount production, "The Covered Wagon," which will be the feature at the theatre for 3 days beginning Monday next. This is a picturization of Emerson Hough's new novel of the same name, and it is said to be one of the greatest photoplays ever seen on the screen.

The features embraced in this story are many and varied and include among others, the start of 350 covered wagons from Westport Landing (now Kansas City), in 1848. The terrors of fording freshet rivers prairie fires and the like are depicted with great realism. A buffalo hunt is one of the most exciting scenes. Old Fort Bridger with a night attack and fight by day with Indians, are shown. The dividing of the trails to Oregon and California at old Fort Hall, a touch of the gold fever in California, magnificent mountain shots and a culmination of the romance with the establishment of one of the first homesteads in Oregon—these are all incidents in a picture that bristles with big scenes.

Such historical characters as Kit Carson, Jim Bridger and Bill Jackson, scouts and typical western characters, are portrayed in the Paramount screen version of the novel, which is conceded to be one of the most notable literary achievements of the present decade.

The various roles are in the hands of well known screen players. The leading man is J. Warren Kerrigan, and the leading woman is Lois Wilson. Alan Hale is the villain. Others in the cast include Tully Marshall, Ethel Wales, Charles Ogle and John Fox. Jack Cunningham adapted the novel to the screen.

Beck Disgusted With Criticisms

Must Be Left Alone to Work Or He'll Quit

Toronto, Nov. 27.—If Sir Adam Beck's presence on the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission is to result in continued attacks on and investigations of that Commission, Sir Adam will resign. So he informed the members of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association at their autumn meeting, in the City Hall yesterday afternoon.

This declaration by the Hydro Chieftain, adoption by the association of a resolution expressing the utmost confidence in his integrity and ability, and the airing of a vigorous protest against the attitude of the Federal Government toward the Hydro's plan for the development of the St. Lawrence River powers at Morrisburg, occupied the attention of delegates from practically all the larger centres of the Province.

The Hydro Chairman's mention of resignation took his hearers aback, to say the least. One gathered that the explosion of a bomb in the nearby corridor would have had a similar effect.

"I've about come to the limit of patience," he said. "If investigations involving the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of the Province's money, and damaging the Commission itself to the extent of millions, are to continue, the Treasury of this Province and the people of the Province will be relieved by being relieved of me. That's the state we have arrived at to-day. This sort of thing should cease. It is jeopardizing the great enterprise built up by the municipalities of this Province, and it is scandalous, unrighteous and unjust."

Sir Adam added that he was getting tired of spending his own money for the maintenance of the prestige of Hydro. "I tell you that candidly, in justice to the enterprise and in justice to myself. I'm not here begging, but I do resent the things that are being done. I'm growing weary of this continuous uproar about piffling and imaginary matters which are being dragged out by those who are our antagonists; I think I can say, in some cases, by political antagonists."

A chorus of "No, no," greeted this declaration, but Sir Adam dropped the matter there and proceeded with his survey of the St. Lawrence problem.

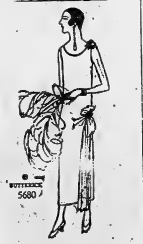
FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon



With clothes so easy to make perfectly and so easy to wear with elegance, there is really no excuse to-day for women not being well dressed.

Kathleen Norris in her own life-story published recently said that it was an unwritten rule that she was not to be disturbed at her work unless any or all of the children in the family fell in any or all of the wells. Short of a severe domestic crisis there is no excuse today for any woman not wearing the right frock for the right place. What could be simpler than an evening gown, seamed at the shoulder and under the arm, with no sleeves and no trimming save its own sash and the flower at the neck and yet with all the elegance of a French gown? Crepe satin, the new crepe faille and silk crepe make very useful dresses

"Back was Very Painful I am now Well Again"

Mrs. Wm. Walker, Webbwood, Ont., writes:

"I was sick for several months with my stomach. I had pains in the back, and how I used to dread wash day, for my back would pain so that I couldn't lie down when night came. I also had gas on my stomach, and my appetite was so poor that sometimes I did not care whether I ate or not. The doctor gave me medicine, of which I took a number of bottles without benefit. At last I started to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and although I have only used three boxes, I am quite well again."

ROBBED SECOND TIME

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 27.—The United States consulate in Riga, Esthonia, has been robbed a second time this year, says a despatch to the Daily Mail from Riga. The despatch adds that diplomatic cipher code and large quantity of diplomatic correspondence was stolen according to correspondent, agents of Russian Soviet Government are suspected.

A London theatre's plan to avoid payment of the entertainment tax by selling chocolates and giving away seats, has been abandoned owing to legal obstacles. It is understood that the London County Council, as ground landlords of the theatre, threatened to revoke the theatre lease if the chocolate plan was put into effect. The theatre management therefore abandoned its scheme.

"She Was Too Sick To Try Entrance Exams."

Jeannie was one of the many children in New Ontario who travel miles each day to school. Fair weather or foul, they trudge along the rough roads eager for the little bit of education possible for them. Fifteen years had passed since Jeanne's birth and she had never enjoyed the best of health during that time. Six of these years she had spent in going to school, helping around the house and at odd times working here and there to earn a little money.

One day she was caught in a sleet storm on her way home from school. Before long a terrible cough set in, which finally ended in Consumption. Of course, it was impossible for her to try the entrance examinations. "Another year, perhaps, but certainly not now," said the doctor.

Now she is resting at the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives. Her pleasing shyness still remains, her curly, fair hair refuses to behave, while her blue eyes with the aid of her lips radiate cheer and hope. "Sure," says Jeanne, "I'm going to High School. Why not?" and we echo, "Why not?" and the doctor says "Why not?" because Jeanne is on the road to Wellville.

Will you help her and others to reach the goal, by contributing to the hospital funds? Gifts may be sent to Hon. W. A. Charlton, President, 223 College Street, Toronto, Ontario.

Speaks at Queen's

The Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines in the Province of Ontario, will visit Queen's University on December 5 and lecture in Convocation Hall at four o'clock on that afternoon.

The Hon. Mr. McCrea's address is one of a number to be delivered to the students of the Faculty of Applied Science by prominent representatives of Mining Engineers. The whole student body, however, as well as the general public is invited to be present.

Now the Milkmaid

The name of the gas boat which plies between Brockville and Morristown in the interests of the Nestle's Food Co., which operates a condensary at Morristown, has been appropriately changed from Ivor P. Ray to The Milkmaid. The boat was originally in the oyster traffic on the Atlantic coast.

Amputated Fingers

While operating a straw cutter at the farm of Ernest Schutta, Alice, Charles Peters, Pembroke, met with a painful accident on Thursday, when his left hand caught in a cog wheel of the machine, nearly severing the third and fourth fingers. Dr. Delahey was summoned and removed the injured man to the Cottage Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate both fingers.

A Change of Ownership

Another business change involving a well known Brockville retail establishment is announced in the purchase of the business of N. B. Colcock, clothier and haberdasher, by Messrs. H. Brimmell & Son, Lindsay. The new owners will take possession on Dec. 1st and the future plans of Mr. Colcock are indefinite. Mr. Colcock has enjoyed almost a lifelong association with the retail clothing trade and has been active in many directions during his long residence in Brockville.

Still in Wood Business

The corporation of Perth is to continue in the wood business, the wood committee having recently purchased two hardwood bush lots, one from Peter O'Grady, on the Rideau, and the other from John White, in North Burgess. Town employees have been at work cutting wood at the O'Grady lot the last two weeks, and work at the White lot has commenced. Although Perth has several hundred cords of dry hardwood in its yards, the huge piles are gradually growing smaller owing to the prevailing cold spell.

Reeve Re-elected

Kingston, Nov. 27.—Reeve C. J. Graham, of Kingston Township was re-elected reeve by acclamation as the result of the qualifications Tuesday night for the position. G. A. B Clark and H when the other candidates nominated for the position. G. A. B. Clark and H. McIvor, failed to qualify.

W. R. Aylesworth failed to qualify for deputy-reeve, and the contest will again be between W. E. Cordukes, the present deputy-reeve and R. C. Hawkey. B. Gordon and H. Silver dropped from the contest for Councillors, leaving the field to H. E. Harpell, W. R. Aylesworth, A. E. Well, B. Coulter and J. L. Silver.

Seduction Charge

Kingston, Nov. 27.—In Police Court Wednesday morning a young soldier was committed for trial by Magistrate Farrell on a charge of seduction.

From evidence submitted by the prosecution the alleged offence took place in April last when the complainant and the accused were engaged to be married. The complainant stated, in the witness box, that the accused left for Camp Petawawa at the end of May promising to return to the city in June when a marriage was to be held, but failed to do so.

HE LEFT AGED WOMAN ALONE IN COLD HOUSE

Corbyville Man Found Guilty of Serious Charge To-day

MAY BE ADJUSTMENT

Prisoner Has Chance to Deed Back His House

Campbell Hudgins, middle aged bachelor of Corbyville, was found guilty of neglect today in not fulfilling a legal duty of supplying necessities of life and attention to an aged woman, who was infirm and ill, and who lives at his house, but the case was enlarged for one week to see if some arrangements could be made between the parties in adjustment.

Mrs. Dugan deeded her property—the house and lot—to Hudgins more than one year ago on condition that he would attend her in her old age until death. She is nearly eighty years of age. The woman who is believed to be suffering from cancer of the stomach is bed fast and very feeble. She is also believed to be "childish."

Following complaints, Provincial Constable Simon Elliott visited the home on October 27th last at 8.20 o'clock in the evening. There were no signs of life about the house. The lights were out and when he tried the doors he found them locked. Borrowing a lantern, a neighbor named Jose was hoisted to the bedroom window and it was found that Mrs. Dugan was in bed. When the house was entered the fires were out, the house was chilly, the room was dirty and all the food in evidence was an apple. A fire was built and a meal brought by a neighbor for the old woman.

Scouts a Plot

Crown Attorney Donnan asked the accused to deed back the property and a relative of the old woman in Belleville would take her and keep her Hudgins refused, however, as he claims it is but a plot woven about him by jealous relatives of the old lady, and that he will not deed the property back until he receives compensation for care and attention which he has given the woman for the past three years. Further he claims that he has used the woman as well as he could and has never neglected her.

Dr. Morgan who was called to attend the woman on October 28th told of her bad physical condition and advised that she be taken to the hospital. Surroundings were not healthy and there was evidence of lack of attention. Food which had not been eaten lay exposed to flies.

Then the unfailing humor of police court cases no matter how sarious, introduced itself

"Are there flies in October doctor?" asked defense counsel. "One just skimmed my nose," exclaimed the crown with a grabbing gesture which failed. "There he is on the pipe, Mr O'Flynn—exhibit no. one."

One neighbor witness named Mac Pherson stated that if he had half as good attention as Mrs. Dugan he would be satisfied, and another witness named Gilbert told of arrangements being made by Hudgins to have Gilbert's wife cook meat and a pie for the Hudgins' home. This was on the 25th.

As far as Gilbert knew, the treatment accorded the woman was good although he did not think that it was right for Hudgins to leave her on October 26th and 27th, the days on which the charge was alleged to have taken place.

In Bed For Years

Hudgins on the stand told of the woman being in bed for years, but always able to arise and attend to her self. When he left to go to Kingston on the 26th she was willing that he should go and he believed she was able to get up and get food (plenty of which was left in the house). He also believed that she would be able to start a fire with wood which he said was left near the door. The officer however, told of being unable to find any wood and of having to pick up sticks in the yard to start the fire on the night he made the investigation.

Hudgins' reason for not admitting three women visitors to the house was because they were friends of a woman relative of Mrs. Dugan whom he did not wish in the house as they were taking away his property.

Susan Parm, one of the women, testified that she had been refused admittance by Hudgins who said that there were people up in the room writing She waited from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. but saw no one leave the house.

Anyone guilty of this charge is liable to imprisonment.

INVESTIGATE CASE OF POISONED LUNCH

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Woodstock, Nov. 28.—No charge will be laid against Mildred Potter, East Zorra girl who put paris green in her school mate's sandwiches, until a full investigation of the circumstances and the girl's environment is made. It appeared to-day that Mildred had been ostracised to some extent by other girls, causing her much bitterness.

Mayhew Guilty, Given 8 Months

Was Brought Back From West to Face Trial

Walter Mayhew, of Bancroft, was found guilty on two charges of indecent assault against a young girl here Wednesday afternoon and was sentenced to serve eight months in jail on the first charge, the sentences to run concurrently.

charge, the charges to run concurrently.

Magistrate Jarmyn, of Bancroft, came down from Bancroft to preside at the trial which was held in Belleville police court. County Attorney Donnan conducted the prosecution, and E. J. Butler defended accused. T. D. Ruston, Inspector of Children's Aid Society was also present.

Maybew was brought from Red Deer, Alta., by Provincial Constable W. Cousans, of Cobourg, more than one month ago, and has been on remand while the Attorney General was communicated with in regard to his case. The charge was ultimately reduced from one of having carnal knowledge to two indecent assault charges. Mayhew was arested in the west on a warrant issued by magistrate Jarmyn and served by local Provincial police, whose brother officers in the west, made the arrest. Mayhew who is a married man, hired the thirteen-year-old girl as a housekeeper last summer at Bancroft while his wife was on her vacation. On the wife's return, she brought action against her husband and left him. He then went to the Canadian west.

EARLY MORNING FIRE DESTROYS AN AUTO

Fire which started in the engine of a motor car which stood in a garage before 2.35 o'clock this morning, almost totally destroyed the car and badly gutted the interior of the garage. The car is fully insured, and the fire cause is not determined.

The car, a coupe is owned by W. P. Nelson, 212 Albert street who had the machine in a garage which he had rented from J. E. Downey, 178 Bridge street east and which is situated at 211 Albert street.

P. C. Arthur Booth and P. C. W. Franks answered the alarm for the police department and fire fighters with apparatus were on the job in a hurry, their prompt action saving the garage.

E. GUSS PORTER NOT DISMAYED BY THE RESULT

Blames O.T.A. As Contributing Cause For His Defeat

FORESEES A CHANGE

West Hastings Will Rise Out of Tuesday's Ashes

In regard to the result of the bye-election Mr. Porter said yesterday.

"While I am defeated I am not dismayed in any way. The people must have their way. If they wanted it that way it was not in my power to change it. Phoenix-like West Hastings will rise again in the ashes of the day before yesterday.

"I do not think that the question at issue was thoroughly understood by the women. They did not seem to realize the importance of the question.

"I am satisfied that sinister influences were at work and that a large number of men, under the direction of those behind the King Government, were employed in these tactics which I could not overcome, and have no desire to overcome in the same way.

Blames O. T. A.

"I think the O.T.A. contributed very largely to my defeat by reason of the fact that a great many Conservatives, who had opposed the O.T.A. voted against me to get even.

"Then again, the voters' lists were very imperfect. Scores and scores of names were left off the lists. In one sub-division there were as many as 75, most of them Conservatives, but we were successful in having some put on before the election. The list was so falty that the judge went around in the afternoon about 4 o'clock to the different polling places, endeavoring to correct the errors, and did correct some, but it was too late to correct many.

"A great deal may be said about the election and its results. So far as Hon. Mr. Meighen is concerned, I do not think it will have the slightest effect on any Dominion issue or election. Where ever Hon. Mr. Meighen spoke, my majorities were very large, and the vote in Rawdon, Marmora, Frankford, Springbrook and other places shows it. In the city of Belleville and the town of Trenton the O. T. A. let us down, and in other places we lost simply because of party friends not seeing eye to eye with existing O. T. A. conditions.

No Protest

"Will there be any protest," he was asked.

"Not so far as I am concerned," replied Mr. Porter. "I am good enough sport to accept defeat when it comes my way in exactly the same spirit as my victors. So far as I am concerned there will be no protest, and not even a recount. I have no ill-felling against anyone in the riding, but regret that tactics used by outsiders were such as not to leave the people to exercise their free will."

BOAT DRIVEN BACK BY RAGING STORM

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Dunkirk, N. Y., Nov. 28.—A raging storm on Lake Erie drove the fishing tug fleet back to cover to-day when it attempted to leave port to continue the search for the fishing boat, Harold G. Beck, of Buffalo, lost last night with Captain John Beck, his son Harold G. Beck and two members of deck crew aboard. Fishing tugs all of which were placed at disposal of coast guard in search are lined up inside of the harbor breakwater, under full steam, waiting for break in storm that will allow them to sally forth.

MUTINY BREAKS OUT AGAIN IN EGYPT TO-DAY

Two Platoons Revolt and Attack Military Hospital

KILL BRITISH DOCTOR

Cavalry and Infantry Parade the Streets of Cairo

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cairo, Nov. 28.—Two platoons of Eleventh Sudanese at Khartum today mutinied and attacked a military hospital, killing one British and two Syrian doctors. British troops fired on the mutineers who sustained severe casualties.

Further details are not yet available. It is known, however, that a certain restlessness existed in the Eleventh Battalion last August. A big meeting of students of Alazhar University called for today passed off without incident. British cavalry and infantry again paraded Cairo this morning and reconnaisances were carried out over principal towns.

A resolution adopted at a meeting of members of the Nationalist Delegation including several who held office under Zaghloul Pasha declares that nation does not ask for an arrangement regarding waters of the Nile, but that "it insists on rights of Egypt in Sudan." The resolution also protests against acts of the present Egyptian administration claiming the Government "has not faced Parliament and has not obtained Parliament's confidence."

The correspondent of Daily Mail in a despatch states that Ziwar Pasha was happily relieved by yesterday's arrests, as prisoners were Premier's political enemies and if left at liberty might have endangered his life as well as British officials. Persia is ready to raise the whole Egyptian question before the League of Nations, according to newspaper Ahram.

More Arrests Made

London, Nov. 28.—A number of additional arrests of Egyptian deputies were made today, says an agency despatch from Cairo. Egyptian Embassy confirms the news of an outbreak at Khartum, but considers outbreak is not connected officially with the trouble at Cairo.

Take Drastic Steps

London, Nov. 28—The British authorities in Cairo have taken into their own hands, drastic measures to suppress possible nationalistic plottings by the arrest of four prominent members of the party organization headed by former Premier Zaghlul Pasha.

Those arrested were Nekrashy Bey, a secretary in the ministry of the interior in Zaghlul's cabinet; Abdul Rahman Fahmy, one of Zaghlul's closest political assistants; William Makram Obeid, a prominent Coptic member of the nationalist delegation and Barakat Pasha, who was Zaghlul's Minister of the Interior.

According to statements in official quarters in London last night, the men arrested were leaders in an underground conspiracy against British interests which probably was partly responsible for the murder of Sirdar Stack and which might if left unhampered in its activeness, result in further unfortunate incidents.

There was fear that this prompt action on the part of the British might result in another Egyptian ministerial crisis; but, according to the latest

Women Wait all Night at Pit Head; While Rescuers Battle Waters In Mine

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cardiff, Wales, Nov. 28.—After working waist high in water and battling the deadly black damp all night, rescue crews this morning were still struggling to reach nine miners who were entrapped last night in the Penian Pit at Dunvant, when a sudden rush of water caused numerous roof falls. One body has been recovered from the debris. Several score of miners escaped struggling through water reaching to their necks.

Hundreds of women, relatives of the trapped men, kept a night long vigil at the pit head.

Alderman May be Disqualified

Situation Arises From His Relationship to The Corporation

It is declared in some quarters that Alderman-elect Wm. Parish is disqualified from taking his seat in the 1925 Council, owing to the fact that at the time of his nomination and when he made his declaration of qualification he was on the pay roll of the Public Works Department. In case Mr. Parish is unable to take his seat, the statute gives power to the members of the 1925 Council at its inaugural meeting to name a person to fill the vacancy when there has been no election for aldermen.

Britain Receives The Soviet Reply

May Probably Demand Authenticity of Alleged Zinoviff Letter

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London Nov. 28—The Russian reply to the British note regarding the alleged Zinovieff letter and Anglo-Russian treaty, has been received in London and it is expected that Christian Makovsky, Soviet Charge-de-Affaires, will deliver it to the Foreign Office today. The text has not been published as yet, but it is understood to agree with the forecast given out earlier in the week being along the lines generally anticipated by the Foreign office. A Moscow despatch on Tuesday said the Soviet reply to the British note would probably reiterate the demand that authenticity of the alleged Zinovieff letter be passed upon by the arbitration committee. Regarding the British rejection of Anglo-Russian treaty, the reply was expected to state that all the Soviet could do, was to express regret that the opportunity had been lost to establish cordial diplomatic and commercial relations.

Police "Tipped" on Bandit Plan

Heavy Guards Placed on Dominion Bank and Armoured Car

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 28.—On the tip of a citizen that he had overheard on the City Hall steps a discussion of concerted plans for a hold-up in the Dominion Banks armored car and head office of the bank itself by a squadron of bandit cars, extraordinary precautions were taken by police and bank officials yesterday and last night to guard the bank and its messengers. Heavily armed special guards were on bank premises all night. If an attack had been arranged it was apparently scared off.

WOULD PAY BACK ALBERT COLLEGE TAX

At a meeting of the various civic committee held last evening three recommendations were approved sent on to the Council for endorsation. The recommendations were as follows:

Recommended that the telephone in the fire chief's residence be paid for by the city.

Recommended that the request of the Great War Veterans Association asking the Council to appoint trustees be aproved of, said rustees to be the Junior Judge of Hastings County, Mayor of the City and Commanding Officer of the Argyll Light Infantry Regiment.

Recommended that the usual remission of taxes be made to Albert College for year 1924 on all the property that is not bringing in some revenue.

CHINAMAN CHARGED

On a charge of having liquor for sale a young Chinese, Charlie Wing of Madoc Village was this afternoon arraigned before Police Magistrate R. R. Casement of Madoc. As the Crown was not prepared to proceed with the case an enlargement was granted until to-morrow afternoon. Wing conducts a restaurant and soft drink establishment at Madoc. B. C. Donnan represented the Crown and E. J. Butler appeared for the accused.

After hearing considerable evidence in the case of Cyril Boon, Raleigh township, Belgian, in the Kent county police court on a charge of violating the O. T. A., Magistrate Arnold granted an adjournment for one week.

Elks Organized in Belleville Now

Order Was Inaugurated at City Hall Last Evening

A new organization has been established in the City of Belleville following the work of Mr. D. B. Sowden, Grand Organizer, & Deputy district grand exalted ruler, Brother Fred T. Gordon of Ottawa was here last night and officiated at the installation of a lodge of the benevolent and protective Order of Elks of Canada and New foundland. The City Hall was used for the inauguration ceremony. Between twenty and thirty of some of the most prominent men of Belleville were last night initiated and the following officers were selected holding provisional appointment.

Past Exalted Ruler C.E. Hanna M.P. Exalted Ruler, Ald. A. E. LaRoche; Lerding Knight, C. B. Treverton; Loyal Knight, T. P. J. Powers; Lecturing Knight R. A. Carman; Esquire, F. W. Smythe; Secretary, W. A. Walshe; Treasurer, R. J. E. Graham; Chaplain J. E. Costello; Inner Guard, N. Glintz Tyler, H. Smith; Trustees, H. W. Greenleaf, F. J. Munro, J. E. LaPorte

For the first initiation the goat was not a very hairy one, but he grows hair fast and the members already initiated are promising a real lively one for those to come.

After the ceremonies in the City Hall were completed, all proceeded to the Queen's Hotel where a banquet was laid by Mine Host Mr. Powers as only Tom knows how to do. His Worship the Mayor, sat down with the newly-made Elks and in a most able and jovial mood proposed the toast of the visitors which was responded to by Mr. Coffey of Florida Exalted Ruler Eugene LaRoche holding the chair. Brother Gordon gave a short talk just roughly outlining Elkdom.

What Order Stands For

The Elks are not an Insurance or Assessment organization, they are a body whose red blood circulates redder and redder. They inject sunshine into the dark places, they aid the sick they care for the dead, they are simple distributors of practical christianity, E-L-K standing for Equality, Love and Kindness. These are some of the virtues practiced and upheld by the Order. There are no Elks in Potter's fields or county shrouds. There are no hungry Elks. They live by the way side and lend unto the Lord, for they give to and succor the poor. It is purely a non-sectarian order. This is one of their long suits, and they are the greatest organization on earth for promoting good-fellowship. As Mayor Mikel last night stated: "Truly to be a real Elk means to be a better citizen."

The lodge here has not started or even looked to start with vast numbers, but like begets like. It has a nucleus of live wires to start from, and without a doubt citizens will see this society new to Belleville grow and increase.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD LAD WAS HIT BY AUTO

When a car driven by Richard Murray, this city, struck Bobby Zufelt, five-year-old son of Mrs. Ida Zufelt, 294 George street, just before noon today, the boy was painfully injured. The accident occured near the corner of George and Queen streets, when Murray who was driving along George street, was suddenly confronted by the child in the street. He made a quick stop but the slippery pavement skidded his machine around in the street. The boy was taken to his home nearby.

FORGOT LICENSE; PAYS A $5.00 FINE

In a hurry to get back to work on busy Saturday evening last, a local man neglected to attach the front license plate to his automobile, the license having been removed by garage mechanics who had been working on the car. He cranked the car, drove it in the streets and was spied by th elaw. To-day he pleaded guilty to driving without a license plate and was given until Monday to pay a five dollar fine plus $3.50 costs.

Magistrate Masson predicted today that fines for this class of offence would soon ascend if motorists regarded their only duty as climbing in behind the wheel and driving away.

The death took place at Bowmanville of James Abernathy, father of William Abernathy, manager of the Tip-Top Tailors' store in St. Thomas. Mr. Abernathy will attend the funeral at Bowmanville Friday afternoon.

Miss Edith Anne Ferguson, who for 40 years served on the teaching staff of London Public Schools, most recently at St. George's, died at her residence, 840 Richmond street Wednesday night, after a protracted illness.

TELEGRAPHER WENT WRONG; GIVEN 4 YEARS

He Pleaded Guilty to Stealing Money From the C.N.R.

BURNED CHEQUE STUB

Forged the Signature of Robertson an Express Messenger

Pleading guilty to two charges of theft and one charge of forgery, Maxwell Anthony Skebo, aged 23, was sentenced to serve four years in Portsmouth penitentiary on each charge, the sentences to run concurrently. He appeared this morning before Magistrate masson in police court here.

Skebo, whose home is in Tudor Township is unusually clever and at seventeen years of age was a qualified telegrapher. Since that time he has served at various C.N.R. staitons in the Province as telegrapher and relief station agent, but of late his cleverness was mis-used to rcrooked practices.

The first charge was that he did steal 79.37 from the C.N.R. at Portland, Leeds County on June 16th, 1924 The second charge was that he did steal between October 14th and November 12th 1924 at various times aid in various sums, an amount totalling $874.18 from the C.N.R. and the third was that he did forge the name of Harold Robertson, express messenger on November first 1924 on the receipt book thereby receiving $90.62.

The methods used by the accused were described by Crown Attorney Donnan as being extremely clever. By tearing off cheque stubs and burning them, he was able to defer detection, after he had issued money orders not having received the money. The money he secured was placed in the cash drawer to offset shortages caused by his having taken money for his personal use. The forgery was committed only after he had erased Robertson's name and another entry making such a perfect counterfeit of Robertson's signature that in the opinion of the Crown, probably handwriting experts would be unable to detect the differ-

The White Wyandotte King Tells His Story; Hon J. S. Martin, Agricultural Minister

I left off teaching high school nearly twenty years ago, when my hobby, White Wyandottes, developed into a real business, which now earns thousands of dollars for us every year.

I now have ten men busy on my farm and seven stenographers in the office.

I now have 25,000 customers in the United States alone, and have a big business in every civilized country in the world, and several thousand customers here in my native Dominion of Canada. There are between 7,000 and 8,000 White Wyandottes on the farm now.

Men who ought to know tell me that in the last twenty years I have built up perhaps the most profitable and largest fancy-poultry business in the world. In addition, I run a mixed general farm over which my Wyandottes have unlimited range. Dairy cows, poultry, and hogs are my prosperity insurance. I have 200 acres of land which we call the Regal Poultry and General Farm. It lies on Silver Lake, skirting the village of Port Dover, Ontario, Canada.

This farm and business are the realization of the ambition of my life. My dreams have come true even better than I had planned. When I was teaching in the high school, I used to build air castles, and plan and hope; but I never really thought my dreams would come so true as they have. I have capacity for this work because I love it; and it is capacity for work that the successful poultry man needs, for to go to the top with poultry you must have more kinds of equipment and ability than is required in most other lines. The program that has made it possible for the business to succeed is this:

I first had to have the poultry, and then constantly to breed it better, while telling the world about it via the poultry shows and the advertising columns and catalogues.

Love of the chicken business was no doubt bred in me. I have been told how my great-grandmother used to take me with her to the poultry-yard when by her side with a scarf around my she went to feed, helping me to toddle by her side with a scarf around my chest, under my arms; and she often expressed the hope that I would love to feed the hens when she was gone.

Being raised on a farm and always a fancier means something in the development of the poultry breeder. Following your natural bent helps any man. All my life I have stuck to the thing I love best. I think it pays anyone to do that. Thirty years ago I recall having my first purebred poultry—some Light Brahmas. In 1885 my father bought for me a trio of Barred Rocks, and I raised this breed for seventeen years, just as a hobby on the home farm. But I made no business of selling.

Some time after taking up the Barred Rocks, I obtained the White-Faced Black Spanish and kept them for two years, adding to them the White Leghorns, which I kept for five years. White Cochins I kept during 1891-1892; and about this time I had Brown Leghorns also.

My White Leghorns were of the large type that laid big eggs. I developed this flock all through one hen that produced the best eggs, from which I was able to rear about forty pullets the first year. After disposing of all the White Leghorns, I tried the Partridge Cochins and the Langshans, all the time keeping Barred Plymouth Rocks. Late in the nineties, before I finally decided upon White Wyandottes, as best adapted to my purposes, I kept some Golden Wyandottes and some White Minorcas. It was the fine laying of the Golden Wyandottes that led me to take up the white variety.

I had started keeping White Wyandottes during the year of the Pan-American Exposition, 1901. At the Pan-American a beautiful lot of White Wyandottes were exhibited. And among the winners were some exceptionally fine specimens in type, color, and condition. I was one of the many admirers of this popular white fowl at this great show, and perhaps no one observed and studied these White Wyandottes any more closely than I did. Looking back on this occasion, I can see wherein it was the most momentous one in my career as a poultry fancier; for it was there and then that I decided to make this breed my sole specialty. Within two years the results were so gratifying that the keeping of White Wyandotes became my main occupation.

Shortly before this decision I had quit high school teaching and was in the piano business with my two brothers. The White Wyandottes took me ahead so fast that I sold out my interest in the piano business to devote all of my time to poultry and the farm.

When I began breeding White Wyandottes I obtained the very choicest stock from several of the leading strains that it was possible for me to get. I was compelled to do this because I could not find any one strain having all the qualifications that I wanted. It pays to get only the best. One strain would excel in shape, another in color, another in head points, but they all excelled in utility qualities. I decided that it would be unwise to use a strain that was not strong in utility qualities, no matter how strong the show quality. These strains I gradually combined into a new one, and I called it the "Regal." strains I gradually combined into a th fancy and utility lines, has become history.

I was very fortunate in obtaining my foundation stock to get several hens almost ideal in shape and color at least in those days. These hens I bred to a quick-maturing excellent an excellent heavy-laying strain. The pullets from this mating I bred to the grand old cock bird, Regal I, a first-prize Ontario winner. This bird proved to be a wonderful breeder, and he stamped his excellence on the whole flock. He was a wonderfully vigorous bird, standing very wide, full-breasted and broad in every section. He had a fiery-eyed and extra good head points. It is to the fine breeding qualities of Regal I that I feel a great share of my success is due. He was placed in the breeding pen in December, and the eggs were very fertile. From this mating a number of early chicks were hatched, and when the Dominion Exhibition at Toronto came on the latter end of August the cockerels and the pullets were full grown and the pullets laying. The cockerel that headed the pen was without a rival in a class of thirty. His plumage had a dazzling whiteness that made other birds look yellow. I named him Regal II. At this show I was awarded the diploma and medal for best display, and since that time the name of Regal has become a familiar name to breeders of White Wyandottes.

I have throughout my work clung to my ideal of a stylish, attractive, showy bird with plenty of size, but not overdone in any way. Many judges and breeders have told me they can pick out birds of Regal breeding, no matter where they see them. They are the sensible type, combining the useful and the beautiful. I have studiously avoided all fads—fads for the short body an the small bir, going all for color an size and to disregard shape, which fad was entirely wrong, as shape should be the outstanding characteristic of a good Wyandotte.

Some years ago, finding that there was a demand for bred-to-lay stock, I decided to make use of the trap nest to get records of my best layers, and to begin systematic work along this line.

In my second year's work I succeeded in getting a wonderful record from an exhibition pullet. She was hatched in February and began laying early in the fall. In her first year's laying she made a splendid record of 241 eggs. This female I named Dorcas, and decided to make use of her to build up a flock of heavy layers. She had many other qualities besides being a good layer. She had all-round good exhibition qualities, splendid color, good shape, neat head points, and plenty of size.

The following season I mated her to a fine vigorous cockerel bred from a female with a record of 265 eggs. This cockerel also had fine exhibition qualities, and was good enough to win in keen competition. In addition to this he gave wonderful fertility, eggs from his pen running from 90 per cent to 95 per cent fertile. Thus was my Dorcas line developed.

I demand of the females in my Dorcas breeding pens, first, vigor and stamina; second, a good egg record; third, exhibition qualities. The male birds must have a fine, sturdy, vigorous appearance, with a record of fertility back of them, and bred from females with an egg record of 200 eggs or better. They must have neat heads, good eye color, stay white color, good bone, and as good Wyandotte type as possible.

You know of my winnings at the New York State Fair over the past seventeen years, where I have swept everything year after year. This is the greatest of all the early American shows, and is famous for having the finest exhibition poultry building in the United States. The exhibits are large and competition very keen. To win at this show you must get your chicks out in January and February. It is a great test for vigor, stamina, and winter egg production.

You will notice from my catalogues that my motto has always been "A square deal to everyone," because I do not want a single dollar of any man's money without giving him full value in return. I make my catalogues of a practical, helpful nature, and in them give away all secrets on how to breed, feed, and condition, and how to exhibit.

Years ago I established the policy of keeping my winners at the big exhibitions, mating up a goodly number of pens and selling eggs from all these pens. One of my customers by purchasing a setting of eggs hatched the first prize cock at Madison Square Garden, a bird worth at least $500.

I have found that this policy has increased my business from year to year and my customers knowing that I gave them a square deal, come back year after year whenever they need new blood.

Thus have I built a profitable business out of the thing I have always liked best to do.—Farm and Fireside.

Sell Russian Boat But Two Left Now

Of Fleet of 11 That Transported 800 Refugees

Manila, Nov. 28—The Ilia Murometz, one of the Russian vessels which arrived in Manila Bay a year and a half ago under Admiral Stark, has been sold to a local transportation company, leaving only two out of the 11 vessels in the original fleet which came from Vladivostock with more than 80 Russian refugees. The others have been sold to concerns here or in China. The company will use the Ilia Murometz, which is a high-powered tug in towing work in Philipine waters.

Only 40 of the original 800 refugees who came with the fleet remain in the Philippines, the others, including Admiral Stark, having departed for various countries. Some 600 were taken to the United States on the army transport Merritt, more than year ago, and others from time to time have gone to Shanghai. Admiral Stark left only a few days ago for France, where he expects to make his home and possibly enter business. He and his followers belong to the old monarchial regime and at present are not welcome in their native land.

MR. CHARLES DICKENS OPENS NEW STORE

Charles Dickens, one of Belleville's best known citizens, wishes to announce that he has recently opened a Gents' Furnishing Store in the city. The store is located on Bridge street just a few steps from Front—not far enough to prevent anyone from reaching it without trouble—but just in such a place as to be out of the higher rent district, thus lowering the overhead and enabling the customers to receive extra value for their money.

Mr. Dickens will be pleased to have his old friends—and any new ones as well, come in and inspect the new premises, where a complete line of gents' furnishings may be obtained. His aim will be to handle only quality goods at prices enabling his customers to save real money. His motto will be

"If we haven't what you want we will get it for you."

MUTINY

Cairo advices, it was announced there following a hastily-called cabinet council, that there would be no ministerial resignations, as the British authorities had accepted Premier Ziwar's proposal that the men taken into custody should be handed over to the Egyptians to be dealt with.

Apparently the arrest of these nationalists is regarded as merely a preventive measure and that they will only be placed under observation and control. No manifestations or disorders have followed the arrests and thoughout Egypt calm still prevails. There is no hint of any active opposition to the withdrawal of the Egyptian units from the Sudan.

The withdrawal is expected to be completed by the end of the week. Nothing is known in London of a alleged plot agaist the life of Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, the British High Commissioner. There has been further active steps on the part of the Egyptians towards bringing the Egyptian affair to the official cognizance of the League of Nations.

Opinion in official quarters here remain optimistic that a solution of the situation will be reached by means of direct negotiations between Ziwar and Viscount Allenby before the Egyptian Parliament meets again.

DE VALERA IS OUT; HE LOOKS THIN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Dublin, Nov. 28.—Eamon De Valera who was released this morning by Ulster authorities after a month's imprisonment for entering the northern area arrived in Dublin today. He looked thin after solitary confinement, explaining by charging that the food was bad and that conditions under which he was held were generally bad. During imprisonment his only reading matter comprised religious books in Gaelic and his only visitors the prison chaplain. Mr. De Valera was much interested in the Egyptian situation.

1924 Christmas Seals

The National Sanitarium Association is to be congratulated on the handsome Christmas Seals now on sale in aid of the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives.

To meet a persistent demand for a real Christmas Seal, not merely an advertising sticker, quite a new departure has been made. The seals, beautifully colored and embossed, ten designs, are put up assorted in packets of different denominations.

The Hospital is in need of funds to carry on its work. Why not buy these seals in lieu of others? Not only will you get good value in return, but your money will be made to serve a greater end, for it will go to help someone in distress.

For sale by school children, and banks, or direct from Xmas Seal Department, Gage Institute, Toronto, Ontario.

TELEGRAPHERS

ence. This work had been done at four different stations where he had been sent as relief agent.

His father, who was present, stated that he had always been a very clever boy, being a qualified telegrapher before he was in long trousers. His record was a clean one too, until very recently, he explained, the lapse having occured after he left the vicinity of his home.

Trouble Was: He Knew It

"To many people have told him that he was clever," explained the worried father, who himself has never in his life been in any kind of trouble.

J. O'Flynn, counsel for accused explained that it was the boy's first lapse, though he has always held responsible positions, and like the boy's father felt that he was too young to be handling money when he first became a finished telegrapher. The boy was in a daze and did not appreciate what he had done, it was believed, but since his arrest he has made plans for restitution. A car which he is believed to have purchased with stolen money will be sold for this purpose and relatives may come to the rescue. Counsel asked for a remand until restitution was made.

Crown Attorney Donnan objected to any further enlargement owing to the serious nature of the charges and the fact that the boy had held a position of trust as a public servant which is dealt wih very specially by the code.

A C.N.R. official explained that the boy received from $145 to $175 monthly as his wage and possibly more, depending upon the class of station at which he was relieving. H ewas paid a wage and also received certain commissions.

"I will ask for a very substantial punishment in this case," advised the Crown.

In passing sentence the bench stated that there was a lot of bad boys in the world to-day, and especially in this neighborhood, and also stated that there was too much of this sort of thing going on. Each charge was provided for and the maximum for each was fourteen years in penitentiary.

Had Broken Through

"He should be severely dealt with on each charge," continued the magistrate, "but I will consider his youth He has broken through and has become very reckless."

"He should receive two years on each charge but I will make it four years on each charge, the sentence to run concurrently. If in the meantime he makes restitution, the Minister of Justice will be empowered to reduce the sentence accordingly."

E. J. Butler was present in the interests of the C.N.R.

Skelo, an intelligent and well dressed youth took the sentence and proceedings as calmly and indifferently as though they meant nothing, and though slightly pale and dim eyed, appreciated every word which had passed during the trial.

City Treasurer Cottier of Chatham sold 24 pieces of property in various parts of the city at a tax salt.

Court Annulled Marriage of 1905

Montreal Woman Says She Was Forced to Marry Man

Montreal, Nov. 28.—When she was but fifteen years of age, in 1905, Liliane Mathilda Viau married Adrien Charlebois, because according to the story she told Mr. Justicee Burneau Thursday morning he threatened to disfigure her face with vitrol if she refused. Declaring itself satisfied that the charges were true, the court granted her request and annulled the marriage.

The woman told His Lordship that at the age of fifteen she left home and, while workless and friendless, met Charlebois, who took her to his sister "for protection." Shortly after this, he told her that if she would not marry him he would disfigure her for life and, under this threat she went through a marirage ceremony with him.

However, when the clergyman asked him "if he took this woman for lawful wife," Charlebois, while pretending to answer in the affirmative, murmured "no" under his breath in so low a tone that only she heard him. Two years later he left her, declaring that she was not really his wife because of the "no". If she dared to divulge the circumstances of their marriage he would return and "burn the house down," he told her.

After hearing her story Mr. Justice Burneau expressed himself as assured that she had married under threats, and accordingly declared the marriage null and void.

Charlebois was not in court.

CLERGY ENCOURAGE MEN TO MATRIMONY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 28.—Desire to protect British bridegroom's pocket from too many financial inroads, which it was contended might prove a serious deterrent to marriage, already affected by unemployment and housing shortage, led the Church of England's House of Clergy yesterday to reject the proposal requiring men as well as women to wear wedding rings.

The father and son banquet held Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Chatham Rotary club was a marked success.

The death occurred of Mrs. Thompson Wilkinson, aged 72 years. She had been a resident of Sarnia for 70 years. Three sons survive.

More than 300 friends attended the golden wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Watson, Caradoc township, on Monday night.

So far as Brantford radio listeners-in were concerned, the international radio tests in spanning the Atlantic were highly successful. Many fans report hearing at least one station.

DURANT STARS AND PRINTERS WITH WINNERS; GIRLS' BASKETBALL LEAGUE HAS STARTED

Durant Stars Defeat Cyclices

Printers Capture Another at Recreation Alleys Last Night

The Printers won from the Maple Leafs in the ladies league fixture at the Recreation alleys last night by 133 pins. The Maple Leafs lost the first two games and won the third. Miss A. Ethier and Miss Ford were high bowlers.

In the junior league the Fruit Merchants won another game making it nine consecutive wins, winning from the Aristocrats by 150 pins. The Fruit Merchants had to exert themselves all the way as the Aristocrats were pressing them right along and managed to win the last game but not enough to pull out a win. Both teams rolled some very nice scores, the winners rolling 2677 and the losers 2527. Buckley and Barret were high bowlers.

In a postponed game the Durant-Stars won from the Cyclists, both teams playing four men aside which makes the scores look rather low. Bill Strachan with 518 was high three string bowler.

Girl Basketballers Fight it Out

St. Andrew's and Baptist Teams Won Last Evening

Two games of the Girls' S. S. Basket Ball League were played last evening in the gym; the Baptist S.S. vs Tabernacle S.S.; St. Andrews vs John St. The former game proved to be a real thriller in the opening stanza, as there was just one point between the two teams. St. Andrews pulled away in the last period and won by 25-12. The first game was a runaway for the Baptist, they leaving their opponents scoreless and giving themselves 37 points. For the Baptist, Miss Laura Cook was the shining star, getting 25 points of the 37. Miss Ethel Adams, the remainder. For John St. Carol McArthur scored the whole twelve and for St. Andrews Mary Roberts got 25 and Lazelle Curry 1. Miss Walbridge refereed and handled the games to perfection.

RAILWAY CROSSING ACCIDENTS FATAL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Two railroad accidents on the fringes of Chicago last night brought death to eight, probably fatal injuries to two and serious injuries to another. Five members of a motor party of young people were killed at Aurora, forty miles southwest of here, when the mail train wrecked their motor car. Three women were killed at Lombard, Ill., twenty miles from here, when a train struck family automobile party. The man in the party received fractured skull and may die.

English Writers Are Much Puzzled

In Describing Big League Baseball Games There Recently

IN CRICKET TERMS

Strange Accounts Were Given to General Reading Public

London, Nov. 28—When the Giants and White Sox played their first exhibition baseball game in London this month, some of the newspapers sent their golf reporters out to do the story of the proceedings. Most of the journals, however, conferred the assignment upon their cricket writers It was in the nomenclature of cricket that all of them reported to the populace what they had seen

Each and every one of them pitied the poor batter because his bat was so small and the fielder's gloves so large One writer compared the bat to a broomstick, and the gloves to suet-pudding able to absorb every ball that came within reach

Nearly all of the British reporters expressed admiration for the fielding end of the baseball business, the speed and accuracy of the running, catching and throwing appealed to them greatly But the batting, and especially the laws governing foul balls, failed to impress them as very interesting One man seemed grieved to learn that the batter not only misses as many as he hits but that 'when he connects he is hampered by a rule which makes all strokes to the right of mid-off or the left of mid-on technically foul". Mid-off and Mid-on are cricket field markings comparable to the third and first base line The writer seemed to be further distressed by the fact that "the area within which the batter can make a counting shot is inconveniently plastered with fieldsmen, who are so fast and efficient, that they rarely throw a yard wide of their mark.

This business of foul and fair balls tempted more than one reporter to steep his pen in a flood of words. "All of the hitting has to be done well in front of the wicket," wrote one. "Anything that goes, in cricketer's language towards point or square-leg or behind the wicket does not count. The result is that the achievement of scoring is excessively difficult because the fielders, armed with suet-pudding gloves, can be relied on to stop or catch every thing that comes to them, and 'the round' which the batters must cover is a very large one. The only hope is to slog the ball out of the grounds.

But what struck the British reporters in this "unfairness of the allocation of the armor" was the catcher's "coat of mail" and the umpire's "triple wadding around the chest." Only the batsman was "subject to complete disarmament."

The Manchester Guardian reporter found baseball "monotonous" and the veteran golf chronicler of the Morning Post adjudged it a slow game, bravely setting down that opinion in full expressed knowledge that there is no more certain way "to make Americans really angry". The game that one of them found monotonous and the other slow was won with a ninth inning rally, and among its fielding performances had been a triple play.

Perhaps the most strikingly novel thing about baseball to the British mind is the amount of talking and shouting and howling that go with the game. How a pitcher can pitch with Hughey Jennings razzing him from the third-base line and the crowd yelling remarks of a not particularly complimentary nature, is a little more seemingly, than the quiet peaceful Briton can understand. Nor does he find it easy to comprehend how a batsman can be so insensitive as to be able to do his job with the catcher chattering away on a line of intentionally irritating remarks.

That the Giants and White Sox will succeed in their aim of implanting baseball in Great Britain, no native believes. To the majority of the English it seems to be a slow, montonous game. It does not last three days like a cricket match, with several hundred runs and time out for tea and lunch. But nevertheless and notwithstanding they do find it slow.

New Lightweight Champ Generous

Does His Painting Jobe on The Cheap These Days

Paris, Nov. 28.—Lucien Vinez, who wrested the European lightweight championship from Fred Bretonnel recently, is 29 years old and has had a rather rocky road to the top of the European heap. He has been fighting for 11 years, meeting the best lightweights here, never scoring a knockout, but always winning close decisions.

Never popular with the boxing fans because of a peculiar style of combined attack and defence, he has never fought for large stakes. A house painter by trade he worked at it until two or three years ago, upon many occasions picking up his brushes the very next morning after he had shed the gloves.

Like Criqui, he is a product of Belleville, the slums of Paris and like the former featherweight champion of the world, he has remained modest and unassuming.

The day after his victory over Bretonnel, one of his Belleville friends asked Vinez whether he could recommend a painter colleague who would give his house a new coat of paint.

"Cheapest possible, Lucien," admonished the friend, "you know I am not very rich."

"Don't worry about that," answered the new European lightweight champion, "I'll go and do it myself and it won't cost you a centime."

NOW TIGERS CLAIM "PEP" LEADLEY

According to "Paddy" Jones, sporting editor of The Hamilton Herald, "Pep" Leadley will be seen next year with the Hamilton Tigers.

Writing in The Herald, Mr. Jones says:

"Leadley, speaking over the long-distance phone yesterday afternoon, stated that he knew nothing of locating in Toronto or of joining Argos.

"I will be finished at Queen's next summer and will, in all probability, go back to Hamilton. And I will gladly play with Tigers, he said.

"A paper published a report that I was planning a post-graduate course at Queen's, but that's not true," he added.

SETTLED HIS BET AT FRANKFORD

Yesterday and to-day were days of "Settling-Up" in West Hastings. Bets were paid and wagers were fulfilled. This town being in the riding was included and the big event in this line was the fulfillig of a wager of a citizen to jump off the high bridge into the River Trent in the event of Charles Hanna being elected. This citizen, Mr. George Ross familiarly known as "Peggy" and a prominent member of the local Conservative Executive took the plunge. His Liberal antagonist agreed that it should be delayed until next summer but some of Mr. Roses' friends urged that it was in the interests of duty and honor that he fulfill his part at once, and this he felt was the course he should follow A volunteer Life Saving Crew was placed at each side of the river but was not needed. Dramatic indeed, was the moment when Mr. Rose fully dressed, took the leap into the cold, dark and rapid waters of the Trent and for a few seconds disappeared. He soon came to the surface, however, and swam and struggled to shore, where loving hands aided him to a nearby living quarters where a change of clothing was waiting and suitable stimulants administered. He is at a late hour to-night none the worse for his adventure.

SPEEDED TO CHURCH

Toronto, Nov. 28.—When Staff Inspector McKinney asked Robert Adamson if he had been speeding at 36 miles an hour in order to get to church in time for the blessing, defendant was quite indignant, and asked the officer to leave the blessing part of his query out. Adamson did not "think" he was going at the rate complained of, but was fined $20 and costs by Magistrate Cohen in Afternoon Court.

Oats: Nov. ¼ to 1-8 lower at 58 5-8 to 3-4; Dec. unchanged to 1-8 lower at 59 1-8 to 59; May 1-8 to ¼ higher at 64 3-8 to ½; July unchanged at 63 5-8.

EXCHANGE RATES

New York, Nov. 28.—Sterling exchange steady, demand rates in cents: Great Britain 463 3-8, Canadian dollrs 1-32 of one per cent premium.

CHICAGO MARKET

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Favorable progress of harvest in Argentina, together with decline in quotations at Liverpool, led to lower prices for wheat to-day during earlier dealings here. Reports of frost in Southern Argentina were ignored, predictions of decreasing supplies in United States for the remainder of the season failed likewise to have any apparent effect on values opening which ranged from 1-8 cent to 3-4 cent lower was followed by moderate further set back and then some thing of a rally. Corn and oats averaged lower as a result of sympathy with wheat. After opening at 1-8 cent to 5-8 cent off corn market sagged little more and then made fractional gains. Oats started at 1-8 cent to 1-2 cent decline, May 58 cents to 58 1-4 cents but later steadied at about same as Wednesday's close. Provisions like hog values were without material change.

Ex-Ald. William Heaman of London, sustained cuts and minor injuries Wednesday afternoon, when in turning to avoid a boy who dashed suddenly into his path, his motor car collided with a street car at the corner of Dundas and William streets.

Sprinkled Paris Green on Lunch

Strange Case of Childish Jealousy Reported From Woodstock

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 28— When Margaret Hart, a 10-year-old student at East Zorra school, went to eat her noon-day lunch Wednesday, she found that someone had sprinkled paris green on her sandwich. She at once reported the affair to her teacher and following an investigation suspicion pointed to another pupil, Mildred Potter, aged 13.

Questioned, the girl is said to have admitted placing the paris green on the sandwich and to have declared that jealousy prompted her in her act.

A quantity of arsenate of lead was found scattered about the pump in the school yard and the girl is said also to admit placing it there.

High Constable Hill to-day investigated the affair and as a result the Potter girl was brought to Woodstock and is detained at the children's shelter.

Means for the establishment of a juvenile court for Sarnia and district are under the consideration of special committees appointed by the city council and chamber of commerce. An effort will be made to obtain data from other cities.

If Back Or Kidneys Ache Drink Water

DRINK FREELY AND OFTEN TO FLUSH THE KIDNEYS, ALSO TAKE SALTS

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to get relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidney; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

THE GERMAN BOND GAMBLE SPREADING

We reproduce herewith an article contributed to The Listening Post in connection with the German Bond Gamble. It will interest our readers:

"Human nature is the same the world over and Canadians are no exception to the rule; as a result the German Bond Gamble appeals for various reasons to an ever growing circle. The pity of it is, however, that a large number of Purchasers of German Bonds are not in a position to judge for themselves and do not appreciate the difference between an External and an Internal Bond and easily become the victims of the high pressure salesman who offers a 'German Bond' worth many thousands of dollars before the War, but which today can be bought almost for the former cost of brokerage fees if not less.

"Premier Taschereau in a very recent address in Montreal said with reference to this Class of 'Speculation' and the advertisements and announcements in many newspapers:—"I want to give you some friendly advice, I do so after having consulted today some of the leading financial authorities. Do not touch them. We are a young country. Are we going to give up our money which will go to the reconstruction of Germany? Her industries will compete with our own. No. Money is too difficult to earn. It is a factor of development too considerable for us to do so. Let us keep our savings for development.

"As will be noted, he dwelt on the advisability of not investing money outside of Canada, but instead of retaining it for our own development.

"Sound advice indeed, and if Canadians have surplus money which they desire to invest or gamble with, they owe it to Canada to do so within her borders, for whether they make an investment or lose in a gamble, the money remains in their own country and they have performed a service to her.

"The German Bond Gamble, like the gamble in the mark, will certainly help in one direction and that is Germany; it has been estimated that the gamble in the mark cost American investors billions of dollars dead loss and a British expert calculates that, in one way or another, investors and speculators have provided Germany anywhere up to £1,000,000,000 of solid cash or marketable credit in return for scraps of paper of less value than the commonest of wall paper.

"Certain self-styled investment houses have taken advantage of the gambling spirit inherent in most people and are urging them to buy German bonds, any old bond apparently answering the purpose. They point to the success of Germany's recent external loan and draw attention to the ridiculously low figures that they are charging for their offerings of other German issues.

"What they do not tell the would-be fortune maker is that the bonds they are offering are internal issues payable in marks. The difference between External and Internal loans is that in the case of the former, it is floated abroad in some other country and the obligation is to pay both principal and interest in the currency of that country, whilst in the latter case, the obligation is to pay the principal and interest in the country's own currency.

"It will be seen, therefore, that there is a big difference between the two, for whereas a country, to hold its credit abroad must meet its External Issues in full, it may do what it pleases at home and is only obliged to pay face value in its currency no matter how badly it may be depreciated. Even external issues may be repudiated by a country whose word is valueless.

"In many instances it has been found that the price at which these internal bonds are being offered to the public is several times greater than the price at which they can be obtained in the open market.

"Many of these bonds are not absolutely worthless, as interest is being paid in paper marks, one trillion (1,000,000,000,000) of which are now definitely equal to one gold mark, or 23.8 cents.

"As to the future, no one may definitely say, for, whilst Germany may endeavour to do something for original holders of bonds before the crash, she is certain to be very indifferent to the claims of speculators 30 or 40 years hence, when she will have settled the more pressing reparation problems.

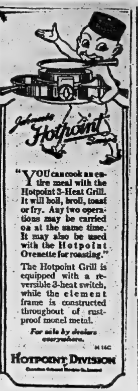
"On the whole, the so-called Investment Opportunities in German internal bonds may be classed as the most flagrant of gambles and in many cases the purchaser pays a great deal more than he should and doesn't receive a fair deal, and eventually, in my opinion, the bonds will not be worth the paper they are printed on.

"With the experience of the mark speculation to go by, it would be to the advantage of the country if the Government looked into the sale of these 'securities' with a view to curbing same.

"The publication of a list of such offerings with the current market in New York might remove one of the factors, ignorance on the part of the general public as to the market price of the bonds, which these high pressure dealers depend on.

"Would-be fortune hunters would do better to place their money on a horse race. They have at least the opportunity of seeing the horse run.

"Investigate before investing is a good motto to follow. The manager of any branch of a Canadian chartered bank, not to mention the many financial writers in the country, will at any time without obligation be pleased to advise prospective investors on merits of any security. Beware of the glib salesman who tries to hurry you into signing the dotted line, take your time and investigate before investing."



"YOU can cook an entire meal with the Hotpoint 3-Heat Grill. It will boil, broil, toast or fry. Any two operations may be carried on at the same time. It may also be used with the Hotpoint Ovenette for roasting."

The Hotpoint Grill is equipped with a reversible 3-heat switch, while the element frame is constructed throughout of rust-proof monel metal.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER

While war service, no matter how illustrious cannot be accepted as an excuse for wrong-doing in civil life—and General Ross would be the first to say so—there is undoubtedly too great a tendency for Canadians as a whole to allow little errors and habits on the part of some returned soldiers to drive out of their minds the splendid record of these men in the trenches, says the Peterboro Examiner.

General Ross in his Armistice Day address did the cause of the ex-soldiers a fine service by pointing out this fact.

He told of Canadian soldiers whose army "crime" sheets were always full, but who were never found lacking in the hour of peril, and reminded his hearers that it was unreasonable to expect that such men would be angels at home.

That is an angle of the returned soldier problem that is too often overlooked.

The Kingston member deserves thanks for bringing it before the people of Peterboro, and for his eloquent defence of the ex-service men

Minor misdemeanors should not cause them to be deprived of the consideration that a grateful country should afford men who have fought bravely and suffered much in its behalf.

BEST MAN NEEDED

There is an apparent lack of interest in the forthcoming municipal election, many are predicting that with no aldermanic contest and because the big election has overshadowed the city's affair, the vote on Monday will be small.

This should not be the case by any means. A little reflection will remind one that there cannot be too much care taken in the selection of a Chief Magistrate. The fullest expression of opinion should be obtained at the polls.

The municipality of Belleville has arrived at a critical point in its career. Marked progress is being made industrially and next year will without doubt see increases in building and population unless the King Government monkeys with Belleville manufacturing lines as it has with other products of other cities.

The Mayor of 1925 will have to be the best man available if Belleville is to take full advantage of her opportunities.

It is up to ratepayers of the city to see to it.

CANADA'S FINANCIAL STRENGTH

In 1913 the funded debt of the Dominion of Canada had a total of $483,232,555, practically every penny of which had been borrowed abroad. London had been the chief market. During the war, however, it became necessary to appeal to the people of Canada, and the response was astounding. Thus it came about that, at the close of the fiscal year 1923, our liabilities on account of outstanding bonds stood as follows:

Payable in Canada .	$1,938,877,054
Payable in London .	336,001,470
Payable in New York .	210,933,000

It will be seen that nearly 80 per cent. of our entire national debt is now held at home, notwithstanding the rather staggering total. It is impossible to contemplate a fact of such significance without identifying in it the proof of our monetary strength. The appeal to patriotism, at a time of infinite stress, taught us that truth. There may have been some measure of sacrifice involved in the purchase of bonds to that colossal amount; but the fact which stands out boldly is that we had the money. We certainly had not up to that time suspected our resources in cash to be so large.

There is, of course, the further view, that money invested in Government bonds is not available for productive enterprises, and that may be a serious matter.

It is however, the interest charges on our debt which immediately concern us, and in that relation there is room for sobering thought. For the fiscal year ended March 31, 1923, the amount was $137,392,735, which was a larger sum than the total revenue of the Dominion in 1912. To meet such a heavy liability it became necessary to impose special taxes, and last year those taxes aggregated $181,634,875. There again there was a withdrawal from available capital since taxes are paid out of the savings of the people. It is impossible to grasp such a fact without feeling that the situation is a challenge to our sagacity and constructive prudence.

If anyone will turn to the Public Accounts, he will find that guarantees amounting to $512,243,855 are not identified with the public debt, although they are a direct charge on the public revenues; so that our interest account last year was really about $28,000,000 more than the official figures. Since these guarantees apply wholly to railway securities, they are as much a liability as any Dominion bond included in the public debt.

Canada is in a position to carry a heavy liability; but we should have no illusions as to what a burden of that nature means. We have observed our late enemies and other countries making successful headway in the reduction of their debts, why are we not doing the same?

"Another industry handed over to the Americans," says Rev. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor M.P. for Winnipeg North, of the Pulpwood resources of Canada. He makes this protest over certain grants of forest reserves made by the Federal Government.

Mr. Woodsworth is justified in his protest says the Border Cities Star, although he makes an incorrect statement when he adds that "we fly the British flag, but are actually owned by the United States." We are not owned by the United States, neither have we been leased to the republic, nor do we intend to be. The fact that our neighbors are glad to pay par, or practically par, for our money, is ample proof of that. But handing over our raw pulpwood is deplorable. It is not pulpwood that we should be selling them, or even wood pulp. We want their trade and they want our pulp, but there is only one way for us to sell it, that is in the finished product—newsprint.

The newsprint industry is one of Canada's national prides. With the romance of its growth has been linked inseparably the harnessing of water power. It means hundreds of potential millions to us, it means more and more industrial centres, and more employment for the Canadians who are here and for the countless thousands of new Canadians that we have a right to expect within the next few years. With the newsprint industry fully developed and other industries speeded up from one end of the country to the other, we should see Good Times that will surpass our fondest expectations. "Made in Canada" buying campaign are laudable; how about "Made in Canada" selling drives to go along with them?

Is it not the height of folly for a country to possess such a valuable asset as we have in pulpwood and not make any better use of it than we are doing at present? If a merchant or a farmer or a manufacturer were to carry on his business with no more wisdom than is displayed by the nation in this case, he would soon find himself in the poorhouse. Year after year we talk about pulpwood and listen to suggestions for getting the greatest possible national benefit out of the industry, but that is all we do. It continues to be a football of politics, and every month sees a golden stream of legitimate profit lost to this country. Ottawa talks but does little or nothing.

The situation is not a complicated one. The facts are clear enough for any one to understand. We have pulpwood and the United States is very short of it. Uncle Sam must have enormous quantities of newsprint from Canadian sources to supply the great American press with its millions of daily copies. This newsprint—all of it—should be made in Canada. An embargo against the exportation of the unfinished product would do the trick. Is there anything very puzzling about this? Some timid persons have raised the suggestion that Uncle Sam might not like the idea and might seek retaliatory measures against this country. Never fear! The United States believes in looking after its own interests and its own industries. A country that raises the tariff wall as high as the republic has raised it during the last few years is not going to find fault with a neighboring nation for doing a similar thing, only on a greatly reduced scale. There is no question of belonging to the United States; we are the best of friends and the best of neighbors, but if we want to play the hired man's role forever we can't blame Uncle Sam for coming to regard us as such.

To-day's Smile

The foreman of a construction gang was walking along his section of the railway one day when he came upon a laborer fast asleep in the shade of a fence. Eying the man with a stern smile, he said:

"Slape on, ye idle spalpeen, slape on. So long as ye slape ye've got a job, but when ye wake up ye're out of wurrk!"

Sees New Interest In Canadian Poet

Professor Sandwell Delivers Interesting Address to Women's Club

The Women's Canadian Club had a large turn out at the Armouries in spite of the inclement weather of yesterday, when Prof. Sandwell, of Queen's University, addressed the ladies on the subject "Canadianism of Canadian Poetry", pointing out that to instil love of the country, of our beautiful surroundings, into the soul of each of us, was the necessary work of our poets.

The professor spoke in an interesting and whimsical way, introducing humorous touches that added spice to an otherwise serious subject.

He said that when he first began making speeches on Canadian poetry, he found that the subject was a neglected and rather disreputable child, but in the last ten years it had changed, until now it was no longer regarded as an isolated and adventurous thing to do. Now there were books of Canadian poetry on the market, containing representative selections of Canadian works.

He is constantly met with the objection, he stated, from well educated people too, that it is a shame to ask them to pay so much attention to Canadian poetry, as he does, because it was not important and likely never would be important and they would be better employed in reading established literature by great writers.

In reply he pointed out what a service our literature was rendering us. It was helping us to a deeper and more sincere appreciation and love of our own country, and if that is not valuable, then nothing is.

"In what way" he asked, "does it produce this effect? Love of country is one of the most valuable elements in the human soul. It comes naturally to a certain degree, but it must be fostered. A good national literature must assist very materially in expatiating that love of country. I can recall an observation I used to hear in my childhood—"If I can write songs of my country, I care not who writes the laws.' 'Songs' meant poetry to him. 'Songs' to us is apt to mean 'yes, we have no bananas. These songs leave no permanent impression on us, except to use up some of our vitality, but real poetry stays with us."

He went on to draw an anology, taking the beautiful natural surroundings, the special climate, which eliminates weaklings and the country which has an appearance peculiar to itself. It takes the ordinary stranger some time to appreciate the beauty of this land. Our Canadian artists have performed a service of incalculable value in depicting scenes from our own land. The artists' works used to be an echo of European masters. At the Wembley Exhibition only representations from a certain school of art were chosen, but Canadians contributed a live and realistic exhibit of art representing our Canadian beauty.

Pioneers In Work

Our poets have done more than most of us have any idea of in showing us the beauty of our land. They started me before the artists. Professor Sandwell believes that unless we can feel friendlier toward a person from British Columbia than we can for someone from an outside country, then our love of country counts for nothing—and Canada is a mere sticking together of pieces of land that have no connection or no ties.

He cited some of the prose and poetry of writers from different parts of Canada and read a few selections from their works. One of these was "The Axe of the Pioneer" by Isabel Valency Crawford, who came to Canada at the age of eight, and lived north of here, near Peterboro. Professor Sandwell considered this one of the most concise poems expressing the spiritual side of this Canadian industry. Archibald Lampman was another poet which he quoted; C. D. Roberts and Marjorie Pickthall, Bliss Catman and Duncan C. Scott also. He urged the reading of such works because the poets need to be inspired to write. We are not capable of feeling intensely on our own initiative, a love for our country. A poet has sensitiveness and power to see and depict what ordinary Canadians cannot. He thus establishes a process of filtering, with himself as the source; through educated and interested people as the Women's Canadian Club, who are ready to study and appreciate his thoughts, and through them the impulse is given to influence all, even to the lower strata of society. He believed that more could be done by Canadian poets who appreciate Canada than by legislation or paternal watchfulness.

Mrs. Baker, who occupied the chair graciously thanked Professor Sandwell and stated that they were indebted to him for enabling them to attach more importance to Canadian literature than they had previously done.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN: SERIAL: THEATRES

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

"You have come!" he said, raising his hat. "I am so glad, so grateful, Miss Marlowe."

"You would not be, Lord Neville, if you knew how sorry I am to be here," she said, and her wonderful eyes met his ardent gaze steadily and with a gravity that lent a subtle and altogether new charm to her face.

His face fell.

"Sorry?" he said, regretfully.

"Yes," she said; "very, very sorry. Lord Neville, you should not have written me that note; it was wrong."

"Let me tell you," he said, eagerly, pleadingly; "I feared you would say this——"

"I did not intend to come," she said as if he had not spoken. "I meant to pass the note by unanswered. But it seemed—well, yes, unkind. And I tried to write, but——" her brows came together, "I could not please myself. It is so hard to write such a letter for the first time in one's life, and at last I decided to meet you, that I might tell you how wrong you were, and that your note showed me—ah! so plainly—that we must not meet again—that, in short, Lord Neville, our acquaintance must cease!"

She actually half rose, as if she were about to leave him then and there; but he put out his hand pleadingly, without daring to touch her, and implored her to wait.

"Don't go—for a moment, only a moment!" he pleaded. "Let me speak in my defense. Do listen to me! I only ask you to listen to me!"

She sank down again slowly, reluctantly, as it seemed, and he threw himself beside her, bending forward, his eyes fixed upon her face all alight with the ardent desire to turn aside her anger, to melt her coldness.

"Why did you write that note?" she said.

"Why—I was mad!" he said. "Stop—I was made, I wrote it while I was in the theatre. It was wrong, I know, of course; but I'm not sorry that I wrote it!"

She turned her eyes with surprise and reproach upon him.

"No, I'm not sorry!" he said, almost defiantly. "I wrote it during the entr'acte; I'd been watching you and listening to you until—well, until I had lost myself, I suppose. Anyhow, I got the piece of paper and wrote on it, and put it among the violets, all in a moment, as it were. I felt that I must see you again—wait, ah, wait and hear me out!" for she had made a movement that seemed to threaten her departure. "I don't know how long I may be here; I may go at any moment—from Barton, I mean; and then, as I thought that I might not see you again for weeks, for months, perhaps——" he stopped, not because he had no words, but for breath and to regain his composure. "I knew you would be angry, but—what was I to do? You had forbidden me—well, you hadn't given me permission to call on you—"

She caught her under-lip in her teeth; he was using the argument in his defense which she had used for him in the morning.

—"And I thought I would write it. Miss Marlowe, you shall blame me for sending that note to you, for asking you to meet me here. It was wrong, impertinent, whatever you like to call it, but I had a distinct object——"

She did not start, but looked at him for a moment with faint surprise, then looked at the brook.

"I wanted to tell you something," he said, not so smoothly or glowing now but with a sudden gravity in his voice an intensity in the expression of his eyes that ought to have warned her, but it did not, for she looked at him with calm surprise.

"It will sound sudden to you, sudden and abrupt, I daresay," he said. "I—I can't help it! It seems sudden to me, and yet sometimes I feel as if I had known you for years—all my life. Miss Marlowe, when a man finds that the face and the voice of a girl are haunting him day and night, that he cannot drive them out of his head for half a minute, when he is only happy when he is near her and altogether wretched when he is away from her, there is only one explanation: He is in love with that girl. I am in love with you!"

The blood rushed to Doris' face, then left it white to the lips.

She drew her eyes away from his slowly and sat mute and motionless.

"I love you!" he said, bending a little nearer to her, the words fraught with the intensity—and the truth—of a man's passion. "I love you with all my heart and soul!" He drew a long breath. "That is why I wrote to you, that is what I had to say to you—wait a moment, I know what you are going to say—perhaps you are going to laugh. For Heaven's sake, don't, for this is a serious business for me!"

She made a slight gesture of negation.

"No, forgive me; I was wrong! You would not laugh! But I know what you will say—that I have only seen you a few times, that I have only spoken to you on two occasions. Well, I know. Do you think I haven't told myself all that? I have, a hundred times; but it doesn't alter the fact. I do love you. I know that and that's about all I know of it." His deep, musical voice was tremulous for a moment, but he answered it. "And I don't wonder at it! Where is the man with half-a-heart in his bosom who wouldn't love you! I have never seen any one so beautiful—half so beautiful!"

She moved her hand as if to silence him but he went on.

"And I've sat for hours, fascinated—feeling my heart drawn out of me by your face, your voice! Why look how you move the rest of the people at the theatre, and think what it must mean to me, who loved you the very first time I saw you! Ah, Miss Marlowe—Doris—let me call you Doris for once!—if I could only tell you how dearly and truly and passionately I love you! But I can't I know it's no use. Who am I that you should feel anything but amusement——"

"Do not say that," she said, in a low voice, almost inaudible, indeed.

"You are as beautiful as an angel, and as clever—why, you are famous already, and I"—he laughed with self-scorn—"I'm just an ordinary fool of a fellow. Of course, there is no hope for me, and yet somehow I felt that I must tell you. You won't laugh, I know. You'll tell me that I am very foolish, and that we mustn't meet again—and—and all that"—he rose, but sank down again, and touched her arm reverently—"and you'll send me away and—and—perhaps forget all about me in a week or two. While I—well—" he pushed the short crisp hair from his brow with an impatient gesture—"well, I shall get over it in time. No!" he said, simply, passionately, "I shall never forget you. If I live to be a hundred I shall never forget the other day when I opened my eyes and saw you bending over me or those next two nights when I looked at you in the theatre! I shall never forget, nor cease to love you! I know it as surely as I stand here!"

This Article Will Interest Every Mother!

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest help in motherhood of any medicine I have ever known. I am the mother of six children and I suffered greatly each time except the last one, when I was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did, and I got along just fine; felt well and strong and had practically no suffering, and had a grand baby, that has always been very healthy. I regained my strength very quickly afterward. I was so thankful to have been advised of this medicine, it gave me such wonderful help."—Mrs. Henry McDonald, 3 Wilmot Avenue.

Filmed Picture Along Mississippi

Care Taken in Production of Cameo Kirby at Belle

When the cast of the William Fox production "Cameo Kirby" assembled for action, they learned that scenes were to be taken with absolute perfection of detail. Some were shot in New Orleans, the only city where some scenes remain as they were a century ago. Others were taken along the Mississippi River. Interiors, of course, were filmed at the Fox west coast studios.

Director John Ford omitted no detail, either in costume or characterization. Even the playing cards used in the gambling scenes were specially printed after samples were brought out from curiosity shops. The old-fashioned revolvers also were used, while the costumes are faithful to the time in every respect.

Cameo Kirby was a river gambler who played square, shot straight and won. The original stage play was written by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson and produced with Dustin Farnum in the title role. John Gilbert plays the lead in the Fox production, at the Belle theatre.

HAVE STRONG CAST IN THE WHITE MOTH

An exceptionally strong cast appears a support of Barbara La Marr and Conway Tearle in "The White Moth," the First National picture in which they are co-featured and which is being shown at the Griffin theatre now.

Prominent among the screen favorites who will be seen with them are Charles de Roche, the popular French actor; Ben Lyon, who was well known on the stage before he started his successful film career; Josie Sedgwick Kathleen Kirkham and Willaim Orlamond.

"The White Moth," an absorbing romance of the French theatre, with a beautiful dancer as the human pivot around which the plot revolves, was produced under the direction of Maurice Tourneur.

It is taken from the popular story by Izola Forrester, the screen adaptation having been prepared by Albert Shelby LeVino.

MOTORLESS PLANES TRAVEL FAST

Berlin, Nov. 28— Two interesting flights in gliders have been recorded here. In the Crimea an aviator remained aloft in a glider for five hours and 15 minutes while in Italy a German flyer travelled 17 1-2 miles in 18 minutes in an airplane without motive power.

HAM EN PANIER

- 6 dinner rolls
- 1-2 pound ham chopped,
- 5 hard cooked eggs,
- Few sprigs parsley,
- 3 teaspoonfuls prepared mustard,
- Green pepper and pimiento for garnishing.
- 1-4 teaspoonful salt,
- Dash of pepper,
- 1 cupful milk
- 1 tablespoonful flour,
- 1 tablespoonful butter.

Cut a slice from the top of each roll scoop out the centre and dry out the shells in the oven; then brown slightly under the broiler. Meanwhile, put the ham, four of the hard-cooked eggs and the parsley through a food chopper; then add the mustard to this mixture. Make a sauce by melting the butter in the top part of a double-boiler, add the flour, pepper and salt When smooth add the milk. Cook until slightly thickened and then add to it the ham mixture. When well blended, remove from heat and put into the cases. Garnish each roll with slices of the remaining hard-cooked egg and small pieces of green pepper and pimiento.

Covered Wagon One Of Greatest

Big Picture Will Be Shown at Griffin Monday Next

One of the greatest photoplays ever made, will be the popular verdict when the motion picture public sees James Cruze's colossal Paramount production, "The Covered Wagon", which will be the feature at the Griffin Theatre. That is the prediction made not only by Mr. Cruze himself, but by those who have seen the picture and who hail it for its bigness impressiveness and extraordinary realism.

Perfect realism, a strong love theme tremendous dramatic action, thrills, that are utterly unlike the ordinary sort; a back-ground of real newness to the screen, where the camera has never before been ground; all these facts, coupled with the splendid cast of virtually 3,000 men and women, certainly indicate a picture that is worthy of any director's enthusiasm. And James Cruze is enthusiastic. He has believed in the picture from the start and with each day of shooting, sometimes under conditions almost unbelievably difficult his enthusiasm has grown. Nor is he alone in his belief, for every person in the drama of the old time western days shares his convictions.

The story with the vast sweep of the western plains for background, across which wind the "covered wagons" with their human freight, is essentialy good picture material, The plot is dramatic with the interest well sustained and the story unfolds like a stirring panorama of an earlier day.

The theme deals with the adventures of a gallant young officer of the American army forced by a rival's enmity to clear his name of an undeserved stain, that of being a cattle-thief, and to win his bride under heavy difficulties. J. Warren Kerrigan is the man, Lois Wilson, the girl, and Alan Hale, the scheming villain. This trio does the major art of the acting and to them along with the director, goes the credit for superb production Others in the cast are Charles Ogle, Ernest Torrence, Tully Marshall, Guy Oliver and John Fox.

The action is exceptionally thrillign the incidents being dramatic and impressive. These include the fording of the Kaw River by the wagon train, the Indian attack and massacre, the prairie fire, the buffalo hunt, the fierce battle between Banion and Woodhull, the parting of the trains and tragic death of Woodhull. The action is speedy and thrilling

ARE WOMEN 100 PER CENT. EFFICIENT?

How many women do you know who are one hundred per cent efficient? That means every nerve and sinew of the body pulsating with life and health as nature intended. Do you not know more who are half dead and half alive with aches, pains, nervous, irritable and despondent, making themselves miserable and every one around them? Women in this condition should let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rebuild and restore them to a normal healthy condition which will make them one hundred per cent efficient and life worth living. There are women in every section of this country who testify to its merits.

Vienna, Nov. 28—To appease large numbers of citizens who crave decorations, abolished with the establishment of the republic, it has been decided to create a medal of the federate republic of Austria. There will be ten different classes.

"Consumption Is No Respecter of Persons"

In one of the glistening, beautiful rooms of the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives, Harry Williams occupies a bed right next to Jim Thom. Harry was studying Arts in the Toronto University, while Jim was a laborer in another city. (Of course, that was before both knew that they were victims of consumption.)

Harry is a handsome young man, say about 22, and is particularly well versed in English literature. His home is in Western Ontario. Harry's brother is consumptive, too, and it was he who insisted that when Harry went back to school last fall, that he be thoroughly examined. The examination revealed consumption,—so Harry withdrew from his classes, packed up a few belongings and journeyed to Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives. "You know," says Harry, "consumption is no respecter of persons. Here I am, just as sick as my room-mate. He was a laborer and I was a student. He worked hard for years while I never labored in my life. He had no good home surroundings, while I have been cared for since birth. I can't understand it, can you." And with that Harry smiles a little and settles down to let science and nature fight the silent struggle for his health.

Harry and Jim are but two of the many who are at present entirely dependent on the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives. The Hospital itself relies on the generosity of it's many friends.

First Over Highway

Oshawa, Nov. 28—"Chick" Anderson, the baseball magnate, with Hugh Ross of Motor fame, had the distinction of being the first persons to travel over the new highway between Oshawa and Bowmanville on Friday at noon when it was declared open by the contractors. "Chick" and Hugh, motoring in one of "Henry's" latest models, arrived at the highway blockade at 11.55 and were told to wait five minutes and the roadway would be completed. They did, and were the first to cross the wire.

Look Over School

Oshawa, Nov. 28—C. J. Wilcox was in Bowmanville Wednesday looking over the work done on the new industrial school. There are about one hundred men on the Howard Yates Construction Co. payroll, some of them Oshawa men, including a number of bricklayers. The work is being held up for lack of woodwork detail material; however, it is not serious and will be resumed shortly. Two buildings are in progress, one 75x75 and the other 85x85. One of them is ready to rthe roof. When this has been completed it is thought likely that a number of carpenters will be employed. Bert Walt- of Hamilton is in charge of the work.

Labor Conditions Bad

Oshawa, Nov. 28—"Never in thirty years in Oshawa have labor conditions been as bad as they are now," declared Alderman John Stacey in Council on Monday night. The Alderman, who is in close touch with a large number of workingmen, declared the total of unemployed men to be 1,000, and that he knew of cases where men engaged on city work for three days a week, nine hours a day and drawing a wage of $10.80 were starving to death while they worked. He said that one man came to him and said he and his family of three were not able to get enough to eat and could not buy coal. This, Mr. Stacey declared to be a fact and said some remedy would have to be forthcoming. The man, he said, lived in one of his houses and had not paid rent since April and he knew that he could not buy fuel and was getting little to eat. He also declared he knew of many ohers in a like position.

Stole Cocaine

Oshawa, Nov. 28—A man called at the office of Dr. McGibbon and learning he was on a call decided to wait for his return and seated himself in the reception room. After a time he investigated the doctor's inner office securing a quantity of heroine, cocaine and morphine. He was not able to make his escape before the doctor returned, however. He asked for a liquor prescription which was refused. It was after the man had left, the doctor discovered the theft and reported the occurrence to the police who are investigating.

CHRISTIAN GENERAL LEAVES COMMAND

Pekin, Nov. 28—General Feng Yu-hsiang, the "Christian General", who overthrew the recent Chinese Government of President Tsao Kun, and ousted the principal military leader General Wu Pei-fu, issued a statement to-day declaring that, as there was no need of his military services during the reconstruction period, he planned to leave soon for a tour of Europe and America.

The "Christian General" has been relieved of his military command by the new Government.

Cobourg, Nov. 27—Lyle Sleeman was elected Tuesday night representative from Cobourg to the older boys' Parliament, which meets in Toronto on Dec. 26. The other contestants were James Forbes, Clifford Earle and Hubert Harris. There was much enthusiasm over the election and 110 votes were cast.

MAYORALTY CANDIDATES HAVE LAST SAY TO THE ELECTORS BEFORE VOTE TAKEN MONDAY

Large Number Attends Speechmaking Event at City Hall; Little Heckling Heard and Remarks Are Not Bitter; Others Look to Post Says Mayor

CITY'S POPULATION HAS INCREASED BY 241

Despite the fact that on Monday next there will be no Aldermanic contest in the city, considerable interest was manifested in the mayoralty race between Mayor W. C. Mikel, ex-Mayor G. A. Bennett, Ald. W. R. McCreary and Ald. H. W. Greenleaf last evening when a public meeting was held in the city hall. This meeting was held for the purpose of allowing the aspirants for the mayor's chair to present their views to the electors. The hall was filled to the doors and a few ladies graced the meeting by their presence. All the speakers received an attentive hearing, there being no heckling. Ald. R. J. E. Graham made a capable chairman.

Messrs. W. J. Looker and Geo. Spracklett, who are contestants for the position of public school trustee in Coleman ward were first called upon and spoke briefly, asking for the support of the electors of that ward.

Ald. G. Foster as chairman of the Gas Committee in his opening remarks stated that he had hoped this year to have been enabled to give the citizens cheaper gas, but was unable to do so owing to expenses in needed improvements. Since the 1st of May the new Tulley system had been in operation and was giving satisfaction. His desire was to make the plant as perfect as possible and to give citizens gas as cheap as it was possible to do so.

A Good Council

Ald. A. Robinson, dean of the Council, spoke briefly, regretting there was not a contest for the council for 1925. He referred to his recent visit to Toronto in the interests of the power system of the Province. The past year's council was in his opinion, a fairly good council. He was in favor of economizing in every respect, during the coming year.

There had been some criticism in regard to the expenditure in the Public Works Department this year, said Ald. A. E. La Roche, chairman in his opening remarks. When he took office this year the streets were in a deplorable condition and many were in a bad condition today. There would be he thought no overdraft this year in his department. In speaking of the amount paid the Standard Paving Company the speaker said that the company this year was paid a considerable amount which was due the company on pavements constructed in previous years, namely, Station street and Highland Avenue. Ald. La Roche spoke of the effort made to sell a Dominion dustless sweeper to this city, but he was opposed to its purchase.

In referring to appropriations made to the public works department the speaker showed that in previous years there had been overdrafts. The appropriations and overdrafts were as follows:

	Appropriation	Overdraft
1919	$25,000	$9,438.87
1920	39,000	53.05
1921	38,000	3,902.76
1922	39,000	1,506.37
1923	20,000	8,500.00
1924	27,000

During this year 62,000 square yards of roadway had been re-surfaced and much other work had been done.

Aldermen elect. G. W. Dawes, C. Ruttan and J. W. Parish spoke briefly promising to do all in their power in the interest of the city.

Mayor Mikel Speaks

Mayor Mikel said none of his opponents had put forward any policy or plan.

When he appeared before the electors a year ago he announced a number of proposals which he intended to carry out. These proposals were endorsed by a very large majority of the electors. It had been a short municipal year, only about ten and a half months, and a very busy year, and it had not been possible to accomplish all these proposals. Many electors had urged him to remain for another year to finish his program and he had consented. Ald. McCreary had done so and had promised to support him.

The U.E.L. Celebration was one of the biggest ever held in the Province. The Corby Baths were erected. The Labor Committee had been formed, also the Power Committee.

The reduction of the cost of Fire Insurance, the plans for city growth, the Bay and River Improvement and Old Boys Reunion were among the matters to receive further consideration.

His opponents said they were in favor of progress and economy. They have been in the City Council and they inaugurated no measure of either progress or economy. No doubt every candidate for office from the beginning of the world to date would say he was in favor of progress and economy. What the electors were interested in, however were the methods or plans by which they would try to bring it about. None of the other candidates had shown any such plans They had approved of the expenditure of $150 for rent of a booth at Toronto Exhibition from which to hand out folders, and Ald. Greenleaf was paid $40 for his expenses doing it Is this the economy they would give us? Mayor Mikel asked.

"Ald. McCreary not only urged me to come into the contest but promised not to run if I would and to support me. As soon as I entered the contest he announced himself a candidate. Is that fair treatment?"

He was opposed to impairing the sinking fund. Our debentures would soon fall in price if it became known that Belleville Council is impairing the sinking fund.

Alderman McCreary

Ald. W. R. McCreary congratulated the Aldermen-elect for 1925 and also announced that he was a candidate for the Mayoralty. In regard to a statement that some of the mayoralty candidates were disqualified owing to the council of 1923 taking some of the surplus of the sinking fund and applying it to general expenditures he said it was simply bunk. There was nothing to it. At the time there was more money in the sinking fund than was necessary to meet every obligation. Some of the sinking fund was invested in bonds that were earning five and a half per cent. There was nothing in the law to prevent the city placing the surplus money in the sinking fund to help relieve taxation. He was not present at the meeting on August 20, 1923 when action complained of was taken.

The city was progressing and the outlook was bright. The assessor had just completed his work for this year and it showed an assessment of $2,000,000 over last year. The population was 12,495 an increase of 231 over last year. There were in the city 2,349 children of school age and 3,186 families. Ald. McCreary referred to the uncontrollable expenditures the Council had to meet and relief in regard to taxation would not be much until 1930 when $130,000 of debentures would be retired. he said. The city's share towards the expenses of Provincial high ways was also a considerable item He also referred to the U.E.L. Celebration which was inexpensive as far as the city was concerned. The speaker said that Mayor Mikel had made a first class Mayor.

A voice—He will go in again.

Ald. McCreary—In regard to the parking of cars on Front street, the police should exercise a little of the golden rule. No one should be penalized when no person was inconvenienced. In conclusion he asked the electors to support him for Mayor.

Alderman Greenleaf

On his record in the Council as an Alderman, Mr. H. W. Greenleaf made an appeal to the electors to elect him as Mayor for 1925. As chairman of the Parks Committee he had made improvement to Victoria Park and other parks. He had also assisted in providing play grounds. He had been secretary of the Parks Board and as the result of having bleachers erected on the Agricultural Park, the city had been benefitted financially. Whilst chairman of Industry he had done all he could for the benefit of the city. The members of the Parks Board had been faithful in the discharge of their duties. Belleville was going ahead and was increasing in population. In concluding his address Ald. Greenleaf made an appeal to the electors for their support

A very large and appreciative audience was an evidence of the interest displayed in civic matters declared ex-Mayor Bennett, in his opening remarks. They had to fight in 1923 to get in a new intake pipe at the pumping station and other improvements. W. H. Ireland, M.P.P. did what he could to assist in the matter of postponing the installation of a filtering plan which the Provincial Board of Health insisted upon in connection with the new intake pipe and other improvements at the pumping station.

The Mayor of this city whoever he may be will not scare the Underwriters' Association very much, he thought The City could economize and live within its means. In 1923 the Council cleared up everything excepting one sewer. He considered that a saving could be effected by cutting down on borrowing money from the bank. The sinking fund has been taken care of. He, as Mayor of 1923, was present at the Council meeting when it is alleged that money was taken from the sinking fund to help reduce the tax rate. He did not have to vote as the matter was unanimously carried by the Aldermen of the Council. It had been stated that one of the Aldermen of this year's Council, namely Ald. Greenleaf had been benefitted by the Greenleaf Co. Limited receiving $1,944.99 for work done at the gas plant. He the speaker thought that a Councillor should not sit in a Council and pass upon his own accounts or accounts of a company of which he is a member.

Ald. McCreary in replying briefly, stated that only $21,490 was paid the Standard Paving Company this year of which $15,000 was for the market square. This year the city made money by not selling its debentures in the early part of the year.

CAIRO QUIET AFTER SCRAP AND SURRENDER

Business Now Proceding Normally—British Officers Killed

LATE WIRE NEWS

Want Deep Waterways—Strong Gales Coming—Charged as Swindler

(Canadian Press Despatch).

Cairo, Nov. 29.—Surviving mutineers at Khartum have surrendered to the British it was officially announced here this afternoon. The mutiny among troops was confined to two platoons of the eleventh sudanese, and the mutineers who survive gave in an after bombardment of compound of Egyptian Army Hospital. Two British officers were killed and eight men wounded.

Meanwhile Cairo is quiet, public services and business generally proceeding in a normal fashion. Students of Elazhar University have decided to continue their strike started in protest against the British.

Want Deep Waterways

St. Catharines, Nov. 29.—Canadian deep waterways convention passes resolution in favor of immediate prosecution of deepening of the St. Lawrence River and calling on the Dominion and Provincial Governments to do their utmost to carry out the scheme.

Answers Swindle Charge

Halifax, Nov. 29.—Leo Koretz alias Lou Keytes, Caledonia's erstwhile meteoric "millionaire" is on his way to Chicago to answer a charge of having swindled a number of his fellow citizens out of several millions of dollars Koretz, accompanied by Chicago State Attorney, Halifax lawyer and Deputy Sheriff made a quiet and unexpected getaway about ten o'clock last night when they took passage on the liner Coronia for New York. Five Chicago newspapermen who were to have accompanied Koretz in a special car attached to the ocean limited leaving here this morning were among those eluded

London Nov. 29—Telegraphic communication with the Sudan was restored at 12.50 o'clock this afternoon it is announced in an agency despatch from Cairo. The Egyptian situation was described as a result of the latest messages as serious but not critical. Interest centred mainly in the Sudan which appears to have been quieted.

Refuse to Face Commission

London, Nov. 29—British and Ulster Governments have notified the Irish boundary commission that they will not make statements before the Commission, the British Government taking he stand that it is an Irish matter entirely. Free State authorities are prepared to go on with their case.

Hope is Abandoned

Cardiff Wales. Nov. 29—Rescue crews this morning abandoned hope of rescuing alive, eleven miners entombed in the pit at Dunvant. Thursday night by roof falls caused by a sudden rush of water.

EGGS GO AT 60c. MANY ON MARKET

Fine weather induced many to attend the market to-day which was one of the largest held for some weeks. Whilst considerable farm and garden products were offered for sale the greater portion was disposed of.

One feature of the market was the decline in the price of fresh dairy butter which sold at 38c. and 40c. a pound. Strictly fresh eggs command an exceptionally good price, 60c. a dozen. A few basket lots were procured at a slightly lower figure. Cream sold at 30c. a pint.

Dressed fowls, especially chickens and ducks were quite plentiful and sold at good prices. Chickens brought from $1.25 to $2 a pair, according to size and quality. Ducks sold at $1.25 to $1.50 each. A few geese were disposed of at $2.50 to $3.00 each.

There were no changes to note in prices for vegetables. Potatoes which are exceptionally plentiful retailed at 75c. a doz.

BOY SCOUTS MEET

The First Belleville Troop of Boy Scouts held their regular weekly meeting at the Y.M.C.A. last evening. A number of new members were laid for a full programme of scout work at the next meeting. The rumor that the First Belleville Troop had disbanded is without foundation. All old members are expected back next Friday evening.

Ald. Greenleaf made a brief reply saying that the Greenleaf Limited Company could do business with the corporation He had never voted on any item affecting the Greenleaf Co. Limited, and had not used any influence to secure any work for the company.

In his reply, Mayor Mikel said all the candidates for Mayor had dealt with the past. None had any definite plan for the future to improve the city. If it was proper to take $9,371 from the sinking fund to reduce taxation why not take all the surplus from it to reduce taxation. The statute already provides a method for dealing with it. If it was true, as Ald. McCreary said that Mr. Mikel was a good publicity artist, that was another reason for reelecting him for Mayor. Ald. Bennett thought the cost of insurance could not be reduced. Then he is not the man to try it.

Swede Ran When He Sighted Policeman; Queer Prisoner is Filthy But Well Off

Fear when he saw the arm of the law resulted in the arrest last night of a burly Swede in the C.N.R. yards here. C.N.R. Constable A. E. Harris walked into the depot and immediately the Swede ran out and towards the yards with the officer in chase. When arrested he proved to be filth personified, and when searched his many pockets revealed more than $100. The money was apportioned to every pocket in his raiment, carefully wrapped up in packets of $5 and $10 lots. Some of the bills were vermin eaten and the man was most filthy.

He was remanded to jail for one week for a scrubbing, during which period the prisoners will take their "daily dozen" in the name of sanitation.

Party Not Pulling Its Full Weight

Opinion of Ottawa Journal Discussing West Hastings By-election

Ottawa. Nov. 29—The Ottawa Journal, Conservative, has the following comment to offer on the result of the recent by-election in West Hastings.

Only cowardice could dictate pretence that the Conservative reverse in W. Hastings, a traditional Tory strong hold in the heart of Ontario is not a serious one. Let it be admitted at once, therefore, that the King Ministry has achieved an important victory; one that heightens its morale and sends it to meet Parliament with considerable new prestige.

What is the explanation?

The first explanation—and it leaves room for melancholy reflection—is that the public was never impressed with the charge against Mr. Murdock. Parliamentary investigation—the verdict of a partisan committee notwithstanding—demonstrated decisively that Mr. Murdock used his position as a Cabinet Minister to avoid financial loss. It was shown that, having heard at a meeting of the Cabinet that the Home Bank was about to fail, he proceeded at once to the Ottawa branch of the institution and withdrew $4,000. That unquestionably, was a breach of Cabinet tradition; Mr. Murdock was using Cabinet information to secure a financial advantage denied to ordinary citizen. But the public, unfortunately, did not see it in that light. The average man, unconcerned with the ethics and niceties of public morality, simply envied Mr. Murdock the luck of his position, and wished that he had similar opportunity to get out from under. One had only to listen to comments from "the man in the street" to understand the truth. When, consequently, Mr. Porter resigned from the House to appeal to his electors, no profound public emotion was stirred. The ordinary taxpayer, concerned chiefly with living costs and tax bills, saw only a play at party tactics, and was unconcerned with the result.

But there must be other reasons. Wendell Phillips i was who said that every defeat was but another step in education; and the Conservative party will do well to regard Hastings in that light. Chief among the other reasons is the too apparent truth that the Conservative party is not pulling its full weight in the boat.

TRUCK AND AUTO CRASH ON HIGHWAY

A truck while transporting highway workmen from the job on the Trent Road to Belleville at 5.30 o'clock Friday evening collided headon with a motor car which was travelling towards Trenton, on the highway beyond Jones' Creek, throwing the car into the ditch and throwing the men off the truck. Almost at the same time a car driven by Harry Yanover travelling westwards, crashed into the wreckage, tearing a wheel off the Yanover car.

S. Cornell, Highway worker was slightly injured. Others escaped very luckily.

STAGE IS SET FOR MAYORALTY VOTE

Although there will be no contest on Monday for Aldermen, considerable interest is manifested in the Mayoralty contest with four candidates in the field. There is every indication that a fairly good vote will be recorded as the candidates have their friends who will vote and work for them. In additio nto the Mayoralty contest the electors will be asked to record their votes either for or agains daylight saving for 1925.

In Coleman Ward Public School supporters will be called upon to vote for a Public School Trustee. Messrs. Geo. Sprackett and W. J. Looker are the candidates and are both new men.

Life and Death

So he died for his faith. That is fine—
  More than most of us do.
But stay, can you add to that line
  That he lived for it, too?

In death he bore witness at last
  As a martyr to truth.
Did his life do the same in the past
  From the days of his youth?

It is easy to die. Men have died
  For a wish or a whim—
From bravado or passion or pride.
  Was it harder for him?

But to live! every day to live out
  All the truth that he dreamt,
While his friends met his conduct with doubt,
  And the world with contempt—

Was it thus that he plodded ahead.
  Never turning aside?
Then we'll talk of the life that he led.
  Never mind how he died.

—Ernest Crosby.

Student Body is A Happy Group

B.H.S. Students Parade the Streets Before Hearing University Head Speak

Enthusiasm reigned supreme at the annual commmencement exercises and parade of the high schol students yesterday. Carrying banners, streamers and parasols, and headed by the school bugle band, and Mr. Tilly with the bag pipes, the student body paraded from the High School through Front street to Victoria Avenue and then to the Griffin Theater, which was crowded to capacity. School yells and songs filled the place until the exercises started. An orchestra accompanied the signing of "School days", "A long, Long Trail", and "It isn't any trouble just to S-m-i-l-e," led by Jack Deacon.

Mr. Geo. T. Woodley, chairman of the afternoon delivered a short address, in which he stated that as a business man he considered the time had come for the erection of a new high school.

Every mention of a new High School brought loud and long applause and the need was never more evident than that afternoon when the lower floor of the Griffin Theatre was filled entirely with pupils from the school.

Dr. Haffner sang a solo and an encore very pleasingly. Mr. Allan Meagher presented the Form cup to Form V, which won the greatest number of points on Field Day. He paid Mr. MacLaurin and the staff a nice tribute, remarking on their interest in ex-pupils, and the high esteem in which they were held by these and all citizens.

Mr. George Faulkiner, as President of the Literary Society spoke briefly on the aim and work of the Society which is improving every year, and urged the hearty co-operation of pupils and friends.

In the absence of Col. E. D. O'Flynn, Major MacManus presented the medals to the champions of Field Day.

Mrs. (Major) Keeler presented the I. O. D. E. prize for General proficiency in First year Commercial work to Gertrude Colden, and this was followed by the presentation of the Graduation diplomas.

The principal address for the afternoon was delivered by Dr. Bruce Taylor, of Queen's University, Kingston.

Mrs. Stobie contributed splendid solos. Mr. C. M. Reid presented the Rotary Club for the Intermediate School basketball. Gertrude Fisher received the Catholic Women's League prize for General proficiency in Second Year Commercial from Miss Helena Lynch. Percy Cole won the Board Cup, presented by Mr. W. H. Harvey.

Mr. W. H. Lattimer presented Lorine Sprague with the Kiwanis Scholarship, and Mr. J. W. Cook gave Ethel Adams the Board Scholarship. Evelyn Cook and Donald Garrison received the Blackburn prize from Mr. I. L. Moore, and the Riggs-James Baseball shield went to II D.

Rev. N. S. McKechnie presented Alec Gordon with the second Carter scholarship amounting to $60.00.

Mr. F. S. Deacon gave out the Commercial Diplomas and Medals, and Major McManus gave the medals and certificates for shooting. Albert Armstrong presented the Boys' Baseball Shield to Form IV B.

The main prize went to Miss Hazel Mitchell for the highest aggregate on Junior Matriculation in 1924. This cash prize amounts to $100.00. and was presented by Principal Bruce Taylor.

Prize Winners

The prize winners of the year were—

Suggest Hospital Up in Bancroft

Location is Ideal For Treating Sufferers of Consumption

In view of the fact that Bancroft is 200 feet above the water level at Trenton and is in the Highlands and pines of Ontario it has been suggested that a hospital be established for consumptives. Bancroft is as high as Muskoka and there are many lakes, in fact, 33 lakes can be seen from the road leading from Belleville to Bancroft. A number of people have chosen the site to recuperate from the dread disease and in every case have shown gains in weight and health for a time at least. One man has built a house this summer and intends to reside in Bancroft and hopes to be completely cured. It is also believed that if proper facilities were offered many people would assist in the establishment of the enterprise to help the suffering. The railway gives excellent service now.

It is also reported that goats like the highlands and never contract tuberculosis either in their meat or milk and the country is ideal for them. There are now 11 goats in the district, some Swiss and Angora which are not only valuable for their wool but the milk could be used by the consumptives and they would not be contracting germs as they do from the milk of cows. The parties interested would be glad to receive suggestions as to how the work might be established.—Madoc Review.

JARVIS TO SAIL LIPTON'S BOAT AT SANDY HOOK

Famous Yatchsman Visits Toronto Financier at Jail Farm To-day

TALKED TWO HOURS

Lipton and Jarvis Are Friends of Long Standing

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 29.—Aemilius Jarvis Senior, Canadian yachtsman, has promised Sir Thomas Lipton that he will take command of Lipton's yacht which will be entered for the American cup classic off Sandy Hook in 1926. Jarvis is now serving six months in jail following his conviction on charges of conspiracy to defraud the province of Ontario. The interview between the two yachtsmen, who are friends of long standing, took place at the jail farm this morning. It lasted about two hours. Sir Thomas stated afterwards that he had Jarvis' word of honor that he would sail the Challenger in 1926.

SIR ADAM BECK TO RESIGN NEXT YEAR

London, Ont. Nov. 29—Sir Adam Beck, father of Hydro, chairman of the Hydro Power Commision of Ontario definitely announced to members of the Kiwanians Club here yesterday that he was going to resign from active association with all his public interests, with the exception of one or two, when the last generator is installed at Queenston, unless it is decided to put up another unit.

The last generator of the greatest power plan in the world will be installed in 1925, and that means that Sir Adam's resignation will come next year.

This will mark the close of twenty-five years of public service. "During which time I have had the confidence and co-operation of the people, particularly the City of London."

The one or two projects with which Sir Adam will still be identified, will be Queen Alexandria Sanitorium and the city of London's transportation problem.

Speaking of the Sanitorium. Sir Adam said that it was one of the dearest things in his heart and that, as long as possible, he would continue to be associated with this most marvellous institution.

Dealing with the transportation problem of the city, he indirectly urged the citizens to buy the road and operate it as a public utility.

MAYOR MIKEL AND THE SINKING FUND

Mayor Mikel has raised one of the most important questions that has come before the municipal electors of Belleville, namely ,the sacredness of the Sinking Fund. Our Debentures are bought by brokers in the first instance, but ultimately come to the hands of persons in Toronto, Montreal and other places. These owners cannot examine the proceedings of the City Council of Belleville each year to see that the law as to the Sinking Fund is being complied with. They assume that the Council is complying with the law. If it becomes known that the law is not being complied with by Belleville Council, our Debentures will undoubtedly sell at a lower price on the market and Belleville will lose. The rate By-Law for 1923 shows that an amount equal to one mill on the dollar of the assessment, $9,271.32, was diverted from the Sinking Fund. Ex-Mayor Bennett, Ald. Greenleaf and Ald. McCreary were members of the City Council that year. It is admitted that the City Solicitor and also an Official of the Ontario Municipal Board advised that this transaction was illegal, but nevertheless it was afterwards done. We feel that the electors should support Mayor Mikel if for no other reason than to discourage perversion of the Sinking Fund.

FOR EFFECTIVE PREFERENCE

From the Ottawa Citizen.

Col. W. N. Ponton, of Belleville, spoke with broad vision at the meeting of the Ontario associated boards of trade and chambers of commerce in Toronto last Friday. In urging a national policy of preference, for trade between the nations within the British Commonwealth, he asked why Canada should lie down under the high tariff walls which foreign countries had built against it. "Are we afraid of being great?" he inquired. "Let us link up with the Motherland and try to make the Empire an economic unit."

Opposition arguments to this appeal for a bigger national policy seem to be largely based on fear. Opponents who concede second place to none in expounding high imperial sentiments, too often allow themselves to be blinded by tariff politics. The need is for vision beyond the tariff, to discover new paths forward.

Perhaps Sir James Woods, of Toronto, does glimpse the possibilities of making progress in the trade relations between Great Britain and Canada without worrying over the tariff. In an amendment to Col. Ponton's resolution, he argued "that preferences should be based on the principle of exchange, with due regard to differences in wages." W. F. Cockshutt of Brantford seconded the amendment, which carried. Until Sir James Woods' proposals are available in more detail, it is hard to tell just what is meant by preference "based on the principle of exchange." It may have meant little or nothing; on the other hand, it might mean a very great deal.

One of the handicaps under which British trade and industry is laboring is the necessity of securing gold bullion for foreign exchange. Great Britain is paying enormous debt instalments annually to the United States, but the nations that owe Great Britain for war expenditure are paying practically nothing. Most of the world's gold is stored away in the vaults of the United States treasury at Washington and the strong-rooms of American money-dealing firms.

The United States is not to be blamed for this monopoly of money-power on the gold basis which has come about quite naturally as a result of war finance. Great Britain cannot legislate to stop the flow of gold to the United States, nor can the other nations be compelled to pay up, as they promised to do when the British nation assumed enormous financial obligations on their behalf. No one would suggest that Great Britain should stop paying, although the tax burden is in effect just the same as though the British nation had been compelled to pay war indemnity to the United States.

Without asking for one cent of relief from the debt, without interfering in the least with the gold basis of exchange between foreign countries, it would be possible for the nations within the British Commonwealth to establish a freer medium of exchange amongst themselves. The plan of a well-known British banker, John F. Darling, for currency and financial co-operation applied to the countries which compose the British Commonwealth, would furnish a new stimulus to trade. It would help to solve the exchange problem. At the same time, it would call for no alteration of tariff policy.

Without interfering with the gold-structure of international finance between foreign nations, the credit facilities for trade within the British Commonwealth could be greatly expended. Without neglecting foreign trade, the process of reconstruction could be brought about gradually to make the nations which fly the British flag more independent of foreign markets.

Perhaps Sir James Woods and W. F. Cockshutt had the British banker's plan in mind when they put forward the amendment to Col. Ponton's resolution. It is two years since Mr. Darling unfolded the plan in an address before the Manchester Association of Importers and Exporters. There has been ample time to study it. But the political orators on Imperial unity never mention it. Nor do they give the slightest indication of being interested in any policy of trade within the Empire, excepting to take a negative stand on Imperial preference. The possibilities of currency co-operation should be considered in the Dominion parliament before the next Imperial Conference is held.

THE REDS CELEBRATE

With mighty flare and lurid glare the Russian Reds have just celebrated the seventh anniversary of Soviet To specially mark the great occasion the Bolshevik authorities have set aside one million dollars to canonize Lenin and for the preservation of all the books written about the man whose name has in the chief city supplanted that of Peter the Great. Petrograd has become Leningrad. Leninism is the Soviet gospel. His ideals and his message must be carried to the Russian masses that they may tell the glory thereof to their children and children's children. A typical specimen of this new evangel is contained in the speech which Lunacharsky, the Russian commissioner of education, recently made before the Moscow Soviet convention. These are his words—

"I believe the Russian people and their posterity will always acknowledge that the Red Terror was the best page of Soviet history. If the revolution has not met with the expected response in the Western countries, it has succeeded in Russia, and is a living example to all the workers of the world of what can be accomplished by the unity of the proletariat. It has made great strides in the Eastern countries, and I am sure that the revolution in the Western countries will come."

This is tall talk. A modern essayist has said that Russia has courage in power and weakness, in virtue and vice, in ignorance and knowledge and imagination; she thrives on destruction like an admiral survives by burning his ships, and reserves to herself the art of tragedy which is her normal state. It would seem so. It is quite possible that the Red Terror may be a "living example to the workers of the world," although not in the sence Lunacharsky intends, and his hectic eulogism of Soviet regime hardly accords with the bitter threats of reprisal that Rakovsky and Zinovieff are making against the British for refusing to kow-tow to the Moscow "Ecce Signum." The setback the Bolshevists received in the recent election in Great Britain is not at all to their taste.

"Yes."

"At the same time I want something that remind me of her mother."

"Well?"

"I combine both nicely, sir. I name the child Vesuvius."

Nothing To Equal Baby's Own Tablets

Mrs. Georges Lefebvre, St. Zenon, writes: "I do not think there is any other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones. I have used them for my baby and would use nothing else." What Mrs. Lefebvre says thousands of other mothers say. They have found by trial that the Tablets always do just what is claimed for them. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus banish indigestion, constipation, colds, colic, etc. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Disease Germs Doomed

Many have lost terrors for the Scientist

The progress of recent years in medical research is little short of marvellous. Daily, science kills germs by the million. Daily, new ones are being discovered, isolated and exterminated by the march of medicine.

Science is winning. What were once regarded as serious diseases are now laughed out of countenance by the doctors. Fearlessly they plunge naked hands into swarms of them, their only precaution being to rinse their hands afterwards with a reliable germicidal preparation. We are witnessing the birth of an era when the world will have little to fear from microbes.

Election Antidotes

The Last Name on the Ballot is "McCREARY" and He will be First in Race if YOU vote for the Last Man. Of Course!

Alderman McCreary Says :—

That Willie Mikel says:
That George Bennett says:
That Harry Greenleaf says:
That Bill McCreary says

That every person should vote for him. Electors will please remember they are entitled to but ONE VOTE in this contest. VOTE McCREARY. Thank You!

Vote to Uphold the Honorable Traditions of a Long and Efficient Apprenticeship in Civic Administration. McCREARY FOR MAYOR.

Question No. 1—If every person votes "McCreary" how will Billy Mikel get that 2,000 majority? Let's have a look into those bally ballot boxes, please!

Question No. 2—Ain't it the truth that it's time for a change if YOU vote that way next Monday?

Question No. 3—If you were as sure AS I AM that McCREARY would be a winner, wouldn't you vote for him, AS I WILL?

How, When, Where and Why?

With a Pencil. Next Monday. That last name. Because McCREARY WILL GIVE SERVICE.

When Ex-Mayor Bennett, Ald. Greenleaf and Ald. McCreary were in the Council in 1923, $9,271.32, equal to a mill on the dollar, were applied from the Sinking Fund to make the tax rate look less. This is dangerous financing.

NOTICE

After December 1st, 5 per cent will be added to 1st instalment of 1924 taxes and 2 per cent to the 2nd instalment.

The two instalment payment necessitates an earlier completion of the former Tax Roll. All 1923 taxes unpaid December 1st will be collected by distress if necessary.

War on Wolves

Peterboro Nov. 29—War has been declared against the wolves that this fall are a menace to farmers and deer in the north country, particularly in the vicinity of Apsley, a village forty miles north of Peterboro. Wolves around Apsley have destroyed both sheep and cattle and have exceeded the limit of sportsmen's patience by the unpardonable crime of attacking hounds.

Wolves shot this fall demonstrate to practised eyes of experienced hunters that the wolves are threatening to exterminate the deer. Mr. McCauley, of Warsaw had his hounds attacked by eight wolves, two of the latter being killed by him Whilst nothing concrete has yet been arranged, Peterboro hunters are seriously considering having a wolf drive by local hunters, in which nearly forty may take part to kill off these pests. If the drive eventuates, a territory of many miles will be surrounded.

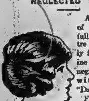
Rugged Charm of Old Days Reviewed

In "The Covered Wagon" at Griffin Theatre Monday

One of the most compelling and primitive love stories ever told on the screen is embodied in "The Covered Wagon"—Emerson Hough's novel which was picturised by James Cruze for Paramount with a feature cast. The picture will be the feature at the Griffin theatre for 3 days beginning Monday.

The romance between Molly Wingate, "the belle of old Liberty town" and young Will Banion, late of Doniphan's army in the war with Mexico, with a clouded record which brings about near disaster for the loves of both, is not only beautiful but inspiring. There is all the strength of passion, the rugged charm and the wilderness sweetness that characterised the country in the days of '48.

A bitter rival in the character of Sam Woodhull causes untold trouble, but in the end all comes right. The production is one of exceptional massiveness. Thousands of persons appear in the varied scenes, fully one thousand being full-blooded Indians, all descendants of the savages who harassed the wagon trains as they crossed the plains during the gold rush period of 1849. There are many dramatic scenes, the chief of these being Indian attacks on the wagon trains, a real buffalo hunt and a thrilling prairie fire.



Girls! Hair Grows Thick And Beautiful

35-CENT "DANDERINE" DOES WONDERS FOR LIFELESS NEGLECTED HAIR

A gleamy mass of luxuriant hair full of gloss, lustre and life shortly follows a genuine toning up of neglected scalps with dependable "Danderine."

Falling hair, itching scalp and the dandruff is corrected immediately. Thin, dry, wispy or fading hair is quickly invigorated, taking on new strength, color and youthful beauty. "Danderine" is delightful on the hair; a refreshing, stimulating—not sticky or greasy! Any drugstore.

BROADCASTING SNAKE DIES IN HIS CAGE

State College, Pa., Nov. 29.—With his fangs piercing his own body, "Kelly" the big rattlesnake that won fame last spring through broadcasting his rattle from the Pennsylvania state college radio station was found dead in his cage by Professor G. R. Green, his owner, and head of the college nature study department.

It was not a case of suicide, according to Prof. Green who said that its own venom would not kill a rattler.

Scores of visitors to the nature study zoo on the campus have tried to make "Kelly" give rattling performances. Too much of this coaxing proved fatal to the five foot reptile, said to be the first snake to successfully broadcast its own rattle.

Hot Water and Calomel

CLEANS AND TONES UP THE WHOLE SYSTEM

You need not fear any bad after-effects, no salts or Seidlitz are needed when you take the new tanol calomel. It is the best medicine in the world for headaches, indigestion, gas on the stomach, constipation, high blood pressure, bad taste in mouth, rheumatism poisoned system, etc. One tanol calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime, and a cup or two of hot water first thing in the morning will wash all the previous day's wastes, gases and toxins from the system, making you feel better, eat better, work better, digest better, and be 100 per cent. better in every way. Get a few of these simple tablets from McKeown's Drug Store and you will be surprised how effective they are.

Mayor Mikel's record this year will entitle him to re-election.

Gin Pills relieved her headaches and backaches

Headaches and backaches frequently indicate kidney trouble, and may be the forerunners of dangerous illness. Read how one sufferer was relieved.

"My trouble has been very bad headaches, backaches and dizzy spells. I started taking Gin Pills and only used a little more than half a box when my headaches and backaches stopped and now I feel like a new girl. I am well and have had no return of those distressing headaches and backaches."

BELLEVILLE AND PROSPERITY

The immediate duty of every Belleville citizen is to improve conditions now existing in the city.

Manufacturers are desirable and local efforts should be encouraged, homes are required for workmen, vacant properties should be developed.

More and closer built homes will reduce our taxes and the cost of local improvement to each citizen. Schools are required. A road building programme consistent with our finances should be prepared and carried into effect. City equipment and public buildings should be maintained in efficient form. Provision should be made for entertainment and etc.

A real city cannot be built on paper. We all have dreams but practical ideas are of more value.

Publicity without a solid background is futile.

A programme for future generations is desirable and may be practical but no one man can carry it into effect.

ALDERMAN GREENLEAF believes in practical schemes. Elect him for MAYOR OF BELLEVILLE

MIKEL AND INDUSTRY

Dear Sir,—I should like to say a word in regard to the candidature of Mayor Mikel in the municipal election. The present Mayor has rendered valuable service for the community during this year and should by all means be given a second term to carry on the good work.

Keeping the importance of the city's industrial life always in mind, he has done much to encourage industry here.

He has been willing on all occasions to render any assistance, a notable instance being that of his official welcome to the Alemite Company's Convention delegates and when he turned up again to bid them goodbye.

Support Mikel and Industries.

A BIT OF HISTORY

To the Editor:

Those who are inclined to attribute union movement to the present union ist leaders will be interested in the folday. (Applause). That is but a small June 16, 1875, in a report of an address delivered by the late Rev. Dr. John Cook, of Quebec, in accepting the office of Moderator of the newly United Presbyterian Church:

"Far larger union is, I trust, in store for the Churches of Christ, even in Canada, than that which we effect this day. (Applause). That is bt a small step to the union which our Lord's intercessory prayer seems to contemplate It behooves us in this matter of union, as in regard to all Christian duty, to be looking and pressing forward to greater attainments. (Applause)..We justly revere the men of Glasgow in 1638, and of Westminister in 1649, but they were not inspired prophets more than we; and no larger union will be accomplished if we hold in regard to them..that every part and parcel of what they established is as little to be touched or altered as the words of the Evangelists or Apostles, or as if they had been written down in some New Testment book of Leviticus....There has been a strong tendency everywhere to expose and protest against the errors and deficiencies of other bodies. There would, I apprehend, be greater profit in looking for and marking the good that is in them. (Applause) I am deliberately of the opinion that there is not one Christian organization from the Church of Rome down to the last formed gathering of the Plymouth Brethern, from whence some good lesson might be learned, and which could (not) be added for its advantage to our common Presbyterianism. It is in the prevalence of such reasonable humility in respect to themselves and charitable constructions in regard to others in the Protestant Churches of the Dominion, that I look for a union in the future, before which the present-blessed and auspicious though we justly count it—shall appear slight and insignificant. (Applause). May God hasten it in His time!"

Dr. Cook, who made the above prophetic utterance fifty years ago, was an Old Kirk man, and had studied under Chalmers, the great Scottish divine. The late Dr. Robert Campbell, clerk of the General Assembly referred to Dr. Cook as "the most distinguished minister that Presbyterianism in Canada can boast of". The present leaders in the Presbyterian Church are keeping the faith with the dead; they have taken up the torch from the "falling hand" and it is theirs to "hold it high".

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE 4,000 YEARS OLD

Baltimore M. D., Nov. 29.—In the archeological museum of John-Hopkins University is a copy of what looks like the world's oldest cross-word puzzle. According to many students this ancient teaser dates from 2,000 B.C.

It is called the phaestus disk, and is regarded as one of the most remarkable discoveries ever made in the Island of Crete, a place particularly rich in archeological lore. The disk is made of terra cotta, and contains on both sides a continuous spiral line of picture writing.

Since the writing never has been deciphered, no one can say whether it begins at the centre and runs outward, or follows the reverse course. Some years ago a German scholar asserted he had found a key to the puzzle, but other archeologists refused to accept his claim.

In the history of Greece, the cross-word puzzle disappears after certain times. Specimens of ancient Greek poems have survived to the present day, which show a knowledge of the acrostic. The tragic poet Euripides has a passage in one of his plays, which is constructed so as to have the first letters of the line spell the name "Theseus."

Then, too, in some of the old manuscripts containing collections of ancient Greek, poems have been found compositions so made as to be in the form of various objects, such as the pipes of pan,

Pola Negri Star At Belle Theatre

Appearing in "Forbidden Paradise" Film of Highest Order

Pola Negri's latest production for Paramount, "Forbidden Paradise" directed by Ernst Lubitsch who made "Passion" and "The Marriage Circle" and featuring Rod LaRocque, Adolphe Menjou and Pauline Starke in the principal supporting roles, opens a 3 days' run next Monday at the Belle Theatre.

The picture is an adaption by Agnes Christine Johnston and Has Kraly of the popular stage success, "The Czarina," by Lajos Biro and Menyhert Lengyel and marks the first professional reunion of star and producer since those memorable post-war days in continental Europe.

"Forbidden Paradise is one of the most colorful and dramatic films which that famous pair have yet produced. Adding to their experience and their mastery of technique during the two years which have elapsed since they separated in Europe, both Pola and Lubitsch brought to the filming of "Forbidden Paradise", a strength and deftness unknown in their European days—Result: Screen entertainment of the highest order.

In the story Pola is the queen of a small Balkan principality a masterful and efficient sovereign who meets the intrigues and deceits of court life with an iron hand. She is a creature of extraordinary beauty and magnetism and possessing a decided penchant for handsome young men Rod LaRocque is a soldier in the army at the front. Menjou is the queen's chancellor, her faithful servant and a diplomat of the highest order. Miss Starke is first lady-in-waiting to the Czarina.

A revolution is on foot and La Rocque, as Alexei, warns the queen, but the chancellor attempts to discredit him. The Czarina falls in love with Alexei. Anna (Miss Starke) is heartbroken. Alexei learns from his fellow officers that with the queen he is more or less of a plaything. He is filled with a loathing for the Czarina and joins forces with the revolutionists. The uprising is quelled and Alexei is imprisoned.

How he is eventually freed and finds happiness with Anna constitutes one of the most interesting production shown in Belle in many a long day.

Fred Malatesta, Nick De Ruiz and Mme. D'Aumery are among the more prominent members of a fine supporting cast.

Lubitsch was loaned to Paramount by Warner Brothers to make "Forbidden Paradise." It's Pola's best. Better see it!

This Little Brandon Lassie Is Never "Dosed" for Colds

The Browns Now Use the "External" Treatment for Croup and Cold Troubles.

Mrs. John Brown, of 426 24th St., Brandon, Man., is the mother of this fine little girl and one of the many Canadian mothers who now use the vaporizing salve, Vicks VapoRub, in treating the colds of all the family. After using Vicks for some time Mrs. Brown writes:

"I have eight small children—aged from one to twelve years—and can certainly say that Vicks is the only cold remedy I have in the house all winter. If the cold is in the child's head I just put a little up each nostril and it gives relief in a short time. If it is in the chest I rub Vicks well in at night and by morning the cold has almost disappeared. I also use Vicks for chilblains and for burns—in fact, I use it too for severe headaches and find relief in a very short time. I always recommend Vicks to my friends especially those who have children."

Vicks is the external direct treatment for cold troubles—absorbed like a liniment and inhaled as a vapor. It is the ideal treatment for children's colds. Just as good, too, for adults.

FINED FOR REMOVING CLARKE CORN STALKS

Bowmanville, Nov. 29.—A very unusual police court case with resultant conviction and maximum penalty was heard here recently. A Clarke township farmer was charged with having violated the Destructive Insect and Pest Act by removing corn stalks from Clarke township, which is a quarantined district to the township of Ops and the town of Lindsay. Here he had offered the corn for sale.

He was fined $100 and costs of $9, by Police Magistrate William H. Horsey.

With the spread of the corn borer in many parts of the province the Department of Agriculture is taking every precautionary measure to stop the spread of this destructive pest which is doing thousands of dollars worth of damage each year to the corn crop.

No doubt this unfortunate farmer who was so heavily fined, as well as many other farmers, are ignorant of the provisions of this important act. They should therefore, familiarize themselves with the facts and thus avoid a repetition of paying out hard earned cash to the provincial exchequer in fines.

Mal-nutrition

Starving, in the midst of plenty. This is the condition of many pale, anaemic, bloodless school children who are suffering from malnutrition.

An investigation in the schools of Toronto showed that the highest percentage of malnutrition cases was not in the poorer sections, but among children who came from the best homes.

Not starved for the lack of food, but because of not eating wisely. Too much sweets and pastry. Too little of vitamin laden vegetables.

The appetite becomes fickle. Indigestion is common. Restlessness, nervousness and irritability prevail. Eye trouble, goitre, St. Vitus' dance and other ailments develop.

The anaemic child is in no condition to stand the mental and nervous strain of school work and examinations, along with the enormous burden which physiological changes put upon the system at this time of life.

The importance of good, robust health during this critical period cannot be sufficiently emphasized. It may mean the difference between invalidism and health throughout a lifetime.

Fortunately this condition responds promptly to restorative treatment and the results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food have proven beyond doubt its suitability in such cases.

Perhaps your daughter's health or your son's health has been a source of anxiety to you. Possibly he or she has not been doing well at school.

It is worth while to try a few weeks' treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. While gentle and natural in action this great restorative is wonderfully potent as a means of forming new, rich blood and building up the nervous system.

With the blood thin and watery, there is little chance to fight the germs of contagious diseases. The greatest of germ destroyers is pure, rich blood and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most effective of blood builders.

The appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, the healthful glow returns to the cheeks and there is soon plenty of evidence of the benefit being obtained from the use of this restorative treatment.

CHLOROSIS

As a result of this bloodless condition girls often develop chlorosis. Appetite is perverted and there is a taste for chalk, pencil lead and such things.

Palpitation of the heart, constipation and other derangements of vital organs result.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food supplies exactly what is required by the system under these conditions and its use brings about complete restoration of health.

Overwork at School

Miss Irene Grey, 157 Beech St., Halifax, N. S., writes:—

"Two years ago I was going to school, it was my last year and I worked very hard day and night over my studies. I stayed indoors most of the time and my health was slowly but surely breaking down. I took a lot of medicines, but they all did me very little or no good. When the end of the term came and I graduated, I was a total wreck. I was thin and pale, my digestion was bad, I could not sleep nights, and my kidneys were in very bad shape.

"Cast on my own resources, I had to work, but finally my health broke down and I had to go away for a visit. The lady where I stayed told me of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after using three boxes I felt so much better that I got three more. I steadily regained my health, am now working every day and owe my good health to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Boy had St. Vitus Dance

Miss Rachel Mitchell, Mount Albert, Ont., writes:—

"When my brother was eleven years of age he took St. Vitus' Dance. He could hardly hold anything in his hands and had to go to bed for about a year. Although he had a doctor attending him, he was unable to obtain relief. We read of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and decided to have him try it. While using the first box he began to improve, so we kept on using this treatment with him until he was restored to health, and he is now able to do work of any kind."

Anaemic—Very Weak

Miss Blanche B. Hall, Newtown, N. B., writes:—

"I suffered from anemia for about six years, and became so weak that I could not walk any distance without being completely tired out. During that time I doctored with five different doctors, and took several other treatments. Some of these would help me at the time, but I would soon be back where I started.

"My sister insisted on my trying Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, as she had used this with remarkably good results. I found this treatment helped me, so I gave it a thorough trial, the result of which was that I found myself walking almost any distance without undue fatigue. It is over a year now since I used this medicine and I have had no return of that tired feeling."

Suffered Much Pain

Miss Olive Illerbrunn, Deemerton, Ont., writes:—

"I used to suffer great pain periodically, and would be confined to my bed for days. A friend one day brought me Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to try, and this medicine has helped me wonderfully. After suffering for years it was a great relief to be free from pain. I had tried a number of treatments before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, but this was the first to give me permanent relief."

SCOTT HAS SINGLE OF 334 WITH THREE STRING SCORE OF 716 AT THE RECREATION ALLEYS

Geyrhounds Lose Chance For Title

Defeated by Bowlers at Recreation; Wanderers Ladies Game

The Ever Ready's put a scare in the Wanderers in the ladies league at the Recreation alleys last night when they won the first game and held the lead until half way of the second game, but after that it was a case of one team weakening and the other team finishing strong, the Wanderers finally winning out by over 200 pins and winning there 9th consecutive win.

In the junior league the Wolves of the North walked away from the Canadian Nationals by winning over 400 pins. Bill George with 595 high bowler.

The surprise of the evening was the senior game between the Greyhounds and the Bowlers, the Bowlers winning out by 479 pins and putting the Greyhounds out of the running for a chance for first place, as a win last night and another on Monday would have put them on even terms with the Hardware. The Bowlers rolled one of their best games for this season, bowling 3080 with Scott high man of all, Scott rolled 334 for his high single and 716 for his three strings, for the Greyhounds L. E. Hill was high bowler.

Speaker of the Day

Dr. Bruce Taylor, principal of Queen's University, was the speaker of the day. He opened his address by saying that it was rather too much to bring an outside speaker to Belleville just now, when the citizens have had such an overdose of oratory. Besides, he continued, the atmosphere was an unusual one for him, a stage instead of a pulpit. It was difficult to choose a subject which would suit all his audience. What would please the boys and girls might not please the parents. After a few more racy words of introduction which put every one in good humor, he asked them all to put on their sermon faces as he was ready to begin his speech.

"What constitutes a good education?" he continued. "That is something which the wisest people have been unable to answer. Canadians are too inclined to keep on the beaten track. A degree may mean nothing more than application and the ability to grind."

Dr. Taylor spoke of his old school master, John MacKay, who had a fine scorn of democracy, and who spent his time during the last few years of common school on the four or five pupils worth his notice and neglected the mediocre who would never amount to much. This John MacKay was a stern man, who had no theory of education except to assign tasks and see that they were done. But this school master, unhampered by any system of education, has to his credit, Hugh Black, celebrated preacher, David Smith author of a life of Christ "In the Days of His Flesh," and R. Ross, editor of the British Weekly. All these men, once the tingle of the tawse had left their fingers, look back with gratitude to this same school master.

Dr. Taylor feels that our system is too standardized—our clever pupils are kept back by the lazy and the stupid ones. The speed of a fleet is determined by its slowest ship, and in Canada the speed of a class is determined by its slowest pupil.

"What makes an education?" asked the speaker, and answered:—First the parents.

No parent can leave the religious education of his children to the Sunday School. Can the S. S. in one hour a week, twenty minutes of which are devoted to preliminaries, five minutes to getting a class in order, and about fifteen minutes in Bible study, teach our young ones the great guiding principles of life, if the home does nothing?

Nor can the school give more than veneer if there is no intellectual interest in the home. Newspapers and table talk are a real part of an education.

Dr. Taylor pictured his own home His father was a lover of books. His two hobbies were the two B's—Boats and Books—both of which he has transmitted to his child. His mother used to hold a twin in each arm with a book between them.

The next thing necessary to an education was Books. He urged the unfettered use of books. Put books in the children's way and let them browse at will. Never forbid a child to read a book, though it may be wise at times to lose a book that you don't want your child to read.

The third thing necessary is Nature In Canada we have the advantage of the older countries in nature lore. In the war, the Canadians were able to put their knowledge of life in woods and fields to practical use, and win comparative comfort out of the most unpromising conditions. Don't let your love for Nature lead you in paths of cruelty, however. Dr. Taylor said that he has on his conscience a squirrel which he once wantonly shot. It weighs as heavily as the Ancient Mariner's albatross. Since then he has shot nothing unless it was German.

The fourth thing that makes an education is Friendship. Friends are made in youth. In the fifties your relation with others is official, you are always on your guard. A friend is one with whom you may stand on your head and he declares it is the correct position; one with whom you may play the fool-and yet he declares that you are a paragon of wisdom.

In conclusion, Dr. Taylor urged the pupils to do something to make their town and teechers proud of them. Don't throw away chances either, through laziness or indifference.

At the close of his speech he presented the Memorial Scholarship of $100 to Miss Hazel Mitchell, who came down from Peterboro Normal to be present at the Commencement Exercises.

Dr. Taylor has such a happy style that he held the interest of every one of his very mixed audience.

With sincere regrets that I am unable financially to conduct a real active campaign, I humbly place myself in the hand of the Electorate. To those of the Citizens who appreciate my SERVICE during nine years to the City, I ask that you do not fail on Monday next to express your approval. Vote McCreary!

Canadian Pacific Canada's Heaviest Taxpayer

In the five years, 1919-1923, inclusive, the Canadian Pacific paid into the revenues of the country in taxes of all kinds the huge total of $31,666,830.08.

The Canadian Pacific has returned in taxes to Canada a large part of all the cash subsidies that have been granted to it.

The original subsidy was $25,000,000 and 25,000,000 acres of land, and some of the land was returned to the government on the basis of $1.50 per acre in liquidation of a loan for $10,000,000, which had the effect of increasing the cash subsidy to $35,000,000 and reducing the land subsidy to 18,300,000 acres. To this must be added the value of 700 miles of road built by the government before the project was turned over to the Canadian Pacific, and various subsidies earned by lines before having been taken over by the Canadian Pacific.

But to the cash in taxes returned to the country, must be added the incalculable benefits the Canadian Pacific has brought to Canada by the expenditure of $68,000,000 for colonization and irrigation, the construction of 8,000 miles of branch lines in the west, the settlement and development of 17,000,000 acres of its lands, the development of mines and lumber industries, the benefits conferred upon the country by the greatest system of transportation in the world, extending over two oceans and the continent, and the world-wide advertisement of Canada as the possessor of such a system.

Canada has received back in taxes from the Canadian Pacific much of its own capital investment and, in addition, dividends in benefits which, if they could be calculated in dollars, would amount to hundreds of times the original cost of the Canadian Pacific to the country.

Today the Canadian Pacific is in better position than ever to serve the country. Its world-encircling organization, its steamship lines and its 15,000 miles of railroad in Canada, enable it to continue, with greater efficiency, the work of building up the country which it has helped to make.

Sinical Sadie Sees

A political vindication often means that the voters are fooled once more.

Sinical Sadies says this is the latest Election Story. A prominent lady worker in the Conservative party was asked the day after the election how she felt. "Like Lazarus," she said, "Licked by the dogs."

All Work and Little Play

Learning the piano.

Let some one else play the fool; it is too easy a part to be worth your effort.

And when the physician said, "Sir, you are an old man." "That happens" replied Pausanius, "because you never were my doctor."

Many will sympathize with your misfortunes: it is a real friend that honestly rejoices in your success.

Be at war with your vices, at peace with your neighbors and let every year find you a better man.

The soft soap politicians put too much lie in it.

Love is very much like a photographic plate—it takes a dark room to develop it.

Patronize These Doctors

The five best doctors anywhere,
And no one will deny it,
Are Doctors Sunshine, Water, Air,
And Exercise and Diet.
These five will gladly you attend,
If only you are willing.
They'll cheer your mind and cure your ills,
And charge you not one shilling.

Too Near the Point

A Yorkshire Socialist, who was explaining to a friend the principles of Socialism, remarked that all possessions should be shared equally. "If you had two horses," said his friend, "would you give me one?" "Of course," replied the Socialist. "And if you had two cows, would you do the same?" "Of course I should!" "Well, supposing now," said his friend, "you had two pigs, would you give me one of them?" "Eh, tha's gettin' ower near home!" said the other. "Tha knows I've got two pigs!"

It pays to know about the eyes

Imagining this or that about them will get you nowhere. They either do or do not need my services, and ACTION on your part will pay your dividends. Opinions about your eyes are of no value. Leave it to me and I will see that your eyes get proper attention. Consultation by appointment.

IMMODEST DRESS

(Catholic Register)

A move to discourage immodesty in women's attire has been inaugurated by Cardinal Maurin, Archbishop of Lyons. Notices posted in the churches of his diocese read in part: "Women shall not enter the house of God unless decently dressed, with high collars, long dresses, and sleeves extending to the elbows."

POEMS Old And NEW

ELECTION TIME

Elections old—elections new;
How many changes come in view!
It seems that rarely now we see
The voter who at ninety-three
First saws a cord of wood and then
Walks to the polls and back again;
Now when he comes upon the scene,
He rideth in a limousine.
Elections old—elections new
Meat costs more than it used to do
Less frequently the village flocks
To dine upon the roasted ox
The olden merriment and glee
Have joined the things that used to be.
Less oft to festivals we roam;
We read returns and then go home
Elections old—elections new;
Sometimes we miss the barbeque—
The maid who guards the telephone,
The cook who served up pies and pone.
The women everywhere today,
To polling places make their way;
And everywhere 'tis safe to note
We hear about the "woman's vote."

A WAKE-UP SONG

By Miriam Clark Potter

The Whiffy-wiff is a baby breeze,
And he lives somewhere in the apple trees.
Yesterday morning he woke at dawn
And smoothed the grass on the new-cut lawn.
Out in the garden he breathed and stirred,
And fluffed the breast of a wee brown bird;
He rippled the pool and shook the dew
From the nightcap of a flower or two.
He stole in through the curtain lace
And danced a jig by my sleeping face
Laughing away like a fairy sprite,
Clasping his hands in the pale rose light.
He leaned close over my ear to say,
"Child, wake up! Here's a brand-new day!"

AN OLD MAN WONDERS

Did we have more fun than they
Who wear the garb of youth to-day?
Were our eyes really brighter then,
Or are we foolish, grey, old men
Who merely fancy in our rhymes
That life has lost those good old times?
I wonder were the girls we knew
In gingham gowns of pink and blue
And braided hair and ankle skirts,
So very shy; or were they flirts?
Were they much different from the maids
Of now, who have no ribboned braids?
We sang and danced the latest styles
We lost our heads for maiden's smiles
We often stole a kiss or two
Which like as not these youngsters do
I fancy, though I do not know,
They still hold hand as long ago.
We tell our little boasts of all
We did when we were young and tall
We fancy joy was sweeter then;
But we are foolish, gray, old men
Still clinging to the long ago.
And is our prattle really so
Will not these youngsters turn and say
When they like us are old and gray
And hear some newer ballad sung:
"We'd sweeter songs when we were young."
I fancy they like us at last
Will cherish memories of the past.

A Womans Soul

BY

Charles Garvice

He rose and thrust his hands in his pockets, and looked down at her, his handsome face set hard, his eyes dwelling upon her with the hungry look of the man who loves and yet does not hope.

"And now, I've told you," he said, with a short breath, "and now I suppose it's good-by, Lord Neville, I hope you will be happy and——" His voice broke, and he knelt beside her and caught her hand. "Miss Marlowe! Doris! If—if there is the slightest chance for me! If there is the least bit of hope in the world, give it to me! I'm—I'm like a man pleading for his life! For his life? For more than that—his happiness——" He stopped sudden, smitten silent, for the hand that was free had gone up to her face and covered her eyes, and she was trembling.

She had heard love made to her on the stage, and it had meant—just her "cue," no more; this was the first time the accents of a real, genuine passion had ever smote upon her ear, and its tones thrilled to her heart.

She trembled with joy, with fear, with doubt, with the almost irrepressible longing to hide her burning face upon his breast, and give words to the cry that rang in her heart. "I love you! I love you!"

"Doris!" he said; "Doris!" and there was truth in his voice. "For Heaven's sake, don't cry! I'm not worth it: I am not, indeed! Are you crying? Don't! I'll—I'll go——"

She put out her hand and laid it gently on his arm, as gently as a butterfly alights upon a flower.

He caught it, and drew nearer to her.

"Doris! Is it possible? Do you—may I hope? Doris! Oh, my darling, my darling!" and his strong arms wound round her, and his kisses fell like hot rain upon her hair and eyelids.

For a moment she surrendered herself to the storm of passion, as a tree bends before the whirlwind; then she put her hands palm-wise upon his breast, and gently kept him from her.

"Oh, wait, wait!" she murmured. "I don't know——"

"Don't know! Don't know whether you love me, you mean?" he said, kneeling beside her, and gazing hungrily in her face, ready to swoop down upon her with renewed caresses.

"Yes," she said, and her voice came in a whisper. "It is all so—so sudden! I don't know——"

"My darling!" he whispered, "Let me ask you! I know what love means for I learned it from my love for you. Look at me, Doris!"

She raised her eyes—they seemed weighted with lead—and let them rest upon his ardent, glowing face.

"Let me ask you," he said, "would you like me to be unhappy? Would you like me to leave you, to go away from you, not for an hour, or a day, but forever?"

A faint shudder shook her, and the hand touching his breast half-closed on him.

"Would you be happy if I were miles away, and there were no chance of ever seeing me again? Doris, answer me: shall I go? Will you say 'good-by?'"

He drew back from her in a feint leaving her, and her small, soft hands closed upon him.

"No, no!"

He asked for no more. With a cry of joy he drew her to him and kissed her, all unrebuked this time.

"My darling!—my beautiful!" he murmured. "Oh, Doris, is it true—can it be true? Tell me, dearest; I can't believe it otherwise. Tell me, do you love me just a little?" and he looked into her downcast eyes as if he would read her soul.

THE SUN AS YOUR DOCTOR

Have you noticed how the weather affects your health?

Doctors are realizing more and more that changes of weather cause changes in the human body. They say that sunshine and rain, cold and heat, are important in our health. A study of the relations between health and walth has become a new science, which is called "climatology."

Different kinds of weather affect different people in different ways, but as a rule we feel better when the sun is shining. Damp is an enemy of health; a cool, bracing day a friend. Doctors frequently order their patients a 'change of scene,' and they are now learning that the benefits of such a change are greater even than they had thought, because a change of scene usually means a change of climate as well. Temperature, the amount of moisture in the air, the height above sea-level all these things can affect our health.

Not only has weather a direct influence on our health, but an indirect one also. Our lives are arranged to suit the weather and climate. Bad weather keeps us indoors, and consequently, in winter, when darkness hampers our movements in the open air, many of us lead unhealthy lives.

Another discovery made by "climatologists" is that sunshine has a wonderful healing effect in such diseases as tuberculosis and rickets. The direct rays of the sun on our bodies form a treatment which is being given more frequently every year.

In the same way, the study of weather reports has become of increasing importance in deciding the situation of hospitals, sanatoria, and convalescent homes.

THE LITTLE-BIT-MORE GIRL

It was rather warm in the garden but Alicia was so intent on her work that she did not mind the heat. "Mother wants me to weed the rose bed," she was thinking. "If I work fast, I shall have time to do a little bit more." She looked over her shoulder at the bed of hardy annuals where the weeds were beginning to show.

So she dug and cupped and pulled, and when at last she rose from her stooped position not a weed was to be seen. She looked at the clock on the courthouse across the square. Luncheon would be ready by twelve. It lacked thirty-five minutes of that time.

Picking up her shears and basket and spade, she moved to the flower bed on the right and worked so fast that when every weed had been pulled and she again glanced at the clock she saw that it still lacked ten minutes of the luncheon hour.

"I shall have time to do a little bit more," she said out loud. "But there are no weeds left, and what shall I do next? Oh, I know," remembering a remark she had heard her mother make the day before. "The honeysuckle near the back porch needs to have some of its creepers tied up."

Running into the kitchen, she took the twine-bag from its nail on the cupboard door and was off again. She had fastened up the last straying vine when her mother's voice called her to luncheon.

"Yes," she said as she fanned herself with the back of a convenient magazine while waiting to be served. "I weeded the rose bed, and then I had time to do a little bit more, so I weeded the hardy annuals bed; and then I had time to do a little bit more, so I fastened up that honeysuckle for you. It's all right now. Those creepers are just like children. They don't know which way to go, but they are determined to be going; then along comes a human being and trains them up to go the right way. I felt just like a mother to them."

She looked to see whether her mother was laughing and felt relieved when she saw no trace of a smile on the pleasant face.

"My, but you make the best omelet, mother! Yes, please, I will have a little bit more. It isn't because I am hungry that I think it's good. It is good, whether I am hungry or not. Everything you cook makes me want a little more. I shall have to call you my little-bit-more mother."

"And I," responded her mother, "shall have to call you my little-bit-more girl."

"It does fit me," said Alicia, laughing as she thought of the "little bit more" of everything she had had to eat.

"It certainly does," replied her mother thinking of the weeds in the garden and the vagrant honeysuckle vine. "I wish every mother had a little-bit-more girl like you."

"It would keep her mighty busy cooking," said Alicia.

EAT CANADIAN-GROWN APPLES

"Delight in every bite" is the key term used by the Fruit Branch at Ottawa to a little attractively presented booklet on Canadian-grown apples, in which, after a brief outline of the produce in the different provinces and details of the seasons of the numerous varieties is given in comprehensive and plain form 115 different uses to which "the King of fruits" can be put. These comprise many new recipes as well as some that are old, and all of value and worthwhile to the housekeeper. The apple, whether fresh, dried, evaporated or canned, is a wholesome food, easily prepared, attractive and palatable at all times. If eaten at the beginning of a meal, or between meals, it has a medicinal regulating value, as well as, from a dietetic standpoint, furnishing necessary mineral salts and organic acids and possessing important nutritous value supplied by the carbohydrates it contains.

That the Canadian-grown apple has no superior is proven by the 46 prizes won at the Imperial Fruit Show held in London, England, and the firsts and specials taken at other Shows. Wherever exhibited, the apples grown in Canada have always earned distinction in this manner. Doctors agree that the apple-eating habit is most beneficial and every judge is of opinion that for flavor and palatability there are none that exceed the good Canadian apple.

The booklet referred to, distributed by the Publications Branch at Ottawa gives the details of the Fruit Act in regard to the grading of apples and thus commends itself to every dealer and grower as well as to every housewife who it suggests should never be without a box or barrel of Canadian grown apples. A list of the varieties suitable and obtainable in the different months between September in the one year and May in the next year is also furnished.

Mayor Mikel's policy has given Belleville splendid publicity.

JUST IN PASSING

GRAMMAR IN VERSE

Don't you think that plurals are often rather puzzling for little people to remember? I'm sure foreigners must find them most perplexing.

Perhaps the following rhyme may help some of our young readers to memorise these difficulties—

"Remember, though box in the plural makes boxes;
The plural of ox should be oxen, not oxes.
And remember, though fleece in the plural is fleeces,
The plural of goose is not gooses, nor geeses.
And note, too, though house in the plural is houses,
The plural of mouse should be mice, and not mouses.
Mouse, it is true, in the plural is mice,
But the plural of house should be houses not hice;
While foot, it is true, in the plural is feet,
Yet the plural of root should be roots, and not reet!"

WHERE FREEDOM RULES?

We have been amazed to read recently that the Russian soviet has banned kissing from their country. In a country that reeks with disease and murder where its people are starving, the leaders became worried because kissing is not sanitary! They say it is immoral and now kissing is forbidden. Poor soviet-ridden Russia! Truly the antics of some of the so-called human race grow more ridiculous every day.

ST. VITUS DANCE

Chorea, or St. Vitus's dance, is a convulsive affection marked by irregular movements of the muscles of the face and neck and of the extremities. The cause of chorea is not definitely known, though the disease often occurs as sequel of acute rheumatism or of one of the ordinary fevers of childhood. Sometimes the first convulsive symptoms date from a fright or from some other mental shock in child convalescent from one of the diseases mentioned or in a child who is exhausted and anaemic. Ordinarily the affection comes on slowly: the first indications are irritability and peevishness coupled with listlessness, capriciousness of appetite, restlessness at night, and an evident desire to be let alone. The patient usually recovers from an attach of chorea if the disease is treated judiciously, but occasionally it resists all therapeutic measures, and the child, becoming exhausted by the unceasing muscular movements, dies apparently from fatigue poison. In treatment every effort should be made to ensure quiet. The child should be taken from school and taught, not too strenuously at home. The eyes should be examined, and if any defect of vision is found, as will often be the case, it should be corrected with glasses. The day should be broken by frequent rest periods; the patient should lie down for half an hour or an hour in moderately darkened room. The diet should be plain but nourishing, with little or no meat, except occasionally a little of the breast of a chicken. There should be an abundance of butter and cream.

I expect to pass through this world but once. Any good thing therefore that I can do or any kindness that I can show to a human being, or any word that I can speak for the good of others—let me do it now. Let me not neglect it for I shall not pass this way again.

MATCHES ON THE MOON

In a recently published book, a writer points out that, if anyone were to strike a match on the moon, the fact could be discovered here on earth in one second by means of selenium. "This warning," says Punch "should deter people from striking matches on the moon."

NATURE LORE

By

Wallace Havelock Robb

THOSE WHITE FLASH BIRDS

It is very interesting to talk to a man who has been noticing birds for a long time without knowing their right names. Now, it would be foolish to say that he does not know the birds well. That is the crazy idea seme naturalists have, they seem to think that a guy must be well up on every feather and know all the names and just when the bird chirps and all that sort of thing, before he knows birds. Nothing, I say, could be more silly or more clearly show the lack of understanding on the part of the learned men of birdland, than this attitude of discrediting all bird observation unless the observer knows all the names.

I am saying this because of my own feelings when I was beginning and because I was reminded of them when I met the birdlover on the golf links, this man who ran the roller.

"Yes, I certainly know the birds," said my new friend. "I do not know their names but maybe you can tell me that little detail, but gee! how I love those little feathered friends. I don't suppose they know my name, either, for nobody ever calls me by any name when they are near, and we neither of us, care much, for where there is love and understanding, nobody gives a hang whether we talk in Chinese or hog latin.

"You mentioned the White Flash Birds, Mr. Parr, and, I am quite interested to see them."

"Do you mean the brown white flash bird or the slate coloured white flash bird?" said Mr. Parr.

With this new addition to the description, I began to understand that Mr. Parr was as good as and possibly a better bird man than myself. I began to sit up and take notice.

"Mr. Parr," said I, as we went over the fairway in the early morning of one lovely Saturday, "how big were those white flash birds?"

"That little brown one that runs in the road, is as big as a canary but not so long and the slate coloured one is bigger, about like an English sparrow but possibly a little bigger," answered my home made naturalist.

Mr. Parr turned and stopped at the edge of the clump of trees where he kept his tools in a shack and facing me, pointed to the road. "I see the little brownish one down there but never up her and up here, in these bushes, I see the slate one."

"Mr. Parr," at last I felt confident to say, "I will venture to make a guess at the names of those two birds and will risk it on one condition." "What is that condition," asked my friend. "The condition is this," said I. "If I guess the birds correctly before I see them, just by the way you have noted them, you can be sure you are a real true naturalist and aught to feel proud and, feeling good, you must tell me something interesting about them."

"Well, who is to know whether you are right or not," said Mr. Parr.

"My dear friend, there can be no mistake about your bird cronies, for I can tell you their correct names now just as easy as you can tell me their correct home made descriptive white flash names," said I. "You have been making friends with the vesper sparrow on the road and have been courting the friendship of the Junco up here and if we may see these birds, we will know for sure," and just as I finished this remark, there was a white flash of a tail and sure enough a junco was there in a nearby scrub tree, looking at us.

"So that is a Junco, is it," slowly remarked Mr. Parr, and I seemed to detect a note of sorrow and disappointment in his voice and also a look of disgust on his face.

"What ass of a naturalist named that dear little white flash such a fool of a name?" blurted out my roller friend in final indignation. "I am no bird man but I'll bet a dozen golf balls (you know I find them all over the place) that I could give that little fellow a more fitting name myself. I'll be durned if I will insult him with that Jumbo mess of a name, I'll call him White Flash Slatey till I die," and Mr. Parr began to get so indignant that I hastened to the other bird again.

"Your other bird," Mr. Parr, "is likely the Vesper, as I was saying."

"What's that?" snapped Mr. Parr.

"I say, the other one down on the road s called the Vesper Sparrow."

"Vesper Sparrow, eh?" and he said it over half a dozen times or more. "Not so bad this time," and with this remark he began to grin. "By gosh that's a good name for him," and that is what he proved to be.

"You must tell me some of your experiences next week and keep your bargain," said I in leaving.

"Cookie"—The only recipe I have for cookies with cheese in them is called Cream Cheese Cookies. "Cream one cup butter, add 1-3 cup cream cheese, one cup sugar and sufficient flour to knead. Roll thin, cut with small cookie cutter and bake. This is a special recipe and is delicious for afternoon teas.

"Mere Man"—It was a coincident that the day your letter came I had been looking over some of William Watson's poems for the first time. Since then hunting for information about the particular poem of which you speak I find that he had been accused of being Pro-Boer. And that poem was his answer. I can give you the lines you wish.

"Friend, call me what you will; no job care I.
I that shall stand for England till I die.
England! The England that rejoiced to see
Hell as unbound, Italy one and free:
The England that had tears for Poland's doom,
And in her heart for all the world made room;
In England from whose side I have not swerved;
The immortal England whom I, too, have served,
Accounting her all living lands above
In Justice, and in Mercy, and in Love."

G. D.—You seem to be one of the wise ones who is getting Christmas shopping done early. You are to be congratulated. Now how would you like to send that dear old lady of yours a bronze or (newer stiller) a painted doorknocker for her own room? or perhaps a glass night set for her bedside table? The latter is rather new in shape and can be obtained in a color to match the color scheme of the room. Then there are quaint doorstops and paperweights and all are within your price limit. Try and keep away from the useful and wearable. Methinks she loves the pretty, dainty and quaint things as much as we do. At least that is my own theory about it.

London—Royal family wil hold week end celebration of birthday of Queen Alexandra who is eighty on Monday.

Winipeg—Lieut. Col. R. H. Webb defeated S. J. Farmer for Mayoralty of Winnipeg. Farmer has been Labor Mayor for two years.

PAINS IN BACK AND SIDES

Ended by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fusilier, Sask.—"For two or three days every so often I would have such pains in my back and sides that I could not do anything—could not even lie quietly in bed, and my head ached, too. I was this way about three years, but was worse after I was married. I was on a farm with not a house nearer than five miles and there was not a person to advise me, as my folks live in Manitoba. My sister-in-law told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told me to try it. I took her advice and have been thankful for it ever since. After taking the medicine for three months I can say it has helped me a lot and I am doing fine. I am glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound to others and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. HELEN BALANOFF, Fusilier, Saskatchewan.

Often some slight trouble will cause a general upset of the system. Such symptoms as nervousness, painful times, irregularity, backache and headache indicate some form of female weakness.

Women so bothered should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. This dependable medicine has helped thousands of women and it is reasonable to expect that it will help you. Try it today. Your druggist sells this medicine.

OIL BURNER QUESTION SETTLED AT LAST

Five years ago Williams' engineers found out four new things about oil burning. They made possible the kind of oil burner you have been waiting for. The kind we wanted to offer our friends. We have it now—a burner that requires even less care than an electric washing machine. A burner with no more upkeep than a phonograph. It will interest you to see it working. This amazing oil burner is past the experimental stage. It has proved itself for five years. We know it is right. We guarantee it. Come in and see Oil-O-Matic. Let us show you how simple it is. It burns cheap fuel oil. It's absolutely automatic. It's safe. It has no pilot light. No part of it goes in the furnace. Quiet, odorless, clean. Better get your order in now if you want an Oil-O-Matic this year.

EASY TERMS

You can pay for your Oil-O-Matic as you use it if you want to. No interest on the notes. Ask us about this remarkable plan.

WILLIAMS OIL-O-MATIC HEATING

The Williams Oil-O-Matic is indeed somewhat more expensive than certain other Oil Heaters on the market, but, just as a man in buying an expensive car in preference to a cheap one, expects and receives the utmost in comfort, economy in the long run, and durability, or in other words getting extra value for the extra money paid out, similarly, in buying a Williams, you get the utmost in a heater which will prove to be cheaper and more satisfactory in the end.

We have recently received several repeat orders for the Oil-O-Matic. This speaks for itself, for we regard a satisfied customer as the best recommendation [illegible]

Fiery, Itchy Skin Soothed With Sulphur

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

For Your Aching Head

Hoover Optomistic of World's Trade

Reparations Plan Will Give Stimulus to Commerce

Washington, Nov. 28.—Economic conditions at home and abroad are discussed with undisguised optimism by Secretary of Commerce in his annual report made public yesterday. Mr. Hoover finds in the Dawes plan an effort to solve the reparations problem in Europe which gives every promise of being successful and which in his opinion will hasten rehabilitation and give vast stimplus to world commerce and trade. Conditions in the United States are pictured by Mr. Hoover as forecasting a continuation of property. He laid stress on the improved transportation facilities and the soundness of the nation's financial structure.

The forepart of the report is devoted to an outline of the "economic progress" throughout the world and Mr. Hoover lists as the outstanding feature the advance in agricultural prices in America, the adoption of the Dawes plan by Europe, the recovery of U.S. industry and commerce with stability of price, high production and full meployment, and expanding foreign trade and propetity throughout the business world.

For the first time, however, Mr. Hoover's viewpoint of the practicability of the Dawes plan is made available. The report contains a brief summary of the Dawes plan.

"European stabilization, which this plan may be expected to achieve, will bring about a revival in world trade and increased consumption of commodities, which the United States is bound to have its share," Mr. Hoover states.

"This trade revival and increased consumption power should outweigh any increased competitive power which might be expected from the execution of the plan. It is not too much to say that this settlement of the cexed reparation problem, coming at the time it did, prevented another European collapse, with its inevitable repercussion on world trade and on the business of the United States. The Dawes plan is the first effort to solve the reparations qestion purely on a commercial and economic basis. The American members on the committee were assisted by a competent staff of technical experts, including some of the officials of the department of commerce."

Reviewing the foreign trade of the United States, Mr. Hoover points out that in the fiscal year 1924 exports increased nine per cent. in value, while imports decreased six per cent.

Excess of Exports

"The net result of these changes in opposite directions," the report adds, "was an increase in the excess of exports over imports from $176 000,000 in 1922-23 to $757,000,000 in 1923-24. While in absolte amount this is a larger export balance than in any year prior to the war, the percentage by which exports exceeded imports is somewhat smaller than in most pre-war years.

"The outstanding feature of our foreign trade in commodities is its strong, real growth since 1913. Our total imports andl exports in that fiscal year amounted to $4,279,000,000, against $7,865,000,000 in 1923-24. If we correct this difference by the depreciated buying power of the dollar we still find an increase of 18.2 per cent.

"This compared with decreases of 12 per cent. for the United Kingdom, 14 per cent. for France, and 51.4 per cent. for Germany. The gain in our total trade over the fiscal year 1913 is largely accounted for by the marked increased in our trade with Asia, Oceania and South America. The value of trade with Asia increased 244 per cent., and that with Oceania and South America 192 and 95 per cent. respectively.

New Health For Suffering Women

OBTAINED THROUGH ENRICHING THE BLOOD SUPPLY.

Many woman endure with silent patience suffering that casts a shadow over half her life. But an aching back, tired limbs, sideaches, attacks of faintness and splitting headaches need not be a part of a woman's life. Such trials indicate plainly that her blood is thin and impure; that to drive away these troubles her system requires the new, rich blood supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills are valued by suffering women, who have used them, above all other medicines because they make the rich, red blood that makes women feel well and at their best. Proof of these statements is given by Mrs. Eugene Deslauriers, Richot, Man., who says:—"A few years ago my health completely failed. I was subject to those troubles that afflict so many of my sex. Added to these I suffered from constipation, loss of appetite, dizziness, a ringing in my head and nervous prostration. I consulted several doctors, but their medicines failed to give me relief. After much persuasion I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but without much hope as I believed that no medicine would help me. To my great joy, however, I found these pills were just what I needed, and I can honestly say they have made me a well woman. I can now do with ease all my own housework, and I strongly urge other weak, ailing women to give this medicine a fair trial, feeling that what it has done for me it will do for others."

You can get these pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DOUBLE FUNERAL AT KINGSTON

Kingston, Nov. 28.—The double funeral of the late Misses Margaret and Mary Morrison took place Thursday morning from the family residence, corner of Bagot and Johnson streets, at 8.45 to St. Mary's Cathedral, where a solemn requiem high mass was sung for the happy repose of their souls after which the large cortege proceeded to St. Mary's cemetery where the remains were committed to burial.

Before the hour of the funeral, despite the fact that it was intended that it should be private great crowds had gathered.

Long before the hour of the funeral great crowds had gathered at St. Mary's Cathedral and the church was packed to the doors when the funeral cortege arived, in fact, many were unable to gain admittance.

Slowly and solemnly the cortege proceeded to the Cathedral where the caskets were gently borne to the sanctuary railing for the last rites of the church. The one black pall covered the two caskets, which were side by side. The funeral mass was sung by Monsignor Hartigan of Prescott, assisted by Rev. Father F. Hyland as sub-deacon and Rev. Father M. E. James as deacon. In the Sanctuary were His Grace Most Rev. Archbishop M. J. Spratt, Very Rev. Dean McDonald, of Trenton, Rev. Father A. J. Hanley, of Gananoque Rev. Dr. Kingsley, of Portsmouth and members of the Cathedral staff.

The choir was composed of members of the Notre Dame Convent Choir, where the two girls had been students and other members of the Convent, and as they chanted the impressive requiem there was a softness and tenderness in their singing that added to the solemnity of the occasion.

After the impressive funeral service the caskets were borne by the pall-bearers to the waiting hearses, which took themto the Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were:—

For Miss Mary Morrison—Cadets McCal, Hughes, Buell and Messrs. Robert McKelvey, Mack Strange and Reg. Sawyer.

For Miss Margaret Morrison—Cadets Le Boltillier, Meyers, "Hodson and Messrs. Jack Emery, "Gib" McKelvey and Ted Steacy.

To the surviving members of the family is extended the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community.

The funeral marked the last journey of two of the city's most popular young womanhood. It was indeed a sad sight to see the caskets bearing these two young girls away from their loved ones.

A NATIONAL ASSET

As the greatest transportation company in the world, the Canadian Pacific Railway has maintained a national service in the Trans-Canada Limited which is second to none and on the conclusion of the summer schedule of this crack train has transferred the equipment to the Vancouver Express which leaves Toronto every night at 10.10 p.m. on its trip across the continent, via Winnipeg, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, the spiral tunnel, Sicamous and parts of the Canadian Pacific Rockies famous throughout the world, on its way to Vancouver, where the travellers are unanimous in their praise of the service of the Vancouver Hotel. The Canadian Pacific also operates a steamship service to Victoria, the Mecca for winter tourists.

Not only does the Vancouver Express carry tourist and standard sleepers, but it also carries a compartment-observation car complete in itself, while a parlor car is added from Revelstoke to Vancouver.

Added to this national service is a feature service from Toronto to Montreal via the Lake Shore Line, which has been entirely reballastd with crushed rock and relaid with 100 pound rails, insuring a maximum of comfort for travellers at night as well as an absence of dust in daytime. Trains leave Toronto Union Station at 9.00 a.m. daily, 10.00 p.m. daily except Saturday and 11.00 p.m. daily. Arriving at Windsor Station, the traveller has the benefit of immediate facilities in the women's rest room, lunch room and barber shop, which cannot be duplicated in any other station in Montreal. An added convenience is offered those who wish to travel to Montreal from North Toronto in the 5.45 p.m. train, daily except Saturdays from Yonge Street Station.

Canadian Pacific agents will gladly make your reservations and supply you with any information you require. They are fully qualified to offer a "second to none" service to the public.

If you wish to subscribe for a magazine or paper or renew your subscription you will save trouble and expense by calling at Geen's.
